

THE VARSITY

VOL. 79

---

1959-60

DUPLEZ
ARCHIVES
FROM 470-0012

Digitized by the Internet Archive
in 2014

<https://archive.org/details/thevarsity79>

THIS YEAR WE EXPAND

was the keynote of President Bissell's opening address yesterday and will be ever present throughout the coming years.

Bigness Is Not Enough Bissell Tells Freshmen

By TERRY BOURKE
Varsity Staff Reporter

University of Toronto President Claude Bissell told this year's class of freshmen that U of T's golden age of expansion should not lure them into worshipping it's bigness alone.

Over 1,000 students jammed Convocation Hall to hear Dr. Bissell deliver his second annual presidential address to freshmen.

The president said that although the general contours of the campus are undergoing a new face lifting, he hoped these changes would not destroy the old university spirit.

Switching to another topic, Dr. Bissell explained what he called the fundamentals of his now-famed campus phrase "angularity."

He said last year his speech on the angular student had met with "a fair amount of approval". He added quickly that this worried him because it has become "popular these days to preach a polite gospel of protest, and attacks on conformity have been fired from a variety of platforms and points of view."

Dr. Bissell singled out personal discipline as one of the most important qualities in building an angular attitude.

He warned the class of 6T3 that during their coming year at university they will achieve "a new freedom, but it is a strenuous freedom".

The president made it clear that discipline picked up in earlier years cannot be suddenly tossed away now but has to be channelled into a more demanding form of restraint.

Without conquering the habits of lazy mental discipline, Dr. Bissell emphasized, it would be impossible to grasp ideas.

He said that when he spoke of angularity last fall he did not mean the creation of a race of angry young men and women. He added that Britain's angry young men, after being something of a "nine-day wonder" have eclipsed into anonymity.

Earlier in his talk the president contented himself with a brief remark on Lunik education saying he hoped the "pre-Lunik age in science would not plunge mankind into the pre-Lunatic age".

He added that "one can only hope there is some happy symbolism in the fact that the Russian satellite crashed on the moon somewhere between the Sea of Tranquility and the Sea of Serenity".

The freshmen heard Dr. Bissell tell them that their generation has been set up as a target for harsh and biting attacks from a number of quarters.

"The business man says that you are obsessed by security and have lost the adventurous spirit of your pioneer ancestors. At the same time the intellectual says you are apathetic and incapable of rebellion," he continued.

The only place that statements such as these can be shown to be false is at university and by the students themselves, he added.

The president pointed out that merely attending university, passing examinations and receiving a degree will not give any student the right to claim for himself a special status.

"This is not a factory, and you are not raw material to be processed into saleable commodities. The university is an opportunity—that only you can seize; and a promise that only you can make good."

VSP Stabins

This is not a paper of names, or of anything else much, for that matter, but it still needs a staff. Said staff will be underpaid, overworked and generally abused, but they will have FUN! This we know.

Any budding writers, news types, feature types, or even sporty and arty types can get a soft berth on The Varsity bandwagon if they hurry down to the office today from 11 a.m. to noon or from 1 p.m. to 2 p.m.

Oh yes, we need photographers too. And a mortician, and copy runners (who will be paid, especially if they have a car). And there are so many other jobs we've forgotten about that if you come along today we'll be sure to have something fitting even the most warped personality.

The Varsity offices are in a dark, damp and uncomfortably warm basement of the Student's Administrative Council building. Any old staffer (recognizable by a trench coat, a pipe and an apathetic expression) will be glad to show you the way.

Enrolment Near 15,000 Boom In Slavic Studies

University officials yesterday said they expect this year's university enrolment to be just slightly over last year's figure of 14,402.

But freshmen seem to be enrolling more than before in the tough honor arts courses.

Enrolment in first-year honors mathematics, physics and chemistry was over 225, compared with last year's total of 167.

But less than 600 new students enrolled in the faculty of applied science and engineering. The faculty, which has had to sift out applicants in previous years, had decided to set a maximum freshman enrolment of 725 this year.

Registration in a general three-year arts faculty science course, newly-instituted last year, is about 150 this year, down from 180 last year. About 42 percent of students in the course last year failed to obtain standing.

Greatly increased enrolment in the department of Slavic studies indicated greater interest in Russian.

Registration in general arts and the professional faculties was generally expected to be the same or slightly higher.

Reds Stop Six Students Snatch Contraband Film

OTTAWA, (CUP)—There is little hope that films confiscated from six members of this summer's student tour of the Soviet Union will be returned.

The six members, including one from the University of Toronto, were stopped at Brest on the Russian-Polish border June 30.

The members were: John Greer Nicholson, a University of Montreal professor; Burke Doran, of U of T; Marshall Harrison, graduate of the University of Alberta; Roland Lamontagne, past president of Laval University; Richard Lavoie, of Quebec City; and Donald Wilson, graduate of Western University.

The films contained pictures taken before the students, sponsored by the National Federation of Canadian University Students, entered the Soviet Union.

A representative of the Soviet Embassy in Ottawa said he was unable to say whether the films would be returned. M. V. A. Selivanov said, "it is up to the local authority".

NFCUS has been attempting to regain the film for about two months. Federation president Mortimer Bistrisky said Mr. Selivanov had promised the students there would be no film restrictions.

"We have tried repeatedly to obtain information on this matter,"

Bistrisky said, "but we have been unable to receive any positive word on whether or not the films would be returned."

No explanation was given to the students at the border and no receipt was given for the films. There was no confiscation of films in Poland or Czechoslovakia, countries included in the 51-day tour.

Four participants and NFCUS officials say they presume the films were withheld because some Soviet officials were displeased with certain actions of the students.

During the trip some students entered forbidden areas in Moscow, and left the city on one occasion to visit a communal farm. Visas supplied by the Soviet Union were good only for the cities of Leningrad, Moscow and Kiev.

exclusive with EATON'S

The colour, the snap of
a dress parade...

Royal 'O' Grenadiers

pipe in a dashing collection of sportswear that looks like flannel and is wash-and-wear!

The clear, rousing colours, the special dash of the styles and the snappy outsized plaid are as fashion-tingling as a military march! The fabric belongs to a crack team—a blend of "Orlon"-and-spun viscose rayon that you can put in a washing machine, drip-dry and it's ready to wear again with little or no ironing! They're a natural for busy Fall days—see these ready-to-go sportswear fashions at Eaton's now!

A. Pert Little Jacket . . . with a braid trim that looks Parisienne and adds zest to any of the other pieces! Each 25.00.

B. Pleated Skirt . . . with matching belt in solid colours to harmonize brilliantly with the plaids—red or black. Each 16.95.

C. Beautiful Shirt . . . of "Orlon"-and-viscose rayon in double-breasted style that has a fresh new look! Green or red to harmonize with the plaids. Each 12.95.

D. Sleekly Tapered Slack . . . with Continental-like tunnel belt loop covering the handsome leather belt. Each 19.95.

E. Beautifully Tailored Shirt . . . of fine "Orlon"- and - viscose rayon with nicely shaped collar. Double-breasted style in green or red to harmonize with plaids. Each 12.95.

F. Bermuda 'Kiltie' . . . a new fashion thought with plenty of zing! Bermuda shorts and a short kilt all rolled up in one and topped with a leather belt! Each 19.95.

G. "Gleneaton" Leotards . . . full fashioned stretchy nylon, red-black-beige or royal. Sizes, small, medium and large. Eaton Price, Each 3.95.

H. Braid Binding Is the Zip . . . of this jacket so pertly cut! Each 25.00.

J. Box Pleated Skirt . . . with leather belt. Each 19.95.

Plaids are in a taupe tone with a green cast called "Court Green" and a clear, singing red called "Royal Red". Sizes 10 to 16.

SPORTSWEAR—EATON'S MAIN STORE, FOURTH FLOOR, DEPT. 246; EATON'S COLLEGE STREET, MAIN FLOOR, AND EATON'S IN OSHAWA

EATON'S OPEN THURSDAY NIGHTS UNTIL 9—OPEN ALL DAY SATURDAY

The Books Disappear; The Red Tape Grows

Sticky-fingered University of Toronto students who last year lifted an estimated 700 books from the open shelves of the Wallace room have brought about a complete change in library policy.

Since the Wallace Room opened five years ago, students complained they could never find the books they wanted. Library officials blamed thefts of popular books for the problem.

The officials also charge some students concealed books so they could find them more easily, depriving other students of the right to use them.

Now the Wallace room shelves are closed. Most estimates say it takes U. of T. freshmen about two years to clear up the mysteries of the library, but this year everybody starts on an equal footing.

During the summer the library also adopted a complete new system of cataloging and classifying books.

Officials said the new catalog system was necessary because the old one was too expensive and was inadequate to cope with the more than 880,000 volumes under the roofs of the various library departments.

The new system, based on that of the United States Library of Congress, requires duplicate slips to be filled in for all books.

Books in the Wallace Room will only be issued for a few hours to a student, after he fills in the necessary complex slips. Overnight books will go out at after 3:30 p.m. and will be due back at 10:30 a.m. the following day. Books for the weekend, taken out Friday night, will still be due back Monday.

Students on a book-hunt will have to consult two catalogs instead of the usual one to find the books they want, until the new system of cataloging is completed.

Students tackling the main library will find the same duplicate slips and the same duplicate catalogs dying in wait for them. Remember the yellow two-week slips? Now the yellow slips are for staff only. Students get the white ones.

New hours for the library are 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. until Oct. 3. Saturdays the library will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

From Oct. 5 to May 7 the hours will be from 9 a.m.-10 p.m. and from 9 a.m.-5 p.m. on Saturdays as before.

But cheer up. "A Student's Guide to the University Library", 32 pages long, will appear next month to help clear the fog.

Victoria Residence Opening Highlights Expansion Drive

The opening last week of a building which Premier Leslie Frost refers to as "unique in that the Province of Ontario made no direct contribution to its cost" is also making University of Toronto history in other ways.

The Margaret Addison Hall is also the first building to be completed in the University of Toronto's current 52-million dollar expansion program.

The new residence, named after the woman who served Victoria University from 1903-32 as both Dean of Women and Dean of Residence, is described by pleased Vic officials as "the continent's most modern and fully equipped college residence". It has space for 200 girls.

The six-storey, $1,425,000 home-away-from-home doubles the accommodation formerly provided by Victoria College house-residences along Bloor St.

Forty percent of its cost — some $600,000 — came from a Canada Council grant. The rest came from alumni and other private contributors.

Among the guests at the opening ceremonies were University of Toronto President Claude T. Bissell; Miss Charlotte Addison, sister of the late Margaret Addison; the Rt. Rev. Angus J. MacQueen, Moderator of the United Church of Canada; and the Rev. Dr. A. B. B. Moore, President and Vice-Chancellor of Victoria.

Keynote of the addresses at the opening ceremonies was two-fold: the residence itself and the National Fund of the University of Toronto, which has been charged with the responsibility for raising the $12,600,000 which has been allotted as the public's share of the cost of the university expansion.

Actual cost of the five-year program is $52,350,000. Of that $14,700,000 is expected to come in grants from the Canada Council, and $12,000,000 has already been pledged from private sources.

The expansion program is planned to meet an enrolment of 23,000 students by 1968, the date of its completion.

GRASS CLASS —Sweating it out in a broiling University College lecture room proved too much for Classics Professor Gilbert Bagnani yesterday. He and his fourth-year Greek and Roman History class took to the lawn in the UC quadrangle. Casual pundits were heard wondering if this was just another reason for the university's expansion program.

Varsity Staff Photo by Walker

Vic Opening Plagued By Blastout, Blackout

Victoria College started its year with a bang early Monday afternoon when a gas main at the corner of Charles St. and Avenue Rd. exploded leaving a fifteen-foot crater.

Cause of the blast is still unknown. An investigation has been launched. The excavation has now been filled in.

Vic's hard day was made even harder by a power failure caused by lightning shortly after midnight Monday. The college and its residents were without electricity for approximately fourteen hours.

President Bissell, in his address to the freshmen yesterday, remarked on "the bland leading the bland". Rather reminds one of the three campus political parties.

NOW OPEN • NOW OPEN • NOW OPEN • NOW OPEN

Freshmen — Buy and Save

S. A. C.

BOOK EXCHANGE

119 ST. GEORGE ST. (south of Bloor)

NOW OPEN • NOW OPEN • NOW OPEN • NOW OPEN

TYPEWRITERS

$1.00 A WEEK BUYS . . .
. . . $1.50 A WEEK RENTS

Get a free typing course and a liberal trade-in allowance for your old typewriter when you buy a new modern machine from us.

Phone HO. 1-1843 Today

HART HOUSE THEATRE

Student Subscriptions

$3.00 for the Four Productions

Hart House Theatre offers a Student Subscription at $3.00 for the four All-University productions directed by Robert Gill. The student rate will be $1.00 for a single performance. Subscribers are assured of the same seats and performance evenings for the entire season. Two subscriptions only on each A.T.L. card.

1959-60 SEASON

THE LITTLE FOXES by Lillian Hellman

Saturday, October 24th to Saturday, October 31st

THE SIMPLETON OF THE UNEXPECTED ISLES by George Bernard Shaw

Saturday, November 28th to Saturday, December 5th

THE GLASS MENAGERIE by Tennessee Williams

Saturday, January 23rd to Saturday, January 30th

THE IMPORTANCE OF BEING ERNEST by Oscar Wilde

Saturday, February 27th to Saturday, March 5th

Last season over 40% of the total seats were sold by subscription before opening.

● AVOID DISAPPOINTMENT AND BOOK EARLY ●

Box Office now open 10.00 a.m. to 6.00 p.m. — WA. 3-5244

HART HOUSE

In this column will be announced regular and special events occurring in Hart House during the academic year. All male undergraduates of the University of Toronto are members of the House. Make a point, therefore, of watching this column so that you may take advantage of the facilities which are yours to enjoy.

Graduates and members of the teaching staff, as well as undergraduate members, are welcome in Hart House. All are jointly associated in the wide variety of activities which form the programme of the House.

May I extend to all members of the University community my personal wishes for a happy and successful year.

Joseph McCulley, Warden

ART

The first show will be hung in the Hart House Art Gallery on September 24th. This exhibition, selected from the private collections belonging to University of Toronto alumni, will be in the Gallery until October 12. Details of new shows will appear in this column.

MUSIC

The Music Committee runs four concert series each year. The first of six SUNDAY EVENING CONCERTS is on October 25th. There will be four WEDNESDAY FIVE O'CLOCK RECITALS, beginning on October 14th, and a series of JAZZ RECITALS in the Music Room of Hart House, the first of which will be announced shortly. The fourth series is the WEDNESDAY NOON HOUR CONCERTS, given by amateur campus musicians, in the East Common Room.

DEBATES

The first debate of the year will be held in the Debates Room of Hart House on Thursday, October 8, the topic being "Canadians suffer from moral hypocrisy." Mr. Frank Tumpane, columnist and broadcaster, will be the Honorary Visitor.

LIBRARY

The Library of Hart House, on the 2nd floor, houses about 5,000 volumes for the leisure reading of Hart House members. The Library Committee always appreciates receiving suggestions for new purchases.

HOUSE COMMITTEE

The first event to be organized by the House Committee will be the HART HOUSE FALL DANCE, on SATURDAY, September 26th.

A brief outline of Hart House CLUBS will appear in tomorrow's "VARSITY."

HART HOUSE GLEE CLUB

New members are required each year for this outstanding University Glee Club. If you are interested in part singing, come along and try out. AUDITIONS will be held as follows:

FORMER MEMBERS: 7:00 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 29th
NEW MEMBERS: 5:00 - 6:30 p.m. Monday, Sept. 28th
5:00 - 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 29th

An ability to read music is not a necessity.

Two Profs Die During Summer

Two University of Toronto professors died suddenly this summer.

Gordon Patterson, retired professor of languages died after an automobile accident last Monday.

Professor Patterson and his wife were involved in a freight and passenger train collision. Mrs. Patterson also died of injuries.

In World War I, Professor Patterson, then a teacher of German at St. Michael's College, joined the 3rd Battalion, Toronto Regiment, and became an intelligence officer with the rank of captain where he was awarded the Military Cross.

Harold Sowerby Wilson, Professor of English at University College, died early this summer at his Toronto home, of a coronary thrombosis.

Author of "On the Design of Shakespearean Tragedy", he was 54.

Professor Wilson, born in Campbelltown, N.B., was educated at Dalhousie University and taught for a time at Bishop's College School.

PRESBYTERIAN FELLOWSHIP

In The University of Toronto

Welcomes all students to consider and to practise the Christian Faith with us.

SERVICE OF WORSHIP

OCTOBER 4th — 11.00 P.M.

KNOX COLLEGE CHAPEL

Rev. D. McKillican, B.D.

GET AQUAINTED SOCIAL

OCTOBER 8th — 8.00 p.m.

159 ST. GEORGE STREET

FASTER STARTS

Quicker, surer stops with KAUFMAN Golden Jets

— the basketball shoes scientifically designed to improve your game

Wear the shoe chosen by so many well-known Canadian basketball teams . . . Golden Jets. New non-marking RIPLE® Soles lengthen the stride, propel the foot forward for fast get-aways, or "dig in" for instant, non-skid stops.

Golden Jets let you play longer without tiring because cushion action of RIPLE® Soles absorbs shock, reduces foot fatigue. You'll want these other Golden Jet features too:

- * PROFESSIONAL LAST (narrow at heel, wide at ball of foot)
- * SHOCK-ABSORBING CUSHION ARCH PROTECTOR
- * "BREATHABLE" UPPERS of long-wearing heavy duck

Golden Jets come in white with golden trim. Ask for Golden Jets at your nearest sports or shoe store.

NEW RIPLE® SOLE gives super action

Made by Kaufman Rubber Co., Limited, Kitchener, Ont.

Student Identification Cards Return to Admit-to-Lectures

For the second year in a row, University of Toronto Admit-to-Lectures cards have been changed.

Students have complained for years that ATL cards have been used for everything but admission to lectures. Last year, the name was changed to Student Identification Card, but this year returning students were faced with the same old Admit-to-Lectures Cards.

One further change has been introduced. The 1959-60 ATL cards have no student number, sex or expiry date.

Back in 1951 the ATL cards were approximately 18 inches long—when issued. Part was torn off for the Chief Accountant's Office. Another section went to the College or Faculty Registrar. The student was left with about eight inches.

Two years ago, ATL cards were approximately three inches by seven inches with two folds. They were perforated to facilitate tearing, but each perforation was underlined by the terse warning "DO NOT DETACH".

Last year, IBM cards were used as Student Identification Cards. They were stamped with the name, student number, faculty, year, course, and sex of the student.

This year, the student number does not appear anywhere on the ATL card. The squares and oblongs and numbers (one to 80) are gone; the printing is larger; and there are no fold or tear signs or perforations. In fact, the card is already folded when the student receives it at registration.

Now students can get discounts at some theatres, florists, and rental stores, all guaranteed with the amazing Admit-to-Lectures card.

Lectures? Just walk in.

Controversial Churchman Will Preach In Hart House

A theologian who this summer touched off a controversy among American Presbyterians over the Virgin Birth doctrine will preach at this year's first all-university church service here.

Dr. Theodore Gill, recently named president of the San Francisco Presbyterian Theological Seminary will conduct the service 11 a.m. Sunday in the Hart House Great Hall.

Dr. Gill is former editor of the liberal American religious weekly Christian Century.

The non-denominational service will be conducted by Hart House Chaplain Rev. James S. Cunningham. Murray Ross, U of T vice-president and Walter McLean, Students' Administrative Council president, will participate.

THIS SAT.

Hart House Fall Dance

Sat., Sept. 26

Stag or Drag — 75c

Students' HANDBOOK

now at

S.A.C. Office

15c EACH

Laidlaw Lectures — Knox College

JAROSLAV PELIKAN

Professor of Historical Theology, University of Chicago

THE DIMENSIONS OF DEATH

- Mon., Sept. 28 — The Arc of Existence
- Tues., Sept. 29 — The Circle of Immortality
- Wed., Sept. 30 — The Triangle of Mortality
- Thurs., Oct. 1 — The Parabola of Eternity
- Fri., Oct. 2 — The Spiral of History

All lectures 5:00-6:00 p.m. in the College Chapel
Staff, Students and Public cordially invited

There's Something Special about du MAURIER

The Exclusive "Mildred" Filter Tip, the most efficient filter yet developed, lets you draw free and easy, for full smoking satisfaction. du MAURIER combines the finest Virginia tobaccos to give you perfect mildness and smoothness. Once you smoke du MAURIER you'll make the distinctive red and silver package your favorite — always.

du MAURIER

A Really Milder High Grade Virginia Cigarette with the EXCLUSIVE "Mildred" FILTER TIP

LIBRARY HOURS UNIVERSITY

From Wednesday, Sept. 23rd to Saturday, Oct. 3rd:

Monday - Friday

9 a.m. to 5.30 a.m.

Saturday 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

(Government Documents Division is closed Saturday)

Beginning Monday, Oct. 5th:

Monday - Friday

9 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Saturday 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Dept. of Rare Books and Special Collections:

Monday - Friday

9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Saturday 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Government Documents

Division:

Monday - Friday

9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Late-Study Rooms:

Monday - Friday

10 p.m. to 11 p.m.

Library Office:

Monday - Saturday

9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The University Library will be closed Thanksgiving Day,

Monday, October 12th.

GOOD HAIRCUT

RIGHT NEAR HERE

4 BARBERS — NO WAITING

600 University Avenue

Just below College

In the Basement

Open Monday through Friday

8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

ONLY $1.00

BUY FLOWERS

for all occasions at the

PARK PLAZA FLORISTS

10 AVENUE ROAD

WA. 3-6361

10% DISCOUNT TO STUDENTS AND STAFF

UNIVERSITY BLAZERS

Custom Made

Especially Priced for Students

$27.50

Fine Flannel Worsted Trousers

$16.50

Business Hours: 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Monday through Saturday

Suits Made to Measure

Latest Styles and Design

PARNES Clothing Co.

706 QUEEN STREET WEST

EM. 6-2025

Sample at S.A.C. Office

THE VARSITY

The 76 and 1/2 lb. Departure

VSP Stabins

Art Calendar

Laing Gallery, 194 Bloor St. W. A much-publicized one-man show by Canadian artist Harold Town will be on display until Oct. 2. (Reviewed this page.)

Roberts Gallery, 799 Yonge St. An exhibition of canvasses by Group of Seven artist A. Y. Jackson will be shown until Sept. 30.

Hart House Gallery. From Sept. 24 to Oct. 12 Canadian paintings from the private collections of Irving Grossman, Charles McFadden and Sydney Sagen will be exhibited. The show will include works by Goodridge, Roberts, Pellam, Nakamura, Bayeffky and Michael Snow.

Upstairs Gallery, 10 Castle-Knock Rd. Paintings by Shirley Kessler, a New York painter belonging to the Art Student's League, will be on show until Sept. 30.

Art Gallery of Toronto. Beverly and Dundas. Oct. 2-18. canvasses from private collections will be displayed with particular emphasis on Canadian paintings, the School of Paris and work by British painter Augustus John.

Park Gallery, Bloor and Avenue Rd. Paintings by two Winnipeg artists, George Bruce Head and Tony Tascona were recently put on display.

Gallery Moos, Avenue Rd. and Dupont. The first one-man show in Toronto of paintings by School of Paris artist Pierre Jerome will open soon. In general, this gallery specializes in showing works by modern European artists including Chagall, Picasso and Braque.

GALLERY GUIDE

The 76 and 1/2 lb. Arrival Of Harold Town

By JOAN VASTOKAS

Those who have not yet seen the Town exhibition of drawings at the Laing galleries are missing one of the most important one-man shows in contemporary Canadian art.

Harold Town, born in Toronto in 1924, received his original training at Western Tech and the Ontario College of Art in Toronto. He is presently regarded by most critics as one of Canada's leading artists and is one of the few Canadian painters who can earn their living by painting what and how they want to paint. Within the past 10 years public opinion in Toronto has evolved from toleration to enthusiasm over Town's work.

Town's drawings and paintings have been exhibited in several countries. He has won many awards both in Canada and abroad. He is a member of the OSA, the Painters Eleven, and an associate of the RCA. The large mural he painted at the St. Lawrence Power Dam in Cornwall, Ontario is one of his most recent large projects.

This exhibition, which represents Town's drawings of the past 10 years, reveals him to be an artist in the full sense of the word. He has mastered both technique and expression. The flexibility of his draftsmanship, which varies from the most delicate calligraphy which he uses in "Michaelangelo Looking At His Sculpture", to the most robust, forceful lines of his "Woman", is unrivalled in Canada.

Return of the Warrior

VSP Stabins

His technique reveals a sureness of handling which is spontaneous as well as meaningful. In some of his drawings which portray mythological themes there is a reminiscence of the Orient. Another Orient parallel is his excellent feeling for balance between line and space. He uses the paper on which he draws as part of the overall composition. His drawings of "Michaelangelo Looking At His Sculpture" illustrates both his feeling for balance and his delicacy of line which is spontaneous, yet of ordered simplicity. The "Man Selling A Flower" is another example of his simple, yet excellent, balance of blank paper used as space, line and black wash.

Not only does he have a remarkable range of technique but he displays also a capacity for portraying a wide variety of emotional experience. The drawings range from the fierce tragedy of the mythological battle scenes to a humour that makes one chuckle. His base-ball player series is a good example of this humour. There is also a drawing of a child taking its first step in which the child is grotesquely, yet humorously portrayed as a 'little monster'. There is something for every taste in this show.

What seems to be the most significant conclusion one can draw from this exhibition is that Town is an international artist. He refuses to be satisfied with merely local standards. His work is another indication that a strictly Canadian style of art can no longer be hoped for. There can only be Canadian artists. Town is a Canadian artist, yet he does not attempt to create a 'Canadian Art'. He is an international artist in style as well as appeal even though he has never left this country to study. The artist today must look to the world for his audience and he must speak to all. Town achieves this.

Warrior in Profile

VSP Stabins

comment

wealth

A good many of us are spending our last year at the University of Toronto.

We couldn't have picked a poorer time to leave.

For those of us who like to sit back and enjoy life more will be done than ever before.

Those ornery ones among us who aren't happy if they are not agitating would have found much to criticize in what is happening at the U of T. There's something for everyone.

So because just now we are feeling a bit sentimental as we watch all kinds of wealth pouring in, taking down our old buildings and putting up cool new ones, we will pay tribute to the conception and the campaign of expansion.

And later when we come to tear into it, our consciences will be clear.

and hellfare

We have been told time and time again that the West must search into Soviet statements for the basis of peace negotiations. We have been told that what Mr. Khrushchev says must not be shrugged off as only propaganda.

All of which makes sense and is to the point. But not nearly as meaningful and to the point as Lester B. Pearson's comment on the Khrushchev disarmament proposal.

Mr. Pearson advises a two-year halt of nuclear tests by the west; furthermore he would stop the tests whether or not the Russians agreed to stop theirs.

There is in this statement the first glimmerings of the realization that if we want peace it's up to us and only us to get it; if we want tests to stop we must stop testing, and, ultimately, if we want disarmament we must simply disarm.

Of course, it depends a lot on just how much we want peace, unpolluted air, and disarmament. There are grave risks in Mr. Pearson's suggestion.

But aware of these risks as he certainly must be, Mr. Pearson can still trust that "solemn declaration" on our part not to use nuclear weapons would be as great a deterrent as the threat of using them.

In our opinion such trust is the only deterrent and the only hope we have.

We shall have much to say this year about the logic and the feasibility of such suggestions. For the moment the tremendous initiative represented by Mr. Pearson's proposals now as in the past deserves our deep thanks.

poetic impresario

Poems To Be Sold

Poets are not rare around University College. But a poet who operates his own press and hand-sets his own work is.

Such a poet is Kitchener, Ont.,-born John Robert Colombo who believes "a poem is not complete until it is set in type."

Colombo's Kitchener-based Hawkshead press has been busy all summer turning out little leaflets — he calls them "bagatelles" — containing one or more poems by himself or his close friends.

Colombo is more than a college poet. He is an anthologizer, a publisher, a typographer, an editor, a hustler.

A Prayer For Ad

Let me walk forth naming as I go every good thing that is and let me call each of these ten thousand things by its rightful name that men may know one thing from another

But let me pause as I journey forth namelest stopping I reflect that of the ten thousand things

I alone am unnamed that I the namer have no name and will never be named

By Dave Stein

Since the beginning of the summer ten new publications of poetry by young Canadian Poets have been offered for sale in the University of Toronto bookstore.

Each book bears the signature of the HAWKSHEAD PRESS. They were hand set and printed in the tiny attic apartment of John Robert Colombo.

John Robert Colombo began writing poetry while he was attending Waterloo College in his home town of Kitchener. He discovered that there was a group of seven or so students at the college who were also writing. None of them has been heard of since.

Colombo organized the group at Waterloo College and they published a literary magazine called Chiaroscuro. It was sent across the country and received favourable notice from critics and from such literary figures as A. J. M. Smith and Irving Layton.

While in the process of publishing Chiaroscuro, Colombo became associated with Harold Kurschenska, a local printer, and developed an interest in typography and design. Kurschenska, in addition to working for a job printer, had his own press and was anxious to experiment with it. Under the signature of the PURPLE PARTRIDGE PRESS, he published John Robert Colombo's first book of poems, FRAGMENTS.

The book was called FRAGMENTS because Kurschenska's press at the time could handle nothing larger than 10 lines and John's poems had to be chopped up to fit into it.

In 1957, both Colombo and Kurschenska arrived in Toronto. Colombo went into third year English and Philosophy at University College and Kurschenska went to work for the University of Toronto Press.

Three cou
ed Chiaro same time he organ
Group pan of their o
RUBATO
licity wast
two days
a copy anal met, the to dollars.

In the ov
of RUBA edited the Jargon, th
ary maga

In additi
he wrote li his own po
TIONS, a S were 16 p in limiten

Asphalt Guts And Popcor

John Robert Colombo believes that a poem is not completed until it appears in print.

In keeping with this belief, he has published this summer three small booklets and sheets of other peoples' poetry and seven booklets and single sheets containing his own poems.

He set the type himself and printed them on the small press that he keeps, along with his charming wife, in a small apartment in Rosedale.

To publish poetry at this rate you have to write it pretty quickly. You can't afford time for the laborious chiselling and polishing that some poets assert is so necessary to their art.

Colombo does not polish his work. He writes it as it comes to him and only occasionally does he change a word or rearrange a sentence. He believes that he can, in the moment of inspiration, capture the essence of all he wishes to communicate.

If the occasional rough spot remains in the poem, then it belongs there because it too is a product of his inspiration.

And once the poem is down on paper, it remains only to be set in type and printed to be complete.

The way in which the poem is printed and the type in which the poem is presented are an inseparable part of the poem itself. They can alter and heighten or lessen the impact of the poem.

Colombo knows a great deal about printing and typography. For four years he has been printing and publishing his own work. In 1959 he helped his friend Harold Kurschenska prepare an exhibit for the International Exhibition of Book Designs at Leipzig, Germany. He is secretary of the Guild of Hand Printers.

Colombo's idea of poetry and his method of presenting it raise a few questions.

First, and perhaps most importantly, poetry is essentially a spoken art. It began with man's insatiable love of the sound of his own voice and preceded the written word by several centuries.

And to-day, even with the so-called mass communications, the best poetry sounds as good as it reads. It offers scope for scope for the full range of emotion that the human voice is capable of.

Colombo's approach, if followed through to its logical conclusions, would completely eliminate the vocal aspect of poetry. Indeed, even to read the poem aloud, would be to lessen the author's intention.

This strikes as a rather barren approach. It would mean, in the end, that the size of important intangible adequately would have journeyma

The sect
proach, th moment of new or asle
graphy.

And as w heat and st
it shows at
"Screaming
"Love is th
heart in th apple about could surel consideration.

It is one idea that co
quite ano or later yo sharp edge limit of it
ing to prod

Some on questionab appears on tion and a find.

But som work does needs time

THE VARSITY

FOUNDED 1880

Published by
The Students' Administrative Council
of the University of Toronto
Toronto 5, Canada

Member Canadian University Press

Editorial and News Office
Basement, SAC Building — WA. 3-8742, WA. 3-8113
Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221

The opinions expressed in this paper are those of the editor.

Editor-In-Chief ..... Sam Aizenstat
Acting Managing Editors ..... Susie Breslin, Harvey Shepherd
Acting News Editor ..... Ed Roberts
Acting CUP Editor ..... Alan Walker
Acting Photo Editor ..... Andrew Stabins
Acting Sports Editor ..... Dave Griner
Acting AM&D Editor ..... Elmo Ciprietti
Acting Features Editor ..... Dave Stein
Acting Publicity Editor ..... Jayne Nesbitt

TODAY'S ISSUE: The usual crowd of first-nighters, including Sally Bambridge, Don Cornish, Terry Bourke, Bill Musgrove, Dave Hailton, Maryanne Kelso, Brenda Segall, Sam Swerling, Janet Slone, Sheldon Greenberg, Marg McMeekin, Mr. and Mrs. David Helwig, Mr. and Mrs. John Robert Colombo, Martha Heard, Dawn Egan, Peter Leyden, Ted Schaefer, our indomitable copy-runner, Dick Hughes, and One-Eyed Benny who's once again telling us how to get rich by betting on the "Bluesies." And so to bed and we're awaaaaayy for another year.

"Suffer yourselves to be blamed, imprisoned, condemned; suffer yourselves to be hanged; but publish your opinions; it is not a right, it is a duty."

For Bread

editorial anarchy

Our Natural Enemies

up who had published in Toronto at the Colombo and around them Poetry Group." The and published a book entitled RUBATO. o good advance publication of the bookstore in the book sold for 50c all expenses had been owed a profit of five owing the appearance in Robert Colombo, the U.C. paper, and University of Toronto literese two editing jobs, ished three books of the first two, VARIOUS STUDIED SELF, ets which appeared ns. Working with would become more ound and its almost And in order to e such poetry one at the very least, a it in Colombo's ap- in the unalterable ation is neither as es of artistic typowritten at a white ertwards retouched, in. Lines such as halt guts out," and n peddler, with his cart, one red taffee even to a little girl," little time and cono write down every o your head and it is ublish them. Sooner ing to push the fine writer's tool to the nce and you are goyed uneven work.

bo's work is un- ge deserves publica- n audience as it can in Robert Colombo's ervice publication. It sideration, Kurschenska again, Colombo set and printed the books himself. He sold three quarters of his press run and was thus able to meet his press run.

The third book, THIS CITADEL IN TIME, was a larger and more ambitious piece of work. Colombo sent to Holland for special type with which to set his cycle of poems. Kurschenska did the typographical design, and the frontispiece, a linoblock cut was designed by Andy Bregg. The book was printed on Kurschenska's HAWKS-HEAD PRESS in Kitchener.

THIS CITADEL IN TIME was offered at the University bookstore and achieved a respectable number of sales. In an article on University Poets in the University of Toronto Quarterly, Northrop Frye gave the book a favourable review.

This year John Robert Colombo has returned to the campus to do graduate work in philosophy. And this year he has purchased his own printing press.

Setting the type and operating the press himself, Colombo has published ten works. One is a collection of three poems by campus poets one contains two short poems by Jay Macpherson, one is a "Lyric" by Cathie Arthur, a graduate student in English. The other seven are poems by John Robert Colombo.

Most of Colombo's paper is donated to him by companies and by salesmen. It ranges in quality from fine, luxurious vellum, to the toilet paper that Colombo used for one of his own poems. The symbolism of the toilet paper is not obvious. Some of the poems are printed on a single sheet, eighteen inches long and some are bound in four and six page booklets, scarcely three inches high.

In addition to his own work, Colombo is looking for other young poets who want to present their work publicly.

He firmly believes that there is enough writing of quality being down on the campus to warrant his type of publication and that there is enough of a market to make the HAWKSHEAD PRESS self-supporting.

The ten books are already on sale at the University of Toronto bookstore and at the Student Christian Movement bookstore, and Colombo is confident of finding an even wider market for them.

There has been a lot of talk about how much the schools should be doing for their students, but no mention as far as I know of the possibility that there are already doing too much. Most people agree that at rock bottom the schools should at least be doing what Nietzsche calls making the new character "conform to the habits and customs that prevail". The question is how much the schools should be doing to equip the student to question, attack and finally replace the "habits and customs that prevail". This is to some extent the source off the agonizing discussion about "stimulating the students", "teaching him to think for himself," "individuality," "non-conformity," etc.

The probably reactionary opinion that I would like to put forward is that the schools have in their capacity as institutions neither the responsibility nor the capacity to develop individuality or non-conformity in their inmates, except as a negative reaction. In other words the only possible function that a teacher can have in such matters is to provide the basic inoculation of tradition against which the wisdom of rebellion develops as a kind of antibody in the student; it is in this sense that our teachers are "nos enemies naturels", but noble enemies providing a wall that we may sooner or later find ourselves beating our heads against. And if this never happens? What of those students who of themselves will never be tempted to question the authorities? Let them be. They would have made unhappy rebels in any case, and there is no point in rebelling if there is not some joy in it.

This is one of the problems of mass education. The principle that the basic facts, ideas, and processes of our civilization should be made available to everyone without distinction is a milestone that we cannot afford to withdraw from, even though some academicians seem to feel that this kind of backtracking is necessary; but to give all men facts with which to order their lives for their own greatest happiness and turn all men into questioners and rebels are two different activities completely. This type of education—education for rebellion—should not be forced upon all.

In any case to expect any institution officially to provide the basic initiative for rebellion against it is a bit too much; it would be

"There are no educators. As a thinker one should speak only of self education. The education of youth by others is either an experiment, conducted on one as yet unknown and unknowable or a leveling on principle, to make the new character, whatever it may be, conform to the habits and customs that prevail: in both cases, therefore, something unworthy of the thinker — the work of parents and teachers, whom an audaciously honest person has called nos enemies naturels." Nietzsche something like expecting governments to foster anarchists or churches to foster heresy.

Nor, I think, would this work out to the satisfaction of the individual. What kind of individuality or non-conformity is it that is fostered by the institutions it is supposed to direct itself against. It might honestly be better if the organization were openly to attempt to stifle individuality; for it is almost a truism that individuality functions most, if not best, where the attempt to suppress it is greatest. Not that tyranny is preferable to what we have now; it is simply that orthodoxy calls forth by itself the proper degree of heresy, communality the proper degree of individuality.

If this is the case then we get a kind of dynamic equilibrium in which the "system" provides push toward conformity in answer to which the individual finds it in himself to provide the push toward non-conformity. From this kind of tension between two forces neither of which is good in itself may arise a balance which is good in itself.

What this boils down to for the student, and especially for the freshman, is that there are some things he must do for himself. In elementary education the cry is: "What can we do for the gifted child?" At the higher level the gifted child may well be expected to do something for himself.

Let our educational system regiment us a little more than it does now. Let our teachers fulfill their necessary functions as our natural enemies forcing us to build up out of our own spiritual resources the protective mechanism of wisdom.

S.A.

music calendar

The coming musical season will highlight declining Western Artists making their sixth or seventh farewell tours and a new galaxy of Soviet musicians.

To set the proper political atmosphere, the Philharmonic Hungarian, (under the baton of Antal Dorati) will make its North American debut in Massey Hall on October 1. This orchestra, composed of some 80 refugee Hungarian musicians had at one time hoped to establish itself permanently in Canada, but seeing that we were having difficulty supporting the TSO, thought better of it.

The Toronto Symphony season opens on October 27, with guest pianist Geza Anda and Walter Susskind conducting. Other guest artists scheduled include Pierre Fournier, Claudio Arrau, Shiela Henig, Christian Ferras, Victoria de los Angeles, Byron Janis and Andres Segovia. The programmes, mainly of a conventional bent do manage to include two Canadian works by Oskar Morawetz and Harry Freedman.

Yehudi Menuhin will give the first concert in the Greater Artists Series, October 23, followed by Artur Rubinstein, Hilda Geuden, Nicola Gedda and Eileen Farrell. International Artists are also presenting Soviet artists such as pianist Slavka Nikolow Dimitroff, violinist David Oistrakh, and a Maple Leaf Garden concert by the Moscow State Symphony.

A stream of folk singers, sickniks and other oddities will be going through this town soon, making appearances in these pages. Tom Leher, Shelly Berman, the Kingston Trio, Theodore Bikel et al.

Dr. Heinz Unger and his York Concerts Society will again treat us to a major Mahler opus. The Song of the Earth will have the exotic contralto voice of the Greek singer Elena Nikolaidi. In a surprising but pleasant twist of affairs, TSO conductor Walter Susskind will play a Mozart piano concerto under Dr. Unger's baton. And as usual, the Society has scheduled a closing all-Beethoven concert with violinist Betty-Jean Hagen.

The Hart House Orchestra and The Hart House Music Committee are both planning elaborate programmes for the university community. The Orchestra's concerts have been transferred back to Sunday nights, now that the CBC Symphony is no longer broadcasting at that time. The Hart House Music Committee has scaled down the number of its Sunday Evening Concerts from eight to six with the promise of a more delectable musical fare.

The Varsity

comment

crest-fallen critic

A Match Made

Amid the glitter of an opening night and the celebrity crowded audience at the Crest, the current theatre season in Toronto got under way. Although the audience could create more interest than the show itself, the latter did measure up to the standards of the Crest.

The comic element in Thornton Wilder's The Matchmaker is so obvious that only the most dreadful of amateurs could succeed in ruining it. A turn of the century farce, The Matchmaker deals with the wife-purchasing entanglements of a particular miser, Horace Vandergelder. In order to bribe a housekeeper into looking after his house efficiently and above all economically, he feels he must marry someone and to this end he has employed Mrs. Levi, an extremely noney New York widow. However, Mr. Levi seems to have plans of her own and although it takes Mr. Vandergelder a little longer to catch on, the audience see through her schemes and delight in going along with her as she attempts to change the old miser, a task admirable but rarely successful. The farce of the play is never spoiled by dreadful moral wanderings on the part of the author and these he reserves for asides in which the actor addresses himself to the audience directly. These are inevitably humorous and carried off well by Amelia Hall, Hugh Webster and Powsy Thomas.

The farcical elements in the play are emphasized by Murray Davis as he directed this production and to this end he has succeeded. A few innovations such as the wandering gypsy could perhaps have been improved had not the actor himself danced badly and sported an asinine grin.

The humor was adequately supplied by Ron Hartmann and Douglas Chamberlain and provided a great deal of the charm of the play. Although minor parts, their performances out-shone those of leading characters and with the help of Charmion Kink and Geoffrey Alexander, the leads fell into disregard. If all good things are left to the last, then Miss Norma Renault is that thing. Her portrayal of Miss Flora Van Hysen was indeed one of the most magic uplifts a play could receive.

Hugh Webster as the Yonkers Miser Horace Vandergelder had many moments in which he shone and was properly dispised by the audience, but on the whole he was weak in both aging his character and in showing any true depth to this despicable character. It was unfortunate, because by his failure, he lessened the effect of Amelia Hall as the scheming Mrs. Levi. Miss Hall did create the character of an interfering woman and at all times secured the audience's partiality in her attempt to make Mr. Vandergelder's money flow a little more loosely around New York.

One of the truly exciting performances of the evening came from Miss Martha Buhs, the poor overly-protected niece Ermengarde who is in love with an artist not to the liking of her uncle. Miss Buhs' interpretation of the role was a delightful contrast and she aptly characterised a girl with "the heart of a field mouse".

With the opening of the theatre season in Toronto, the Crest is again offering to the students the reduced prices on all seats in the house. Mr. Urwin, House Manager at the Crest, announced the prices for this year. During the week and for all matinees the single price is 75c and on Friday and Saturday evenings, $1.00. This is available to all students on presentation of their A.T.E. card and can be picked up at the box office any time before the curtain time. It is always advisable to phone the Theatre some time during the day to insure that there are tickets still available. If there are, then they're yours.

the anatomy of shafer

Cellulogenesis

Anatomy of a Murder (Imperial) Otto Preminger's superb, but perhaps overly long (160 minutes) screen adaptation of the 1958 bestseller, seems at times to be more concerned with anatomy than with murder.

But while its candidly adult script may include reference to sexual climax, "contraceptives", "spermatogenesis", and "intercourse" plus an extended discussion of what constitutes rape ("violation is sufficient; there need not be a completion on the part of the man"), it never degenerates to the cheap, sniggering sexual sensationalism of many current examples of celluloid skin fiction. In no scene, can the viewer take offense to the straight talk on screen; all of it is conducted with verbal propriety and legal objectivity and all of it is necessary to the development of the theme.

Written originally by Robert Traver (pen name of Justice John D. Voelker of the Michigan Supreme Court), Anatomy offers an overtly straight-forward, but subtly complex murder case that puts every theatre-goer in the jury box.

A bartender is gunned down by an Army lieutenant (Ben Gazzara) who tells the police he committed the crime because the bartender had beaten and raped his wife (Lee Remick). Wife, a small-time Circe who likes to bring out the beast in men and then feed it peanuts, supports her husband's story, but the medical examiner, keen-eyed though he may be, can find no physical evidence that the woman was violated. Obviously, the prosecution reasons, she had given the bartender more than peanuts, acquired her bruises at the hands of a jealous husband, who had beaten the truth out of her and then rushed off to kill her lover and now is lying to save her husband's skin. The defense (James Stewart), on the other hand, contends that both husband and wife are telling the truth, and asks for acquittal on the ground that the lieutenant had been rendered "temporarily insane" by what had happened to his wife. The verdict is predictable, but the ending piques with a surprise twist.

Despite its seat-numbing length, the film never loses pace nor the viewer interest thanks to skillful Director Preminger, who keeps his story on the move and his actors on the jump. And though these actors play a confusing welter of styles, ranging from Ben Gazzara's highly professional Method introversion to Joseph Welch's play-yourself amateurism, Preminger is able to weld their combined brilliance into a first-rate team effort. James Stewart as the rambunctious, jazz-digging upstate lawyer turns in the finest portrayal of his long and successful career and Lee Remick, a relative newcomer, shines forth as one of the more talented young stars Hollywood has constellated in sometime. Not to be outdone by these click professionals, however, is Boston lawyer Joseph N. Welch, who plays the judge almost as memorably as he played himself on TV during his historic fracas with the late Senator McCarthy. Also memorable is the jagged modern jazz background score by the old-pie-eye Duke Ellington who also appears briefly on screen during a nightclub scene.

For mature frankness in the handling of a hitherto taboo cinema subject, Anatomy is possibly the strongest film Hollywood has ever released.

Ted Schafer.

my hat!

Hot Carling, Borough Petered

This summer the most recent professional outgrowth of university theatre, The Straw Hat Players, had the biggest houses on record in Port Carling and the smallest on record in Peterborough.

During the Carling run of Agatha Christie's The Mousetrap, even the top of the piano was saleable space. During the Peterborough run of Escapade, two hundred free tickets were given away in one day at the Peterborough exhibition, and only seven turned up in the box-office.

In spite of the patronage of Robertson Davies, his wife, and his newspaper, the Peterborough Examiner, the company found that Peterborough audiences, who had complained loudly during their one year without summer theatre, were unwilling to spend their money or time patronizing the theatre.

This is the second summer that graduate Bill Davis and law student Karl Jaffary have run the company. Last year, they ran only the Port Carling theatre, and this summer expanded into two companies which commuted between the two centers.

Bill Davis, co-producer of the company, also directed three shows, played the male lead in The Mousetrap, and doubled as lighting designer and substitute stage manager upon occasion. He is returning to Toronto this fall to direct shows for Vic, Trinity, and UC-St. Mikes, as well as directing the UC Folk Opera.

University actors Mary Anderson, Jackie Burroughs, Matt Corrigan and Nancy Keeling spent the whole season with the company. Graduates James Mainprize, Jamie Cunningham, and Eleanor Beecroft also worked regularly.

Most of the plays presented were standard summer-stock repertory, comedies and thrillers. Stout and oysters of the season's fare was Summer of the Seventeenth Doll.

In spite of the poor audiences in Peterborough, inordinate transportation problems, and the usual ups and downs of a shoestring operation, Davis and Jaffary have once again proved that you can run a summer theatre without losing your shirt or your sanity.

Push Up Blood Date, Plan Big Fall Campaign

Red Cross officials, plagued last year by poor response to their blood drive at the University of Toronto, believe they have found a solution to their predicament.

The campaign this year will be held in mid-October rather than in February which was the custom.

The Red Cross has blamed "a run-down mental condition in the late winter" for the lack of response among students to the call for blood.

Happy, healthy, students—fresh from summer vacations should be more willing to donate blood, campaign officials say.

The campaign this year will be organized under individual chairmen in every faculty and arts college. Previously there was one central chairman directing college and faculty representatives.

The increasing demand for blood has left U. of T. students with the responsibility of providing enough blood to supply the 22 Metro Toronto hospitals for three weeks. The objective stands at 4,500 donations, less than one pint for every three students.

Fraternities Seek Foothold Among Adamant Annexers

The contentious question of University of Toronto's homeless fraternities, far from having died in the summer's humid heat, seems to have acquired renewed vigour as residents of the Annex last week once again strongly indicated they want no part of the fraternities.

The flareup came as residents of the Annex—the area bounded by Bathurst, Bloor, Avenue Road and the railroad tracks—held another meeting Wednesday with officials of the City Planning Department to discuss chances of rezoning the area to allow fraternities there.

The rezoning, which was first proposed last year when the University announced it was expropriating "fraternity row", St. George Street, as part of an expansion plan, is being bitterly fought by residents of the Annex.

Home owners say fraternities are "nothing but a combination of night clubs and cocktail bars", and they will "ruin the Annex" if they're allowed to locate there.

One fraternity spokesman, Past President Peter Dent (Meds. 4) of Nu Gamma Nu, says such claims are "exaggerated".

"There's bound to be a certain amount of exuberance whenever there are a lot of young students", he says. "It just goes with being young."

Further charges against the fraternities came from an Annex mother who wants them banned from Lowther and Prince Arthur Avenues because she feared her children might be hurt by "a rain of beer bottles".

The statement was labelled as "ridiculous" by Pi Lambda Phi member Ted Hencroftsky (IV UC).

"Fraternities are no noisier than lots of families, and I wouldn't mind having one next door to my home," he added.

here— Freshies Take Gander At Sleeping Sun-lover

TODAY

7.45 p.m. — The Lutheran Student Club will hold its opening meeting at 610 Spadina Ave. Every one is welcome and refreshments will be served.

This rather short column, called the Here and Now column, is intended to be much longer. Space in this column is given free to any student organization wanting to publicize an event. Notices should be filed with The Varsity before 4 p.m. the day before the announcement is required.

•-and now

Take one fresh green football field, add an almost-naked sun-bather, and the total can be several dozen dazed freshmen.

Surprised freshies, busily registering Monday for an excited and exciting year, noticed a well-built woman lying on the back campus, absorbing the brilliant fall sunshine.

The students tactfully avoided the scantily-dressed woman (she wore only a pair of pastel yellow panties), and she lay at peace for about an hour, apparently asleep.

Later, as she wriggled back into the clothes that were strewn around her, she commented to a Varsity reporter: "I didn't know

I was doing anything wrong."

When she learned nobody was objecting to her presence, she breathed a deep sigh of relief. "My, there are a lot of people around, aren't there?" she added, as she folded up her blanket and looked at the crowds of eager young students.

"I've been doing this all summer," she said. "I've seen other people doing it too, and I don't think it's so unusual." She wandered off in a northerly direction. "But I don't think I'll be back," she said over her shoulder.

Her name? "I don't think that's important, do you?" she asked.

FIRST Big Dance of the Year . . . HART HOUSE FALL DANCE This Saturday

THREE ORCHESTRAS Including
ELLIS McCLINTOCK

OPEN HOUSE
In
HART HOUSE

DANCING
9-12 Midnight

TICKETS AT HART HOUSE ROTUNDA - 7 a.m. - 11 p.m.

75c per Person — Stag or Drag

FRESHMEN ESPECIALLY WELCOME!

McGill Girls Assert Right To Infiltrate Redman Band

MONTREAL, (CUP) — Women are slowly but surely invading positions previously controlled by males at McGill.

The women have lagged behind in making themselves heard at McGill. Only last fall female cheerleaders were allowed to appear on the football field. They are still not allowed to perform cartwheels.

But this year they have started to make their move. For the first time women have been admitted to the ranks of the Redmen band. Designers have revamped the uniform for the band, which is under the direction of Montreal musician Harrison Jones, the founder of the Alouette football band.

There are no women in the University of Toronto band, but female cheerleaders have been amusing the male spectators with cartwheels for years.

OPENING
UNIVERSITY
CHURCH SERVICE
Sunday, September 27
11.00 A.M.
Great Hall Hart House

SPEAKER:
REV. THEODORE A. GILL
San Francisco Theological Seminary —
Formerly Editor of Christian Century

Staff, Students and Public
Cordially Invited

SAVE YOURSELF MONEY! Order Your Magazines at the LOW Student Rates!

Playboy (Nov.-June) . . . . .	$3.50	The New Yorker (8 mo.) . . . . .	1.00
43c a copy		50c a copy
Playboy (1 yr.) 40c a copy . . . . .	5.00	Harper's (1 yr.) 30c a copy . . . . .	4.00
Playboy (2 yr.) 35c a copy . . . . .	9.00	Saturday Review (1 yr.) . . . . .	1.00
Time (27 wk.) 75c a copy . . . . .	1.97	7c a copy
Time (1 yr.) 7c a copy . . . . .	3.87	The Reporter (10 mos.) . . . . .	1.00
Time (2 yr.) 7c a copy . . . . .	7.00	33c a copy . . . . .	3.30
Newsweek (24 wks.) 7c a copy . . . . .	2.50	Holiday (9 mos.) 30c a copy . . . . .	2.70
Newsweek (1 yr.) 3c a copy . . . . .	3.50	American Home (9 mos.) . . . . .	2.70
US News & World Report . . . . .	1.67	25c a copy
Lifetime (1 yr.) 3c a copy . . . . .	7.50	Ladies' Home Journal (9 mos.) . . . . .	2.70
Lifetime (2 yr.) 3c a copy . . . . .	1.01	Vogue (1 yr.) 25c a copy . . . . .	2.50
Life (18 mos.) 9c a copy . . . . .	1.01	House & Garden (1 yr.) . . . . .	1.50
Life (1 yr.) 7c a copy . . . . .	1.00	9c a copy
Life (2 yr.) 7c a copy . . . . .	2.00	Glamour (1 yr.) 7c a copy . . . . .	1.50
Look (1 yr.) 12c a copy . . . . .	1.50	Harper's Bazaar (1 yr.) . . . . .	1.00
Saturday Evening Post . . . . .	1.00	25c a copy . . . . .	2.50
Reader's Digest (1 yr.) . . . . .	1.00	Good Housekeeping (2 yr.) . . . . .	2.50
25c a copy		12c a copy
Sports Illustrated (1 yr.) . . . . .	3.00	House Beautiful (2 yr.) . . . . .	2.50
1.50 a copy		25c a copy
Sports Illustrated (6 mos.) . . . . .	2.50	TV Guide (6 mos.) 7c a copy . . . . .	5.00
10c a copy		Golf Digest (5 mos.) 20c a copy . . . . .	1.00
Sports Illustrated (1 yr.) . . . . .	4.00	Ebony (1 yr.) 10c a copy . . . . .	2.00
4c a copy		Popular Mechanics (6 mos.) . . . . .	2.50
Esquire (6 mos.) 37c a copy . . . . .	2.22	17c a copy
Atlantic Monthly (6 mos.) . . . . .	2.22	Sports World (2 yr.) . . . . .	2.50
7c a copy . . . . .	3.00	15c a copy

STUDENTS' SUBSCRIPTION SERVICE
2133 Norwood Street Los Angeles 7, California

Please send the above underlined magazines to.

NAME _____
ADDRESS _____
CITY _____ ZONE _____ STATE _____
UNIVERSITY OR COLLEGE _____ CLASS OF _____

☐ Payment enclosed, send me free pen ☐ Bill me ☐ Renewal

GIVE A YELL...

The most pleasant sight next to the flash of a brown pigskin against the blue fall sky, is the flash of brown girls' skin against a white skirt with matching royal blue...

Cheerleader season is upon us again, and no sports page would be complete without a little something for the cheerers and yellers.

Varsity Blues need cheerleaders. Varsity fans need cheerleaders. Varsity sports need cheerleaders. Even the fabulous Blue and White Band need cheerleaders.

And so we humbly send this little message to the winds.

Tryouts will be held for this year's Varsity cheerleaders, both men and women at 5 p.m. in Varsity Stadium.

Potential (and we were careful with our spelling) cheerleaders should enter by Gate 9 of Varsity Stadium, and should wear shorts or rompers.

Last year's Varsity cheerleaders are eligible for the tryouts, but new candidates are welcome.

Blues Choose

A new sport preoccupied members of Varsity's Championship Hockey Blues this summer.

Blissfully married as enrolment began, are Jim Brooks, right wing, Howie 'Lil' Bar' Roth, left wing, and Neil Munro of the blue line prowlers.

Harry Neale is not married. He insists he is not married. In an exclusive interview he denied he was married.

Gala Track Season Expected Blues Welcome Record Holders

By MIKE BERGER
Varsity Staff Reporter

George Rhodin former world record holder for the 400 metre run and winner of a gold medal in the 1952 Olympics has turned out for practice with Varsity's track team. Rhodin is also a member of the 1600 metre relay which holds the world's record.

Others who will be trying for a birth on the U of T track team are Joe Foreman formerly on a track scholarship at Notre Dame who ran for Canada in the 1958 olympics.

Bill Caruthers Ontario school-boy champion in the 440 has run the distance in 49.8. Bob Carmichael T.D.I.A.A. intermediate champion who has done a half mile in 1:56.7 is also turning out to practice with Fred Foote, Toronto's track coach.

Members of last year's senior track team who look good this year are Jaan Roos with a time of 4:27.9 for the mile and Jim Snider who has turned in a 1:59.3 half mile.

Another threat in the University Championship meet to be held on Oct. 29 is Pete Walsu who has been clocked in 1:56.8 for the 880 yards and 49.6 for the quarter mile.

You do not have to be an olympic runner in order to obtain full credits in track and field, just turn out at Varsity Stadium and report to Michael Berger, the manager.

On Wed. Oct. 7 the intramural meet will be run for all those who have not been members of a senior intercollegiate team.

Thursday, Oct. 15 the University Championship races will be run to choose this year's senior intercollegiate track team and anybody can turn out.

Track this year promises to be a great attraction and this department forecasts many new records.

INTERMEDIATE FOOTBALL — Practices daily at 5.00 p.m. Trinity Field. Report to Varsity Stadium Dressing Room, Gate No. 6.

SOCCER — Practices daily at 5.00 p.m. Front Campus. Anyone interested in trying out for intercollegiate teams please sign list at Intercollegiate Athletic office.

RUGGER — Organized practices Tues. and Thurs. at 5.00 p.m. Back West Campus. Informal practices Mon., Wed. & Fri. Anyone interested please sign list at Intercollegiate Athletic office.

TRACK & HARRIER — Practices daily at 4.00 to 6.00 p.m. Varsity Stadium. Interested freshmen are particularly welcome.

SWIMMING — Practices start Mon., Sept. 28 at 5.15 p.m. Anyone interested please report to Swimming Pool, Hart House.

WATER POLO — Practices start Tues., Sept. 29 at 5.15 p.m. Anyone interested please report to Swimming Pool, Hart House.

GOLFERS — ATTENTION!

Prior to the Intercollegiate Tournament which will be held on Friday October 9 at Kingston, a 36-hole qualifying round for selection of the team will be played. Proof of handicap of 9 or better is required for entry. To register and for further information apply at Intramural office, Hart House.

MEN — TENNIS — MEN

UNIVERSITY CHAMPIONSHIP SINGLES TOURNAMENT
Tournament starts Tuesday, Sept. 29, at the Toronto Lawn Tennis Club. ENTER NOW AT INTRAMURAL OFFICE, Hart House.
Intercollegiate Team — Men interested in making the Intercollegiate team should report to the Intramural office, Hart House for information re practices and try-outs.

INTERFACULTY SPORTS

The Interfaculty athletic programme will begin very soon in Softball, Basketball and Tennis. For notification of practices, beginning next week, watch your college notice board or get in touch with your college "rep".

ARCHERY CLUB

There is shooting daily except Wednesday in Varsity Stadium from 1-2 p.m. starting Thursday, Sept. 24th. Instruction for beginners and coaching for advanced archers. Interfaculty tournament later in the fall.
ERING YOUR LUNCH AND JOIN THE FUN

Come to the
LUTHERAN STUDENT CENTRE
610 SPADINA AVE.
Thursday, Sept. 24
7.45 p.m.
Introductory Meeting
All Students Welcome

Another Big Buy at COLES!

31st Edition
GRAY'S ANATOMY

Brand New! Perfect Condition!

usually 18.50 9.95

coles

726 YONGE ST.
1 block below Bloor

299 YONGE ST.
At Dundas

370 BLOOR W.
1 block West of Spadina

OPEN TILL 10 P.M. EVERY NIGHT

FIRST YEAR WOMEN

All First Year Women must register for Physical Education at the WOMEN'S ATHLETIC BUILDING HARBORD STREET at HURON (entrance — west side of building, off Harbord Street) BEFORE SEPTEMBER 25th

YOU NEED CASH

WE NEED BOOKS

LET'S GET TOGETHER

At the S.A.C. Book Exchange
119 ST. GEORGE

CANTERBURY CENTRE

99 ST. GEORGE STREET

Is Open Daily to All Students

- Common Room, Library
- Home Town Newspapers from Across Canada
- Special Lectures, Events

UNIVERSITY ANGLICAN CHAPLAINCY

Chaplain: The Rev. William Bothwell — WA. 3-1513

Football! $2.50 Hockey! Student Tickets

STUDENT TICKET SALE

COUPON BOOKS admitting to the Student Section at Varsity Stadium and Varsity Arena (combined book) will be sold at the south door of Varsity Arena (off Philosopher's Walk) from 10.00 a.m. to 5.00 p.m. tomorrow, September 25th. The coupons admit owner to the Student Section on a "first come best seat" basis, the football section extending south from centre field and the hockey section including all the east side of the Arena. TICKETS ADMIT OWNERS TO FOLLOWING GAMES:

VARSITY STADIUM		VARSITY ARENA
Sept. 25 .... (Exhibition) WESTERN		Nov. 27 .....	Laval
(Friday at 8.00 p.m.)		Nov. 30 .....	Michigan
Oct. 3 .....	McGILL	Dec. 11 .....	U. of Montreal
(Friday at 8.00 p.m.)		Jan. 22 .....	McGill
Oct. 24 .....	QUEEN'S	Feb. 6 .....	U. of Montreal
		Feb. 19 .....	Laval
Oct. 31 .....	WESTERN	Feb. 26 .....	Queen's
		Mar. 4 .....	McGill

NOTE: Football books only may be purchased for $2.00. Hockey books will be sold separately for $1.00 after the close of the football season, so a saving of 50c is effected by purchasing the combined book.

MARRIED STUDENTS may purchase an additional book for their wives or husbands. GRADUATE STUDENTS in full time courses may purchase a student ticket upon presentation of a certificate of enrolment signed by an official of the School of Graduate Studies.

Bring your Identification Card. Tickets cannot be purchased without one.

STUDENT TICKETS ARE NOT TRANSFERABLE.

BLUES, WESTERN FAVORITES

Mustang Passing to Test Strong Varsity Defence

Intercollegiate football fans are in for one of the most interesting seasons in some years according to Dalt White and John Metras, coaches of the Toronto and London entries in the Senior Intercollegiate Football League.

Coach White bases his estimation of the coming season on the almost certain knowledge that his graduation-riddled Blues are not likely to dominate the league in the same devastating manner as they did last year.

Metras bases his prediction largely on his estimation of veteran quarterback Frank Cosentino as the best passer in Canadian college football. He figures that Cosentino's talented arm is bound to give the Mustangs more offensive punch this year, especially as the 6'2" 200-pounder has the QB job all to himself.

Toronto and Western would appear to rate as co-favorites for the coveted Yates Cup and a crack at the Western challenges for the Churchill Cup in Varsity Stadium on November 14.

Varsity will have 17 of last year's unbeaten team back for another season, with the majority of them being linemen. Notable among these are Trevor Eytton, Mike Chykaliuk, Weldon Thornburn and All-Star defensive end Doug Baird.

Among the backfield returnees, Steve Chisholm, Bob Dann, Paul Burroughs and Dave Cresswell would appear to be key men.

Chief problems for Coach White are adequate replacements for All-Star quarterback Brian Aston and centre Nick Bruchovsky.

At Western, Johnny Metras welcomes back 19 of last year's Mustangs as he rebuilds in an effort to recapture the championship that Varsity so emphatically clinched last season when they hammered the Mustangs 46-0 right in Little Stadium.

All-Star halfback Lionel Conacher leads a backfield contingent that includes Meco Poliziani, Cosentino, and John Sloan.

Notable returnees on the line include Bill Mitchell and Wayne Neal, and Metras is counting on them to anchor a line which must be rebuilt from stem to stern. Also high on Metras' list of problems are ends who can catch the bullets that Cosentino is aiming to throw them. Last season's crop were terribly butter-fingered and this put too much pressure on the running attack. Metras hopes that rookie Ross May will prove to be the glue-fingered end he is looking for.

McGill are expected to be a shade better than last year according to Coach Bruce Coulter. Cause for his optimism is based on the return of All-Star tackle Paul Harasimowicz and centre Leo Konyk. Little is known about Queen's, but they are expected to be stronger than last year as they too have a large number of returnees from the 1958 season.

TREVOR EYTON, the scout and serious young daddy pictured above will be one of the Co-captains of this year's powerful Blues' squad.

STEVE CHISHOLM, popular and speedy half-back for the past two seasons will share the Captain's duties for this year's Blues.

... and in this corner

by sharon milgram

Hi and welcome to all you athletically minded co-eds. Well, that takes care of the welcoming speeches. Now onto other things—bigger and better I hope.

Once again, from this corner, with a little aid from I know not, who, I hope to bring to you reports and comments on the who, what, where, when, why and how of girls' sports on campus and when necessary, off campus. In other words I hope to "Corner the Market" in Gal's Athletics hereafter to be referred to as "Gathletics" which I find easier to type.

And speaking of corners, were we you know, have you seen the one at Harbord and Huron lately? It's really something! Our long awaited WOMEN'S ATHLETIC BUILDING, around and in which the major portion of the Gathletic programme will be plotted and played, has finally gotten out of the planning stage, where it has been since 1911, and into the construction stage from which has emerged an impressive two storey split level structure.

To women graduates, this is a building that they had hoped for, but never got; to the women in their upper years, this is a building that they will appreciate after running, and I do mean running, to their widely spread Phys. Ed. classes; to the freshmen, this building will probably be just another building on campus, a little newer than most, but still—just another structure.

Actually, it can, and I hope it does mean more than that. It could mean a lot of fun—not only to the freshmen, but to all the girls.

The Women's Athletic Building (WAB) will bring an end to the dashing hither and fro: to the Drill Hall for archery, fencing and badminton; to the Lillian Massey and HSC, pools for a hurried "bath"; to the O.C.E. and L.M. gyms for basketball and volleyball and to Varsity, 415 Yonge, the POT gym and many other various and sundry sites, to participate in Phys. Ed. classes and extra-curricular activities.

THOSE ARE ALL THINGS OF THE PAST! From now on, sports enthusiasts (of the feminine variety) will have all the conveniences of home, and I might add—a few more.

To mention a few of the many facilities—I haven't got enough space to mention them all: There will be four big gyms with each one designed especially for certain of the activities, e.g. one of the 60 x 100 gyms will be set up to hold three badminton and tennis courts.

The double gym (120 x 100) is laid out for basketball and volleyball. No more bumping into a wall the moment you step out of bounds—you'll have space, girls, and lots of it!

There is also a fencing room, one for dancing, one for exercise (there's probably more than one gal on this campus who can make good use of it—to tone up your muscles of course), and get this, a special room in the depths of the building which contains golf cages. Just think, with enough practice you'll probably be able to shoot in the sixties when you get back on the green next spring.

But enough talk about the trimmings. Let's get to the pride of the building (in my opinion, anyways)—the POOL and the area surrounding it. The pool is of regulation size with a shallow end for beginners and a deep end for experts and divers. In order for the three hundred cheering spectators, which the bleachers around the pool will hold, to see the terrific water shows which I'm sure will be put on, the pool has been equipped with under water lighting.

Getting away from the pool and into the area surrounding it, I discovered a locker room which holds 2,300 lockers! That's right, girls, no more lugging your gym equipment to all your classes. Just leave them at the Building which you can call your second home.

Hair wet? So what! There is a room full of hair dryers. Also in the pool area, is a Rumpus Room in which meetings can be held, or in which one can relax.

See Games Thru Flames

A conflagration at Giff (that's a new word we learned for this) he promised the greatest fire sale on campus since Honest Joe dropped a butt into the gas can.

We are referring to this year's issue of Student Ticket Books, available to all members of our social education and staff club.

Here's the deal. For $2.50 of Daddies green stuff you can receive Tickets to Pom, Blues football games and 10 Senior Blues hockey contests.

Should you taste fun exclusively to football and hockey leaves you cold upon this season's football tickets, the cost $2.00 while ducts to the ice emporium will be on sale Dec. 1, at a dollar a book.

The first printing of the student books, were in all seriousness, destroyed in a fire. A hard working ticket staff, however, will put the books on sale tomorrow.

Books will be on sale from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the South door of Varsity Arena. Don't forget your ATL card

Star Veterans Captain Blues

Only the whirr of a projector, flicking the dying minutes of a Toronto-Western clash, disturbed the silence as it was announced that Trevor Eytton and Steve Chisholm will co-captain the 59-60 version of the Varsity Blues.

FOOTBALL SCHEDULE

SENIOR
September 25	Western at TORONTO (Exhibition) 8 p.m.
September 26	McGill at Queen's (Exhibition) 2 p.m.
October 2	McGill at TORONTO (8 p.m.)
October 3	Western at Queen's (2 p.m.)
October 9	Queen's at McGill (8 p.m.)
October 10	TORONTO at Western (2 p.m.)
October 17	TORONTO at Queen's (2 p.m.)
October 24	McGill at Western (2 p.m.)
October 31	Queen's at TORONTO (2 p.m.)
Western at McGill (2 p.m.)
McGill at Queen's (2 p.m.)

Through a secret ballot in the Blues' dressing room these two worthy veterans received the applause and support of the entire Varsity squad.

Eytton is beginning his fourth year with the Senior Blues, embarking on his career with the blue and white in the same year Coach Dalt White took the reins. Last season Trevor was lauded as an outstanding defensive middle guard, receiving a unanimous decision for an all-star berth in that position.

Married and the father of two girls, Eytton is in his third year at the U. of T. Law school.

Steve Chisholm is a rare phenomenon. He is one of the very few footballers in captivity who turned down a chance at American college football to return to a Canadian University.

A starry freshman half back at the University of South Carolina, Steve returned to Blues two years ago to become an outstanding performer at both offence and defence.

Good luck, Captains!!!

REPORT TO (RE)PORTERS

To the tip-tap of three typewriters, within the dank recesses of Varsity's hovel for over privileged college children, comes a cry for help.

The backbone of this erstwhile semi semi-daily (Sports department what else) requires strong elbowed, tobacco hardened reporters.

Anyone with an appreciation for the finer things in life, and a genuine regard for Sport, may share the glory of a Varsity Staff reporter.

Aforementioned glory includes long minutes, short hours, security, complete hospitalization plan in case of housemaids' knuckle, false teeth compliments of irate tackles, coaches, and sundry other pleasant campus personalities we daily and gleefully rub.

All kidding aside (if that is possible) we would like to see you. Drop into the Varsity office ??? any time today or tomorrow afternoon. So skip a few classes, bring along your girl friend or phone us at WA 3-8113.

picture yourself in this bright modern

18-8 Stainless Steel kitchen

CONTAINING INCO NICKEL

Glistening brightly from every side . . . from counter tops, from the range, the built-in oven, the sink, even the pots and pans . . . stainless steel containing Inco Nickel. This is a kitchen to cheer the heart of modern homemakers; so convenient, so easy to clean—and keep clean—and so good-looking.

Stainless steel won't chip or stain; it's practically immune to rust and corrosion; and it has a rich, silvery lustre that stays bright and beautiful for years.

Nickel helps give stainless steel this lustrous beauty and exceptional resistance to rust and corrosion . . . helps make its fabrication easier. That's why Canadian manufacturers use quality Inco Nickel to produce quality Canadian stainless steel products.

Write for a free copy of "What to remember about Stainless Steel."

THE
INTERNATIONAL NICKEL

COMPANY OF CANADA, LIMITED

55 YONGE STREET, TORONTO

Nickel-containing stainless steel keeps the new built-in refrigerator and freezer units looking bright and beautiful.

QUALITY
CANADIAN PRODUCTS CONTAINING QUALITY
INCO NICKEL

Food particles wipe off easily from pots and pans made of nickel-containing stainless steel.

"They have dragged my name through the mud." — Garratt

THE VARSITY

Vol. LXXIX—No. 2

Friday, September 25th, 1959

SAC Member Suspended

CHARGE GARRATT

The Students Administrative Council has suspended its Blue and White Chairman for "irresponsibility" and "unauthorized activity".

A unanimous vote at a special SAC meeting at Caledon last Sunday resulted in the suspension of Blue and White Chairman Ian Garratt (II Music), and at the same time created a three-man committee to investigate the charges against Garratt.

The committee—under chairman Peter Dembski—will report to the SAC at its regular meeting next Wednesday night, and at that time "Council will likely decide to either reinstate Garratt or dismiss him completely, depending upon the committee's findings", SAC president Walter McLean said last night.

Other committee members are Penny Rennie of Trinity and Ed Osler of Forestry.

The resolution also set up a three-member committee under SAC Vice President Barb Leaman to supervise Blue and White affairs while the issue is being thrashed out.

Besides Miss Leaman, this committee includes Desmond O'Rourke of Law and John O'Dell of SPS.

Garratt's suspension and appointment of the two committees followed passage by Council of a vote of non-confidence in Garratt.

The vote of non-confidence stemmed from a report made by SAC's five-man Executive Committee, which is charged with the day-to-day operation of the Council's affairs.

The committee's report cited two reasons for taking disciplinary action against Garratt: "Unauthorized activities in connection with the Blue and White Society", and "Conduct unbecoming a committee chairman of the Students Administrative Council".

The report said that "Garratt made arrangements in several fields without the authorization of the Executive Committee, and in some cases despite the advice of the Committee".

It continued: "These actions led to confusion as the Council attempted to plan its activities for the fall term, and also when it attempted to co-ordinate its activities with those of the University's national fund appeal."

In reference to the second charge—"conduct unbecoming an SAC committee chairman"—The Executive Committee report said that Garratt had acted in a manner "unbecoming a Council member in his relationships with SAC Secretary-Treasurer E. A. MacDonald, Chief SAC Accountant M. F. Murrill, and members of the Executive Committee itself".

The report did not reveal any further details.

Executive Committee chairman is SAC president Walt McLean. Other members are Council Vice-President Barb Leaman, Nfcus Chairman Mike Sherman of University College, Finance Commissioner Stan Dubas of Victoria, and Publications Commissioner Clive Chamberlain of Medicine.

Garratt himself was not at the Caledon meeting, but he issued a statement last night which outlined his side of the matter.

Speaking for the SAC on the matter, President Walt McLean said "we don't like what we did, but we had to do it. We have to get to the bottom of a matter as serious as this".

Garratt's Answer: "SAC can't do it"

Ian Garratt yesterday levelled a series of charges at Students' Administrative Council members, who suspended him as Blue and White Chairman last weekend.

His suspension, he said, was contrary to the old constitution under which SAC is operating pending ratification of a new one. "They are using every loophole in the book to get rid of me," he said.

When SAC members at the Caledon Hills meeting suspended Garratt, he was in Ann Arbor, Mich., discussing a possible visit of the University of Michigan marching band to Toronto.

Garratt yesterday said SAC president Walter McLean had told him previously the meeting was to be informal and his chairmanship would not be discussed. "Now they have dragged my name through the mud, McLean says he warned me long ago about this," Garratt said.

The second-year Music student, male lead in last year's All-Varsity Review, said he was accused of "personality conflict and overstepping the bonds of authority."

Concerning funds management, Garratt said SAC vice-president Barbara Leaman refused to tell him the source of funds used to purchase new desks and chairs in the SAC office.

Garratt said the furniture has not been paid for and he believes the SAC executive is trying to force council to pay for it out of a $15,000 trust fund held for SAC by the University Board of Governors.

He said a majority council vote, necessary for such expenditures, has not been held.

Garratt denied charges he said had been levelled against him of committing the university to pay for the attendance of the Michigan band at the Varsity homecoming weekend.

Garratt said a professor told him E. A. MacDonald, SAC general secretary-treasurer, last May, asked two of Garratt's professors to "discipline" him.

SUSPENDED SAC Blue and White Chairman Ian Garratt, shown here in royal Roman robes worn in last year's All Varsity Revue when he played Marcus. Garratt's suspension has resulted in counter-charges covering many phases of SAC policy. (VSP Bonnycastle)

Hart House Activities

CAMERA CLUB—The Camera Club has very extensive facilities in the basement of the House. Colour labs, enlargers and developing equipment, etc. are available to members of this Club. The membership fee is $3.00 payable at the Graduate Office. An open meeting and instruction on the equipment is planned for the near future. If you wish to take part in this, please sign up at the Graduate Office in Hart House.

ARCHERY CLUB—The Club welcomes all interested undergraduates. Regular shooting takes place in the Rifle Range on Tuesday and Thursday from 8:00 to 10:30 p.m. Competent instruction is provided. Equipment is provided for those who do not have their own. Membership fee—$2.00.

CALEDON HILLS FARM—The Hart House farm is located forty miles north-west of Toronto in the Caledon Hills. It is available for outings, square dances, weekend reservations through the Graduate Office, Hart House.

Freshmen Face High Flunk Rate

Most of something like 15,000 U of T students—new and old—attended their first lectures for the year Wednesday.

It was humid and at least, buildings were completed already.

For many students, the campus shouldn't seem to have changed too much since they left it last year. But there have been changes—changes in the campus, changes in staff, changes in routine and changes in the student body.

For about 3,000 freshmen more or less it was, of course, all new.

Despite an interest in tough courses, they were probably a little apprehensive.

They had reason to be. First-year failures in arts and science last year totalled about 24.5 per cent of enrollment; first-year failures in engineering were 27 per cent.

Outstanding for a high failure rate—42 per cent—was the new general science course. Said one arts faculty official: "There were many failures because

Big Changes for Blood

Red Cross campaign officials plan a "drastic change in tactics" to drain more blood from University of Toronto veins this year.

Traditions of a winter blood campaign and one giant campus drive have been scrapped by officials in favor of several small October campaigns in individual colleges and faculties.

Chairman will be selected in each college and faculty to manage the individual campaigns. Officials hope the new scheme will stimulate stronger interfaculty and inter-college competition.

One blood campaign tradition is still in effect. Engineers will offer their cherished cannon to the college or faculty contributing the highest percentage of pints. A national Corpselet Cup will also be offered to the university donating the highest percentage of pints.

The campaign objective is 4,500 pints—less than one pint for every three U of T students, or enough blood to supply all Toronto hospitals for three weeks. The blood is supplied free to hospitals by the Red Cross.

FROM YOUR...

Evangeline

SHOP

TOGETHER AGAIN
THIS FALL.....

Evangeline, you and our smart new sweater and skirt ensembles. Beautifully stated here with our own, fully-fashioned, pure botany wool "Meridan" cardigan sweater, in an attractive new sable tone. Sizes 36-42. The co-ordinating classic slim wool worsted skirt, in a deep-toned, iridescent, houndstooth check of sable green, sizes 12-18. (Incidentally, there are 14 other lovely colours to choose from in "Meridan" sweaters). Both are certainly prized possessions for college or casual living. Come, see them at your first opportunity. Many sweater and skirt ensembles just as moderately priced as this.

Sweater ..... $9.98
Skirt ..... $14.98

- 2 Carlton at Yonge
- 444 Eglinton W. at Castleknock
- 656 Danforth at Pope
- 62A Bloor at Bay
- 113 Yonge at Adelaide
- 786 Yonge at Bloor
- 1458 Yonge at St. Clair
- 3414 Yonge at City Limits

STORE HOURS: Mon.—Sat. 9 a.m.—6 p.m.

FRIDAY TILL
9 P.M.

Evangeline

"WHERE DISCRIMINATING WOMEN...SHOP WITH CONFIDENCE"

Montreal Student Seminar Discusses Ethnic Influence

MONTREAL (CUP)—Representatives from universities all across Canada met in Montreal early this month to discuss the impact of various cultures on the development of Canada.

The conference, financed by the National Federation of Canadian University Students, held bilingual sessions and unanimously approved the teaching of French in early grades across the country.

Twenty-two speakers and panelists representing Canadian ethnic and religious groups and the fields of politics, education and literature set the keynote for the students' discussions.

Seminar speakers clashed sharply over the issue of French Canada's relations with the rest of the country.

Professor Marcel Brunet, Director of the History department at the University of Montreal where the sessions were held, hailed Quebec resistance to Ottawa "paternalism" as a sign of maturity. He said French-Canadian cultural progress is dependent on political autonomy.

Taking the opposing side, economist Maurice Lamontagne blamed Quebec government ideology for stifling the development of French Canada's culture.

The resolutions of the discussion seminars will be presented to the Nficus Congress next month at the University of Saskatchewan.

here

TODAY

6 p.m. — Hillel, a student organization which co-ordinates Jewish spiritual and cultural activities with daily university life, holds its opening supper. Freshmen and residence students are especially invited. The meeting is at Hillel House, 186 St. George St.

SUNDAY

7 p.m. — Hillel presents "The Travellers" at Hillel House, 186 St. George St. Admission is to members only.

MONDAY

4 p.m. — The Cercle Francais of University College holds auditions for its French play, to be presented in Hart House Theatre. The casting meeting is in Room 51, UC.

•-and now

Students' HANDBOOK

now at

S.A.C. Office

15c EACH

Special Attention — 25% Discount

ON ALL JEWELLERY PURCHASES

Including: Watches, Diamonds, Silverware, Lighters, Wallets, Pens, and Pencils, Radios, Clocks, Costume Jewellery etc. etc. You must have your A.T.L. card when making a purchase.

SHEFFIELD JEWELLERS

DIAMOND MERCHANTS

323 YONGE ST. (5 doors above Dundas) TEL. EM. 6-0977

an evening of FOLK SONGS by the TRAVELLERS presented by Martin Bockner for North Toronto Y.M.C.A. at NORTHERN SECONDARY SCHOOL 851 Mount Pleasant Road, September 26, 8.30. Tickets: $1.50 and $2.25. A & A Book Store, Towne Records, North Toronto "Y" or phone MELrose 3-2411

FOR LAUGHS!

CLAP HANDS

All New Satirical Revue

HART HOUSE THEATRE

Nightly 8.30

Saturday — 5.30 and 9.00

STUDENTS: HALF PRICE

Wed., Thurs. & Sat. Matinees

HART HOUSE THEATRE

Student Subscriptions

$3.00 for the Four Productions

Hart House Theatre offers a Student Subscription at $3.00 for the four All-University productions directed by Robert Gill. The student rate will be $1.00 for a single performance. Subscribers are assured of the same seats and performance evenings for the entire season. Two subscriptions only on each A.T.L. card.

1959-60 SEASON

THE LITTLE FOXES by Lillian Hellman

Saturday, October 24th to Saturday, October 31st

THE SIMPLETON OF THE UNEXPECTED ISLES by

George Bernard Shaw

Saturday, November 28th to Saturday, December 5th

THE GLASS MENAGERIE by Tennessee Williams

Saturday, January 23rd to Saturday, January 30th

THE IMPORTANCE OF BEING ERNEST by Oscar Wilde

Saturday, February 27th to Saturday, March 5th

Last season over 40% of the total seats were sold by subscription before opening.

• AVOID DISAPPOINTMENT AND BOOK EARLY •

Box Office now open 10.00 a.m. to 6.00 p.m. — WA. 3-5244

And like Mr. McAllister, U of T students and faculty were Tuesday looking into the future with a mixture of hope and apprehension.

TICKETS at the Hart House Rotunda today and tomorrow, and in the Arts Colleges at noon today.

comment

to catch a thief

Over the last school year more than seven hundred books "disappeared" from the Wallace room.

This has forced the library staff to close the shelves of the Wallace room.

The delightful browsing through the Wallace room that undergraduates formerly enjoyed is now out of the question. Borrowing books is now inconvenient if not absolutely impossible.

The library could have gone much farther than this.

They could have hired a detective agency to keep a twenty-four hour watch on every opening in the library's structure. They could have had them subject everyone entering or leaving the library to a thorough frisking and a lie detector test.

And they would have been fully justified.

They would have been fully justified if they had closed off the library to all students, graduates and undergraduates alike.

The theft of the 700 books from the Wallace room has been blamed largely on the students.

It is just barely conceivable that some of the staff have also had their fingers in the cookie tin.

If they have, it doesn't matter. They are staff and they are entitled to steal from other members of the staff.

But a student has no such privileges. He belongs to a brotherhood and the cardinal rule of the brotherhood is that we do not turn against our own.

There is the "Us" and there is the "Them." And if the "Us" is to survive at all, we must protect our own.

We do not ask of students any lofty idealistic principles nor do we ask of them any saccharin conformity.

We ask only that when they become students, when they come to a university to study, they do no deliberate harm to those who have come to study along side them.

And the students at this University have shown that the title "student" has no meaning for them.

The library was quite right in tightening up the Wallace Room.

There is no honour among thieves.

D.L.S.

The Women's VARSITY

who she is:

Who is the best dressed woman on the campus of the University of Toronto?

GLAMOUR MAGAZINE wants to know.

They want to know because in August of every year they publish their annual College Issue. A major feature of this issue is the presentation of the 10 Best Dressed College Women in America.

"Ten Best Dressed College Women In America" are selected from entries received from colleges across the United States and Canada. The entries will be judged by a panel of GLAMOUR editors.

The ten winners will be photographed on the college campuses for the magazine's annual August College Issue and they will be flown to New York via American Airlines in June as the guests of GLAMOUR.

While in New York they will stay at the Biltmore Hotel and appear in GLAMOUR'S College Fashion Show that previews the August issue for more than 500 stores.

They will appear on television, dine at famous New York restaurants and attend the latest Broadway shows.

They will be entertained in the homes of the glamorous GLAMOUR editors and receive photographic appointments and be interviewed by the editors of the magazine.

The Varsity, having been asked, has undertaken to select the Ten Best Dressed Women on the University of Toronto Campus. They will be chosen by a panel consisting of the editorial staff of the Varsity and fashion experts from on and off the campus.

The winners will be flown to Queen and Yonge Streets via T.T.C. subway and will stay in the Ladies' Washroom of the Bank of Commerce. They will dine at the news stand and attend the latest movies on Queen Street.

They will be entertained at a Varsity Party and will be thoroughly interviewed by all the editors.

From this group of ten, the Best Dressed Woman on the campus of the University of Toronto campus will be chosen.

She will fill out that GLAMOUR thoughtfully provided picture taken by the graphic staff in; an fit, a daytime off can a date dress (full or

The entry forms graphs will be forwarded to our magazine, Avenue, New York City then become our office of the Ten Best Women in America.

The University of Toronto Film Society is moving to its old location at the Museum Theatre. This year, it will present a series of ten films at the Astor near Bloor and Yonge.

what she wears:

University of Toronto coeds have caught this fall's fashion swing and swung far out.

Skirts in Paris have crept higher and higher, baring knees, but U of T girls are hitching their hemlines to even greater heights to the new Bermuda "skort" length which shows knees in their entirety and a few inches of thigh.

Leotards are also back again for cooler campus wear, but now they are not the standard plain black but candy striped and Argyle patterned.

For campus dates, such as this Saturday's Hart House Fall Dance, basic wool sheaths are again in order, but color has gone native. The shades of the U of T campus, soft grassy greens, even the brighter green of the Hart House flood lights, and the muted brown of aging University College brick are popular.

For off-campus perennial. This fall, waist and fringed in short and plainly

For big evening gowns and reds and waists are cinched

Shoes are shoe smooth leather and laced at the back to compliment the hair

Date time shoe low. Ranging from Anne heels to the pointed, oval or cl Sweaters are

GLAMOUR

At Isaac

Canadian art collectors were billing in this season's art show recently, while the artists have been shunned. "Who owns the more important question than 'Who painted it?'"

The Canadian National Exhibition gallery began this trend by the acquisitions of Canada's well-known prominent art lovers, and the University of Toronto plans to do much the same when it opens next week. He has arranged a similar exhibition on a large scale, representing only three and Canadian Homes and Gardens up the CNE lead with an art show on Toronto collectors, and the choice to "go with" their home furnishings.

Two important one-man exhibitions opened last week have done much to this unnatural balance, and Canadian artist to his normal life. The affairs of Canadian art were weighed in by the arrival of Harold Town Galleries was recorded in yesterday's other exhibition of important Urquhart's show of oils, water drawings at the Isaacs Gallery known last year as the Green

When Urquhart made his years ago the critics said "promise"; now (at 25), his style is much the same, and the critics left to wonder if these new, disappointing, if perhaps he has the early promise.

Actually Urquhart's paintings seemed to be the work of a young artist. His first exhibition ago contrasted with Rik G. one man show, for example, Isaacs Gallery last spring. Artists are the same age, G.

THE VARSITY

FOUNDED 1880

Published by
The Students' Administrative Council
of the University of Toronto
Toronto 5, Canada

Member Canadian University Press

Editorial and News Office
Basement, SAC Building — WA. 3-8742, WA. 3-8113
Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221

The opinions expressed in this paper are those of the editor.

Editor-in-Chief	Sam Ajzenstat
Acting Managing Editors	Susie Breslin, Harvey Shepherd
Acting News Editor	Ed Roberts
Acting CUP Editor	Alan Walker
Acting Photo Editor	Andrew Stabins
Acting Sports Editor	Dave Griner
Acting AM&D Editor	Elmo Ciprietti
Acting Features Editor	Dave Stein
Acting Publicity Editor	Jayne Nesbitt

TODAY'S ISSUE: Fred Host, Marg McMeekin, Terry Bourke, Martha Heard, Janet Ajzenstat, Mr. and Mrs. David Helwig, Liz Binks, John Gray, Mike Bonnycastle, Die Bread Three, a few dark moments and one electrician.

"Suffer yourselves to be blamed, imprisoned, condemned; suffer yourselves to be hanged; but publish your opinions; it is not a right, it is a duty."

york mosaic

Firstborn Is Incubated

The Firstborn, the York Community Theatre's first play of their fifth season, made its last appearance in Toronto as a pre-Broadway run with Anthony Quayle and Katharine Cornell. For presentation in the basement theatre at 49 Laplante Street, the epic of Moses had to be greatly diminished. It is a curious choice for a little theatre with technical limitations, for the play depends for much of its effect on the sweep and richness of its verse and staging.

However, James Rutherford as Moses, and Stella Chadwick as Anath Bithiah cleverly re-interpreted their roles to make them proportionate to the theatre. Mr. Rutherford's Moses is more intelligent and ironic than one expects a god-inspired prophet to be. But his rich voice and excellent technique gave the figure the necessary stature. Miss Chadwick played Anath, the woman who had found Moses and raised him, as a romantic girl who has turned into a mannered grande dame. By giving the character a fuller definition, she adds interest which compensates for the unavoidable lack of size. These two, along with Ronald Halliday in a minor role as Moses' brother, were responsible for the play's best moments.

Jerry Rosen and Eileen Fitzgerald, as the Pharaoh's children, were seriously handicapped by youth and lack of understanding. Their lack of conviction, especially in the scenes of preparation for Ramases marriage, was either humorous or embarrassing.

Walter Foster, playing the Pharaoh, had the initial problem of playing against a strong Moses. His technique was less polished; his performance overpowered by that of Mr. Rutherford.

The direction was inevitably static and movement was hampered by the size of the stage. The smaller set seemed more comfortable for the actors. Its simplicity, in contrast with the necessarily elaborate palace set, was more suitable to a theatre this size.

Costumes were generally good. Moses' costumes included an academic gown complete with chalk on the sleeves.

This theatrical epic was not a good choice for a little theatre. The Caine Mutiny Court Martial, the York Community Theatre's next production, promises to be more suitable.

The Helwigs

bulkier and brighter than before, in mixed knits of black with red, green or blue.

Hats have risen to new and dazzling heights as have skirts and heels. Turbans and cloches of jewel-bright velvets trimmed with sparkling pins are hued purple, gold and red.

Fur trims everything from top to toe. Hats have lynx and mink brims, collars are of shaggy, historic raccoon, and boots are trimmed with smooth beaver.

Fashion in general for U of T coeds, as set by the trend-conscious girls themselves is bright, bold and very, very big in its inclusion of every major vogue of the Paris salons and the North American campus.

Jayne Nesbitt

Auditions for U.C.'s Cercle Francais French production at Hart House Theatre will be held on Monday, Sept.
28 at 4.00 p.m. in Room 51, University College.

fellow-travellers

Coming to Northern Vocational, The Travellers, Canada's facsimile of the Weavers, in the high school auditorium, Mount Pleasant above Eglinton. Time 8.30.

slight discord

Con Crisis

The most excited talk at the Conservatory these days concerns the plans for the new Conservatory building, the site of which has yet to be cleared. Apparently, the divergent elements of the present set-up, the School of Music and the Faculty of Music are going to be further divided, this time physically.

The new Conservatory building, to go up somewhere near the Museum, will only be able to accommodate the Faculty of Music. As the university intends to spend only what it can realize from the sale of the old buildings, the plans now relegate the renowned Royal Conservatory of Music (the School) to the status of an Extension department. Part of the old Economics building will be re-converted to house the School of Music.

School of Music die-hards insist that the University is gradually carving itself a Faculty of Music out of the Royal Conservatory, a process which started in 1953 and will culminate in the new building. Radicals on the university side point out that an institution of higher learning should in no way concern itself with providing piano lessons for five-year-olds.

So the School, the Faculty, and the University have arraigned themselves in a magnificently unequilateral triangle which will require a geometer of great genius to analyse.

Despite all this, the entertaining business of providing music for the campus is proceeding smoothly. The Special Events Series, to which students may subscribe for just about nothing, has planned a superb array of the world's best talent. These concerts include the aging but all-time great violinist, Joseph Szigeti, Suzanne Dancu, one of the leading Mozart sopranos, the Netherlands Chamber Choir, well-known on records but never heard here before, duo-pianists Gold and Fildale, baritone Heinz Rehfuess and the Netherlands String Quartet.

Elm

was obviously derivative and experimental, varying with every picture, and always dependant on the work of the older Toronto artists. But Urquhart's manner of painting from the first was personal and easily recognizable, a highly distinctive style which makes an immediate appeal.

Urquhart's color is the quality that contributes most to this unique style: his pictures are a melee of dark shades applied in thin streaks, forming a texture very rich, but with a dry quality, like pastels. His compositions, the arrangements of areas of color in depth and on the picture surface are sometimes awkward, particularly in the "abstracts" which make up this exhibition and seem barely complex enough to support the weight of fantastic colors.

The drawings are an important part of Urquhart's work; they lack the color of course, but have a spontaneity of line and ease of composition which makes them seem as facile as the oils. The water-colors often display both the rich color and the sprightly line; the representation of rain on a Spanish plain (purchased by Prof. F. E. Sparshott of Victoria College) was one of the most attractive pictures in the exhibition.

The success of this exhibition by Urquhart is another success for gallery-owner Avrom Isaacs. By sponsoring the premieres of artists like Urquhart and Gorman, Mr. Isaacs has come to represent many of Toronto's best painters, among them Graham Coughtry, Michael Snow and Gerald Gladstone.

When he opened the Greenwich Gallery three years ago, Mr. Isaacs (a UC grad) relied on the business of framing pictures to carry expenses. Since then the framing business seems to have dwindled, while the business of selling pictures and promoting artists has expanded. The Gallery's new name (the Isaacs Gallery) goes with a new look in prosperity.

Janet Ajzenstat.

KNOX PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Extends a Welcome to All Students

COME AND JOIN US FOR CHURCH FELLOWSHIP

Worship • Sunday, 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.
• Young Peoples: Sunday, 8:30 p.m.

LOCATED SPADINA &amp; HARBORD

Vous êtes cordialement invité d'assister au

CULTE EN LANGUE FRANCAISE

le 27 Septembre à 3 Heures

(et tous les derniers dimanche du mois)

à l'EGLISE BAPTISTE "JARVIS STREET"

(Coin Jarvis et Gerrard — Entrée Rue Gerrard)

Sports - Games - Trophies

Before you give WILSON'S a try

While the prices to everyone

The HAROLD A. WILSON

CO. of TORONTO LTD.

328 DUPONT STREET

ATTENTION*VARSITY CHEERLEADERS

MEN &amp; WOMEN

THE FIRST TRYOUTS

TODAY

At 4:30 p.m.

VARSITY STADIUM

Gate 9

Shorts or Gym Uniforms

EVERY PLACE ON THE

SQUAD IS OPEN

VARSITY vs. WESTERN
TONIGHT AT 8.00 P.M.

FLOODLIGHT GAME

WESTERN MUSTANGS

20. John Metras
21. Bill Mitchell
22. Wayne Neal
30. Brent Mundy
31. John Partington
32. Jim Farley
33. Jim Edgar
34. Jack Barclay
35. Bill Parkinson
36. Norman Hubley
37. Jim MacMillan
40. Ando Luik
41. Dennis Bradley
42. Harvey Scott
43. Gerry Phillips
44. John Humphrey
46. Bill Bryant
47. Walter Zmud
50. Larry Shaw
51. Bob Pearson
52. Ed Mularchyk
53. Richard Clark
54. Ross May
55. Lorne Forstner
57. Albert Taylor
60. Gary Boug
61. Ken Rysdale
62. Frank Cosentino, Capt.
63. Ed Horembala
64. Clark Samways
72. George Shepherd
73. John Sloan
74. Gary Ewart
75. Roger Stewart
76. Terry Sweeney
77. John Wydareny
90. Roy Woods
91. Barry Thompson
92. George Reintjes
93. Mecc Poliziani
94. Gary Bent
95. Lionel Conacher
96. Dino Galgani

Coach: John Metras

VARSITY BLUES

20. Ron Crawford
21. Milt Jewell
22. Peter Eby
30. Peter Warren
31. Bill Bulcuon
32. Trevor Eyton, Co-Capt.
33. Sandy Bell
34. Malcolm Bell
35. Morgan Dever
40. Weldon Thoburn
41. Bruce Jackson
42. Mike Chykaluk
43. Casey Wood
44. John Evans
45. Brian Bradstock
46. Bill Kay
50. Mike Muir
51. Doug Jack
52. Doug Loughheed
53. Bob House
54. Doug Baird
55. Walt Sopinka
60. Everett Rush
61. Nick Sopinka
62. Bob Campbell
70. Doug Wyles
71. Doug Boyd
72. Dick Farr
80. Steve Chisholm, Co-Capt.
81. Mike Smith
- 82.
83. Ian Knowles
84. Joe Foreman
85. Al Connolly
86. Pete Potter
87. Dave Creswell
88. Ken Myers
89. John Spence
90. Bob Dann
92. Paul Burroughs
93. Jim Murchie

Manager: Bob Miner
Coaches: Dalt White
Jack Kennedy
John McManus

IMPORTANT — Cut out this line-up for use at the game tonight. Printed line-ups will not be distributed in the Student Section. GET YOUR STUDENT BOOK TODAY. SEE ADVERTISEMENT ON THIS PAGE FOR DETAILS.

Rugger Chaps Boosted Top League Entrants

Varsity's Senior Rugger Blues open their 1959 season this Saturday (Sept. 26), but they won't be defending the Ontario intermediate A league pennant they won last season.

The Blues have been promoted into the Ontario Senior A league — the top loop in Eastern Canada — and will battle against the best of the Ontario clubs for the Carling Cup.

Although it would be a bit too optimistic to expect the youthful university side to win the Cup in its year of promotion, the advancement into top rugger ranks will give team members a chance of selection in Ontario and Eastern Canada all-star squads.

It is rare for selectors to watch the intermediate league games, and it was thought last season that a couple of Varsity men missed all-star selection because of this.

The Baby Blues continue to play in the Toronto Seaway League, in which they reached the semi-finals last year.

In Saturday's Back Campus opener, the Baby Blues play the Bank of Commerce at 2 p.m. and the seniors take the field at 3:15 p.m. against Toronto Saracens, present Ontario champions.

Graduation took a heavy toll of Varsity senior ranks, but a flock of promising newcomers is giving the team high hopes of finally beating McGill University Redmen in the mid-October home-and-home intercollegiate series.

They include Tom Reid, former British international who is moving from Montreal to attend university here; John Roberts, last year's Ontario Agricultural College rugger captain; Colin Barnes, a fast South African backfielder; Neil Desborough, former University of Western Ontario football star who is enrolling in grad studies, and Al Coombs, who played with an Edmonton rugger club.

Returning from last season's seniors are Neville Nankivell, the new captain; John Brebner, vice-captain; Bill Nelems, and Paul Chapman.

The club still needs newcomers to field a strong second team. Practices are held on the Back Campus at 5 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays. Coaching is Ed Gordon, 28-year-old Toronto accountant and University of Capetown, South Africa, graduate.

Privy Platter On Line Strain Is On Trainers

Tension, suspense, drama gripped the hushed confines of Trinity Stadium as last minute, strenuous preparations are hastily being concluded on the greatest fall classic since the East-West hockey final.

The All-Varsity Toilet Bowl, shrouded in secrecy has been scented out by a hard working Sports staffer, again ensuring students of excellent Sports coverage no matter how it stinks.

The Bowl is tentatively up for grabs on Monday night when the Senior Flushers meet the Intermediate Plungers in what may be the greatest exhibition of sadistic slaughter since fly-casters discovered worms.

Since mum is the word (any deodorant will do), players names will not be released until the above mentioned sports staffer has made good his escape to One Eye's Siberian hideout.

This one loyal football fans will not wish to miss. We'll play it straight. Sometime Monday night the trainers of the senior and the Intermediate Football Blues meet in their annual football game. Silver collection will admit all!

.. GIRLS ..

Cheerleaders do these things to us. We get things rather mixed up like.

Our sincere apologies go out to the cheering hopefuls who froze, all alone at the Stadium last night. TO-NIGHT IS THE NIGHT FOR TRIALS, at 5 p.m. in the Stadium.

Should you ever get caught that way again, be not ashamed to call on the entire Sports Staff for warming conversation.

Laidlaw Lectures — Knox College*JAROSLAV PELIKAN

Professor of Historical Theology, University of Chicago

THE DIMENSIONS OF DEATH

- Mon., Sept. 28 — The Arc of Existence
Tues., Sept. 29 — The Circle of Immortality
Wed., Sept. 30 — The Triangle of Mortality
Thurs., Oct. 1 — The Parable of Eternity
Fri., Oct. 2 — The Spiral of History

All lectures 5:00 - 6:00 p.m. in the College Chapel
Staff, Students and Public cordially invited

Football! $2.50 Hockey! Student Tickets

STUDENT TICKET SALE

COUPON BOOKS admitting to the Student Section at Varsity Stadium and Varsity Arena (combined book) will be sold at the south door of Varsity Arena (off Philosopher's Walk) from 10:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. tomorrow, September 25th. The coupons admit owner to the Student Section on a "first come best seat" basis, the football section extending south from centre field and the hockey section including all the east side of the Arena. TICKETS ADMIT OWNERS TO FOLLOWING GAMES:

VARSITY STADIUM

- Sept. 25 (Exhibition) WESTERN
(Friday at 8:00 p.m.)
Oct. 3 MCGILL
(Friday at 8:00 p.m.)
Oct. 24 QUEEN'S
Oct. 31 WESTERN

VARSITY ARENA

- Nov. 27 Laval
Nov. 30 Michigan
Dec. 11 U. of Montreal
Jan. 22 McGill
Feb. 6 U. of Montreal
Feb. 19 Laval
Feb. 26 Queen's
Mch. 4 McGill

NOTE: Football books only may be purchased for $2.00. Hockey books will be sold separately for $1.00 after the close of the football season, so a saving of 50c is effected by purchasing the combined book.

MARRIED STUDENTS may purchase an additional book for their wives or husbands. GRADUATE STUDENTS in full time courses may purchase a student ticket upon presentation of a certificate of enrolment signed by an official of the School of Graduate Studies.

Bring your Identification Card. Tickets cannot be purchased without one.

STUDENT TICKETS ARE NOT TRANSFERABLE.

Win Or Lose ... We Meet Again

Two questions will be answered for Coach Dalt White of the Varsity Blues in the course of tonight's exhibition game with the University of Western Ontario Mustangs.

The two questions that White is hoping for a favourable answer to are: Will one of the three quarterbacks currently working out with the team prove a suitable replacement for last season's All-Star Brian Aston, and who is going to fill the shoes of last year's trio of super centres, Curt Russell, Glen Harding and Nick Bruchovsky?

White said last night that he would start veteran Nick Sopinka in the quarterback slot, with ex-Queen's pivotman Bob Campbell and rookie Ev Rush in reserve.

Sopinka is rated as a good ballhandler and runner as well as a particularly fine passer. With Frank Cosentino going for the Mustangs, fans are assured of lots of exciting action through the air.

Campbell is also rated a good passer and runner, while Rush, a good runner, suffers from lack of height.

White will alternate 230 pound Casey Wood and 180 pound Ron Crawford at the centre slot during tonight's game. Crawford will handle the bulk of the offensive play with Wood being used mainly on third downs where a strong accurate snap is imperative.

An added attraction for fans at tonight's game will be the appearance in a Western uniform of John Metras Jr., son of the Mustang's coach.

John Jr. is a beefy 205 pounds and stands 6'3". He is expected to handle the offensive centre duties for the Mustangs during this year's campaign. His father, John Sr., was once the best centre in Canadian football, and backed by this experience he appraises his son as "pretty good".

Another point of interest for the coaching staff of the Blues will be the performance of Peter Potter (of basketball fame) in the punting slot. He has been kicking consistently in practice, but whether he can equal the distances posted by Dick Risk last year, is another question. Potter will also play safety on defence.

Western's unknown quantity is it's wingline. Bill Mitchell, star linebacker with the Horsies last season has been converted into a tackle in an effort to beef up a line that must give quarterback Frank Cosentino plenty of protection if he is to mount an effective pass attack.

Varsity's starting lineup will run something like this: Nick Sopinka has won the starting quarterback job, with Dave Cresswell and Steve Chisholm the halfbacks, Paul Burroughs the fullback, and Bobby Dann at wingback.

Morgan Dever and Sandy Bell are the starting guards; Weldon Thoburn and Bruce Jackson the tackles with Doug Loughheed and Mike Muir at the ends. Ron Crawford will start at centre.

Coach White would not forecast a result, but promised that his team would be playing to win.

BENNY

Ringham Howie

When the flood lights go on near Bedford Road illuminating tonight's clash between Blues and Mustangs they will also cast a few bright rays on Toronto's colorful trainer, Howie Ringham.

There is not enough space in a book to justly describe this epic figure.

Ringham trained the Blues before the War, served in the Canadian Army in the Italy campaign in World War II, then returned to administer the various chores of taping, cleaning, counselling and occasionally wiping the odd nose (none this year as yet).

Good natured Howie is usually the target of abuse from the annual rookie show at camp. However, as the season progresses he rapidly receives the admiration and respect of all the players.

When questioned about his teams chances this fall he quickly replied, "Blues will kick the c—p out of them all again this year."

Odds On Benny Uses Spy Ring

I am not surprising even a tiny when it is the middle of the night and my telephone jingles like a sweet lullaby of gold eagles to tell me that my Siberian agent who is nothing but Kru-hendo Nicky, a figment of my fertile imagination whom I am reclaiming and remodelling from a pile of used squash balls until he becomes a regular Russian ball of fire, is making a dramatic touch down in Washington. This is of no import to old Benny inasmuch as I am making even more traumatic touches all over the world and Benny who is I, and nothing if even that or at all, am posing far the greatest threat to our own sweet Capitalism which is a way of Life and Fortune in our Time.

But Nicky Kruhendoo is causing me to rise with what he is having to report as to the decisions of the fatelets in which I, Benny, recently acquired a controlling interest, regarding the prospects of our dear Bluesers. It is appearing that as Nicky flows his TU-104 over the wastelands of the Western Ontario he observes the strange sight of a numeral of purple little hamlets who cavort in confused fashion with in the confines of a wee oval pig-pen. Nicky is swooping in for a closer look and learns that these animals are being a football team of no real imports and though they are pretending to rehearse for a game Nicky believes that this will be no more than new kind of soap opera insofar as they are all being sent to the showers immediately and the plays they are making are those on the unprintable words which their coach flings at them in hopeless desperation.

Nicky reports that he is so engrossed by this spectacle that he is dropping down for a word with the coach who is all played out from holding himself in check so long. The Kruhendoo arrival causes the football field to sag somewhat toward the centre who is himself a depressing sight at best, which is not.

As he is approaching the coach this hapless fellow rushes to Nicky and embraces him warmly while he frisks for hidden missiles and such.

"Dear, dear Nicky," he cries, as is his habit, "cast not your glance upon this mess of a football team which is my sorrow. As you see them there they are a sad lot, yet only yesterday when the photographers are coming to take myriad snapshots all those same cohorts are gleaming purple and bold. Now they are lying about withered and cold. It is sad and it cuts at my heart strings as well as at my salary which is nothing to sneeze at as it blows away too easily and then is almost as hard to find as a point for my poor team."

Nicky sweetly murmurs little nothings of condolence and hurries off to phone me accordingly to the rules of the International Book-makers Commune so that I am betting heavily on my own good Bluesers for myself and for Nicky and I am advising all my little fishes to do likewise as the score is 20 to 13.

Frankie Carbo sends word that the fix is in on the Toilet Bowl which the seniors take 17-10.

ROSEDALE
PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH
129 Mount Pleasant Road
(2 blocks north of Bloor,
2 blocks east of Yonge)
Minister: Rev. E. S. Mackay, M.A.
11 A.M. Public Worship
8:30 p.m. Senior Youth Group
Film: "The Long Stride"
Special welcome to Varsity
Students

University
Lutheran Chapel
SUNDAY SERVICE — 11 a.m.
SUNDAY SUPPER — 5:30 p.m.
Student Club, every 2nd and
4th Thursday, at 7:45 p.m.
610 SPADINA
(below Harbord)
WA. 2-1884 — WA. 3-6840

NOW OPEN • NOW OPEN • NOW OPEN • NOW OPEN
Freshmen — Buy and Save
S. A. C.
BOOK EXCHANGE
119 ST. GEORGE ST. (south of Bloor)
NOW OPEN • NOW OPEN • NOW OPEN • NOW OPEN

HART HOUSE
Below you will find information on the Hart House Clubs. Members are urged to take part in these activities if they are interested. Please do not hesitate to make enquiries at the Undergraduate Office, on the main floor of Hart House.

GLEE CLUB — The Hart House Glee Club is an organization of 60 members of the House, under the musical directorship of Mr. Rowland Pack. Their singing schedule throughout the winter term includes the annual Tri-University Concert, a Trans-Canada radio broadcast, a trip to East Lansing, Michigan and many other engagements. Both undergraduate and graduate members of Hart House are urged to attend the auditions being held in the Music Room —
NEW members — September 28th, 29th — 5:00 - 6:30 p.m.
OLD members — September 29th — 7:00 - 9:30 p.m.

CHESS CLUB — The Chess Club have facilities on the 2nd floor of Hart House. Regular matches and tournaments are held throughout the year. Masters at the game of Chess are frequently invited to demonstrate. Membership, at a cost of 50c for the year is available from the Secretary of the Club or from the Undergraduate office.

REVOLVER CLUB — There is a well-equipped Range in the basement of Hart House in the north wing. Those wishing to participate in the Club should appear at the Range on Monday and Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. Guns and instruction are supplied. Members, however, are quite welcome to bring their own equipment. The membership fee is $2.00.

TABLE TENNIS CLUB — Club members may play table tennis once a week. Details as to time and place will be announced shortly. P.T. credits are given. Running shoes are required. Memberships available from the Secretary of the Club, $1.00 for the year.

AMATEUR RADIO CLUB—VE 3UOT — Besides regular Code and Theory Classes to prepare men for their Radio Licence, the Amateur Radio Club holds many Open Meetings throughout the year on topics of interest to all 'hams'. Their shack is in the extreme north east corner of the House and new equipment has been recently installed. Membership fee is $1.00. Watch for the first open meeting.

BRIDGE CLUB — Duplicate Bridge is played every Tuesday evening in the East Common Room of the House. Instruction is supplied. Inter-collegiate matches are arranged throughout the year. Membership fee is 50c. Sign up at the Undergraduate Office if you wish to join the Club or simply turn up at a regular meeting. Note — Card playing is not allowed in any other room or at any other time in Hart House.

ART CLASSES — Mr. Aba Bayefsky, the well-known Toronto artist, gives instruction to any interested members of the House on Tuesday and Thursday evenings in the Hart House Art Gallery. Those wishing to participate may select either a Tuesday or Thursday; materials will be supplied by Hart House. The fee is $6.00 per term. An Organizational Meeting for the Art Classes will take place on Thursday, October 8th at 7 p.m.

RECORD ROOM — The Record Room, in the west wing of the 2nd floor of the House is available for the use of any member of the House. All that is necessary is that a short instructional class be attended any Thursday evening at 5:15 p.m. After the class, cards will be issued, entitling the holder to obtain the key at any time.

STEINWAY GRAND PIANOS — Any member of Hart House who has Grade X music examination standing may use the Steinway Grand pianos after receiving a card from the Undergraduate office. Those with less than Grade X standing may fill out application forms or satisfy themselves with the up-right pianos.

NOTE — None of the pianos in Hart House is for the use of those who wish to practice. Those using the pianos should keep in mind that other members of the House using the Common Rooms are not to be made uncomfortable.

SQUASH RACQUETS — The Squash Racquets Committee of Hart House controls the activity in three squash courts in the basement. Periods on the squash court may be reserved one day prior to play by calling the Hall Porter at WA. 3-6445. Instruction for Beginners. Any member desiring instruction should sign up in the Undergraduate Office in the very near future. There will be a series of lectures presented and some senior players will give court instruction.

Registration forms for any of these clubs can be obtained from the Hall Porter in Hart House, or from the Undergraduate Office, which is to the right of the main entrance.

SAC at a glance

Besides taking steps to suspend Blue and White chairman Ian Garratt at its Caledon meeting last weekend, the Students' Administrative Council:

- accepted a report from nominating chairman Mike Sherman recommending appointment of Claude Brodeur as SAC speaker.
- elected member Mike Sherman chairman of the National Federation of Canadian University Students' committee.
- arranged for SAC members to sell copies of the 15-cent Students' Handbook to their faculties.
- granted permission to Weekends chairman Virginia Lomax to arrange an exchange weekend with a university in the southern United States.
- discovered it had been left homeless by the university's conversion of Falconer Hall into a women's residence.
- set its first official meeting for Sept. 30 in the Hart House Debates Room and asked for suggestions for a new meeting place.
- turned down a suggestion that future meetings be held in the King Cole Room.
- adjourned to the sauna bath.

Hart House Throws Huge Dance Opener

Hart House, activities centre for the more than 8,000 male undergraduates at the University of Toronto, kicks off its fall program tomorrow night with the annual Hart House Fall Dance.

The affair, termed "a sort of stag-or-drag open house" by HH House Committee chairman Peter Brawley, offers dancers a choice of three orchestras—Billy Lea's, Ellis McClintock's and the Dixieland ensemble of Ken Dean — and a chance to wander hand in hand with their favourite girls through the romantic byways of Hart House and the Quadrangle.

Admission to the dance is 75 cents single or $1.50 double. As Brawley put it, "there's no premium for bringing a girl to this dance."

The Fall Dance marks the official start of another full Hart House program which will see eight debates, a corresponding number of library evenings, some 35 concerts ranging from jazz to Glenn Gould, several dinners and dances and unlimited club activities before the year ends.

Actually HH's year got underway earlier this week as freshmen were given a guided tour of the building, often described as the most complete of its kind anywhere in the world. An added attraction for this year freshmen was a free lunch or dinner in the Great Hall, HH's main dining room.

B. & W. Football Dance SATURDAY, OCTOBER 3
Tickets Mon. at S.A.C. office

Notes on any subject are easier to write, easier to read when you use

CAMPUS SCHOOL SUPPLIES

Clean, crisp paper for every student need.

Just Perfect
GAGE STATIONERY
A DIVISION OF W. J. GAGE LIMITED
TORONTO • MONTREAL • WINNIPEG • VANCOUVER

MEN!
Want to Sing?

AUDITION for the
HART HOUSE GLEE CLUB

New Members:
September 28 - 29
5:00 - 6:30 p.m.

Spring Concert
Michigan State

ST. ANDREW'S United Church
117 BLOOR ST. EAST
near Yonge St. Subway

Minister:
REV. WILLIAM BRIGGS
M.A., B.D., Ph.D.

Organist and
Choir Director:
EDGAR GOODAIRE

11 a.m. "The Other Dimension"
7:30 p.m. "Man's Most Basic Decision"

Students cordially invited to attend

Hart House

ART GALLERY: Selections from the Private Collections of Charles McFadden, Sidney Fagan, Irving Grossman. Open daily to members, 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

- SATURDAY -
FALL DANCE: Saturday, September 26th, at Hart House.
Tickets available at Hall Porter's Desk. 75c per person.

- SUNDAY -
OPENING ALL-UNIVERSITY CHURCH SERVICE:
11 a.m. in the Great Hall
Preacher — Rev. Theodore A. Gill,
President, San Francisco Theological Seminary
All members of the University are invited to attend.

VISITORS' SUNDAY: Hart House will be open from 2-5 p.m. to members, their families and friends. Tea will be served from 3-4:30 p.m. in the Great Hall.

What You Should Know About Your Hair

Can hair turn white overnight? Do "hair growing" tonics really grow hair? And what about the use of hormones? O c t o b e r Reader's Digest tells of some false ideas and misconceptions about hair — and presents some facts everyone can use. Get Reader's Digest today — 35 articles of lasting interest, plus a l-o-n-g book condensation.

STUDY WEEK certainly sounds like a good idea, but it can be abused.

THE VARSITY

Vol. LXXIX—No. 3

Monday, September 28th, 1959

UWO Starts Study Week

LONDON, ONT. (CUP)—Next term when University of Toronto students are thinking of beginning the annual cram for examinations, University of Western Ontario students will be relaxing for a week.

The students will have a one week "holiday" from lectures and laboratories starting Friday, Feb. 29.

The break will give the students a chance to relax, study and consult professors, said Dr. G. E. Hall, president and vice-chancellor of the UWO.

A committee of faculty members proposed the break, which received approval last May, and becomes effective this year.

Dr. Hall said staff members at UWO felt the second term was too long for professors and students in relation to the first term.

"There's not a very long period from the end of September when the lectures start to the end of lectures in December," he said.

Final examinations extend the second term from January to the middle of May, giving both professors and students almost five months of work with no break except Good Friday.

At U of T, lectures peter out, by tradition, at the end of March leaving a week or so of lecture-free study time before the examinations begin.

The UWO plan, called the "Faculty - Student Conference Week," is scheduled to break the second term about in half.

"It should be a useful period of relaxation . . . a break before that final surge," said Dr. Hall. He stressed the opportunity for students to catch up on essays and studies, and for professors to mark examinations and help students.

University Registrar Helen Allison pointed out that students are not to treat the break as a virtual holiday.

"Its purpose is to give students time to clear up their courses and essays, and to consult their professors about their term tests."

"Students should stick close to the university, and use their time for academic work," she added.

Mixed Reaction In UofT Faculty

Could the University of Western Ontario's new plan of a week's break in mid-second-term be made to work at Toronto? Opinion among U of T officials seems to be divided.

In the Arts colleges three out of four heads are in favor—but Dean of Arts V. W. Bladen has reservations about the plan.

Dean Bladen felt the idea needed careful thought before being commented upon. "We do lecture too much," he said. However, during his experience as Director of the Institute of Business Administration a similar plan—a "reading week" in second term—"didn't exactly work out," he said.

M. St. A. Woodside of University College, Rev. D. R. G. Owen of Trinity and Rev. H. V. Mallen of Saint Michael's all felt the plan had merit, provided "the week was passed in academic pursuits." Dr. Owen thought there was no more danger of "wasting time during this week than at any other time."

The lone dissenter among the Arts colleges heads was Prof. Northrop Frye of Victoria.

"In honour courses at least," he said, "everything is so concentrated that a week at the end of February would be more of a nuisance than anything else."

The President of the University Claude T. Bissell could not be reached for comment.

But in the opinion of Robin Ross, U of T registrar, "the present system seems quite satisfactory." He stressed the danger of students considering the week a holiday.

Dean J. A. MacFarlane of the Faculty of Medicine thought that if such a week were instituted for Meds students, the school term would probably have to be Both Knox and Emmanuel Colleges already have a "reading week" during second term and lengthened, since a teaching session of at least 32 weeks was considered desirable by the faculty.

according to Rev. D. R. G. Cousland of Emmanuel "it works out very well; the students take it very seriously".

Walter McLean, in his graduating year at Knox, also thinks the "reading week" is used properly and appreciated by most students. McLean is president of the Students' Administrative Council.

Students at these two theological colleges, however, have only a couple of days off before final examinations, and they finish school in mid-April, almost a month before Artsmen.

U of T Artsmen now get three weeks between the end of classes in mid-April and the end of school in early May.

VP Peppiatt Resigns, Claims PC's Yes-men

A vice-president of the campus Progressive Conservative Club resigned last night, and intimated that other party members may follow his lead.

Doug Peppiatt, PC sixth vice-president, resigned because "the U of T club has lately become too slavish a follower of the party line as it is handed down from Ottawa or Queen's Park".

In his letter of resignation last night, Peppiatt said "during the time I have served the club as parliamentary whip and vice-president I have heard too many suggestions rejected on the grounds that they did not follow the party line to be able to convince myself that this club has the courage to make its own decisions on the merits of each idea."

Peppiatt said he thought it is "quite possible that some others may resign. There's a feeling of discontent in the party".

PC president Dave Crane (II Vic) last night labelled Peppiatt's charges "nonsense" and said he felt "any other member of the club would agree with me".

Crane said the club had never received any party directives, and had "presented policies which differed from PC policy" in the Model Parliament for the last three years.

Peppiatt's resignation followed a special PC executive meeting Friday night to discuss a resolution deploring "the unlateral action of the Parliament of Canada in altering the British North America Act . . . insofar as it effects the Province of Newfoundland". The motion was "decisively defeated", Peppiatt said.

"I did not resign over Newfoundland. The action on the Newfoundland resolution was just indicative of an attitude", he said.

"I did not agree with the resolution entirely. I felt 'regret' would be better than 'deplore', but I think the federal government could have handled the Newfoundland situation a little better."

Crane last night said the Newfoundland resolution was "given the full benefit of democratic discussion" and that party policy did not enter into the executive committee vote.

The executive member who introduced the resolution, Ed Roberts (III Vic) could not be reached for comment last night. Roberts, the club's second vice-president, lives in St. John's, Newfoundland.

WESTERN'S MECO POLIZIANI experiences the usual trouble in Friday night's 25-7 loss to Blues. Making sure he gains no more ground is Bobby Dann, while two unidentified Varsity players bring him crashing to the ground. Other Blues in the picture are Sandy Bell (33), Co-captain Steve Chisholm (80), and Peter Potter (86). (Varsity Staff Photo by Hoshkiw)

Blues 25, Mustangs 7

Story on Page 7.

Here She Is

FIRST SOPHOMORE Gail Richardson was recently chosen matriarch for the Blue and White Band. The Physical and Occupational Therapy Student first saw action at Friday's Blues-Western exhibition football game here. (Varsity Staff Photo by Nesbitt)

Blue and White Dance

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 3rd

FIVE BANDS — including Benny Louis and his Orchestra

$2.50 per Couple

TICKETS ON SALE NOW in the S.A.C. Office

Campus Naturals . . . Geometry and NATURAL SHOULDER SPORT COATS

Proposition: natural shoulder sport coats are made for and endorsed by collegians in 1959-1960.

Diagram: see illustration.

Given: Penn University style, new tweed patterns, 100% wool cloth.

Required: your own natural shoulder line.

Proof: take 100% wool tweed cloths, weave in the new patterns, style with the Penn University lines over your natural shoulders, eliminate padding tailor with raised seams, hook vent, and finish with a flair for the slant angle flap pockets.

In Greys, Blues, Browns or Olives. Sizes 34 to 42. Models for regulars, shorts and tails. Each $39.50.

Simpson's

Phone and Mail Orders Filled
UN, 1-8111
The Store For Young Men—Second Floor

Jean David

New Young Liberal Head

OTTAWA (CUP)—A young student who was the centre of a sharp and long-lasting controversy two years ago when he was expelled from the University of Ottawa for criticizing the administration has been elected president of the Young Liberal Federation of Canada.

Jean David, 27, who is now attending the University of Montreal, won the presidency Saturday at the closing sessions of the organization's annual meeting.

David was the central figure in the "La Rotonde" affair which began in February, 1958, and ground to a halt a year later in February, 1959.

La Rotonde is the French-language student newspaper of the bi-lingual University of Ottawa.

The controversy was touched off when David and Normand Lacharite, co-editors of La Rotonde at the time, published a special issue which was heavily critical of the Oblate fathers, who run the U of O.

Main criticism levelled at the U of O administration was "paternalism" excessive interference in student affairs.

When David and Lacharite refused to withdraw their criticism, they were advised not to return to the university the coming year.

David subsequently gained admittance to the University of Montreal where he is working towards a law degree.

He is financing his education by working nights as a reporter on the French language daily, La Presse.

Other officers elected at the Liberal conference were: vice-president Wallace Christensen, Winnipeg; treasurer, Donald Hale, Berwick, N.S.; and secretaries Yves Parisien of Ottawa and Patrick Beavers of Morrisburg, Ontario.

Campus CCF Plans Speakers MacDonald or Scott Upcoming

Campus CCF's will have an opportunity of hearing one of two important CCF leaders at the end of this week, CCF Club president Giles Endicott announced last night.

Speakers will be either provincial CCF leader Donald MacDonald, scheduled for Oct. 1, or Frank Scott, McGill Professor of Constitutional Law, scheduled for Oct. 2.

Professor Scott, former National President of the CCF Party, is known as the man who opposed the late Premier Maurice Duplessis of Quebec twice and won. He took Duplessis' Padlock Law to the Supreme Court of Canada and proved it unconstitutional, and he won a $90,000 settlement for Montreal restaurateur Frank Roncarelli whose liquor license Duplessis had cancelled.

These visits are part of a club policy of inviting nationally-known figures from the CCF Party and labor organizations to address the university group, Endicott said. Each speech will be followed by question and answer periods.

Besides participation in campus politics, club members will take part in local trade union educational programs and will discuss the impending formation of a new party and the proposed constitution drawn up at the Winnipeg conference of the CCF and the Canadian Labor Congress.

NOW OPEN • NOW OPEN • NOW OPEN • NOW OPEN

Freshmen — Buy and Save

S. A. C.

BOOK EXCHANGE

119 ST. GEORGE ST. (south of Bloor)

NOW OPEN • NOW OPEN • NOW OPEN • NOW OPEN

There's Something NEW

— AT —

Newman Club

89 ST. GEORGE STREET

THE CATHOLIC STUDENTS CLUB

(Come to the Dance on Sunday)

MIDTOWN BOOK SHOP

117 HARBOR STREET
(2 Blocks West of Spadina)

RUSSIAN GRAMMAR by N. Potapova (2 vol.) ea. 1.50

RUSS-ENGL. DICTIONARY by Smirnitsky, 7.00

ENGL.-RUSS. DICTIONARY by Mueller, 5.00

RUSS-ENGL. PHRASE DICTIONARY, 3.00

A Wide Selection of Books in Russian, including Technical Books in Russian Classics.

New Text-Books

IN ENGLISH FROM U.S.S.R. GENERAL CHEMISTRY by N. Glinka (1st year University) 4.95

THE ATOMIC NUCLEUS by M. Korschinsky (Complete course from Discovery of Radio-Activity to Hydrogen Fusion Power) 1.50

FIRST TIME IN ENGLISH! Most Distinguished Medical Text-Book Ever Offered!

Text-Books of Physiology

by Bykov, Vladimirov, Delov, Konradi, and Slonim

The Complete Science of Physiology. Exhaustive Work of 73 Chapters, Covering Entire Fields of Research on Functions of Human Body.

• Main Functions • Blood and Lymph • Circulation • Respiration • Digestion • Vitamins, Nutrition • Energy • Sex • Nervous System • Hearing • (And Many Others)

Wonderfully Illustrated, Well Printed and Bound.

Price $7.25

10% DISCOUNT FOR STUDENTS

here

TODAY

1 p.m. — Varsity staff meeting in the Varsity office.

TUESDAY

1.10 p.m. — The UC VCF will hold its first weekly Bible discussion in room 111, UC.

•-and now

UN Club

This year as in past years a trip to New York will highlight the program of the U of T United Nations Club.

The New York trip will include a tour of the UN building, attendance at UN sessions and meetings with members of the secretariat and various national delegations, including the Russians.

First activity on this year's program will be a meeting Oct. 6. Oct. 14 the United Nations Club of Toronto will give a banquet for all U of T Club members and prospective members.

TYPEWRITERS

$1.00 A WEEK BUYS . . .
. . . $1.50 A WEEK RENTS

Get a free typing course and a liberal trade-in allowance for your old typewriter when you buy a new modern machine from us.

Phone HO. 1-1843 Today

CLASSIFIED ADS.

FOR RENT

To married couple — modern, quiet, completely furnished 3-room apartment, 10 minutes walk to campus. Phone WA. 3-3238.

FOR SALE

Coon coat — $20.00. In perfect condition, size 14. RU. 3-0997.

MALE STUDENT

Bright room in private home — Delaware and Bloor. Call LE. 3-5359 after 5.30.

Economical Transportation
52 Triumph Mayflower sedan, excellent condition inside and out, $248.00. Call RU. 7-1771.

comment

THE VARSITY

Sammy was "the symbol of the downtrodden ethnic masses struggling out of the sewer." Below Larry Zolf, a graduate in history looks at the latest attempt to discover

What Made Sammy Run

By LARRY ZOLF

The TV play "What Makes Sammy Run" is based on the novel of the same name written by Budd Schulberg in 1941. The theme of that novel was one of intense immediacy—of the "dirty thirties". Little Sammy had to be a Jew, not only because of Schulberg's own experience, not only because the Jews were one of the many ethnic groups just then striving for a place in the sun, but also because Sammy was just one of the many by-products of America's "melting pot".

Sammy's drive, intensity and perverted scale of values were common to many of the children of "the Uprooted". In the 20's and 30's they were finding themselves bitter and hungry, but with an awareness of their immense importance and chances for power. This self-awareness brought both good and evil. It produced in politics the La Guardias, the Al Smiths, the Lehmans; in sports the Joe Louises, the Hank Greenbergs, the Ted Kluzewskis; in literature and drama the Arthur Millers, the Dos Passoses, the Schulbergs. Unfortunately, it could also produce the Frank Costellos and the Sammy Glicks.

The problem of the emerging ethnic masses and the impact upon them of the 20's and 30's became a dominant theme of the American "Realist" school. In "The Golden Boy", Clifford Odets gave up a graphic account of the problems of the Italian boy torn on the one hand by the old world values of his father and a consequent career as a violinist, and on the other hand by the values of the New World and a career as a prizefighter. James T. Farrell explored the world of Chicago's Irish-Americans in his "Studs Lonigan" trilogy and Jerome Weidman and Budd Schulberg gave us Harry Bogden and Sammy Glick.

If all this literature ran the very serious danger of being time-pieces destined for oblivion, Schulberg's "Sammy" had certain features which made it a most unlikely prospect for immortality. Schulberg in 1941 was a very important participant in Hollywood's political battles. Certainly his sympathies as a screen play writer lay with the coterie of Communists or leftwingers led by John Howard Lawson. Thus much of "Sammy" is devoted to the treacheries, political vendettas and general all around back-stabbing that went on in the Screenwriters and Actors Guilds, etc., etc. It was precisely this sordid element of Hollywood life that has kept "sensitive" directors, plagued by the "sensitive" and "Blacklisting" American Legion and Knights of Columbus, from putting "Sammy" on the screen.

Times have changed since the 30's and 40's. The Angry Young liberal, Communist and Socialist writers have left the scene. They have either given up realism or they have seen the light, and are now devoting their full energies to the extolling of "The New Conservatism" à la Herman Wouk and James Gould Cozzens. To put "Sammy" on TV, therefore required a thorough deodorizing and reshaping of the characters both to make it palatable for present day Americans and perhaps to give it the necessary elements that would convert a prose time-piece into an immortal epic.

Does Mr. Schulberg succeed in his dual purpose? Part I of the two part TV serial provides some answers. The TV "Sammy" has some very serious deficiencies. Schulberg's TV script is a slick, professional and adequate enough to save the TV industry from the Westerns. Good acting jobs are turned in by the experienced Barbara Rush, John Forsythe, Sidney Blackmer and Opatoshu. But the TV play is no "modern classic", and Larry Blyden as Sammy is inadequate. He has about as much drive as a second-hand washing machine.

Schulberg has certainly made an earnest effort to give the play some of the bravado and intensity of the novel, while at the same time bringing it up to date. The irony of the novel which saw little Sammy Glick spouting the line of Nazism of dog eat dog is only fitfully reproduced in the play. Kit (Barbara Rush) Saks Hells a few times at Sammy and sings Sammy Uber Alles, but the effect is nil.

The controversial Labor theme which does much to date the novel, but also to give it vitality and excitement is again reproduced (this happens only in the TV play. Labour today is very controversial. Mannheim's John Forsythe discusses it as the chore handed to the Screenwriters Guild being the only place where a Glick "can be a Brother," and the members have "wall-to-wall picketing".

As for the characterization of Sammy, the task of portraying Sammy as the symbol of the downtrodden ethnic masses scrambling out of the sewer, Schulberg's TV play sheds but little of the light and heat of the novel. Sammy does get to say, "Tears are for the losers", "Ideals are only an excuse for not having a good act," and even "I like it, I like it, I like it," but he does not make good, his first hand-made pen of Brian Jones (Bogden), the final character of the novel, Blyden weak, and a few other poorly handled characters do not help.

Are there any morals to this story? Only two. The first: you can't make good, and the second—you can't stick the thirties in the fifties and get away with it. (This is a very bold statement.)

P. 7.

A dentist, an electrician, a housewife, and a business man have a nighttime occupation that carries them far away from their daily jobs. Together they are the Travellers, who have awakened and encouraged a new interest in folk-music in Toronto audiences.

A Commercial Journey

At 8:30 Saturday evening, four Torontonians, a dentist, an electrician, a housewife and a businessman, took the stage of the spacious, acoustically perfect Northern Vocational School auditorium amid the appreciative applause of nine-hundred enthusiasts. These were "The Travellers", often unfortunately dubbed as Canada's answer to "The Weavers", and for the next two hours they set toes a tapping and hands a clapping to the infectious lilt of folk music.

Sponsored in concert as part of the "Buildings For Brotherhood Campaign" of the North Toronto Y.M.C.A., "The Travellers" took us on a musical journey that ranged happily from the jungles of Africa to the lumber camps of British Columbia.

Just who are the "Travellers"?

Well, reading from left to right, they are: Sid Dolgay sometime electrician, sometime bass singer who provides the group with the unique instrumental accompaniment of the mando-cello, an unusual instrument which dates back to the Troubadors of Mediaeval Europe; Simone Johnston, a pert and pretty housewife, the group's lyric soprano with a voice as clear and pure as a mountain spring; Jerry Goodis, the group's spokesman and dynamic sparkplug; and finally, Jerry Gray, sometime dental surgeon, sometime talented banjo player who also doubles with a driving vocal beat. Together, they are "The Travellers", a fresh, versatile, if at times, overly commercial Canadian folk singing group.

And what do they sing? Well, during by Saturday night's program one might say that their repertoire includes folk songs of the entire world. It is, however, happily weighted with a large number of distinctly Canadian songs ranging from the rollicking French Canadian rafting song "En Voyant" to the hauntingly beautiful Maritime ballad, "She's Like The Swallow". The group is indeed to be commended for bringing to public attention songs of our Canadian heritage which would otherwise go unheard. Then too, the intricate harmonies and hypnotic syncopated rhythms of their Bantu African melodies are a pure delight. It is, in fact, impossible not to like "The Travellers".

It is, however, very easy to take offense at the forced, stinky, and often work-song antics the group does in order to repeat professional. There seems here to be a distinct attempt to emulate "The Kingston Trio", a group whose blatant commercialization of folk music has vaulted them unto the Hit Parade and out of favour with the devoted, folk song listener. It would indeed be a shame to see "The Travellers" follow the same dollar-paved road. Admittedly they have to please their public but this can be done without clutching the slapstick throughout the "Boasting Song" or resorting to vaudeville costume effects to sell "The Frozen Logger". The pure, simple emotional beauty of their rendition of "Sinner Man" or the native charm of any of their French Canadian songs, is enough to make any fan feel his ticket has been underpriced.

Ted Schafer.

comment

no rest

There is a good chance that the students of the University of Western Ontario will use their week off in February for leisure pursuits of the idlest kind.

If they spend their week sleeping, going to movies, having wild parties it will not surprise us a bit. It will not bother us either.

For the student's real need about five weeks before the exams start when he is setting out on an agonizing and mind taxing schedule of study is not more time at his books, but simply a week to sit around doing nothing.

We are not being melodramatic when we say that many students we know have at one time or another spoiled a set of exams they had the ability ordinarily to sail through, or had to drop out of the exams altogether from a series of complaints due to pre-exam pressure ranging from nervous breakdown to low blood count.

All they needed was a few days of doing nothing just before the final blast of energy was expected of them.

We are glad that, at least at Western, they are getting it.

for the wicked

Whatever the best solution to the problem of the Wallace Room is, simply closing it seems to be a particularly unimaginative one.

The charms of the Wallace Room as it used to be are well known. The relative availability of books, the chance to browse through a classic selection of books on subjects not necessarily one's own, the opportunity of underground combat between various groups trying to get hold of the same book at the same time.

It almost seems justified to take all this away from us in the face of the shockingly high figure of 700 stolen books last year. Almost but not quite.

The many do not have to expiate for the sins of the few. To be blunt we have never taken a book unlawfully out of the Wallace Room, and just as we do not recognize any universal guilt, neither do we recognize a universal punishment.

We never did trust the public school teacher who made the whole class stay in because she couldn't find out who was talking. We always thought there was another way.

One possible way for the University library might be simply to accept the necessity of budgeting a large yearly amount to replace stolen books.

Stolen books are an occupational hazard of running a library, especially a room such as the Wallace Room. A good library should be expected to deal with its occupational hazards internally, with no liabilities to the member.

For years there has been one Stratford in the world. It commemorated each year, with a splendid festival the majesty of Shakespeare's works.

For years there was one Schafer at the Varsity. He commemorated each year the majesty of perpetual youth.

There are now three Stratfords in the world, and there are now two Schafer's at the Varsity.

And the second Schafer, Larry, the brother of Ted, has begun his association with the Varsity by reporting on his visit to the three Stratfords.

Stratfords

by Larry Schafer

This summer, during a period of six weeks, I was able to attend all three of the Stratford Festivals. What follows are my personal impressions of and comments upon the three Stratfords.

To begin, let us consider the three communities that house the Festivals. Each has reacted to its worldwide attention an entirely different way. Stratford-On-Avon, England, the smallest population, still holds every bit of the bewitching Tudor atmosphere it had when Shakespeare himself lived there. The original buildings have been wisely preserved. The Avon River still wanders lazily through the town and on its banks are beautiful parks filled with statues of Shakespeare and his characters. It is a town that should be visited for its beauty even if one has no interest in performances of Shakespeare's plays.

Stratford, Connecticut, the opposite extreme, takes no interest in the theatre that was built there only after violent protest from many of its inhabitants. There are no picturesque parks by the Avon; in fact, their Avon River is the Housatonic, a river quite overrun with shipyards. There is no better name for this community than "the commuter Stratford", as it is easily reached in about an hour from either New York or Boston and is accessible by the dozen various turnpikes and thruways that seem to converge in one large knot around the area. This is not a Stratford where one stays to enjoy the atmosphere. One "hops in" and "hops out" as fast as one can. Small wonder, as it has nothing but the theatre itself to attract the people.

Canada's Stratford, with very little work, can become a happy medium between these two extremes. It too has an Avon River winding through the city. Most people feel this river, its banks and parks, are even more beautiful than those in the original Stratford. It is unfortunate that the officials have not seen fit to enhance them with various memorial statues. Despite any contradiction from the Stratford to the South, I found the greatest youthfulness and vitality in our own Stratford. The rather young echoing of the original has a refreshing quality all its own.

The visual impact of the Canadian exemplifies this youthfulness most aptly. The American theatre is a huge grey structure not at all unlike a barn. England's is also huge only here it is of red brick. Because of the size and box-like shape of the other theatres, it doesn't take an architectural graduate to decide which theatre is the most inspiring from the outside.

I began my playgoing in England with "Othello" starring Paul Robeson. The production as a whole was visually splendid, but completely missed the mark as far as the meaning of the play itself is concerned. Mary Ure's "Desdemona" was too worldly; Paul Robeson was too old for "Othello"; Emilia was played so insignificantly that I cannot even recall the actress' name. Of the main roles, only Sam Wanamaker's "Iago" seemed the least bit memorable. Next was Tyrone Guthrie's "All's Well That Ends Well" done along the same lines as the production he and Tanya Moiseiwitsch did during Canada's first season. This time he took extreme liberties with the script, deleting an unbelievable number of characters. True Shakespearean comedy this was not, but Mr. Guthrie inserted so much of his own humorous direction that the play became an irresistible, rollicking farce. The highlight of the season in England, however, was "Coriolanus" with Sir Lawrence Olivier. This difficult Roman tragedy was put across with force and excitement seldom seen in the theatre today. Dame Sybil Thorndike as "Volumnia", the hero's dominating mother was a splendid match for Sir Lawrence in the title role. Olivier, as ever at his flawless best, topped off his performance with a death scene sufficient to curl the hair of any Hollywood stunt man.

Connecticut's blustering performance of "Romeo & Juliet" was first on the program down south. It exemplified the ranting and raving style of acting that abounds in this company. So much of Shakespeare's verse was lost in the slurred speech that they might just as well have done the play in pantimime. Richard Easton's neurotic "Romeo" and Inga Swenson's immature "Juliet" are just not quite what the bairn. My attitude toward this company changes upon seeing their "Midsummer Night's Dream" one of the funniest productions I have ever seen under Jack Landreth, the love intended tongue-in-cheek bit all.

Returning to our own so much has been said speaking through the summer that I shake a few general comments. Like it, although a full and, at times, a little short of the art and charm of last year's "Othello". "Othello" greatly had its night. Campbell's "Othello" overdone in parts, but the production lost much because of extreme lack of visual interest. The stage at times was too crowded. The production was economical feature, but the introduction of Kevyn was able and engaging.

After seeing Stratford's, I now can say that Canada's has yet to be truly one of the best Festivals. Although Canadian actors have an abundance of talent, the festival could do with a periodical injection of talent. Sooner or later the habitual annual production of the names, such as "Othello", "Romeo & Juliet", et al. On the other hand, an abundance of talent that has been given a lead.

If the Canadian hopes to be a truly attractive place over the world to city for longer than half hours, why have officials set up a plan to see that all new the city is either

THE VARSITY

FOUNDED 1880

Published by
The Students' Administrative Council
of the University of Toronto
Toronto 5, Canada

Member Canadian University Press

Editorial and News Office
Basement, SAC Building — WA. 3-8742, WA. 3-8113
Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221

The opinions expressed in this paper are those of the editor.

Editor-In-Chief	Sam Aizenstat
Acting Managing Editors	Susie Breslin, Harvey Shepherd
Acting News Editor	Ed Roberts
Acting CUP Editor	Alan Walker
Acting Photo Editor	Andrew Stabins
Acting Sports Editor	Dave Griner
Acting AM&D Editor	Elmo Ciprietti
Acting Features Editor	Dave Stein
Acting Publicity Editor	Jayne Nesbitt

TODAY'S ISSUE: Arlene Annason, Kay McCook, Terry Bourke, Fred Host, Bill Musgrove, Susan Kastner, The Zolfs, The Schafer Twins ("which has the Toni"), and "just call me Mak."

"Suffer yourselves to be blamed, imprisoned, condemned; suffer yourselves to be hanged; but publish your opinions; it is not a right, it is a duty."

act two

Sound of One Hand Clapping

The second act of Clap Hands opens with a number entitled "Its Not As Good As Last Year". It is well-written, and well-performed.

But the writers, Robert Fulford and James Knight, have written with greater irony than they perhaps intended. For Clap Hands is unfortunately "Not As Good As Last Year."

Like the little girl, the second Clap Hands when it is good, is very very good, but when it is bad it is exceedingly painful to watch.

It is perhaps the nature of satirical writing that it must stay forever on a narrow fast-moving level of humour. If the pace once flags, if one line or sight gag does not make it, then the whole effect of the review can be seriously damaged. Satire must evoke an immediate and spontaneous response, or it will get no response at all. There is no room for the quietly reminiscent chuckle.

Unfortunately, a good deal of Clap Hands seems to be played as if there were such room. Instead of the mildly ironic, or completely straight-faced delivery that characterizes the best reviews, the Clap Hands was played "broadly". Most of the punch lines were delivered self-consciously and some, as in the Automobile Skit, were telegraphed long before they came. The general effect was that of a Bob Hope Movie.

The songs gave the impression that they would have sounded much better if they had been delivered by a large chorus. When the entire cast of Clap Hands is on the stage at one time they can muster only six voices. When the group is that small, they must rely on the strength of the material to charm the audience. And except for "Lament for a Monument" the "Stratford Strut" and "Its Not As Good As Last Year", the lyrics were just not sharp enough to do the job.

This year too, Clap Hands seems to be relying more on sex to achieve a laugh than they did in the preceding show. The double entendre is fine when it draws an outraged gasp of understanding from the audience, but it becomes dull when nothing is left to the imagination. In the "Automobile Skit" the humour comes pretty close to being just plain burlesque.

The one line gags and the running gags, were again one of the best parts of the show. They came off universally well and considerably brightened the general effect.

The best parts of Clap Hands were those in which one or two people appeared. "Tell Ya What I'm Gonna Do", by Donald Harron and played by Eric House; "The French Lesson" by Paul Break which featured Betty Leighton and David Gardner; the "Finger Exercises" which was conceived and played by Mr. House, and the "Tumblers" which was again conceived of and played by Mr. House, were all fine and amusing numbers.

It is perhaps unfair to make such a comment, but they seemed to be closest to the first Clap Hands. They had the sometimes incisive and sometimes whimsical humour that ran throughout the preceding show.

Indeed, the fine parts of the second show seemed to highlight the difference between the two editions of Clap Hands. In the first show, the number seemed designed for a small cast and smallness became an asset rather than a liability. In the second show, they seemed to forget that there were only six people and they played as if there were much bigger cast performing in a much larger theatre.

And at times they seemed to be almost lost on the Hart House Stage. The intimacy of the first show was almost entirely lost.

Nevertheless between the sight gags and the very very good parts, there were many laughs in Clap Hands. It is still a show worth seeing.

And one final word. The show has evidently been changed since the programs were printed and these should be brought up to date.

David Lewis Stein.

bella ella

Lady Fitz Hits

Perhaps Ella Fitzgerald's greatest attribute is an ability to inject her own sincere, uncomplicated and entirely personal quality into the most hackneyed of popular tunes. This was clearly apparent Thursday evening when Norman Grantz brought Ella to Massey Hall with a program covering many of the old favorites — and some of the new.

Despite a supporting quartet which was noisy enough to spoil the finer effects of the first few numbers, an immediate contact was established between the singer and audience. Swinging relaxedly into a variety of moods—lyric, earthly and sardonic

—Ella displayed the fine range and rhythmic sense which are such a distinctive part of her success.

True, the material was mostly old stuff: Evening Breeze, The Man I Love, I Guess He's Not For Me and Paper Moon. But by interpreting many of the pop tunes in a predominantly Blues' idiom, the songs came through as a genuine expression of feeling.

This process was largely achieved by improvisation and subtle inflections of rhythm and tone which Ella accomplished in a remarkably controlled manner.

A surprise item after the intermission was the appearance of Roy Eldridge, certainly one of the greatest trumpet players in traditional and mainstream jazz today. The quartet seemed to be smoother under his leadership and there were some pleasing solos by guitarist Herb Ellis and Ray Bryant on the piano.

Returning to the stage in a dark blue evening dress, Ella was at her best for the second half of the program, whether in the husky tones of Witchcraft or in the poignant rendering of her final number How High The Moon.

And at her best, Ella Fitzgerald is unforgettable.

David Halton.

HART HOUSE THEATRE

Student Subscriptions

$3.00 for the Four Productions

Hart House Theatre offers a Student Subscription at $3.00 for the four All-University productions directed by Robert Gill. The student rate will be $1.00 for a single performance. Subscribers are assured of the same seats and performance evenings for the entire season. Two subscriptions only on each A.T.L. card.

1959-60 SEASON

THE LITTLE FOXES by Lillian Hellman

Saturday, October 24th to Saturday, October 31st

THE SIMPLETON OF THE UNEXPECTED ISLES by

George Bernard Shaw

Saturday, November 28th to Saturday, December 5th

THE GLASS MENAGERIE by Tennessee Williams

Saturday, January 23rd to Saturday, January 30th

THE IMPORTANCE OF BEING ERNEST by Oscar Wilde

Saturday, February 27th to Saturday, March 5th

Last season over 40% of the total seats were sold by subscription before opening.

● AVOID DISAPPOINTMENT AND BOOK EARLY ●

Box Office now open 10.00 a.m. to 6.00 p.m. — WA. 3-5244

Three

line or is sufficiently inspiring in a modern manner to merit a place in a city that houses one of Canada's greatest pieces of Architecture. A board of this nature was set up in Stratford-On-Avon years ago. Another good idea to consider is one of the most charming features of the American festival, a troupe of three musicians dressed in traditional costumes who entertain outside the theatre during intermission with authentic Elizabethan songs.

Having seen the other Stratfords, I am truly proud of Canada's. It has the greatest possibilities, with beautiful surroundings to enhance and much hidden talent in Canada yet undiscovered. It exhibits a much wider program than either of the other Festivals, combining music, theatre and films. Ours is the Stratford that can shine above its original namesake. Let's hope we are wise enough to realize this.

Laidlaw Lectures — Knox College

JAROSLAV PELIKAN

Professor of Historical Theology, University of Chicago

THE DIMENSIONS OF DEATH

- Mon., Sept. 28 — The Arc of Existence
- Tues., Sept. 29 — The Circle of Immortality
- Wed., Sept. 30 — The Triangle of Mortality
- Thurs., Oct. 1 — The Parabola of Eternity
- Fri., Oct. 2 — The Spiral of History

All lectures 5:00 - 6:00 p.m. in the College Chapel
Staff, Students and Public cordially invited

Join the Blue &amp; White Band

Rehearsal TODAY at 5 p.m.

Drill Hall — 119 St. George Street

OPENINGS FOR ALL INSTRUMENTS

Sports - Games - Trophies

Best and Best Wilson's Ltd.
Wholesale prices to everyone
THE HAROLD A. WILSON
CO. of TORONTO LTD.
328 DUPONT STREET

10-Piece Dance Band

Musicians for all occasions, mounted by Gord Staples' Orchestra, an experienced group of musicians with a repertoire of music to satisfy all tastes. For those who want the very best in music, please contact:
100 B.L.H. DE. 5-2323

UNIVERSITY BLAZERS*Custom Made

Especially Priced for Students

$27.50Fine Flannel Worsted Trousers
$16.50Business Hours: 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.
Monday through SaturdaySuits Made to Measure
Latest Styles and DesignPARNES Clothing Co.706 QUEEN STREET WEST
EM. 6-2025
Sample at S.A.C. OfficeGOOD HAIRCUT*RIGHT NEAR HERE

4 BARBERS — NO WAITING

600 University Avenue

Just below College

In the Basement

Open Monday through Friday

8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

ONLY $1.00

She: Let's sit this dance out—
no one will be the wiser.
He: Oh, yes; you will!

GIRLS' ATHLETICS*GIRLS' BASKETBALL REP.

There will be a meeting for the basketball reps. of each college and Faculty TUESDAY, SEPT. 29 at 12:00 p.m. in ROOM 53 at the SCHOOL OF NURSING (50 St. George St.)

If you are unable to attend please send a substitute as it is most important that one person from each College and Faculty be present.

MEN — TENNIS — MEN*UNIVERSITY CHAMPION SINGLES TOURNAMENT

Entries close today, 5:00 p.m. at Intramural office, Hart House.

SWIMMING—Practices start TODAY at 5:15 p.m. Anyone interested in trying out for Intercollegiate team, please report to Swimming Pool, Hart House.

WATER POLO—Practices start Tues. Sept. 29 at 5:15 p.m. Anyone interested in trying out for Intercollegiate team, please report to Swimming Pool, Hart House.

HOCKEY PLAYERS

Woodbridge Dodgers require five Junior "B" calibre hockey players, under 20, August 1st, 1959. Phone RU. 3-7432, between 5 and 7 p.m. Transportation supplied.

SPECIAL COLLEGE RATES!*Order Your Magazines for Low Rates and Fast Service

Playboy (Nov.-June) 43c a copy .....	$3.50	The New Yorker (8 mos.) 9c a copy .....	3.00
Playboy (1 yr.) 40c a copy .....	5.00	Harper's (1 yr.) 37c a copy .....	4.50
Playboy (2 yr.) 39c a copy .....	9.00	Saturday Review (1 yr.) 7c a copy .....	3.38
Time (12 wks.) 71c a copy .....	1.97	The Reporter (10 mos.) 32c a copy .....	3.27
Time (1 yr.) 7c a copy .....	3.87	Holiday (9 mos.) 39c a copy .....	3.50
Time (2 yr.) 7c a copy .....	7.00	American Home (9 mos.) 25c a copy .....	2.25
Newsweek (12 wks.) 7c a copy .....	2.50	Ladies' Home Journal (9 mos.) 28c a copy .....	2.50
Newsweek (1 yr.) 6c a copy .....	3.50	Vogue (1 yr.) 25c a copy .....	3.00
U.S. News & World Report (39 wks.) 9c a copy .....	3.67	House & Garden (1 yr.) 22c a copy .....	3.50
Fortune (1 yr.) 62c a copy .....	7.50	Glamour (1 yr.) 21c a copy .....	2.50
Life (12 wks.) 9c a copy .....	1.91	Harper's Bazaar (1 yr.) 35c a copy .....	3.00
Life (8 mos.) 9c a copy .....	3.00	Good Housekeeping (2 yr.) 17c a copy .....	3.98
Life (1 yr.) 71c a copy .....	4.00	House Beautiful (2 yr.) 25c a copy .....	6.00
Life (2 yr.) 71c a copy .....	7.00	TV Guide (66 wks.) 9c a copy .....	5.83
Look (1 yr.) 13c a copy .....	3.50	Golf Digest (15 mos.) 20c a copy .....	1.00
Saturday Evening Post (39 wks.) 9c a copy .....	3.50	Ebony (1 yr.) 16c a copy .....	2.00
Reader's Digest (1 yr.) 25c a copy .....	2.97	Popular Mechanics (20 mos.) 15c a copy .....	2.98
Sports Illustrated (17 wks.) 9c a copy .....	1.50	Sports Field (20 mos.) 15c a copy .....	2.98
Sports Illustrated (6 mos.) 10c a copy .....	2.50	Science Digest (20 mos.) 15c a copy .....	2.98
Sports Illustrated (1 yr.) 7c a copy .....	4.00
Esquire (8 mos.) 37c a copy .....	3.00
Atlantic Monthly (8 mos.) 27c a copy .....	3.00

STUDENT PERIODICAL AGENCY

P.O. Box 157, Adelaide P.O.

Toronto 1, Ontario

Please send the above underlined magazines to:

NAME .....

ADDRESS .....

CITY .....

ZONE .....

STATE .....

UNIVERSITY OR COLLEGE .....

CLASS OF .....

☐ Payment enclosed☐ Bill me☐ Renewal

Initiation Not As Gruesome

By FRED HOST
Varsity Staff Reporter

Initiations, traditional university welcome to freshmen, today swings into high gear at the University of Toronto, but in the main they're not going to be the gruesome ordeals which many people consider traditional.

Trend on campus this year seems to be towards "constructive orientation", a euphemistic term which means that the old fashioned hell-raising stunts have given way to more useful projects.

The shift to the "new look" in initiations isn't a new one to the U of T campus, but it has gained momentum this year with an announcement by Victoria University Senior Tutor Prof. C. C. Love that "hazing" will no longer be permitted in Vic's men's residences.

The ten residences, which house some 200 male undergraduates, have long been considered a strong-hold of the old-fashioned type of initiation.

Dr. Love's announcement followed passage last spring by the Vic Residence Council of a motion which called for the new policy.

The Residence Council gave no detailed explanation for the outlawing of the traditional form of initiations, but Dr. Love said last night that "perhaps it's a sign we are growing up".

However the picture doesn't seem to have changed in the women's residence at Vic. Freshies in the spanking new Margaret Addison Hall have complained of "rough treatment" from girls in senior years.

FRESHMAN ENGINEERS seem almost eager to hit the beach as they are trucked off to Toronto Island to clean beaches during freshman initiations. (Varsity-Staff Photo by Stebins)

"I was made to scrub phone booths and clean out a bathtub" one freshie, who asked to remain unidentified, said last night.

Other events associated with Vic's initiation week include the traditional "Bob Apple" battle, in a contest which sees first-year men try to gain possession of a red and yellow "bloop" perched atop a greased pole and defended by sophomores. The 10-minute battle will be held Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 p.m.

Elsewhere on campus the type of initiation seems to be about evenly divided between the old and the new, but at the same time there's no doubt that the trend is towards the new type.

Again this year the engineers, first faculty to adopt "constructive orientation" as a definite policy, lent the services of their 600 freshmen to the Toronto Parks department for an afternoon.

The embryonic blue-jackets travelled to Toronto Island where they worked alongside regular Parks department employees.

Students at Devonshire House, the U of T's residence for professional faculty undergraduates, also were constructively oriented this year.

Last Saturday morning, between 1 a.m. and 8 a.m., they cleaned up games rooms in the residences and carried out other odd jobs created by gleeful sophomores.

Main bastion of the old-fashioned initiation is the fraternities, which aren't contemplating any change this year.

One unidentified spokesman described his fraternity's initiations as "too gruesome for words", and most other persons contacted said that details were "classified".

Freshmen at both St. Michael's college and Trinity will undergo traditional initiations.

At St. Mike's freshmen can expect to be roused at the wee small hours of the morning to go a-serenading, and sophomores promise "dire consequences" to any who don't show the proper degree of enthusiasm.

And at Trinity freshmen will be submitted to a galaxy of indignities which end with the Cake Fight later in the fall, when freshmen try to storm the College's east gate while sophomores shower them with garbage.

Special Attention — 25% Discount ON ALL JEWELLERY PURCHASES

Including: Watches, Diamonds, Silverware, Lighters, Wallets, Pens, and Pencils, Radios, Clocks, Costume Jewellery etc. etc. You must have your A.T.L. card when making a purchase.

SHEFFIELD JEWELLERS

DIAMOND MERCHANTS

323 YONGE ST. (5 doors above Dundas) TEL. EM. 6-0977

Football! $2.50 Hockey! Student Tickets

STUDENT TICKET SALE

COUPON BOOKS admitting to the Student Section at Varsity Stadium and Varsity Arena (combined book) will be sold at the south door of Varsity Arena (off Philosopher's Walk) from 10:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. on Friday, Oct. 2nd. The coupons admit owner to the Student Section on a "first come best seat" basis, the football section extending south from centre field and the hockey section including all the east side of the Arena. TICKETS ADMIT OWNERS TO FOLLOWING GAMES:

	Varsity Stadium	Varsity Arena
Nov. 27	McGILL	Laval
Nov. 30	McGILL	Michigan
Dec. 11	McGILL	U. of Montreal
Jan. 22	McGILL	McGill
Feb. 6	QUEEN'S	U. of Montreal
Feb. 19	QUEEN'S	Laval
Feb. 26	WESTERN	Queen's
Mar. 4	WESTERN	McGill

NOTE: Football books only may be purchased for $2.00. Hockey books will be sold separately for $1.00 after the close of the football season, so a saving of 50c is effected by purchasing the combined book.

MARRIED STUDENTS may purchase an additional book for their wives or husbands. GRADUATE STUDENTS in full time courses may purchase a student ticket upon presentation of a certificate of enrolment signed by an official of the School of Graduate Studies.

Bring your Identification Card. Tickets cannot be purchased without one.

STUDENT TICKETS ARE NOT TRANSFERABLE.

WOE IS WESTERN

All New Blues Superb

Sopinka Adds Spark

By DAVE GRINER

The "best passer in college football" was muffled Friday night at Varsity Stadium, and the Varsity Blues walked off with a 25-7 victory in an exhibition game with the University of Western Ontario Mustangs.

The passer was Mustang's quarterback Frank Cosentino, and Blues' margin of victory left no doubt in the minds of 10,603 onlookers as to which team will be the one to beat in the coming Intercollegiate season.

Although Cosentino completed 16 of the 27 passes he attempted, the majority were for less than ten yards, and he was kept on the run most of the night by a hard charging Varsity line led by Brian Bradstock and Veterans Trevor Eylon and Doug Baird.

Blues rolled up an impressive 434 yards passing and running as compared to the 363 yards posted by Western.

Blues capitalized on practically every scoring opportunity they had, while Mustangs frittered away six.

For the second year in a row, Western appeared unable to stop the Varsity running to the outside. Good blocking cleared out the corner linebackers time and time again to pave the way for large gains.

After a bad snap ruined a Western field goal attempt from the Varsity 14 yard line, Sopinka completed three straight passes, one to Dave Creswell in the end zone from 20 yards out. Key play on the march was Bobby Dann's great catch for a 54 yard gain.

An alert Varsity defence set up the second Blues TD. With Western on the Toronto 38, rookie Dick Farr picked up a Western fumble and after running some distance with it himself, lateralled to Peter Potter who continued to the Mustangs 30. Two plays took the ball to the Mustang 16, and then Joe Foreman swept the end with a terrific burst of speed for the second Toronto touchdown. Potter converted.

Blues opened the second half in fine style when Bob Dann ripped 49 yards to score on a wingback reverse, shaking off two tacklers enroute to up the Blues lead to 19-0. Bruce Jackson and Morgan Dever threw good blocks to help spring him loose.

Cosentino finally rallied Western, and the Mustangs marched 90 yards in 15 plays (one pass) to paydirt. Large gains by Lionel Conacher and Meco Poliziani, who scored from one yard out, highlighted the series. Bill Mitchell converted.

Two more Western marches died inside the Varsity 25 when third down passes by Cosentino went incomplete in the end zone.

Varsity moved 90 yards in six plays for their fourth and final touchdown near the middle of the fourth quarter. After rookie Jim Murchie showed surprising speed on a 29 yard burst, Sopinka completed three consecutive passes, and then Paul Burroughs ran over two tacklers to score.

Notes . . . While refusing to single out any one player for special mention, Varsity coach Dalt White was particularly pleased with the showing of his rookies. Among those who impressed were Bradstock, Murchie, Farr, Muir, Jackson and Bill Bulcon . . . Murchie was Varsity's leading ground gainer with 66 yards in 9 tries . . . Conacher had 106 in 21 for Mustangs . . . Creswell caught 4 passes for 66 yards and a TD.

DAVE CRESWELL hauls in one of the four passes he caught from quarterback Nick Sopinka for a large gain. Creswell scored Varsity's first touchdown.

Rookie Gives Queens Edge

MONTREAL, (Special) — Boasting a ground attack that garnered an impressive total of minus 23 yards rushing, Queen's Golden Gaels edged McGill Redmen 6-0 in an under the lights exhibition fixture at Molson Stadium Friday night.

Gael's scoring opportunity manifested itself late in the third quarter. A bad snap to Redmen's punter Joe Irwin placed the ball on McGill's 18 yard line. A roughing penalty advanced play to the 33 before Queen's took over. Two plays later Queen's struck pay dirt.

Rookie quarterback, Gary West tossed the counter to Ron Robb in the end zone to win the game. The convert attempt failed.

Robb attempted 17 passes for Gaels, completing four and suffering four interceptions. John Roberts and Paul Mazko, alternating signal callers for the Redmen, completed five out of 19 passes, giving up three interceptions.

McGill, despite the loss, appeared a more consistent team. Particularly impressive in the backfield were veteran Carl Hansen and Will Humbert.

Four Straight!

TORONTO — Centres, Crawford, Jewell, Eby, guards, Warren, Bulcon, Eylon, Bell S., Bell M., Dever; tackles, Thoburn, Jackson, Chalkuk, Woods, Bradstock, Kay, ends, Muir, Jack, House, Loucheed, Baird, Sopinka W., quarterbacks, Rush, Sopinka N., Campbell; backs, Wyles, Boyd, Farr, Chishalm, Knowles, Foreman, Potter, Creswell, Myron, Spence, Dann, Burroughs, Murchie.

WESTERN — Centres, Metras, Neal, guards, Mundy, Partington, Farley, Edgar, Barclay, Parkinson, MacMillan; tackles, Mitchell, Lutz, Bradley, Scott, Humphrey, Fox, Zmud; ends, Shaw, Pearson, Mularchyk, Clark, Fortner, Taylor; quarterbacks, Boug, Rysdale, Cosentino, Horemala; backs, Samways, Shepherd, Sloan, Ewart, Stewart, Sweeney, Wood, Wydarsny, Thompson, Reintjes, Poliziani, Bent, Conacher, Galsaul.

OFFICIALS — G. Stewart, R. Porter, E. Jarvis, E. Morgan.

First Quarter

1—Toronto, TD (Creswell)

Second Quarter

2—Toronto, TD (Foreman)

3—Toronto, convert (Potter)

Third Quarter

4—Toronto, TD (Dann)

5—Western, TD (Poliziani)

6—Western, convert (Mitchell)

Fourth Quarter

7—Toronto, TD (Burroughs)

Rugger Blues Surprise Saracens

Lose First In Stubborn Battle

The Varsity Rugger Blues lost their debut into Ontario's top rugger league Saturday, but in so doing established themselves as this season's dark horses.

The youthful university team surprised Toronto Saracens, defending Ontario senior A champions, by holding them to an 8-8 tie until the last 10 minutes when the visitors broke through to win 16-8.

The Blues, winners last season of the Ontario intermediate A pennant, have been promoted into the senior A series and it was expected they'd need some time before building up to the standards of the other senior teams.

But in Saturday's league opener they came close to pulling a stunning upset as they roared to a quick 5-0 lead when forward Doug Bosomworth plunged over the goal-line from about five yards out, dragging a couple of tacklers with him. Neville Nankivell booted the convert.

Saracens hit back with an easy penalty goal by Hal Rowan, then went ahead 8-5 on a try (a touchdown) by centre Brian Cowan and convert by Rowan just before the half-time whistle blew.

Nankivell tied it up 8-8 on a penalty goal early in the second half from about 10 yards out, then the game saw-sawed with both sides unable to go over when they advanced to within yards of the goal-line. Varsity's John Brebner cleared brilliantly in defence with long, spiralling punts into touch.

Saracens cracked the tight Varsity defence near the end of the game on a backline try by Cowan, converted by Rowan, and a short plunge over the line by Derick Cheshire from a loose scrum a yard or so out. Varsity fought back but couldn't score.

It was the Blues' first exhibition in otherwise Saracens already had played three exhibition matches and had been training for about six weeks. Most Varsity players have only been at it a week or so and the Blues are still not at full strength.

The Baby Blues, weakened by minor injuries suffered at practice last week, were outplayed 36-0 by a fast-moving Bank of Commerce team in the Toronto Seaway League. Again it was condition that told the tale as the bank squad had been out in training many more weeks than the university players.

Short Staffed Soccerites Try For 8th In A Row

Practices are already in full swing for the 1959-60 version of the University of Toronto Soccer Blues. Coach Tom Duncan, back for a third season, is confident that his Senior Blues can win their eighth successive intercollegiate title, but is worried over the small number of try-outs who have shown up for Baby Blues' practices.

Over half of the Senior squad are back in uniform. Veteran captain Ron Williams has graduated along with goalie Vello Soots, leading goal scorer Bill Webb and star half-back Norm Shepherd. Although the departure of these players will be felt, a reshuffling of the returning team will plug many of the gaps.

Few new faces will be seen in the forward line with Jim Duncan, Roger Perez, Stewart Bell and Brian Michie back for another year. Speedy Eddy Csongradi will be back after a year's enforced absence, and newcomer Luis Mahanovich, a star this summer in the new International League seems likely to make his presence felt.

The intermediate team picture is not so rosy. Graduation and academic troubles have left only one of last year's Baby Blue defence, and although the forward wall was more fortunate, the surprising lack of candidates who have turned out so far leaves the squad short of replacements.

It stalwart Doug Taylor makes the Senior team, and there is a good chance that he may, Coach Duncan has to fashion an entire new Baby Blue defence from the few freshmen. The coaching staff would be pleased to see many more faces, any one who is interested should report to Coach Duncan or team manager Doug Jardine on the Front Campus after 4.30 any night this week. So far the squad is woefully short of defence and goalkeepers but all shapes and sizes of players are welcome.

THE GREAT PASSING ARM of Mustangs' Frank Cosentino (62) was more than hampered at the Stadium Friday night as ends Doug Baird (54) and Walt Sopinka charge in to throw him for a loss. Watching from a supine position is Meco Poliziani (93).

VSP Hoshikiw

Why I Came Back To Christianity

"Is there a satisfying religion for the modern educated man?" Lin Yutang, famous Chinese philosopher who once wrote "Why I Am A Pagan" recently startled his millions of followers by returning to Christianity. In October Reader's Digest he explains why he has "come home again", back to the only religion which establishes a personal relationship with God. Get Reader's Digest today: 35 articles of lasting interest.

Students' HANDBOOK

now at
S.A.C. Office
15c EACH

AUDITIONS

for Hart House Production of a FRENCH PLAY

To be presented by U.C.'s Cercle Français

MON., SEPT. 28 — 4 P.M. — RM. 51 - U.C.

Hart House

GLEE CLUB AUDITIONS: In the Music Room

NEW Members

Today and tomorrow, September 28, 29 — 5-6.30 p.m.

OLD Members

Tomorrow — September 29th — 7-9.30 p.m.

HART HOUSE TABLE TENNIS CLUB

First Meeting — Wednesday, September 30th

7 p.m. in the Fencing Room

P.T. Credits will be given — Running Shoes must be worn

*Smart Clothes Bring Out
The Best In People!*

SAM LEBO CAN HELP YOU LOOK SHARP!

We are featuring the smart new Continental influence, and the traditional favourite, the Ivy League in our newly enlarged Clothing Department.

The newest of the new, Boat-Neck sweaters, and Bulky Knit Cardigans, Banlon and Or-lon Jerseys in the latest shades.

Paisley Prints and Neat Patterns in button down collar sport shirts.

Ivy League dress shirts in checks, stripes, and plains.

SAM LEBO LIMITED

59 BLOOR ST. WEST (at Bay)

Open Friday Nights Till 9 p.m.

REMEMBER YOUR A.T.L. CARD ENTITLES YOU
TO A 10% DISCOUNT

"OUR BEST ADS ARE WORN — NOT PRINTED"

Christian Cliche Examined As Varsity Services Open

The congregation at this year's first All-University Church Service in Hart House yesterday heard a liberal American Presbyterian dissect what he suggested is one of the commonest Christian cliches.

"Repetition dulls meaning," said Dr. Theodore Gill, president of the Presbyterian San Francisco, Calif., Theological Seminary. He searched for the meaning of that favorite evangelical sentence "Jesus saves."

Dr. Gill said salvation is not dependent on acceptance of a certain view of exactly what happened about 2,000 years ago. This, he added, is a mystery the Church itself has never been able to agree on and there was evidently uncertainty on this score even in the mind of the learned St. Paul.

Those who would make salvation "a procedural question", he said, talk nonsense. Salvation is a question of who and what, not how, he said.

In Christ, he said, we know God forgiving us—a God is "all for us".

Those who say "Jesus saves", Dr. Gill continued, often have their finger on the wrong foe from whom we are being saved. They think it is the Devil, Satan or the world.

Christ, Dr. Gill said, saves one from oneself, from "ruinous remorse and sterile self-recrimination. God "for Whom history is going to come out somewhere" saves us from "anybody who might convince us that life is but a walking shadow."

Christ, he continued, saves us from learned, informed, safe, smug dullness. Since God survives men's mistakes and since He under-grades the Church, Dr. Gill said, Christians can afford to improvise, experiment and create.

Jesus also saves us, he said, from simple conformity. Local conventions are not touchstones of Christian morality, he added.

"Jesus did a hatchet job on the good people—the Pharisees—" he said.

Dr. Gill was editor of the liberal weekly Christian Century before taking his present post.

All-University Services are held periodically through the school year in the Hart House

Great Hall and follow the ceremonies of various denominations. Yesterday's service was non-denominational.

Next All-University Service will be a Roman Catholic Solemn Mass with sermon Nov. 8 under the auspices of St. Michael's College.

Strike May Hit Expansion Plan

There's a possibility the American steel strike—now in its 10th week—may effect U of T's expansion program.

One of the men in charge of the current phase of the program —Forsey Page of the architectural firm Page and Steele—said Friday the strike threatens to halt work on the construction of the $7,000,000 engineering building.

Mr. Page, architect for the building, said the Applied Science and Engineering project, begun last June, has now reached the stage in construction where steel is needed.

"If we don't get it in a month we will have to shut down," he said.

Mr. Page said the engineering building requires 1,300 tons of structural steel in shapes larger than any rolled in Canada. Only about 300 tons are available, he added.

"If we had to close down for a month this would have an accumulative effect of two or three months, and would delay the opening, now scheduled for the fall of 1960," the architect said.

A University of Toronto spokesman said a delay in the building's completion would upset present plans for reassignment of classroom and building space during the 1960-61 session.

Over 1,900 engineers are presently enrolled in the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering, and pains call for them to take most of their classes during 1960-1 session in the new building.

The university spokesman said the contractors, Foundation Co. of Ontario Ltd., had changed its work schedules to concentrate on concrete, "but they must have steel in January. If they don't get it until February or March the building won't be ready for 1960."

THE PERFECT ONE COLOUR
LOOK IS NOW YOURS!

Kitten

solves
the match
problem!

No "just-off" colours but guaranteed colour harmony! So, for tea at the Dean's or cokes at the corner it's the new Kitten matching skirt and sweater in heather-mix lambswool soft as a handful of Scottish mist . . . in subtly muted colours.

THE SWEATER: Wing-neck, bracelet-sleeved pullover, sizes 34 to 40, price $10.95.

THE SKIRT: slim and half-lined, sizes 8 to 20, price $17.95.

Look for the name Kitten

GUARANTEED
TO MATCH

BUY FLOWERS
for all occasions at the
PARK PLAZA FLORISTS
10 AVENUE ROAD
WA. 3-6361
10% DISCOUNT TO
STUDENTS AND STAFF

MEN!
Want to Sing?
AUDITION
for the
HART HOUSE
GLEE CLUB

New Members:
September 28 - 29
5.00 - 6.30 p.m.

Old Members:
September 29
7.00 - 9.30 p.m.

Spring Concert
Michigan State

Beauties Give Out The Pasteboards

Free Burlesque Passes

The first stage of an experiment by a College Street burlesque theatre to determine whether U of T males are interested in that kind of entertainment seems to have been a rousing success.

Men leaving classes between 3 and 5 p.m. yesterday were handed free tickets to the Lux Theatre, 362 College St., by nine comely girls on various parts of the campus.

Two thousand tickets, which are not valid Fridays, Saturdays or holidays, were handed out. An official of the agency distributing the tickets said, the girls could have given away more had they had them.

Ray Lux, owner of theatre, said he expected only about 1,000 of the tickets would be taken.

The Lux Theatre presents two shows an evening. Each includes a two-hour movie and a one-hour stage show.

The stage show includes two or three exotic dancers—strippers—and two or three other vaudeville-type acts. Mr. Lux said, "Some customers come for the acts; some customers come for the girls," he said.

The girls distributing the tickets are models working for a Toronto advertising agency. They do not appear in the Lux show.

An official of the agency said the ticket-distribution experiment was tried last year with men giving out the tickets. Student response was not nearly as good as this year, he said.

He said student reception of the tickets would be judged from the number of them turned in at the box office. If reception is good enough, he said, the stunt may be tried again in a few months.

One of the girls handing out the tickets—a tall, pretty blonde—said only one boy had refused a ticket. "I felt like asking him what was the matter with him."

With most of the boys, she said, she at first noted the lack of enthusiasm usual when she hands out free advertising. "When they saw what it was, they looked happier," she said.

She stressed that she was not associated with the stage show. "I wouldn't even go to the place," she said. "But maybe I should now—just out of curiosity."

THE VARSITY

Vol. LXXIX — No. 4

Wednesday, September 30th, 1959

Labels PC Club "Slavish" Newfoundland VP Resigns

A second Progressive Conservative club vice-president announced his resignation last night.

Ed Roberts (III Vic), the PC's only Newfoundland member and second vice-president of the club executive, said he was resigning because "John Diefenbaker has betrayed Newfoundland". Roberts is also Acting News Editor of The Varsity.

Roberts' resignation was the second in two days for the PC executive. Doug Peppiatt (III Trin.) sixth vice-president, resigned Sunday because "the club has lately become too slavish a follower of the party line as it is handed down from Ottawa or Queen's Park".

Peppiatt has remained a member of the Conservative party, but Roberts last night said "I have not decided upon my political future. I hope, however, to actively participate in politics this year". In his letter of resignation, Roberts said: "The events of recent days, and of recent months, leave me no other alternative, both as a Newfoundland and as a Canadian" than to resign.

"The most important of these events is the federal government's attitude towards, and its handling of, the Newfoundland situation," he said. "I can never, and I will never, accept a policy which can do nothing but harm to the Canadian confederation and to my native province."

Roberts also said: "The club ... seems to slavishly mouth the gospel according to the Right Honourable John George Diefenbaker just as a matter of principle".

Dave Crane, PC club president, last night said: "The decision of the club to support the stand taken by the federal government was reached only after a most careful examination of all sides of the question". "The issue was discussed at great length, and all sides of the question were brought up. Only after everyone was satisfied that they had had a chance to express their opinions was a vote taken. The majority decision was of course the decision accepted by the club."

Crane said club policy in the past has often differed with provincial or federal policy.

"For example, two years ago this club, when it formed the government in the Model Parliament, recognized Red China. Three years ago we differed with the federal party on the issue of Speer. Our labor policy in last year's Model Parliament was again different from provincial policy."

"The (federal) government feels it has a special responsibility to improve the economic position of all the Maritime provinces, long neglected by the Liberal government", Crane said.

SMC Men Retain Table For Student Top Brass

The St. Michael's College Men's Council last night decided to retain head-table seating for student leaders in the SMC men's dining hall despite protests that the practice is undemocratic and medieval.

Jordan Sullivan, president of the council, said the table is deliberately avoided by members of the council because of such a feeling. Rev. J. G. Poupore, staff advisor said the special table should be continued as recognition of the responsibility of student office.

Peter Dembski, council vice-president, said: "Students feel that the elected representatives are isolating themselves from the students and enjoying special privileges." The head table is served while others have cafeteria service.

Council decided to encourage use of the head table for out-of-college guests and SMC non-student students.

At an SMC Students' Administrative Council meeting earlier in the evening, a motion to create separate portfolios for SMC's two U of T SAC representatives was tabled for two weeks.

SMC's men's and women's vice-presidents now double at U of T SAC representatives. The move, if approved by the St. Mike's Council, would require a 55-per-cent favorable vote in a special student referendum, because it would involve a change in the SMC SAC constitution.

The motion was made by Dembski despite a protest by chairman John Pierce that it would bog down SAC proceedings.

The council appointed Sullivan and Dorothy Szymko, senior women's vice-president as provisional treasurers. The council has lacked a treasurer since May because the treasurer-elect failed his year.

FLYING LEGS will greet sports fans and fortunately they won't all belong to football players. Above are the new cheerleaders who will cartwheel around the sidelines at Varsity games this year. A couple of males are holding up two of those girls, but who'll be watching them? VSP by Shaw

Best "Outstanding"

CHICAGO, ILL., Sept. 29—Dr. Charles H. Best, co-discoverer of insulin and head of the U of T physiology department, was awarded an honorary doctor of science degree today by Northwestern University.

He is one of eight scientists whom the university designated as making outstanding contributions in their various fields. The award was made at a convocation commemorating the 100th anniversary of the university's medical school.

DANCING

Every Wed., Fri. and Sat.

THE AUDITORIUM

Trinity's Dance Hall at Distinction
888 YONGE STREET, Above Bloor

Doug Kemp and His Orchestra

WA. 1-9701

HILLEL

Sunday Eve, October 4, 8.30 p.m.

SOCIAL and GET-ACQUAINTED EVENING

Refreshments

Register Now For—

- Elementary and Intermediate Hebrew
- Folk Dancing with Noga Kaplansky
- "Jewish Ethics and Moral Philosophy" with Dr. Kamerling
- Music with Judy Leve

INFORMAL DANCE

IMMEDIATELY

after the game

FRIDAY

VARSITY ARENA — 50c Per Person

• STAG OR DRAG •

Tickets for sale at the Arena after the game

EATON'S

Check into Class

in New Fall Separates

Still going strong, on or off the campus, classic separates in black and white Houndstooth checks. Softly pleated wool skirt and matching vest are teamed with a white "Terylene" Wash'n'Wear blouse featuring the new emphasis on sleeves... fuller and swirled into tiny pleats. Sizes 10 to 16.

Skirt, each 12.95 Vest, each 8.95
Blouse, each 14.95

PHONE UN. 1-5111, COLLEGE TOGGERY SHOP
EATON'S MAIN STORE—FOURTH FLOOR, Dept. 246

Students Bear Cross To Martyr's Shrine

MIDLAND, Ont. (CUP)—Eight members of the League of Christ the King—a University of Toronto Roman Catholic action group — completed a 98-mile pilgrimage last week.

Destination of the pilgrimage, which left Toronto Sept. 13, was the well-known Martyr's Shrine here.

Organized by Chris Wilson, a former St. Michael's College student, the 98-mile walk was highlighted by the carrying of an 80 lb. Cross during the last 10 miles.

The pilgrimage, which has been made for the last two years, has now become a regular annual event, a spokesman for the group said.

A girl who slaps her sweetheart may not want to hurt his feelings as much as she wants to stop them.

here—

Here and Now announcements are printed without charge. One entry will be printed for regular meetings and two for special events. Please check The Varsity publishing schedule before submitting Here and Now items.

TODAY

1 p.m.—A VCF Engineering group will meet in room 2065, Wallberg building.

8-10 p.m.—Banff-Lake Louise staff will meet in the Wymilwood Music Room to select a committee for the year.

FRIDAY

8 p.m.—The Ukrainian Students' Club plans an annual Freshman Dance in the UC Women's Union, 79 St. George St.

SUNDAY

11 a.m.—The Presbyterian Fellowship will sponsor a church service in Knox College Chapel, with the Rev. Donald McKilligan, B.D., as speaker.

-and now

LUX THEATRE

362 COLLEGE ST.

BURLESQUE ON STAGE

DIANNE McCRAE

Exotic Star

CORAL

Exotic Beauty

NORMA JEAN

Twists and Twirls

PAT DOYLE

Irish Comedy

KATIE MURTAGH

Canada's Sophie Tucker

ON SCREEN

WILL SUCCESS SPOIL

ROCK HUNTER?

With Jayne Mansfield

2 Complete Stage & Screen

Shows Nightly

2 Saturday Matinees continuous from 11.00 a.m.

BUY and SAVE

S. A. C.

BOOK EXCHANGE

119 ST. GEORGE ST. (south of Bloor)

Special Attention — 25% Discount

ON ALL JEWELLERY PURCHASES

Including: Watches, Diamonds, Silverware, Lighters, Wallets, Pens, and Pencils, Radios, Clocks, Costume Jewellery etc. etc. You must have your A.T.L. card when making a purchase.

SHEFFIELD JEWELLERS

DIAMOND MERCHANTS

323 YONGE ST. (5 doors above Dundas)

TEL. EM. 6-0977

TRAIN FOR THE BEST OF TWO WORLDS

Develop your leadership ability, acquire new technical skills, benefit financially and continue your university courses by enrolling in the tri-service Regular Officer Training Plan (ROTP). It provides for:

- university tuition fees paid by the Department of National Defence
- allowances for board and room, books and instruments
- a monthly salary
- free medical and dental care
- and a career in the Canadian Army

Then, on graduating, you will have not only your chosen professional training, but also the Queen's Commission as a career officer in the Canadian Army with the prestige and many personal advantages it brings.

A LIMITED NUMBER OF CANADIAN ARMY VACANCIES IN THESE ROTP "UNIVERSITY QUOTAS" ARE STILL AVAILABLE.

If you want the best of both worlds, find out what this plan can offer you today. For further particulars, contact your University Support Officer (Army):

CAPT. V. F. GEORGE

119 St. George Street

EM. 6-8341 — Local 222

Perinbam Leaves WUSC For UN

Lewis Perinbam today left his post as General Secretary of World University Service of Canada, a position which he has held for the past six years.

Mr. Perinbam resigned to join the Secretariat of the Canadian National Commission for UNESCO as a senior officer with special responsibility for program promotion and development.

Born in the Federation of Malaya, Mr. Perinbam studied at the University of Glasgow, Scotland, and served for three years in the Indian High Commission in London, England. He joined the staff of the British Committee of World University Service in 1951, and in 1953, he came to Canada at the invitation of World University Service of Canada to be its General Secretary, and to re-organize its structure and program.

During his term of office, Mr. Perinbam represented WUSC at meetings of the WUS International General Assembly in Turkey, England, India, the Netherlands and Canada. He was for three years a Vice-Chairman of the National Committee of F.R.O.S., and at present is an alternate member representing WUSC on the Canadian National Commission for UNESCO and the Executive Committee of the Canadian Committee for the World Refugee Year. For some time his services were made available by WUSC to UNESCO, New York. He has participated in numerous radio and TV interviews, and has appeared on various CBC programs, including "Citizen's Forum" and "By-Line". Before relinquishing his post, Mr. Perinbam will complete the arrangements for the 1959 WUSC Seminar in the West Indies. He will be a member of the Canadian Delegation to the WUS General Assembly in Nigeria next July. No successor has been announced by WUSC officers.

Loyola Gets Co-Eds, Old Tradition Dead

MONTREAL, Sept. 29, (CUP)—Breaking 60 years of tradition, Loyola College has accepted women for "co-instruction." Two female students have registered in the engineering course.

One of the women, Loretta Mahoney, said she came to Loyola because she wanted "a well-rounded education with a Catholic philosophy."

"For me," she went on, "Arts is all culture. I can get culture outside by reading good books and going to symphony concerts."

The second woman admitted, Gabrielle Paul, came because she wanted "to get my money's worth."

Both women suggested there is prejudice against women in the field of science. Miss Paul said she believed women made better scientists than men, and pointed out that Marie Curie, the discoverer of radium, is the only person ever to have twice won the Nobel Prize for science.

Anyone calling the new freshmen "co-eds" had better watch themselves. The word is officially on the banned list at Loyola.

Rochester Stacks Shut To Students

ROCHESTER, Sept. 29 (CUP) University of Toronto students aren't the only ones who must suffer with the closed stack library system.

The Rush Rhees Library at the University of Rochester has this year found it necessary to close its stacks.

In 1955 they opened their stack to all members of the University community, but there was a rapid rise in the number of persons not connected with the University entering the stack without permission.

The director of Libraries, John R. Russell, said that there had been an increase in the number of books withdrawn without being charged. "Other books have been either temporarily or permanently lost because false signatures have been used," he continued.

Students will have their own identification cards. Stack permits for members of the University community who do not own or who forget these cards are issued by the circulation department.

The University of Toronto Libraries have an additional restriction. First and second year students are not admitted to the stacks. They can withdraw books only through the circulation desk.

MacDonald To Speak

Donald MacDonald, leader of the provincial CCF party, will speak to the University of Toronto CCF club tomorrow at the club's opening meeting.

In the last provincial election the CCF leader was especially noted for his criticism of the provincial government's pipeline policy and land transactions.

He will speak on the pending formation of the new CCF-Labor party. A question-and-answer period will follow. The talk will be held in Room 6 of University College at 4:15 p.m.

Former Law Professor Warned Nazi Menace

Prof. Frederick Clyde Auld U of T law professor from 1936 to 1958, died Sunday at his home on Poplar Plains Crescent.

A former treasurer of the Canadian Association for Adult Education and vice-president of the Labor Research Council, he was for many years on the executive of the Workers' Educational Association.

He edited a 30-volume digest of Canadian case law and contributed articles to the Canadian Bar Review, the American Bar Association Journal and the Encyclopedia of Canada.

In 1943 he said Nazi and totalitarian philosophies were being propagated in many Canadian education centres and brought strong denials from many university officials.

Born at Charlottetown, P.E.I., he graduated from McGill and Oxford Universities and practiced law in Charlottetown and England.

He joined a Toronto law firm in 1924 and was appointed associate professor of Roman Law and Jurisprudence at U of T in 1924 and professor in 1936.

He served with the 10th Canadian Siege Battery in Belgium and France during the First World War.

His wife, a son and three daughters survive.

MIDTOWN BOOK SHOP

117 HARBORD STREET
(2 Blocks West of Spadina)

RUSSIAN GRAMMAR by N. Potapova (2 vol.) ea. 1.50

RUSS-ENGL. DICTIONARY by Smirnilsky ..... 7.00

ENGL.-RUSS. DICTIONARY by Mueller ..... 5.00

RUSS-ENGL. PHRASE DICTIONARY ..... 3.00

A Wide Selection of Books in Russian, including Technical Books in Russian Classics.

New Text-Books

IN ENGLISH FROM U.S.S.R. GENERAL CHEMISTRY by N. Glinka (1st year University) ..... 4.95

THE ATOMIC NUCLEUS by M. Korschinsky (Complete course from Discovery of Radio-Activity to Hydrogen Fusion Power) ..... 1.50

FIRST TIME IN ENGLISH! Most Distinguished Medical Text-Book Ever Offered!

Text-Books of Physiology

by Bykov, Vladimirov, Drlov, Kunradi, and Slenim

The Complete Science of Physiology. Exhaustive Work of 73 Chapters, Covering Entire Fields of Research in Functions of Human Body.

• Main Functions • Blood and Lymph • Circulation • Respiration • Digestion • Vitamins • Nutrition • Energy • Sex • Nervous System • Hearing • And Many Others
Wonderfully Illustrated, Well Printed and Bound

Price $7.25

10% DISCOUNT FOR STUDENTS

There's Something NEW

— AT —

Newman Club

89 ST. GEORGE STREET

THE CATHOLIC STUDENTS' CLUB

(Come to the Dance on Sunday)

HART HOUSE THEATRE

Student Subscriptions

$3.00 for the Four Productions

Hart House Theatre offers a Student Subscription at $3.00 for the four All-University productions directed by Robert Gill. The student rate will be $1.00 for a single performance. Subscribers are assured of the same seats and performance evenings for the entire season. Two subscriptions only on each A.T.L. card.

1959-60 SEASON

THE LITTLE FOXES by Lillian Hellman

Saturday, October 24th to Saturday, October 31st

THE SIMPLETON OF THE UNEXPECTED ISLES by George Bernard Shaw

Saturday, November 28th to Saturday, December 5th

THE GLASS MENAGERIE by Tennessee Williams

Saturday, January 23rd to Saturday, January 30th

THE IMPORTANCE OF BEING ERNEST by Oscar Wilde

Saturday, February 27th to Saturday, March 5th

Less than 40% of the total seats were sold by subscription before opening.

• AVOID DISAPPOINTMENT AND BOOK EARLY •

Box Office now open 10.00 a.m. to 6.00 p.m. — WA. 3-5244

University College

Installation

of

Moffat St. Andrew Woodside

As Principal

Monday, October 5, at 8:00 p.m.

in

Convocation Hall

Staff and students are cordially invited to attend

comment

"Better a lump in the throat than two in the head," said the Bear.

"Have a stick of gum, I invented it yesterday."

—from Pogo

Printed elsewhere on this page is a letter urging that a keen awareness of Soviet aims of world conquest not be dimmed by the quaint and often likeable impression made by Nikita Khrushchov on his recent tour of the United States.

This editorial takes issue, not with the author of this letter, but with the general attitude characterized by this kind of plea.

Specifically, the writer reminds us of "Communist murder"; implicitly, he urges that the mailed hand of the West be kept in trim, ready, almost anxious, to fall and destroy our enemy.

The time is past when we can afford these sentiments. They are the sentiments that terrified George Orwell between the great wars of the twentieth century.

He saw his fears fulfilled as countless millions of human happinesses were wiped out in the madness of 1939-45.

We believe mankind is up against it now. The East and West may stand universes apart in philosophy; the Soviets may indeed be bent on spreading their way of life to blanket the planet.

But more than ways of life are at stake now. The fate of the race hangs in the balance and we are faced now not only with the prospect of fighting and death. In the shadow of the final bombs, we are faced with the possibility of the planet without human life.

We believe, therefore, that the impression Premier Khrushchov made on us is something to be cherished rather than dismissed out of hand as though a fake.

There is not room here to refute one by one the charges laid against the Soviets. Nor do we mean to suggest that their crimes can be excused.

But we do suggest that the atrocities of the Red regime, the crushing of the Hungarian Revolution for example, are explicable in terms of the very same sentiments that prompt us to an ultra-defensive attitude, the attitude characteristic of a pre-war period.

Can we not understand that the Soviets acted to preserve a "way of life" when they marched into Hungary?

Surely it was a deplorable deed, a ghastly thing, as the destruction of one human life or a million must always be.

We cannot feel, therefore, that a frame of mind that would bring to issue the fate of man in the name of "ways of life," Democratic or Communist, is useful.

Rather, with due concern for defence, we should sieze on the human signs of warmth and good will in a man like Khrushchov and forge around this the means of preserving the race.

MN

best friends and severest critics

from our faithful readers

Grrrr . . . .

As Khrushchev walks about the Iowa cornfields, his agents are busy pushing the aims of their ideology into every segment of our system.

One doesn't have to be a student of Marxism-Leninism to realize that the aims of Communism are the same today as they were twenty years ago. While the foreign policy of the Kremlin may change, its philosophy remains unchanged. World Communism, the establishment of a Communist world government is still the primary aim of this ideology and in its pursuit of this end it is bounded by no moral regulations. Every act that contributes to the Communist Conquest is a peaceful act. When the Chinese Communists murder millions it is an act of peace. When the Russian tanks rolled into Budapest to butcher and destroy, it was a glorious peace. Peace is wonderful and within their framework of ideology, whatever aids in their expansion is peaceful and good.

As their leader rides about the U.S., talking peace and goodwill, his main thoughts are still centered on the eventual Communization (destruction) of our way of life. The friendly chap with the San Francisco housewife, the giving of his watch to a steelworker, are all designed at creating an illusion in the people at large that the Communists aren't as bad as they are painted. If it will be easier to further the advance of his system by losing an argument, by pretending to be shocked at our low morals, claiming that theirs are higher, then he will do it even if mentioning the name of God (as he did on his tour) will advance his cause, he will not hesitate. As Saint Paul once said, "even the Devil can quote Holy Scripture". Thus while the smiling peasant wobbles about America, the hearts and minds of many will be softened, all because they failed to grasp or see the true face behind the mask.

E. Christy, SMC

years is neither showing much initiative nor can it be labelled a "tremendous" idea. The fact is that today both Russia and America possess sufficient bombs to completely annihilate our earth. Therefore, the only possible course of action which we in Canada can take is to press our allies for a permanent halt to all further tests, whether or not the Russians begin testing again.

Surely, though, this is not Canada's greatest concern today. The U.S. wants to plant nuclear weapons on Canadian soil. Instead of condemning this as an utterly useless extension of U.S. military strength, Mr. Pearson merely worries about who is going to press the mysterious button. This is a nice time to be worrying about Canadian autonomy.

And in case the editor missed this in our newspapers, Mr. Pearson's tremendous initiative did not reach quite far enough to challenge Canada's decision—this is, Mr. Diefenbaker's decision—to vote against the admission of China to the U.N. Presumably one must believe that following the U.S. line at New York is somehow not forfeiting Canadian autonomy.

Jerry Caplan (IV History)

Pacifism . . . .

Dear Sir:

Your editorial in the first issue represents just the kind of thinking that could land us all in another war. Too many people, including Lester Pearson, seem to think that naivete can be a substitute for pacifism.

You and Lester Pearson advocate a two-year nuclear test suspension by the West, whether or not the Russians go along with it. What would happen if the Russians did stop? More likely than not, the West would feel bound not to resume. Under such conditions, it would probably not be long before the powers agreed to complete nuclear disarmament.

This is the worst thing that could happen. Without the nuclear deterrent that has preserved a peaceful balance of terror since 1948, we would go back to the era of conventional weapons and, inevitably, to conventional wars. Only the fear of extinction will ever persuade the race to give up its beloved hatreds, its "national interests", its innate proclivity to scrap.

We now have a chance for total disarmament. Your editorial calls on us to set an example for the Russians. The only acceptable way of doing this is to throw away all our weapons, of all types, and publicly proclaim we have no intention of fighting back.

D. Jackson (Arts)

THE VARSITY

FOUNDED 1880

Published by
The Students' Administrative Council
of the University of Toronto

Toronto 5, Canada

Member Canadian University Press

Editorial and News Office

Basement, SAC Building — WA. 3-8742, WA. 3-8113

Business and Advertising Manager

E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221

Editor-In-Chief

Acting Managing Editors

Acting News Editor

Acting CUP Editor

Acting Photo Editor

Acting Sports Editor

Acting AM&D Editor

Acting Features Editor

Acting Publicity Editor

TODAY'S ISSUE: From Main: Bonnie Kennedy, Jo Perry, Mary-Anne Kello, John McGoey, Bob McGhee, Andy Pozniak, Terry Bourke, Phil Nicholas, David Norman Halton, Terry Smyth, Dave E. a glasshouse of the "breakneck" school of journalism, two electricians, four candles and one coal oil lampion.

Sam Aizenstat

Susie Breslin, Harvey Shepherd

Ed Roberts

Alan Walker

Andrew Stabins

Dave Griner

Elmo Ciprietti

Dave Stein

Jayne Nesbitt

Make Mad The Guilty"

Notes From The Underground

by Sam Ajzenstat

we can give only a sign,
our crime was too big for iation. We are not satis-restoration of money by ere must be acts of sac-ople!"

A few years ago when the resurgence of war movies began and television was first occupied with films like "War in the Air" and "Victory at Sea" I remember thinking, along with many others, that "we were being prepared for war." This opinion was in line with the view that was some kind of outgrowth of normal human nature and that therefore when a war becomes economically and politically "necessary" all that is needed to make it emotionally necessary as well is a recitation of the glory and noble sacrifice of old campaigns.

This simple-minded view was satisfactory as long as I believed that people enjoyed destruction and only needed to be reminded of the thrill of combat to crave it all over again. But I no longer believe this; I believe now that the emergence of a desire to kill and to risk being killed is highly abnormal, is always present in war and demands an emotional context that cannot be accounted for by any natural impulses but forces us on the contrary to search for deeply unnatural motivations. What then is the emotional context, over and above the political and economic contexts, in which such deeply unnatural tendencies emerge? If I am correct in assuming that to the normal individual nothing is more odious than killing and nothing more frightening than the thought of being killed, what are the tremendous forces that must be brought to bear in order to make man willing, often anxious, to risk both at once?

While I was thinking about these things I noticed that strangely enough film critics and other commentators were regarding these movies not at all as war movies but on the contrary as anti-war movies. The reason for this was that superficially these films seemed to be permeated with a sense of futility and horror; the carnage was general and seemed to be falling alike on the good guys as well as the bad. What the critics failed to notice was something that no doubt passed into the unconscious awareness of everyone who saw the movies: simply that beneath the surface futility the films were built on an underlying literary logic of poetic justice. In other words these films were written in such a way that no matter how much death and destruction they portrayed, each death and each murder was on close analysis a sacrifice for some sin committed earlier in the film. In spite of all the talk about futility and madness, there was not a single gratuitous death in any of these movies; everyone who died, or killed, did so as part of a presumably inexorable logic of guilt and expiation. Three examples will help to show what I mean:

1. The Bridge on the River Kwai.

At the conclusion of this movie, the doctor stands over the wreckage, human and otherwise, and mumbles, "madness, madness." Although this was generally taken to be the message of the movie, it was really a last ironic and tragic failure to understand the message, which was actually the inevitability and logic of each death. Everyone in the movie has a sin to expiate: William Holden's sin is his sarcastic failure to make a commitment; Alec Guinness' sin is the narrow and crass tradition-bound legalism with which he pursues his command; the young Canadian soldier's sin is his inability to kill another man in a moment of extreme peril; Sessue Hayakawa's sin is his administration of the prison camp. Not only do all these people expiate their sins in the horrible concluding sequence, but even the bridge itself at the last moment pays for the sins of its various fathers.

2. The Young Lions.

Of the three main characters in this movie, Diestl, Ackerman and Whitacker, played respectively by Marlon Brando, Montgomery Clift, and Dean Martin, all have a sin to expiate. Diestl and in the book, though sentimentally, not in the movie, Ackerman, expiate their sins in the conventional manner; they are killed. Diestl because as a German he comes to take upon himself the horrors of the concentration camps. The interesting case in this movie is Whitacker. His sin is something like cowardice, but instead of expiating by his death, he introduces a new and very important theme into the war mythology: expiation by murder. When he shoots Diestl two birds achieve salvation with one stone.

3. From Here To Eternity.

Again three main protagonists, played by Montgomery Clift, Frank Sinatra, and Burt Lancaster. Under the name of Prewitz, the ubiquitous Mr. Clift once more plays the part of Ackerman this time with the drastic result that Ackerman was spared. Sinatra is much the same; we like him, we feel for him, but after he is dead it is hard to suppress the feeling that he was purposely asking for it, that he should have made an attempt to adjust. After these two cases of expiation by death, we find in Mr. Lancaster a case of expiation by a variant expiation by murder. His sin, by the way, was adultery.

These examples by no means paint a simple picture, but they do point out that recent "anti-war" propaganda is not as anti-war as it may appear to be on the surface. In these movies we are presented with a form of expiation and consequently necessary human activity with a meaning, a purpose and a logic of poetic justice.

New strategy to gather some of the implications of the p...

expiation significance of war. In general the man who feels a deep sense of guilt needs and desires two things; punishment and forgiveness. He wants simultaneously to be damned and to be saved. Now a moderate sense of one's own failings or even a profound sense of them is probably normal and it is possible to punish and forgive simultaneously without general carnage. The Catholic confessional, for example, is, as psychiatrists have often pointed out, a generally salutary way of dealing with the sense of guilt through the ritual punishment of penance and the ritual forgiveness of absolution.

But there seem to be times of deep distress, personal and national, when economic, political, and spiritual causes combine to swell the sense of guilt to abnormal proportions and to demand that combination of suicide and murder called war.

At these times both murder and suicide have a double aspect; that is, both are crimes, and both are punishments. Murder and Suicide As Crimes.

Strangely enough a deep sense of guilt does not simply make one long for punishment; it also makes one long to commit more crimes. But the sense of guilt and the desire to expiate punishment through a crime are not separate emotions; they are linked together through the common emotion of guilt. This is a fact that is often overlooked and which is made to be a reality by the worse for it instead of better. The desire to expiate demands that the guilt-ridden man do things he will have to expiate for. The need for punishment must fabricate flagrant occasions for punishment. This is why a sense of our own guilt makes us feel destructive and resentful as often as it makes us feel remorse. War simply provides an occasion for us to embark communally and with a deep sense of our identification with other sinful men on the two most horrible crimes of which we can conceive as the first step towards cleaning our guilt-laden souls. Or so I thought the word "simply" seems a bit out of place.

Murder and Suicide As Punishments.

It is obvious that suicide is a horrible self-punishment, but not as obvious how a man can punish himself by committing murder; or at least it is obvious only on the assumption that murder, far from being a normal human need, is the most odious act that man can conceive of and is itself almost suicidal in the extent to which it degrades and destroys the human personality who commits it. To this we must add the possibility that our own sense of guilt is extended or projected to the "enemy" so that we expiate for our sins not only by scourging ourselves but by simultaneously scourging "the enemies of the Lord" or what have you, external bearers of our own guilt.

I come finally to the present occasion for this column. It appears in the quotation that stands at the head of these remarks. The statement is by a German and was quoted last Friday in the Globe and Mail in an article by Rabbi Abraham Feinberg of the Holy Blossom Temple in Toronto, who has just returned from a trip to Germany.

What I have written is simply an attempt to explain why a great deal of the German contrition over the Second World War bothers me as much as pride would. The Rabbi explains that German contrition is at present expressing itself with a program of buildings and other public works built with German labour in foreign countries. But if we demand from the Germans too degrading a contrition, how long will the erection of buildings be enough to allay the tremendous burdens of guilt they are forcing themselves to bear?

The German people while they build up their country again after the war are experiencing a grave dissociation from their past history. Phrases like "national split personality" are almost as descriptive now as they were of the Weimar republic. The problem is this: Having engaged in probably the most ignoble and meaninglessly destructive wars in history, may not inordinate brooding on it awake in them the desire to engage, both as self-punishment and as expiation, in a war that is noble and whose destructiveness will be meaningful? And is not the fight against communism being represented to the German people as just such a fight? These thoughts disturb me because I think no war is noble and no destruction meaningful.

Germany is not a simple problem; neither to the Germans nor to anyone else. But to ask for a display of servile contrition from Germany can only make things worse; can only result as a matter of fact in precisely what it is meant to avert, an expiative show of arms, conventional if not nuclear, as a contrite offer to old enemies.

When Germans, or for that matter anyone else starts saying "there must be sacrifices by people I begin to have bad dreams. If the Germans seek forgiveness, and if being a human being and a Jew give me any authority to forgive, then I do so without asking for any sacrificial sign. Let us accept what the Germans would build for us and for themselves with only the stipulation that they do so in joy rather than in contrition.

Self-sacrifice can sometimes be more fearsome than self-indulgences.

UNIVERSITY BLAZERS
Custom Made
 Especially Priced for Students
$27.50
 Fine Flannel Worsted Trousers
$16.50
 Business Hours: 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.
 Monday through Saturday
 Suits Made to Measure
 Latest Styles and Design
PARNES Clothing Co.
 706 QUEEN STREET WEST
 EM. 6-2025
 Sample at S.A.C. Office

MEETING
BLUE and WHITE
REPS.
 Thursday, Oct. 1
 1.00 p.m.
 S.A.C. Office

CLASSIFIED ADS.
MALE STUDENT
 Bright room in private home —
 Delaware and Bloor. Call LE. 3-3279 after 5:30

LARGE ROOM & BOARD
 Close to subway for baby-sitting and light work Mrs. Buwalda, 22
 Roxborough. WA. 2-3203.

RIDE URGENTLY NEEDED
 From Oakwood - Eglinton vicinity arriving at Hart House from 8:15 a.m. to 9:15 a.m. Phone WA. 3-6611, Ext. 271.

MALE
 Board, laundry and room, to share in student's home. Phone Mrs. Pet-coff LE. 4-8264, 488 Clinton St.

LOST
 Brown zipper leather case with initials E.G.R., in Varsity Stadium.
 Call S.A.C. office, WA. 3-8221.

WANTED
 One amiable student to share an apartment with 2 others. Walking distance, kitchen, fully furnished.
 Jack Wayne, WA. 2-7962.

HOCKEY PLAYERS
 Woodbridge Dodgers require five Junior "B" calibre hockey players, under 20, August 1st, 1959. Phone RU. 3-7432, between 5 and 7 p.m. Transportation supplied.

Advance Subway Work Wreaks Campus Havoc

Preparations for the construction of Toronto's two new subways — the east-west Bloor route and the north-south University Ave. route — are already making their mark on the University of Toronto's campus.

The Toronto Transit Commission, which is building the $250,000,000 addition to the present Yonge St. subway system, has asked all utilities in Toronto to relocate any equipment which lies along the new lines.

Utilities affected, several of which have equipment on or near the U of T campus, include the Consumer's Gas Co., Bell Telephone, Dominion Electric Protection, which maintains burglar alarm systems, and the City of Toronto's sewer, water and hydro departments.

The Consumer's Gas Co. has already moved its pipelines running across University Ave.

The lines have been relocated so they now run across Queen's Park Crescent from in front of Flavelle House.

Only one U of T utility, the network of steam tunnels which honeycomb the campus, is actually affected by the subway project.

The section of the steam tunnel system which runs under Avenue Road and connects the Royal Ontario Museum to the Household Science Building will have to be replaced by a tunnel using another route.

The subway project, underway two months ago, is scheduled to be completed early in 1969.

Telegram's Tumpane To Speak At Debate

A well-known Toronto newspaper columnist will be honorary visitor at this year's first Hart House debate next week.

Frank Tumpane of The Telegram will hear debaters decide whether "Canadians suffer from moral hypocrisy".

J. A. Pierce (IV SMC) and C. L. Lee (II UC) will speak for the Ayes, while M. B. Zysman (II Law) and R. P. Kaplan (II Law) will speak for the Noes.

Neither team would disclose any of its arguments last night, but each side expressed confidence that Tumpane would support its stand and that when the House divided it would emerge victorious.

Mr. Tumpane, who writes a daily column, is well known for his willingness to take positive stands on controversial issues and while he has been accused of many things during his long career, he has never been charged with failing to be completely frank.

Speaker for the debate will be I. G. Scott, BA, who served as speaker for several of last year's debates.

The debate, to be held in HH's Debate Room, gets under way at 8 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 8.

FOR LAUGHS!
CLAP HANDS
 All New Satirical Revue
HART HOUSE THEATRE
 Nightly 8.30
 Saturday — 5.30 and 9.00
STUDENTS: HALF PRICE
 Wed., Thurs. & Sat. Matinee

You can give LIFE...

...GIVE BLOOD!

10-Piece Dance Band
 Music for all occasions supplied by Gord Staple's Orchestra, an experienced group of musicians with a repertoire of music to satisfy all tastes. For those who want the very best in music, please contact:
BOB BELL, BE. 3-2326

INTERCOLLEGIATE SQUASH
 There will be a meeting of the Squash Club on Thursday, October 1st, at 5 p.m. in the North Committee Room, Hart House. Anyone interested in trying out for the Intercollegiate Squash team, please be present.

U. of T. SAILING CLUB
 Intercollegiate Sailing Meeting
THURS. — OCT. 1 — HART HOUSE DEBATES ROOM
 — at 5 p.m. —
 Intercollegiate Trials this weekend, so if you are unable to attend, please call Robin Beamish, WA. 4-0501 before Saturday.

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS - WOMEN'S SWIM CLUB
 Open practices with coaching for all swimmers at U.T.S. Pool, Ontario College of Education, Monday and Wednesday—first practice tonight, 5:30—Speed, 6:30—Synchronized, 7:30—Diving. Bring your suit, cap, and towel.
 Team coaching for speed swimmers at U.T.S. Pool Thursday 5:30 to 7:00.
 Senior Synchronized swimmers report to L.M. Pool Tuesday 4:00 to 6:00.
 Preliminary Meet—Date to be announced.
 Intercollegiate Meet—November 20, 21, at Western. Varsity swimmers defending champions.
U. OF T. WOMEN'S GOLF TOURNAMENT
 St. Andrew's Golf Club—Friday October 9 — 2 p.m.
 Contact your athletic rep or Katherine Andrews, HU 5-4923.

Hart House

HART HOUSE TABLE TENNIS CLUB
 Those who have shown interest in Table Tennis are invited to attend the first OPEN MEETING tonight at 7 p.m. in the Fencing Room.
 P.T. Credits will be given — Running Shoes must be worn.

HART HOUSE ART GALLERY
 NOW SHOWING
 Exhibition selected from the Private Collections of Charles McFadden Sydney Fagan Irving Grossman
 (Open to women Wednesday from 12 noon to 8 p.m.)

B
&
W

FOOTBALL DANCE
 ● Hart House
 ● Saturday, October 3, 9 p.m.
 ● $2.50 per Couple
 ● Tickets — S.A.C. Office Only

Football! $2.50 Hockey!
Student Tickets
STUDENT TICKET SALE
 COUPON BOOKS admitting to the Student Section at Varsity Stadium and Varsity Arena (combined book) will be sold at the south door of Varsity Arena (off Philosopher's Walk) from 10.00 a.m. to 5.00 p.m. on Friday, October 2nd. The coupons admit owner to the Student Section on a "first come best seat" basis, the football section extending south from centre field and the hockey section including all the east side of the Arena. TICKETS ADMIT OWNERS TO FOLLOWING GAMES:

VARSITY STADIUM		VARSITY ARENA
Oct. 3 .....	McGILL	Nov. 27 .....	Laval
(Friday at 8.00 p.m.)		Nov. 30 .....	Michigan
Oct. 24 .....	QUEEN'S	Dec. 11 .....	U. of Montreal
Oct. 31 .....	WESTERN	Jan. 22 .....	McGill
		Feb. 6 .....	U. of Montreal
		Feb. 19 .....	Laval
		Feb. 26 .....	Queen's
		Mch. 4 .....	McGill

NOTE: Football books only may be purchased for $2.00. Hockey books will be sold separately for $1.00 after the close of the football season, so a saving of 50c is effected by purchasing the combined book.

MARRIED STUDENTS may purchase an additional book for their wives or husbands. GRADUATE STUDENTS in full time courses may purchase a student ticket upon presentation of a certificate of enrolment signed by an official of the School of Graduate Studies.

Bring your Identification Card. Tickets cannot be purchased without one.

STUDENT TICKETS ARE NOT TRANSFERABLE.

Hurt Shoulder Orphans Twin

Varsity Blues will be without linebacker Malcolm Bell when they meet McGill Redmen in the opening game of the 1959 Senior Intercollegiate football season Friday night at Varsity Stadium.

Bell suffered a shoulder separation in the first quarter of last Friday's exhibition game with the Western Mustangs. His spot at inside linebacker will be taken over by his brother Sandy, and as they are almost identical twins, McGill is not likely to notice the difference. Malcolm will be out for at least three weeks.

The only other injury sustained by the Blues was to Paul Burroughs who is suffering from a charley-horse. He is not expected to be hampered by it.

One of the most pleasant aspects of the game Friday was the consistency shown by Peter Potter when punting for the Blues. Seven kicks by Potter brought him an average of just over 39 yards per hoof, with his shortest kick 35 yards and the longest 45.

The emergence of Jim Murchie as a hard-running fullback in the Peter Joyce vein was a more than pleasant surprise to the Blues coaching staff. With such a capable replacement on hand, this will leave veteran Paul Burroughs free for more action at the corner linebacker spot where is the best in the league.

Notes—Varsity had 18 first downs in Friday night's game as compared to the 22 notched by Western . . . Bob Dunn only carried the ball twice offensively for the Blues, but netted 103 yards for his efforts . . . Varsity had 38 yards in penalties, Western none . . . Poliziani had 66 yards in 16 carries for Western . . . Burroughs 43 in 9 for Varsity . . . McGill are not expected to dress more than 26 players for Friday's game . . . injuries have seriously depleted their lineup . . . defensive tackle Mike Chykaliuk celebrates his 27th birthday on Thursday.

Heard at a service station:

Attendant: Your doctor is outside with a flat tire. What shall I do?

Service Station Owner: Diagnose it as inflation of the perimeter, and charge him accordingly.

Splash Splash

Tuesday Sept. 29 at 5:15 p.m. the Varsity water polo team starts practices for what looks like a great season.

Last year Varsity lost by only one point in a total point series. This year the outlook is much brighter.

The team practices as a team three times a week in the Hart House pool. Often the practices include a scrimmage with the best players in the world, the Hungarians, who provide the best means of learning through practice.

This is a great game to watch and a better one to play. The season ends Dec. 12 here in Toronto, which means a short schedule. Anyone who feels that they would like to play come out on Tuesday to the pool.

... and in this corner by pam hill

Well, no more wild and woolly Banff wine and whiskey parties (but there's a reunion Saturday night!). It's back to the social pressure of parents, colleges, and fraternities (? hmmm). But they were great, eh Sharon?

And back into condition! yow!

Athletic meetings are popping up all over the campus—University clubs, athletic associations, executives. So get keen this year, gals. Most of these sports don't require too much effort on your part, and it's more than worth your while—besides, the men love to get out and cheer for the co-ed football, baseball, etc. teams!

Firstly, intermural tennis. It's already under way. The college semi-finals are to be announced by Friday, so . . . get cracking and good luck.

Secondly, October 9th is the date of the interfaculty golf tourney. I noticed somebody handed in a handicap of 40 the other day!—So you really don't have to be too excellent! Just a team entered and you'll probably win.

Basketball is in a real hurry this year. The interfaculty tournament is to be completed—get that: completed!—before Christmas. Practices are starting Monday, so watch 'this har rag' for announcements.

Swimming, on the other hand, is slowing down. Due to the incompletion of the Women's Athletic Building (and it's a beauty!), the interfaculty meet won't be until after Christmas. But it'll be really terrific because it will be in the new pool, and also, practices are starting already—5:30 to-night at UTS.

For other odds 'n' ends, you're just going to have to watch your athletic notice boards—archery, baseball, field hockey, football, etc.

So get keen, gals! Add something to your faculty—and the campus—this year. None of this 'sophisticated sloppiness'. Let's see some action! (and let's get rid of these pressures, eh Sharon?!).

And by the by, the gals are giving a weak call for help, too. We're sinking (or is it sinking?!). Some Monday mornings, Sharon has labs, and I don't feel too good, so . . . we need a few "rite-typers". The male sports staff is very "pass-making" to us and we'd like to share the wealth. Drop by the office any time—no qualifications, no nothing. Just femininity!—eh, Gene?!

WHICH TWIN HAS THE SHOULDER SEPARATION? If you guessed the one on the left, you're wrong! On the right, is Malcolm Bell who was injured during Friday's game with Western. His brother Sandy, at left will fill his place at line backer for the McGill game.

Exhibition Opener To Test Rinkies As Baby Argos Perform Tonight

Another of University of Toronto's Intermediate Orphans (no league in which to play about in), roar into action tonight.

University of Toronto Intermediate Blues meet East York Argos in an 8 o'clock thriller at Varsity Stadium.

Diminutive Argos (which means little fellows) at the moment hold down a third place tie with Windsor in the ORFU Intermediate A League. Competing in a six team All-Ontario League, East York have won three out of six of their encounters.

Our hot off the press release carries little information about the baby Argos except that their coach is former Argo end Al Pfeiffer. Bay Blues, for years the training and proving ground for talent headed for the Senior Blues, are continuing with their policy of youthful clubs.

Coach John Sopinka's starting lineup carries very few veterans. Mike Innis (an understudy last season) is expected to get the nod at quarterback, with Don McGregor, and Harry Hall standing in for action.

The backfield boasts both size and speed. Sharing the halfback positions will be Bob Martiniuk, Mike King, Barry Rowland and Bob McMurtry (brother of senior Blues' John McMurtry). Bob House is slated to start at fullback.

Rinkies will not participate in any league games this year. Since the withdrawal of Queen's, Baby Blues will play two exhibition games against both Ryerson Rams (last year's league champions) and Western Mustangs.

Rev Up The Jag Jack Triple Carbs And All

By GENE GLISKY

On many occasions, the Varsity Sports department is visited by interesting and inspiring personages. A novel and highly unexpected type appeared last night, however, in the person of one Abner Steinberg, II Pol. Sc. and Economics, UC.

He introduced himself by the formidable title of "the only private professional Sports Car and Motor Cycle race promoter in Canada."

He is the past president of the Upper Canada Auto Club, an ex-competitive and at present social club, as well as the present president of the Edenvale Raceway (formerly Stayner Speedway), near Wasaga Beach.

The raceway consists of 1 1/4 miles of former bomber runway. It zigs and zags in the most fascinating manner, containing corners with the unlikely names "Brad's Bend", "Collins Corner", and the "Grey Mare".

Mr. Steinberg's proposal was direct and to the point.

He wishes to promote the first campus sports car race, as well as organize and sponsor a campus-wide sports car club. Towards this cause Abner donates at no cost, the raceway, communications equipment, ambulance service, marshalls, flag marshalls, safety scrutiny of all cars, and mechanics.

Besides the obvious goodies mentioned above, all members of the club will receive instructions from top professionals in the district, and will view movies of the best in European races.

Anyone entering a car, shall submit its performance records and be issued a suitable handicap, thus ensuring that driving skill alone will determine a winner.

A minimum of five entrants are needed to stage a race, but no maximum had been indicated.

Once the club is established, efforts will be made to provide a sedan race for students not fortunate enough in owning a real McCoy sports car. Foot races of course are covered elsewhere on this page.

This is an excellent opportunity for campus Stirling Mosses (and we don't mean in connection with breweries) to try their hand at driving their car as it is supposedly meant to be driven.

We might warn you that there is no official sanction by the athletic directorate for this sport, but those really interested contact BUD MARTIN at WA. 3-7896.

Stinker's Classic

The Senior and Intermediate trainers, taking a reclus from Howie Ringham's iron heel, tied 18-18 in the first game of seven game series for the coveted Toilet Bowl.

Ginger Boy Neale opened scoring for the seniors on an orange peel special. Bear Roth tied it on a quick 7 up opener.

After an exchange of touchdowns by Neale and Spantz, Bob Miner put the seniors ahead 18-12 on what is loosely monickered an outside banana peel.

Roth, however, pulled a Frank Merriwell finish, again tying the game with a sparkling 55 yard run.

Only injury of the fray occurred when Andy Higgins strained his hernia while tripping over a water outlet.

The next game, like the first, will be played sometime in the future, weather and Howie Ringham permitting.

Chykaliuk

More Stars Join Track

By MIKE BERGER

Another Olympic candidate has joined the fold and is working out with the other candidates at Varsity Stadium. This high jumping star is none other than Ken Money who came in sixth in the last olympics with a jump of over 6'6" in Melbourne, Australia.

Unfortunately the term Harrier is not known on campus. Sports writers as well as others have been confused in the past. To clear the matter up let me explain that Harrier is just another word for cross country running. This involves distances anywhere from three to five miles over hill and dale. Many athletes who run longer distances find that cross country is far more interesting, as the scenery changes all the time. That is unless the runner is flat on his back, which doesn't happen very often.

This year University of Toronto is having dual and triple meets with American and Canadian Universities both at home and away.

For those interested in these longer jaunts you are welcome to practise at Varsity Stadium.

This year Toronto is sending an exhibition team to Wayne on October 31, to run against Wayne and Western. As a preparation for this, Toronto will meet Western and Buffalo in High Park Oct. 24.

Noted U.S. Theologian To Lecture On Death

An American Lutheran theologian this week examines death as seen by five fathers of the early Christian Church in a lecture series at Knox College.

He is Jaroslav Pelikan, professor of historical theology at the University of Chicago and this year's Laidlaw lecturer at the College. His five lectures run Monday through Friday this week and are collectively entitled "The Dimensions of Death."

"The core of the Christian faith," he said yesterday, "is pessimism about life and optimism about God and therefore hope for life through God."

In Monday's lecture, entitled "The Arc of Existence," he examined the views of the church father Tatian yesterday he talked about Pope Clement in a lecture entitled "The Circle of Immortality."

Tatian, he said, attacked the Greek teaching of the natural immortality of the soul. Life, Tatian taught, is an arc with a definite beginning and a prescribed end.

Tatian taught that it thus belongs to the sovereignty of God to recreate man after he has been annihilated by death.

Yesterday Prof. Pelikan said Pope Clement stressed the distinction between soul and body and the joy of death.

"Although this world is good it is also good to die," he said. We attach an inordinate importance to death and exaggerate the importance of birth, the professor said.

The Lutheran theologian Monday said Christianity has both a yes and a no to the question of whether there is a life after death. "But the final answer is a clear and unequivocal yes."

He Scrapped A Law Career To Live In A Cabin

They got their winter grease supply by throwing a lighted torch into a bear's den! Timber wolves stalked their young son. In October Reader's Digest read the vivid epic of Eric Collier, who tells why he chose a log-cabin in the B.C. wilderness to the law career his father mapped out for him in England. This is a long condensation of a new $5.50 best selling book. Get your Reader's Digest today.

U. of T. Film Society

Announces — a season of distinguished films not to be shown commercially

10 Showings $5.00

Tickets at S.A.C. Office

Laidlaw Lectures — Knox College

JAROSLAV PELIKAN

Professor of Historical Theology, University of Chicago

THE DIMENSIONS OF DEATH

- Mon., Sept. 28 — The Arc of Existence
- Tues., Sept. 29 — The Circle of Immortality
- Wed., Sept. 30 — The Triangle of Mortality
- Thurs., Oct. 1 — The Parabola of Eternity
- Fri., Oct. 2 — The Spiral of History

All lectures 5:00 - 6:00 p.m. in the College Chapel.

Staff, Students and Public cordially invited

Students' HANDBOOK

now at
S.A.C. Office

15c EACH

TYPEWRITERS

$1.00 A WEEK BUYS . . .
... $1.50 A WEEK RENTS

Get a free typing course and a liberal trade-in allowance for your old typewriter when you buy a new modern machine from us.

Phone HO. 1-1843 Today

GOOD HAIRCUT

RIGHT NEAR HERE

4 BARBERS — NO WAITING

600 University Avenue

Just below College

In the Basement

Open Monday through Friday

8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

ONLY $1.00

Blue & White Band

REHEARSALS:

TODAY — 7 p.m.
Hart House Athletic Field
THURSDAY — 5 p.m.
Drill Hall

Kitten

new matching skirt and sweater

Go glamorous in this dramatic new one-colour ensemble . . . jumbo-knit pullover in Shetlantex (a beautiful blend with 20% mohair), wide-set turtle neck, easy lines and long sleeves, size 31 to 40, price $12.95 — with slim Shetlantex skirt — sizes 8 to 20, price $16.95 — at good shops everywhere.

Look for the name Kitten

Fun 'n Fashion ESKILOOS

They're here . . . in fabulously smart, bright colours — the new lushly lined cold-weather footwear in a wide range of styles and materials. Some to wear over your shoes, some instead of shoes, that weigh next to nothing on your feet. Look marvelous with pants — smart with skirts too. Keep your toes warm as love all winter in ESKILOOS.

Available at all leading shoe and department stores.

Dominion Footwear

OF UNITED RUBBER

Annex Resident Complains Fraternity House In Area

By ED ROBERTS
Acting News Editor

A resident of The Annex has taken another step in what seems to be personal vendetta against the University of Toronto's homeless fraternities.

Raymond A. McLeod of Madison Ave. appeared before the Toronto Committee on Buildings and Development yesterday to charge that a fraternity house is operating illegally across the street from his home.

Mr. McLeod told the meeting that although the city legal department says there is no proof the house is a fraternity house, he is sure it is because:

—Phi Delta Epsilon's address in the telephone book is 49 Madison Ave.;

—The house is registered in the name of Phi-Delta Epsilon Fraternity Co. Ltd.;

—Loud parties are held in it, especially on Friday nights and —Mr. McLeod found a chair in a tree near the alleged fraternity house.

Peter Brooks, solicitor in the city's legal department, told the committee that the department had been unable to find any evidence that the company that owns the house is a fraternity or that the company is operating a fraternity house.

Mr. Brooks said that, although fraternity houses are prohibited in the area, fraternity houses are not defined in the zoning bylaw.

Alderman William Archer said he thought if the legal department took the matter to court, the court would recognize the house as a fraternity house.

Meanwhile the President of Phi-Delta Epsilon, Sandy Stern (III Meds) last night flatly denied Mr. MacLeod's charges about the house located at 49

Madison Ave.

Stern said that 49 Madison Ave. is run by a company which, while it is composed of graduates who are Phi-Delta Epsilon members, pays nothing to fraternity itself; and that furthermore:

—Of the 13 people living at 49 Madison Avenue only nine are members of Phi-Delta Epsilon;

—Phi-Delta Epsilon has never held a meeting at 49 Madison Ave.

—Phi-Delta Epsilon has never held a party at 49 Madison Ave.; and —"without reservation, I say that no member of Phi-Delta Epsilon had anything to do with the chair throwing episode."

Stern also said he felt that "the University itself is not willing to stand up for the fraternities down at City Hall".

He explained that Phi-Delta Epsilon had been expropriated last year to make way for the University's expansion program, and that it, in common with other homeless fraternities, had wanted to move into the Annex area.

But residents of the Annex have time and time again indicated they want nothing to do with the fraternities. Stern feels the University should help the fraternities to find new locations.

MacLeod would make no statement last night and, aside from saying that he wanted to be accompanied by legal counsel if he was to be interviewed by The Varsity, merely reiterated his statements before the Planning Board.

"But", he added, "you can say that we, the residents of The Annex, are out to get those fraternities".

THE SAC'S AXE may fall and Ian Garratt knows it. In this photo, taken through the glass door of the Hart House Debates Room during the closed session of the council, shows the SAC member, whose suspension is being considered, waiting and listening as the evidence mounts up.
Varsity Staff Photo by Carson

Garrett Ruling Pending End of Closed Session

By ALAN WALKER
Acting Cup Editor

Early this morning the Students Administrative Council was still in closed session discussing a motion of suspension against Blue and White Chairman Ian Garratt.

The meeting began at 7.30 p.m. and almost immediately a motion was passed that the meeting be closed to press and public.

The Varsity is unable to present any testimony given in the closed meeting because of the motion.

Confident at the beginning of the meeting that he would be cleared of charges, Garratt's confidence faded as he paced the deserted halls of Hart House waiting for the result of the vote. After 1 a.m. the young music student was still waiting.

Before the press was excluded, the new chairman Claude Brodeur seemingly set the tone of the meeting in his opening address.

He referred to "Trivoltos lightheaded individuals" who he said "played at petty politics."

"We are here to conduct business," he reminded the council, "not to question personalities."

Garratt remarked last week that the whole issue had arisen out of personal conflict.

Last Friday, when the charges against Garratt were made public, the SAC said he had been suspended for "irresponsibility" and "unauthorized activity."

At a meeting held in Caledon, Sunday, Sept. 20 Garratt was suspended unanimously and a three-man committee was formed to investigate charges against him.

Garratt denied he had been suspended, charging this was impossible under the constitution of the SAC in present use. "They're using every loophole to get rid of me," he charged.

SAC President Walter McLean said last week the committee would present its findings at the meeting, still in session at press time. McLean said "Council will likely decide to either reinstate Garratt or disband him completely."

Before the meeting Claude Brodeur said the Council could not dismiss Garratt from his position on the Council.

Several specific charges were mentioned in connection with the suspension, but Tuesday Garratt received a registered letter from the SAC charging him with "irresponsibility" and "conduct unbecoming a council member."

"The other charges have been dropped," Garratt said, "because they are invalid."

There is no proof," he continued, "that I have conducted myself in a manner unbecoming a member." He also said the word "irresponsibility" was meaningless.

"They will come to an emotional decision," he said, "depending on who they think is more important to the council."

When asked whether he thought he would be as popular as Blue and White Chairman, Garratt said "I don't know." "But," he said, "they can't take it any longer through regular channels."

DETERMINED VIC sponomores gather around a greasy pole to fend off freshmen trying unsuccessfully to get a freshman beanie nailed at the top during yesterday's trad night. Ben Apple Battle. (Varsity Staff Photo by Carson)

Freshies Snatch Soph, Soph Retaliation Fails

Victoria sophomore president Marc Somerville, kidnapped Tuesday night during an initiation stunt, is still a captive of the freshmen and his rescuers say they'll never get him.

Leaders say they are holding Somerville in a West Toronto private home and that he is cooperating—"in that he realizes if he cooperates, we'll feed him."

The freshmen say they snatched Somerville after he issued a "work-or-no-supper" edict at Barton during the initiation. Shortly after a freshman and the freshmen rose en masse against their master, tossed him into a pond, and then kidnapped him.

It is customary for kidnapped sophs to be returned at the annual Soph-Fresh Dance and a trial, which will be tonight at Vic.

One of the kidnappers, Ross McLean, said late last night unidentified sophs tried to pull a reverse-play by kidnapping him. They didn't succeed.

CANTERBURY CENTRE

99 ST. GEORGE STREET

Every Sunday Night
Open House from 8 p.m.

T.V. — MUSIC — GAMES ROOM

Anglican Students and Their Friends
From All Colleges and Faculties Welcome

Varsity Christian Fellowship FRESHMAN RECEPTION

For NURSES and ENGINEERS

SATURDAY — OCTOBER 3rd

(NOT October 2 as previously announced)

MEET in front of Hart House at 7.00 p.m. to go to Boyd Park

Special Attention — 25% Discount ON ALL JEWELLERY PURCHASES

Including: Watches, Diamonds, Silverware, Lighters, Wallets, Pens, and Pencils, Radios, Clocks, Costume Jewellery etc. etc. You must have your A.T.L. card when making a purchase.

SHEFFIELD JEWELLERS

DIAMOND MERCHANTS

323 YONGE ST. (5 doors above Dundas) TEL. EM. 6-0977

BUY and SAVE S. A. C.

BOOK EXCHANGE

119 ST. GEORGE ST. (south of Bloor)

Arab Postgraduates Quit Russia Expected to Continue in Canada

OTTAWA, Sept. 28—Fifty to 60 Arab students are expected to arrive within the next two weeks to take post graduate courses at Canadian universities.

The students are reported to be among 200 being withdrawn from Russian universities by the United Arab Republic government because they were being subjected to excessive ideological pressure.

Arrangements for the students to come to Canada were concluded between the U.A.R. government and the National Conference of Canadian Universities with the Canadian External Affairs Department acting as liaison agents.

The prospective students are now being interviewed by two representatives of Canadian universities in Cairo and final arrangements are being made for them to come to Canada. Most of the students are in science and engineering.

Fees and other expenses will be paid by the Arabs.

A spokesman for the university conference said its members were canvassed and each offered to take as many students as might be assigned to it. No U of T officials who knew of the plan could be reached yesterday.

here and now

TODAY

12.10 p.m.—Undergraduate nurses will study the Bible in room 53 School of Nursing.

1 p.m.—The Bible will be discussed in room H3, Anatomy Bldg.

1.30 p.m.—Auditions will be held for the UC-St. Mike's production of The Crucible in St. Mike's Brennan Hall.

4.15 p.m.—Campus CCF Club will hear provincial leader Donald MacDonald in room 6, UC.

8 p.m.—Women interested in joining a fraternity are invited to an information meeting in the

UC Women's Union.

Varsity Christian Fellowship will hold a reception for Meds freshmen in the Debates Room, Hart House.

FRIDAY

2-4 p.m. Crucible auditions will be held in the UC Women's Union Theatre.

8 p.m.—Ukrainian Students' Club will hold its annual Freshman dance in the Women's Union, 79 St. George St.

—West Indian Student Association Freshman Reception will feature authentic steel band music in the Trinity College Buttery.

SATURDAY and SUNDAY

9.15 a.m. Saturday morning students will meet in front of Hart House for an Outing Club weekend at Caledon Hills which will feature orienteering, camping out for those interested, eating over a camp fire, a steam bath and dancing.

SUNDAY

11.00 a.m.—Rev. Donald McKilligan will preach at a church service in Knox College Chapel sponsored by the Presbyterian Fellowship.

CLASSIFIED ADS.

FOR SALE

Conn tenor saxophone, perfect condition. Very reasonable. Call HI. 4-0903 evenings.

Typing

Accurately and promptly done for students. Apply—Vera McDonald, 84 Elinor Avenue, Scarborough. PL. 7-6908.

FOR LAUGHS!

CLAP HANDS

All New Satirical Revue

HART HOUSE THEATRE

Nightly 8.30

Saturday — 5.30 and 9.00

STUDENTS: HALF PRICE

Wed., Thurs. &amp; Sat. Matinee

TYPEWRITERS

$1.00 A WEEK BUYS . . .
... $1.50 A WEEK RENTS

Get a free typing course and a liberal trade-in allowance for your old typewriter when you buy a new modern machine from us.

Phone HO. 1-1843 Today

jazz!

HOUSE OF HAMBOURG

GRENVILLE at YONGE

Fri. &amp; Sat: 11.00 p.m.—3.30 a.m.

Sunday: 9.00 p.m.—12.00 a.m.

It's Fun to DANCE

AT

Mart Kenney's
Ranch

EVERY SATURDAY

CANADA'S FINEST
BANDS

Special Student Rates
$1.00 per person

Reservation and Information
AT. 8-1282

Laidlaw Lectures — Knox College

JAROSLAV PELIKAN

Professor of Historical Theology, University of Chicago

THE DIMENSIONS OF DEATH

Mon., Sept. 28 — The Arc of Existence
Tues., Sept. 29 — The Circle of Immortality
Wed., Sept. 30 — The Triangle of Mortality
Thurs., Oct. 1 — The Parabola of Eternity
Fri., Oct. 2 — The Spiral of History

All lectures 5:00 - 6:00 p.m. in the College Chapel
Start, Students and Public cordially invited

HART HOUSE THEATRE

Student Subscriptions

$3.00 for the Four Productions

Hart House Theatre offers a Student Subscription at $3.00 for the four All-University productions directed by Robert Gill. The student rate will be $1.00 for a single performance. Subscribers are assured of the same seats and performance evenings for the entire season. Two subscriptions only on each A.T.L. card.

1959-60 SEASON

THE LITTLE FOXES by Lillian Hellman

Saturday, October 24th to Saturday, October 31st

THE SIMPLETON OF THE UNEXPECTED ISLES by George Bernard Shaw

Saturday, November 28th to Saturday, December 5th

THE GLASS MENAGERIE by Tennessee Williams

Saturday, January 23rd to Saturday, January 30th

THE IMPORTANCE OF BEING ERNEST by Oscar Wilde

Saturday, February 27th to Saturday, March 5th

Last season over 40% of the total seats were sold by subscription before opening.

● AVOID DISAPPOINTMENT AND BOOK EARLY ●

Box Office now open 10.00 a.m. to 6.00 p.m. — WA. 3-5244

Campus Naturals . . . Geometry and NATURAL SHOULDER SPORT COATS

Proposition: natural shoulder sport coats are made for and endorsed by collegians in 1959-1960.

Diagram: see illustration.

Given: Penn University style, new tweed patterns, 100% wool cloth.

Required: your own natural shoulder line.

Proof: take 100% wool tweed cloths, weave in the new patterns, style with the Penn University lines over your natural shoulders, eliminate padding, tailor with raised seams, hook vent, and finish with a flair for the slant angle flap pockets.

In Greys, Blues, Browns or Olives. Sizes 34 to 42. Models for regulars, shorts and tails. Each $39.50.

Simpson's

Phone and Mail Orders Filled
UN. 1-8111
The Store For Young Men—Second Floor

THE VARSITY

comment

The appearance of the movie version of Porgy and Bess has received great critical notice. Much of the attention has been drawn to the fact that Porgy and Bess portrays Negroes in a way that many Negroes regard as unfair and untrue.

The actors who appeared in the movie did so only after much public hesitation. The social problems involved in a production of Porgy and Bess were as important to them as the artistic ones.

They are part of the new generation of socially conscious Negro actors who will not accept a role they feel deals unfairly with the "Negro" question.

In incorporating this point of view into their art, these actors have highlighted the whole problem of the Negro as an integral part of American drama.

They, and those who follow them, will decide just what part the Negro will play on the modern stage.

by
David
Lewis
Stein

Greener Pastures

It is a matter of record now that when Samuel Goldwyn began work on the movie version of Porgy and Bess, he had difficulty in casting for the lead roles. Sydney Poitier in particular was reluctant to take a part in the movie.

Mr. Poitier had no hesitation in giving his reasons for refusal. He felt that Porgy and Bess showed the Negro in a particularly bad light. It was a stereotype of the Negro that no longer existed. Mr. Poitier did not want to be a party to prolonging the existence of that stereotype.

In so doing, Mr. Poitier and the other members of the cast of Porgy and Bess who, after some persuasion by Mr. Goldwyn, did take part in the movie, brought out in bold relief the whole problem of the relationship of the Negro to movies and to the other forms of drama.

The original "Movie Negro" was a shuffling comedian. He was usually a servant of some sort and his purpose was to provide some sort of comic relief for the more serious portions of the story. His humor was achieved with a shuffling gait, thick voice, and one-line jokes. He was a carry-over from the stereotyped Negro minstrel comedian.

Perhaps the most famous of all Negro comedians, and perhaps the one who did the most to create the stereotype that Mr. Poitier wishes to destroy was the team of "Amos and Andy". It is ironic that neither "Amos" nor "Andy" were Negroes. But the characteristics of the stereotype were by now so well-established that they were able to create and sustain two fictional characters based upon it.

When the original Porgy and Bess, the play by Dubose Heyward, appeared, it was an advance for the status of the Negro in drama. The old minstrel types were still there but the story itself elevated them to the status of tragic figures and the story itself was a tragedy rather than a comedy.

The musical version of "Porgy and Bess" that was based on Mr. Heyward's play, was an even greater advance for the Negro artist. Although written by two New York Jews, the music bore the greatest resemblance to the music that had grown up, in the Negro church services, and which we are accustomed to call spirituals. It recognized the unique musical qualities of the "spiritual", and transposed them into something that came pretty close to opera.

And perhaps more important, the composers and producers of Porgy and Bess tacitly acknowledged, even before they went into production, that there were Negro artists, both singers and actors, capable of performing the show that had been written for them.

There was no trouble casting either the play "Porgy and Bess" or the musical play which was based upon it.

And yet twenty years later, Samuel Goldwyn had great difficulty in finding Negro artists who would take part in his proposed movie version. Indeed, for a time, there was some question as to whether opposition from Negro artists would prevent the movie from being made at all.

In the twenty some odd years since the original production of Porgy and Bess, the status of the Negro in American drama, and particularly in the movies, had been radically altered.

In the late 1940's, the movies lost some of their terror of controversy and pictures dealing with the "Negro problem" began to appear. In addition, to dealing with social problems in a more forthright manner, they provide a newer and wider field for Negro actors.

Movies such as "Home of the Brave", "Pinky", and most recently "The Defiant Ones", brought forward Negro actors of high calibre. It is doubtful now whether any Hollywood producer would resurrect the banjo-eyed Negro minstrel comedian and attempt to put him in a movie.

The recent television version of "Green Pastures" had to be greatly altered before Negro actors would participate in it. Louis Armstrong refused to go on an American State Department-sponsored "good will tour" as a protest against the government's actions in Little Rock. And Samuel Goldwyn had to spend considerable time and pains with Sydney Poitier before he could convince him to appear in Porgy and Bess.

Mr. Poitier has said that there is no role in the whole of dramatic literature that could not be played by a Negro actor.

Mr. Poitier's roles in motion pictures and recently on the New York stage, have established him as an actor first rank. He is deeply concerned with the future of the Negro actor on the American stage.

I find it difficult to share Mr. Poitier's view of this future. It is difficult to picture him playing Richard III or even Henry Higgins for the simple reason that these roles are not portraying Negroes.

Although the stereotyped Negro of shuffling gait and mumbling speech has been rightfully destroyed, he has not completely opened the whole of dramatic literature to his followers. Drama is still a visual presentation, and Negro actors must still portray Negroes on the stage.

Mr. Poitier is most probably concerned with the scarcity of good roles for Negro actors. There are certainly very few roles for an actor of Mr. Poitier's calibre and experience.

Perhaps the solution to this problem may lie with Mr. Poitier himself. Recently he starred in a Broadway play about Negroes called "Raisin In The Sun". The play was a critical and box-office success, and a good deal of this success was due to the fact that it largely ignored the "Negro Problem". It dealt with the more universal problem, the human struggle to rise out of poverty, and was only incidentally about Negroes.

In such plays as "Raisin In The Sun" there is perhaps an answer to the problem of the Negro artist in America.

It is not in usurping roles that do not suit them, but in creating a whole new body of literature that will give scope to their talents.

Mr. Poitier and the new generation of Negro actors have largely succeeded in destroying the stereotype that has dogged them for so long.

It remains now only for them to find and create a new literature that will provide a framework and a backdrop for their talents.

THE VARSITY

FOUNDED 1880

Published by
The Students' Administrative Council
of the University of Toronto

Toronto 5, Canada
Member Canadian University Press

Editorial and News Office
Basement, SAC Building — WA. 3-8742, WA. 3-8113
Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221

Editor-In-Chief Sam Ajzenstat
Acting Managing Editors Susie Breslin, Harvey Shepherd
Acting News Editor Ed Roberts
Acting CUP Editor Alan Walker
Acting Photo Editor Andrew Stabins
Acting Sports Editor Dave Griner
Acting AM&D Editor Elmo Ciprietti
TODAY'S ISSUE: Mrs. Ajzenstat, Fred Host, Mrs. Ajzenstat, Phil Palter, Gary come in tomorrow and give us your name, The Kaplans-to-Be, Peter Dembski, Walt McLean, Ian Garratt, welcome back Riko Pild and one of the biggest panic buttons we've ever pushed.
Photographer on Duty: Bob Carson.

Bissell Lauds Leaders On Education Interest

University of Toronto President, Claude T. Bissell last night complimented a Consultation of 30 top labor leaders on the labor movement's "keen interest in education".

In his welcoming speech to the members of an on-campus con-

staff meets

For the three-millionth time Ed Roberts is taking hat in hand and calling a staff meeting for 1 p.m. today.

ANYBODY, but anybody, who wants to work for The Varsity's News Staff this year is strongly advised to turn up as the shift schedules for the year will be drawn up at this meeting.

ccf meets

The leader of the Ontario CCF Party, Donald MacDonald, will address the U of T CCF Club at its first open meeting of the year today. Mr. MacDonald's topic will be "A New Political Party for Canada".

The meeting will be held in Room 8 of U.C. at 4:15 p.m., and all students are welcome.

vention which continues today, Dr. Bissell said: "There was a time when some elements in the labor movement were suspicious of any education that led to no immediate practical skill. To insist on the children of manual workers learning little besides manual labor is rank discrimination."

"Now, however, the emphasis is upon the provision of the fullest opportunity to every child to advance as far in his education as his brains and his drive will allow," he continued.

"Labor was quick to recognize the democratic truth that is symbolized in the scholar's gown, namely that the distinction of rich and poor has no place in the halls of learning," Dr. Bissell said.

Consultation began with a tour of the campus yesterday afternoon and an informative talk by the Dean of Arts Vincent Bladen. Distinguished members of the group include: Claude Jodoin, president of the Canadian Labor Congress; David Archer, president of the Ontario Federation of Labor and William Smith, national president of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers.

live and learn

Two University of Toronto Professors are behind a 12-week series of CBC television shows to begin tonight at 10:30.

Professors Clarence Parsons and John Walker, of the University College French Department, will explain and illustrate in English the development of the French language and literature over CBLT every Thursday night until Dec. 17.

The programs, in the "Live and Learn" series, follow last year's successful programs on physics and chemistry.

Among the subjects to be discussed during the next three months will be "French in Canada Since 1945" and a session on French as a romance language.

Vic's Sophs Win Battle

A group of Victoria College freshmen discovered yesterday it's hard to reach the top, especially when the top is the end of a grease-smearing pole.

The frosh were taking part in a traditional initiation gag, the Bob Apple Battle which highlighted initiations at Vic this week.

The Vic sophomores defend the pole against the haphazard attempts of the first-year men to scramble up and snatch a beanie nailed on top.

And this year the sophomores came prepared for all out war. They lugged about 50 cases of rotten tomatoes on the Vic Playing field where the freshmen were waiting.

On the whistle pandemonium flared. The second-year students, howling and screaming, galloped across the field firing tomatoes at the on-rushing group of freshmen.

They crashed into each other at the pole. Then it was a free-for-all. Nearly all the combatants slipped and grounded themselves in mud. One freshman turned the wrong way and a tomato found its mark on his face.

After a breather, both groups, now smudged with mud, tomato pulp and grass stains, charged each other again.

This time the sophomores formed an iron-tight circle around the pole. Although the frosh tried to hurdle over the chain, they failed to smash the sophomore's ring of defence.

During the battle, the sophomores were officially leaderless. Bob Summerville (II Vic) was kidnapped earlier in the week by outraged freshmen after boasting Vic's freshmen were "weak and incapable of any action."

Then the second whistle went. It was all over. Scattered over the area were bits of clothing, jagged pieces of tomato, empty crates and one slightly used pole.

With the fight ended the frosh began the tedious work of cleaning up the mess. Said one first-year student still sitting in the mud, a piece of tomato hanging from his shoulder: "A bit much man, a bit much."

Nfcus To Hold Largest Meet At Saskatchewan

OTTAWA, Sept. 30, (CUP)—The largest number of students to attend a National Federation of Canadian University Students annual congress will meet next Tuesday at the University of Saskatchewan.

Ninety-five student leaders from 32 universities, including the University of Toronto, will be involved in the five-day event. The conference will study all phases of student life from regional and local autonomy to participation in international student affairs.

The first of two panel discussions will look into "the role that a national union of students should play in international student affairs". The second will deal with the question of whether Canadian youth enjoys equality of opportunity in higher education.

Nfcus president, Mortimer Bistrisky predicted that membership in the organization will reach 75,000 next year. Last year's membership was 69,127.

Other topics to be discussed at the meeting include the possibility of increased activity on local and regional levels as well as a re-amping of interregional scholarships.

Bistrisky predicted the scholarships will "become a major project particularly because of the recognition given to it by the Canada Council".

In addition to student participation at the congress, Saskatchewan Premier T. C. Douglas and University of Saskatchewan President Dr. Spinks will give addresses.

Hart House

IN THE RECORD ROOM:

Tonight and every Thursday at 5:15 p.m. Instruction in the use of equipment. After the class, cards will be issued, entitling the holder to obtain the key to the Record Room at any time.

IN THE MUSIC ROOM:

Friday, October 2nd at 1:15 p.m.

BY POPULAR REQUEST

Hape recording of the sermon "A CHRISTIAN CLICHE" delivered by Dr. Theodore Gill at Opening All-University Church Service. Ladies are welcome to attend.

Students' HANDBOOK

now at

S.A.C. Office

15c EACH

MEETING

BLUE and WHITE
REPS.

Thursday, Oct. 1

1.00 p.m.

S.A.C. Office

FRATERNITIES??

Information Meeting for all WOMEN Interested in Joining a Fraternity

THURSDAY — OCTOBER 1 — 8.00 P.M.

University College, Women's Union

TWO B & W DANCES THIS WEEKEND

1. ON FRIDAY

IMMEDIATELY AFTER GAME

JOHNNY ALLISON and HIS ORCHESTRA

VARSITY ARENA

— 50c PER PERSON

Tickets for Sale at the Arena after the Game

2. BLUE & WHITE FOOTBALL DANCE

HART HOUSE

— SATURDAY, OCTOBER 3, 9 P.M.

$2.50 Per Couple

— Tickets — S.A.C. Office Only

No Phone Reservations

INTRAMURAL SOCCER OFFICIALS URGENTLY NEEDED!

The intramural soccer season opens Oct. 7th. Only 2 officials have signed up to date. HOW ABOUT SOME ACTION. If interested apply to Intramural office, Hart House.

INTERCOLLEGIATE SQUASH

There will be a meeting of the Squash Club on Thursday, October 1st, at 5 p.m. in the North Committee Room, Hart House. Anyone interested in trying out for the Intercollegiate Squash team, please be present.

U. of T. SAILING CLUB

Intercollegiate Sailing Meeting

THURS. — OCT. 1 — HART HOUSE DEBATES ROOM

— at 5 p.m. —

Intercollegiate Trials this weekend, so if you are unable to attend, please call Robin Beamish, WA. 4-0501 before Saturday.

MEN

Men interested in UMPIRING the WOMEN'S INTERFACULTY SOFTBALL GAMES are asked to contact the WOMEN'S ATHLETIC BLDG. — WA. 3-6611 — local 770.

Please leave your name, phone number and indicate the days on which you are available.

Games are between 2:00 — MONDAY to FRIDAY.

INTRAMURAL TRACK MEET

Varsity Stadium—Wednesday, October 7th—1:30 p.m. Open to all undergraduate students except those who have represented a University in Senior Intercollegiate competition OR who have won a first place in a University Championship Meet. FRESHMEN ARE PARTICULARLY INVITED TO COMPETE.

EVENTS: Discus, Pole Vault, 120 High Hurdles, Hop-Step-Jump, 100 yds, 800 yds, High Jump, 400 Low Hurdles, Broad Jump, 1 mile, Javelin, 220 yds, 3 miles, Shot Put, 330 yds. ENTRIES NOW BEING ACCEPTED AT INTRAMURAL OFFICE, HART HOUSE.

University Health Service

ATTENTION FROSH!

Have you made an appointment yet for your required medical examination? If not, get in touch with the Health Service immediately, either by dropping in at our offices at 110 St. George Street, or by telephoning:

MEN: WA. 3-9644

WOMEN: WA. 3-2646

Secret Meeting Ejects Garratt

Behind closed doors the Students' Administrative Council ejected Ian Garratt from his Blue and White chairmanship Wednesday night.

Prior to the meeting Garratt had been charged with "irresponsibility" and "conduct unbecoming a member of the SAC". These charges arose out of his independent action over the summer.

Garratt had attempted to hire the marching band of the University of Michigan for Blue and White activities without authorization of the SAC's Executive committee, according to the charges against him.

SAC policy with respect to closed sessions allows The Varsity to report only the motions voted upon at the meeting. No further report can be released except at the discretion of the Council.

Two motions were put before the council. The first was to remove Garratt from his portfolio as Blue and White chairman. This motion was passed by the necessary two-thirds majority.

A further motion to expell Garratt from his seat on the SAC as representative for the faculty of Music was defeated.

The closed session constituted a trial on charges that had originally been brought against Garratt at an SAC meeting at Caledon Hills Farm Sept. 20.

The main evidence Wednesday night was to consist of the report of an investigating committee that had been appointed at Caledon. The chairman of the investigating committee was Peter Dembski (III SMC).

In addition to the charge of "irresponsibility" in the commission of his duties as Blue and White chairman, there was a charge of "behaviour unbecoming a member of the SAC" arising out of charges brought by Garratt against various members of the SAC staff.

A number of guests attending the SAC meeting were asked to leave when the council went into closed session. Among these were a Varsity reporter and photographer.

After evidence had been heard Garratt was asked to leave the room while a vote was taken.

The motion to eject Garratt from his SAC seat was evidently made while he was in the hall awaiting the results of the vote on the motion to eject him from his Blue and White portfolio.

LIPSTICK AND TOILET PAPER festoon these Wycliffe frosh during yesterday's initiation rites. Shivering in their shorts are (from left to right) Max Beck, Ken Patterson, Jim Kelly and Dave Sinclair. (Varsity Staff Photo by Cavanagh.)

"very co-operative"

Baptize Wycliffe Frosh

Wycliffe Collegian freshman went through the initiation mill yesterday.

Figuring prominently in the annual freshman torture session were several rolls of pastel toilet tissue, a fire house and a large color photo of Pope John XXIII.

Dressed in short shorts and very little else, the beleaguered Frosh were paraded around the Wycliffe building area, prodded on by the high pressure hose wielded by sophomores.

Their faces were dabbed with lipstick and burnt cork.

"They have been very co-operative," one soph commented. "We've had them working hard all day and they seem to enjoy it."

"We're wild about the whole idea," one freshman said.

Once during the afternoon the freshies rebelled but the riot was quickly quelled.

Students wandering past Wycliffe's front door late in the evening saw the results of the day's play. Yards of the paper were woven into the hedges and there were huge puddles of lipstick-stained water on the sidewalk.

New Brass

The Students' Administrative Council last night elected a dozen of its members to committee positions.

New council brass are:

Blue and White chairman: Dave Tavender (IV Trin). Finance commission representatives: Peter Dembski (III SMC), Carol Jones (III SMC), Ed Osler (IV For), UTDG rep: Carol Jones (III SMC), Public Affairs Commission reps: John O'Dell (III SPS), Betty Gallagher (III HEE), Student Service Commission rep: Louise Macdonald (I Soc. Wk.), Bruce Barrett (I SGS), Library committee chairman: Robert Brown (III Wycl), Music Committee rep: Ian Garratt (II Music).

SAC Okays Gambling In UA Charity Drive

The Students' Administrative Council aligned itself with the profit motive last night and refused a plea to ban gambling from the university United Appeal campaign.

Council received a letter from the Knox College Missionary and Theological Society pleading for the ban of a planned Las Vegas gambling night from the UA campaign schedule.

The letter said gambling:

—"tends to destroy the true end of charity by replacing it with avarice," —"leads to a desire to gain for oneself at the loss of others, thereby arousing covetousness and enmity among men,

—"encourages dependence on a lazy hope of luck rather than on the providence of God,

—"and may become as a disease which can make man its slave".

SAC President Walter McLean (III Knox) said the issue at stake was "not gambling but illegality". United Appeal planners make a special trip to Mayor Nathan Phillips' office every year to receive permission to run the gambling hall. The Mayor's office tips off police not to raid the "gambling hall".

Council member Mike Sherman (IV UC) told council the Las Vegas night is not considered a profit venture but "entertainment". Sherman said council should "not suggest to others what forms of entertainment they may take."

Social Service chairman Nancy Davison told council permission for the Las Vegas night Oct. 16 had already been received from Mayor Phillips. She said last year's profit of $178 should be exceeded with good publicity and timing.

McLean said the question was not what profit the gambling would make for United Appeal, but "whether to obey the law or circumvent the law". He moved that gambling be excluded from UA activities.

Council chairman Claude Brodeur said the purpose of the motion was to "question the policy of the United Appeal campaign or allow them to conduct their business as they see fit."

Council defeated McLean's motion by a narrow margin.

SAC Supports Homeless Band

The Students' Administrative Council last night voted to inform University president Claude Bissell of the actions of one of his faculties.

The action was an attempt to clarify the position of the University Orchestra and Chorus!

Council receives a university grant every year to pay the expenses of maintaining the all-student symphony orchestra and mixed chorus. Until this year, participation in either group merited a scholastic credit for students of the Faculty of Music.

Over the summer, the Faculty of Music decided not to credit its students for participation in the two groups, and withdrew permission for use of the Royal Conservatory of Music concert hall by the two groups.

Prof. J. Rosevear and A. R. Johnston, who have conducted the two groups for six years, submitted their resignations due to the groups' new academic status.

Meanwhile, the university Board of Governors doubled University of Toronto's grant to SAC for the orchestra and chorus.

Council decided to notify President Bissell and the University Senate of the "change of status of the credit system which has heretofore prevailed".

Council also voted to refuse acceptance of Dr. Johnson and

Dr. Rosevear's resignations, and request them to remain in their positions until new conductors can be found for the orchestra and chorus.

SAC vice-president Barbara Leaman asked the Council Music committee and SAC members to try to boost prestige of the two groups in order to save them from extinction.

Miss Leaman said even if Council had to start off the year with a string quartet and a "triple trio chorus", the advantages of making an orchestra and chorus available to all university students would be worth it.

Council also felt emphasis on the all-university status of the two groups would attract a higher membership.

Vic Kidnappings All Finished Up

Victoria College initiations ended last night with the return of the last two of five Vic students to be kidnapped this week.

Returned at the "trials" of freshmen last night were sophomore president Marc Somerville and freshman Bob leader Al Ruffman.

Ruffman, captured by sophomores early Thursday, was released in woman's dress while Somerville was carried in strapped to a stretcher borne by four "palbearers".

Somerville surrendered to freshmen Tuesday night at a work camp at suburban Bolton. He gave himself up, he said, in order to prevent soph-frosh rivalry from becoming too violent.

He was immediately rushed to a suburban Etobicoke home where he spent Wednesday and Thursday in a basement.

His only comment on his 48 hours of captivity: "I made a magnificent attempt to escape, but failed."

Ruffman was nabbed shortly after noon yesterday. The sophomores who captured him say he was taken "quietly and smoothly". They called the whole operation "magnificent".

Ruffman, one of the freshmen leaders, was held in a St. George St. fraternity house through the day.

Two other first-year Bob leaders, Nancy Wright and Dawn Magwood, were captured shortly before the Bob Apple Battle Wednesday, but they were released immediately after the battle.

One other person was captured. Sophomore John Wood was nabbed Monday night but his freshmen captors released him early Tuesday morning.

Stop Press News...

Two University College students were arrested by the Metro Toronto Police shortly before 2 a.m. today on St. George Street.

Up till an early hour this morning it could not be determined if Andy Korsak (IV UC) and Ray England (III UC) were to be charged, or what charges they would face if booked.

TRINITY

The United Church of Canada

427 BLOOR ST. WEST — at WALMER ROAD
 REV. J. ROBERT WATTE, B.A., B.D., Minister
 John Linn, Organist and Choirmaster

Mr. Watt's Subject for Sunday —
 11.00 a.m.—"Now Is the Hour"

World-Wide Communion and Reception Service

7.30 p.m.—"Splitting the Darkness"

F. C. A. Jeanneret, B.A., D. ex L., O.A., LL.D.
 Chancellor of the University of Toronto, Lay Reader

8.30 p.m.—STUDENT SERVICE — An opportunity to greet Dr. and Mrs. Jeanneret.
 Music. Refreshments

KNOX PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Invite All Students to Join Us For:

WORSHIP — Sunday, 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S WORSHIP — Sunday, 8.30 p.m.

RECREATION — Friday, 8 p.m., Youth Centre,
 16 Bancroft Street

LOCATED SPADINA and HARBORD

EATON'S

"SKURTJON",

said the old Teuton, means "shirt"! Olde English rogues called the same garment "SCYRTE". And, although the semantics changed, the shirt belongs — now, as it did then — in the foreground of the young man's wardrobe.

"VAN HEUSEN" tabs the collar, for the modern college man whose modus operandi includes youthful and distinctive White Shirt Styling. Cotton broadcloth with double cuffs; sizes 14½ to 16½. Each, 5.00.

FOULARD-PATTERNED TIE, to top the shirt, carefully hand-blocked. Made of imported English wool Challis. Each, 2.50.

MEN'S SHOP, EATON'S COLLEGE STREET
 A SHORT WALK FROM THE CAMPUS.

PC's Two Rebels Join University Liberal Club

Two ex-vice-presidents of the University of Toronto Progressive Conservatives have joined the Liberal party.

Phil Goulston (II SMC), President of the U of T Liberal Club, announced last night that Ed Roberts (III Vic) and Doug Peppiatt (III Trin) had formally joined the Liberals, and will campaign on behalf of the party.

Roberts, the PC Club's second vice-president, and Peppiatt, who was sixth vice-president, both resigned earlier this week.

Both said they resigned because they considered the campus Tories to be "slavish followers of party policy as handed down by Ottawa and Queen's Park".

Roberts said, however, that the main reason for his resignation was his complete disenchantment with the federal government's Newfoundland policy.

A native of Newfoundland, he charged that Prime Minister Diefenbaker had "betrayed" his province.

Goulston said the decision of the two to join the Liberals was "convincing proof that the centre of Liberalism in Southern Ontario is the U of T campus".

"We pride ourselves on our individual and collective freedom of expression", he said. "We are listened to rather than dictated to by the Liberal parties of Canada and Ontario".

He continued: "The participation of these two students will be genuinely appreciated by both the Liberal party as a whole and the U of T Club in particular".

With regard to Newfoundland, Goulston said "the Liberals wholeheartedly endorse the pleas of Mr. Smallwood and the government and people of Newfoundland for further consideration of their special claims under Term 29 of the Terms of Union".

"We can't be vehement enough in our denunciation of the lamentable folly of Mr. Diefenbaker in this regard", he said.

"Mr. Pearson and the Liberal party of Canada are in complete agreement with Mr. Smallwood on this issue," he added.

Goulston said that "any vision of Canada must be panoramic, and the ubiquitous Diefenbaker should know what lies behind the fog of the east coast."

He continued: "We think that his actions towards Newfoundland indicate he may have missed his chance to prove himself the saviour of all Canada".

BLOOR STREET UNITED CHURCH

300 BLOOR ST. WEST

Ministers:
 Rev. Dr. Ernest Marshall Howse
 Rev. J. Stanley Kennedy

Organist and Choirmaster
 Frederick C. Silvester

11.00 a.m. — COMMUNITY IS-CREATED—Dr. E. M. Howse

7.00 p.m.—COMMON AND UNCLEAN—Dr. E. M. Howse
 All Students Welcome

Park Road Baptist Church

1 Block North and East of Bloor - Yonge

Minister: Rev. Murray J. S. Ford, M.A., B.D.

VICTOR E. GRAHAM, Organist

SERVICES AT
 10.45 a.m. and 7.30 p.m.

A Cordial Invitation to all Students to Attend Inspiring Services

United Church St. Andrew's

117 Bloor St. East
 near Yonge St. subway

Minister:
 REV. WILLIAM BRIGGS,
 M.A., B.D., Ph.D.

Organist and Choir
 Conductor:
 EDGAR GOODAIRE

11 a.m. "The Look that Changes Life"
 THE MINISTER

7.30 p.m. "The Great Disclosure of God"
 REV. GEORGE G. D. KILPATRICK, D.D.

Holy Communion will be Observed at Both Services

Students cordially invited to attend

Here and Now

TODAY

4-6 p.m. — Canadian and Overseas Students are welcome at the FROS Fall Reception at Hart House Quadrangle or in the Debates Room if raining. For information contact Sue Mercer, WA. 3-7698.

8 p.m. — Ukrainian Students' Club plans their annual Freshman Dance at Women's Union, 79 St. George Street.

8 p.m. — West Indian Student Reception for Freshmen with authentic steel band music at The Buttery, Trinity College.

SATURDAY

9.45 p.m. — The first meeting of The External Affairs Committee will meet in the Debates Room of Hart House.

7 p.m. — Members of the Freshman Reception for Nurses and Engineers will meet at Hart House and proceed to Boyd Pl.

SUNDAY

11 a.m. — Rev. Donald McKillican will preach at a church service in Knox College Chapel sponsored by the Presbyterian Fellowship.

9 p.m. — There will be a Meds-Nurses Fireside at the East Nurses' Residence, Toronto General Hospital. Speaker is Dr. Moore, M.D., F.R.S.P.

MONDAY

8 p.m. — The Ukrainian Students Club will hold their first general meeting at Women's Union, 79 St. George Street.

Class
 enchantress!

Kitten
 LOOPED MOHAIR

Kitten creates a looped mohair cardigan in heavy-knit texture . . . light as milkweed down, daring in its dramatic simplicity . . . in colours dipt from the rainbow . . . truly a 'long-term investment' for your college wardrobe . . . so lovely to wear, so easy to care for.
 Sizes 36 to 42, price $17.95—
 Pullover: price $15.95 . . . in colours exciting and ultra smart!

Look for the name Kitten

I WAS A BOGUS

STAR Reporter

comment

by Jayne
Nesbitt

"YOU MEAN you don't work for me?"

I was a bogus reporter in the city room of the Toronto Daily Star for over an hour Thursday morning.

Wednesday a Star reporter was a bogus student at University College.

She had "athletic shoulders" to hide behind. I was on my own. There were suspicions but I was not exposed. I had to tell them I was a fake.

Here's the story:

10:15 a.m. . . . Varsity photographer Andy Stabins and I located a public telephone across the street from The Star. He agreed to wait there for my call and I made my way across to the paper's headquarters on King St.

10:18 . . . Took a crowded elevator to the fourth floor and the city room. As I stepped off the elevator the receptionist asked if she could help me.

I smiled and kept walking.

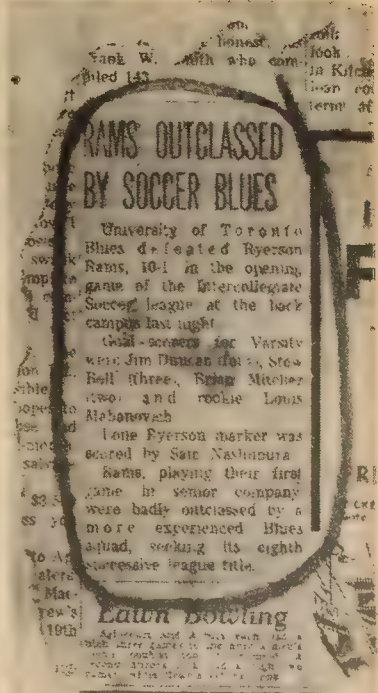

I had thought the city room would be quiet but in that large room full of typewriters, only one desk was vacant.

It was at the back of the city room.

I walked through the office to the desk and sat down. At the typewriter beside me was Tom Bird who picks the horses for The Star.

He asked my name and informed me I was sitting in the sports department at staffer John MacDonald's desk.

10:23 . . . I sat back and lit a cigaret. John MacDonald stopped at his desk and asked what department I was working in.

STAR SPORTS STORY by Varsity sports reporter Gene Glskey. It was smuggled into the Star and ran through all Thursday editions. The people are real but there wasn't any game.

A girl reporter from the Toronto Daily Star infiltrated the ranks of University College freshmen last Wednesday, and remained undetected through an entire day of classes.

Believing in the old adage that turnabout is fair play The Varsity yesterday sent Acting Associate News Editor Jayne Nesbitt of University College to pose as a bogus reporter in the Star city room.

Wednesday night a Varsity reporter planted a story of a non-existent Varsity Blues-Ryerson Rams soccer game in the Star sports department.

They bit.

The story ran in all editions.

Jayne spent a morning in the Star city room—undetected. And her desk?

It was located in the sports department.

AN IRATE RECEPTIONIST, Jayne and Yvonne Crittenden who was a bogus "freshie" for the Star.

I answered I was an editorial reporter who had begun work the day before and had not yet been assigned a desk in the news section.

He began rummaging in the desk and I offered to move. "Stay there," he said. "This is my last day and you can use the desk for two weeks if you want to."

10:35 . . . I called Dave Stein of The Varsity and made a progress report. We decided all was going well and I was to stick it out for a while.

10:50 . . . I called Andy Stabins, waiting across the street, and he was on his way to the city room.

It seemed the hoax had been carried off.

Tom Bird turned to me and asked me when I had started work. "Have you worked on a paper before," he said.

"Mainly weeklies," I said. "This is the first time I have been a daily reporter."

10:55 . . . Andy arrived and we held a small conference.

He moved to the news section and began to take flashless pictures of the sports department around me.

We then decided it was time to expose ourselves and get a reaction.

I was working in John MacDonald's department and sitting at his desk.

We went to him and explained I was not a Star reporter but a member of The Varsity and we had reversed their hoax.

MacDonald reported he had believed I was working for him. He then filled his department in on what Andy and I were doing there.

It broke them up.

11:00 . . . We moved to the news section and revealed ourselves to Yvonne Crittenden, the Star reporter who had infiltrated UC.

She had worked two desks away from me and she had been completely fooled.

A Star photographer arrived on the scene and began to try taking some pictures.

That was the signal for Andy and I to leave fast with our scoop.

The receptionist from the outer office appeared and asked me if I worked there.

I said no.

"How did you get past the desk," she said.

"I just walked in," I said.

For Only $1,425,000 . . . Vic Women Get Best

By JOAN VASTEKAS
Varsity Staff Writer

Two hundred Victoria College women are this year accommodated for the first time in Vic's spanking new six-storey, arc-shaped $1,425,000 Margaret Addison Hall.

The ultramodern residence is located behind Annesley Hall — other Vic women's residence—at Charles St. West and Queen's Park Drive. It accommodates 200 women in 60 double and 80 single rooms.

Each of five bedroom floors contains a kitchenette, laundry, common room, dons suite and two washrooms while the entrance floor features a spacious main lounge with a circular library, as well as some undergraduate rooms and the senior don's suite.

The main approach to the residence is from Charles St. West. One immediately notices the landscaping between the older Wymilwood and the new residence. There has been an attempt here on the part of the architects, Gordon Adamson and Associates, to coordinate the actual mass of the construction with the surrounding existing space.

The use of three pieces of related sculpture by E. B. Cox in front of the entrance represent a further attempt towards greater dimension, although the sculptures have little to offer in themselves as pieces of expressive art. Their embryonic forms lack the feeling of completion.

Upon entry into Margaret Addison Hall one is greeted by an almost antiseptic lightness. The walls are painted completely in white. It is in the furnishings that the main colour scheme is developed. The main public room on the ground floor is a large common room and a circular enclosed library.

This library lacks much in the way of foresight. In the first place it is not appealing aesthetically. Within the enclosed circular space one of the piers of the building itself stands like a sore thumb. As far as its function is concerned, once the door is shut, anyone studying could not help but feel trapped, partly because of the dark wood and partly because there is no circulation of air.

There seems to be a lack of foresight in the furnishings also. The common room seems a collection of pieces that are tasteful in themselves but when put together in one large room, result in an overall feeling of sheer mediocrity. The rug is an indescribable shade of beige; the draperies are white net with yellow flecks; the chairs, in various styles, are blue, beige and

red. The interior designers would have been more successful in creating an interesting interior had they designed around a central focal point. A more appealing interior would have resulted if they had evolved a colour scheme around the painting by Charles Comfort which hangs to one side of the wall.

On each of the five dormitory floors there is a common room, complete with a new piano. Each furniture is walnut with arborite tops, the desks are large, the bookshelves are built in, there are three lamps in each room and the floors are covered with rubber tile. The halls are lined with broadloom.

In final effect however, one feels that this is again another more or less mediocre Toronto construction. It is less appealing than the older Wymilwood. One cannot say that it is bad, but it

PEERING CURVE of the new Margaret Addison residence (left). Victoria College women now dominates the university's northeast campus and towers imposingly above the old Annesley Hall.

MUSIC:

hungartistry

By TED BARNES

It is difficult to say exactly who was the star at last evening's performance by the Philharmonic Hungaria at Massey Hall. With their applause the audience was trying hard to outdo the marvellous work of this new orchestra; the guest conductor, Antal Dorati, most certainly earned the praise bestowed upon him; the orchestra itself, if they stayed around long enough, would probably start putting the TSO to shame; and of course the music was the kind to which any audience responds readily.

Perhaps Beethoven's Egmont Overture and the Dances from Galanta by Zoltan Kodaly were the best performed works on the program. With no apparent effort at all, Dorati was able to build up a performance of the Egmont that was notable for its drive, bite, compulsion, and sureness.

We were surprised by the unity of the orchestra, for this piece of music is full of difficult, exposed entries for all sections of the group.

The Dances from Galanta are colored throughout with the Hungarian folk element. Although the five sections are contrasted in mood and style, we had the impression of one complete picture of the Hungarian people.

Schubert's Fifth Symphony, a thoroughly lyrical work, was expressively handled. There were one or two criticisms however, which we would like to make. For example, in spite of the carefully phrased reading of the second movement, we felt a degree of hesitation in a few places; this may have been due to Dorati's rather indefinite indication of entries. While the third movement was bright in tempo and spirited, the numerous sections (a feature of the classical handling of such a movement) didn't seem to adhere as well as we would have wished. On the other hand, the final movement flowed continuously, and proved the high technical calibre of the orchestra, even though Dorati's tempo may have been a little fast (164 beats per minute).

Bela Bartok's Dance Suite was the third of the four numbers on the program. It is extremely difficult from a technical point of view, but both conductor and orchestra seemed to know it almost from heart. Certainly Dorati had it well in hand all the way, and nowhere in the piece was any member of the orchestra caught napping. The humorous character of the work was easily evident, and one felt the orchestra was having almost more fun than the audience.

Encores including the Rocozy March and the Intermezzo (fifth movement) from Kodaly's Hary Janis Suite. The latter is a portrayal of the swashbuckling legendary hero that would equal Strauss' Till Eulenspiegel.

We had to leave while they were still playing encores, but we wished we could have listened to this wonderful new orchestra all night long.

STARK SIMPLICITY of statues by Toronto sculptor E. B. Cox sets off the modern architecture of Vic's Margaret Addison Hall.

room has a different colour scheme; there are only three repeats on each floor. The rooms are both doubles and singles. Every wall is painted white over plastered walls that make the residence completely soundproof. The general opinion is that living in the new residence is like having a little holiday at the Park Plaza, without the K.C.R. It is no wonder. The

is not outstanding. The thing 'works' as any architect would say, but outside of the 'twist for interest' the curve is meaningless as far as the function of the building is concerned. It is just another box with a bend in the middle.

The architect is trying, however, and trial and error seems to be the only way.

A Quiet Memorial Most Gallant Affair

This Most Gallant Affair, now showing at the Odeon Carleton, the J. Arthur Rank production of the Dieppe raid on Aug. 19, 1942 can only be described as a memorial to those who died on that unforgettable day. It is a quiet memorial, at that; no loud bands play their usual blaring strains, no raucous commentators snarl the usual patriotic lines. It is hard to be exultant about a battle in which over 3,000 of a force of 5,000 men, lost their lives within nine short hours.

In this way, the film is different. It is not a documentary, for lack of any appreciable amount of actual battle film makes that impossible. John Fisher, with a long-awaited style of quiet patriotism to his narrative, tells us that "a fable" has been woven into the story, "to bring relief from the scenes of battle". The fable concerns a Canadian girl who returns to the place where her brother died . . . Dieppe. She is trying to understand, we are told, why her brother died, and it is to the credit of the film that no attempt is made to fully answer this question. Few producers of this type of motion picture would have shown such restraint in trying to justify the raid, especially after asking the question.

Certainly, the arguments justifying Dieppe are advanced; the old theories of assault were scrapped, the invasions of North Africa, Italy, and Normandy were successful, thousands of Allied lives were saved. But no attempt is made to minimize the staggering price, of over 3,000 out of 5,000 killed, and full tribute is paid to the Royal Regiment whose total force of 554 men was reduced to 265, of which 200 were taken prisoner.

We are invited to form our own opinions, if we wish. We can contrast the busy, bustling Dieppe of today with those silent awful beaches holding their tremendous load of dead. The crowded market street suddenly is filled with the endless column of Canadian prisoners marching away from the coast. There is a certain amount of embarrassment in realizing that most of the film is German, cold, crisp, professional, but above all, triumphant. It is embarrassing too, to see the still bodies on the beach and not feel too much sadness; we who are young never knew these men and fifteen years later, they are even more the victims of history.

The only martial music played was taps and reveille, certainly they were justified in this memorial, and one can only regret that they were not integral parts of the film. They were included in the short Legion ceremony which took place in the theatre, before the film's first showing to the public.

It only remains to ask, what did the survivors think of the picture? One officer spoke for them all when he said, rather hesitantly: "It's hard to ask a fellow who was there, what he thinks of the film; to us it wasn't (a film). Well, when you look along the seawall and see all those bodies, you remember that you knew those men; they were your friends."

Morgan Tamplin

comment

arty and brassy

A Serious Band

To most Canadians, band music means an exuberant brassy sound in flashy uniforms parading in front of a football team, or a small group of elderly men playing in a park on a pleasant summer evening.

But there is, in addition to the old favourites of the parades and band concerts, a whole literature of concert band music that is on the highest artistic level. It is a challenge both to the performers and to the audience.

Two young teachers at the Royal Conservatory of Music, Paul Brody, and Eldon Lehman, have long dreamed of bringing serious band music to the University of Toronto. In March of this year they held their first meeting and organized their first concert band on the campus. They received an enthusiastic response but because of oncoming exams had to disband before a great deal could be accomplished.

On Tuesday, October 6, the first meeting of the concert band will be held in the recital hall of the conservatory at 6:30 p.m.

Mr. Brody is looking forward to a large turnout of men and women students who have had some training in brass and percussion instruments and who wish to continue their interest in music and develop it further. He points out that many students from band centres such as Barrie, London and Oshawa, spend several years in the public school systems learning to play wind instruments and then abandon all their musical training as soon as they get to university.

The concert band will give them an opportunity to continue with their musical training and to develop a greater appreciation of music in general.

The concert band will play symphonic band music of a quality and depth that has never been heard around Toronto. Mr. Lehman emphasized that symphonic band music is not for band concerts and parades.

When the band is fully organized they plan to give public concerts for the students of the University. Through these concerts Mr. Brody and Mr. Lehman hope to introduce symphonic band music to this campus.

Both Mr. Brody and Mr. Lehman are eminently qualified to undertake the establishment of a full-sized concert band. Mr. Brody graduated from the University of Michigan and did his M.A. in wind instruments. He spent one year in Paris studying with virtuosos saxophonist Marcel Mule, and since 1958 he has been teaching woodwind instruments at the Royal Conservatory.

Eldon Lehman is a native of Toronto and took his Bachelor of Music degree at the conservatory. In 1958 he was selected to represent Canada as first trumpeter at the International Jeunesse Musicale in Switzerland. He is on the faculty of the conservatory and appears regularly with the C.B.C. Symphony orchestra.

The concert band is a personal ambition of both men. Paul Brody has just returned from a week at the University of Michigan studying the concert band organization there. He is looking forward to bringing many of the ideas he gained in Michigan to the U of T campus.

Mr. Brody feels strongly that wind instruments can have a higher range of expression than they are given at present.

Both Eldon Lehman and Paul Brody believe that concert band music can find a permanent place among the cultural activities of the University of Toronto. They are looking forward to a large turnout for their organization meeting on Tuesday.

VICTORIA COLLEGE CHAPEL

SUNDAY — OCTOBER 4 — 11 a.m.

"A FAITH FOR TODAY"

1. The Father Almighty — Prof. W. Morrison Kelly
ALL ARE WELCOME

CHELSEA CLUB

22 Sheppard St. — (at Richmond &amp; Bay) — EM. 3-2336

Reopening at a Fabulous New Location

FRIDAY — BUD HILL QUINTET

SATURDAY — STAN OWR QUINTET

SUNDAY — GREAT DIXIELAND with Johnny Fagan's Band

HOPE TO SEE YOU!

ROSEDALE
PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH
129 Mount Pleasant Road
(2 blocks north of Bloor,
2 blocks east of Yonge)
Minister: Rev. E. S. Mackay, M.A.
11 A.M.—"The Sacrament of The Lord Supper"
7.30 p.m.—"The Living World"
Followed by discussion and
refreshments
8.30 p.m.—Senior Youth Group
Special welcome to Varsity
Students

Trinity College Chapel

WEEKDAY SERVICES

7 a.m.—Mattins
7.30 a.m.—Eucharist
6 p.m.—Evening

SUNDAY SERVICES

8.00 a.m.—Mattins
8.15 a.m.—Eucharist
8.15 a.m.—Song Eucharist &
Sermon

EVERYBODY WELCOME

BY-POPULAR REQUEST

Hear

DR. THEODORE A. GILL

Tape Recording of the Sermon
"A Christian Cliche"

MUSIC ROOM—HART HOUSE

Friday — 1.15 p.m.

LADIES WELCOME

University
Lutheran Chapel

SUNDAY SERVICE — 11 a.m.

SUNDAY SUPPER — 5.30 p.m.

Student Club, every 2nd and
4th Thursday, at 7.45 p.m.

610 SPADINA
(below Harbord)

WA. 2-1884 — WA. 3-6840

Player's
Please

THE MILDEST BEST-TASTING CIGARETTE

comment

life or death

Yesterday in Goderich, Ontario, a judge of the Supreme Court with due solemnity condemned a 14-year-old boy to be hanged by the neck until dead.

The judge, a decent man, was no doubt horrified by what the law required him to do. But after due process of law the boy had been found guilty as charged of raping and murdering a 12-year-old girl.

The horror of the situation, one that brought tears to the eyes of many courtroom spectators, is mitigated by the near certainty that the boy will not be hanged.

As has been pointed out, since the Diefenbaker government came to power no person has been hanged when a recommendation of mercy accompanied the verdict of guilty.

Such a recommendation was made in the case of the Goderich boy.

The case throws into grim perspective the whole question of penal reforms, the question of what a society dedicated to the idea that human beings are responsible for each other is to do when one of its members, in tortured confusion, transgresses.

As the riots this summer at the Ontario Reformatory in Guelph indicated, we are not doing a great deal to help our criminals.

The explosive inquiry into dope addiction in Toronto demonstrated the same thing. Legislators and politicians alike were forced to recognize that at the moment few means are available for repairing the damage done to human beings by the systems of life we have created.

At Guelph, as prisoners huddled in mob fear and guards advanced with baseball bats and tear gas, unofficial stories circulated to indicate that violence is customary at the institution.

As an aftermath, prisoners hailed into court on charges of destroying government property begged a judge not to send them back to the prison while the judge was forced to threaten the use of the strap if further violence occurred.

The 14-year-old murderer mentioned above is now faced with a life behind bars filled with violence and fear. Serious attempts to rehabilitate him would apparently be minimal, for the simple reason that facilities for treatment are generally terribly limited.

Moreover it is implicitly admitted that such rehabilitation may not actually be possible.

We wonder therefore — and we do not for a moment desire to go on record as advocating it — if it would not be a better thing to actually carry out the sentence as originally laid down.

There is much horror in this thought, and it would take a courageous society to ask for this. But so long as we continue to fail in the attempt to repair human lives gone wrong, as long as we sentence criminals to endure prolonged punishment at a wretched animal level instead of placing them in the care of doctors, we can see almost no possibility here of choosing between life and death. MM

The circus has been in Toronto for five days now. It still has two more matinees and two more evening performances to give.

There is still time for any student who wishes to, to attend the circus.

But it's doubtful whether any of them will. They feel that circuses are something out of the dim and distant past. They are a part of childhood that they have thankfully grown out of. It takes more than a high wire act to amuse them at their level of development.

And besides, there is nothing intellectual or cultural about a circus.

Perhaps there isn't. But the circus has never claimed to be anything else but simple entertainment.

And it is perhaps a commentary on ourselves that we are no longer able to enjoy simple entertainment in the spirit in which it has been offered to us.

Under The Big

by DAVID LEWIS STEIN

Way back in the dark days of public school, the days which were supposed to be golden but which were more often damp and extremely unpleasant, I remember that when the circus came to town, passes were distributed to all the public school children in the city. We were allowed an afternoon off school and 20 cents, along with the grimly clutched pass, got us into the circus.

We poured out of the prehistoric Yonge streetcars and swarmed into Maple Leaf Gardens. We ate peanuts, eskimo pies and anything else that we could afford. We held conferences in the washrooms, fought among ourselves, annoyed the ushers, and stealthily crawled into the reserved seats. Sometimes, when there was nothing else to do, we watched the circus.

But time is supposed to coat all memories with a healthy sugar-coating of nostalgia, and still willing to believe in the myth of the circus, I went to the circus.

As the young lady and I were walking up the ramp to the reserved seats we ran into a clown, whom we later learned was called Charlie Cheer. He was dressed in the traditional downtrodden evening clothes, the battered opera hat and oversized shoes with flapping soles. He winked his red nose at us and assumed an air of injured dignity. He probably figured that we were children and we needed a laugh. The young lady giggled and turned away. Charlie Cheer was a pretty sharp clown.

We accompanied him up the ramp and ran into a small group of young men clustered around a baby carriage. Charlie Cheer leaned over and stuck his enormous red nose in the baby's face.

The baby wasn't impressed. She turned away and screamed. Children have to reach a certain level of maturity and sophistication before they can appreciate a clown.

Our seats were in the reserved section of the "Reds". It seemed like cheating to walk without subterfuge into a reserved seat. I thought of going out and sneaking back in again, but the young lady didn't go for it. She wasn't that kind of young lady.

The show began with a parade of the Rameses Lodge members in their shimmering gold satin uniforms, and a parade of the performers. A little boy who was sitting beside us was worried about the band music. He said it was waking up the lions who were lined up in cages beside the centre ring. The little boy was right. The lions did appear to be a little more lively after the parade had passed him.

The lion-tamer was dressed in white riding pants and a white shirt. He carried a long bull whip and a pistol on his belt in the manner of western movie hero. The lions didn't look too interested in the whole thing but I noticed that the lion-tamer crossed himself before he stepped into the cage. He, at least, was impressed by the lions.

The young lady and I thought it was a pretty exciting show, but the little boy wasn't impressed. But then he wasn't a very impressive little boy. He had come to the circus with his mother and that alone was enough to disqualify him.

The little boy's attention was aroused, however, by Happy Davis, the comedy clown trampolinist. During the course of his act he stripped off his

our write-eous readers

restricted

Dear Sirs:

Remembering your frequent admonitions concerning lack of interest in Student Administrative Council meetings, I decided that it would be an act of University citizenship to sit in on the group's first meeting.

I remember the greeting extended to me, the representatives of the press and three charming young ladies: "—and honoured guests", to quote the Speaker's very words. I remember them especially well, for they were virtually the last I heard that night.

Apparently there was a discussion to be held involving the near misappropriation of University funds by the zealous Blue and White chairman, and since personalities and countercharges just might be mentioned, it seemed that the council was going to open with a closed session. This miffed me somewhat but I comforted myself with the thought that after all, the forty-odd members were a responsible group that would obviously feel queasy about publishing libel to the four irresponsible onlookers.

I'm not excessively bitter; I don't want my carfare downtown refunded. I just thought I might be of service to those who wonder about the exotic advantages of being an SAC member, and to suggest to this secret society that they in future adopt the method of the Ontario Board of Censors and advise of restricted performances.

Milton Zysman, II Law

evicted

Dear Sir:

After reading your report on the new and cumbersome library procedure, I wish to add my voice to the flood of protests which will no doubt be raised. The Wallace Room used to be the only redeeming feature in the University's frustrating library system. One could walk between the shelves and select books which were not lost, hidden, or stolen, instead of having to fill out slips, only to find the books desired lost, or recently removed to another section of the library. Hunting for hidden books provided an interesting exercise in imagination and sleuthing ability.

Preoccupied with the construction of expensive buildings and looking forward to the new, revised library system, University and Library officials appear content to let reading lapse for a year or so. The tedious filling out of slips and the long waiting lines should present effective deterrents to potential library users and ease pressure all around.

In your opening editorial you say that graduating students "couldn't have picked a poorer time to leave". I agree. Many of us would like to have left a year earlier.

George Welder, IV U.C.

THE VARSITY

FOUNDED 1880

Published by
The Students' Administrative Council
of the University of Toronto

Toronto 5, Canada
Member Canadian University Press

Editorial and News Office
Basement, SAC Building — WA. 3-8742, WA. 3-8113
Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221

Editor-In-Chief Sam Ajzenstat
Acting Managing Editors Susie Breslin, Harvey Shepherd
Acting News Editor Ed Roberts
Acting CUP Editor Alan Walker
Acting Photo Editor Andrew Stabins
Acting Sports Editor Dave Griner
Acting AM&D Editor Elmo Ciprietti
Acting Features Editor Dave Stein
Acting Publicity Editor Jayne Nesbitt
TODAY'S ISSUE: Fran Maine, Sally Jones, Marvonne Kelo, Ralph Armstrong, Rikki Kelman, Rochelle Gelman, Boris Freesman, Fred Host, Phil Palter, Peter Dembski, Walt McLean, Richard Lee, Ed Hinchley, retroactively Gary Goldthorpe, a sleepy Co-Managing Editor, frantic phone calls from a downtown daily — something about a "hoax", and the usual pressing of panic buttons . . .
Staff Photographer on Duty: Mike Cavanagh.

room at the top

The Romantic Rut

ROOM AT THE TOP

After a long summer run, Room at the Top is going to be held at the Towne until Thanksgiving. Drop whatever you are doing and go and see it. It is as easy as that. The much discussed English picture is technically a gem, and as far as "discussability" or meat is concerned, it is loaded. The phrase "total relevance" used to be a favorite around here for exam time paens of a novel or poem. I'm not sure that Room at the Top is totally relevant, but I suspect that it will come painfully close to the bone of most university students. The themes of love and ambition are handled with a force and candor, as well as skill, that make this picture notable. It is not a great picture, but it is a damn good one.

The phrase "realistic drama" has been (generally) applied to this picture, and in a certain sense it is obviously true. This is no Gigi to be sure, but the tag "realistic" can be deceiving, because it is no de Sica piece either, of the sort that simply presents a situation without comment. It is a movie of indignant and bitter comment, or moralizing if you prefer, powerfully presented on the screen due to the immense skill of Jack Clayton, the director, and a uniformly strong cast. On cooler reflecting though, it seems to me that what the film has to say does not stand up so well.

The story line in skeleton form is nothing to cause any particular excitement. Joe Lampton (Laurence Harvey) arrives in Warnley, a second class North Country industrial city from Dufton, a third class one, where he has grown up in the working class section, to take a municipal accountant's job. He takes rooms with an office friend who shows him from their window the "Top", the hill crest where the town's mercantile aristocracy lives in circumstances notably more attractive than his own. He insists that he will get there. He does, too, only to find that the "Top" has a rather different appearance when you have arrived (sort of), and that his new position has cost plenty in a currency that he never knew existed.

The question of Room at the Top's "message", like all questions, can be divided into two parts. By far the film's stronger theme is its tirade against the British industrial, and industrial class, system. From the emaciated working class people who live in a grinding poverty and squalor that England has never shown us in her films before, to the wealthy, frantically bent on preserving their provincial social prerogatives, the picture shows a society that is corrupt, corrupting, and repressive. The situation is condemned again most effectively in the personality and methods of Joe Lampton, the man who goes from the bottom of the dismal heap to the top, a success that the film characterizes as the bitterest human failure. This of course is the "Angry Young Man" aspect of the work, and despite what must be overdrawn portraits of the upper class girl, her mother and her suitor, materially it is the stronger of the film's themes. The shots of the tiny windowed brick tenements in which the workers live are eye-opening, to put it mildly, and unforgettable.

Discussion of the second, more positive, and to my mind weaker theme is made greatly more difficult by the performance of Simone Signoret. My quarrel with it is purely "philosophical", more a criticism of the novel than the film. Not only is its presentation on the screen unexceptionable, but Mlle Signoret's excellence is almost too persuasive. Young Lampton comes from a background of the most extreme poverty, spiritual and moral even more than economic. He is totally bent on enriching his lot by whatever means comes to hand, but he sees only the economic and class spheres in which to do it. In the course of the story another alternative is offered to him although he does not realize it until too late. This is finding in himself a love to answer the strength and honesty of Alice Asquith (Simone Signoret) very loving nature. It is clear that Joe loses Alice through lack of courage and generosity, and the film condemns him morally for this - the film is hardly a simple witness in the scene in which he allows her husband to take back the cheque to ease that she had given him. It seems fair then to say that the film is saying that he should have been loyal to her and implying that he would have been happy with her if he had. Given the Joe that we are, despite his days of shock and mourning, this seems a little impossible.

The picture has done a fine classic job of destruction, but the proposing of romantic love, no matter how mature and deep, as a solution to the problems of Joe and his society seems amazingly naive. A movie that is certainly something of a daring departure for the English film industry, despite numerous subtleties and virtues of presentation in fact winds up in the movie's most banal rut, advocating the same old meretricious illusion that romantic passion solves all. In a picture as ambitious as this, it is a severe disappointment.

Peter Lydon

Top

until he was dressed only in tights. boy wanted to know if the tights, which to be a vivid red color, were Mr. Davis' pants. It was a valid question, but I think the little boy should have asked it to make little boys like they used to.

ing lady and I were completely captivated. It was not that their humor was devastating, but that it was presented with an overwhelming zest and goodwill. It was not to be moved by the clowns. Even my mother laughed occasionally.

max of the show was Captain Sputnik, who, the ringmaster informed us, was a circus clown. He entered surrounded by six men dressed in what appeared to be Varsity uniforms. They stood in the centre of the ring and raised their arms like priestesses to the music of a band. Captain Sputnik took off his magnifying glass and climbed into the barrel of the cannon. The ringmaster called for absolute silence; the priestesses pointed to the net where the clown would land; somebody asked Captain Sputnik if he was ready; a muffled shout came from somewhere in the bowels of the cannon; an explosion and Captain Sputnik flew through the air into his net while roman candles went off in a far ring and the band played God Save the Queen.

ing lady and I took our dignified place in the front row of the exciting crowds. The little boy left to go home. He went without his mother.

the lion-tamer

Children Love It

For 27 years the Hamid-Morton circus has been coming to Toronto every autumn. In those years it has raised approximately $800,000 for Shrine Hospitals, local charities and benevolent purposes.

The Ancient Arabic Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine maintain 17 "Shriners' Hospitals" for crippled children throughout the United States and Canada. No charge is made for the treatment of children in a hospital run by the Shriners. They are a 100 per cent charity organization and depend on the energy of their supporters and the benevolence of the general public for their survival.

In 1958 the circus raised $30,000 for the hospitals. Shrine Circus Director Ralph A. Percy reports that attendance is up this year over last year and that they are looking forward to even greater dividends for the Shrine charities.

The circus that the Shrine has brought to Toronto this year what Mr. Percy calls "A Warm Family Show". There is no burlesque and no off-color humor. It is designed primarily for children but Mr. Percy emphasized the fact that his evening audience is composed mainly of adults who seemed to enjoy the show even more than the kids.

Charlie Cheer, a clown whose working clothes consist of shabby evening dress and a down-trodden opera hat, believes that one must love children in order to be a clown.

Mr. Cheer, who was never married himself, believes that the love of children is a gift that one must be born with. Mr. Cheer was born in Russia and began his career there. He has been in show business all his life. He believes that the clown is the property of the children and is, in his finest moments, a true artist.

Alfred Vidvell, the clown, has been with the Hamid-Morton circus for nine years. He has three elephants with him and they form one of the most enjoyable acts in the show.

Mr. Vidvell's partner, Diane Wilson is one of three daughters of a clown who performs with Hamid-Morton Circus. The three girls can perform with the Indian clubs or on the high wire. They are an exceptionally versatile family and Mr. Percy calls them an asset to any show.

Perhaps the most thrilling moment in Mr. Vidvell's act comes when one of his trained elephants picks up Miss Wilson in his mouth and carries her around the ring. The gasps from the crowd fill the arena but Mr. Vidvell is confident of his partner's safety.

The Triska's are an aerial troupe whose somersaults on the high wire leave the audience breathless. The youngest member of the troupe, the daughter of Mr. Triska is only seven years old. She perches on top of the girl who perches on top of Mr. Triska while they cross the high wire. And she doesn't know yet whether she wants to make a career out of show business.

Pat Anthony, the lion tamer had what he called a "bad day" in Kansas City two years ago. He wound up with 130 stitches. He carries a bull whip with him in the cage and a pistol. The pistol is loaded with blanks and its chief purpose is to blind the animal temporarily.

Mr. Ralph Percy, the Shrine Circus Director, believes that anyone who works in a circus must be half out of his mind. But the people The Varsity interviewed seemed remarkably sane. They had all been in show business all their lives and they loved what they were doing.

The lion tamer even invited photographer Jayne Nesbitt to come back for the evening performance. But she had to come and work at The Varsity.

and his lion

comment

the columnist's manifesto

Opinions fly thick and fast through the coffee shops on campus; only a few of them ever find their way into print. The Varsity's editors have as many personal opinions as most people at U of T and are quite happy to capitalize the paper's comment pages. But occasionally we like to hear what our readers think. These pages are open to all of you. Use them.

ON MUSIC
CRITICISM

By TED BARNES

I. A Sense of Humour

This summer my attention was drawn to a fascinating book by Mr. Neville Cardus, venerable music critic for the Manchester Guardian, entitled Talking of Music (Collins, London, 1957). It is a collation of essays he has written for his paper in recent years. I find much that is common sense in this book, and would like to present and develop some of Cardus' remarks for our own music audiences.

One point extremely well taken is that contemporary music criticism is notable for "a plentiful lack of humour and an excess of solemnity". The days of Bernard Shaw and John Ruskin are indeed past!

Illustrating the "shillelagh laying-about of Ruskinism", Cardus quotes that critic's remarks on a new tenor from Bayreuth (the shrine of Wagner's influence for 80 years past): "As for the new Siegfried, I thought little of him. For the most part he stood about the vast Covent Garden stage like a block of wood, with his mouth wide open, until the moment came for him to sing, when he promptly shut it." And what Toronto critic would be original enough to begin a review as did the late Ernest Newman: "The higher the voice, the lower the intellect". It is obvious how much more these skilful writers mean than they actually need say!

Most Toronto critics are, I believe, of this rather dry, academic nature which Mr. Cardus laments. Seldom do they bring any power of expressive imagination to their writing. You can pick up a copy of just about any newspaper published this week and see what I mean. I shall avoid mentioning names; at any rate the moderately informed reader will know what I have in mind.

True, there is one writer in our evening papers who enjoys a jolly frisk now and then. But I doubt that any discriminating reader enjoys it with him, for he displays himself as a rather brash, boorish, flamboyant, ill-educated individual, seemingly possessed of a God-complex and empowered to voice his commendation or damnation of a work or an artist while at the same time proudly displaying his ignorance of the standards of taste and of artistic justice and shrewdness. He is, in a word, expendable.

But as for the other critics (who at least seem to strive to earn the title), Mr. Cardus' remark most certainly holds true. Sometimes we wonder even how much artistic acumen they bring to their task, but we must guard against laying ourselves open to similar retaliation! After all, provided the critic possesses a high degree of musical training, is willing to continue learning, and has his heart and soul attuned to the aesthetic rapport between composer and artist (Beethoven himself said of his own music, "From the heart to the heart"), then, to quote Mr. Cardus yet again, his "responsibility is not such a burden that he need wear a long face perpetually". What cloudy souls must some people have!

The hunter is often the hunted, and critics are often vehemently criticized. In the next article I want to defend as best I can the critic and his function in our artistic society.

Think Thin

The Pudgy Hand

North By Northwest (Loew's), Alfred Hitchcock's virtuoso exercise in suspenseful melodrama, is filled with authentic Technicolour views of America and packed with authentic Hitchcock hokum.

All the deft master's time-worn touches are here: colourful locales (the United Nations Buildings; Mount Rushmore National Park); a fast-moving opening sequence; eccentric character (a tight-lipped mid-west corn farmer); child Alfred's traditional walk-across appearance; long, heavily-directed clinches (Cary Grant and Eve-Marie Saint); pages of brittle, sophisticated dialogue and loads of bedroom innuendo ("now what can a man do with his clothes off for twenty minutes?"); a generous dollop of broad humour; suspense as slick as ice and often as chilling; and one damn coincidence after another. But despite the gimmicky Hitchcock-signature direction and a blithely implausible plot, the film never veers from its intended destination, highly palatable cinema entertainment.

Cary Grant, a grey-flanneled, slogan-spouting ("Think Thin") Madison Avenue adman is mistaken for another chap, kidnapped by urbane spy James Mason and sent to run the gauntlet, cross-country from one improbable danger to another. He is forced-fed a full quart of bourbon, turned loose in a Mercedes on a treacherous seaside road, strafed by a Tiger-Moth in a midwest cornfield, seduced by Eve-Marie Saint on board "The 20th Century Limited" and ultimately winds up cliff-hanging on the faces of Mount Rushmore.

"Why did your two ex-wives divorce you?", enquires Eve-Marie.

"They said I led too dull a life," returns Cary, getting a firmer grip on Teddy Roosevelt's lower lip.

And so it goes until finally the C.I.A. (Leo G. Carroll) comes to his rescue and sends Cary packing back to the big city.

Ernest Lehman's patently fantastic screenplay requires more than a willing suspension of disbelief, but, at the same time, titillates with an appealing mosaic of epigrams (e.g., "I've got a job, a mother, a secretary, two ex-wives, and several bartenders dependent upon me").

In the acting department, Cary Grant at fifty-four is still the master of "savoir faire" for the ladies and for the men, a leading exponent of "savoir vivre" and sotto-voce under-actor James Mason makes an ideal foreign intriguer. Most appealing, however, is Eve-Marie Saint, who, as the kind of girl who uses sex as a flyswatter, has dropped the "Method" mannerisms of her earlier films and now plays in a broad, engaging Hollywood style.

The prime-mover, of course, is Hitchcock, whose pudgy hand is apparent throughout in a thoroughly entertaining production that offers not only tricks, but also treats. Ted Schafer

University College
Installation

of
Moffatt St. Andrew Woodside
As Principal

Monday, October 5, at 8:00 p.m.

in
Convocation Hall

Staff and students are cordially invited to attend

TWO B & W DANCES
THIS WEEKEND

1. ON FRIDAY

IMMEDIATELY AFTER GAME

JOHNNY ALLISON and HIS ORCHESTRA

VARSITY ARENA

50c PER PERSON

Tickets for Sale at the Arena after the Game

2. BLUE & WHITE
FOOTBALL DANCE

HART HOUSE

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 3, 9 P.M.

$2.50 Per Couple

Tickets — S.A.C. Office Only

No Phone Reservations

CCF Leader Accuses Globe and Mail

Ottawa CCF leader Donald Macdonald yesterday blasted Canadian newspapers, especially the Toronto Globe and Mail.

Speaking to a meeting of the U of T CCF club, Mr. Macdonald accused the Globe and Mail of distorting facts and political events leading to the possible merger of a new party between the Canadian Labor Congress and the CCF.

He said the new party is the "most exciting experiment in democracy ever experienced in this country".

"The merger is not a threat to democracy but is inevitable to freedom as it is known in Canada today," he added.

Mr. Macdonald made it clear that capitalism is slowly being overtaken by communism. "Unless a form of socialistic government control is introduced into Canada we will lose all our existing liberties."

He emphasized that labor will not be "dragged into this party". If disagreement arises individual unions will have every chance to pull out of the proposed party, he said.

The CCF boss said the new political party will be officially launched either late next year or in the spring of 1961. "At any rate," he continued, "the party will be ready to make a bid for seats in the next federal election."

The main object of the new party is to give labor and farmers a chance to voice their opinions in a political organization with a fresh point of view, he said.

Knox Dean III

Dr. J. S. Glen, principal of Knox College, will undergo minor nose surgery at Western Hospital this week.

The operation will correct injuries received in an accident several years ago. Dr. Glen is expected to be in hospital for a week.

Dr. D. K. Andrews will assume Dr. Glen's duties until his recovery.

Nfcus Budget In Black First Time In History

OTTAWA, Oct. 1, (CUP)—The National Federation of Canadian University Students poured its red ink down the drain today after auditors announced the federation made it into the black again this year.

For the first time since the disastrous year of 1956-57 the travel department was financially self-sufficient enabling the erasure of the 1957-58 overall deficit of $3,440.

The overall surplus last year was $2,315.

Nfcus President Mortimer Bistrisky said as of August 31 the travel department pulled itself up to a surplus of about $172 from deficits of more than $4,000 in both 1956-57 and 1957-58.

"Financially we are now at self sufficient," Bistrisky said.

"Then we can think in terms of building, particularly in the travel department, to offset possible unforeseen incidents in the future," he said.

"Under such a scheme it would not take two or three years for the federation to recuperate from a bad year."

Bistrisky stressed that credit must go to the director, Jean-Pierre Jinchereau, who "dedicated himself to the task of putting the department back on its feet."

Hear A Talk on "OIL AND UNREST IN LATIN AMERICA"

by HARVEY O'CONNOR
American Author-Editor-Reporter, recently returned from a tour of Latin America
SATURDAY, OCTOBER 3-8 p.m.
STEELWORKERS' HALL, COUNCIL ROOM, 33 Cecil Street
Auspicies: Labour Forum — Admission Free

The F.R.O.S. FALL RECEPTION

Q U A D ?
— Short for Hart House Quadrangle — (straight through the centre door)

A good place to be FRIDAY, OCT. 2 — 4-6 p.m.

FROS invites Canadian and overseas students. Come and narrow the gap between the world and our campus over a glass of punch.

Laidlaw Lectures — Knox College

JAROSLAV PELIKAN

Professor of Historical Theology, University of Chicago

THE DIMENSIONS OF DEATH

Mon., Sept. 28 — The Arc of Existence
Tues., Sept. 29 — The Circle of Immortality
Wed., Sept. 30 — The Triangle of Mortality
Thurs., Oct. 1 — The Parabola of Eternity
Fri., Oct. 2 — The Spiral of History

All lectures 5:00-6:00 p.m. in the College Chapel
Staff, Students and Public cordially invited

PRESBYTERIAN FELLOWSHIP

In The

University of Toronto

Welcomes all students to consider and to practise the Christian Faith with us.

SERVICE OF WORSHIP

OCTOBER 4th — 11.00 a.m.
KNOX COLLEGE CHAPEL
Rev. D. McKillican, B.D.

GET ACQUAINTED SOCIAL

OCTOBER 8th — 8.00 p.m.

156 ST. GEORGE STREET

Fun 'n' Fashion ESKILOOS

They're here... in fabulously smart, bright colours — the new lushly lined cold-weather footwear in a wide range of styles and materials. Some to wear over your shoes, some instead of shoes, that weigh next to nothing on your feet. Look marvelous with pants — smart with skirts too. Keep your toes warm as love all winter in ESKILOOS.

Available at all leading shoe and department stores.

Dominion Footwear
OF UNITED RUBBER

Hart House

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 2nd: 1.15 — Music Room
Tape Recording of the sermon "A Christian Cliche" by Dr. Theodore Gilh.
CALEDON HILLS FARM: Outing Club

NEXT WEEK

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 6th:

8 a.m.—Holy Communion — Chapel
7 p.m.—Art Class Organization Meeting — Art Gallery
7 p.m.—Glee Club Full Rehearsal — Music Room

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 7th:

12.15 p.m.—Noon-day Prayers and brief address by the Chaplain — Chapel

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 8th:

8 a.m.—Holy Communion — Chapel
8 p.m.—Debate: "Canadians suffer from moral hypocrisy"
Debates Room — Honorary Visitor: Frank Tumpane
8 p.m.—Archery Club Organization Meeting — Rifle Range

SOCCER SCHEDULE—WEEK OF OCT. 6

Wed. Oct. 7	North 12.30 St. M. A	vs	Sr. SPS	Bugarski
	South 4.15 Wyc	vs	Knox	Bonfield
Thur. Oct. 8	North 12.30 vic	vs	Jr. SPS	Bugarski
	South 4.15 Trin. A	vs	Med. A	Seizer
Fri. Oct. 9	North 12.30 SPS III	vs	Trin. B	Bonfield
	South 4.15 Pharm	vs	Law	Avis
	North 4.15 U.C.	vs	Med. B	Bugarski

Managers please note—Team Registration Lists must be filed in Intramural office prior to first game.
THERE IS STILL AN URGENT NEED FOR SOCCER OFFICIALS.
APPLY NOW AT INTRAMURAL OFFICE, HART HOUSE.

STANDING COMMITTEE MEETINGS THIS WEEK

Staff Room, 2nd Floor, Hart House
VOLLEYBALL—Mon. Oct. 5 — 1.00 p.m.
FOOTBALL —Tues. Oct. 6 — 1.00 p.m.

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS

BASKETBALL

Practices for Week of Oct. 5 to Oct. 3.

O.C.F.	Mon. Oct. 5	Tues. Oct. 6	Wed. Oct. 7	Thurs. Oct. 8
5.30—Nursing Sr.	POTS I & II	PHE III	Nursing Srs.
6.30—PHO I	POTS I & II	PHE II	U.C. Jr. Sr.
7.30—St. Hilda's Sophs.		Nursing Jrs.	U.C. Sophs.
8.30—St. Hilda's Sophs.		Med.	Pharmacy

L.M.L. Mon. Oct. 5 Tues. Oct. 6 Wed. Oct. 7 Thurs. Oct. 8
6.00—Nursing Jrs Pharmacy U.C. Sophs. PHE III
7.00—St. Hilda's Jr. Sr. PHE I U.C. Jr. Sr. PHE II
8.00—U.C. Freshies St. Hilda's S. St. Hilda's J. S. Meds
There will be a meeting of the basketball representatives on Friday, Oct. 9th at 1 p.m. in the Lower Gym of the New Women's Athletic Building (Harbord St.).

Varsity vs. MCGILL TONIGHT at 8 p.m.

FLOODLIGHT GAME

MCGILL REDMEN

22. Red McKinnon
25. Al Kleverick
26. Leo Konyk
30. Wally Barrie
32. Chuck Arnold
33. Mark Matt
35. Tony Blair
36. Chuck Wood
38. Jack Robson
40. Tom Stefi
42. Paul Harasimowicz
44. Alf MacKenzie
45. Mike Byrne
46. Colin Russell
50. Jake Perlmutter
52. Bob Tucker
54. John McLernon
55. Don Campbell
58. Steve Longstaff
59. Gord Merritt
60. John Roberts
68. Frank Maczko
70. Carl Hansen
72. Willie Lambert
73. Charlie McLaughlin
77. Luke Gravelle
78. Dave Martin
80. Dan Tingley
82. Bob Milligan
83. Jack Behrmann
85. Joe Irvin
92. Tom Hall
94. Bill Holmes
99. John Moore

Manager: Wally Bulchak

Coach: Bruce Coulter

Asst. Coaches: Vaughan
McVey, John Taylor

VARSITY BLUES

20. Ron Crawford
21. Milt Jewell
22. Peter Eby
30. Peter Warren
31. Bill Bulucan
32. Trevor Eytton, Co-Capt.
33. Sandy Bell
35. Morgan Dever
40. Weldon Thoburn
41. Bruce Jackson
42. Mike Chykaluk
43. Casey Wood
44. John Evans
45. Brian Bradstock
46. Bill Kay
50. Mike Muir
51. Doug Jack
52. Doug Loughheed
54. Doug Baird
55. Wale Sopinka
60. Everett Rush
61. Nick Sopinka
62. Bob Campbell
70. Doug Wyles
71. Doug Boyd
72. Dick Farr
80. Steve Chisholm, Co-Capt.
81. Mike Smith
83. Ian Knowles
84. Joe Foreman
85. Al Connolly
86. Pete Potter
87. Dave Craswell
88. Ken Myers
89. John Spence
90. Bob Dann
92. Paul Burroughs
99. Jim Murchie

Manager: Bob Miner

Coach: Dalt White

Asst. Coaches: Jack
Kennedy, John McManus

Mohammed — Like

Blood Clinic Comes to Students

University of Toronto students will no longer go to the Red Cross Blood clinic. The clinic will come to the students.

Officials of the Red Cross hope that by making the clinic more available, more students will be able to donate blood.

A tentative schedule has been set up as follows. A clinic will be set up for Faculty of Law students at Sunnybrook Hospital. Lawrence Park Community Church will also be available on October 19.

Music students will bleed on October 19-20, and Nursing students on October 20. For Victoria College and Emmanuel a clinic will be set up at Victoria on October 16-19.

A clinic will be set up in Hart House for pre-medical students on October 21, and senior medical students will give blood on October 19-20 from noon to 3.30 p.m. at 67 College St.

The dates for University College students are October 21, 22 and 23 in U.C. Dentistry is scheduled for October 22 and Pharmacy for October 23.

Ontario College of Education will donate blood on October 26, Physical and Occupational Therapy on October 27, and the School of Practical Science on October 28, 29 and 30.

Convocation Hall of Trinity College will be equipped for Trinity students on October 27. Forestry will be bled on October 30, and for students at St. Michael's College there will be facilities in the college on October 28.

Pledge cards are being distributed by the campaign leaders in the various faculties and colleges in order to let the Red Cross know how many donors to expect each day. Posters will be distributed to each college and faculty, and a large billboard will be displayed in front of the Students' Administrative Council Building.

Out They Go

The U of T Outing Club will go all out to launch its activities this weekend at Caledon Hills Farm.

Students who attend the weekend will get a chance to acquaint themselves with the many varied activities of the organization including lessons in campfire lore.

Transportation will be by car. Those interested call Phil Herwig at HU. 9-8015.

INTERCOLLEGIATE LEAGUE

VARSITY

AT

WESTERN

Saturday, October 10th

EXCURSION AND TICKET ARRANGEMENTS

STUDENTS' ADMINISTRATIVE COUNCIL

(Excursion Rate — $5.00 Return)
SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 1st
Leaving Toronto 9.30 Toronto time
Arriving London 12.42 London Time
Good for Return Any Train
S.A.C. will sell Combination Train and Game or Train tickets only.

ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

Game Tickets Only

On Sale at the Athletic Office — Hart House
from 9.15 a.m. to 5.00 p.m.
Prices — $1.50 and $2.00

ALL TICKETS ON SALE MONDAY

Football! $2.50 Hockey!

Student Tickets

STUDENT TICKET SALE

COUPON BOOKS admitting to the Student Section at Varsity Stadium and Varsity Arena (combined book) will be sold at the south door of Varsity Arena (off Philosopher's Walk) from 10.00 a.m. to 5.00 p.m. TODAY. The coupons admit owner to the Student Section on a "first come best seat" basis, the football section extending south from centre field and the hockey section including all the east side of the Arena. TICKETS ADMIT OWNERS TO FOLLOWING GAMES:

VARSITY STADIUM
Oct. 3 ..... MCGILL
(Friday at 8.00 p.m.)
Oct. 24 ..... QUEEN'S
Oct. 31 ..... WESTERN

VARSITY ARENA
Nov. 27 ..... Laval
Nov. 30 ..... Michigan
Dec. 11 ..... U. of Montreal
Jan. 22 ..... McGill
Feb. 6 ..... U. of Montreal
Feb. 19 ..... Laval
Feb. 26 ..... Queen's
Mch. 4 ..... McGill

NOTE: Football books only may be purchased for $2.00. Hockey books will be sold separately for $1.00 after the close of the football season, so a saving of 50c is effected by purchasing the combined book.

MARRIED STUDENTS may purchase an additional book for their wives or husbands. GRADUATE STUDENTS in full time courses may purchase a student ticket upon presentation of a certificate of enrolment signed by an official of the School of Graduate Studies.

Bring your Identification Card. Tickets cannot be purchased without one.

STUDENT TICKETS ARE NOT TRANSFERABLE.

BLUE GUNS TRAIN ON MCGILL

A New Dream for Ben Nightmare for Redmen

All the week long I am being, so taken up with the business of settling the odds and the inevitable outcomes of such picaresque matters as National League playoffs and the World Series, which are the sort of things from which I am gleaming the great odds of capital necessary for covering all the bets on my own dear sweet Varsity Bluesers, that I have no time until now to sit and think upon the outcome of this momentous contest.

Suddenly however the gloom is breaking as into my sanctum walks none other than my old friend goon companion Slimy Sydney Sowcheeks who at one time is sustaining Benny when there is a depression among the books and even Benny is unable to make a living or even anything so that when Slimy Sydney dips into the family pork-barrel and supplies yours truly, or almost, with something to go on I am being very grateful and do not shoot him in the head for dead as I originally plan but only three times in the belly. Old SS is never forgetting my kindness as the second slug removes an old ulcer as it tears away the remainder of his stomach and leaves him a neat and clean hole below to match the trim little cavity up top where once his brain sits.

"I am having a dream Big Ben," gurgles the Slimy one, "Of Rugby games and Men. One daring man and brave, and one a craven useless knave."

"The daring fellow, Benny," slobbers Sydney, "wears a noble Blue tunic with white crests front and back. He strides to the wall and scribbles upon it the following information which I translate into English from the original Animal with the help of Ronnie Lord Knoxville. It goeth thuslike: Sweep aside all fear, and dry the starting tear, just put your faith in Murchie He'll not leave you in the lurchie."

I analyse this report carefully, all the while looking for hidden symbolism in it and finally I see the light, and so I am able to slip the word to my shills on The Varsity that the score is being 39 for our Blues and 6 for the hairless ones from Monarchy Hill.

BENNY

Soccerites Visit Mac

Varsity Soccer Blues open their 1959-60 season with a trip to McMaster University this afternoon. Varsity are seeking their 8th consecutive title.

The Intermediate soccer team will also make the trip to play their McMaster counterparts.

Playing for the Senior Blues are: Avis, Bell, Csongradi, Duncan, Green, Kovacsosics, Mahanovich, Mahon, Morris, Peretz, and Taylor.

Varsity won both games with Mac last year by wide margins. The scores were 4-0 and 6-0.

The Intermediates will be out to regain the title they lost last year when an ineligible player cost them vital points. The players are: Davis, Jardine, Kalnins, Walcott, O'Leary, Boyd, Ryan, Gabor, Fraser, McLean W., and McLean L.

Both teams leave from the front steps of Hart House at 12:30 today for the games.

NICK SOPINKA

Who has solved the problem created by the graduation of last year's All-Star quarterback, Brian Aston. He passed brilliantly against Western last week.

STAFF

This is no longer funny, we are in trouble! With intramural sports ready to roll at any minute, we are still minus a complete and healthy sports staff.

Writers are needed to cover minor sports on campus, and the Intermediate football team.

Drop into the Varsity office sometime Sunday or Tuesday nights for further information. We'll be glad to see anybody!

National Title, Yates Cup Blues' Goals For 1959

When Varsity Blues take to the turf tonight for the opening game of the 1959 football season against the McGill Redmen, it will be as defending champions of the Yates Cup, the first time since 1955 that Varsity have been in such a pleasant situation.

But this year's Blues have an even bigger prize to aim for, however. On November 14, the first All-Canada Intercollegiate Championship Football Game will be held at Varsity stadium between the best of the four eastern and three western colleges.

The trophy awarded to the winners is named after the venerable British statesman, Sir Winston Churchill. It has been in existence for some years now, but was formerly competed for on an exhibition basis between the University of British Columbia in the West, and Western or McGill from the East.

The winner of the Yates Trophy will represent the East, while the Western rep will be chosen from among the Universities of Saskatchewan, Alberta, and British Columbia. It is hoped that an entry from Manitoba will balance the league in 1960.

The football game will be the highlight of a college athletic weekend. It will be preceded by a National Intercollegiate track meet on Friday afternoon, and followed by a swim meet Saturday night. About 150 athletes from across Canada will participate in the events. They will be flown to Toronto with all expenses paid.

About 150 athletes from across Canada will participate in the events. They will be flown to Toronto with all expenses paid. The advent of the "Varsity Bowl" eliminates the possibility of a playoff for the Yates Cup. In the past, if there was a tie for first place, or if the second place team had defeated the winners once during the year, a playoff was held to determine the winner of the Yates Cup.

Since the Intercollegiate season finishes one week before the East-West game, there can be no playoff. Instead, should there be co-winners, the team scoring the most points in the games between the co-champs will be declared the winners and will represent the East. In the event that that fails to produce a winner, total points for and against on the season will decide the issue.

For tonight's encounter with the Redmen, Coach Dalt White of the Varsity Blues will go with roughly the same lineup that whipped Western 25-7 a week ago.

Malcolm Bell is lost to the team for at least three weeks, and Paul Burroughs may not dress because of a severe charley-horse. If he is unable to play, John McMurtry will play in his place.

Other than these two changes, there are no other injuries of a serious nature.

McGill are not in such a happy situation. Bruce Coulter, coach of the McGill team, has intimated that he may not be able to dress the regulation 28 men due to injuries. Men to watch on his team are All-Star tackle Paul Harasimowicz, tackle Tom Stepl and centre Leo Konyk. Coulter feels that his first string team can play with anybody while they are fresh, but states that lack of depth and the subsequent tiring of his best men is going to hurt his team.

... and in this corner

by pam hill

Okay, here it comes! I can tell from several comments after the other day's 'slap-happy' column that you're all waiting for it, so... here goes again. Me and my 'one-man campaign'!

And what sort of condition are you in? All the freshies have just been through minimal posture and swimming tests, and the results were rather gratifying—after being used to the apathetic sophomores, juniors and seniors on campus.

Also, at Wednesday night's first swim practice, thirty gals had a brief work out. Most of these were freshies, and the most strenuous thing they did was to sprint six one-length (60') sprints. Well! Everybody looked like they were breathing their last! But at least they were keen!

Now, I'm not suggesting you get out and train for two hours a night—or even every night. Nor do I suggest any great energetic endeavour that really requires skill.

Just get out an hour or so a week and do something. You can't imagine how easy it can be! Look at the baseball.

Games are played at noon. They're scheduled for 1:15, but usually get under way by 1:30, and there are two innings to determine a winner. That's about two turns (if you're lucky) at bat, and out in the field for about ten minutes. To me, that's about as easy as exercise comes. And it's fun, too!—Even wee Pharmacy has managed to scrape up a girl's team this year. So get out and show 'em that they can't take a championship from a faculty with over 500 women!

But that's being real easy about it. Once you get out there, you're apt to think this "athletic bit" isn't so horrible after all. Ye gads, people! we need swimmers, golfers, tennis-players, basketball-players, etc., ad infinitum all over the campus.

Really gals, give yourself a chance to be not so flabby and just a wee more becoming. Sports are fun, and you get the most out of them. And its probably your last chance to ever do any more organized athletics... See you there.

bits 'n' scraps: ... tennis must be having trouble getting to the final round with this rain... never say die... softball games start Wednesday... check this issue for schedules... the executive of the W.A.A. have been invited to a tea on Monday to "get acquainted" for working purposes in the new Athletic Building... no Banff reunion after all!

WALTER SOPINKA

One of two brothers playing for Blues this season. Watch for him harassing the McGill quarterback from his defensive end spot in tonight's game.

First Meeting of the EXTERNAL AFFAIRS COMMITTEE

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 3rd
9:45 A.M.

DEBATES ROOM
OF HART HOUSE

Everyone Interested Is Urged to Attend

This is a unique opportunity to participate in student activities — W.U.S. — N.F.C.U.S. — Weekend Exchange — Committees.

DANCING Every Wed., Fri. and Sat.

THE AUDITORIUM

Toronto's Dance Hall of Distinction
888 YONGE STREET, Above Bloor

Doug Kemp and His Orchestra WA. 1-9701

U. of T. Film Society

Announces — a season of distinguished films not to be shown commercially

10 Showings $5.00

Tickets at S.A.C. Office

There's Something Special
about du MAURIER

The Exclusive "Millecel" Filter Tip, the most efficient filter yet developed, lets you draw free and easy, for full smoking satisfaction. du MAURIER combines the finest Virginia tobaccos to give you perfect mildness and smoothness. Once you smoke du MAURIER you'll make the distinctive red and silver package your favorite — always.

du MAURIER

A Really Milder High Grade Virginia Cigarette
with the EXCLUSIVE "Millecel" FILTER TIP

SAC at a glance:

Vote to Fly UN Flag

At last night's second session of its first meeting, the Students' Administrative Council:

—decided to fly the United Nations flag in front of Hart House during United Nations week;

—ratified The Varsity masthead staff for this year;

—reported that President Claude T. Bissell has found a bargain in office chairs at $60 and has succeeded in cutting the price down to $35;

—concluded that unless some more buildings were torn down, there would be no additional parking space, as the buildings which had already been torn down were being replaced by new buildings;

—moved that the Council accept the offer of the Hart House Debates Room as their meeting place;

—resolved that no SAC member may remove any official files or records of the Council at any time except in copy form and that even these must be signed out in a book;

—accepted on behalf of Torontonensis the tender for publication from Age Publications Ltd., and the tender for engraving from the T. Eaton Co.

—made a plea that the Council members make the supreme effort to sell the Students' Handbook which, by the way, is available at the SAC office now, and will be made available in all the faculties and colleges. It was also suggested that the beauties from the advertising agency handing out tickets to the burlesque show be enlisted to sell these handy little booklets to the students;

—reported that as there was no Finance Committee, there was no report;

—announced that the United Appeal Campaign will get underway on Oct. 16 with a Las Vegas night at the Drill Hall, and will wind up with a tag day on Oct. 31;

—recessed for a welcome cup of coffee;

—asked that at least two members of the SAC attend the Blue and White dance;

—hesitated over the subjects to be discussed at the NFCUS convention;

—announced that the Carabin weekend will take place Nov. 19-22; that applications must be in the SAC office Oct. 12-16 inclusive; and that the results would be announced Oct. 23;

—decided that as a library committee was only needed when trouble was expected, and as trouble is expected that at least a chairman for the committee be appointed;

—and, after nominating and electing representatives to various committees, adjourned at the early hour of 10.30 p.m.

Install New Principals

New principals will be installed in two of the University of Toronto's four arts colleges next week.

Professor Moffat Woodside will take over as principal of asUniversity College and Professor Northrop Frye will be installed as principal of Victoria College.

Prof. Woodside succeeds Dr. F. C. A. Jeanneret who has been elected Chancellor of the University and also named Principal Emeritus and Professor Emeritus of French in University College.

Professor Frye, a well known scholar will, replace Dr. Harold Benne as principal of Vic.

The UC Fall Convocation will be on the same program as Prof. Woodside's installation Monday, at 8 p.m. The Vic ceremony will take place at 8 p.m.

Both ceremonies will be staged at Convocation Hall and followed by receptions.

FASTER STARTS Quicker, surer stops with KAUFMAN Golden Jets

— the basketball shoes scientifically designed
to improve your game

Wear the shoe chosen by so many well-known Canadian basketball teams . . . Golden Jets. New non-marking RIPPLE® Soles lengthen the stride, propel the foot forward for fast get-aways, or "dig in" for instant, non-skid stops.

Golden Jets let you play longer without tiring because cushion action of RIPPLE® Soles absorbs shock, reduces foot fatigue. You'll want these other Golden Jet features too:

- * PROFESSIONAL LAST (narrow at heel, wide at ball of foot)
- * SHOCK-ABSORBING CUSHION ARCH PROTECTOR
- * "BREATHABLE" UPPERS of long-wearing heavy duck

Golden Jets come in white with golden trim. Ask for Golden Jets at your nearest sports or shoe store.

NEW RIPPLE® SOLE
gives super action

Made by Kaufman Rubber Co., Limited, Kitchener, Ont.

CLASSIFIED ADS.

LOST

1 pair of ladies' glasses — brown and white — between Vic and Flaville House. WA. 2-8844 after 3 p.m.

MALE

Board, laundry and room, to share in students' home. Phone Mrs. Petroff, L.E. 4-3264, 488 Clinton St.

LOST

1 pair of men's glasses — charcoal frames — clear rims. Call RO. 7-4121.

Sports*Games*Trophies

Before you Buy give WILSON'S a try
The HAROLD A. WILSON
CO. OF TORONTO LTD.
328 DUPONT STREET
Wholesale prices to everyone

10-Piece Dance Band

Music for all occasions supplied by Gord Staple's Orchestra, an experienced group of musicians with a repertoire of music to satisfy all tastes. For those who want the very best in music, please contact:
BOB BELL, BE. 3-2325

TYPEWRITERS

$1.00 A WEEK BUYS . . .
$1.50 A WEEK RENTS
Get a free typing course and a liberal trade-in allowance for your old typewriter when you buy a new modern machine from us.
Phone HO. 1-1843 Today

FOR LAUGHS!

CLAP HANDS

All New Satirical Revue

HART HOUSE THEATRE

Nightly 8.30

Saturday — 5.30 and 9.00

STUDENTS: HALF PRICE

Wed., Thurs. & Sat. Matinees

BOBBY DANN takes a pass from quarterback Nick Sopinka for the third Varsity touchdown Friday night. Vainly defending is Gord Merritt (59). (Varsity Staff Photo by Shaw)

Blues Trample Redmen 42-1

See Story Page 7

McNaught Urges Neutralist Policy

WINDSOR, ONT., Oct. 4—A University of Toronto history professor Saturday suggested that the Commonwealth, with Canada taking the lead, establish a third major world power with a policy of neutralism similar to India's.

Dr. K. W. McNaught was participating in a seminar on "maintaining Canadian identity in the face of relationship with the United States". The seminar was sponsored by the Assumption University United Nations Club.

This is Dr. McNaught's first year at U of T. He left United College, Winnipeg, this year during a controversy involving United College history professor Harry Crowe.

Dr. McNaught urged Canada to influence the Commonwealth to become a neutralist power not allied with either the United States or Russia. He also suggested curtailing Canadian military spending and eventual withdrawal from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Also participating in the discussion were U of T political economy professor Dr. G. J. Eayrs and University of Detroit history professor Dr. F. A. Arlinghaus.

SAC On The Lookout For "Leaflet" Minister

The Varsity has always had as a secondary motto, "you get more for your money," even though the publication is free. But some students who picked up their copies in Hart House last Friday got an extra treat.

Carefully tucked in each copy was a semi-religious tract praising Dr. Frank Stranges, author of the book "The Flying Saucerama".

The executive of the Students' Administrative Council are investigating the leaflet-stuffing incident.

The leaflet advertises a "Citywide Truth Crusade" and offers to tell the "truth" about Communism in the U.S.A., The Flying Saucer Mystery, Juvenile and Parental Delinquency and The Earth Satellite Program.

Dr. Stranges is described as a former Special Investigator and a Full Gospel Minister.

According to the tract, Dr. Stranges may be seen nightly (except Monday) at Toronto's United Apostolic Church. He spoke on radio station CHUM this morning.

Cops Crush Culture

Students Nabbed

By MITRO MAKARCHUK
Varsity Staff Reporter

An attempt to broaden the cultural horizons of the University of Toronto expansion program brought the wrath of the Metropolitan Toronto Police down on a number of students from the University College men's residence Friday.

In response to U of T President Claude T. Bissell's recent statement, "bigness is not enough", residents of Loudon House, Sir Daniel Wilson Residence, wrote a passage from Milton's "Areopagitica" on the boarding surrounding the St. George St. site of the new Arts Building.

The quotation was the same as that which runs around the Hart House Great Hall.

More than 25 students were allotted passages from the quotation and assigned sections of the boarding to write on. The project got under way at 1 a.m. Friday.

Two Metropolitan Toronto detectives soon interrupted this cultural activity.

Apparently unaware of the immortal cultural significance of Milton, the police called the nearest students over to their car and questioned them.

The first student questioned, Ray England (I UC), refused to give his name and was invited into the police car.

Another student, Andy Korsak (III UC), advised England to decline the invitation. Korsak joined England.

Realizing the situation was getting out of hand, Korsak suggested a conference with the words "Let's get together on this, fellows."

The police apparently misconstrued this remark as an attempt to incite the surrounding crowd, which had grown to about 50 persons, into violence.

According to Korsak, his suggestion was responded to by a police threat to punch him on the "bugle".

One bystander reported that police threatened to push them through the boarding and mentioned that they were carrying guns.

Efforts at appeasement by the Loudon House don, who later arrived at the scene, failed. The two students were driven to Number 11 Precinct Station for a period of enforced police hospitality.

They were shortly followed to the station by the don, Gino Cundari (II Law) and a Varsity reporter.

After much discussion the two were released in custody of their tired don.

During the police station drama, Loudon House regrouped its forces and, with the help of some women students who arrived on the scene, finished writing Milton's passage on the fence.

The owners of the boarding, Redfern Construction Ltd., later said they are indifferent to the writing and plan to paint the fence.

Since Friday the boarding has become a noted attraction, stopping traffic and diverting pedestrians including one elderly lady who took the whole inscription down backwards in short-hand.

MERGE! No matter how you look at it, this is Milton's Areopagitica. On the left is the original Hart House edition and on the right is the slightly corrupt text as painted on the fence around the university construction site by University College residents. (VSP by Meyn.)

QUALITY CANADIAN PRODUCTS CONTAINING QUALITY INCO NICKEL

New nickel-chrome lined oven cooks more evenly, cleans more easily

The beautiful new range you see here is a marvel of modern cooking efficiency. And a brilliant new concept in design. It can be mounted on kitchen cabinets or counter tops; or you can hang it on wall brackets at any desired height. With slide-in burner units, a drop-leaf cutting board, a rotisserie, automatic timers and heating controls, it provides wonderful new conveniences for the housewife.

But perhaps the most interesting and time-saving feature of all is the nickel-chrome plated lining inside the two large oven units. This gleaming bright surface reflects heat better for faster preheating, more even baking and roasting. And it's easier to clean! Grease, burned foods and juice sugars just can't get so firm a grip on that mirror-smooth surface.

That's the beauty of all nickel-chrome plated household appliances! And their utility! They add sparkle to your kitchen. They won't crack or chip; stay bright and new looking for years. The good heavy plating of Inco Nickel underneath the chrome helps insure lasting beauty in depth.

Write for a free copy of "The Exciting Story of Nickel."

THE
INTERNATIONAL NICKEL

COMPANY OF CANADA, LIMITED

85 YONGE STREET, TORONTO

Graduate Students Robbed on Campus

At This University

Over 1,200 graduate students are defrauded of hundreds of dollars each year

A compulsory fee of $2.00 is collected from each graduate student resident in Toronto. Less than 10% of these men and women ever see or enjoy the results of their contribution.

Why is this?

Because less than 150 persons among the 1,500 graduate students care.

Who suffers the loss?

Everyone who does not take part in the Graduate Students' Union program.

By whom are they being robbed?

Directly by themselves. Consequently, the annual income of the Union is spent on those students who make the Graduate Students' Union their center of social life at the University.

What can be done?

You can stop this drain on your finances by coming to the Union

For:

- TEA each Monday, beginning today, from 4-6 p.m. at the School of Graduate Studies, 44 Hoskin Avenue,
- SQUARE DANCING,                      ● BRIDGE,
- BADMINTON,
- TRIPS to the CALEDON HILLS' 150 acre recreation area,
- SKATING PARTIES,                      ● DANCES.

Nominations will be accepted and elections held for the position of Vice President and Secretary today at the weekly tea.

This is your money and your Union. Don't let your indifference cheat you out of it.

The Executive of the Graduate Students' Union

comment

"... through the other window the sun is reflected from the broad but lazy river which flows a few hundred yards away from our farm. These are the temptations from within the house, a house which finds me on the inside but rarely."

notes from the underground

by
Sam
Aizenstat

A Pastoral Letter

One day last spring I sat along with a few hundred other students in Convocation Hall at Trinity College. We were listening to Professor Bruno Morawetz talk about "The Perils of Conformity" just before he left the University to take up the life of a farmer in Peterborough.

I can't speak for the others, but for me it was one of the most meaningful and disturbing speeches I have ever heard. Professor Morawetz's point was a simple one. Two voices speak to us, he said; from the external world comes the voice of society, and from within ourselves comes the voice of God. In his own gentle, slightly accented voice, Professor Morawetz said that these two voices are always in conflict and exhorted us always to obey, whatever the consequences, the voice of God.

For Bruno Morawetz, listening to the voice of God meant giving up his post as a philosophy professor in Trinity College, and moving with his family to the farm. He recognized the deep trouble of the world and in his view the university was doing nothing to meet it. At the very least, therefore, he felt called upon as an individual to absent himself from an institution that was failing in its responsibilities.

Professor Morawetz quoted various sources that afternoon to make his point. Among his quotations I remember one especially. It was from Thoreau and in essence said: If the machine forces you to commit injustice, make your body a counter-friction to stop the machine.

There were probably many motives taking Professor Morawetz to the farm. It is a little like Thoreau going back to nature at Walden Pond; it was even a little like a saint retreating to the wilderness to seek strength for an attack on evil. And there was also the simple desire to bring up his children away from the city.

Before he left I asked him if he would prepare his Trinity speech for publication in The Varsity. A few days ago I received his answer. I would like to quote some parts of his letter, partly because I was moved by its tone, partly to let anyone who is interested know what has become of him:

"... the temptation to leave all paper affairs alone are tremendous. This is the first time I am sitting at the typewriter since I arrived on the farm over two weeks ago. Even while I sit here the sight of the apple tree laden with brilliantly red fruits just outside my window tempts me to leave the confines of the four walls enclosing my living room-study. Through the other window the sun is reflected from the broad but lazy river which flows a few hundred yards away from our farm. These are the temptations from within the house, a house which finds me on the inside but rarely.

"The real reason for the delay in writing is the multitude of things which cry to be done. Settling down is in itself a big job, but settling into a rather neglected house and farm is much more exacting still. Weeds are ripening, threatening to infect the fields next year unless cut soon. Plowing needs to be done, my two horses need my daily care, the barn has to be made ready for my four beef cattle now in the pasture. A trench has to be dug to bring water from the barn to the house..."

Such temptations, Professor Morawetz explains have kept him from going through the speech. But he has looked for it and read it over. His reasons for not desiring it to be printed are significant:

"... More importantly, the thaw which Mr. K's visit has occasioned makes my plea untimely. I do not think that I was mistaken in my predictions but men are quickly put at ease by the calm even if it is only a lull before the storm. I was very pleased by Khrushchov's speech before the U.N. Unfortunately there will not be enough trust and nothing will come of it..."

"My life on the farm is rewarding. I am surrounded by beauty day and night. There is peace. The phone hardly rings. The air is fresh. My children love their new life, their spare moments are spent with the horses, kittens and Collie dog. No time is wasted on subways or traffic jams. One's senses feast on nature's gifts. Nothing lures me to the city nor to my former post. I wonder how I shall feel one year from now..."

In my opinion Professor Morawetz's plea is less untimely now than it ever was. The step he has taken is perhaps an extreme one, but it is an answer to opposite extremes all around us. As clearly as most of us hear the voice of society, he has in a sense heard the voice of God. And the voice of God does not give easy orders.

comment

charity

Over the week-end we received a telephone call from a Mr. McLeod.

"I'm sure you're interested in the hungry children of Europe," he said.

We said we were.

"Yes," he said, "I'm sure we all have their concern very deeply at heart, and I'm sure you would welcome an opportunity to do something for these children."

We said we would.

"As you may know," he went on, sounding as if he were reading from a prepared script, "The Telegram is planning to send a milk ship over in aid of these children. If you will take a 10 week subscription to The Tely we would be in a position at the end of that time to make a donation in your name to the ship."

We said we were quite willing to make a cash donation to the milk ship but did not want to subscribe to The Tely. He said that would be very nice and hung up.

It reminded us of the appearance on television some months before of Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt.

She too was very disturbed about the plight of the starving children of Europe. She was especially anxious to see that they received some of the things that make life so worthwhile for us more fortunate people. Things like Good Luck Margarine.

We are pretty sure this sort of thing does not do the children of Europe much good. We don't think it does The Tely and Good Luck Margarine much good either.

Not that it matters very much that Good Luck Margarine is degraded or that The Tely is degraded.

What bothers us is the irreparable harm that Mrs. Roosevelt has done herself, and that The Tely has done to a milk ship that might otherwise have been a legitimate charity.

We are still great believers in newspapers and margarine.

We even think they can be sold decently.

$$ FOR STAFFERS

Attention money-grubbers.

For some strange reason the two highest-paid positions on The Varsity have been overlooked.

We are in need of stalwart, upright, clean-cut and mercenary youths to be copyrunners and proofreaders. Few skills are needed; copyrunners run and proofreaders read.

For $1 a run and $1.25 an hour respectively, what can you lose except a night's sleep?

THE VARSITY

FOUNDED 1880

Published by
The Students' Administrative Council
of the University of Toronto
Toronto 5, Canada

Member Canadian University Press

Editorial and News Office
Basement, SAC Building — WA. 3-8742, WA. 3-8113
Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221

The opinions expressed in this paper are those of the editor.

Editor-in-Chief Sam Aizenstat
Managing Editors Harvey Shepherd, Susie Breslin
News Editor Ed Roberts
Features Editor David Lewis Stein
Sports Editor Dave Griner
AM&D Editor Elmo Ciprietti
Photography Editor Andy Stabins
CUP Editor Alan Walker
Publicity Editor Kay McCook
Associate News Editors Terry Bourke, Jayne Nesbitt
Executive Editor Mark Nichols

TODAY'S ISSUE: Sally Bambridge, Arlene Annason, Maryanne Kelso, Mitro Makarchuk, Fred Host, Ralph Armstrong, Morgan Tamplin and cea (as ordered, oh great white father).

"Suffer yourselves to be blamed, imprisoned, condemned; suffer yourselves to be hanged; but publish your opinions; it is not a right, it is a duty."

VP's vs PC's

The Term 29 Fight

by ED ROBERTS

Canada, a federal union of ten provinces, offers no exception to the politicalist's rule that such a form of government inevitably results in serious constitutional conflicts.

Canada, however, has been relatively luckier than the United States when it comes to serious disputes between the provinces and the central government. Canada has never actually split into two groups and settled their differences with the sword. Have any of the provinces ever seceded from Confederation.

But this is no reason to believe that Canada hasn't experienced serious and bitter fights between the provinces and Ottawa. Eberhard, Hepburn and Duplessis . . . they all conducted long and bitter feuds with the federal government of their day. And now another feud is shaping up, one which promises to be as long and as bitter as any battle over provincial rights has ever been.

History will undoubtedly label it, as only history can label events, the "Smallwood-Diefenbaker" battle. But another, and more apt, name would be "the fight over Term 29".

For many people that immediately provides a pigeon-hole for the whole issue. They will merely recollect much of the mass of material about Newfoundland's fight with Ottawa which they have read and heard during the past summer, and they will then discard the matter without giving it further thought.

This would be quite acceptable, and indeed it would be the logical course, if it were not for one inescapable fact.

The mainland Canadian press has not presented the full story: either because it has capitalized on the ability of Joe Smallwood to make headlines; or because it has undertaken to slavishly follow the official line as handed down by the federal government; or quite simply because they just don't consider the issue that important.

The first two reasons for this "unfavorable press" need no further comment here: the last does.

Every Newfoundlander realizes that his province is but a very small part of Canada, and he realizes that his problems may seem comparatively minor to Canadians in New Brunswick, or Ontario, or British Columbia.

In the last week two vice-presidents of the campus Progressive Conservative Club have resigned over the issue of Newfoundland.

In this article one of the rebellious vice-presidents, Varsity news editor, Ed Roberts tells why.

But at the same time he feels that the future of 450,000 Canadian citizens, and the fate of the newest Canadian province, merits some degree of consideration by other Canadians. This consideration must be based upon the facts.

The heart of the whole matter is two-fold: What is provided by Term 29, and what did Newfoundlanders believe they were ensured by Term 29? The second question is as valid as the first, because Newfoundlanders definitely believed that there was a "spirit" as well as a "letter" of Term 29, and this is, in fact, the crux of the whole issue.

The letter of Term 29 itself is straight-forward, and nobody has ever contended that it is the basic part of the issue.

The spirit of Term 29 is the thing which has stirred up all the controversy. But what is the spirit of Term 29? Or to be more explicit, what do Newfoundlanders believe to be the spirit of Term 29?

Newfoundlanders believe that Term 29, which is quoted elsewhere on this page, guaranteed them periodic revisions, within the frame of reference outlined in the Term itself. These revisions would ascertain the difference between what Newfoundland could afford to raise by herself and what it would cost her to maintain her public services at the 1956-57 level, the level selected by the McNair Royal Commission on Newfoundland Finances—the Royal Commission appointed under the provisions of Term 29. The federal government would then make grants to meet this difference.

In effect, then, the federal government, Newfoundland believed, was pledged to a floor support of Newfoundland's public services.

It is only natural to ask what reasonable basis Newfoundland could possibly have for such a far-reaching claim, and no Newfoundlander will ever hesitate to give the answer: Term 29 was written and inserted into the terms of Union in an effort to compensate Newfoundland for some of the benefits she had missed by not entering Confederation until 1949, 80 years after Confederation first became a reality.

"These special benefits to the other provinces didn't cease," a Newfoundlander will say, "so why should Newfoundland's case be considered different?" And you've got to admit he has a point.

That, in brief, is what Newfoundland believed it was entitled to under Term 29. Not a perpetual grant $8,000,000 a year, which is what the McNair Commission actually recommended, but instead of periodic review.

You may ask why this provision for a periodic review wasn't incorporated into Term 29? That, to put it bluntly, is a very sore point indeed with many Newfoundlanders. Nobody really knows the answer to that one: but the consensus seems to be that Newfoundlanders took the word of the then federal government at face value and didn't insist on getting it down in writing.

It is, however, worth noting that one member of the Newfoundland delegation which signed the final Term, Mr. George Crosbie of St. John's, actually refused to sign the Terms, and he gave the indistinct nature of Term 29 as his reason.

Now that Newfoundland's expectations under Term 29 have been outlined, the question is what did Newfoundland get? Were her expectations fulfilled, and if not in what way were they disappointed?

There's no doubt that Newfoundland's expectations weren't quite fulfilled. Prime Minister Diefenbaker's statement in the Commons on March 25th, 1959 (the famed "final and irrevocable" statement), and the subsequent introduction and passage of The Newfoundland Grants Act, 1959, made sure.

The statement and the Act served one purpose: they decreed that Newfoundland's special status under Term 29 would come to an end in 1960.

And John Diefenbaker has substituted a meaningless pledge in place of what Newfoundlanders believe was a definite moral and constitutional commitment, the fulfillment of which is vital to Newfoundland's progress—and even to her survival.

Is it any wonder that Newfoundland feels she has been "betrayed" by John Diefenbaker?

The Great

Examinations are the modern equivalent of the bubonic plague for a university student. Now, coincident with any disaster, people arise who make money from others' misfortune. So came about the Great Examining Fraud.

Several years ago, just before the annual examinations were to be held throughout Canada, every student at the University of Toronto was assured of passing his exams. They were supposed to be one of the greatest scholastic frauds ever perpetrated. They bought what they thought were advance copies of papers, for a fee that scraped a ceiling of $50.

Unfortunately, after the exams were held, the students found out they'd been had—but good.

There were two men behind the fraud: Charlie and George Tookes. Charlie, a school-teacher of usual honesty, but whose younger brother was intent on becoming a millionaire, and he wasn't too particular on how he did it. George had worked at various jobs for about six months and had managed to save up $16.

It didn't take him long to realize that to amass a million dollars he would have to turn to a more fruitful line of work.

The first thing he did was to contact Charlie. Charlie was struggling along on a low salary, but he was happy in simple honesty. George flashed his big roll and dazzled Charlie with his amazing wealth. Then, while Charlie was reeling under the shock of all that money in one lump, George threw the question at him.

"It's very easy for you to make money," the elder Tookes said. "In your particular line of business—this education line—what do most people want most at the present time?"

The gleam in Charlie's eye brightened. "Advance papers," Charlie announced gravely.

"Fine," said George, "We'll furnish them the papers."

George started making the rounds of the educational institutions, and under various pretexts he obtained lists of students expected to graduate that year. He played his parts well. A book sale here, a stationary salesman there.

The organization meeting of the band was held tomorrow evening at 6:30 p.m. in the corner of University Avenue and

The Band is under the direction of Mr. Brody and Mr. Lehman, who are on the faculty of the college of woodwind and percussion instruments.

The purpose of the concert is to raise the highest artistic level. There is a vast amount of music to be heard in Toronto. It bears all that is played in parades and in public places.

When the band is organized, Mr. Brody and Mr. Lehman will be in general public. They hope in this way to appeal to all.

They are appealing to all the members of the Blue and the White.

They feel that the University has an opportunity to improve their music in general.

Term 29

29. REVIEW OF FINANCIAL POSITION

In view of the difficulty of predicting with sufficient accuracy the financial consequences to Newfoundland of becoming a province of Canada, the Government of Canada will appoint a Royal Commission within eight years from the date of Union to review the financial position of the Province of Newfoundland and to recommend the form and scale of additional financial assistance, if any, that may be required by the Government of the province of Newfoundland to enable it to continue public services at the levels and standards reached subsequent to the date of Union, without resorting to taxation more burdensome, having regard to capacity to pay, than that obtaining generally in the region comprising the Maritime Provinces of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and Prince Edward Island."

Debates

Students who want a sample of the best university life has to offer should keep their eye on the University Debating Union activities.

Activities planned for this year go nationwide and into the United States as well.

Preliminary negotiations are going forward with the CBC radio network for a semi-permanent radio show featuring University Debaters on national and topical subjects. This would give University students a sounding board for their ideas on international and local affairs. A television spot obtained by the UTDU last year saw the first inter-University debate on T.V. with McGill and Toronto battling over the question of pacifism.

This year part of the annual U of T tournament will be nationally televised.

Those lucky enough to be selected as part of the U of T Debating Team also travel to other schools to compete in either parliamentary or American style. Last year the UTDU sent debaters to McGill, Penn State and Harvard, among others.

Social and travel aspects of membership on the team as well of course as the debating aspects stimulate many students to try out for the team. Most off-campus week-ends have cocktail parties and jam sessions in addition to the debating competitions.

Those on the team who feel themselves too inexperienced to try big-time debating with other universities right away, can gain invaluable experience through the high school debating series. UTDU sponsors exhibition debates before high school assemblies and debate clubs to interest secondary school students in debating and public speaking.

The UTDU advises all students interested in debating to try out for the team at the annual Debating Trials to be held this year on October 13, 14, 15. Applications are available now at the SAC office. Deadline for their submission is Thursday October 8 at 4 o'clock.

Parliamentary style of debating is being used on the topic, Resolved that Canada should adopt a foreign policy of Neutralism. This is to be a prepared speech, five minutes in length. The third night of the Trials is to be impromptu debate, with the top candidates in the prepared round.

L.S.

Exam Scandal

by ALAN WALKER

Then, armed with the lists, George returned to Charlie and put him to work preparing the phoney papers.

As Charlie worked on the papers, George was busy writing letters, marked confidential, which he mailed to each name on the lists he had obtained. He left a blank space for the price, which he filled in later, depending on how much he believed he could get from each particular class of student.

Charlie suggested a fee of 50c for high schools and $1.00 for colleges, but Charlie's ambition was to be worth only $18. George had his sights set about $999,984 higher.

The letters were mailed, and in a few days the money started to roll in, mute testimony to the basic honesty of scholars in Ontario.

Every letter, in response to George's witch was rewarded with a copy of the phony exams.

"What did I tell you?" said George, "You are worth $500 already."

"I feel that I have enough," said Charlie.

George smiled pityingly at his brother. In a few days Charlie left his school, and the brothers went on to another address, from which they sent out a second batch of letters. They repeated this several times until the exams had been written.

But by this time the benevolent brothers were being trailed by the famous Canadian Government detective John Wilson Murray.

Playing the part of a young girl who wasn't afraid of the exams, but who wanted merely to make sure of her success, Murray wrote to the Tookes at Paris, Ontario, their current "drop".

Concealing himself at the Paris post-office, Murray waited for someone to claim the letter he had mailed (from Brantford).

"It was a rainy day," reported Murray, "the streets were muddy, and the skies were pouring down a modern miniature deluge. In due time a fine-looking young fellow entered the post-office and asked for letters for Charles or George Tookes."

Murray moved towards the man, but he bolted out into the rain, and raced down the soggy street pursued by the detective. Finally Murray caught up with the young educator, who proved to be of Paul Brady and Eldon Lehman. Both have had long experience with will be to play band music that is on the pure of serious band music that has never resemblance to the popular band music marks.

University of Toronto Concert Band will be Recital Hall of the Royal Conservatory, on George Street.

has reached a sufficient level of competitive concerts in Hart House and for the arouse an interest in serious band music. Students who have had some experience during their public school careers, and to

and. Toronto Concert Band will give students ability and to expand their knowledge

Charlie, and arrested him. George was soon added to Murray's bag.

Tried in Brantford before Magistrate James Waymes, each brother got six months in the Central prison.

John Wilson Murray went on to solve many more famous Canadian crimes. And he was pretty good too when you remember that he solved the Great Examination Scandal in 1881.

the steady stream

From Our Readers

desperate

Dear Sir:

I am at a loss. And I need help badly. Since I am told that the intellectual elite on this campus is packed into the basement of the SAC building, I come to you. I am confused, utterly confused. Would you say the effect of Sputnik and Lunik could be an adequate explanation for the fact that the wheel of history seems to be turning back?

It is yesterday's Telegram (Oct. 1, 1959) that gave me those nightmares. There I read about a 14-year-old boy, Stephen Truscott, being sentenced to death. I feel America's Puritan forefathers conjured up, and I am afraid. Tonight I dreamed about a witch. Her name was Lady Chatterly and she was burnt at Lakehead on the evidence Goody Seppola of Fort William had given, that is that aforesaid witch had turned herself into a book heavy as the truth and laid herself on the mind of that highly respectable lady and thus deprived her of the well-deserved sleep of an honest citizen. Such are the kind of dreams I have.

I think I should consult a psychiatrist. But there don't seem to be any around any more because obviously there was not even one for Stephen Truscott. And not for his judge and jury, either. So, you see, I have nobody to come to but you. Maybe some one of you is in Psychology. Or in History. Not that I think psychology or history are any good any more now that all their laws are obviously refutable, but help me, nevertheless, just this once.

Desperate Student

initiation

Dear Sir:

I am a freshman at Victoria College. Since I am eager to make maximum use of the university, and its many marvelous facilities, I have participated in almost all the Freshy activities to date, including Wednesday's infamous "Bob-Apple Battle".

These activities, so well-planned and run off by the Seniors and Sophs, have served their purposes to the fullest. The dances, receptions, tours, speeches, and ceremonies have showed all of us freshmen as many aspects of the university's program as possible. I appreciate these efforts immensely.

However, Wednesday's "Bob-Apple Battle" left a bad taste in my mouth (literally). This useless, idiotic battle can have no real purpose, I am sure, except to ruin old clothes, create foul smells, and cause possible physical damage to the combatants.

The use of chicken heads, rotten tomatoes and pig guts as ammunition made even the strongest stomachs flip and flop.

One blessing was in evidence, however. The Shimozal only lasted ten minutes—any longer and we all would have been choked by the foul fumes. I am sure none of the Sophs or freshies enjoyed this mess nearly as well as the previous day's outing at Bolton Camp.

These two events indicate the two extremes in present day initiations at the university. Wednesday's battle symbolizes the old method of initiation which is often harmful, usually messy and always completely useless.

The activities at Bolton represent the new type of initiations which are usually fun, always healthy and always helpful to some group or society.

It takes a person of very minute intellectual powers to realize which type is away out in front. Let's forget these degenerate, useless activities and choose the new "enlightened" way—as university students should.

Dave Hillen (I Vic.)

groundsheet

Dear Sir:

Why all the concern about a flag for Canada? Most Canadians couldn't care less what sort of flag we have.

Yesterday as I was walking along a West-Toronto street, I saw two men pull a huge Union Jack out of the trunk of a car. The flag was filthy dirty and measured about eight by ten feet.

One of the men asked the other what it was for.

"Oh that's just my groundsheet," replied the man. "I lie on that when I'm working under the car."

Llewellyn Von Grenfel

AM&amp;D calendar

art:

Canadian art and artists will hold the spotlight in Toronto for many months. The Art Gallery of Toronto has planned a modest season this fall of society shows and annual events such as the Women's Committee Sale; most exhibitions will display contemporary Canadians.

The Gallery Moos is the exception—here we can see European and Israeli paintings. Hart House, heaving to the Canadian line, has an interesting schedule, with several exhibitions by little-known Toronto painters, and coming in November, a show of works by the West Coast School, Canada's that is.

Right now:

Roberts Gallery:

Paintings by the late revolutionist Oscar Cahen. Until Oct. 14.

Isaacs Gallery:

Tony Urquhart's paintings and watercolors. Until Oct. 8.

Gallery Moos:

Constructions, semi-paintings, semi-sculptures, by the Israeli artist Elrog.

The Art Gallery of Toronto:

Canadian and modern European paintings from local collections. Until Oct. 18.

Royal Ontario Museum:

Exhibition of Canadian typography and book design.

music

October 9: Tom Lehrer, who sprang so quickly to fame as a satirist of song and common sentiment will display his droll wit in concert at Eaton Auditorium.

October 10: Gustavo Lopez, classical guitarist in recital at Sir Daniel Wilson Hall.

October 12: Verdi's "La Forza del Destino" opens the Canadian Opera Company season at the Alex. Principals include Ilona Kombrink and Giuseppe Campora, Ernesto Barbini conducting.

October 13: Walter Susskind conducts local premiere of Prokofiev's "The Love for Three Oranges".

October 15: "The Barber of Seville", by Rossini, will be sung in English by tenor John McCollum, Jan Rubes, Andrew MacMillan, Patricia Snell and Patricia Rideout.

October 15: Marylou Dawes, piano, and Kenneth Perkins, former concertmaster of the Pro Arte Orchestra, now member of the Montreal Symphony, in recital at the Unitarian Church.

October 19: The world's greatest living lyric, non-alcoholic, tenor, Giuseppe DiStefano gives his first Toronto recital at Massey Hall.

October 20: The best-selling Kingston Trio holds court at Massey Hall with hep folk songs et al.

October 22: The Women's Musical Club of Toronto will present the Hungarian String Quartet at Eaton Auditorium at 2 p.m. Students 50 cents.

October 23: Yehudi Menuhin opens the Greater Artists Series at Massey Hall.

October 24: J. Vasselt, Varsity grad, presents The Temptations, Slave folk-music ensemble at Massey Hall.

INTRAMURAL TRACK MEET
VARSITY STADIUM—Wed., Oct. 7, 1:00 p.m.
ENTRIES CLOSE TOMORROW AT 5:00 P.M. AT INTRAMURAL OFFICE

U. of T. RIFLE ASSOCIATION
The Range will be open from 4 to 6 p.m. beginning Monday, October 5th, for enrollment in the Rifle Club. Complete details for instructions and competitions will be found in the Range.
GEORGE W. BULL, C.S.M. — Instructor
PROF. G. H. W. LUCAS — Captain

HOCKEY PLAYERS
Woodbridge Dodgers require five Junior "B" calibre hockey players, under 20, August 1st, 1959. Phone RU. 3-7432, between 5 and 7 p.m.; Transportation supplied.

University Health Service
ATTENTION FROSH!
Have you made an appointment yet for your required medical examination? If not, get in touch with the Health Service immediately, either by dropping in at our offices at 110 St. George Street, or by telephoning:
MEN: WA. 3-9644 WOMEN: WA. 3-2646

Hart House

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 6th:
8 a.m. Holy Communion Chapel
7 p.m. Glee Club Full Rehearsal Music Room
7 p.m. ART CLASS ORGANIZATION MEETING Art Gallery
Mr. Aba Bayevsky, the well-known Toronto artist, gives instruction to any interested members of the House on Tuesday and Thursday evenings in the Hart House Art Gallery. Those wishing to participate may select either a Tuesday or Thursday, but should attend this Organization Meeting on Tuesday, 7 p.m. IN THE ART GALLERY. Materials are supplied.
Fee — $6.00 per year, Undergraduates. (Graduates $8.00)

PHYSICAL EDUCATION — MEN
TIME TABLE
FALL TERM—OCTOBER 14 TO DECEMBER 16
SPRING TERM—JANUARY 11 TO MARCH 26
MON.	TUES.	WED.	THUR.	FRI.	SAT.
10 Pre-Dent Pharm B Chem F Arts	Arts	Arts	Arts	Arts	Special Classes & Rec. Swim
11	Pre-Med Arts	Pre-Dent Arts	Pre-Med Civil A Arts		Special Classes & Rec. Swim
12 Arch Civil A&B Mining B	Pre-Med Mech C Eng. Phys.	Forestry Arch Arts	Pharm A&B Pre-Med Civil B Mining B Mech C	Forestry Chem F Arts
1	Volunteer Instructors (Fencing Room)		Volunteer Instructors (Pool)
2 Chem E Arts	Pharm A Arts			Elec G Arts
3 Mech D Ind. Eng. D Arts	Elec G Arts	Chem E Elec H Arts	Arts Eng. Phys.	Mech D Ind. Eng. D Elec H Arts
5.00 — 6.00 Special Classes		5.00 — 6.00 Special Classes

N.B.—Faculty of Music Degree Courses will take Physical Education with Arts students.
Coaching and instruction will be offered in the following activities: Boxing and Wrestling—5:00 p.m. daily starting Oct. 14.
Gymnastics and Fencing —5:00 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays starting Oct. 15.

REGISTRATION FOR PHYSICAL EDUCATION
BEFORE OCT. 14 REGISTER FOR PHYSICAL EDUCATION CLASSES AT THE KEY OFFICE, BASEMENT FLOOR, HART HOUSE. BE SURE TO GET YOUR PHYS. ED. ATTENDANCE NUMBER WHEN YOU ENROL. TOTE BOXES MAY ALSO BE OBTAINED.

SWIMMING TEST
BEFORE OCT. 14 REPORT TO SWIMMING POOL, HART HOUSE, AND COMPLETE THE TEST. HOURS—10:00 A.M. TO 2:00 P.M. AND 4:00 P.M. TO 5:15 P.M.

SWIMMING CLASSES
REGISTRATION IN SWIMMING CLASSES IS LIMITED. MEN WISHING TO TAKE INSTRUCTIONAL CLASSES FOR CREDIT MUST REGISTER BETWEEN OCT. 7th AND 14th. REPORT AT ENTRANCE TO THE SWIMMING POOL WITH YOUR ADMIT-TO-LECTURE CARD AND TIME TABLE. HOURS—10:00 A.M. TO 2:00 P.M. AND 4:00 P.M. TO 5:15 P.M.

GYMNASIUM CLASSES
Report to the main gymnasium at hours selected from above time table.

VOLUNTEER INSTRUCTORS
Training classes are provided for men who wish to qualify as Volunteer Instructors in aquatics. REPORT TO MR. MCCATTY IN THE FENCING ROOM TUESDAY, OCT. 6 AT 1:00 P.M.

SPECIAL ACTIVITIES, i.e. Judo, Weight Training, Special Classes, and Time Table difficulties—see M. G. Griffiths, Athletic Wing, Hart House, between 1:00 and 2:00 p.m.

INTERCOLLEGIATE AND INTRAMURAL SPORTS—get list of activities at Key Office when you enrol.

Clad In Pajama Tops And Towels OCA Frosh Stall Bay St. Traffic

Someone yelled "air raid" and rush-hour traffic was held up on Bay St. for several minutes Friday.

Nearly 200 pajama-top and towel-clad freshmen from the Ontario College of Art prostrated themselves on the street-car tracks at the signal.

The occasion? An initiation parade.

The police? "They were darling" Terry Collinson, OCA

freshette said last night. "They just stood there and laughed. There were 200 of us—what else could they do?" she said.

Later Friday afternoon traffic police said they had not heard of the parade and could find no evidence of it. "A parade permit had not been issued," they said.

The parading freshmen marched through the U of T campus, along Bloor St., down to the City Hall and down to Union Station—in the middle of the road.

The girls, dressed in men's pajama tops, and men's running shoes, and the men, sporting towels around their waists (shorts optional) and one-half a T-shirt, stood on the steps of the City Hall and sang "White Christmas" to the mayor.

On Front St. they saluted Union Station saying "I am a slob". They marched into the station and serenaded the employees with "I've been working on the Railroad."

They sang "O Canada" to straight-faced officials at the American Consulate. They were thrown out.

They demanded free samples from the brewery. When refused, they stole a beer cart and hung the trophy over the College entrance.

Pearson Coming

The Honorable Lester E. Pearson, opposition leader in the federal Parliament, will be guest speaker at Friday's opening meeting of the campus Liberal Club.

The former head of the Canadian delegation to the United Nations will discuss present Liberal policy with regard to foreign affairs, and will preside at a question period.

Mr. Pearson will speak Friday at 3 p.m. in Convocation Hall, Trinity College.

Sports * Games * Trophies

Before you Buy give WILSON'S a try
THE HAROLD A. WILSON CO. OF TORONTO LTD.
328 DUPONT STREET
WHOLESALE PRICES TO EVERYONE

Pure Filipina Trusting To Our Organ Editor

A unique letter has been received by The Varsity from a filipina student.

Nilda O. Gomez addressed her letter to the "Pontifical University, Ontario, Canada, Attn. University Organ Editor". The Post Office sent it to The Varsity. Miss Gomez' letter, sent two months ago, says:

"I would like very much to correspond to any Canadian student of this university. Kindly publish my name and address to the university organ.

"I am a pure filipina (native of Philippine Republic), at present a third year student of Bachelor of Science in Elementary Education at Santa Isabel College, an institution run by Dominican sisters founded last 1811.

"Trusting and hoping for your kind attention, respectfully yours, Nilda O. Gomez, Santa Isabel College, Naga City, Philippine Republic."

INTERCOLLEGIATE LEAGUE
VARSITY AT WESTERN
Saturday, October 10th
EXCURSION AND TICKET ARRANGEMENTS
STUDENTS' ADMINISTRATIVE COUNCIL ★ ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION
(Excursion Rate — $5.00 Return)
SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 1st
Leaving Toronto 9:30 Toronto time
Arriving London 12:42 London Time
Good for Return Any Train
S.A.C. will sell Combination Train and Game or Train tickets only. ★
Game Tickets Only
On Sale at the
Athletic Office — Hart House
from 9:15 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.
Prices — $1.50 and $2.00
ALL TICKETS ON SALE TODAY

Casting for ...
SKULE NITE 6TO
Varsity's Biggest Variety Show
DANCERS — SINGERS — ACTORS — EVERYBODY WELCOME
GIRLS Interested in DANCING— WEDNESDAY, OCT. 7
GIRLS Interested in ACTING— WEDNESDAY, OCT. 7
Interested MALES— THURSDAY, OCT. 8
Last Chance for ALL SEX— THURSDAY, OCT. 8
— Dancers Bring Shorts and Running Shoes —
P.O.T. HUTS Corner Devonshire and Hoskin 7.30 p.m.

BLUES SWAMP HAPLESS MCGILL

McMurtry New Star Injuries Dull Victory

By Dave Griner
Varsity Sports Editor

Converting some of the many McGill mistakes into touchdowns, the Varsity Blues rolled to an easy 42-1 victory over the Redmen in the first game of the Inter-collegiate season, Friday night at Varsity Stadium before 11,932 fans.

The sweet taste of victory was soured by injuries to three key ballplayers, Joe Foreman, Walt Sopinka, and Mike Chyaliuk.

Foreman suffered a chipped ankle and is out for at least six weeks, Sopinka suffered torn ligaments in his right knee and has been placed in a cast, while Chyaliuk has a possible cracked sternum and is a doubtful starter for next week's game with Western.

Blues went into the game without veteran fullback Paul Burroughs, but his absence was not felt as John McMurtry ran in pile-driving fashion for one TD and long yardage.

McGill were completely outclassed after the first quarter in which they held a 1-0 lead. Varsity took advantage of numerous fumbles and interceptions to score three TD's in each half.

Blues quarterback Nick Sopinka again passed well, and despite an unimpressive average of 6 completions in 15 attempts, he rolled up 185 yards and three touchdowns through the air.

Blues went 40 yards in 8 plays for their first TD, McMurtry scoring from one yard out on the first play of the second quarter.

Sopinka passed 25 yards to Doug Loughheed for the second TD after Milt Jewell recovered a McGill fumble on the Redmen's 25, and late in the quarter, Ken Myers intercepted a wobbly McGill aerial to set the stage for a Sopinka pass to Bob Donn for the third TD. The score at the half was 21-1.

Another interception by Myers on the McGill 32 gave Varsity a chance and in four plays Chisholm scored.

A few minutes later, Sopinka passed to Doug Wyles for a 73 yard gain, but Dave Creswell fumbled on the goal-line and McGill recovered.

Jim Murchie set up a touchdown for himself late in the quarter when he bulled 38 yards up the middle to the McGill 8, and then outlegged the defence on a pitchout to score.

Varsity had another chance when McGill fumbled on their own 20. Blues quickly marched 56 yards in two plays towards their own goal line as an already sloppy game descended to farce. To add insult to injury, the third down snap went over Peter Potter's head and when he finally got the punt off, he was standing on his goal-line.

The final Varsity TD came when Mike Murr capped an 88 yard drive by taking a pass from Sopinka for 32 yards and a major.

Potter converted four of the TD's and added two singles.

In a game that was at best poor entertainment for the fans, the only bright features were the passing of Sopinka, and the running of Murchie, McMurtry, and Steve Chisholm, who had one of the best games of his career.

The loss of Foreman is a blow to Varsity. The little halfback was running in brilliant fashion and looked to be a future star.

Minor injuries were frequent as both teams appeared to be far from top physical condition. McGill quarterback John Roberts was injured in the second quarter and had to leave the game.

Blues' winning streak is now 11 games, they haven't been beaten since October 1957, but judging by the sloppy tackling of this game, they are ripe for an upset.

Notes . . . Blues total offense was 485 yards . . . McGill's was 91. Murchie gained 94 yards in 8 carries . . . McMurtry 80 in 12 . . . Chisholm 73 in 8.

STEVE CHISHOLM (see arrow) dives over for the fourth Toronto TD early in the third quarter. Chisholm had one of his best running games with a 9.3 rushing average.

Western Beat Queens 20-8

KINGSTON (Special)—Western Mustangs moved into a first place tie with Varsity Blues here Saturday afternoon by virtue of a convincing 20-8 win over Queen's Golden Gaels.

Frank Cosentino put Mustangs ahead in the first quarter on a short quarterback plunge. Bill Mitchell converted.

Mike Wicklum scored a major for Gaels seconds later. Wicklum grabbed the Western kick-off and galloped for 90 yards and the touchdown. The convert was good to tie the score.

Before the half was over, Cosentino fired a pass to George Shepherd for another TD. Mitchell converted and added a field goal to end the half.

The second half saw hard charging defensive play by both sides. Mitchell booted another field goal for Mustangs, while Terry Porter's single was all Queens could score.

Poor McGill!

McGill—Halfbacks, Hanson, Lambert, Gravelle, Martin, Tingley, Adilgan, Irvin, Holmes, Moore; quarterbacks, Roberts, Maczko; centres, McKinnon, Kievelick, Konyk, guards, Barz, Arnold, Hart, Blair, Chuck Wood, Robson, tackles, Steff, Harsimowicz, Mackenzie, ends, Tucker, McLenahan, Lescail, Menitt.

Toronto—Halfbacks, Wyles, Parr, Chisholm, Knowles, Potter, Creswell, Myers, Dann, Murchie, McMurtry, Foreman; quarterbacks, Rush, N. Sopinka; centres, Crawford, Jewell, Eby; guards, Bulucan, Eytan, S. Bell, Dwyer; tackles, Thoburn, Jackson, Chyaliuk, Cacy Wood; ends, Muir, Jack, Loughheed, Baird, W. Sopinka.

First Quarter
M	T
1		McGill, single (Potter rouged Irvin's attempted field goal)
Second Quarter
6		Toronto, TD (McMurtry)
7		Toronto, convert (Potter)
8		Toronto, single (Lambert rouged on Potter's punt)
14		Toronto, TD (Loughheed)
20		Toronto, TD (Dann)
21		Toronto, convert (Potter)
Third Quarter
22		Toronto, single (Potter)
28		Toronto, TD (Chisholm)
34		Toronto, TD (Murchie)
35		Toronto, convert (Potter)
Fourth Quarter
41		Toronto, TD (Muir)
42		Toronto, convert (Potter)

The Scoreboard

SENIOR
	P	W	L	T	F	A	P
Toronto	1	1	0	0	42	1	2
Western	1	1	0	0	20	8	2
Queen's	1	0	1	0	8	20	0
McGill	1	0	1	0	1	42	0

Weekend Results

TORONTO	42	McGill	1
Western	20	Queen's	8

Future Games

Friday—Queen's at McGill, 8 p.m.
Saturday—TORONTO at Western.

JOHN MCMURTRY dives over for the first Varsity touchdown in the Blues' 42-1 conquest of McGill. Standing around are six McGill Redmen including Paul Harsimowicz (42) and Leo Konyk (26).

Double Soccer Win McMaster Scoreless

Both Senior and Intermediate Soccer Blues came home with convincing wins over McMaster Marauders in their matches at Hamilton last Friday.

The Senior game was much closer than the final 4-0 score would suggest. The McMaster team showed a great deal of improvement over their form of last year and only sharp finishing on the part of the Toronto forwards provided the real difference between the two squads.

Mike Mahon had an outstanding afternoon as leader of the Blues' attack, netting two counters for himself and setting up left winger Morris who caught the Hamilton defense on the wrong foot and cut in to score.

Louis Mayhanovich, a newcomer to the Blues' squad this season showed many fine football touches and was on hand to head a neat goal following a corner kick from Brian Michez.

Newly elected Captain Roy Green was a steady influence on the Varsity defense. He was ably supported by Paul Avis and Doug Taylor in the fullback slots. Goalie Julian Kovacsovich competently handled anything that came his way and will capably fill the netminding spot this season.

In the Intermediate game, Baby Blues got off to a fast start with a quick goal by Ryan. McLean added to the score sheet to give Toronto a 2-0 lead at half time, but didn't manage to score till near the end of the game. Ryan was on the spot again to score his second and the Blues' final tally.

This weekend both Toronto squads make the trip to London to play the Western University soccerites.

MCGILL HALFBACK John Moore (99) reaches for a pass headed for Varsity end Doug Wyles. He was unsuccessful in his efforts to hold the ball.

OPENING MEETING — U. of T. LIBERAL CLUB
Hon. LESTER B. PEARSON, P.C., M.P.
FRIDAY, Oct. 9—Convocation Hall, Trinity—3 p.m.

Faculty of Arts

The Dean of the Faculty of Arts has invited those students who stood first in First Class Honours in the examinations of the First, Second and Third Years in May, 1959, and the winners of the Prince of Wales and Edward Blake Entrance Scholarships to dine with him in the Great Hall of Hart House on Tuesday, October 6th, at 7.15 p.m.

If any of these students has not received his invitation through the mail, will he please call at the office of the Dean to pick up a duplicate invitation.

Special Attention — 25% Discount ON ALL JEWELLERY PURCHASES

Including: Watches, Diamonds, Silverware, Lighters, Wallets, Pens, and Pencil, Radios, Clocks, Costume Jewellery etc. etc. You must have your A.T.L. card when making a purchase.

SHEFFIELD JEWELLERS

DIAMOND MERCHANTS

323 YONGE ST. (5 doors above Dundas) TEL. EM. 6-0977

Along with all other IMPORTANT BOOKS

we stock the writings of Marx, Engels, Lenin and Trotsky

SPECIALIZING IN PAPERBACKS and POCKETBOOKS

at our new, more spacious and modern quarters

THE TORONTO LABOR BOOKSTORE

81 QUEEN STREET WEST

(formerly on Yonge at Wellesley)

BUY and SAVE

S. A. C.

BOOK EXCHANGE

119 ST. GEORGE ST. (south of Bloor)

University College Installation

Moffatt St. Andrew Woodside
As Principal

Monday, October 5, at 8:00 p.m.

in

Convocation Hall

Staff and students are cordially invited to attend

Student Christian Movement
NURSES - MEDS RECEPTION
Speaker: Rev. B. Burwell
Tuesday—Oct. 6th—8.30 p.m.
Coach House, 110 St. George St.

Student Christian Movement
WELCOMING PARTY
Special Speaker:
M. ST. A. WOODSIDE
Wednesday—Oct. 7th—8.30 p.m.
East Common Rm., Hart House
ALL WELCOME

Students'
HANDBOOK
now at
S.A.C. Office
15c EACH

Park Road Baptist Church

1 Block North and East of
Bloor - Yonge

Minister: Rev. Murray J. S.
Ford, M.A., B.D.

VICTOR E. GRAHAM, Organist

SERVICES AT
10.45 a.m. and 7.30 p.m.

A Cordial Invitation to all
Students to Attend Inspiring
Services

CLASSIFIED ADS.

BAUSCH & LOMB
Microscope — Triple Turret (Oil
Immersion); Two eyepieces (one with pointer). Complete with mirror and sub-stage condenser, and carrying box. Reasonable. HI. 7-0025.

LOST
Brown zipper leather case with
initials E.G.R. in Varsity Stadium.
Call S.A.C. office, WA. 3-6221.

LOST
1 pair of ladies' glasses — brown and white — between Vic and Flavelle House. WA. 2-8844 after
3 p.m.

LOST
1 pair of men's glasses — charcoal frames — clear rims. Call RO. 7-4121.

MALE STUDENT
To share large comfortable double room with pre-dental student.
Kitchen privileges, walking distance. WA. 2-8959.

TSO

TORONTO
SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

12 TUES. - WED. SERIES
SUBSCRIPTION CONCERTS

With internationally famous soloists.

SUSSKIND

Conductor

GEZA ANDA Pianist
PIERRE FOURNIER Cellist
CLAUDIO ARRAU Pianist
SIR ERNEST MacMILLAN
Guest Conductor

SHEILA HENIG Pianist
CHRISTIAN FERRAS Violinist
VICTORIA DE LOS ANGELES
Soprano

SIR JOHN BARBIROLLI
Guest Conductor

ZINO FRANCESCATTI Violinist
BYRON JANIS Pianist
ANDRES SEGOVIA Guitarist

Special Price for Students
$6 for 12-Concert-Series
Seating Plan at
MASSEY HALL

Bissell Finds Meeting With Labor "Helpful"

University of Toronto President
Claude T. Bissell went into secret one-day consultation with 30
labor leaders Thursday.

Only a brief outline of topics under discussion was released before the meeting.

Mr. K. S. Edey, Director of information and publicity said last night: "The consultations were private to allow frank discussion and a free exchange of views."

"The guiding principles and major policies of the university"— was one of the topics under discussion. Other items were—the adequacy of University Extension Department courses from labor's point of view, and the University's

10-year Development Plan.

The need for more financial assistance to students and the place of York University in helping to cope with the coming increase in University enrolment were other topics discussed.

Mr. Edey also said, "these conferences are extremely helpful" as was suggested in Dr. Bissell's opening speech to the labor leaders Wednesday.

"It is important for us to be aware of what you are thinking, and that we should consider your attitudes as one of the important factors which will condition our own thinking," Dr. Bissell said.

The consultation closed with a summary of proceedings by Dr.
Bissell and by Claude Jodoin,
President of the Canadian Labor Congress.

here

TODAY

Applications are available today at the Students' Administrative Office for the UTDU debating trials to be held Tuesday, Oct.
13 until Thursday, Oct. 15. Applications deadline is Thursday,
Oct. 8 at 4 p.m.

TUESDAY

1.10 p.m. — All persons interested in participating in a weekly discussion of Quaker beliefs and practices are invited to a Quaker study group session. The place is Room 42-F, University College.

4 p.m. — There will be an important meeting for all SAC members of the Blue and White Society concerning the National Fund for the University of Toronto. The place is the Hart House debates room and the speaker is W. M. Brenner.

3 p.m. — The Polish Students' Club discussion group will meet at 206 Beverley St. to discuss
"How Will the Eisenhower-Khrushchev Meetings Affect Poland?"

and now

THE PERFECT ONE COLOUR
LOOK IS NOW YOURS!

Kitten

solves
the match
problem!

No "just-off" colours but guaranteed colour harmony! So, for tea at the Dean's or cokes at the corner it's the new Kitten matching skirt and sweater in heather-mix lambswool soft as a handful of Scottish mist
... in subtly muted colours.

THE SWEATER: Wing-neck, bracelet-sleeved pullover, sizes
34 to 40, price $10.95.

THE SKIRT: slim and half-lined,
sizes 8 to 20, price $17.95.

Look for the name Kitten

GUARANTEED
TO MATCH

New UC Principal Plugs Community Of Scholars

By TERRY BOURKE
Varsity Associate News Editor

University College has a new principal.

With all the color and excitement of a Broadway opening night and the solemn pomp of a small coronation, Moffatt Woodside was installed as UC's head Tuesday night in Convocation Hall.

The academic rite began when a stream of U of T faculty heads decked out in flowing red, black and silver gowns filed through the east door.

While the crowd stood and the deep sound of the high organ thundered through the building the procession was seated on the carpeted stage behind the rostrum.

After opening formalities, Prof. Woodside repeated the pledge of his office after U of T president Claude T. Bissell. Following this, Dr. Bissell officially installed Mr. Woodside in his new role.

Moffatt St. Andrew Woodside removed his old mantle for the last time. Registrar J. C. Evans then invested the principle with the jet-black and scarlet robes of his office.

Mr. Woodside, formerly dean of the U of T Arts Faculty, is the sixth principal of UC. He succeeds F. C. A. Jeanneret who was installed in 1951.

In his installation address, Principal Woodside dwelled on the arts college's function in the university community and the role of the student in that college.

He said the key purpose of an arts college is to harvest people of intellectual excellence. "Thus, when these students leave university the by-products of their intelligence will beneficially enrich the fabric of society," he said.

The new leader made it clear that those students who refuse to make their first target at college scholastic have no place in the university.

Of the third-class student, Mr. Woodside said: "Such a student is a true asset to the university if he is keenly interested in becoming part of the intellectual climate."

He warned about U of T becoming too big and added changes may have to be made in the university's flexible internal organization to preserve its status as a community of scholars.

Prof. A. S. P. Woodhouse, representing the UC staff, referred to the principal as "a quietly courageous man who has always realized education is a means, not an end."

Dr. Bissell said that Mr. Woodside has in the past been tested and tried in U of T's top offices and has always proved himself.

As the crowd left, bells in the Hart House Soldier's Tower rang out across the campus night.

THE VARSITY

Vol. LXXIX — No. 8

Wednesday, October 7th, 1959

Prof. Tells Writers' Group Undergraduates Backward

A fledgling St. Michael's College Writers' Group Tuesday night heard stern words about what was expected from them this year.

Professor John Schonleber told the group "writing and publishing is hard work", but if the group did not produce, this year, it would probably be disbanded by the SMC Students' Administrative Council.

Mr. Schonleber, an SMC philosophy lecturer and alumnus of the Writers' Group, told its 20 members they should "think and write in a bold and contemporary way".

"All undergraduates are 40 or 50 years behind the times in creative writing. To overcome this, try to gain some mastery of the classics of your own language, and then read the latest work being published, primarily by unknowns."

"Only then do you write your own material," Mr. Schonleber added.

Writers' Group members must have courage, ambition, a sense of humour and industry, he said. They will be plagued by lack of time, money, talent and productivity, by timidity, and by the "obsession with national literature" in Canada today, he said.

"Everybody writes poetry," Mr. Schonleber said. "You have and must have the courage to acknowledge it and publish it. Anyone who hasn't written a poem isn't a man, for he has no soul."

Writers' Group editor Dave Brison (II SMS) told the group the organization and its twice-yearly publication Gryphon, have been all but extinct for almost two years. Deadline for this term's Gryphon is in five weeks, he said.

School Report

A Toronto writer has requested opinions from MPPs, MPP's, and chairmen of larger school boards regarding present school systems.

The report will contain views on the merits of education as it stands.

Anthony Frisch will discuss dropping out of second year high school students due to financial problems and boredom.

Among the subjects mentioned in the report will be the price of education, teachers' wages and free university education for capable students.

Prophetic Profile Of Kierkegaard Finds Him Religious And Rational

In the first lecture of a series discussing five modern thinkers, Dr. E. L. Fackenheim, University College philosophy professor, yesterday discussed a 19th-century Danish clergyman considered one of the pioneers of existentialist thought.

Soren Kierkegaard was the first thinker to be examined in this year's Student Christian Movement "Prophetic Profiles" series.

Kierkegaard's primary concern, Prof. Fackenheim said, was with a living God.

The Danish philosopher was opposed to that kind of rationalism which takes away the immediacy of religion, Prof. Fackenheim said, but his philosophy offers no comfort to those who wish to merely exist without thinking or those who desire religious authoritarianism as an excuse for not thinking.

Kierkegaard was an extremely rational thinker, he said. But he opposed the deification of culture.

In this, Prof. Fackenheim said, he opposed the teaching of Hegel who, in the final analysis, identifies God with culture.

Prof. Fackenheim pointed out the conflict between Hegel and Kierkegaard with a description of the three stages of man's attempt to "make himself". Both philosophers said man realizes himself through experience.

The three stages Kierkegaard taught are the esthetic, the ethical and the religious. The first stage is that of finite desires and finite satisfactions. This, Kierkegaard taught, does not satisfy man.

The ethical stage, Kierkegaard taught, is exemplified by Socrates who subordinated the finite to the universal and ethical. This is where Kant, with his categorical imperative, and some of his contemporaries stopped. But Kierkegaard felt the ethical stage leaves no place for God.

To illustrate the religious stage the Dane used the Biblical story of Abraham, who almost killed his son when ordered to do so by God.

"Only by virtue of the absurd," Kierkegaard taught, could God's command be reconciled with the fact that the projected murder would be ethically wrong. The absurd—as Kierkegaard used the term—was, in this case, signified by the appearance of a ram who was sacrificed instead of Abraham's son.

Prof. Fackenheim gave a brief account of some of the big influences on Kierkegaard's personal life—his strict, pious father, his fiancée whom he decided he could not marry and the Christian church which he discussed as a Christian while never really considering himself one.

Kierkegaard, Prof. Fackenheim said, was very conscious of the dichotomy between thinking and existing, but felt strongly that the two had to be related somehow.

Boys Getting More Passes To See Ray Lux's Lasses

By PHIL PALTER
Varsity Staff Reporter

University of Toronto students who missed out on free passes to the Lux Burlesque Theatre will be given another chance.

Last week nine lovely models handed out about 2,000 free passes at different spots around campus. Later, theatre officials said more would be issued if these passes were used.

So far, after three days, more than 300 passes have been redeemed and Mr. B. E. Abells the manager has said more will be circulated in two months.

In keeping with their policy of encouraging Canadian talent, Mr. Abells has invited interested students to audition Fridays from 2 p.m. - 4 p.m.

One U of T student, who apparently did not want it known he was at the Lux, said the show was interesting "as well as educating". He declined to say what he learned.

A Lux entertainer, Norma Jean, part of a "Don't crack that whip so close" act said the burly establishment is "rowdy, just right for students".

Lee London, the exciting blond headliner whom Mr. Roy Lux, the owner, described as "one of the best exotic dancers I have ever known", thinks the Lux is a good place for students of anatomy.

She said she tries to make her act clean and artistic, but in a sexy sort of way.

OPENING MEETING — U. of T. LIBERAL CLUB

Hon. LESTER B. PEARSON, P.C., M.P.

FRIDAY, Oct. 9—Convocation Hall, Trinity—3 p.m.

EATON'S

Shades of Sherwood Forest!

The new look in shoes for the girls, for happy wanderings around the campus. Ankle height, in suede leather, they make a fine complement to legs and leotard-tights... with an inside cuff of shearling (sheepskin) to do wind blocking at football games. Red, orange, beige, black in gay profusion. Sizes 5½ to 9 narrow, 4 to 9 medium.

pair 6.95

PHONE UN. 1-5111

EATON'S — MAIN STORE — SECOND FLOOR
DEPT. 238Players Guild Sponsors
Year Of Lecture Series

Amateur actors, would-be stage designers, and budding interpretative dancers will get a chance to learn more about their arts when a galaxy of top show people give a series of lectures this year at the University of Toronto.

Edwina Feldstien, head of programming in the University College Player's Guild which is sponsoring the lecture series, announced the list of speakers last night.

First program, Oct. 16, features Bianca Rogge, leading exponent of the modern dance. The lecture will be highlighted by a demonstration.

Lean Major, who studied drama two years in Europe and recently directed "My Three Angels" at the Crest theatre, will describe aspects of stage direction Nov. 13.

Actor Powys Thomas, guest speaker Dec. 4, has appeared in productions of the Stratford Shakespearean Festival. He will soon be seen in the Matchmaker and Macbeth at the Crest.

Also scheduled this term are: Leonard Crainford, head of the CBC design department, Tom Patterson, founder of the Stratford Festival and member of the National Ballet. Representatives of touring theatrical companies will be invited to address the club, Miss Feldman said.

Spring term speakers include Basya Hunter, head of the Arts Theatre in Toronto, Brian Jackson, head of design at the Stratford Festival, and Clare Slater, business manager of "Clap Hands" which is currently playing at Hart House Theatre.

Miss Feldstien pointed out that these are the only lectures in drama given on campus. "We hope that this will eventually develop into a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree course offering lectures in the drama and the dance as well as academic and technical subjects," she said.

BUY FLOWERS
for all occasions at the
PARK PLAZA FLORISTS
10 AVENUE ROAD
WA. 3-6361
10% DISCOUNT TO
STUDENTS AND STAFF

GOOD HAIRCUT
RIGHT NEAR HERE
4 BARBERS — NO WAITING
600 University Avenue
Just below College
In the Basement
Open Monday through Friday
8 a.m. to 6 p.m.
ONLY $1.00

UNIVERSITY BLAZERS
Custom Made
Especially Priced for Students
$27.50
Fine Flannel Worsted Trousers
$16.50
Business Hours: 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.
Monday through Saturday
Suits Made to Measure
Latest Styles and Design
PARNES Clothing Co.
706 QUEEN STREET WEST
EM. 6-2025
Sample at S.A.C. Office

LUX THEATRE
362 COLLEGE ST.—WA. 2-8083
BURLESQUE ON STAGE
LEE LONDON
The Velvet Touch
PATTY LEE
Sexcintillating Siren
THE TEXANS
KATIE MURTAGH
Red Hot Mama
JOHNNY GUILFOILLE
Comedy & Capers
ON SCREEN:
Demetrius & The Gladiators
2 Complete Stage & Screen
Shows Nightly
2 Saturday Matinees Continuous from 11 a.m.

Aim At Convenience
In Coming Campaign

Comfort and convenience for blood donors is the keynote of this year's University of Toronto Red Cross blood campaign, officials said yesterday.

Clinics will be set up in or near the various colleges and faculties, starting with Victoria and Emmanuel on Oct. 16 and 19. The campaign will end Oct. 30.

Campaign leaders are distributing pledge cards in each college and faculty in an effort at more efficient organization aimed at meeting a campaign goal of 4,500 pints.

Dates and locations of the clinics will be announced next week.

Park Road Baptist
Church1 Block North and East of Bloor - YongeMinister: Rev. Murray J. S.
Ford, M.A., B.D.

VICTOR E. GRAHAM, Organist

SERVICES AT
10.45 a.m. and 7.30 p.m.A Cordial Invitation to all
Students to Attend Inspiring
Services

The Christian Science Organization
at the U. of T.
cordially invites you to attend
their Opening Meeting
Time: Thurs., Oct. 8 — 5 p.m.
Place: Women's Union
79 St. George Street
EVERYONE WELCOME

Students'
HANDBOOKnow at
S.A.C. Office

15c EACH

HART HOUSE THEATRE

Student Subscriptions

$3.00 for the Four Productions

Hart House Theatre offers a Student Subscription at $3.00 for the four All-University productions directed by Robert Gill. The student rate will be $1.00 for a single performance. Subscribers are assured of the same seats and performance evenings for the entire season. Two subscriptions only on each A.T.L. card.

— 1959 - 60 Season —

THE LITTLE FOXES by Lillian Hellman

Saturday, October 24th to Saturday, October 31st

THE SIMPLETON OF THE UNEXPECTED ISLES by
George Bernard Shaw

Saturday, November 28th to Saturday, December 5th

THE GLASS MENAGERIE by Tennessee Williams

Saturday, January 23rd to Saturday, January 30th

THE IMPORTANCE OF BEING ERNEST by Oscar Wilde

Saturday, February 27th to Saturday, March 5th

Last season over 40% of the total seats were sold by subscription before opening.

● AVOID DISAPPOINTMENT AND BOOK EARLY ●

Box Office Now open 10.00 a.m. to 6.00 p.m. — WA. 3-5244

S.C.M. FALL CAMP:
THANKSGIVING WEEKENDFRIDAY, OCTOBER 9th —
MONDAY, OCTOBER 12thA WEEKEND OF RELAXATION AND INFORMAL STUDY AT THE ANGLICAN CONFERENCE CENTRE, AURORA

COST: $8.50 plus Transportation per person

Register at the S.C.M. Office, Hart House

"THE MANHATTANS"

—"A swinging group" —Alpha Omega
—"great sound" —Beta Sigma Rho
Fraternities and Colleges alike acclaim

"THE MANHATTANS"

as one of the top dance bands on campus for any social affair.

For references and information contact:

Jack Train (1st Dents) — LE. 4-2039
Sheldon Wax (1st Dents) — HU. 5-2356

to understand, to appreciate, to admire

Les Carabins

The Long Weekend

by Rev. Richard B. Donovan

During the weekend of November 19-22 the students of the University of Toronto will once again be host to the "Carabins" of the University of Montreal. Later in the winter there will be a return trip of Varsity students to Montreal.

These exchange weekends provide a tremendous opportunity to the students of both institutions. This year will mark the eleventh anniversary of their inception, and everyone who has ever taken part in one before will enthusiastically acknowledge how much he has gained from the experience. This program was instituted primarily for the purpose of exchanging ideas. Some knowledge can be obtained from academic lectures, some from books. There is also a great deal of valuable and important knowledge that can be obtained only through travel, personal contact and discussion. This is especially true when two groups of different ethnic origin are involved. We can truly learn to understand, to appreciate, to admire, and even to cherish the points of view and the general culture of a person or of a group which boasts a heritage different from our own, only if we see and know that person in his own milieu. Nothing can replace this intimate, personal knowledge, as anyone who has had the advantage of travel can vouch. The Varsity-Carabin weekend presents an opportunity for making precisely this type of personal contact.

It hardly need be pointed charge of the program, which is being organized by Chairman and Co-Chairman Miss Virginia Lomax and Mr. John Wood, are anxious that all the Faculties and Arts Colleges be well represented on the exchange weekend. They are Every November a group of U of T students selected from applications submitted to the SAC entertains a group of French-Canadian students from the University of Montreal. In January roles are reversed with the U of M students playing hosts for a weekend of skiing, discussion and wild parties. Application forms can be picked up in the SAC office from Tuesday, October 13 to Monday October 19.

out, I think, that the weekends also include a most generous share of fun: such things as parties, banquets, and skiing in the Laurentides.

The student committee in preparing a good program for you. Don't disappoint them. Applications for participation in this important Varsity event will be available at the SAC Office from Tuesday, October 13 to Monday, October 19.

Carabin Weekend:
A Tentative Expedition

by Harvey Shepherd

What this year's U of T Carabin Weekend representatives will have heard about Quebec Province contains a fair amount of truth.

But most of it should be taken with a certain amount of salt. They will learn quite a bit from their opposite numbers at the Université de Montreal and they will very likely give up some of the notions they probably hold.

Big change in the province's affairs since last school year was, of course, the death over the summer of Quebec Premier Maurice LeNoblet Duplessis, brilliant, dynamic, ultraconservative and extremely practical founder of Quebec's ruling Union Nationale partly and father-figure to most of the province.

The students the U of T students meet will be products of the province Premier Duplessis left to his successor Paul Sauvé.

But they will be intelligent, highly-sophisticated people who are well aware of the problems that face Canada and Quebec, painfully aware of the problems facing Quebec education and very eager to speak out against what they believe is wrong with their province.

Those Ontarians, however, who hope to meet French-speaking replicas of themselves will be disappointed.

U de M students are not interested in swallowing whole the chrome-plated half-American quasi-culture the U of T delegates represent.

Many of them do not favor federal aid to education.

They are Catholic and proud of their province and as jealous of its autonomy as Premier Duplessis himself was.

They have a good deal to be proud of. Quebec is Canada's second-greatest industrial province and Montreal is either Canada's biggest or its second-biggest city—depending on whether a Montrealer or a Torontonians is counting up.

Quebec has some of Canada's best spots for fishing, skiing, hunting and camping.

Culturally, there is hardly ground for comparison with the rest of Canada. French-language Canadian literature has earned a place in the world's French-language literature. Le Dextoir, the Montreal daily with guts and no money, has won international acclaim for, among other things, the purity of the language it is written in.

The university newspaper editors of the province seem to be the only ones who can get themselves expelled without defaming the Virgin Mary.

Quebec province is brassy and pious, sinful and devout, cultured and sensitive, capricious and jealously autocratic. U of T Carabin Weekend delegates will be hoping to get some understanding of the province.

If they spend a couple of years there some day, they may scratch the surface.

comment

aficion

The closest sport we Northerners have to bull-fighting is crossing roads.

In bull-fighting the culminating thrill in the encounter between man and bull is known as "the moment of truth."

The sport of pedestrianism has its "moment of truth" too. It consists of stepping out into the road in the midst of heavy traffic and coming as close as you can to the moving cars without being hit.

This sport has caught on almost everywhere but is played most fiercely and uncompromisingly in the vicinity of Queen's Park by adventure-starved undergraduates.

In many ways the sport is better than bull-fighting. For one thing there are many cars rather than just one.

But the bulls are more cautious. Chances are the drivers will stop dead when they see you coming and just wait.

This is not playing the game, and it often takes all the intrepid toreador's skill to goad the driver into making a rash move. Add to this the fact that the cars are moving in curved lanes and require careful tracking in motion and you can see that it's a sport that requires all a man has.

Pure brute courage, mechanical aptitude, the ability to make split second decisions, all come into play.

In short the road-crosser is the highest kind of man that the university can produce just as the bull-fighter is the highest type of man that Hemingway can produce.

But just as in the final analysis we must reject bull-fighting because it is cruel to the bulls, we must reject road-crossing because it is cruel to the drivers.

Therefore, we ask you to use the official cross-walks. It's better to be bored than gored.

beanies bangles and lux

Every year as undergraduates return to university a small, strange band of women reappears.

They are what one U of T student used to call "the keen, eager types." They organize parties for sororities, clubs, and colleges where nobody knows how to dance. They wear funny hats to football games. They sing loud, talk loud and wear short skirts and long scarves.

Things must get a little tedious for them later in the year when they have scarcely anything to do but study.

We have a suggestion. A front-page story in this paper tells us Mr. Ray Lux is holding auditions Fridays from 2 to 4 p.m. at his theatre.

This might be just what these girls need. They could work off surplus energy. They could make a spectacle of themselves. Boys would look at them—even shout at them.

They would even get paid. And they wouldn't be bothering anybody.

HLS

THE VARSITY

FOUNDED 1880

Published by

The Students' Administrative Council
of the University of Toronto
Toronto 5, Canada

Member Canadian University Press

Editorial and News Office
Basement, SAC Building — WA. 3-8742, WA. 3-8113
Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221

Editor-in-Chief: Sam Ajzenstat
Managing Editors: Harvey Shepherd, Susie Breslin
News Editor: Ed Roberts
Features Editor: David Lewis Stein
Sports Editor: Dave Griner
A.M.&D. Editor: Elmo Ciprietti
Photography Editor: Andy Stabins
CUP Editor: Alan Walker
Publicity Editor: Kay McCook
Associate News Editors: Terry Bourke, Jayne Nesbitt
Executive Editor: Mark Nichols

TWO DAYS' WORTH, including Carolyn Purden, Dave Hillen, Susan Kastner (twice), Phil Paltor, Morgan Tamplin, Fred Host, (Pyeecku), Mac with sister and friend, Moishe Reiter, David Humphries and W to be, Dave Helwig and W that am, Dave Humphries, Ray Chan, Sheldon Greenberg, and various and assorted long distance calls from our absent members.

- Look N

on a limited budget

Canada's Unknown Hostels

By JUDY GRANER

Youth hostels, long a boon to the Canadian student travelling on a limited budget in Europe are also located in various parts of Canada, but they are comparatively unused and unknown.

In Canada there are 52 hostels, although they do not form a continuous chain. Five of the hostels are in Ontario. Three in Muskoka are busy through the entire summer season, but are used only weekends in the winter, mainly by skiers.

There is no hostel in Toronto, but the national headquarters are located here at 581 Spadina Ave. As generally happens, the building is now used as a clubhouse, although that was not the original intention. Every Monday night the Toronto members meet there to plan weekend trips or summer vacations.

The need for a hostel in Toronto has not been felt as yet, since most overseas members who would use it work here only briefly. The high membership in this area is surprising, for although youth hostels are designed for students, only a small proportion of the members are actually attending schools. Most work and many are not native-born Canadians.

Most of the members are Europeans who grew up with a hostelling movement and automatically sought it out when they came to Canada. Canadians who have discovered the system did so when they travelled in Europe.

The purpose of the hostelling association is to provide an inexpensive accommodation for travelling students. A membership card priced at $5 will entitle the holder to use hostel facilities in any of 30 countries. Actually, a night's accommodation costs about 50 cents. Inexpensive transportation is also arranged.

The system in Europe is very highly developed and very well known. There are over 3,000 hostels which are busy for most of the year. Hostelling in Canada is never expected to reach the proportions of the European system due to the vastness of the country and weather problems which make travel unseasonal.

Most of the activities in this area are weekend trips, on which the members ski, canoe, hike, fish or cycle, mainly in north-central Ontario. This Thanksgiving, a trip is planned to the hostel in Baysville. For only $13.50, transportation, room, food, including a turkey dinner, and also a local square dance is provided.

During the summer, low-cost trips were sent to Alaska, the New England States, the Canadian Rockies and Algonquin Park. Many high school students go on the usual European trips. Some trips are planned but never go because of a lack of response. One that failed to leave this summer was a horse back hike in the Canadian Rockies.

Last Monday evening we visited the headquarters for an open house.

In a group of seven young men at the coffee bar we had a hard time finding a born member. The young men were from Glasgow, Frankfurt, Melbourne, London, Morocco, and sitting quietly in a corner a Toronto boy who was investigating the system for the first time.

Aside from taking camping trips, the hostel has a social function. Wednesday evening meetings to show movies and slides. This age information maintains interest in travel, exploring different places.

In proportion to Canadian hostel numbers the USA are far behind. They have only a few most of which are located in the north of the States.

In Canada the facilities of the Canadian Hostel Association are expanding, but this would be even greater if students used the hostels.

On Thursday, October 15, Toronto music lovers will have the opportunity to attend the local debut of a promising violinist, Ken Perkins, former concertmaster of the Toronto Arte Orchestra, now with the Montreal Symphony, and Marylou Dawes whose new album on the west coast drew rave reviews. They will appear in concert after six years of separation.

Their aims are to concentrate on the piano repertoire and to widen their horizons by working in this medium by contemporary Canadian composers. Oskar Morawetz's Violin and Piano will receive its first performance in Toronto at this concert.

The rest of the program comprised of Beethoven's Largo in D major, Mozart's Sonata for Violin and Piano, and Chopin's, Mendelssohn and Brahms.

The concert will take place at the St. Clair Church on St. Clair Ave. W. Seats at $1.50 are available from the box office, 118 Eglinton Ave. W., Apt. 210.

a, No Hands

by Fred Host

jump out of an airplane and fly through the air like Canada alone, 350 people jump out of an airplane every they get. They're not insane and they're not trying to commit suicide. Of course they do wear parachutes. They are members of the parachute club of Canada. They adherents of the fascinating new sport of "Sky Diving" has a long history in Europe but has only very recently produced into North America. "Sky Dive" is a parachute jump in which the jumper leaves the plane and falls through the air in free flight for a predetermined number of seconds before opening his chute. Parachute Sky-Diving Club of Toronto has been in existence over a year. Their jumps are made in the fields between Mount and Mount Albert on Highway 48. Sky-Diving Club is looking for new members and anyone who is interested should get in touch with Mr. Angus at Walnut 4-4661, local 397. If you decide to try it, keep in mind the weightiest of the ten commandments. Thou Shalt Not Delay Too Long For The Earth Shall Rise Up and Bite Thee.

Sky-diving is a sport relatively new in the North American continent, yet in its short-lived history it has accumulated 350 members in Canada alone.

Sky-diving is controlling the body while falling through the air before opening the parachute. After leaving the plane the jumper attains a spread-eagled, arched position which lends the body aerodynamic properties keeping it in a stable or flat, face-down attitude. Once this attitude or position is attained, manipulation of the hands, feet, and torso produces any desired manoeuvre such as turns, figure eights, rolls and loops. For example to do a turn the sky-diver lowers one arm, raises the other and twists his torso at the same time. This causes him to rotate on the horizontal plane. All the while, a stopwatch and altimeter keep track of the sky-diver's progress toward the ground so that the opening of the parachute is always completed 2,000 feet above the ground.

After the parachute deploys, manipulation of any of the four risers which connect the harness to the canopy, controls the direction of the drift so that a predetermined ground target can be landed on.

Stability is the key to good sky-diving and attaining the stable, flat face' down, position and keeping it is the primary achievement of the novice sky-diver. His first five jumps which are done with an automatic opening device known as the static line are designed to overcome his anxieties and to familiarize him with the proper exit from the plane and the initial arch which help attain an immediate stable position.

Why do people jump?

This is how Daryl Henry, a university of Toronto student and one of Canada's leading sky-divers sums up his feeling for the sport. "To jump freely from an aircraft, of your own initiative, is a definitive act. You at once obtain an ultimate in personal freedom. It is not a freedom of speech, of belief or assembly but one of life or death.

At the conclusion of your free fall you have the option of self preservation contained in your right hand. To jump freely, to accept full responsibility for your welfare, to embark upon a course that is unalterable is to define your very existence."

The Toronto club was pioneered only a year ago by Brian Porter, a streetcar conductor, who accumulated five parachute and sky-diving enthusiasts from various parts of Southern Ontario.

With the cooperation of the Lake Simcoe Flying School operated by Doug Sanders and John Crone they began jumping from the school's pet Aerona, KRP. In a very short time they attracted a membership of 25. A training program was initiated with the aid of a giant elm tree, used as a tower behind the hanger where Ann Shurley, the club's first girl student took her training.

Today with a membership of 50 the facilities for training include a 30 foot steel tower, trained instructors and jumpmasters, and two parachutes equipped with automatic opening devices. Twelve new members are presently in the process of taking their initial training.

nor rain, nor sleet Will Stop Them the hero

University football games should be abolished.

Of course so should other maiming sports such as boxing and wrestling. I choose football because it is topical, conversational, big and barbaric.

The purpose in football is to have a group of highly selected men batter with their bodies a similar group in order to get an oblong object around, over or through these men and across a line. Many tricks are employed to achieve good results at this rather pointless pastime, all to the amusement and amazement of the cheering spectators. True, the players build up strong, healthy bodies by their exercises. They then proceed to use themselves as battering rams, and in the process every year shoulders are dislocated, clavicles are fractured, tibiae are splintered, ligaments are torn, and God knows how many brains are scarred by "minor jolts" causing cerebral blood vessels oozing.

For regaling Canada's young intellectual elite with such primitive, bone-crunching entertainment, the football hero has few remunerations. He has a two week "holiday" at football camp. He receives a free dinner each night during the football season. He gets a chance to work out his hostility and feelings of inferiority in other spheres by smashing his body into other human beings. And he receives the momentary adulation of a fickle crowd which forgets his name two days after he is carried gasping and bleeding from the field.

Of course the padding helps. Anyone would prefer to get hit on the head wearing a helmet rather than without it. But being hit on the head is not very conducive to good cerebral functioning, even if the transmitted force is made more diffuse by a helmet.

To charges that I am being unmasculine in my suggestion to abolish football, may I recommend that it be replaced with rowboat races, Russian dances, Mr. Universe contests, exhibitions of sexual prowess, or any other "masculine" spectacle which will delight the eye of the campus co-ed, swell the chest of the male spectator, and give everyone the sense of togetherness and belonging which is so important to our flagging egos.

And if football games were abolished, who knows, maybe some students might study during the fall term.

Robert J. McCaldin (Meds '60)

the banner

Dear Sir:

Monday's issue of The Varsity published a letter from a "no flag waver 1" mugwump who maintains the Union Jack makes the best groundsheet for car mechanics. Is this not typical of the individual with head buried under so many parts that he is completely in the dark as to the whole—Canadian unity? That same "filthy dirty" flag to which our reader refers is in reality stained with the blood of thousands of Canadian boys whose only memorial seems to be that "most Canadians couldn't care less what sort of flag we have". I would strongly advise our reader to Gallup to the nearest Poll and raise a flag and if there are any more at home like you—step on them!

Arlene Aranson III Victoria

CLASSIFIED ADS.

BAUSCH & LOMB
Microscope — Triple Turret (Oil Immersion); Two eyepieces (one with pointer). Complete with mirror and sub-stage condenser, and carrying box. Reasonable. HI. 7-0025.

TYPING
Accurate home typing done. Call Mrs. Powell, WA. 3-8596 days, RO. 9-5084 evenings.

FOR RENT
Room and Board — student atmosphere. 202 Beverley Street, EM. 3-3503.

WANT A LIFT?
Leaving Bathurst and Shepherd for morning lectures. Contact Leny at ME. 3-3106.

STUDENT NEEDS RIDE
To Syracuse, N.Y., or vicinity — Friday afternoon or evening, Oct. 9. If you can help please call Gary, WA. 3-8574.

LOST
One white bulky knit Cardigan, with plastic zipper. Please contact Mary Jaques, WA. 3-8451.

Remodelling & Alterations
— A Specialty —
10% Discount for fraternity houses
Students' Elite
Cleaners & Tailors
654 SPADINA Ave., WA. 2-4361

MARRIED STUDENTS

Is your wife looking for employment? Attractive opportunities are available nearby.

Telephone EM. 3-1211
Local 22298

TYPEWRITERS

$1.00 A WEEK BUYS . . .
$1.50 A WEEK RENTS
Get a free typing course and a liberal trade-in allowance for your old typewriter when you buy a new modern machine from us.

Phone HO. 1-1843 Today

Casting For . . .

SKULE NITE 6TO

Varsity's Biggest Variety Show

Dancers — Singers — Actors — Everybody Welcome
GIRLS Interested in DANCING WEDNESDAY, OCT. 7
GIRLS Interested in ACTING WEDNESDAY, OCT. 7
Interested MALES THURSDAY, OCT. 8
Last Chance for ALL SEX THURSDAY, OCT. 8
— Dancers Bring Shorts and Running Shoes —
P.O.T. HUTS (cor. Devonshire & Hoskin) 7.30 p.m.

S. A. C. BOOK EXCHANGE

119 ST. GEORGE STREET

SPECIAL NOTICES

TODAY AND TOMORROW:

Reduced Prices on Many Books

PAYING OUT: (from 11.30 a.m. - 5.30 p.m.)

Tuesday, October 13th

Wednesday, October 14th

Thursday, October 15th

Cheerless leader

Not a "rah rah" left in him! He's just discovered there's no more Coke. And a cheer leader without Coke is as sad as a soap opera. To put the sparkle back in his eye — suddenly! — bring him a sparkling cold Coca-Cola!

SIGN OF GOOD TASTE

SAY "COKE" OR "COCA-COLA"—BOTH TRADE-MARKS MEAN THE PRODUCT OF COCA-COLA LTD.—THE WORLD'S BEST-LOVED SPARKLING DRINK.

Humanism

is a system of thinking in which Man, his interests and developments are made dominant. Hear

GEORGE VON HILSHEIMER of Ohio:

"HUMANISM AS A DYNAMIC FAITH FOR TODAY"

at 4.20 in Room 4, University College, Today Only

Hart House

TODAY

The Chapel — Every Wednesday — 12.15 — Noon-day Prayers and a brief address by the Chaplain

NOON HOUR CONCERT — JAZZ QUARTET
EAST COMMON ROOM — 1.30 p.m.

Revolver Club — Organization Meeting — New members cordially invited — Rifle Range — 7.15 p.m.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 8th

The Chapel — Holy Communion — 8 a.m.
Record Room — Instruction — 5.15 p.m.
Archery Club — Organization Meeting — New members especially welcome — Rifle Range — 8 p.m.

Debates Room —
"CANADIANS SUFFER FROM MORAL HYPOCRISY"
Honorary Visitor: Frank Tumpane, Toronto Telegram columnist — at 8 p.m.

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS

ARCHERY CLUB

The Archery Club has cancelled the practices on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, from 1.00 - 2.00 this week. There will, however, be practices every morning at 8.00 a.m.

There will be a meeting of the Archery "Reps" on TUESDAY, OCT. 9 at 1 P.M. in the LOWER GYM OF THE WOMEN'S ATHLETIC BUILDING.

BLUE & WHITE SOCIETY

Important Meeting — Wednesday, October 7
5.00 p.m. — S.A.C. Office

SOCCER SCHEDULE — WEEK OF OCT. 13

Tues. Oct. 13	North 12.30	St. SPS	vs	Trin. A	Bugarski
	South 12.30	St. M. B	vs	SPS IV	Hansen
	South 4.15	Forestry	vs	Emman	Patarachia
Wed. Oct. 14	North 12.30	Jr. SPS	vs	U.C.	Bugarski
Thur. Oct. 15	North 12.30	Trin. B	vs	St. M.	Hilgenberg
	South 4.15	Med. B	vs	SPS IV	Mayhanovich
Fri. Oct. 16	North 12.30	SPS IV	vs	SPS III	Bonfield
	North 4.15	Med. A	vs	St. M. A.	Selzer
	South 4.15	Pharm.	vs	Law	Hansen

INTERCOLLEGIATE LEAGUE VARSITY AT WESTERN Saturday, October 10th

EXCURSION AND TICKET ARRANGEMENTS

STUDENTS' ADMINISTRATIVE COUNCIL

(Excursion Rate — $5.00 Return)

Leaving Toronto 9.30 Toronto time
Arriving London 11.42 London Time

Good for Return Any Train

S.A.C. will sell Combination Train and Game or Train tickets only.

ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

Game Tickets Only

On Sale at the

Athletic Office — Hart House

from 9.15 a.m. to 5.00 p.m.

Prices — $1.50 and $2.00

ALL TICKETS ON SALE TODAY

here and now

TODAY

- 1 p.m. — All Engineers are welcome to attend a Bible discussion in rm 2065, Wallberg Bldg.
1-2 p.m. Engineering Debate Club tryouts will be held for all Engineers with public speaking experience in high school or university. Mechanical Engineering Building, room T102.
4 p.m. — An open meeting of the University College Literary and Athletic Society will be held in the Junior Common Room, UC. Nominations will be held for various Lit positions and the new budget will be presented.

4.20 p.m. — George von Hilsheimer of Ohio will speak on "Humanism as a Dynamic Faith for Today." Rm. 4, University College.

5 p.m. All campus members are urged to attend a meeting of the Blue and White Society in the front office of the Students' Administrative Building.

... The Christian Science Organization of the University of Toronto invites all interested to attend their opening meeting — Women's Union, 79 St. George Street.

5.15 p.m. — Evening Eucharist will be held at Canterbury Centre, 99 St. George Street.

... All prospective members of the swimming team will meet in the Music Room, Hart House.

7-8 p.m. — A Canterbury Seminar in Art and Christianity in Higher Education will be held in Canterbury Centre, 99 St. George Street.

8 p.m. — Freshmen are especially invited to the first meeting of the term of the U. of T. Biology Club. Wymilwood Music Room, Victoria College.
... An open meeting of the Victoria College Music Club will be held in Wymilwood Music Room.

THURSDAY

12.10 p.m. — The undergraduate nurses are holding a Bible discussion in room 63, School of Nursing.

1 p.m. — The Varsity Christian Fellowship is sponsoring a Bible study for University College students in room 11, UC and for Victoria College students in rm. 21, Vic.

... A Canterbury lunch and discussion will be held at Canterbury Centre, 99 St. George St.

COACHING

Calculus, Accounting, Introductory lessons on: Theory of Compound Interest, and Life Contingencies.

Call RU. 3-2257 evenings

UNIVERSITY CHAMPIONSHIP TRACK MEET

VARSITY STADIUM—THURSDAY, OCT. 15—1.30 p.m.

Open to all undergraduate students. Enter now at intramural office, Hart House. Deadline for entries Wed. Oct. 14, 5.00 p.m.

Kitten

new matching skirt and

sweater

Go glamorous in this dramatic new one-colour ensemble... jumbo-knit pullover in Shetlantex (a beautiful blend with 20% mohair), wide-set turtle neck, easy lines and long sleeves, size 34 to 40, price $12.95 — with slim Shetlantex skirt—sizes 8 to 20, price $16.95—at good shops everywhere.

Look for the name Kitten

544S

GUARANTEED
TO MATCH

U. of T. RIFLE ASSOCIATION

The Range will be open from 4 to 6 p.m. beginning Monday, October 5th, for enrollment in the Rifle Club. Complete details for instructions and competitions will be found in the Range.

GEORGE W. BULL, C.S.M. — Instructor

PROF. G. H. W. LUCAS — Captain

HOCKEY PLAYERS

Woodbridge Dodgers require five Junior "B" calibre hockey players, under 20, August 1st, 1959. Phone RU. 3-7432, between 5 and 7 p.m. Transportation supplied.

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO FLYING CLUB MEETING

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 13

8.00 p.m.

MUSIC ROOM, WYMILWOOD

Opening meeting for beginners, members, and just interested people. Refreshments will be served. All welcome.

Big Game Soon Western Healthy

By DAVE GRINER
Varsity Sports Editor

Injuries may be a big factor in this Saturday's "big" game with Western as far as Varsity Blues are concerned. Three first-stringers may not be in the lineup when Blues and Mustangs meet in J. W. Little Memorial Stadium in what is shaping up as the big game of 1959.

The one definite absentee will be Joe Foreman, the speedy half-back who suffered a chipped ankle bone in last Friday's game with McGill. Foreman had gained 62 yards in 5 carries when he was injured and was beginning to look as though he was going to fulfill Varsity coach Dalt White's hopes for him.

The other two injured players, tackle Mike Chykaliuk, and end Walt Sopinka might possibly play. An X-ray of Chykaliuk's sternum revealed no breaks, so it is a question of whether the bruise heals in time. Sopinka had his leg placed in a cast, it will come off today, but a decision as to his playing on Saturday would probably be made at the last minute.

On the other side of the field, Western are almost completely injury free. Their only injury was to John Partington, a 190 lb. guard.

JOE FOREMAN, promising to be one of the greatest broken field runners in the league this year, had his career cut short by an injury last Friday.

The injuries could force White to send an end and a halfback both on offense and defence, not a pleasant prospect for a game that is going to be as tough as Western will be Saturday.

John Metras, coach of the Western team, states that his team will not be "experimenting" when they play Varsity this time. Apparently last time was for fun, but this game will be for keeps.

Varsity coach White is faced with the pleasant problem of deciding which two of his three potential All-Star full backs to dress. Burroughs and Chisholm had the job to themselves until John McMurty stepped in for the injured Burroughs against McGill and did such a terrific job that White is forced to consider him in future plans.

Movies of the McGill game revealed what many people had suspected: the best Varsity tackle of the night was made by 215 lb. trainer Howie Ringham, when he bounced a McGill halfback to end a sweep.

Also shown up in the flickers was some terrific blocking by Weldon Thoburn and Doug Loughead. Loughead sent more than one Redman flying on the end sweeps.

A late injury to worry coach White is Casey Wood. Wood, one of the best Varsity linemen in last Friday's game, was in the infirmary with an infected leg at last report. His status for the Western game is unknown.

Notes . . . leading scorer this year is tackle Bill Mitchell of Western. He has eight points via two field goals and a like number of converts . . . eleven other players, including seven from Varsity are tied for second spot, two points behind.

. . . and in this corner by pam hill

For some incomprehensible reason, the new freshies have a rather unfortunate blown up "delusions of grandeur" regarding women's sports on campus.

The purr wee bair-r-rns seem to think that not only do the Intercollegiate teams have as good . . . or better . . . players than they ever saw at High School, but even that the Interfaculty teams enjoy members with an equally high status.

Well, freshies, 'tain't true! You'll probably never see as good competitors in the Intercollegiate circuit as you've already seen in the public and private secondary schools!

To start with, at University, not everybody tries out for the teams, but only those interested. Secondly, many of the best players from the High Schools never see College (or at least College sports). Competitors have played on Intercollegiate teams that have never competed before — or even played the game until University. And the Interfaculty teams are even worse. You're lucky if you get a hockey team where any of them have ever played before!

Last year, for the first time in at least five years, the swimming team had what you would term as a "competitive swimmer." The other team members — for the most part — had never swam seriously before University.

Basketball may be a bit different, but certainly lots of those gals never competed seriously before they came to College.

But there's the opportunity of better coaching and organization here, and more fun. The out-of-town meets are terrific, and the whole idea of "team spirit" is really worth while.

U of T is three times as big as any other Canadian campus, and we should by far have the best Intercollegiate teams with the relative numbers we have to choose from. But we don't.

Last year, out of eleven Intercollegiate tournaments, U of T took top honours in five — which isn't bad, you must admit, but that leaves Western, Queen's and McGill with about two or three championships apiece. So, you see . . . we're not really doing so famously after all.

If you're the least bit interested in any sport, do come out! We not only need the positions filled by anybody, but we'd like to see some real competition to make the team. Then — and only then — do the coaches really see the best of what we have to offer.

bits 'n' scraps: the Intercollegiate swim team trials are going to be next Thursday, but the coaches say that this will not definitely be the final word . . . get swimming Mondays and Wednesdays so you can give a good show in the trials . . . the tennis had to be cancelled until today because of the rain . . . finals next week for sure . . . the golf tournament is still scheduled for Friday (9.45, St. Andrew's) . . . recruits are still needed . . . basketball practices are neatly under way . . . baseball schedule starting next Wednesday . . . got two new terrific writers (?) . . . Sally Bambridge and Ann Tottenham . . . watch Friday's issue.

BLUES' RECEIVING ACES, Mike Muir (left), and Doug Loughead (right), will be out to harass Western defenders at London this Friday. Both Ends received TD passes last Friday against McGill.

Tennis Tourney Opens Montreal Dark Horse

By DON SCHRANK

This morning at 9:30 competition for the Intercollegiate Tennis Championship gets under way at the Toronto Lawn Tennis Club. Teams representing the University of Montreal, Laval, McGill, Queens, McMaster and Toronto are challenging the champions from Western.

Each team will play four Thursday and Friday when the singles and two doubles matches in the round-robin elimination series will be decided. If rain forces postponement, the scheduled matches will be played on alternate dates. The Toronto Lawn Tennis Club is located at 7100

40 Rowanwood Road, Unit 1, just from Yonge Street, just blocks south of the St. Lawrence subway station. A full schedule of the matches is available by telephoning the club at WA 7-7100.

Belated Sports Roundup All Here Somewhere

By GENE GLISKY
Roving Sports Reporter

An overwhelming amount of vital and interesting sports copy has been growing steadily in our dusty files, never ignored, but never printed either. This we shall now attempt to rectify. Our apologies to the enthusiastic writers who supplied the information.

Through rain, thunder and mud Varsity golfers completed a hectic tourney to decide a champion and an Intercollegiate team.

John Erskine (II SPS) won individual honors over a field of fifteen players stroking 77.77 for a 36 hole 154 total.

Ronald Fletcher (II UC) turned in a 156 score to cinch second place. Church Jacobs (I UC) and Bill Cuff (I Pre Dents) tied for third place and the last position on the Intercollegiate team turning in identical 157 tallies.

Toronto will defend the title they won last year at the Kingston Cataract Course, this Friday.

Intramural track championships begin at 1:30 in Varsity Stadium. Only freshmen and athletes who have never participated in an Intercollegiate track meet, are eligible for this one, UC are defending champions.

Still in the Intramural vein, a reshuffle has taken place in the Intramural Football League. University College Redmen have been moved to group I, competing with Sr. SPS, Trinity and Mulock Cup winners Victoria. St. Michael's College, after an unfortunate season last year are back in Group II.

A shakeup in Varsity's Senior Rugby Blues is threatened after last week's disastrous 9-6 loss to Toronto Wanderers of the Ontario Senior A League. Intermediate players will have to be brought in to play McGill anyway, since some of the Seniors are ineligible for Intercollegiate competition.

The rugby club's annual meeting will be held tonight following a communal supper at the Great Hall. Workouts will still be held before supper.

After 11 races in a breeze varying from eight to three knots, Al Rae and Charles Grant emerged as the new Varsity Sailing team. 14 teams contested the issue at Nordborg's at Queen City Yacht Club.

The Intercollegiate regatta will be held in Toronto Sunday, Oct. 18. Varsity are defending champions and present holders of the Grant Trophy.

This Fall, for the first time, Hart House Table Tennis Club is sponsoring a tournament open to all members of the University. A steady influx of foreign students has regenerated a greater interest in this sport as well as greatly improving the calibre of competition.

The Hart House Table Tennis Club extends a cordial invitation to all campus types to come out October 17 and compete. The tournament will be held in the Lower Gym, trophies being arranged for the winners.

University of Toronto now boasts a bona fide Cricket Club. This fall practices will be held as well as matches against outside clubs. The spring and summer months will see intensive outside competition.

Anyone wishing to play, contact John Cole in Room 153, 73 St. George St. John Marshall and John Brewer are forming a club at Victoria and should be contacted by those wishing to play there.

And that gentlemen is thirty in another Sporty roundup.

More "Here and Now" for Thursday

7.45 p.m. — The Lutheran Students' Club will hold its opening meeting at 610 Spadina Ave. Refreshments will be served and all are welcome.

8 p.m. — All students are welcome to a Presbyterian Fellowship social. Dress is informal. Westminster House Gym, 156 St. George Street.

9 p.m. — The Polish Students' Club will hold a freshman party in the University College Women's Union, 79 St. George St.

Abner's Races . . .

Sports car enthusiasts on campus have shown an interest in racing mechanized baby buggies that has far exceeded promoter Abner Steinberg's dreams.

In response to his call to those interested in racing cars in the first campus university meet, Mr. Steinberg has received 10 definite entries and four possibilities. A race at the Edenvale Raceway near Stayner is materializing and will take place Saturday, Oct. 17 or 24.

Those interested in forming a campus sports car club, again a first for a Canadian university, are urged to attend a meeting in room 52L, University College, Tuesday, Oct. 13.

A film of a major European race will be shown. Membership in the proposed club has already been pledged at 23.

The club is not intended only for those planning to race, but for all racing enthusiasts. At future meetings, experts in the sports car field will talk to members and answer questions regarding cars and speedway racing.

HART HOUSE

C.B.C. CELEBRITY SERIES presents
GUOMAR NOVAES, Piano

Wednesday, October 14th, at 8.10 p.m.

GREAT HALL, HART HOUSE

Free tickets available to University men and women at Hall Porter's Desk

HELMAR

At Last Our New Line of Formals Are Ready For You.
Come Over and See Them Between Lectures Any Time.

46 ST. GEORGE — WA. 1-5978

Student Christian Movement

WELCOMING PARTY

Special Speaker:

M. St. A. Woodside

Wednesday, October 7th
8.30 p.m.

East Common Room — Hart House

All Welcome

Soph Head Unprepared For Surprise Kidnapping

The resident second year head of St. Hilda's College was kidnapped Sunday morning by a team of four freshmen coeds.

Ann Tottenham (II Trin.) was tricked into entering a car outside St. Hilda's by a tale that one of St. Hilda's freshmen was hysterical and needed her help.

Miss Tottenham, clad in a pair of shoes and a trench coat over pajamas was persuaded to go for a drive with the freshmen "in distress" at 8 a.m. Sunday.

When the car was in motion

she learned she had been kidnapped.

The pretty sophomore was held for a day at a farm near Orangeville, Ont. She was returned to Toronto Sunday night and forced to walk to St. Hilda's from St. George St. and Hoskin Ave. wearing a halo and a sign she had drawn up during the day.

Miss Tottenham warned her bodyguards she had alerted her room mate for a possible kidnapping next week.

When told she was a hostage she protested, "I haven't even brushed my teeth".

Kidnappers said yesterday Miss Tottenham had been a "good sport" about the snatch and had "cooperated all the way".

Art Boosts Enrolment

The University of Toronto has a reported boost of 1,800 students over the number registered last year at this time.

This figure includes students of graduate studies as well as those in the BA extension course.

Although official figures will not be published until Dec. 1, enrolment as of Oct. 1 is 13,407.

The largest increase was noted in Arts and BA courses along with a rise of 268 students in graduate studies.

BANFF-LAKE LOUISE ALUMNI

ORGANIZATIONAL MEETING

TONIGHT — WEDNESDAY — OCT. 7

Classroom No. 4 — Trinity College — 8 p.m. to 10 p.m.
Everyone Welcome — Plans will be made for reunions during the winter.

Special Attention — 25% Discount

ON ALL JEWELLERY PURCHASES

Including: Watches, Diamonds, Silverware, Lighters, Wallets, Pens, and Pencils, Radios, Clocks, Costume Jewellery etc. etc. You must have your A.T.L. card when making a purchase.

SHEFFIELD JEWELLERS

DIAMOND MERCHANTS

323 YONGE ST. (5 doors above Dundas) TEL. EM. 6-0977

Today's Formal

Purple Satin Peau de Soie Cocktail Dress, portrait neck and delicately shaped bell skirt.

HELMAR — WA. 1-5978
46 ST. GEORGE STREET

Hike A Hit

The University of Toronto Outing Club hit Caledon Hills last weekend.

On an annual "Get Acquainted Weekend" which included a varied program of out-door lore, men outnumbered the females 15-13.

The hardy group of campers returned to Toronto Sunday night, glowing from two days of sun baths, six mile hikes, dancing, hay riding, and wood chopping.

The outing club was launched three years ago. Membership chairman Phil Helwig, said enrolment now in the organization is booming as more students discover an occasional weekend spent in the great out doors well worth while.

OPPORTUNITY FOR INQUIRING MINDS

Each year C-I-L provides fellowships for promising young scientists doing post-graduate research at Canadian universities. Through this program, now in its eighteenth year, over 200 students have had the opportunity to carry out original work under university direction thus adding to their own, and Canada's, store of scientific knowledge. Grants to endow chairs of science and to expand existing university facilities further support the development of inquiring minds. C-I-L's own activities, so dependent on constant development and research, also provide scope and a congenial atmosphere for many trained talents, working together in the ever-new world of chemistry.

SOME OF THE RESEARCH PROJECTS CARRIED ON BY HOLDERS OF C-I-L FELLOWSHIPS:

isotopes produced in nuclear fission • chemistry of wood carbohydrates • wood pulping with liquid ammonia • soil fertility • electrically activated oxygen • gas engineering • nitrogen derivatives of steroids • the use of gaseous ammonia as a plant nutrient • mechanisms of organic reactions using radioactive carbon • spectral analysis of molecules • reactions of active nitrogen • waterfowl habits.

CANADIAN INDUSTRIES LIMITED

Serving Canadians Through Chemistry

AGRICULTURAL CHEMICALS • AMMUNITION • COATED FABRICS • INDUSTRIAL CHEMICALS COMMERCIAL EXPLOSIVES • PAINTS • PLASTICS • TEXTILE FIBRES

Varsity Staff Photo by Weston

Canadian Laws Attacked Charge: Moral Hypocrisy

By TERRY BOURKE
Varsity Staff Reporter

A guest at a Hart House debate last night lashed out against hypocritical Canadian laws "bouying up a raft of savage contempt for womanhood".

Telegram columnist Frank Tumpane, backing the victorious Ayes on "Do Canadians Suffer from Moral Hypocrisy" singled out prostitution laws as the key discriminating force against women.

Mr. Tumpane argued a law punishing prostitutes for soliciting and then letting her client off is based on the "fiercest kind of hypocrisy".

Speaking from another angle, the columnist blasted Canada for developing into a "nation of sincere hypocrites".

"The root of two facedness in this country is essentially the offspring of the Dale Carnegie doctrine," he added.

This school of thought, he said is out to promote an attitude of "good-guyism" in society where people laugh when they want to frown" and play sports when they want to read".

Mr. Tumpane said hypocrisy has become so much a part of our life "we have a hard time recognizing it anymore".

Hitting off for the Ayes, John

Pierce (IV SMC) drew on the English language as one of the major hypocritical blocks" Canada is stuck with".

Pierce said no Canadian "ever gets right down and dies, he either passes away or leaves this earthly sphere".

"Or," he continued, "the average Canadian prefers to refer to the last world wars as recent unpleasantness".

Pierce, an American, said "in Canada today people no longer obey the law out of respect for Christian belief but merely out of traditional observance".

"Because the element of Christian substance here is scant, the more hypocritical Canadians rush forth to ban, as he put it 'Lady Lover's Chatterley', but haven't the faintest idea why".

First speaker for the Noes, defeated 71-44, was M Zysman (II Law), who admitted such things as liquor laws and language do inject a mild form of hypocrisy into the viens of Canadian life.

But he added quickly, "it is not moral hypocrisy because any so called Blue Laws are made in good faith by people with the best of intentions".

Second Ayes' orator, C. Lee pointed out that in a democracy like Canada, discrimination is deliberately launched against certain ethnic groups.

Saying "we are masterly hypocritical", Lee stressed "the finer points of sex education should be learned properly in school".

"Unfortunately," he continued, "this subject is learned in the gutter, out of cheap paper back books, and imported movies".

Last speaker for the Noes, R. Caplan said, "Canada has and needs hypocrisy, but doesn't suffer from it".

"Because of the varied number of ethnic groups in Canada and their diversity, a toned down hypocrisy is absolutely necessary to keep them existing."

Throughout the entire debate speaker of the house I. G. Scott, kept the audience informed on progress of elections in Britain.

Cold Bug Batters Nfcus Delegates

By ED ROBERTS
Varsity News Editor

SASKATOON, Oct. 8—The four-man Toronto delegation to the Nfcus congress here Wednesday justified Toronto SAC President Walter McLean's prediction Tuesday night of "a better day tomorrow" whom it recovered from a temporary slump and recorded a strung of triumphs, both official and personal.

Toronto Nfcus Chairman, Mike Sherman (IV UC), scored the day's major advance as Nfcus chairmen from all across Canada elected him to preside over their daily sessions during the congress.

Sherman split the group into smaller groups and set them to work drafting statements of what they believed Nfcus stood for, and therole they envisaged for the Nfcus committees on their own campuses.

The congress today took the first steps towards setting up a committee to co-ordinate all Nfcus cultural activities into a "Cultural Committee".

The National Affairs Committee passed the resolution setting up the committee, designed to replace the hodge-podge of unco-ordinated activities now in existence.

A sub-committee was also set up to work out the practical details of integrating the new committee into the present organization.

Indications are that a report by the sub-committee will recommend that Nfcus institute a new national vice-presidency for cultural affairs.

Perhaps the most striking feature of the proposed new committee is its take-over of the Canadian University Students Art Committees (CUSAC).

CUSAC, which organizes national art shows as well as encouraging student artists in every way possible, has long been the odd-man-out of Nfcus.

It was theoretically independent, and yet it tried to work hand in hand with the National Secretariat of Nfcus. The new set-up is designed to end this, and CUSAC will now be a sub-committee of the new committee.

The National Affairs Committee also revamped the Nfcus short-story contest. From now on the contest will have only one division, instead of French and English sections.

In addition, the committee recommended its scope be broadened to include all types of literary works.

Another change is in the publication of the winning entries. Now, instead of being published by Liberty magazine, the winning works will appear in "a literary magazine" which will be selected from a university.

Charge American Frat With Breaking Rules

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Oct. 7 (CUP)—A fraternity at the University of Rochester has been charged with violating rushing rules, and will not be allowed to rush new members until second term.

Psi Upsilon was convicted of the offence following charges that they had contacted freshmen during the summer to enrol them in the fraternity.

"It appears," the charge read, "this is a directed plan to influence these impressionable freshmen."

Rod Moran (III Dents), a vice-president of the Psi Upsilon on the University of Toronto campus, said last night there is no inter-fraternity Council over U of T men's fraternities.

It was a four-man committee of the University of Rochester's Hellenic Council that convicted the fraternity.

"The chapters in most American universities are under the thumb of the university's administration," Morgan said. "Up here we run our own show."

"We have no written laws about rushing at U of T," he continued. "All we have is a sort of gentleman's agreement with the other fraternities. In the United States the fraternities need permission to do anything."

When asked about rushing at U of T, Morgan said, "It's really a cut-throat business. The rushees live like kings." There are about 30 men's fraternities on campus, all rushing at once.

"We often get in touch with prospective members during the summer," Morgan said.

Members of the University of Toronto Outing Club yesterday paddled a full-sized canoe in the broad waters of the Queen's Park fountain.

The stunt was aimed at attracting attention to the club's proposed canoe trip to Algonquin Park.

After paddling around the students with contributions from the Canada Council, industry and university administrations.

In his speech, McLean called the conference a "bold venture on a tried and true plan which would give Nfcus a raison d'etre".

The speech received wild applause and an overwhelming vote approved the Toronto suggestion at a special plenary session of the conference.

Theme of the national conference, which will include major speakers from the political and academic worlds, will be of "universal appeal to students".

THE VARSITY

Vol. LXXIX — No. 9

Friday, October 9th, 1959

Assembly Proposed For 1,000 Students

SASKATOON, Oct. 8 (CUP)—Promising "blood, sweat, toil and tears", University of Toronto was mandated tonight to investigate possibilities of holding a four-day, 1,000-student national conference.

Brian-child of Walter McLean, Students' Administrative Council president, the plan was outlined in a 40-minute speech to the 23rd annual conference of the National Federation of Canadian University Students.

Subject to two-thirds approval of Nfcus, the $100,000 conference will be held in December, 1960. Conference will be financed by the Canada Council, industry and university administrations.

In his speech, McLean called the conference a "bold venture on a tried and true plan which would give Nfcus a raison d'etre".

The speech received wild applause and an overwhelming vote approved the Toronto suggestion at a special plenary session of the conference.

Theme of the national conference, which will include major speakers from the political and academic worlds, will be of "universal appeal to students".

Wanted— Expansive Queen

"Miss Varsity" is going to materialize at last.

A co-ed "with looks, intelligence and personality" who will publicize the University Expansion Program at fund-raising functions throughout the year, will be chosen at the Homecoming game, Oct. 21.

All faculties are invited to submit nominations to the SAC office, contest officials said last night.

Nouveau Riche?

A University College student who advertised in the UC Junior Common Room for a "nouveau riche" girl said last night he is "surprised and gratified that there are so many rational people in the world".

Sol Rosen (III UC) refused to give exact data on the number of girls who have replied to his week-old advertisement, but said he has started to interview some people who are willing to discuss the matter on a business level.

Rosen said special preference will be given to girls in Teachers' College. Only reason for the teacher priority is that one of his friends prefers teachers, he said.

Rosen said the girl he's looking for should have a discriminating family who wants an intelligent professional man.

His definition of "nouveau riche" is someone who has come into money in the last generation or someone whose family has gone into the building business in the last 20 years.

Although he does not believe in love at first sight, Rosen is "sure that love will grow".

Paddle Canoe In Fountain

Members of the University of Toronto Outing Club yesterday paddled a full-sized canoe in the broad waters of the Queen's Park fountain.

The stunt was aimed at attracting attention to the club's proposed canoe trip to Algonquin Park.

After paddling around the fountain, the canoers portaged to Addison Hall, the Victoria College women's residence, where they enlisted several new club members.

Last week the outdoors club held a get-aquainted outing at the Caledon Hills Farm. The planned canoe trip is the week-end of Oct. 17.

This year's first general meeting of the club will be held in Carr Hall, St. Michael's College, Tuesday at 8 p.m.

The program will include slides and commentary from the University of British Columbia's Outing Club and canoeing information.

Entertainment will be provided by a guitarist and a group of folk singers.

old system "not ideal"

Drop Christmas Exams In Acadia

WOLFVILLE, N.S., Oct. 7 (CUP)—The president of Acadia University has announced mid-term examinations have been abolished.

Watson Kirkconnell said the decision was reached at a faculty meeting held last May. At the meeting it was decided that grades given to students would be determined by the department heads concerned. Formerly the grades were based on the exams held in January.

President Kirkconnell said the department heads will base their grades on "regular class tests" or final examinations to be set by the instructor in May.

The president pointed out that many students disliked writing exams after the Christmas break. "No system of mid-year examinations is ideal," he said.

Another reason given for the abolition of the exams was a request by the university's physical education head, Major Fred Kelly asked the tests be abolished "in an effort to put Acadia's athletic teams on an equal footing with other universities."

New Nuclear Course Spurned In Extension

University of Toronto engineering faculty officials are disappointed. Enthusiasm still has to be scraped up over a new extension course in nuclear power which swings into action this fall.

So far only 28 students have enrolled. U of T nuclear engineering professor D. G. Andrews says this is the absolute minimum figure needed to maintain the course.

Aim of the course is to inform and educate the public in atomic-age engineering, he said yesterday.

Professor Andrews said Canada could become a top-rate nuclear power if the use of uranium could be increased.

"This can be achieved by persuading more people to invest more money in the nuclear program and by convincing the government of the future in atomic energy," he said.

During the past few years nuclear courses on campus have had little success. A former dean of applied science at U of T once tried to launch a nuclear course but it folded in one year.

Rivalry Renewed By Bronze Bull

HAMILTON, Oct. 7 (CUP)—A bronze statue of a Jersey bull may be partly responsible for the renewal of rivalry between McMaster University and the Ontario Agricultural College that has lain dormant for years.

Seven McMaster students were detained at OCE Wednesday night when they could not satisfy security police—they had official business on the campus.

The same night the two-foot-high statue was taken from the rotunda of the college's administration building. On the McMaster campus, meanwhile, red paint spelling out "OAC" was smeared on the buildings and campus.

OAC Dean Ian White said he thought it was "possible" the McMaster men took the trophy.

McMaster Dean of Men P. R. Clifford would not comment.

The incident was the first sign since 1958 of a formerly traditional hostility. In 1958 OAC students painted their college's letters on McMaster's nuclear reactor.

In 1957, 12 McMaster undergrads stole an antique fire engine from the OAC campus.

Plan 82-Flag Display For United Nations day

Flags of 82 nations may be paraded at the Queens-Toronto football game in Varsity stadium Oct. 24.

Bill Ede (III SPS), provisional president of the University of Toronto United Nations Club said yesterday plans are underway to display the national colors at the game to be played on UN Day.

This is part of a huge publicity scheme designed to shift the University into the public eye. The move is intended to gain support for the current fund-raising expansion campaign at U of T.

The U of T Blue and White Society has been sweating out final parade details.

University Lodge
A.F. & A.M.
No. 496, G.R.C.

Meets at Masonic Temple
888 Yonge St.

Meetings are held on second Wednesday and fourth Thursday evenings of the month. Students who are members of the Craft are cordially invited to attend.

WEDNESDAY
OCTOBER 11

UNIVERSITY AND EDUCATIONAL NIGHT

ROSEDALE
PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH
129 Mount Pleasant Road
(2 blocks north of Bloor,
2 blocks east of Yonge)
Minister: Rev. E. S. Mackay, M.A.
Thanksgiving Sunday
11 a.m.—Public Worship
7:30 p.m.—"The Hidden Heart"
A Sound Film Presentation
8:30 p.m.—Senior Youth Group
Special welcome to Varsity
Students

University Lutheran Chapel

SUNDAY SERVICE — 11 a.m.
SUNDAY SUPPER — 5:30 p.m.
Student Club, every 2nd and
4th Thursday, at 7:45 p.m.

610 SPADINA
(below Harbord)

WA. 2-1884 — WA. 3-6840

Park Road Baptist Church

1 Block North and East of
Bloor - Yonge

Minister: Rev. Murray J. S.
Ford, M.A., B.D.

VICTOR E. GRAHAM, Organist

SERVICES AT
10:45 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.

A Cordial Invitation to all
Students to Attend Inspiring
Services

Trinity College Chapel

THANKSGIVING WEEKEND
SERVICES

Sunday—8:00 a.m.—Matins
8:15 a.m.—Eucharist
Monday—8:00 a.m.—Matins
8:15 a.m.—Eucharist

EVERYBODY WELCOME

TODAY
3 p.m.

Convocation Hall, Trinity College

Opening Meeting of the U. of T. Liberal Club

Hon. Lester B. Pearson

Leader of the Liberal Party of Canada

— 1957 Nobel Peace Prize Winner

All Students Invited to Attend
Open Question Period to Follow

VICTORIA COLLEGE CHAPEL

SUNDAY — OCTOBER 11 — 11 a.m.

"JESUS CHRIST"

Professor George A. McMullen

Walmer Road Baptist Church

ONE STREET WEST OF SPADINA, ONE NORTH OF BLOOR

Welcomes Students to Its Services

SUNDAY — 11 a.m. — 7 p.m.

— Friendly After Church Firesides —

YOUNG PEOPLE MEET MONDAY at 8 p.m. — Students Like It

Dr. Harvey L. Denton, Minister Rev. Gordon V. Crofoot, Assoc.

C.B.C. CELEBRITY SERIES

— presents —

GUIOMAR NOVAES, Piano

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 14th, at 8:10 p.m.

GREAT HALL, HART HOUSE

Free tickets available to University men and women at Hall Porter's Desk.

There's Something Special
about du MAURIER

The Exclusive "Millec" Filter Tip,
the most efficient filter yet developed, lets
you draw free and easy, for full smoking satisfaction. du MAURIER combines the finest Virginia tobaccos to give you perfect mildness and smoothness. Once you smoke
du MAURIER you'll make the distinctive red and silver package
your favorite — always.

du MAURIER

A Really Milder High Grade Virginia Cigarette with the EXCLUSIVE "Millec" FILTER TIP

"Oahspe"

comment

There's No Cult Like An Occult

By JOHN ROBERT COLOMBO

Man has always preferred darkness to light. Even religious ceremonies are usually conducted in the dark. In one sense at least, extra sensory perception, astrology, astral voyaging, witchcraft, magic, clairvoyance and psychometry are simply abortive attempts to pierce this darkness. All are close cousins to the irrational.

The occult has always been studied by groups. The most uncritical of these are called cults. One such cult—no better, no worse than the rest—is "The Brotherhood of Faithists".

This group meets in Toronto, where even the rational is hard-pressed to find roots. A Faithist meeting may be attended on alternate Tuesday evenings, about eight-thirty, in one of the smaller rooms on the second floor of Casa Loma.

There are about forty active members in the Toronto chapter of the Brotherhood. Twenty or so are regulars but at every meeting a few curious non-members appear who may or may not return. All of these are—in one sense at least—Christianity's failures.

One Tuesday, after checking their schedules, I decided to attend a meeting. I was already in the building and walking along the shadowy hall when an elderly lady in front of me attracted my attention. "Good evening, good evening," she kept saying. I looked more closely, only to see her pausing before a suit of armour. She was staring blankly at its metal visor. I waited for a reply but there was none.

The Faithists I met were mostly lower middle class but there was nothing backward about them. Their cult accepts flying saucers as the space vehicles of divine messengers. The Faithist chosen people are the Hopi Indians of the southern United States, who some day "will unite again". Their emblem is a maple-leaf cut by a cross.

Most of this information came from the printed pamphlets which they distribute at the door. Their specific beliefs seem to have gone unrecorded and they fear a critical and unsympathetic examination of their tenets. They do, however, maintain emphatically that spirituality is measured by the number of "sightings" a member has had of flying saucers.

Meetings are generally informal, and any organization that may occur is left to the Spirit. We sat around in a circle and discussed space, craft. Two women had seen a cigar-shaped ship from a bedroom window since the last meeting. A young plumber, while driving along Lakeshore, almost crashed when he saw six saucers over Lake Ontario.

This tallied with the sightings of an elderly gentleman, who then introduced a guest member. She explained she had received messages from one of the ship's captains. A pile of typewritten notes before her attested to the uncommonly good contact. She went on to read detailed information about the saucer's dimensions, its super-atomic drive and its amazing velocity "far surpassing any mere earth vehicles".

Sitting beside me was a silver-haired grandmother who confided that she had never seen a ship but that her hopes were high. On closer examination she thought I looked a bit like her long-lost husband. It turned out he had died the year I was born.

Groups of this sort are always led by an "Initiate"—and the local chapter of the Faithists is no exception. This Initiate was everything an Initiate should be—tall, reserved, rather quiet but very ambiguous, with good looks and a fine voice. In Toronto's business world this one was known to be an astute stamp and coin dealer and the ex-owner of Canada's largest second-hand book store.

The Initiate is the go-between. It is his lot to interpret divine mandate and he is usually in charge of programming and finances. In this case he collected seventy-five cents from everyone, "to meet expenses". After introducing a lady psychometrist, he closed the meeting.

I was slow in leaving because I knew there would be more to follow. There is always the "inner group" which studies spiritual matters directly. Someone was absent that evening and only twelve old-timers were around. I was lucky—I was the thirteenth.

We moved into a larger chamber of Casa Loma and arranged thirteen chairs around the center of the room. When everyone was seated the lights were turned off and only the moon could be seen flickering through the drapes and the branches of the trees. The Initiate stepped into the center circle and began the tape recorder to record the spirit-voices.

Nothing happened for about five minutes and most of us were getting restless. The Initiate's wife began to hum. Soon everyone was beckoned to join in. This must have eased the appearance of The Unblinking Eye, for it soon appeared. Slowly you became susceptible to its vibration; slowly it began to manifest itself—great, glittering, magnificent in its all-seeing splendor . . .

But you did not see it. A few of the others are staring at it. Perhaps your faith is not great enough to your vibrations are too gross.

In any case the Eye blinks itself into oblivion and the meeting is over. Everyone feels relieved but the lights smart your eyes. A number of helpful souls cluster around you, to question you on what you saw, to try to help you "along the way".

You explain that you didn't actually see the Eye but that you did see something . . . well, almost.

You are invited to return. It must have been bad atmospherics tonight since the tape recorder didn't catch any voices. Perhaps you would care to study in the meantime?

Every cult centres around a Book and the Brotherhood of Faithists is no exception. Their Bible is "Oahspe", eight hundred pages of pictures and plates that claim to explain the mysteries of the universe.

Someone tells you that this is man's most recent and God's most complete revelation. "Oahspe", it turns out, was the only Bible dictated to men via a typewriter. You remember reading about it in some of the literature and you raise your nose in intellectual disgust.

But you don't sneer too audibly. After all, there may be something in all of this. It may be a future Christianity.

You meditate on the follies of man as you return home. And, stumbling blindly into bed, you suddenly feel that you are inadequate to explain anything at all. Your more tolerant self takes sway as sleep set in and you recall with approval that great observation made by Ripley years ago: Strange indeed is man seeing after his gods.

our subterranean critic

Carmen Charms At TT

The street lamp lights were filling Queen Street's rainwashed gutters with gold, but inside the T.T. "the evening breezes caressed the trees" as Carmen McRae blew up a tender storm. (For the uninformed the T.T. is Toronto's free-swinging Town Tavern.)

Carmen's success did not come overnight, but her fame, as her love, is here to stay. She was born in Brooklyn where she studied piano privately. At an early age she moved to Chicago in search of gigs. She was discovered, however, back in New York, by the ex-wife of Teddy Wilson, and by the time she was twenty-two she had worked both with Benny Carter and with Basie. Two years later with the Mercer-Ellington band of '46, she made her record debut under the name of Carmen Clarke. (She was then married to drummer Kenny Clarke.) In the slow years that followed, she sang and played piano during intermissions at Minton's and other Harlem clubs, eking out her living when typist. These years, though slow, were perhaps musically her most important, as it was in this time that she developed her individuality of style. By 1954, when she won D.B.'s "new" Star Award, she had become the driving, ebullient, Carmen McRae.

Last Friday, Carmen was still twenty-two (going on thirty-eight). As she walked towards her table after a session with the Dick Katz combo, I definitely noticed that a rich glow preceded her, on closer inspection, I saw that she wore a diamond rock on one hand, pebbles on the other. We met at her table where the mere utterance of "Varsity Press" was worth an interview, a Red Cap, and a smile.

This past year has been a busy one for Carmen. Besides cutting discs ("Book of Ballads" is one of her latest and greatest) and making personal appearances, she has had time for a European tour and a singing role in a soon-to-be-released movie called "The Subterraneans".

Concerning the movie she said, "Other than the fact that it's about the 'beat generation', and hat Mulligan and Prevín are in it, I know nothing about it's about the 'beat generation', and that Mulligan and Prevín are in it.

About Toronto, Carmen was a little more communicative. She stated that she liked Toronto very much and that she enjoys playing to Toronto audiences more than to New York ones. Now most performers will praise the town in which they are currently appearing because it is expedient to do so, but I am sure that Carmen had no politic motives in mind. For this reason I was surprised at her statement; after all New York is the Big Apple, the world centre of jazz.

—Bob Eisenberg.

Feedback

the defeat

Dear Sir:

Everybody will be glad to see the university bookstore return to its normal routine, so it will be possible to buy books other than prescribed texts.

With the present system, while there is more room for students to line up, pleasure-book-buying is impossible.

Yesterday I tried to get a copy of "Waiting for Godot" by Samuel Beckett.

"Is that a text?" asked the student employee brightly.

"No," I replied, "It's in a paperback published by the Grove Press. It's in that rack over there," as I pointed.

"Well," she said, "those books aren't in alphabetical order, and I would have to hunt through them all." There was a pause. "But we'd be happy to order it for you," she filled in, automatically.

I turned around, and saw the angry line behind me growing. "I can see it, it's right on the end," I said helplessly. But I knew I was beaten, so I slunk out, with, "I'd be happy to order it for you" echoing throughout the store.

Gellely Ignazio (III UC)

choice of enemies

Dear Sir:

Well one of our history professors has again taken "that" attitude.

Canada should be neutral.

As a history professor he should look at other neutral countries through the ages. The only one which has successfully stayed neutral is Switzerland and this is due to her geographical protections and density of population. Canada has neither of these. We are a country with no great natural barriers, no great density of population, and right between the two completely opposed countries and ideologies.

To insist on a course of neutralism is running away from the problem. Difficulties can only be overcome by facing up to them. We can not overcome problems by sticking our heads in the sand nor by adopting a policy of "we won't hurt you, so don't you hurt us". Two of the most trusting species that the world has ever known were the dodo bird, and the passenger pigeon and it is common knowledge what happened to them.

To be strictly neutral would be saying that we have no opinions of our own. We wouldn't want to take one side for fear of angering the other. Stay neutral and then at the opportune time join with the side which is on top. Is this what Dr. McNaught advocates?

Only by bravely stating which side we stand on and by standing so firm that other countries look up to us can we "maintain Canadian identity in the face of relationship with the United States" in this struggle between communism and Western capitalism.

There is no easy way out. It has long been proven that the positive thinking is the path people follow. Neutralism is a negative approach. Both opposed positive ideologies are rejected but no strong compelling positive idea is given in their place. Only by being firmly on one side can we be strong.

India is a neutral country. But what has India gotten in eleven years? Border trouble with China, battles in Kashmir, riots in Calcutta and New Delhi, and unrest and communism troubles in Kerala state. This is India's record. Now she is learning from experience and is becoming more pro-western. Can we too not learn from her lesson? To accept neutralism and to not take sides is to quietly condone Russia's actions in Hungary and East Germany and China's actions in Tibet. We do not agree with these actions and the thoughts behind them. They are against what we believe is good and right. Only by courageously sticking to the side that we choose can Canada achieve any sort of a victory in World Affairs.

Accuse Professor Union 'Meddling'

SUDBURY, Oct. 8 (CUP)—A high union official has accused a University of Sudbury professor of "meddling" in an election campaign in the Sudbury local of the union.

Nels Thibault, former national president of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers, said Prof. A. J. Boudreau had invited 88 graduate members of a leadership training course to attend an executive meeting of the local.

Mr. Thibault is attempting to depose local president Don Gillis and his administration in the local 598 elections in November.

Gillis and his associates took over office last March, defeating a Communist leader.

Mr. Thibault accused Prof. Boudreau of calling the meeting to help draft a program for Gillis and his party. Prof. Boudreau said Mr. Thibault was being dishonest in his accusation and that he had invited his former students to attend because he hoped their training could be of help to Mr. Gillis.

Today's Formal

Lovely Shot Emerald Peau de Soie Strapless Waltz Length Gown with Flattering Large Box Pleats. French Bow at Back

HELMAR — WA. 1-5978
46 ST. GEORGE STREET

S.C.M. FALL CAMP: THANKSGIVING WEEKEND

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 9th —
MONDAY, OCTOBER 12th

A WEEKEND OF RELAXATION AND INFORMAL STUDY AT THE ANGLICAN CONFERENCE CENTRE, AURORA

COST: $8.50 plus Transportation per person
Register at the S.C.M. Office, Hart House

FASTER STARTS Quicker, surer stops with KAUFMAN Golden Jets

— the basketball shoes scientifically designed to improve your game

Wear the shoe chosen by so many well-known Canadian basketball teams . . . Golden Jets. New non-marking RIPPLE® Soles lengthen the stride; propel the foot forward for fast get-aways, or "dig in" for instant, non-skid stops.

Golden Jets let you play longer without tiring because cushion action of RIPPLE® Soles absorbs shock, reduces foot fatigue. You'll want these other Golden Jet features too:

- * PROFESSIONAL LAST (narrow at heel, wide at ball of foot)
- * SHOCK-ABSORBING CUSHION ARCH PROTECTOR
- * "BREATHABLE" UPPERS of long-wearing heavy duck

Golden Jets come in white with golden trim. Ask for Golden Jets at your nearest sports or shoe store.

NEW RIPPLE® SOLE gives super action

Made by Kaufman Rubber Co., Limited, Kitchener, Ont.

Aim For $52,000,000

Mayor Names Week For UofT Campaigning

November has been proclaimed by the Mayor of Toronto, Nathan Phillips as University of Toronto Campaign Month.

The proclamation was made at a meeting of members of business, the press, radio and television who met yesterday for the first release of details regarding U of T's expansion program.

The expansion program is the largest attempted by any Canadian university in the past five years. Over $20,000,000 has been spent and in the next five years $52,000,000 more is needed.

An army of 10,000 volunteers, many of them not graduates, students or associated with the university in any way will be working to raise the money.

The campaign will be conducted across Canada and in many American cities. Corporate executives, business and civic leaders are giving of their time, effort and money to further the expansion program.

In his address to the press, Dr. Bissell stated "we must be prepared to meet the demands of the new age. New research facilities in medicine and engineering are desperately needed. The arts are also to receive a new building."

"Residence construction is now proceeding at a quick rate and we are building a community with interrelated semi-autonomous units," he said. "At the University we are establishing a system of social and intellectual institutions."

Dr. Bissell said "The University is a storehouse of intellectual endeavor and we must strive to maintain an institution which satisfies the academic needs of students and society."

Mayor Phillips pledged the help of the people of Toronto to the most popular money collecting and money spending organization of Toronto. The U of T means so much to people within transportation distance of Toronto who have the advantage of a nearby system of higher education at a moderate cost.

"The people of Toronto are proud of the U of T and its contribution to Toronto and to Canada," he said.

North Bay University Ready By Year 2000

North Bay will be the site of a multi-denominational university which is now in the planning stage.

Students of this generation will not be able to attend the proposed institution, as construction is to begin in approximately the year 2000.

The location will be west of Highway 11, seven miles north of the city, just north of the Ontario hospital.

An engineer and an architect have been engaged to originate a master plan for the buildings.

The colleges would include the United, Roman Catholic, Anglican and Presbyterian denominations and a non-denominational college.

For International Students On Thanksgiving Weekend

MONDAY, OCT. 12—A THANKSGIVING DINNER AT CHERRY HILL FARM

If Interested, Contact Don Fish, OX. 8-4525
For Further Information

VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP

CLASSIFIED ADS.

BAUSCH & LOMB

Microscope — Triple Turret (Oil Immersion); Two eyepieces (one with pointer). Complete with mirror and sub-stage condenser, and carrying box. Reasonable. HI. 7-0025.

FOR RENT

Room and board — student atmosphere. 202 Beverley St. EM. 3-3503.

11 ADMIRAL ROAD

Large, comfortably furnished front room. Suit one or two men students — light housekeeping. WA. 1-2374.

RIDE TO UNIVERSITY

From Highland Creek. Contact Mary Ann McPherson, AT. 2-4797.

FOR SALE—'54 PONTIAC

Coach, 2-tone, immaculate condition. $650 — terms — LE. 6-4852, after 6.

FREE ROOM & BOARD

In Doctor's home for male student — light household duties. WA. 1-8744.

ROOM & BOARD

Close to campus, academic environment, reasonable rates. Fraternity house. Call House Manager, WA. 3-0614 after 5 p.m.

ROOM & BOARD

There is accommodation for men and women in the Campus Co-Op. Contact the office at 32 Sussex St. or phone WA. 1-2520.

LISEZ-VOUS LE FRANCAIS?

Abonnez-vous aux Nouvelles Françaises de Toronto. Toutes les activités Françaises de la ville. Tarif spécial étudiant $1.50. Renseignements — Tel. LE. 1-5309.

LOST

Men's silver wrist watch, after football game last Friday, vicinity Stadium or St. George fraternities. Phone Paul Copeland, RU. 3-4043.

ROOM

Excellent furnished, quiet congenial home, use of washing machine, living room plus T.V., breakfast optional. Mrs. Drexler, 88 Wells St. off Bathurst above Bloor. LE. 2-8016.

RIDE WANTED

From Bloor and Runnymede to University daily. Don, RO. 2-8435.

Cheerless leader

Not a "rah rah" left in him! He's just discovered there's no more Coke. And a cheer leader without Coke is as sad as a soap opera. To put the sparkle back in his eye—somebody!—bring him a sparkling cold Coca-Cola!

SIGN OF GOOD TASTE

SAY 'COKE' OR 'COCA-COLA'—BOTH TRADE-MARKS MEAN THE PRODUCT OF COCA-COLA LTD.—THE WORLD'S BEST-LOVED SPARKLING DRINK.

think sex

comment

"I Liked Your Body"

Two years ago, not many people had read "Lady Chatterley's Lover". They had heard of it and had perhaps tried to get it, but in most cases they had failed. Now anybody can get a copy for as little as 25 cents.

Either as legitimate reviews, as articles on censorship or as editorials, every Toronto newspaper has managed to print several columns about the book. So it is only fair that The Varsity should have its turn at the bow.

Until early this year the book was banned in the United States and Canada. Anybody who wanted a copy could get it through "channels" and they would have to pay about $100 for it. A few copies were quietly smuggled in from Europe, at cheaper rates.

But then things began to happen. George Nowlan, Canadian Minister of National Revenue, stroked Lawrence's work off the huge list of banned books as supplied to customs officials. Mr. Nowlan said he had decided neither he nor his employees were in any way competent to judge literature. He added that the provision in the criminal code to deal with obscene literature still stood. In other words, he passed the buck.

The controversial book was published in Italy in 1928. The plot is well known. Sir Clifford Chatterley is paralyzed "from the hips down." His wife, ironically named "Constance," is not paralyzed. Under such circumstances the novel is inevitable.

The frustrated woman begins an adulterous affair with Mellors, Sir Clifford's gamekeeper. The affair is described in detail, and Lawrence uses words which are practically never found in print, although they are known by anybody over the age of six who has spent the pre-requisite ten minutes sitting on the sidewalk with his feet trailing in the gutter.

"The great necessity is that we should act according to our thoughts," he said, "and think according to our acts . . . I want men and women to be able to think sex, fully, completely, honestly and cleanly."

Now Canadians have a chance to learn from Lawrence what they lacked before.

Last May, New York's Barney ("Evergreen Review") Rosset brought out a hardcover edition of LCL in the original addition. About $100,000 in legal fees later, he had broken the United States post office ban on the book.

Just after Rosset's Grove Press edition hit the book stores, the US post office formally charged that the book was obscene, and non-mailable. Rosset began to fight. He promised to pay legal costs for any bookstore charged with selling the book. He brought a suit in federal district court in Washington to prevent police attacks on the book. He filed an action in New York to enjoin the New York postmaster from interfering with the book.

Postmaster General Arthur Summerfield stated the government's case: "The book is replete with descriptions in minute detail of sexual acts engaged in or discussed by the book's principal characters," he said. "These descriptions utilize filthy, offensive and degrading words and terms."

July 21, a federal district judge in New York ruled the novel was not obscene, and Rosset sat back to watch the money flow in. Judge Frederick

Bryan said "to exclude this book from the mails on the grounds of obscenity would fashion a rule which could be applied to a substantial portion of the classics of our literature."

The very next day, distribution of the book received a temporary setback. The government moved in to appeal the court order upsetting the post office ban. The appeal didn't get off the ground. However Summerville said he would appeal to a higher court in October and ask that the book be banned.

"If that book is not filthy," he said in July, "pray tell me what is filthy?"

It's October, but there has been no sign as yet of a new appeal. What use it would be is questionable, because even if it should be successful, it would come far too late to stop distribution. It has literally covered the country. Besides the original Grove version which has now sold more than 200,000 copies, there are at least six paperback editions in print.

This fact is unusual. Grove Press has their hard-cover version, and that so many paper paperbacks should glut the market while there is still a chance to make money on the higher priced (six-dollar) edition is a source of some concern to Rosset.

When "Lady Chatterley" was first published, Lawrence probably knew the book would not be accepted for sale in English-speaking countries. He failed to obtain the American copyright, and now any publisher can do what he wants with the manuscript.

Rosset is annoyed. Six different paperback publishers have already issued editions, and there is no reason to suppose that others will not follow suit. One New York publishing house has already issued the unexpurgated version in the form of a tabloid newspaper in the manner of Toronto's "Flash". Literary scholars are naturally concerned at Lady Chatterley's appearance in a medium usually reserved for six crimes. The association is unpleasant.

They know that sex has to be brought before the public gradually, until it can take its place in mixed discussions beside sport, politics and murder.

Why shouldn't sex be frankly discussed in novels? Lawrence, after all, doesn't describe anything that practically everybody doesn't at one time or another do, (with the possible exception of committing adultery. This too is unusual. Those who attack the book, attack its frankness in the description of the sexual act. Copulation isn't a crime, or even a sin. Adultery is both, but that isn't important to the book's critics.)

There's nothing startling in the book so far as the modern reader is concerned. Those "two words" are well known to everybody, and most of us use them as a matter of course. The sense in which the words are used may be new, however.

Lawrence tried to describe what a strong and true sexual relationship is like. To do this, obviously medical terminology would destroy the effect. Lawrence therefore uses words of four letters, usually termed Anglo-Saxon. English being modern Anglo-Saxon, there is really nothing against the words. But we moderns have turned them into two of the most obscene words ever created. And yet they are the only words fully capable of describing what they do describe, without turning to medicine or criminal law for definitions.

By ALAN WALKER

To the reader dipping into the book for the first time, the reaction is likely to be one of "gee whiz, isn't that something, I've never seen that word in print before!" Or, "Is that the way it's spelled?" But gradually Lawrence's purpose sneaks through the shock tactics he uses to present it. Besides the wonderful descriptive passages which express so well the feelings of love, there is a remarkable attack on social stratification in the book. Sir Clifford is upperclass class, but useless as a man. It is Mellors, the low-class game keeper that satisfies Lady Constance. But this is not a review.

On examination the 1928 Florence version as re-published by Grove, you can see immediately what a neat piece of work is the so-called "authorized American version" which is nearly half the length of the original and which has been floating around for years in a Signet edition, trapping the unsuspecting into spending 60 cents in the hope of getting something really hot.

This version, approved by Lawrence himself, has been cleverly cut of all erotic words. What is left can in no way be considered obscene. It is suggestive, a complete corruption of what Lawrence was trying to do, and is useless as a piece of literature, but it is nevertheless morally pure.

Usually the text is simply expurgated of those four-letter words we mentioned. Sometimes sentences or paragraphs are cut, and once a whole chapter gets lost in the shuffle. For the most part, there is little doubt as to why passages have been cut in the authorized version. They contain words or descriptions that have long been considered obscene (whatever that means). But some words are expurgated for no apparent reason whatever. For instance, the word "loins" is invariably replaced either by "body" or "limbs." It seems that even a part of the body that was getting anywhere near the unmentionable portions was taboo.

Anything to do with the female breasts usually stays. This is unusual. Perhaps if the novel was being cut today, these references would have also been omitted. In the 1930s, when the expurgated version was set loose on the public, the female breast had not yet become an important sexual characteristic, and the prime indicator of sex potential as it is considered today, especially in the United States.

Another piece of clever editing involves using part of a word instead of the whole word. In the original version, Constance says "I like your body." In the censored edition, this becomes "I liked you."

But one of the most ridiculous changes is this one. The original version has "stomach... The authorized version has "form" or "self".

"Lady Chatterley's Lover" is an erotic novel, and there's no getting away from that. As a matter of fact, until the ban was lifted, it stood fourth on the best-seller list of erotic novels as handled by New York dealers. (The list is topped by Fanny Hill still.)

Take one look at a newsstand today and you may have difficulty in finding your At-university students are supposed to read. It may be hidden behind a pair of full-color 44-inch breasts. Is this art? Or literature? Or obscenity?

We are glad to see LCL on the newsstands. And we look forward to the day when the drugstore racks will hold 35-cent editions of Frank Harris and Sheikh Nefzaoui. There is good in them, where is none in the current production of diseased flesh.

more on porgy

It Ain't Necessarily

Referring to his recent production of Porgy and Bess, now playing at the Tivoli Theatre, Samuel Goldwyn explained that "to film it for the screen was not only a dream but a challenge." Indeed, it was both a challenge and a problem to transfer that dream from the stage to a completely different medium, the movie screen. And usually we find that in trying to return to reverie, something is lost in the process.

The problem is just how close should you stick to the stage production. Hollywood has always compromised art for financial success, refusing to deviate from proven formulas, and Porgy and Bess is no exception. This is evident in the crowded and artificial sets, the "spontaneous" gatherings, and the bright, clean costumes. Admittedly, these devices are sometimes necessary for the execution of the musical numbers, or to compensate for Porgy's lameness. But many inconsistencies are merely holdovers from the Broadway show, and have no place on the screen.

The opening sequences lack unity because of the quick succession of unrelated scenes, and total strangers (to the audience) breaking out in song. This is bad technique, on stage or screen. But it is soon resolved as the plot and main characters begin to emerge, aided by the internal unity of the musical numbers.

Sidney Poitier is excellent as Porgy, and seems to have broken his tendency to overemphasize his lines. He performs with quiet strength, and is so moving at times that you forget his infirmity as he seems to dominate the screen by sheer power of emotion.

As Porgy's sometime woman, Bess, Dorothy Dandridge gives the impression of a gal who should have left Catfish Row a long time ago and headed for the big city. This is due, in part, to her physical appearance, and to the conditioning of her more sophisticated roles of the past. This distorts the original intentions of the production and, in an attempt to touch up the character of Bess, actually makes her less believable. But in the poignant scenes with Porgy, you get the feeling that no one could have done better.

When the ubiquitous Sammy Davis Jr., in the role of Sportin' Life, seems to appear in every scene, wandering about, tipping his hat, or tapping his cane, you wonder when he's going to do something. It's shades of Hitchcock until Sammy finally redeems himself with a parody on the Bible at the church picnic when he sings, with his forked tongue in his mouth. "It Ain't Necessarily So."

Although much is due to her vibrant personality, Pearl Bailey gives a consistently good performance as Maria, the grocer with comic wisdom. Probably the character most true to the original is Crown, the villain who challenges men and God alike, played by Brock Peters. The supporting cast contains an equally impressive show of talent.

Some of the Hollywood touches were about as subtle as a navel, such as the forewarning of danger represented by a vulture which appeared in two scenes, circling above to the accompaniment of sinister music. The movie industry always plays to the lowest audience, leaving signposts throughout the story, afraid that someone won't get the message. Another interesting note was the change in color of Bess's clothes. When she walks the streets, her colors are black and red; when she elevates to one man's mistress, she wears black and white; and in the scene where she is holding her adopted baby, she is covered in white only. It may not have been intended, although it sounds like the clumsy hand of Hollywood at work again.

Sidney Poitier was reluctant to take the role of Porgy in the production because he claimed that it presented a distorted picture of the Negro. Mr. Poitier (along with Harry Belafonte) takes it upon himself to be a social symbol of Negro equality, and spouts sociology wherever he goes. The fact is that the northern white has imposed his values and standards on the rest of the world, believing them infallible. That is why people like Mr. Poitier believe that the history of the Negro is one to be ashamed about. It is only the whites who should feel guilty. Except for the obvious maltreatment of the Negro by the white police, Porgy and Bess presents a beautiful picture of the warmth and appeal of the Negro heart. If anything, their integrity of life is to be envied.

The music alone is reason enough to see the show. The songs of George Gershwin capture the love and drama of life, as in the beautiful arrangement of "Bess, You Is My Woman Now," or the touching, "I Loves You, Porgy." It is hard to criticize good music, great music in fact, especially when it is arranged with skill as Andre Previn has done. The musical score lifts you up till the final scene, which ends sharply and dramatically, leaving you aesthetically hungry as you leave the theatre. Some say that the movie isn't as good as the stage production, but "it ain't necessarily so."

Philip Nicholas

comment

thanks and atonement

On Monday October 11 of this year, two holidays fall simultaneously.

One is the most sacred day in the Jewish Calendar, Yom Kippur, The Day Of Atonement, and the other is Thanksgiving, a secular holiday.

On Yom Kippur, the Jews pray to God for forgiveness of their sins of the previous year. They pray that the notations after their name in the Book Of Life will be favourable ones.

On Thanksgiving Canadians of all religious denominations give thanks to God for the bounties He has bestowed upon them and upon their country.

We would like to suggest that all Canadians, everywhere, combine the spirit of these two holidays. We suggest that they all give thanks that they are here, that they are alive to enjoy the bounty of this country, and that they are able to atone.

For all of us, Jew and Gentile, have something to atone for.

It is almost 15 years since the German armies in Europe were defeated. We are now allied with the Federal Republic of Germany.

We have almost forgotten now that for three years during World War II boxcars loaded with civilians travelled across Europe to the gas chambers and crematoria of Auschwitz, Buchenwald and Bergen Belsen.

We have this to atone for.

The crime that was committed against the civilian population of Europe was not committed by German People, nor by the Nazi party, nor even by the S.S. and the Gestapo.

The responsibility for what took place in the concentration camps of Germany lies with all of us.

We permitted this to happen. We allowed the Nazis to take power, to flourish and to expand and we did not raise our voices against them until we were forced to.

We are to blame for what they did.

And on Monday, when Yom Kippur and Thanksgiving coincide, we suggest that all Canadians give thanks that we are here and that there is still time to acknowledge our responsibility.

We have much to atone for.

By RICHARD
LEE

Ethnic Groups

多良月多中國同

The oldest of the five ethnic clubs investigated is the UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO POLISH STUDENTS' CLUB, which was founded in 1937 and, except for a six year hiatus during the war years, has been in existence ever since.

The membership is open to all students on the campus as well as interested people in the Nursing courses at the various hospitals and at Ryerson. Although membership is open 100 per cent of the members are of Polish origin.

The president of the Polish Students' Club is Chester Sadowski, a Ph.D. student in Physical Chemistry. He said the purpose of the club is to keep members of the club and the general community aware of Polish culture. As an example of their activities he cited the exhibit of books that is being prepared for the rotunda of the main library to commemorate the 150th anniversary of the birth of Slowacki, the famous Polish poet.

Do such activities really justified the existence of a district Polish Students' Club on campus?

Mr. Sadowski said, "Twenty per cent of our members are recent arrivals from Poland. The club helps these people adjust to the Canadian university life. They in turn bring us up to date on the latest developments in Poland. Joseph Sulma, one of our members, is a recent graduate of the Krakow Academy of Arts. He tells us that there are vigorous intellectual activities taking place in Poland. For instance, the artists have broken away from the "socialist realism" school and are creating a distinctive Polish art along Western abstractionist lines.

Barbara Zaremba, a third year students at St. Michael's College, pointed out that the club's activities are social as well as cultural. On Thanksgiving weekend the club plans an outing at Barry's Bay.

The Polish Students' Club has made significant contributions to the cultural life of the university. In 1954 it sponsored an exhibition of Polish Art in the Hart House Gallery, and in 1958 the club helped organize a concert for the promising young Polish-Canadian pianist Walter Buczynski.

Walter Buczynski was a member of the club while he was on campus and is now studying in Paris. He plans to enter the world-famous Chopin Piano Competition to be held in Warsaw in February, 1960.

The future of the Polish Students' Club is questionable, since the future will see more and more third generation Polish-Canadians enter the university, while the number of immigrants and first generation students decline.

President Sadowski does not think the decline of strongly oriented Polish-Canadian students will lead to the decline of the Polish Students' Club. He admits the Polish language is rarely spoken between members of his generation, but he believes interest in the music and dances of the native country will always be strong. He said interest in the movements and developments in Poland would always provide a basis for a Polish Students' Club on the campus.

We asked Mr. Sadowski if he would marry a non-Polish girl.

He said: "I would, but the prospect is unlikely. When you're used to Polish cooking you hate the thought of giving it up."

With an enrolment of 95 active members, the UKRAINIAN STUDENTS' CLUB is openly dedicated to the preservation of Ukrainian culture in Canada. Organized in 1944, the club's first president was John Kuchepka, who is now a Progressive Conservative member of parliament. A provincial cabinet minister, John Yaremko, was also an early member of the club.

Olexander Babij, a third year political science and economic student, is the incumbent president. Mr. Babij defined the purposes of the club in the following manner. He said: "We promote cultural and social activities among Ukrainian students. The highlight of the year's activities is the 'Ukrainian Students' Week', to be held in February of next year. We will hold a banquet for our graduating members at the Royal York Hotel, and also during the week, we are sponsoring a folk concert for the Ukrainian Public. Last year the concert featured a 45 voice choir made up entirely of U of T students under the direction of the Reverend Sahajdakowsky. This year we are adding a dance group and an instrumental troupe."

Unlike the Polish Club the connections of the Ukrainian-Canadians with their homeland is very tenuous. Although the Ukrainians are intensely culture conscious, their interest seems to be mainly in the traditional folkways rather than the contemporary Ukraine.

Nick Lypowewsky, a second year student and treasurer of the club, said: "Unfortunately, in the present situation, we have no contact with the Ukrainian community. We agree with the Communist policy of opposing the United Nations. Communism is just another foreign policy."

However, despite the strong Communist influence, the Ukrainian Students' Club is still active.

The Ukrainian Students' Club is only one of the clubs investigating the situation. The Ukrainian Students' Club represents the students' clubs on campus. The Toronto chapter will be held at Hart House. A national convention will be held in December during the Christmas vacation.

In addition to their own work in promoting activities among themselves, the club has contacts with Polish and Ukrainian students who participate in the "International" activities. Olexander Babij, the incumbent president, said:

All University students are not the same, yet there is no "Asian" or "Highland Scots Campus". We are an ethnic element on campus to be recognized as a group?

Do they serve a genuine need, or are they just a group of members and the university community? Is it an overt expression of minority interests?

These questions prompted a look at ethnic students' clubs. We found five actively promoting their interests, catering particularly to students who are not at all sensitive about being functional short form of a rather helpful in conversation."

Nisei (pronounce knee-say) Students' Club draws its members from this group of Japanese-Canadian students. Unlike the Poles and the Ukrainians, the members participate in social matters of special interest to Japanese-Canadians. A recent debate dealt with the question was "Resolved: Nisei are not a minority group."

In describing this annual Yonemitsu said: "We had set up a booth to arouse our members enough to recall the 'ayes' carried the day of Masuda, tried to draw out the cash, and by joint meetings with others, well, I guess we have a natural ally. Mr. Yonemitsu did not deny the lead to social isolation among the students."

He said: "Frankly, I feel a girl. I've taken out occasional girlfriends. I feel more at home with my people. The Nisei Students' Club does fulfill a real need for its members. It is a good ground for a rather reticent student body more by minority group solidarity."

However, their contribution to the community is not insignificant. At last year's Nisei Students Club sponsored a recital on the Koto, a traditional Japanese instrument. In addition to the exhibit, Hoppo, another student demonstrated the instrument.

In summing up the conflict between the community, president Yonemitsu said: "The university students seem to be a good thing. We have members in medicine, engineering, and other fields. I think we will stay in the country. However, I feel that the Japanese-Canadian Citizens Association is retained. We are building a National Japanese-Canadian Citizens Association of the Japanese people in Canada."

Founded in 1955, the CHINESE STUDENTS' CLUB, claims a membership of 150. This group displays a strong background. All the club members are living in Hong Kong and Formosa, the mainland following the great migration.

Club president Henry Wong said: "Engineering is a case in point. A month before the Communist takeover, students, a good part of his sum of capital salvaged by the government, constituted approved by the U.S. a bond of fellowship among Chinese students, we attempt to promote unity."

How are these aims realized? Each year a directory of members is compiled and distributed to the association. Only Chinese language newspapers, upcoming events, and in addition, members.

Concerning the second year students, who are very active in the University, we found five actively promoting their interests, catering particularly to students who are not at all sensitive about being functional short form of a rather helpful in conversation."

THE VARSITY

FOUNDED 1880

Published by
The Students' Administrative Council
of the University of Toronto
Toronto 5, Canada

Member Canadian University Press

Editorial and News Office
Basement, SAC Building — WA. 3-8742, WA. 3-8113
Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221

The opinions expressed in this paper are those of the editor.

Editor-in-Chief	Sam Aizenstat
Managing Editors	Harvey Shepherd, Susie Breslin
News Editor	Ed Roberts
Features Editor	David Lewis Stein
Sports Editor	Dave Griner
AM&D Editor	Elmo Ciprietti
Photography Editor	Andy Stabins
CUP Editor	Alan Walker
Publicity Editor	Kay McCook
Associate News Editors	Terry Bourke, Jayne Nesbitt
Executive Editor	Mark Nichols

"Suffer yourselves to be blamed, imprisoned, condemned; suffer yourselves to be laughed; but publish your opinions. It is not a right, it is a duty."

On Campus: A Partial View

comment

student and public relations because of the current political situation in the Ukraine today. We feel that present day student imperialism."

communist bias of its members, to be completely non-political. The flourishing. The Toronto club is part of a national organization with headquarters in Montreal, Canadian campuses. On Oct. 11, Eastern Regional Convention in Montreal during the the Toronto club is interested ethnic groups on campus. They are students' clubs and plan to "Festival" as they did last year. president, said that Ukrainians members of one ethnic group or on Students' Association." What is it that motivates an ethnic group to organize themselves into a student cultural purpose for the membership-at-large, or are they merely puppets' segregationist tendencies?

THE VARSITY to take a close look at the campus.

joining students' associations of specific national origins.

and "Ukes". He said: "It's a good name and is really quite is second generation Japanese Canadian Students that the Nisei the Nisei display little interest in the culture of Japan. The sixty active and discussion groups at which Canadian students are discussed, of shyness among Nisei. The are backward".

the subject, club president Joe Johnson in the hope that it would help them lose their shyness. But as I years ago our president, Jerry Johnson, by a big debating program, but this didn't work out too well, so it is reserved."

this tendency to be reserved has been students at the university.

natural to ask out a Japanese student when I was in high school, but I was not interested."

more than any other group, the club provides a common ground. The group is held together by mutual cultural interest.

cultural life of the University International Students' Festival, the exhibition of Japanese handicrafts. A library science student, gave a presentation resembling a zither, and as Odori dance style.

ends in the Japanese-Canadian community. The whole generation of Nisei is moving into new and different fields, science, and commerce. In the third line in Japanese culture in this country certain aspects which will be the university centre in Toronto and the Nisei are currently writing a history graduate student in aeronautical engineering, he left the city only a year. Like many other Chinese students, he is being paid from the large Chinese community ten years ago.

OVERSEAS STUDENTS' ASSOCIATION of 50 students of eastern Asiatic origin. A remarkable similarity in economic background comes from well-to-do families. Many are expatriates who left Japan in 1949.

Mr. Wong said: "According to our constitution, the association serves as a link between the Overseas Students. In addition to the exchange of goodwill and understanding."

students on Campus is compiled by The Sin Wah Daily, Toronto's Chinese daily. The Association's quarterly bulletin is published for group. Mr. Wong said: "The club is a community. At FROS we have an up-to-date collection of Chinese books of a non-political nature. Our folk song committee has performed at FROS and in last year's International Students' Festival. The festival's guiding light, Tony Ip, is a member and a former secretary of our association.

The COSA is also active in local athletics. Their soccer teams have played several clubs in Toronto, including the Toronto Police department and the Canada Life squads.

The Chinese Students' club has had especially close ties with the Nisei Students' group, and with the Chinese Varsity Club, a group of second and third generation Chinese-Canadian students who have an unofficial status at the university.

Concerning the relation of the Chinese Overseas Student Association to politics, Mr. Wong said: "We really aren't concerned with current Asian politics. Some think that Communism is best, and many others disagree. In the interest of harmony, politics are not discussed at our meetings. A previous Chinese Students' Club organized before the war actually split up in 1949 over the Communist controversy. We don't want this to happen to us.

Do Chinese students cut themselves off from the rest of the campus?

President Wong maintained that quite the opposite was true, COSA, he believes, has served to interrate Chinese students rather than to isolate them. Through the association, members have met many new people, particularly on the athletic field. Members have participated in the United Church symposium on "Christianity in China", and have met many Canadian families through the Rotary Club and similar organizations.

Perhaps the best-known of the ethnic associations on campus is the WEST INDIAN STUDENTS' ASSOCIATION. All of the West Indians studying at the University of Toronto are automatically members of WISA. There are about 150 active members in the association and that represents about 85 per cent of the West Indians here.

The WISA is famous for its dances held at Trinity's Convocation Hall. This year the university finally has a steel band of its own. A group of Trinidadians studying at St. Michael's College have formed themselves into the "Tropitones", a six man group which has made a highly successful debut at the WISA freshman reception held last Friday evening.

Owen Jefferson, a fourth year political science and economics student from Jamaica and vice president of the WISA said the association was organized in 1954 to bring West Indian students together for common purposes. Besides parties, the association has held many successful debating sessions. One of the recent topics was: "Be it resolved that West Indian Nationality is a fiction".

The lecture series sponsored by the WISA has created a great deal of interest in the West Indies on campus. The list of speakers has included: Sir Grantley Adams, prime minister of the new federation;

Sir Hugh Foot, former governor of Jamaica and Alexander Brady, the distinguished political scientist.

George De La Grenade, a fourth year political science and economics student and a member of the association said: "Our association is of course non-political. However, because of the economic difficulties of our country and the active socialist movement there, we are inclined to be extremely aware of political currents. Remember that the average West Indian Student is more mature in years than the average Canadian undergraduate. The average age of a West Indian student entering university is 22.

Most West Indian students come to university after considerable financial effort. Eugene Moore, 27, a third year political science and economics student commented: "Most of us work for several years after graduating from high school. We find that it is easier to get into universities abroad than it is at home. The University College of the West Indies in Kingston, Jamaica, caters to scholarship students and those from the higher income brackets."

How does the sectionalism that exists between the various islands of the West Indies affect members of the WISA in Toronto?

Selwyn Ryan, a fourth year Modern History student from Trinidad, said: "Our members are drawn from all the different Caribbean Islands. The membership of the WISA comprises a representative cross-section of the federation. Our feeling of insularity tend to break down in Toronto. The tendency to stick together de-emphasized whatever difference we may have."

Owen Jefferson feels that he has learnt more about the islands other than his own since he came to Toronto than he did during all his years at home.

Are West Indian students isolationists with respect to the university at large?

Eugene Moore feels that this is a difficult question to answer. He said: "I feel that in residence there is a good deal of interplay and integration between West Indians and Canadians. But who is to say whether it is enough, too much or too little? Certainly we do have a tendency towards clannishness but we should remember that the reception we have received from Canadian society has something to do with this."

Eugene Moore of the WISA has expressed a feeling that seems to prevail among the majority of students interviewed for this article.

There seems to be two forces at work behind the formation of the various ethnic groups on campus.

The first is a positive reason: A desire to preserve and foster a traditional culture.

The second is perhaps the stronger: The desire of a minority to organize collectively to create an ethnic refuge from a rather insensitive Canadian community.

УСК
К Т Я
К Т Я
Р У Ю
А Л С
И Е
Н Н
С Т
К С
И И
И

2. Criticizing the Critic

I have been writing notices of musical events for long enough now to have had levelled at me (or at least, while I was in earshot, at music critics in general) the usual protests and queries as to the real worth or purpose of music critics. I should like to think that, like drama critics, they need no justification or defense, but there are questions asked that readers have every right in asking and which deserve answers.

The questions might run something like this: Isn't it presumptuous for critics to sit in self-appointed judgment on professional musicians? Don't critics do more harm than good to the creative artist? Haven't they too powerful an influence on public opinion? How can a critic's employer (i.e. his editor) be a competent judge of a music critic's qualifications? Well, let's start by answering the last question and move backward through the list.

A newspaper editor most certainly has a set of qualifications in mind when hiring a music critic, and the first and most important is that the writer have the ability to write good English about music in such a way that the average, educated reader is kept interested. This quality is, unfortunately, too rare, at least in concentrated amounts; that much must be admitted, for reasons suggested in the first article in this series.

Nonetheless, the critic's duty is to his readers, those "laymen" who concern themselves no more deeply about diminished sevenths when they listen to music than about dactyls and spondee when they take up a book of verse. On the other hand, the "show-off" critic is a different animal, he who rarely achieves his purpose of impressing specialists and leaves the amateur dazzled but completely bewildered.

As for the third question, any influence a good critic may wield appears to be to the benefit of artists and composers. His blame is not likely to interest the really interested; amateurs (this I know from my own experience); whereas if he has appreciated a performance, it is also my experience that he then becomes most enthusiastic and persuasive in his writing.

ON MUSIC CRITICISM

by TED BARNES

Similarly, he can do little harm, even if he wanted to; and the honest critic doesn't want to harm. You can tell when a critic is being mean and vindictive, for it takes real art to be damning in a generous way, and right away you cease to let him lead you as forcefully as if he were praising; you become suspicious, and your confidence fades.

The answer to the first question is, of course, yes. People who ask the question have obviously misunderstood the function of a music critic. He would no more presume to tell a virtuoso or an accomplished composer how to perform their art than he would expect them to be so presumptuous as to tell him how to write music criticism. What he aspires to is the creation in his own turn of a work of art, an expression of his reaction as an artist to the work of another artist.

For this he must have undergone a sound musical education of varied sort to equip him for all the immense variety of circumstances he will meet. He must have a soul that can attune itself to the soul of music. Like anyone witnessing any work of art, he must be prepared to meet a composition on its own terms; otherwise, he is not being fair either to the work, to the composer, to his readers, or to himself.

But on the other hand the critic, as the listener par excellence, has every right to demand of an artist that music be made accessible to his soul; that nothing interfere with its aesthetic appeal, and that the sincerity and technique of the artist be fully marshalled to the service of the music. The critic asks much of an artist (Charles Munch, the conductor, writes that an artist must give out a bit of his soul at every performance), and yet surely the artist who loves and respects his calling is only too anxious to offer his soul on a silver platter, if need be, in service to his art? When the critic is cheated, he reacts like a child in tantrums. I can't really blame him.

here and now

TODAY
Debate Trials schedule for the UTDU will be posted in the SAC office at 9 a.m. Failure to appear at the posted time will be considered as cancelling a debater's registration for debating.

SATURDAY
U of T students attending Saturday's football game at Western are invited to an open house after the game at the Gamma Phi Beta sorority house, 639 Talbot St.

SUNDAY

8 p.m. — Canterbury Centre, 99 St. George St., will hold open house.

TUESDAY

1:10 p.m. — SCM will discuss "The University: a Challenge to Faith" in the SCM office, Hart House. Freshmen are welcome. Rev. Alan McLachlin will lead the discussion.

7:45 p.m. — The Victoria College Debating Parliament will hold its opening debate in Vic Alumni Hall. Donna Youngblut and Marc Somerville will support the motion while Mike Galway and Norm Williams oppose it.

8 p.m. — The Group of Five will hold its fall reunion at the Queen's Park Jazz Spot. Guest speaker will be William Cartwright, a leading figure in British ceramic circles, who will discuss "Robert Oppenheimer, the Transcendental Ideal and the Ethnic Dative."

Chelsea Club

22 SHEPARD — EM. 3-2336

Tonight — The Budd Hill Quintet

PLUS EVELYN WRIGHT

"This is a Swinging Group" — Morris Duff, Toronto Star

Saturday — John Swan's Terrific New Quartet

Sunday — Dixieland

Fun 'n Fashion Winterettes

They're here... in fabulously smart, bright colours — the new lushly lined cold-weather footwear in a wide range of styles and materials. Some to wear over your shoes, some instead of shoes, that weigh next to nothing on your feet. Look marvelous with pants — smart with skirts too. Keep your toes warm as love all winter in WINTERETTES.

Available at all leading shoe and department stores.

NORTHERN-WOODSTOCK

OF UNITED RUBBER

Mac Student Council Tightens Up Discipline

HAMILTON, Oct. 9 (CUP) — Discipline for University of McMaster students is tightening up following a major change in the McMaster Student Union Constitution.

A new student disciplinary committee has been set up to deal with property damage by students and general infringements to the constitution.

Arts controller Brian McCutcheon said, "the committee is intended to discipline the students in their role as students". He said the committee, composed of five senior students, will not deal with academic offences.

Dave Clark, vice-president of the men's student body, said he thought the committee was an example of the growing maturity of the student body and their council.

He added it was necessary because of the increasing enrolment at McMaster, which, he said, "is no longer a small Baptist community, but a growing university with a more cosmopolitan composition".

Representatives of the council were careful to point out final authority in all cases rested with the deans and Senate of the University.

Students charged under the constitution's new article will be summoned before the committee and formally charged by the Council's Chief Justice.

The complainant must be present to act as leading witness and the person charged may appoint a "defence attorney" from the student body.

Trials of accused persons will not be open to the public, nor will sentences be made public.

Penalties against persons found guilty will be "fines, work orders and/or suspension of student privileges".

McCutcheon said there will be no prosecuting attorney, but that the Chief Justice will examine all witnesses on behalf of the committee and the student body.

There are several misdemeanors with which a student may be charged, mostly dealing with physical damage to university property or breaches in the constitution, but the final clause reads "conduct unbecoming a university student".

"We cannot foresee every possible misdemeanor which may be committed by students," he added.

J. R. Colombo To Edit U of T Poetry Book

University of Toronto poets are going to make it into print professionally.

Ex-"Jargon" editor John Robert Colombo said last night about 14 campus poets will be included in a collection he is editing for the Ryerson Press.

"It will be called 'The Varsity Chapbook', and will be in the Ryerson series of poetry collections under the supervision of Dr. Lorne Pierce," Colombo said.

Colombo is in first-year philosophy Graduate Studies. He is editor of the Hawkshead Press and edited this year's Students' Handbook.

The 32-page "Chapbook" will have a soft cover and typographical format especially designed by Harold D. Kurschenska.

The slim volume (by fat poets, says Colombo) will appear simultaneously with the "McGill Chapbook", to be edited in Montreal by Leslie Kaye.

About 30 poems will be included. Among student contributors will be E. A. Lacey, Christopher Priestley, Harvey L. Shepherd, (Varsity Managing Editor), Gerry Vise and John Robert Colombo.

Faculty members represented will be Francis Sparshott, Victoria lecturer in Philosophy, Jay Macpherson, Victoria lecturer in English, and Henry Beissel, UC lecturer in English.

Colombo said the book, at $1, should go on sale at the University Bookstore late this month. Only 500 copies will be printed. An autographing party will be held in the King Cole Room (Colombo's kitchen). A definite date for this event has not been set.

Alf Bilt

(Architecture 53) says:

My blue-print for success is a planned savings programme at... "MY BANK"

BANK OF MONTREAL

Canada's First Bank for Students

You'll find these B of M branches especially convenient

Bloor and Bay Sts.

Queen's Park

St. George and Bloor Sts.

KENNETH A. McNEIL, Manager

JOSEPH BURDOCK, Manager

K. S. McKELLAR, Manager

a big step on the road to success is an early banking connection

U1-B5

TRINITY

The United Church of Canada

427 BLOOR ST. WEST — at WALMER ROAD
 REV. J. ROBERT WATT, B.A., B.D., Minister
 John Linn, Organist and Choirmaster

11 a.m. — "THANKSGIVING — 1959"

7.30 p.m. — "WE ARE THANKFUL!"

"Come, ye thankful people, come,
 Raise the song of harvest-home."

A Cordial Invitation is extended to All Students

KNOX PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Invite All Students to Join Us For:

WORSHIP — Sunday, 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S MEETING — Sunday, 8.30 p.m.

RECREATION — Friday, 8 p.m., Youth Centre,
 16 Bancroft Street

LOCATED SPADINA and HARBORD

United Appeal Appeals To All

EATON'S

"YE KEN A MON
 BY THE TARTAN"

— or, "A chap may be known by the tartan he keeps"! And, in the highlands, a tartan denotes the clan . . . just as the plaid we've chosen represents the casual, the relaxed, the comfortable.

"Vivetta" washable Dutch cotton plaid port shirt. Handsomely-styled, in reds, greens, browns, and blues. Sizes S, M, L.
 For the college man who'll relax most in leisure time. EACH. 7.95.

MEN'S SHOP, EATON'S COLLEGE STREET
 A SHORT WALK FROM THE CAMPUS

need . . .

Low interest and easy repayment rates are featured in University of Toronto loan services. Students can borrow tuition money from any of several loan funds and repay it after graduation.

The U of T General Bursary and Loan Fund was established by the U of T Board of Governors which also provides funds for various faculties and colleges to administer at their own discretion.

The Ontario Provincial Student Aid Loans Fund and the Alumni Loan Fund also provide loans for students.

Another assistance provided for students is the deferred payment plan. They pay half their tuition in the fall and the balance after Christmas.

Unlike Canadian universities the Americans provide students with means of financing their education through banks and loan associations.

Their federal government is the largest banker for students. Close to 121,000 students took advantage of loans under the National Defence Education Act in September.

. . . money?

HART HOUSE THEATRE

Student Subscriptions

$3.00 for the Four Productions

Hart House Theatre offers a Student Subscription at $3.00 for the four All-University productions directed by Robert Gill. The student rate will be $1.00 for a single performance. Subscribers are assured of the same seats and performance evenings for the entire season. Two-subscriptions only on each A.T.L. card.

— 1959 - 60 Season —

THE LITTLE FOXES by Lillian Hellman

Saturday, October 24th to Saturday, October 31st

THE SIMPLETON OF THE UNEXPECTED ISLES by

George Bernard Shaw

Saturday, November 28th to Saturday, December 5th

THE GLASS MENAGERIE by Tennessee Williams

Saturday, January 23rd to Saturday, January 30th

THE IMPORTANCE OF BEING ERNEST by Oscar Wilde

Saturday, February 27th to Saturday, March 5th

Last season over 40% of the total seats were sold by subscription before opening.

● AVOID DISAPPOINTMENT AND BOOK EARLY ●

Box Office Now open 10.00 a.m. to 6.00 p.m. — WA. 3-5244

FLYING CLUB MEETING

October 13 — 8 p.m.
 Music Room, Wymilwood

MARRIED STUDENTS

Is your wife looking for employment? Attractive opportunities are available nearby.

Telephone EM. 3-1211
 Local 22298

EXPORT

PLAIN OR KITTEN TIP
 CIGARETTES

Class
 enchantress!

Kitten
 LOOPED MOHAIR

Kitten creates a looped mohair cardigan in heavy-knit texture . . . light as milkweed down, daring in its dramatic simplicity . . . in colours dipt from the rainbow . . . truly a 'long-term investment' for your college wardrobe . . . so lovely to wear, so easy to care for.
 Sizes 36 to 42, price $17.95—
 Pullover: price $15.95 . . . in colours exciting and ultra smart!

Look for the name Kitten

INTERCOLLEGIATE LEAGUE VARSITY AT WESTERN SATURDAY, OCT. 10th

STUDENTS' ADMINISTRATIVE COUNCIL

(Excursion Rate — $5.00 Return) Good for Return Any Train
Leaving Toronto 9.30 Toronto time —

— Arriving London 11.42 London time

S.A.C. will sell Combination Train and Game or Train Tickets only.

ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION — GAME TICKETS ONLY

On Sale at the Athletic Office — Hart House

from 9.15 a.m. to 3.00 p.m. Prices — $1.50 and $2.00

HELMAR

At Last Our New Line of Formals Are Ready For You.
Come Over and See Them Between Lectures Any Time.

46 ST. GEORGE — WA. 1-5978

Hart House

WEEK-END

Friday: Fourth Year Meds at Caledon
Saturday, Sunday: Phi Kappa Sigma Fraternity at Caledon

NEXT WEEK

Tuesday: Record Room Instruction 5.15 p.m.
Open Meeting, Bridge Club, 7.15 p.m.
Duplicate Bridge Tournament
East Common Room

Art Classes on Tuesdays and Thursdays 7 p.m.
In Hart House Art Gallery
Artist: Mr. Aba Bayefsky
A few more students will be accepted.

Wednesday: C.B.C. Concert, Great Hall, 8.10 p.m.
GUIOMAR NOVAES, Piano
Free tickets available at Hall
Porter's Desk

Thursday: Open Meeting, Camera Club, 8 p.m.
In the Music Room
Guest Speaker: Don Lizar
Y.M.C.A. Camera Club

Saturday: U. of T. Table Tennis Tournament
Hart House Main Gym

Intramural and University Championship Track Meets

These meets will be held as one meet on Thursday, Oct. 15 at Varsity Stadium, starting at 1.30 p.m.

ENTRY FOR THE INTRAMURAL MEET IS CLOSED
ENTRIES ACCEPTED FOR THE UNIVERSITY MEET AT INTRAMURAL
OFFICE UNTIL WED. OCT. 14, 5.00 p.m.

Details of scoring and method of operation may be obtained at the Intramural office.

SPORTS SCHEDULES—WEEK OF OCT. 12th

IMPORTANT—MANAGERS AND COACHES!
1. Football, Soccer, Volleyball and Lacrosse schedules for week of Oct. 19 will appear in Varsity Varsity, Oct. 15. FUTURE SCHEDULES will appear in Varsity each Wednesday. This conforms with the Varsity's publication schedule for this season.
2. Managers must file team registration lists in Intramural office prior to first scheduled game.

FOOTBALL—Wed. Oct. 14		East 4.00 Forestry vs Jr. SPS	West 4.00 Pharm vs Med	Welnrib, Posen, Barrett, Chapnick, Keiner, Lipson
Thur. Oct. 15		East 4.00 Trin vs Vic		Golden, Starkman, Barrett
Friday Oct. 16		East 4.00 Sr. SPS vs U.C.	West 4.00 Dent vs St. M.	Stokes, Chapnick, McCulloch, E. Abella, Flancman, Kolodzie
VOLLEYBALL—Wed. Oct. 14		1.00 Pre-Med I A vs M. IV		Dralmin, Goldman
Major		4.00 U.C. Sigma Alphas vs Med		Vic M.H.F.'s, Drevnig
		5.00 Jr. SPS vs SPS A		Dugan, Stein
		6.00 Med. IV Yr A vs U.C. McCaul		Wyc. A
		7.00 Dent. III Yr vs Pharm. A
Thur. Oct. 15		1.00 Sr. SPS vs U.C.		Perkons, Goldman
Major		4.00 Vic Caven vs U.C. Frat Nota		Dugan, Dugan
		6.30 U.C. Beta Sigs vs Dent. II Yr
		7.30 SPS. III vs Pharm. B		Knox B
Friday Oct. 16		1.00 St. M. II vs SPS. O		Pomerant, Drevnig
Major		5.00 Jr. SPS vs Med

Sports*Games*Trophies
Before you Buy give WILSON'S a try
The HAROLD A. WILSON
CO. OF TORONTO LTD.
328 DUPONT STREET
WHOLESALE PRICES TO EVERYONE

COACHING

Calculus, Accounting, Introductory lessons on: Theory of Compound Interest, and Life Contingencies.
Call RU. 3-2257 evenings

Baby Blues Meet Colts

University of Toronto's Baby Football Blues will finally see action this afternoon at 3 p.m. in Varsity Stadium.

While the Senior Mustangs are busily prepping for their meet with the Big Blues, Western Colts, fresh from a victory (26-6) over last year's champion Ryerson Rams will do battle with our little fellows.

After a dismal season last year, the Comets from Queen's, have forsaken the league in favour of a rather mixed up square robin exhibition type series. Baby Blues will play a home and home exhibition series with Western and Ryerson.

Mike King and Bob (Loopey) Lackey were chosen captains of Baby Blues last night. King, a hard running halfback is counted upon to carry a large share of Rinkies' attack this year while Lackey is a colorful, veteran guard.

Coach John Sopinka has a bevy of good quarterbacks in tow. Although Dave Innis will probably start, Don McGregor, Harry Hall and Jim Israel are all capable signal callers. Colts are relying heavily on their youthful quarterback Ed Horenbala who was very instrumental in their win over Rams. They also boast a kicking sensation in Terry Sweeney. One of Sweeney's booming punts sailed for 70 yards and a point last Saturday.

Soccer Blues Westward

Tomorrow the Senior and Intermediate Soccer Blues join the Football Blues for their encounters with Western, expecting to continue on their winning ways.

The Senior squad will be strengthened by the return of Jim Watson and Emil Primorac. Other commitments kept them out of last week's line-up. Chris Carr, who played with both teams last year, arrived from England during the week and will be finding his soccer legs again with the Intermediates in tomorrow's game.

Bev Walker who suffered an ankle twist at Hamilton last week is ready to take his place in the line-up.

The Bus to London will leave Hart House at 8.30 a.m. All players are requested to be at Hart House by 8.15 at the latest.

The Scoreboard

	SENIOR					P
	P	W	L	T	F
Toronto	1	1	0	0	42-1	2
Western	1	1	0	0	30-8	2
Queen's	1	0	1	0	8-20	0
McGill	1	0	1	0	1-42	0
Future Games
Today—Queen's at McGill, 8 p.m.
Saturday—Toronto at Western. Western Intercollegiate
	P W L T F A P
	P	W	L	T	F
Brit. Colum.	2	2	0	0	84-19	8*
Alberta	2	1	1	0	45-43	2
Saskatch'n.	2	0	2	0	13-80	0

*(All B.C. games are 4 points)

DANCING Every Wed., Fri. and Sat.

THE AUDITORIUM

Toronto's Dance Hall of Distinction
888 YONGE STREET, Above Bloor

Doug Kemp and His Orchestra

WA. 1-9701

S. A. C. BOOK EXCHANGE

119 ST. GEORGE STREET

SPECIAL NOTICE

PAYING OUT: (from 11.30 a.m. - 5.30 p.m.)

Tuesday, October 13th

Wednesday, October 14th

Thursday, October 15th

LAST DAY OF SALES TODAY!

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS BASKETBALL

Practice Schedule for Week of October 13 to October 16

O.C.E.

Mon. Oct. 12	Tues. Oct. 13	Wed. Oct. 14	Thur. Oct. 15	Fri. Oct. 16
5.30 PHE III	St. Hild. J. S.	Pharmacy
6.30 U.C. Jr. Sr.	St. Hild. Fr.	U.C. Freshies
7.30 Nursing Jrs		Dentistry
8.30 PHE II		U.C. Sophs

L.M.

Mon. Oct. 12	Tues. Oct. 13	Wed. Oct. 14	Thur. Oct. 15	Fri. Oct. 16
5.30 St. Hild's Sos	POTS I	Meds
6.30 Meds	POTS II	PHE I
7.30 St. Hilda's Fr	U.C. Freshies	Nursing Sr.
8.30 Pharmacy	Dentistry	Nursing Jr.

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS

ARCHERY CLUB

The Archery Club will practice Monday and Tuesday from 1:00-2:00 p.m. and every morning at 8 a.m. at Varsity Stadium.
The Intercollegiate Archery Tournament will be started on Friday, Oct. 16th from 1:00-2:00 p.m. and will continue till Oct. 20th.
Get a partner and join the fun one noon hour at Varsity Stadium and about your college to victory.

See you at the stadium!

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS GOLF TOURNAMENT

St. Andrew's Golf Club, Old Yonge — Friday, Oct. 9, 2 p.m.

PLEASE NOTE CORRECT TIME

Lessons In FRENCH and GERMAN PRIVATE LANGUAGE SCHOOL

O. W. BECK

1598 BATHURST ST.
(near St. Clair) — RU. 7-4756Dig the Scene at the only Varsity Jazz Pad

TIM BALEA

Jazz Club

Bob Stagg Quintet

Every Sunday — 8.30

Gardenvue Banquet Room
Bayview at Millwood

TYPEWRITERS

$1.00 A WEEK BUYS ...
... $1.50 A WEEK RENTS

Get a free typing course and a liberal trade-in allowance for your old typewriter when you buy a new modern machine from us.

Phone HO. 1-1843 Today

HILLEL

Friday, October 9, 8.30 p.m.

Student Symposium:
Arnold Epstein & Murray Segal
— on —
"A NEED FOR ROOTS"

jazz!

HOUSE OF HAMBOURG

GRENVILLE at YONGE

Fri. & Sat: 11.00 p.m.—3.30 a.m.
Sunday: 9.00 p.m.—12.00 a.m.

BLOOD DONORS
Are
GOOD CITIZENS

BIG GAME AT WESTERN

Big Ben Tolls Knell As Western Face Hell

There are being a bundle of amazed faces about this tiny old campus after my own sweet Blues are proving the infallible inevitableness of my predictions and many persons or suchlike are being observed wandering in lurching gait about the grounds mumbling as they stumble that it is uncanny the way Benny is calling the shot on these games of chance with never a bobble though he gets many a rouble for his trouble.

This week, however, is being the great test of my career as I face the very worst plot against my veracity and reliability that ever toddles my way. Monday evenings as I waddle my winsome way about the campus surveying the good cheer which pervades the place after I work my magic on the weekend so that everyone hears the Varsity Blues are victorious over the Redmen from Mount Royal, which has its name changed on the weekend after the slaughter to Widows' Peak, P.Q.

It pleases me mightily in a moderate sort of way since I do not like anything in excess unless it is the abundant little profits which my fishies on the campus fling my way everytime things come out the way I predict, which is always and sometimes even more often. Everything is going along in this manner until suddenly I am hearing footprints in the soft mud behind and I turn myself about upon my axis, which is a process taking about 6 hours since I am only one quarter the girth of the earth, and I confront this person: who is tailing me, in a broad sense.

I am surprising muchly to find that it is neither "Dum-Dum" Dumpty of the Waukegan group, nor "Granite Galoshes" Grobstunk who is a onetime disposal engineer for the Etobicoke syndicate but a very comely little blonde who says to me with an infuriated smile:

"Benny, you are a poor sport and maybe even a party-pooper to boot." And saying this she throws her arms around me and tries to liquidate me with a great bear hug, but she is only partially successful as my blood turns to ice and my knees to jelly but everything else is staying too, too solid. Quickly I pull her away from me as I wish to do my little share in the cause of world disarmament.

"Why do you insist on each week playing and even toying with the hopes, aspirations and other things of poor helpless little college students who never do nothing to you?" There is a quiver in her voice and daggers in her eyes and I duck just in time, but I am remaining ever the gentleman and I put a query to her but she refuses this and says she likes real men, as she elaborates further.

"Just for once Benny why do you not show the world the true you that lurks beneath yon stern visage," and as she says this I notice that she points directly at John Diefenbaker whom she mistakes for a bust of Benny.

"Just for once why do you not keep your grubby little pinkies out of everything and let things happen as they may." I am stunned and for a moment I waver but then I notice that the little blonde rears upon her hind legs in a suspicious manner and I grab her by her ample mane, I cry out in discovery which is a dialect spoken by the primitives of Western Ontario in guttural monosyllables and sundry other dives that abound out that way.

"A spy, you are being a spy or maybe it is a spyess, but I always think that Variety is the spice of Life. But whatever you are being you do not lead Benny astray, at least not for a price, and because you are trying to vamp me I am really taking it out on the little purple bang-tails from your home caves so that my own dear and sweet Blues who are never under-handed and are always straight and good and admirable are also being victorious and the score is being 27-13 which is nothing better than an infallible but rough estimate as the little doll refuses to leave me after I unmask her

DOUBLE TROUBLE for Western this Saturday will be Blues' double fullback team of Jim Murchie (left) and Paul Burroughs (right). These two bone crushers will line up against Mustangs' double guns Meco Poliziani and Lionel Conacher.

This One's For Keeps Injuries May Be Vital

Varsity Blues face Western Mustangs this Saturday in London's J. W. Little Memorial Stadium in what promises to be the big game of the year, as Varsity attempt to stretch their win streak to 12 games.

The reason that so much importance is placed on this game is the advent of the East-West final at Varsity Stadium Nov. 14. Since there is insufficient time for a playoff after the regular season, should two teams be tied for the top spot in the league, total points in the games between those teams would decide the winner of the Yates Cup.

This, combined with the obvious weakness of Queen's and McGill, really makes Saturday's game the first of a two game total points series between Western and Varsity to decide the Eastern representative in the College Classic.

Of course, an upset win by either Queen's or McGill over the teams could lead to complications, but on form to date, this would be a most unlikely happening.

Varsity are not too healthy for this game. Walter Sopinka, Peter Eby, and Mike Chykalluk will not dress for the game, and as all are first string on the defence, this leaves a few holes for Coach Dalt White to fill and leaves the Varsity defence a question mark.

White is expected to move last year's All-Star corner line-backers Steve Chisholm and Paul Burroughs back to their old posts, and this should help bolster the wall.

Burroughs is available for defensive work because of the great strides made by rookies Jim Murchie and John McMurtry in the fullback slot.

The job facing Blues defence is the containment of the one-two punch that Western have in their fullbacks, Meco Poliziani and Lionel Conacher. These two riddled the Queen's defence for almost 250 yards last Saturday.

Western Coach John Metras, has vowed that his team will not make the same mistakes this game as they did at Varsity Stadium two weeks ago. According to Metras, he was experimenting in that game, and his experiments cost his team four TDs.

Western have only one injury for this game, guard John Partington. They will be strengthened by the return of Frank Loftus, speedy halfback who starred for the Horsies in '56-7.

Metras' main problem is to stop the Blues' outside running, something he has not been able to do for two seasons and four games now. He is expected to move Poliziani into the corner line-backer position in a move to accomplish this job.

Varsity had intended dressing trainer Howie Ringham for the game until it was discovered that he is an ex-professional tiddley-wink player and therefore ineligible.

... and in this corner by bobby armstrong

It seems that a certain male student at this university does not approve of the sport of football. If he realized that girls also play this dangerous game, what would he say then? If the big, strong men are battered and bruised after a gruelling game, what about the girls?

Yes, here at U of T the girls also play football as well as those husky brutes. Although it is not a recognized sport, and therefore no athletic credits are granted, numerous girls turn out for the practices held every week.

Each day that we are not blessed (?) by the presence of rain, these girls can be found struggling with the fundamentals of footballs.

The "Saints" are privileged to practice on the same field as do the Varsity Bluesers, and therefore seem to have an added advantage (of what type we aren't too sure!)

If the weather permits, each team plays each of the others twice. These games are well attended — particularly by the men on campus who take great pleasure shouting for and at les femmes de football.

The men of Trinity College were so enthusiastic that they chose three vivacious male cheerleaders to encourage the team to victory (but to no avail, I might add!)

Why do the women of U of T go out for this sport which is believed in so many circles to be reserved exclusively for men?

Well, they do so because it is possibly the best physical exercise one can find. At first running on and off the field is more than enough to exhaust you for days! But after a while, you get yourself into excellent physical condition. (Just check the statistics of these gals, if you don't believe it!)

The knowledge of the game gained from chalk-talks, and experiences on the field give a clear understanding of the sport. When a fellow takes a girl who has played football to a game, he will not be bored by her foolish questions.

As a final benefit by participating in this sport, the girls get to meet people that they would not have otherwise. Other activities also have this advantage. It is only by taking part in some University organization, whether athletic, social or academic, that one gains a true appreciation of campus life.

ONCE MORE WITH FEELING? THORNTON...

QUALITY
CANADIAN PRODUCTS
MADE FROM QUALITY INCO COPPER

Inco Copper makes a modern home a model of comfort, beauty and efficiency

It's easy to take copper plumbing for granted. Copper won't rust, resists corrosion... it lasts for years and seldom, if ever, needs repairs.

Since the early days of electricity we have depended on copper wiring to bring us light and power.

Copper tubing in radiant panel, baseboard or convector heating helps insure lasting comfort.

Beautiful, durable copper, one of the oldest metals known to man...and the newest! For the red metal of the ancients has never been more useful than it is today—as a functional and decorative material in smart, modern settings like this.

Copper is richly colourful and, with the brass and bronze alloys, provides a bright array of warm colours for hardware and ornamental accessories in the home. Copper won't rust

...resists corrosion. That makes it ideal for plumbing and heating systems, for screens, weatherstripping, eavestroughing and downspouts.

Inco produces fine quality ORC* Brand Copper from the ores mined near Sudbury, Ontario. And Canadian manufacturers use this copper to make hundreds of beautiful and durable products of copper, brass and bronze.

*Trademark

THE INTERNATIONAL NICKEL

COMPANY OF CANADA, LIMITED

55 YONGE STREET, TORONTO

comment

"a walk around the block"

For One Girl

by Sam Aizenstat

A few weeks ago, along with a number of other undergraduate girls, Barbara Arrington was asked to fill out an application card as the first step in the elaborate process of getting into a women's fraternity. Some of Barbara's friends at St. Michael's College where she is a second-year Honor Psychology student had told her how anxious they were that she should be rushed by their fraternity so receiving the information card was no great surprise to Barbara. She noticed as she was filling it out that the card did not ask for a certain piece of information she had always thought was of great importance to the fraternity officials, so wishing to avoid any possible misunderstanding and almost resigned to inevitable rejection, she wrote in at the bottom of the card "Race: Negro".

Rejection, however, seemed not in the least inevitable. After the information cards were filled out the federation of campus women's fraternities, the Panhellenic League, held an information meeting. When Barbara arrived at this meeting the president of three of the eight women's fraternities in the Panhellenic crowded around her, told her how anxious they were to have her in their fraternity. Especially enthusiastic were the presidents of Kappa Kappa Gamma and Delta Gamma. Later in the evening at a question-answer session someone asked whether any of the fraternities refused to admit members on grounds of race or religion "There are no discriminatory clauses in our constitution" the girl on the platform said.

Barbara was all set. She had the personal backing of two fraternity presidents. Ahead of her lay the formal rushing procedure.

The procedure for getting into a woman's fraternity is this: after the Panhellenic information meeting, follow two days of teas at the individual fraternities during which the girls and the fraternities, look each other over and pick favorites. After this follows a week of parties at the individual fraternities, each girl attending a selected number of the eight. Then comes the bidding process. The girls being rushed indicate the fraternities they would most like to join, in order of preference. The fraternities, meanwhile, list their favorite girls. The lists are then co-ordinated by a lawyer so that presumably, the right fraternity and the right girls get together.

All that remains after the bidding is over is to initiate the girl into the fraternity chosen for her. Generally speaking, barring extraordinary circumstances, all the girls asked to the original information meeting find their way into one or another of the eight Panhellenic fraternities. That presumably was the way it was going to work for Barbara. Just before she left the information meeting one of the enthusiastic presidents reminded her that the round of rushing teas was about to start and asked her to be sure to come.

On the morning of the first tea, Barbara received a visit from one of her main supporters at the information meeting, Mary Jose Bakker, president of Kappa Kappa Gamma. Mary Jose suggested "a walk around the block, to talk things over".

The gist of the rather confused conversation that followed was that Mary Jose was anxious to save Barbara any embarrassment and that if Barbara continued with the rushing she would not be bid for by any fraternity. One reason given was that each girl had to be put up by a member of the fraternity chapter in her own home town (in Barbara's case New York) and that Barbara had not indicated on her application the name of a New York member who would put her up. Barbara later found out that this information had not been asked for on the card, and in any case it was up to her to find such a member and she was sure she could, if necessary. In any case it was made clear that no one would bid for Barbara,

It Happens Here

Upset by all of this, Barbara did not go to the rushing teas scheduled for that week. Instead, after a few unhappy days, she came to The Varsity office, told her story and asked what could be done. She had no desire to force any fraternity to take in a Negro member if they did not want to. She just wished they would stop pretending not to be discriminatory, and stop rushing girls they knew all along they would not bid for.

Our advice was that she should continue rushing. If she was actually bid for, all would be well, comparatively. If not, she was to try to elicit a definite and official statement of policy.

Later that day Barbara ran into Helen O'Rorke president of Delta Gamma. The girls knew each other from SMC activities, and Helen had been one of the girls most anxious to rush Barbara.

Helen was very upset over the whole business. She had been genuinely anxious to rush Barbara, but said she did not know it was official policy not to rush Negroes. She said she had been told to go with Mary Jose to walk Barbara around the block, but had refused. She wasn't sure what she was going to do now.

Barbara asked her if it was possible for her to continue being rushed. Helen said no: if you miss the teas you can't come to the parties. A few days later as the parties were drawing to a close, Helen found out she had been mistaken that as a matter of fact Barbara could have gone to the parties, but now that the parties were over it was too late. I asked Helen if she would answer a few questions. She said that during the rushing period she was pledged to absolute silence, could not discuss the fraternity with anyone, and had a responsibility to abide by its rules.

more on page 6

The first chapter of Helen's fraternity by the way was founded almost 100 years ago in Mississippi. Its symbol is the "cream-colored rose".

What had happened? A few days before these girls had told Barbara how anxious they were that she should join their fraternities. Now they were discouraging her from continuing, telling her it was against fraternity rules, and invoking an oath of secrecy when further questioned. Why?

Barbara got part of an answer from a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma. This girl told her that just after the information meeting at which Mary Jose Bakker had fussed over her, a meeting of Kappa Kappa Gamma was held, mainly to set Mary Jose straight on Panhellenic policy re Negroes.

There is a sense in which the president of a women's fraternity is not always the most knowledgeable person in it. Each fraternity has in addition to the president, a Panhellenic representative who is up on the policies, official and unofficial, of the federation of fraternities. The knowledgeable member of Kappa Kappa Gamma seems to have spoken at this meeting.

The subject of her lecture at the Kappa Kappa Gamma meeting was "National Unity". According to Barbara's informant, the gist of the speech was that "the time was not ripe" to bring Barbara into the fraternity, that "National Unity" would be disrupted, because presumably southern chapters would be affronted at the admission of a Negro girl. When the meeting was over Mary Jose was dispatched to dissuade Barbara unofficially from coming to the teas. The "walk around the block" followed.

That just about sums up the facts of the case. The Panhellenic fraternities still do not have any discriminatory clauses in their constitutions; on the other hand their roses are as un-corruptedly cream-colored as ever. Further, at no time has an official discriminatory statement of any kind come out of these fraternities.

Legally, then, there is nothing against them. Had a blunder not been committed, Mary Jose would never have been sent to Barbara. Barbara would simply not have been bid for.

But Mary Jose was sent, and unofficially the cat was out of the bag. The fraternities' claim to be non-discriminatory organizations now holds on paper and on paper only.

What is sad about the whole issue is that these girls are not bigots. They genuinely wanted Barbara to join one of their fraternities. But when it was a matter of standing on what they themselves wanted and felt to be right, they could not do it. Perhaps it was the prestige they undoubtedly have among their sisters, perhaps an unwillingness to risk an assured position in an elite community, perhaps a long-developed phobia about any kind of fuss, mess, or struggle.

I do not have much hope for legislation against fraternities, if only because they have managed to keep their discriminatory practices unofficial, and possibly unknown to most of their own members. This story is addressed mainly to the individual fraternity members themselves, and to girls who are now in the process of being rushed by a fraternity. If you cannot stand for discrimination, official or unofficial, then do not. If you have ever allowed yourself to commit an injustice of this kind for the sake of "National Unity", do not allow yourself to do so again. Elsewhere in this paper, in the official editorial column, we ask for SAC action in respect to fraternity discrimination. I ask only that girls like Mary Jose Bakker and Helen O'Rorke stop allowing themselves to be diverted from what they wish to do and know in their hearts to be right. Their fraternities can no longer stand on their morality and innocence; they can only stand on their strict legality and this cannot be enough.

Among the remarks presumably made at the Kappa Kappa Gamma meeting was one to the effect that such revolutionary action as admitting a Negro should not be initiated by a small, insignificant Canadian chapter. I would submit that there can be no nobler office for these small Canadian chapters; it is here that the explosion can start that will eventually carry down into the neighbourhood of Mississippi. But it can only happen if individual members can find the courage and independence to absent themselves from the Panhellenic fraternities as they are now. Only if the members themselves give their fraternities the alternative between reform or impoverishment; only if through the medium of mass resignations they "go on strike" against their fraternities can conditions be changed from within.

If not we can only ask the SAC to proceed from the outside. If they do not, we can only hope once again that the members of these fraternities devote their talents to some more rewarding tasks than holding up an essentially rotten structure.

QUALITY CANADIAN PRODUCTS CONTAINING QUALITY INCO NICKEL

PRUDENTIAL

leads the way in the use of 18-8

Stainless Steel
CONTAINING INCO NICKEL

on Canada's changing skyline

Modern, nickel-containing stainless steel buildings—like The Prudential Insurance Company of America offices now under construction in downtown Toronto—are changing Canada's skyline. In designing these new structures, Canada's leading architects are using stainless steel for the bright beauty of outside walls and trim, window frames, doors and smart, modern entranceways—the interior hardware, stair railings and ornamental accessories.

Stainless steel is an ideal architectural metal. It resists corrosion from the atmosphere and the weather... tends to wash itself clean with every rainfall. It won't crack, chip or deteriorate—stays bright for years with little or no cleaning or maintenance. And it harmonizes beautifully with stone, wood, glass and enamelled surfaces to produce striking architectural effects.

Nickel does great things for stainless—strengthens it... increases its resistance to rust and corrosion... makes it easier to fabricate. That's why Canadian architects, designers and manufacturers are specifying stainless steel containing quality Inco Nickel in architectural products.

Write for a free copy of "The Exciting Story of Nickel."

THE INTERNATIONAL NICKEL

COMPANY OF CANADA, LIMITED
55 YONGE STREET, TORONTO

Now under construction at the corner of King and Yonge Street, in downtown Toronto, the new prestige 20-storey Canadian home of The Prudential Insurance Company of America will have stainless steel exterior facings and window frames... owner, Tusca Investments Limited; architects, Page & Steele and Peter Dickinson Associates.

Students Wash Cars for Charity

Morning motorists in downtown Toronto were accosted by groups of University of Toronto students in lab jackets and armed with Windex Saturday.

The students, pledges of the Alpha Omega dental fraternity, were participating in a stunt to promote United Appeal, by washing car windows and handing out pamphlets which read: "We have washed your window so you may see your way clear to a bigger donation to the United Appeal".

United Appeal officials, along with the gag right from the start, aided the dental fraternity by supplying them with pamphlets and printed cards.

Gary Gutman, one of the organizers of the stunt, said: "The proceedings were carried off very well. Alpha Omega feels it is the duty and responsibility of each student to contribute in any way possible to make the UA campaign more successful."

A street-car driver on first seeing a group of white-jacketed students clambering over his windshield said: "Step to the rear of the car please".

A policeman commented: "Not good at all". It is not known whether he was referring to the traffic situation or to the job done on his windshield.

THE VARSITY

Sask. Premier Approves National Student Assembly

The University of Toronto's bold new concept of a National Assembly of 1,000 Canadian university students has received its first concrete endorsement from a leading Canadian figure.

Premier Douglas indicated he was prepared to offer more tangible help as he told McLean that he was sure the Saskatchewan government would make a sizeable contribution toward the expenses of the province's delegation to the National Assembly, and that in addition "we will match on a per capita basis every dollar put up for the NA by the government of Ontario".

Returning to the question of moral support, Mr. Douglas said he would be prepared to strongly support any application to the Canada Council, and that he would further be prepared to write supporting letters to other possible contributors to the scheme.

The idea for the National Assembly originated with the University of Toronto, and in a special plenary session Thursday night the 23rd Annual Congress of the National Federation of Canadian University Students gave its provisional approval to the plan.

The plenary session passed a resolution which gave the U of T authority to proceed with the definite plans for the National Seminar — provisionally scheduled for Christmas 1960 — if, after investigating it in detail, they received a two-thirds vote of approval from the National Executive of Nfucs.

The resolution also adopted the proposals for the scheme as they had been advanced by the U of T.

Briefly, the National Assembly would bring together 1,000 students from all over Canada. They would listen to prominent speakers talking on a central theme, and would then break down into small seminar groups to discuss their own ideas and those advanced by the speaker.

No date has as yet been set for the presentation by U of T of a brief to the National Executive, but present indications are that this would be within two months.

It is at that time that a definite decision regarding the National Assembly would be made.

EAGER PLEDGES of the Alpha Omega dental fraternity scrub car windows during a project Saturday to raise money for United Appeal. (Varsity Staff Photo by Zimmerman)

Body of OAC Student Found After 7 Months

Pearson Condemns Gov't For Dependence On U.S.

Police have ruled out murder and suggested suicide as possible motive for the death of a University of Toronto graduate whose body was found late Friday near the Ontario Agricultural College.

The skeleton of the man, identified as John Kilpatrick, 35, was discovered in densely wooded bush on private property bordering the outskirts of the OAC camps. Kilpatrick, missing since Feb. 10, was in third year Bacteriology at OAC.

Ontario Provincial Police in Guelph said last night the body was found fully clothed. There were no signs of a beating or any other kind of foul play.

The last time Kilpatrick was seen alive he was walking out of an examination at the college. At the time students described him as a "bit depressed."

OPP Constable Heighton said last night in view of Kilpatrick's past psychiatric troubles, it seemed reasonable he might have taken his own life.

"But," he added, "because of the badly decomposed state of his body, it will take some time before we can actually label the death a suicide."

The constable pointed out the body was probably not noticed last winter because of the heavy blanket of snow covering the area.

During the last war Kilpatrick served in the Canadian Navy. He was discharged in 1956 to undergo treatment in the psychological ward of the Ontario Veteran's Hospital.

Mr. Kilpatrick, a graduate of U of T Physical Education, was married during the war. His wife and two children now live in Minnow Lake, Ontario.

By TERRY BOURKE
Associate News Editor

Canada's leading Liberal warned University of Toronto students Friday that Ottawa's policy of tying itself to the economic and defensive apron strings of the US may backfire into disaster.

Opposition leader Lester B. Pearson, speaking to a full house in Trinity Convocation Hall, said "at no other time in the history of Canada have Canadians been more dependent on US trade for their prosperity."

In his talk, sponsored by the U of T Liberal Club, Mr. Pearson stressed that unless Canada builds a stronger life line across the Atlantic, our government "will soon be completely frozen out of the European Common Trade Market."

"When this happens," he added "there will be no where else to turn for economic survival except the U.S. Then we really will be an appendage of Washington."

Changing to another phase of Canadian defence, Mr. Pearson said when the first Russian sputnik skyrocketed into space, Canada should have re-considered overhauling its concept and strategy of defence.

Turning to the domestic scene, the Liberal boss fired a blast at the present tight money situation.

"Therefore the Conservatives have resorted to an old political game of shifting blame to chartered banks, accusing them of lending money to big business men while turning down the farmer and 'little man'."

Saying people have lost confidence in the fiscal policy of the government, Mr. Pearson nevertheless admitted an answer to the problem was not easy. However he urged "action should at least be started toward finding a solution."

"It is clear to everyone we face a bad current of financial straits, but Mr. Diefenbaker continues to deny that a tight money problem exists."

"There is no tight money problem simply because there is no tight money policy."

Mr. Pearson pointed out the government claims it can not touch the Bank of Canada because of its autonomous position.

On the topic of defence, Mr. Pearson expressed fear over what he called an "apparent" Ottawa decision to arm the RCAF division in Germany with nuclear weapons.

RCAF planes in Germany "designed to be used as a strike attack division, are now under control of American forces stationed there."

This, Mr. Pearson emphasized, means in "the event of miscalculation by American statesmen, Canada may be dragged unwillingly into a position where it will be forced to unleash possible atomic fury."

Mr. Pearson made it clear he "didn't think Canada should use atomic weapons if, as present research indicates, they are harmful to the atmosphere."

"Let the super powers, Russia, the US and Britain, arm themselves to the teeth with nuclear war instruments but let the little and middle powers bow out of the race."

Answering a question from the floor on the advisability of allowing Canadian uranium to be used for purpose of war, Mr. Pearson said "we have no right to prevent US access to materials of war".

Soviet Student Leader Talks Here Tomorrow

University of Toronto students will be able to hear Igor Biriukov, vice-president of the Soviet Union student federation, Wednesday.

He arrived in Toronto last night as a guest of the Students' Administrative Council after attending the National Federation of Canadian University Students convention in Saskatoon last week.

Mr. Biriukov's organization is the Soviet equivalent of Nfucs. He is a post-graduate history student at the University of Moscow, is 33 years old and is married with one child.

He will speak to students at 3 p.m. in Convocation Hall, where his speech will be followed by a question-and-answer period.

He also wants to meet any interested students over coffee at 3 p.m. today in the Hart House debates room. Campus writers are especially invited.

An address at the University of Saskatchewan similar to the one he plans to deliver here was well attended.

The Soviet student leader will meet students and staff from the U of T and attend a few lectures and an SAC meeting during his stay here. He leaves Thursday for the University of Western Ontario.

WHATISIT? Jungle? Junk? Freud? Our nifty art, music and drama department tells you on page 5. (VSP by Meyn)

Hart House

Today

Chapel, 8 a.m. — Holy Communion
Record Room, 5.15 p.m. — Instruction
Music Room, 7 p.m. — Glee Club Full Rehearsal
East Common Room, 7.15 p.m. — OPEN MEETING —
BRIDGE CLUB. New members especially welcome
Rifle Range, 8 p.m. — Archery

Art Gallery, 7 p.m. — ART CLASSES are held on Tuesday and Thursday evenings and registrations are still acceptable for both classes. Materials are supplied. Fee — $6.00 per year Undergraduates (Graduates $8.00). Instructor: Aba Bayefsky.

Tomorrow

Art Gallery — NEW ART EXHIBITION
Ronald King — Peter Kolysnick
Fencing Room, 7 p.m. — Table Tennis
Rifle Range, 7.15 p.m. — Revolver Club
Creat Hall, 8.10 p.m. — C.B.C. CONCERT — Guiomar Novaes, Piano. Free Tickets at Hall Porter's Desk

RED CROSS CLINIC DATES FOR DONORS

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 13 — LAW SCHOOL

Sunnybrook Hospital — Auditorium
9.30 - 11.30 a.m. 1.30 - 4.30 p.m.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 16 — VICTORIA

Margaret Addison Hall — Auditorium
9.30 - 11.30 a.m. 1.30 - 4 p.m.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 19 — VICTORIA

9.30 - 11.30 a.m. 1 - 4 p.m.

Don't Miss

LAS VEGAS NIGHT

Drill Hall

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 16th

8.30 p.m.

- All Kinds of Gambling Games and Wheels
- Genuine Riverboat Barkers and Molls
- Meet Diamond John in Person
- Food and Drink Cheap

ALL PROCEEDS FOR UNITED APPEAL

Player's Please

THE MILDEST BEST-TASTING CIGARETTE

CAMSI's Major Problems: Emigration and High Costs

The 23rd annual meeting of the Canadian Association of Medical Students and Interns faces two major problems as it swings into action this weekend in Toronto.

Hartley Smythe, new secretary-elect of CAMSI, said last night the association will try to figure out how to persuade more medical students taking post-graduate courses abroad to return to Canada.

The United States has drained the greatest bulk of these students. The big reason is because of the high wages and better living conditions there.

Another problem is the high price of medical instruments. Retiring CAMSI president, Jules Hans, said he has been negotiating with the government about medical instrument companies who run a monopoly on their new products.

Meanwhile, this year's president Sandy Scott, said he would like to see more students selling the instruments themselves.

"This plan has been put into operation at Queens and found to be a success," he said.

CAMSI treasurer Dave May pointed out another problem the association is up against is that all universities do not have 100 per cent registration in CAMSI.

"This is because some universities are on a voluntary basis while others collect CAMSI fees together with medical dues," he added.

The association meets in a different city each year and picks its national executive. This year the executive is from Queen's University. The representatives will meet each day this week in the Senate Chamber of Simcoe Hall.

1000 GIRLS NEEDED — TO TRAIN AS DANCERS —

For the Giant Engineering Extravaganza

SKULE NITE 6TO

Auditions: Wednesday, Oct. 14 at 7:30 p.m.

P.O.T. Huts — Cor. Devonshire and Hoskins

TRAIN FOR THE BEST OF TWO WORLDS

Develop your leadership ability, acquire new technical skills, benefit financially and continue your university courses by enrolling in the tri-service Regular Officer Training Plan (ROTP). It provides for:

- university tuition fees paid by the Department of National Defence
- a monthly salary
- and a career in the Canadian Army
- allowances for board and room, books and instruments
- free medical and dental care

Then, on graduating, you will have not only your chosen professional training, but also the Queen's Commission as a career officer in the Canadian Army with the prestige and many personal advantages it brings.

A LIMITED NUMBER OF CANADIAN ARMY VACANCIES IN THESE ROTP "UNIVERSITY QUOTAS" ARE STILL AVAILABLE.

If you want the best of both worlds, find out what this plan can offer you today. For further particulars, contact your University Support Officer (Army):

CAPT. V. F. GEORGE
119 St. George Street
EM. 6-8341 — Local 222

VARSITY

comment

Some sculptors believe in filling up space; others open it up with structures as unsolid as skeletons. Gerald Gladstone, whose Fish, seen at right, was on view last week in the Collector's Exhibition at Hart House, is this second kind of sculptor. These four views are a pictorial review of one of his best "linear" skeletal works. Gladstone is a young Toronto artist who exhibits his work at the Isaac Gallery; this piece is owned by architect Irving Grossman.

Forceful Destiny For Local Opera

A masterpiece introducing Verdi's late, mature style and a production introducing a mature, Canadian opera company combine to produce a winning attraction at the Royal Alexandra.

Last night's dazzling opening of "La Forza del Destino" showed none of the old blights of local opera productions; the Italian flowed; the ragged and tightly knotted orchestra of yesteryear has become a rugged and tightly knit ensemble. The principals have finally been trained in the required stylization which keeps many parts of opera from looking ridiculous; we no longer worried about what the singers were doing or should be doing with their hands.

This production utilized the old arrangement of the six scenes into one prologue and three acts. This arrangement is by far the best for providing a consistent interpretation of the many obscurities of the plot. The opening scene, treated as a prologue becomes a distinct entity—much more like the finale of another, preceding opera, which sets the frame for the opera following, without much concern for the actual events in it.

With a title as ominous-sounding as the "Force of Destiny" we naturally suspect some hidden message or philosophy, even beyond the obvious level of Italian fatalism. With the dissociation of the events of the prologue in mind, the conflict between Don Carlo's actions and concrete situations on one hand and his wishes and ideas on the other, the relevance of the title begins to dawn on us. And this is a rare accomplishment.

In Giuseppe Campora's beautiful lyric tenor the cold fate of Don Alvaro finds warm, moving expression. As a past master of operatic style and stage-presence he helped the less experienced members of the cast along. His only shortcoming was apparent in the hair-raising arias with Don Carlo (James Milligan). Although both artists emulated the famed Scotti-Caruso tradition with the sharpness of their verbal dueling, Mr. Campora's ever-sweet tones seemed out of place. But perhaps this is too much to ask.

The greatest pity and the most disturbing element in this performance is the thoughtless cutting which eliminated one of Alvaro's most beautiful arias (Al chiostro, all'ermo) at the end of Act II. Granted, this scene is very difficult to produce for in the same scene Alvaro saves Carlo's life, they swear eternal friendship; then, during the battle scene Alvaro is seriously wounded, Carlo discovers him as his sworn enemy. No wonder the producers decided to stop things there. But had they been able to face it, the production would have been even more rewarding, musically and dramatically.

The Leonora of Ilona Kombrink was movingly sung and acted. As we have noted in past seasons the perfect match that her voice makes for Campora's is a delightful and distinctly local advantage. Only once, in her scene with Padre Guardiano outside the church, did she chew up a line, but this was the only obvious musical embarrassment of the whole performance.

To mar the magnificent color and splendor of the staging the scene in the church interior was the poorest piece of operatic staging we have seen. The organ interlude is usually the background for an elaborate procession and altar decoration by the monks of the cloister. In this production, they awkwardly march in to the music of Leonora's aria, which in most productions is logically reserved for her entry. Most disturbing was the ridiculous direction which had them charged forward with their lighted candles, handling them like spears.

Jan Rubes who was superb all through this production as the Padre Guardiano, was forced by incompetent direction in the last-mentioned scene to stand with his back to the altar for its duration. In other productions he helps Leonora with her robes etc. But his powerful voice and identification in the role which helped to maintain the consistently high level of this performance absolves him from any blame. Dr. Elemer Nagy directed.

The Forza bubbling comic role of Melitone was played to perfection by Gerhard Pechner. This second import in the all-Canadian cast was the most delightful addition. The usually-omitted "Soup Kitchen" scene at the beginning of the last act was included because of Mr. Pechner's excellence in this role. Unfortunately, his humor and artistry was not at all times appreciated by the audience, because much of his comedy goes beyond the farcical level into the subtleties of the Italian language.

A very wise omission was the repeat of Trabucco's (Donald Bartle) aria after he has completed his business, even wiser considering that he was in much more nervous voice than at the dress rehearsal. Mary McMurray's bouncy Preziosilla disclosed a mezzo of exceptional vocal and dramatic talent. The repartee between her and Don Carlo in Act I usually leaves the audience at a loss about who is trying to seduce whom. Her loose libertine left no doubt in our mind.

Maestro Ernesto Barbini's tempi tend towards the fast side, but always pleasantly so. At times we wished he would relax his tempi when approaching crescendi to give them their proper dramatic emphasis, but the relaxation didn't come and the results were clipped and edgy. But he has welded together a superb performance which is on the must-list of all operaphiles. Student rates for second gallery seats are available for some performances.

Elmo.

comment

we suggest

In view of the material presented on page one and page 6 of this issue, The Varsity has a proposal which we hope the SAC will accept.

We propose that all organizations which participate in activities sponsored by the Students' Administrative Council, be subject to scrutiny by the council.

If they cannot accept such scrutiny, then they should be barred from participation in any activity sponsored by the SAC.

The participation of fraternities and sororities as groups in such activities is almost non-existent at the present time.

They appear in the Students' Handbook and in Torontonensis. They are listed in the handbook because they are residences at which students live. But since they are not residences supervised by the university, we do not think that they should be granted this privilege.

Group pictures of fraternities and sororities appear in Torontonensis and members are able to list their participation in fraternal organizations as part of their extra-curricular campus activities.

We do not think that participation in an organization that will not submit to scrutiny by the SAC should be listed in any student-supported publication.

At present, fraternities and sororities are able to purchase a space in Torontonensis for their group pictures at the student rate of $16.00 a page. This is because they are considered student organizations.

We feel that any sorority or fraternity who wish to purchase space in the year, should pay the standard advertising rate. This amounts to more than $150.00 a page.

If the SAC does pass the motion we hope they will, it will not cause the fraternities and sororities any great inconvenience. Probably most of them will prefer to withdraw from the two publications rather than submit to the scrutiny of the Students' Administrative Council.

We still feel that it is vitally important that the SAC take the action we have proposed.

When we were assembling that material for the issue, we asked the Panhellenic organization, which represents the women's fraternities on campus, to make a statement. We even held back publishing this material for one issue so that they might have time to have a meeting to discuss it and perhaps make a statement afterwards.

When the meeting was over Mari Snyder telephoned us and said that the official statement of the Panhellenic was "no comment."

The reason for this was clumsy and obvious. They felt that a scandal would arise, be talked about for a few days, and disappear and then they would be able to return to business as usual.

Perhaps they will. But when they do, we feel it would be appropriate if they carried with them the knowledge that their actions have received strong censure from the students of this university.

And this is the real meaning of the action we hope the SAC will take. It is saying, in terms that even the Panhellenic council can understand, that we do not approve of their discriminatory policies.

It is NOT saying that we disapprove of fraternities. It is not saying that we wish you to break up your national organizations or to disband your local chapters. It is not saying that we do not wish fraternity and sorority members to participate in campus activities as individuals.

It is saying only that as long as you persist in a discriminatory policy, whether openly or tacitly, we will not allow you to participate in student-sponsored activities as a group using the name of the fraternity.

It is saying only that we do not approve of your discriminatory practices. DLS

Fraternalism

By DAVID LEWIS STEIN

The attention of The Varsity and, we hope, of the whole campus has been drawn to the problem of racial discrimination among fraternities.

And from this two things have become apparent. First, racial and religious discrimination has been widely practiced among the fraternities and sororities on this campus and, secondly, in some of these organizations the barriers are beginning to be broken down.

How fraternities and sororities, or for that matter, any other organization, chooses to select its members is not the concern of The Varsity. Their right to organize and select members on any basis they choose is indisputable.

It only becomes the concern of the university when that organization takes part in campus activities as a group. And fraternities and sororities do, to a limited degree, take part in University of Toronto activities. And this means that they are open to scrutiny by the University of Toronto student newspaper.

From the box that appears on this page it is apparent that the majority of fraternities and sororities on the campus do not have discriminatory clauses in their constitutions. And it will also be apparent that very few of them do not have a discriminatory clause in actual practice.

In the course of assembling this material, I was invited to dinner at a fraternity house. They invited me for the purpose of explaining to me their side of the discriminatory practices of fraternities. What follows is the point of view of only one fraternity but I think it is safe to say that it would apply to many of the fraternities which have no discriminatory clauses in their constitutions but which carry out discriminatory clauses in practice.

This as I understand it, is the position of one fraternity on the question of racial and religious discrimination.

It is a Christian organization. This does not mean that it is a denominational group but that Christian ethics are a most important part of the fraternity code and standard of behaviour.

The chapter of this fraternity is allied with a large organization in the United States and Canada. One member described it as a "talking fellowship", but it is something much deeper than that. The members in Toronto feel a bond of fellowship with men of similar ideals and beliefs throughout the continent. Whenever they stop in a city where there is a chapter house of the fraternity, or whenever in their travels they come across a "brother" they are certain of a welcome and a place to stay. They have a common basis upon which to begin conversation with people they have never met, from backgrounds utterly dissimilar to their own.

But even more than the material benefits of the fraternity, the sense of fellowship and a shared ideal of Christian ethics, is vivid and real to the members of the chapter I spoke to. There is no doubt of their sincerity.

How does this affect their discriminatory practices?

Many of the chapters of this fraternity are in the Southern United States. The members of the southern chapters have been raised in an atmosphere where racial segregation is part of the accepted way of life. A Negro member of their fraternity is inconceivable to them.

The Toronto members do not wish to alienate their southern brethren by taking a Negro member into their chapter. They feel that if they did, the southern chapters might secede from the national organization of the Toronto chapter might even be expelled.

They have a precedent for their feelings. Some American fraternities have been brutally disrupted over the issue of racial integration. The Toronto chapters feel that the fellowship they enjoy with members throughout the continent is too meaningful and valuable to risk losing.

This then, as I understand it, was the position on racial discrimination taken by the Toronto chapter. And I believe that a similar position would be taken by many of the fraternities and sororities listed on this page.

It is a strong position. I have no doubts of the sincerity of the fraternity members who expressed it to me.

Many of these members feel strongly about racial discrimination. Many of them have Negro, Chinese and Jewish friends. One member felt that if they were an autonomous chapter—that is if there were no uniform membership qualifications for all chapters of the fraternity—they would most certainly take Negro members into the Toronto group.

They have not yet done so because they feel that National Unity is too valuable to risk destroying. They feel that by staying within the fraternity, they can exert a greater influence on the southern chapters than they could if either they or the southern groups were to leave the national organization. At the national conventions and the workshops that are held for the fraternity members, they do all they can to influence the southerners.

The position of these Toronto chapters is strong. It is strong but we are not impressed by it.

First, it seems to us a narrow conception of Christian ethics that denies fellowship to a man because of the color of his skin.

Secondly, although I feel that loyalty to a national organization is admirable, I feel that it is perhaps misplaced. The national organization which claims their devotion, is an exceedingly small one when seen in a larger context. And since I find it difficult to find the Christianity in the ethic which unites these groups, I find it difficult to see loyalty to them as being very important. I find that they seem to be more unions of people with common social interests than anything else. And loyalty to such a brotherhood, at the expense of improving race relations, seems to me a misplaced kind of loyalty.

Thirdly, I feel that progress will be made in race relations only when people are willing to run great risks in order to improve them. I do not think that any Toronto chapter of any fraternity will be able to accomplish anything significant by waiting for someone else to take the lead. If they believe strongly in breaking down the barriers then they must be willing to take the lead themselves. And they must be willing to risk endangering their national unity in order to do it.

The action that we hope the SAC will take will not seriously hamper the fraternities and sororities. They will scarcely notice that it is in effect.

But we feel that it is most important that the SAC take such action. It will mean that the students of the University of Toronto, through their elected representatives on the Students' Administrative Council, are expressing in unmistakable terms, their disapproval of the discriminatory practices of fraternities.

They are not disapproving of the principle of fraternalism or of fraternities in practice. These organizations will be offered the option of submitting to SAC scrutiny if they wish to participate in student-sponsored activities. As individuals, they will, of course, be always free to participate.

If they cannot submit to such scrutiny, whatever the reason, then they should be forced to remove themselves from the campus entirely.

THE VARSITY

FOUNDED 1880

Published by
The Students' Administrative Council
of the University of Toronto
Toronto 5, Canada

Member Canadian University Press

Redefined

The following is a list of fraternities and sororities on this campus. It is the answers to two questions:
Do you have any discriminatory clauses in your constitution?
Do you have any Negro, Asiatic, or Jewish members? In the case of non-sectarian fraternities which are predominantly Jewish, they were whether they had any Gentile members.
The results apply only to active membership of the Toronto chapters. Do not apply to alumni or to chapters of the fraternity or sorority at other than Toronto.

FRATERNITIES

Alpha Delta Phi: no discriminatory clause, no Negroes, Asiatics or Jews.
Alpha Kappa Kappa: could not be reached for comment.
Alpha Omega: no discriminatory clause, no Negroes, Asiatics or Gentiles.
Beta Sigma Rho: could not be reached for comment.
Beta Theta Pi: no discriminatory clause, no Negroes, Asiatics or Jews.
Delta Chi: no discriminatory clause, no Negroes, Asiatics or Jews.
Delta Kappa Epsilon: no discriminatory clause, no Negroes, Asiatics or Jews.
Delta Tau Delta: did not know whether a discriminatory clause existed when contacted. No Negroes, Asiatics or Jews.
Delta Sigma Phi: did not know whether a discriminatory clause existed when contacted. No Negroes, Asiatics or Jews.
Delta Upsilon: could not be reached for comment.
Kappa Alpha: no discriminatory clause. No Negroes or Asiatics. Two Jews.
Kappa Sigma: no discriminatory clause, no Negroes, Asiatics or Jews.
Lambda Chi Alpha: discriminatory clause in constitution. No Negroes, Asiatics or Jews.
Nu Sigma Nu: no discriminatory clause, no Negroes, one Asiatic, no Jews.
Phi Chi: no discriminatory clause, no Negroes, Asiatics or Jews.
Phi Delta Epsilon: no discriminatory clause, no Negroes or Asiatics. Some Jews.
Phi Delta Phi: no discriminatory clause, no Negroes, Asiatics or Jews.
Phi Delta Theta: could not be reached for comment.
Phi Gamma Delta: no discriminatory clause, no Negroes or Asiatics. Some Jews.
Phi Kappa Pi: no discriminatory clause, one Negro, no Asiatics, some Jews.
Phi Kappa Sigma: no discriminatory clause, no Negroes, some Asiatics, no Jews.
Rho Pi Phi: no discriminatory clause, no Negroes, Asiatics or Gentiles.
Psi Upsilon: no discriminatory clause, no Negroes, Asiatics or Jews.
Sigma Alpha Mu: no discriminatory clause, no Negroes, Asiatics or Gentiles.
Sigma Chi: discriminatory clause in constitution, no Negroes, Asiatics or Jews.
Sigma Nu: discriminatory clause in constitution, no Negroes, Asiatics or Jews.
Theta Delta Chi: no discriminatory clause, no Negroes, Asiatics or Jews.
Psi Kappa Pi: no discriminatory clause, no Negroes, Asiatics or Jews.
Psi Kappa Sigma: no discriminatory clause, no Negroes, Asiatics or Jews.
Lambda Psi: no discriminatory clause, no Negroes, Asiatics or Gentiles.
Psi: no discriminatory clause, no Negroes, one Asiatic, no Jews.

SORORITIES

Alpha Gamma Delta: no discriminatory clause, no Negroes, Asiatics or Jews.
Alpha Omicron Pi: not available for comment.
Alpha Phi: no discriminatory clause, no Negroes, Asiatics or Jews.
Kappa Kappa Gamma: no discriminatory clause, no Negroes, Asiatics or Jews.
Delta Delta Delta: no discriminatory clause, no Negroes, Asiatics or Jews.
Delta Phi Beta: no discriminatory clause, no Negroes or Asiatics, one Jew.
Ella Gamma: could not be reached for comment.
Beta Phi: could not be reached for comment.

The Type Of Craftsmen

By John Robert Colombo

Typography — or the art of matching type with words — is as old as printing. Yet as a distinct art-form, Typography is a product of modern advertising.

A fine showing of modern Canadian typography can be seen, until October 18, on the main floor of the Royal Ontario Museum. The 300 items in the annual typographical exhibit illustrate well the main trends in "planned printed propaganda" produced in Canada today.

Sponsored jointly by the Society of Typographical Designers of Canada and the Rolland Paper Company Limited, Typography '59 represents a selection of over 1,600 letterheads, posters, books and promotional pamphlets.

The specimen copies were submitted to a panel of adjudicators under Paul Arthur. Award-winning items and runners up were arranged as to category and well mounted on large display boards.

Over thirty items in Typography '59 were designed by Allan Fleming, part time instructor at the College of Art, Fleming, the leading proponent of pure typography in Canada, creates interesting and startling effects by employing only printing types and traditional printing ornaments.

A series of notices done by Mr. Fleming for the Gallery of Contemporary Art are of particular interest. Their standard format four inches square did not restrict Fleming's visual ingenuity since each notice is unique in its use of type, ornament, ink and paper.

Another well-known designer, Robert Reid of Vancouver, is represented with a large selection of books, booklets, broadsheets and newspaper advertisements. His design for Raven, the literary magazine of U.B.C. is also displayed.

At least three campus publications are in the show, all designed by Harold D. Kurschenski. A modernistic poster for University College, which contrasts large wood-type with thin spidery italic script, and Jargon, last year's SAC-sponsored literary magazine, are prominent in the show.

Three Lectures, comprising the Installation Lectures of the President, may be seen; of particular interest in the designer's use of a ragged right hand edge, to convey the impression of actual lecture notes.

More subtle effects were achieved by most of the other typographers. In particular, Frank Newfield with his catalogue for the Mask Show, John Bauer with tasteful letterheads, and Sam Smart with his format for The Collected Poems of E. J. Pratt.

In an age when mass-production makes it impossible to distinguish one company's product from another, advertising gimmicks are utilized to promote sale, and typographers all too often fall under the spell of attracting the attention.

Happily the standards of Typography '59 are high. Most of it is "good honest design". A quotation from one of the promotional pieces in the show designed by Carl Dair gives what should be the credo of artists and industrial designers the world over...

"We believe that both our clients' and their customers are best served by the conscientious recognition of our obligation to make every advertisement truthful in its statements, entertaining in its presentation of the information, visually stimulating in its design, orderly and readable in its typography."

Live And Learn

The CBC, with an eye to the interest of their younger viewers, have launched a new T.V. program this season, a new addition to the Live and Learn series, Live and Learn—French.

Filmed scenes from dramas performed at the Palace of Versailles will be used to illustrate one of the French series, while others will be illustrated with filmed dramas in French, graphics and readings by well-known actors.

The program does not undertake to teach French, however, and so viewers with no knowledge of French will be able to understand the series. Actually, it is a combination of the history of the French language, philology, culture, and an appreciation of French literature.

Two professors of French from University College, C. R.

Parsons, and John A. Walker will write the script and appear on the programs, which began Oct. 1 at 10:30 p.m., and continue until Dec. 17.

Reading lists, for Live and Learn—French, will be available to viewers.

This is the fourth in the Live and Learn series, others have dealt with psychology, physics, and chemistry.

Penny Morris.

Doors Open

The University of Toronto has some unusual rules, but none quite as fascinating as one in the books at the University of Minnesota.

"Doors to offices with couches in them," says the rule, "must be left open when there are two persons in the room."

Must be rough on the Psychology Department.

here and now

A silver men's wrist watch was lost Friday night in the vicinity of Varsity Stadium. Finder please contact Paul Copeland, RU. 3-4043.

TODAY

1.10 p.m. — SCM invites all those interested to study "The Quaker Approach" in room 42F, UC —SCM will sponsor a study group in comparative religion in room 103, School of Nursing.
SCM welcomes all freshmen to a study group: "The University Challenge to Faith", led by the Rev. Alan McLachlin in the SCM office, Hart House.
4.00 p.m. — UC Lit. plans an open meeting including election speeches and the 1959-60 budget in the JCR.
4.15 p.m. — Abner Steinberg will convene the inaugural meeting of the U of T Automobile Club in room 52L, UC. This will be the first university automobile club in Canada. A movie will be shown. A car is not needed in order to join. Girls will be more than welcome.
—CCF national secretary Carl Hamilton will lead a discussion group on the subject of the new party in Trinity, room 9.
5.00 p.m. — The Blue and White Society will meet in the SAC office. Members from all colleges and faculties please turn up.
7.45 p.m. — The Vic. Debating Parliament plans its opening debate in Vic Alumni Hall. The motion reads "Resolved that moon sickness is the most serious disease of our age." Government will be Donna Youngblut and Marc Sommerville. Mike Galway and Norm Williams will speak for the Opposition.
8.00 p.m. — C.B.C.'s Valerie Siren, will sing and play the guitar in Carr Hall, SMC, sponsored by the Outing Club whose year's program will also be discussed.
—The U of T Flying Club meets in the Music Room, Wymilwood. Plans for the coming year will be discussed. This meeting is open for beginners.

WEDNESDAY

1.00 p.m. — The Conservative Club is holding their first fall-term noon-hour discussion period in room 1, Trinity. Fred C. Stinson, MP, will lead a discussion on Communist China.
1.10 p.m. — An SCM-sponsored Trinity College study group led by Mrs. H. Hardy is planned in room 8A, Trinity.
—An SCM group for faculty members meets in the Chaplain's Office, Hart House.
4.10 p.m. — An SCM study group in "New Testament Christianity" will hold its first meeting in the SCM Office, Hart House. Everybody is welcome. Bring your Bibles. Miss Nancy Holman will lead the discussion.
5.30 p.m. — SCM will hold its first Wednesday night supper meeting in the SCM Coach House, 110 St. George St. The speaker will be Rev. Alan McLachlin. Following the meal there will be a study period. All are welcome.
8.00 p.m. — At the meeting of the Near East Club in the Women's Union, Prof. F. V. Winnet will speak on his experiences in the Near East last year.
—The U of T Italian Club will hold its first meeting at Brennan Hall, SMC. Slides will be shown and a social evening with dancing and refreshments will follow. All are welcome.

segovia student

Gustavo With Guitar—Gustavo

Monday evening in the Sir Daniel Wilson Auditorium the Guitar Society of Toronto presented an outstanding recital by the Mexican guitarist, Gustavo Lopez. Although Senor Lopez first began to play the guitar at the age of eight, it was not until he was 14 that he started his formal training in 1945 at Cuernavaca in Mexico City. In 1956 he concluded with the master, Andrés Segovia, in Madrid.

The second half of the program included compositions by J. S. Bach, Handel, and Haydn. Most of these were specially written for keyboard instruments, have been adapted and arranged for guitar. Bach's "Preludio" for the clavichord, an instrument having a "sweet tone". The guitar, although capable of great resonance and volume, is, nevertheless, specially designed to produce a delicate rather than a powerful tone, and thus the transposition from keyboard to guitar seemed quite natural.

Lopez played the exacting music of J. S. Bach with assurance and precision, although occasionally a little out of tempo in order to bring out the significance of a phrase.

Included in the first section was the Suite in G major for guitar by Robert de Visée who was the favourite musician to Louis XIV. (It may be worth noting that Louis XIV himself was an amateur guitarist.)

The second half of the program was devoted to works by Mexican and South American composers, among them Ponce, Villa-Lobos and Granados. It might be said that these compositions are written in another idiom, so different are they in style from the preceding selections. They are full of dissonance, emphatic variations in tone from deep mellow notes like bubbling water, to clear shallow harmonies. Here the versatility of Senor Lopez' art was displayed to full advantage. In complete control of his instrument, he created a compelling atmosphere with the subtleties and mystery of his native music.

Gustavo Lopez played a guitar made for him in Madrid by Arcangel Fernandez.

One of the world's greatest living female exponents of romantic pianism, the renowned Guiomar Novaes will give a recital in the Great Hall tomorrow evening. This is the first of three concerts in the CBC Celebrity Series which students may attend free of charge. Tickets available to women as well as men at the Hall Porter's Desk.

Flags To Promote UN

The University of Toronto UN Club will mark United Nations Day, Oct. 24, with a parade of 82 national flags and the UN flag at the Queen's-Toronto football game here.

The UN club will attempt to have the flags carried by as many students from various countries as they can find on campus. UN Club president Bill Eds. Friday said the project is part of a Toronto-wide attempt by the UN Club and the Toronto UN Club to draw public attention to the UN.

The Varsity erroneously reported Friday that the project was connected with the current U of T fund-raising drive.

University of Toronto

MEN'S

Table Tennis Tournament

Saturday, October 17 — 10.00 a.m.

Main Gym — Hart House

Entry Forms at Hall Porter's Desk.

50c Entry Fee

All Male Students with A.T.L. Cards Welcome

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS

Softball schedule will start Tuesday, October 13. Leagues are as follows:

League I	League II	League III
St. Hilda's	P. Ed. I	Pharmacy
Vic. I	Nursing	Meds
P. Ed. II	Vic. II	D. Hygiene
St. Mike's I	POTS	St. Mike's II
Varsity Field	Trinity Field
Tues. Oct. 13	Vic. I vs St. Hilda's	St. Mike's I vs P. Ed. II
Wed. Oct. 14	Pharmacy vs Meds	D. Hyg. vs St. M. II
Thurs. Oct. 15	P. Ed. I vs Vic. II	Nursing vs POTS
Fri. Oct. 16	P. Ed. II vs Vic. I	St. Hilda's vs St. M. I

Games begin at 1 p.m. sharp. Last team listed (e.g. St. Hilda's, P. Ed. II) is home team. Default time—12.00 p.m.

GAMES TODAY

SOCCER	North 12.30	Sr. SPS	vs	Trin. A	Ramsen
	South 12.30	St. M. B	vs	SPS IV	Bugaski
	South 4.15	Forestry	vs	Enman	Patacrchia

GAMES WEDNESDAY

SOCCER	North 12.30	Jr. SPS	vs	UC	Donfield
FOOTBALL	East 4.00	Forestry	vs	Jr. SPS	Weinrib, Posen, Birrell
	West 4.00	Pharm	vs	Med	Chapnick, Keizer, Lipsen

VOLLEYBALL	1.00	Pre-Med IA	vs	St. M. IV	Dralmin
	1.00	U.C. Sigma Alpha	vs	Vic. M.H.F's	Goldman
(Major)	3.00	Jr. SPS	vs	Med	Drevnik
	6.00	Med IV Yr. A	vs	SPS A	Drevnik
	7.00	Dent. III Yr.	vs	U.C. McCaul	Stein
	8.00	Pharm A	vs	Wyc. A	Stein

Toronto Social Planners Seek Volunteers To Help Needy

A representative seeking about 50 volunteers from the University of Toronto to work with people of all ages will be on campus Wednesday and Thursday.

Mrs. Gwen Richardson, secretary of the Metropolitan Toronto Social Planning Board, will look for volunteers to work in morning nursery schools for toddlers, afternoon and after-school programs for older children and programs 7:30-9 p.m. for teen-agers.

Volunteers are also needed to teach English to new Canadians and to visit older people. Canvassers for the United Appeal are also required.

Volunteers will work for various religious groups and United Community Fund agencies.

U of T students in one second-year psychology course already do volunteer work as field work for the course.

Mrs. Richardson will be at the University Placement Office 9:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday. Students unable to meet her there may contact her at her office by phoning EM 3-4971.

Diamond John Will Roll Dice

Fun will be password at an alleged Mississippi river-United Appeal's Las Vegas; Lost gambler who goes by the name of Diamond John.

Proceeds of the evening will be turned over to the campus United Appeal drive. Students are invited to try their hand at roulette, poker and dice.

The evening will also feature two honkey-tonk pianists and Games will begin at 8:30 p.m. in the Drill Hall, 119 St. George St. The evening's activities have been approved by the Toronto mayor's office and the joint is not expected to be raided.

Student Christian Movement

STUDY GROUPS

You are invited to take part in any of the following SCM groups:

1. "The University: Challenge to Faith", Freshman group led by Rev. Alan McLachlin, begins Tuesday, October 13, 1:10-2, S. C.M. Office, Hart House.
2. "The Quaker Approach", meets Tuesdays, 1:10-2, in Room 42-F, University College.
3. Nurses' Group on "Comparative Religion", begins Tuesday, October 20, Room 403, School of Nursing, 1:10-2.
4. Trinity Group led by Mrs. H. Hardy, meets Wednesdays, 1:10-2 in Room 5A, Trinity College.
5. Faculty Members Group, meets Wednesdays, 1:10-2 in Chaplains office, Hart House.
6. "New Testament Christianity", Bible Study, led by Miss Nancy Holman, S.C.M. Office, Hart House, begins Wednesday, October 14, 6:10 a.m.
7. Wednesday night supper meetings at the Coach House, 110 St. George St., 5:30-8:00 p.m., begins Wednesday, October 14, led by Rev. Alan McLachlin.
8. Dillich's "Dynamics of Faith", led by R. V. Alan McLachlin, begins Thursday, October 15, 4:10-5, Room 14, Victoria College.
9. "Unfolding Drama of the Bible", survey of Old and New Testament, led by Miss Nancy Holman, begins Thursday, October 15, 4:10 to 5, S.C.M. Coach House, 110 St. George St.
10. Freshman Engineers' group led by Prof. J. M. Ham, begins Thursday, Oct. 15, 5 p.m., Music Program, Hart House.
11. "Outside the Camp": Preparatory studies for Ecumenical conference at Christmas.

1. Chapel's Office, Hart House, led by Rev. J. S. Cunningham, begins Monday, October 19, 1:10-2.
2. Victoria College, Room 14, led by Mr. Keith Dixon, begins Monday, October 19, 1:10-4.
3. S.C.M. Coach House, 110 St. George St., led by Rev. W. Bothwell, begins Friday, October 16, 1:30-2.
4. Canterbury Centre, 45 St. George St., led by Nancy Norman, begins Friday, October 16, 3:10-4.

COACHING

Calculus, Accounting, Introductory lessons on: Theory of Compounds Interest, and Life Contingencies.

Call RU. 3-2257 evenings

GOOD HAIRCUT

RIGHT NEAR HERE
4 BARBERS — NO WAITING
600 University Avenue

Just below College
In the Basement
Open Monday through Friday
8 a.m. to 6 p.m.
ONLY $1.00

INTERCOLLEGIATE LEAGUE

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 17th

Varsity at QUEENS

SUPPORT YOUR TEAM

- |                             |                              |
|-----------------------------|------------------------------|
| 20. Ron Crawford            | 61. Nick Sopinka             |
| 21. Milt Jewell             | 62. Bob Campbell             |
| 22. Peter Eby               | 70. Doug Wyles               |
| 30. Peter Warren            | 71. Doug Boyd                |
| 31. Bill Bullock            | 72. Dick Farr                |
| 32. Trevor Eytton, Co-Capt. | 80. Steve Chisholm, Co-Capt. |
| 33. Sandy Bell              | 81. Mike Smith               |
| 35. Morgan Dever            | 83. Ian Knowles              |
| 40. Weldon Thoburn          | 85. Al Connolly              |
| 41. Bruce Jackson           | 86. Pete Pater               |
| 42. Mike Chvaluk            | 87. Dave Creswell            |
| 43. Casey Wood              | 88. Ken Myers                |
| 45. Brian Bradstock         | 90. Bob Dunn                 |
| 46. Bill Kay                | 91. John McMurtry            |
| 50. Mike Muir               | 92. Paul Burroughs           |
| 51. Doug Jack               | 93. Jim Murchie              |
| 52. Doug Longhead           | Manager: Bob Miner           |
| 53. Doug Baird              | Coach: Dick White            |
| 55. Walt Sopinka            | Asst. Coaches: Jack          |
| 60. Everett Rush            | Kennedy, John McManus        |

SUPPORT YOUR BAND

- Drum Major—Gail Richardson
Drum Major—Don Page
- |                  |                  |
|------------------|------------------|
| Allan Appelby    | M. Nuk           |
| Norm Anderson    | Tom Parr         |
| Mike Beaton      | Paul Paterson    |
| Ron Beattie      | Paul Patterson   |
| Jack Bellegem    | Isadore Prydzack |
| Bob Bely         | Dan Rungiey      |
| Dave Hatchford   | Hollis Ryan      |
| Peter Boothroyd  | Doug Scott       |
| John Glenhall    | James Skeaff     |
| Bruce Corbett    | B. Smith         |
| Roger Cunningham | John Storkey     |
| John Earnshaw    | Earl Taylor      |
| Barry Goldblatt  | Jack Train       |
| Doug Gordon      | Norma Vliet      |
| Walter Hall      | Laurie Walsberg  |
| Alan Holmes      | Jack Walker      |
| Harbord Kee      | Harold Wolfe     |
| Iher Kurellie    | Jim Wyse         |
| Jerrey Malvan    | Martin Yaffee    |
| Pete Nelson      | Dave Young       |
- Colour Party—M. Berger, J. Birenbaum, Gershenovitz, H. Hoffman, M. Smith, M. Walker Director—George Arnold
Asst. Director—Harold Potter
Business Manager—Ray Fingerhut

CHEER WITH YOUR CHEERLEADERS

- Head Cheerleader—Jack Bruce
- |                  |                |
|------------------|----------------|
| Gary Ashby       | Ross McIlroy   |
| Marjorie Chapman | Judy Pullen    |
| Sue Dennis       | Wally Riddolls |
| George Huoninen  | Judy Saunders  |
| Rebecca Lerman   | Bill Sims      |
| Valerie Lewis    | Anne Williams  |

NOTE: The SAC office will stay open until 6.00 p.m. on Tuesday and Wednesday for your convenience.

LET US SURPRISE QUEENS!

YES EVEN YOU

BLUE READER

MAKE FOR THE SAC OFFICE
RIGHT AWAY

JUST
$6.00
TRAIN
FARE

We have arranged
for the trains.
The menu is up to you!
We have arranged
for the music.
So come along — please do!

Forget your blues
Watch our Blues!
At Queen's this Saturday

FOR YOUR CONVENIENCE SPECIAL ARRANGEMENTS HAVE BEEN MADE:

Special Train leaving Toronto at 9.00 a.m., Toronto time arriving Kingston at 12.30 a.m., Kingston time Return Trains Leaving Kingston at 7.45 p.m. Kingston time arriving Toronto at 10.45 p.m., Toronto time — or any later trains

ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION NOTE—

GAME TICKETS ONLY on sale at the Athletic Office, Hart House, from 9.15 a.m. to 5.00 p.m.

$2.50 $2.00 $1.75 $1.50

Well, Why Not?

SASKATOON (CUP) — A Motion of "why not?" passed last Friday at the Nfcus Annual Congress was indicative of the feeling that the Federation was stronger than ever, and that it was able to provide more than discounts for students. Resolutions that would have been unthinkable two years ago, passed through the plenary session of the largest congress yet, with very little difficulty and often enthusiastic support. Motions passed ranged from plans for increased scholarships to Canadian-Russian student exchange.

The Congress revised and broadened its present inter-regional scholarship exchange whereby a student may study at a university in another region for one year.

The travel department is to organize a program for 1960 so that the students may travel from one region to another.

Taking its first step into the fields of cultural activity the Congress approved the integration of the Canadian university students art committee (CUSAC-CASEC) and appointed Dave Robertson of McGill as Chairman of the national affairs sub-committee responsible for the work in this field.

The Congress also ventured into fields hitherto considered sacred. A telegram will be sent to the prime minister "asking him to honor the campaign pledge of the late Honorable Sydney Smith to institute a national scholarship, and bursary scheme, and requesting the government to present views on this matter."

The Congress also went on record as "deploring the remarks on university student problems made by the Honourable Donald Fleming in his speech in the House of Commons on April 30, 1959, and that he be informed of this matter."

Mr. Fleming had pointedly remarked that he had worked his way through college and he considered it to be the best thing to do.

In spite of these measures the Congress was still recalcitrant on giving itself the voice typical of many other national unions who become involved in politics.

It passed a motion that the Federation avoid political complications because of the thin dividing line between student and non-student matters pertaining to politics. "The official Nfcus policy is that the political issues as such, should be considered by the Federation only insofar as they are of obvious, and immediate concern to students in their role as students."

Until this Congress the executive carried out few student plans on the international level — although it participated in many events — because of lack of support from the students and because of financial inability.

The following motion would have been unheard of at prior congresses. "Be it resolved that a 'symbolic' scholarship be established for one Algerian student . . ." In addition the Congress also sent a telegram to the Department of External Affairs "regarding the failure of that department to grant a visa to the President of UGEMA (Union Generale des Etudiants Musulmans Algerien). This came on the heels of a reference in Hansard to the president and vice-president of the union as "Algerian Rebels."

Nfcus Snaps

In spite of small individual losses over the past year, the Travel Department of Nfcus surged ahead to give a $2,315 surplus to the federation. Following the disclosure of the surplus, the federation voted raises to its top executive officers totalling $2,300.

Jacques Gerin, fourth year engineering student at the University of Montreal, was elected as new president of Nfcus, replacing Mortimer Bistrisky, at the closing session of the congress. Gerin was former vice-president of AGEUM, the students' union at the University of Montreal. Bruce Rawson, of the University of Western Ontario, was elected president for the Ontario region.

Saskatchewan Premier Douglas proposed a new Canadian constitution replacing the British North American Act, a new standard national anthem and a truly Canadian flag when he spoke to the Nfcus congress Friday. He told his audience Canada has yet to produce a feeling of Canadian nationalism.

Why Not What?

"Why not?" "Why not what?" "I dunno, but why not?"

And that's just about the way it went last week as 115 delegates representing 33 Canadian universities gathered in the prairie capital of Saskatoon for the 23rd Annual Congress of the National Federation of Canadian University Students.

It was an unusual Congress — if only because it unanimously supported a resolution that "Why Not" be adopted as the Congress' official motto.

The motion, introduced into the final plenary session Saturday by Toronto Nfcus Chairman Mike Sherman (IV UC), called upon the adoption of the Motto because it exemplified "the powers of positive thinking and the glories of negative thinking."

But it was unusual in many other ways too. Besides passing the U of T's proposal for a National Assembly of 1,000 students — considered by many to be the first really forward step Nfcus has taken in many years — the Congress produced a myriad of those little incidents which will be remembered long after National Assemblies have faded into nothingness.

Most prominent of them was, of course, the "Why not?" slogan . . . and it governed the unofficial as well as the official action of the delegates.

Why not order Chinese food for 115, to be delivered to the Sick Bay at 4.30 a.m. After all, 115 people had come to the party hosted by Laval in their apartment. It didn't matter that only 40 people could get in the room at one time.

And why not all-night parties on the train, and why not impromptu celebrations in honor of everything, from Toronto's loss (Yes, we heard about that!) to the arrival of the Russian observer?

And why not hold the train in Saskatoon for an hour while sleepy-eyed Toronto delegates were roused from their berths?

And why not wash dishes for the CNR if, like two members of the UWO group, you couldn't afford to pay for your meals on the trip home?

And why not drink 3,472 bottles of Coke, provided free of charge by the Coca-Cola people?

And why not say "Heavens, they don't even speak English out here" when a native answers "Saskatoon, Saskatchewan" to your muttered query of "Where the hell are we?"

And why not run up and down train corridors screaming "Pat, Pat, where are you?", when Pat had the entire liquor supply of your delegation.

And why not accomplish more work than most Nfcus Congresses, as well as having a good time?

And like the answer to the original "Why not?", the delegates answered with one voice, "I dunno, but why not?"

No Equality

SASKATOON (CUP) — Canadian students do not enjoy equality of opportunity in education, but it is partly their own fault.

This was the consensus of a student-professor panel discussion held at the Nfcus conference last week.

Roy Heenan, McGill Nfcus chairman and newly elected International Affairs vice-president of Nfcus, struck at what he termed, "A complete lack of student interest." Peter Meekison, president of the UBC Alma Mater Society, warned of the need for "students to tell people what the universities stand for, because it is in this area that interest must be aroused."

Heenan and Meekison were part of the panel which discussed, "Does Canadian youth enjoy equality of opportunity at the higher educational level?"

The two other members were: Saskatchewan Arts and Science Dean J. F. Eddy, and Colb McEown, assistant to the President of the university.

Heenan felt that not only was there no equality in education, but that "The Canadian people don't know or don't care. However, he believed not only were citizens disinterested, but only a small amount of students cared about their own plight.

"How many times do we see students sitting around debating this issue? Unless we do something you can bet that no one else will," he said.

Meekison agreed with Heenan that a larger number of scholarships and bursaries should be made available. "At present scholarships go — and rightly so — to the brilliant students, so there should be far more bursaries.

He disagreed with the McGill chairman's statement that ability should be the sole criteria for entrance to university. "I believe that students who have a desire to go to university, and work, should be allowed to do so," he said.

Both Heenan and Meekison made suggestions to improve the present conditions. Heenan recommended that university students visit high schools to make students aware of the advantages of a university education. Meekison believed increased radio and television activity was one of the answers.

Previously, Dean Leddy and Mr. McEown presented statistics which showed inequality was not only based on the student's family income, but on its social status as well.

C.B.C. CELEBRITY SERIES

— presents —

GUIOMAR NOVAES, Piano

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 14th, at 8.10 p.m.

GREAT HALL, HART HOUSE

Free tickets available to University men and women at Hall Porter's Desk.

FREE PRIVATE ROOM and BOARD

ST. CLAIR AND AVENUE ROAD

For a lady student who is interested in a quiet, congenial atmosphere. Enquiries should be directed to

Miss Morrison, EM. 4-0261

CARABIN

WEEKEND
EXCHANGE

HERE — NOV. 19 - 22

IN MONTREAL — JAN. 21 - 24

APPLICATIONS AT SAC OFFICE

OCTOBER 13 - 19

SPECIAL NOTICE

To all Students Who Left Books For Sale at the

BOOK EXCHANGE

PAYMENTS are being made today, tomorrow, and Thursday between 11.30 a.m. and 5.30 p.m.

(Please have your counterfoil with you for identification purposes)

BLOOD DONORS
Are GOOD CITIZENS

CLASSIFIED ADS.

LISEZ-VOUS LE FRANCAIS?

Abonnez-vous aux Nouvelles Francaises de Toronto: Toutes les activites Francaises de la ville. Tarif special etudiant $1.50. Renseignements — Tel. LE. 1-5309.

LOST

One Karki Raincoat with plaid lining at the Sainte Reception on Thursday, October 8. If found please contact C. Snyder at WA. 3-0881.

II ADMIRAL ROAD

Large, comfortably furnished front room. Suit one or two men students — light housekeeping WA. 1-2374.

MALE STUDENT

To share home, comfortable room with Engineering student; in private home. Full board and laundry. LE. 4-6960.

ROOM & BOARD

Close to campus, academic environment, reasonable rates. Fraternity house. Call House Manager, WA. 3-0614 after 5 p.m.

FOR RENT

Room and board — student atmosphere. 202-Beverly St. EM. 3-3503.

MARRIED STUDENTS

Is your wife looking for employment? Attractive opportunities are available nearby.

Telephone EM. 3-1211
Local 22298

MARYLOU DAWES

Pianist

KENNETH PERKINS

Violinist

Unitarian Church

THURS., OCT. 15th
8.30 p.m.

Tickets $1.50 (inc. tax) —
For tickets phone HU. 3-1757

SANDY BELL. Blues' linebacker, gives it the old college try as he attempts (unsuccessfully) to intercept a Mustang aerial. Bell was the outstanding Varsity player on defence.

Baby Blues Lose 14-13 To Colts

By DAVE INGRAM

Overwhelming the visitors in every department, Baby Blues were edged 14-13 by University of Western Colts in Intermediate Exhibition football at Varsity Stadium Friday afternoon.

Western opened scoring early in the game on a fluke. Varsity, deep in their own end attempted a third down knick. A bad snap sailed over kicker Mike Wright's head. An attempt to kick it out of the end zone failed as the ball bounced off a charging Western lineman back into the end zone where Colt's Norm Clements fell on it for the TD. Nash completed the convert.

Gary Bent scored Westerns second major after fine running by Ed Horenkala. Nash converted again.

In the second half Varsity were a new team, completely outplaying Western. Several times Baby Blues fell short of scoring deep in Colt's territory. Varsity finally were successful when Wright punted the ball into the Western end zone and Gary Codling rouged Nash for the point.

Later in the third quarter Harry Hall threw to Bob for 36 yards and a touchdown.

Baby Blues got their first lucky break early in the fourth quarter. A bad snap in the Colts zone resulted in a five yard kick to the sidelines.

On the next play, Hall passed to House for the last score of the game. The convert was missed. Toronto threatened with seconds remaining in the game on a long run by Mike King and a pass to Codling, but fell short when Western intercepted on their one yard line.

Toronto have excellent potential and will be hard to defeat when next they play.

Mike Wright played an excellent game for Varsity both offensively and defensively as well as out-kicking his Western opponent by an average of eight yards per punt. Along the line, Bathes, German and Kristenbrun played well. Mike King was Varsity's leading ground gainer with 73 yards, while House gained a total of 107 yards in passes received.

B.C. Thunderbirds Western Champions Queen's Win Earns Second Place Tie

Last quarter rallies that came heartbreakingly near to victory were the order of the day in Intercollegiate football action across Canada last Saturday.

McGill Redmen gave up a 16 point lead before roaring back in the last quarter with two unconverted touchdowns as they were edged 16-12 by the stubborn Queen's Golden Gaels in Molson Stadium.

In Edmonton, University of Alberta Golden Bears fought back from a 21-0 deficit in the first half, to lose a 21-19 decision to University of British Columbia Thunderbirds. The victory by virtue of four point games, put Thunderbirds beyond reach in the Western Intercollegiate Football Union, assuring them of being the first Western Intercollegiate team to vie for the All-Canadian title at Varsity Stadium Nov. 14.

Sparked by quarterback Kent Plumley, Golden Gaels struck for a touchdown early in the second quarter. Mustering an effective ground and aerial attack, Plumley commandeered Gaels to the McGill 13 yard line before Terry Porter scampered around end for the major. Robin Ritchie completed the convert.

Taking advantage of a bad McGill pitchout, Dave Richards nailed Redmen's Willie Lambert for a two point safety touch to end scoring in the half.

Following a similar pattern, Gaels struck for another TD early in the second half. Plumley fired an eight yard pass to end Don Robb for the final Queen's scoring play of the game. Ritchie again converted.

Redmen came back with a vengeance. Grinding mercilessly along the ground, McGill brought a crowd of 4,000 to their feet as they threatened to tie the contest.

Veteran Joe Irvin plunged for the first McGill touchdown. Minutes later Redmen struck again. Lambert ran for the major but the convert attempt was blocked. Gaels rallied to stem the tide just long enough to hear a very welcome gun to end the game.

Coch Frank Gnuip's Thunderbirds, veterans of many seasons of American football in the Pacific Coast League, proved too much for their Prairie rivals, clinching the title in their first three league games.

U of A Golden Bears, however, fent down to defeat in dramatic fashion. Crunching through a snow covered field, the tough Albertans came within two converts to accomplish a major upset before a rabid home fandom.

Golden Bears scored a converted touchdown early in the first half. A B.C. rally held Alberta for a short time only.

The final quarter belonged to the home town boys exclusively. Smashing through for two quick majors in a row, Golden Bears missed their golden opportunity by failing to complete the converts.

British Columbia will play only one more game against their Prairie rivals, meeting the winless University of Saskatchewan Huskies. Because of travelling expenses Huskies and Golden Bears play twice as many games against one another than they do against their coast rivals. Thus all U.B.C. games are four pointers.

The Scoreboard

SENIOR
	P	W	L	T	F	A	P
Western	2	2	0	0	46-11	4
Toronto	2	1	1	0	45-17	2
Queen's	2	1	1	0	24-32	2
McGill	2	0	2	0	13-58	0
Weekend Results
Western	16	TORONTO	3
Queen's	16	McGill	12
Future Games
Sat., Oct. 17—Toronto at Queen's, McGill at Western.
WESTERN INTERCOLLEGIATE
	P	W	L	T	F	A	P
U.B.C.	3	3	0	0	105-38	12*
U of Alta	3	1	2	0	64-64	2
U of Sask.	2	0	2	0	13-80	0
(* All B.C. games are 4 points)

Poor Blues

Toronto: Halfback, Ruch, Wyles, Farr, Chisholm, Knowles, Polter, Cresswell, Myers, Dunn, McMurtry, Eburuche, Muchie, quarterback Sopinka, center Crawford, Eylon, guards Jewell, Bullock, Bill Decker, tackle Thoburn, Jackson, Wood, Bradlock, Kuj ends Mull, Jack, Loughed, Baird.
Western: Halfback Bong, Samuels, Galsani, Sloan, Stewart, Loftus, Wyndham, Wood Thompson, Polziani, Coacher, quarterbacks, Rydale, Coentino, centers Melina, Neal, guards Mundy, Edgar, Barclay, Parkinson, tackle Mitchell, Bradley, Scott, Humphreys, Couper, ends Murchy, Clark, Forstner, Referee Ben Murray, umpire Bob Porter, head line man Gord Stewart, field judge Jack Crowe.
First Quarter
6 Western, TD (Polziani)
7 Western, convert (Mitchell)
Second Quarter
13 Western, TD (Wyndham)
16 Western, FG (Mitchell)
Third Quarter
1 Toronto, FG (Polter)
Fourth Quarter
2 Toronto, FG (Jack).

TYPICAL tackling of the tenacious Western Mustangs as Varsity halfback Dave Cresswell is grabbed for a loss by Bill Mitchell of Western.

By Bill Mitchell VSP Hoshkin

The players tried...the coach tried...the cheerleaders tried..

BUT

Varsity

Lost

16-3

Varsity Staff Photo by Walker

MUSTANGS END VARSITY WIN STREAK

So Near And Yet So Far As Western Whip Blues

By DAVE GRINER
Varsity Sports Editor.

London, Ont., Oct. 11—Close counts only in horseshoes—as Varsity Blues found to their sorrow in London this afternoon when they were inches away from scoring twice and close twice more, only to be thwarted by a determined Western team and thus go down to their first defeat in three years by a 16-3 margin.

Heroes of the upset victory were the members of the Mustang wingline, which outcharged its Varsity counterpart for most of the first half, forcing Blues into errors that set up scoring plays for the Western squad, and then hung on grimly to stave off Varsity rallies in the second half.

The victory moved John Metras' Mustangs into first spot in the Intercollegiate race, ahead of Blues and Queen's Gaels. The crowd of nearly 10,000 saw the Varsity win streak snapped at twelve games.

Western's twin fullback threat of Lionel Conacher and Meco Poliziani pounded out 188 yards between them, and made yards seven times on third down and a bit situations. The entire team made only 148 yards rushing.

A short punt by Blues' Peter Potter set up the first Western touchdown, as Mustangs kept Varsity pinned in their own end for most of the first quarter. Potter tried to recover the kick himself, but somehow fumbled it, and the Mustangs took over on the Blues' 18. Four plays later, Poliziani hit the right side of the line to score. Bill Mitchell converted.

Western scored its second TD the hard way, as they ground out 105 yards in 16 plays, with Conacher and Poliziani doing most of the carrying. Mustang's quarterback Frank Cosentino twice gambled successfully on third down plays. Wydareny ran the end for the final 14 yards. The convert was blocked.

Mitchell recovered Jim Murcha's fumble on the Varsity 19 to set up his own field goal, which he kicked two plays later to close out the Western scoring.

From there on it was real knock-him-down-again-Clancy-he's-still-breathing football, as Blues marched to within snelling distance of paydirt four times only to be turned back by the fired-up Mustang defence, led by Mitchell and Ed Molarehyk.

Blues marched 85 yards to the Mustang 10, only to have Roger Stewart pick off a Nick Sopinka pass in the end zone to end a threat that dominated most of the second quarter.

Varsity opened the second half when they moved half the length of the field only to see fullback John McMurtry thrown back when he tried to score from the one yard line on third down.

Again the Mustang defence snuffed out another threat when Paul Burroughs was stopped inches short of a first down on the Western one after Varsity had come from their own 48.

And finally, late in the fourth quarter, John Sloan intercepted a Sopinka pass in the end zone to end the final gasp by the Blues.

In between all these heroics, Potter hoisted a 59 yard single, and Doug Jack nailed Cosentino in the end zone for a safety touch to give Varsity their points, and an aroused Varsity team did not let the Mustangs get out of their own end of the field once.

The Mustang's line was largely responsible for the win, as they throttled the outside running of the Blues, and allowed Cosentino to gamble successfully time and again on third down, while keeping the pressure on Varsity quarterback Sopinka every time he tried to pass.

Notes . . . Chisholm was Varsity's leading rusher with 57 yards in 10 tries . . . McMurtry had 30 in 6 . . . Conacher 109 in 23 . . . Western had 19 first downs, Varsity 16 . . . Sopinka completed 10 of 21 and had three intercepted, Cosentino 6 of 17 with two interceptions . . . total offense was, Varsity 284 . . . Western 328 . . . Varsity end Mike Muir was the only casualty when he suffered a bruised hip . . . McMurtry and Molarehyk were thrown out of the game for fighting a few plays before the final gun . . . the addition of Frank Loftus and Roy Wood to the Western defence helped the Mustangs considerably as both played well . . . Sandy Bell was the outstanding Varsity player with his one man tackling effort in the first half.

NICK SOPINKA is caught down after a short gain for Blues in the first quarter. He completed 10 of 21 passes for 132 yards.

Rugger Teams Lose

Both Varsity Rugger teams ran into difficulty on Saturday. Senior Blues, preparing for the first McGill match on Oct. 17, lost 21-3 to Toronto Scottish.

The visiting backs were too fast and skillful to be stopped by anything but determined tackling, and this season Blues seem to ration themselves to three tackles per match.

The forwards looked better than the backline, packing better than before in the set scrums, and winning their share of the lineouts. B. Nelems gave a demonstration of how to check harassing by the opposing forwards. The one Varsity try came from a 75 yard rush led by the forwards in which W. Chadwick scored.

Intermediates won their league points by default because their opponents, Nomads, could not field a full team. However, the latter reinforced by recruits from Senior Blues, defeated the home side 21-3.

FULLBACK PAUL BURROUGHS is stopped inches short of a first down at the Western one yard line in the 4th quarter Saturday.

VSP Hoshkin

BUY FLOWERS
for all occasions at the
PARK PLAZA FLORISTS
10 AVENUE ROAD
WA. 3-6361
10% DISCOUNT TO
STUDENTS AND STAFF

If Interested

In selling Portables and Standard Typewriters and Tape Recorders to University of Toronto students, phone
HU. 9-1104

PHYSICAL EDUCATION — MEN

TIME TABLE

FALL TERM—OCTOBER 14 TO DECEMBER 16

SPRING TERM—JANUARY 11 TO MARCH 26

	MON.	TUES.	WED.	THUR.	FRI.	SAT.
10	Pre-Dent Pharm B Chem F Arts	Arts	Arts	Arts	Arts	Special Classes & Rect. Swim
11		Pre-Med Arts	Pre-Dent Arts	Pre-Med Civil A Arts		Special Classes & Rect. Swim
12	Arch Civil A & B Mining B	Pre-Med Mech C Eng. Phys.	Forestry Arch Arts	Pharm A & B Pre-Med Civil B Mining B Mech C	Forestry Chem F Arts
1		Volunteer Instructors (Fencing Room)		Volunteer Instructors (Pool)
2	Chem E Arts	Pharm A Arts			Elec G Arts
3	Mech D Ind. Eng. D Arts	Elec G Arts	Chem E Elec H Arts	Arts Eng. Phys.	Mech D Ind. Eng. D Elec H Arts
	3:00 - 6:00 Special Classes		3:00 - 6:00 Special Classes

N.B.—Faculty of Music Degree Courses will take Physical Education with Arts students.

Coaching and instruction will be offered in the following activities: Boxing and Wrestling—5:00 p.m. daily starting Oct. 14. Gymnastics and Fencing—5:00 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays starting Oct. 15.

REGISTRATION FOR PHYSICAL EDUCATION

BEFORE OCT. 14 REGISTER FOR PHYSICAL EDUCATION CLASSES AT THE KEY OFFICE, BASEMENT FLOOR, HART HOUSE. BE SURE TO GET YOUR PHYS. ED. ATTENDANCE NUMBER WHEN YOU ENROL. TOTE BOXES MAY ALSO BE OBTAINED.

SWIMMING TEST

BEFORE OCT. 14 REPORT TO SWIMMING POOL, HART HOUSE, AND COMPLETE THE TEST. HOURS—10:00 A.M. TO 2:00 P.M. AND 4:00 P.M. TO 5:15 P.M.

SWIMMING CLASSES

REGISTRATION IN SWIMMING CLASSES IS LIMITED. MEN WISHING TO TAKE INSTRUCTIONAL CLASSES FOR CREDIT MUST REGISTER BETWEEN OCT. 14 AND 14th. REPORT AT ENTRANCE TO THE SWIMMING POOL WITH YOUR ADMIT-TO-LECTURE CARD AND TIME TABLE. HOURS—10:00 A.M. TO 2:00 P.M. AND 4:00 P.M. TO 5:15 P.M.

GYMNASIUM CLASSES

Report to the main gymnasium at hours selected from above time table.

VOLUNTEER INSTRUCTORS

Training classes are provided for men who wish to qualify as Volunteer Instructors in aquatics. REPORT TO MR. MCCATTY IN THE FENCING ROOM TUESDAY, OCT. 6 AT 1:00 P.M.

SPECIAL ACTIVITIES, i.e. Judo, Weight Training, Special Classes, and Time Table difficulties—see M. G. Griffiths, Athletic Wing, Hart House, between 1:00 and 2:00 p.m.

INTERCOLLEGIATE AND INTRAMURAL SPORTS—get list of activities at Key Office when you enrol.

TYPEWRITERS
$1.00 A WEEK BUYS . . .
... $1.50 A WEEK RENTS
Get a free typing course and a liberal trade-in allowance for your old typewriter when you buy a new modern machine from us.
Phone HO. 1-1843 Today

FOR LAUGHS!
CLAP HANDS
All New Satirical Revue

Sports * Trophies * Games
Before you Buy give WILSON'S a try
The HAROLD A. WILSON
CO. OF TORONTO LTD.
328 DUPONT STREET
WHOLESALE PRICES TO EVERYONE

UNIVERSITY BLAZERS
Custom Made
Especially Priced for Students
$27.50
Fine Flannel Worsted Trousers
$16.50
Business Hours: 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.
Monday through Saturday
Suits Made to Measure
Latest Styles and Design
PARNES Clothing Co.
706 QUEEN STREET WEST
EM. 6-2025
Sample at S.A.C. Office

Park Road Baptist Church

1 Block North and East of
Bloor - Yonge

Minister: Rev. Murray J. S.
Ford, M.A., B.D.

VICTOR E. GRAHAM, Organist

SERVICES AT
10:45 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.

A Cordial Invitation to all
Students to Attend Inspiring
Services

Nfcus Awards To U's Of A, S

Saskatoon (CUP) — Mount Allison University in Sackville, New Brunswick, has been hailed as the bloodiest university in Canada.

Outgoing president Mortimer Bistrisky told the awards dinner of the twenty-third annual congress of Nfcus Friday night that the tabulation of the results of the Red Cross blood drives at university campuses across Canada had shown that Mount A students were the most willing to bleed for the cause.

In winning the Corpucle Cup, given annually to the university with the highest turnout in the Red Cross blood drive, 75.2 percent of Mount A's students donated blood.

This gave them a healthy 13 point margin over their nearest rivals, the University of Saskatchewan who rolled up a 62 per cent turn out.

However Saskatchewan emerged victorious in the other competition for the best Nfcus committee in Canada, and was awarded the Georgian Cup.

The cup, donated by Sir George Williams College in Montreal is given annually by the national executive for the best committee.

PC MP Will Speak

A Toronto MP will be guest at the first meeting of the University of Toronto Conservative Club this Wednesday at 1 p.m. in Room 1, Trinity College.

Fred Stinson, who visited Red China last summer, will keynote a discussion on China's position as a world power.

This is the first of a series of meetings sponsored by the Conservative Club involving student discussion together with top guest speakers.

UKRAINIAN Catholic Students' Club "OBNOVA"

WILL HOLD A MEETING

DATE: TUESDAY, OCT. 13, 1959 — TIME: 8 P.M.

PLACE: WOMEN'S RESIDENCE — 79 ST. GEORGE

PROGRAM: ACQUAINTANCE WITH "OBNOVA"

!!REFRESHMENTS!! COME ALONG AND BRING FRIENDS!

TODAY'S FORMAL

Elegant iced blue satin brocade with drop waist and diagonal band studded with rhinestones around bodice, and over shoulder. $47.00

HELMAR — WA. 1-5978
46 ST. GEORGE STREET

HART HOUSE THEATRE

Student Subscriptions

$3.00 for the Four Productions

Hart House Theatre offers a Student Subscription at $3.00 for the four All-University productions directed by Robert Gill. The student rate will be $1.00 for a single performance. Subscribers are assured of the same seats and performance evenings for the entire season. Two subscriptions only on each A.T.L. card.

— 1959 - 60 Season —

THE LITTLE FOXES by Lillian Hellman

Saturday, October 24th to Saturday, October 31st

THE SIMPLETON OF THE UNEXPECTED ISLES by

George Bernard Shaw

Saturday, November 28th to Saturday, December 5th

THE GLASS MENAGERIE by Tennessee Williams

Saturday, January 23rd to Saturday, January 30th

THE IMPORTANCE OF BEING ERNEST by Oscar Wilde

Saturday, February 27th to Saturday, March 5th

Last season over 40% of the total seats were sold by subscription before opening.

● AVOID DISAPPOINTMENT AND BOOK EARLY ●

Box Office Now open 10:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. — WA. 3-5244

University College

THE ALEXANDER LECTURES

By Professor Geoffrey Bullough, King's College, U. of London

"MIRROR OF MINDS"

(Changing Psychological Assumptions as Reflected in English Poetry)

Monday, Oct. 19, to Friday, Oct. 23, Inclusive

1. Conflict in the Microcosm
2. Shakespeare on the Mind
3. Reason and Unreason
4. Intimations of Immortality
5. The Individual and the Racial Image

HART HOUSE THEATRE, at 4:30 p.m.

INAUGURAL MEETING

U of T AUTOMOBILE CLUB

TODAY at 4:15 — Room 52L, U.C.

25 Min. Colour Movie of a great European race will be shown

● Parties (the biggest bashes in U. of T. history)

● Rallies and Races ● Guest Speakers ● Movies

● Organizational help needed for upcoming sports car race

● Car Not Needed for Membership

Girls are more than welcome: There will be plenty of activity for you too!

For Information: Phone BUD MARTIN — WA. 3-7896

I stand before you as a woman of principles, not just as a Negro but as a woman of principles . . .

Council Slams Discrimination

By SUSIE BRESLIN
Co-Managing Editor

In a tense, crowded and vocal meeting last night, the Students' Administrative Council "deplored" discrimination in fraternities and Sororities, and prepared the way for practical action against discriminating student organizations.

Meanwhile, Kappa Kappa Gamma's front lawn was branded with a burning cross Wednesday morning.

The cross, accompanied by a sign reading "Klu Klux Klan", was set on fire at about 2 a.m. by unidentified students. KKA members had help from another men's fraternity.

KKA's president is Mary Joe Bakker, who Barbara Arrington identified as the girl who advised her not to continue fraternity rushing.

Council wrangled for over an hour over wording of its motions, sweated through loud booing and hissing of its actions from spectators, voted down an attempt to postpone consideration of the question, and then registered a unanimous vote of approval of the following motion:

"Resolved, that the SAC deplores the action of any fraternities and sororities composed of undergraduate students of this university which practice discrimination solely on the grounds of race, color or belief."

The SAC last appointed a special committee of three to investigate university relations of all student organizations with the university, tabled a motion to deny the privilege of special advertising rates in SAC publications to discriminating organizations, ruled a motion to report SAC action to the university Caput out of order, and scheduled a SAC meeting for tonight.

The meeting, covered by about 20 reporters and photographers from newspapers, radio, television and wire services, was jammed with 50 student spectators. Tonight's meeting will begin at 8.30 p.m. in the Trinity College dining room.

see page 3

PETER DEMBSKI pleads for "courage" from fellow SAC members as a stormy council debated a motion to censure discrimination in fraternities last night. — VSP Carson

Russian Student Astonished At Smoking Coeds, Football

A Russian university student told students in Convocation Hall yesterday two things stand out at University of Toronto—girls who smoke and a ball game played with the hands instead of feet.

Speaking at a sparsely attended meeting, Igor Biriukov, vice-president of the Soviet Student Federation, said in his country it is a "rarity to see a female university student smoking a cigarette."

Mr. Biriukov arrived in Toronto Monday night as guest of U of T Students-Administrative Council, after attending a National Federation of Canadian University Students convention in Saskatoon last week.

The Soviet leader said Russia is extremely anxious to launch a full-scale exchange between students of Canada and Russia.

"We believe that such a student trade will be instrumental in melting some of the ice in the cold war," he said.

"Distances between the two countries," he continued, "are easily overcome today, but it is the attitudes of peoples that have to be bridged."

Mr. Biriukov pointed out, along with Murray Ross, U of T vice-president, the academic pace of the average student in Canadian universities is far below that of the USSR.

"But," he added, "don't let me mislead you into thinking the typical Russian student is 'a square.' His time is well filled with a broad program of extra curricular affairs."

The student boss said today most people in the west are misled into thinking Russia is gearing all its resources of higher learning toward grinding out scientists and engineers.

"At the present moment enrollment of Soviet students in humanities is about 45% of the total taking university courses," he said.

"Besides this our government is vitally concerned with educating engineers in some of the arts to give them a basic concept of our society," he said.

In the midst of a hot U of T fraternity issue, Mr. Biriukov, was asked last night during if he knew what a fraternity was.

He didn't, he said.

When CBC Tabloid's Joyce Davidson filled him in on the subject, he said: "Ah yes, we do have similar organizations on our campuses, but they are all run by the university."

"Everyone is welcome in them," he added.

ing a Toronto television interview if he knew what a fraternity was.

Reaction among heads of the University of Toronto and its departments last night to The Varsity's account of an instance of racial discrimination in Toronto fraternities was mixed and varied from strong to cautious.

Most expressive was Rev. D. R. G. Owen, Provost of Trinity College. Mr. Owen, a fraternity man himself, said, "It is immoral for fraternities to defend discrimination on moral grounds in that they practise discrimination."

"My fraternity does not practise discrimination in principle, but it is human practise to band together in like-minded groups," he said. "Discrimination within fraternities is not a question of race but of social status. This way, the discrimination is not deliberate."

Murray Ross, vice-president of the U of T had not read the controversial Varsity edition. "I believe there should be no discrimination within the University," he said.

"However, Fraternities are outside and not formally recognized by the University. We have no more reason to question their discrimination than we have to question that of the Toronto Granite Club," he said.

Principal of University College Moffat Woodside said, "I know nothing and I try not to form opinions from what I read in the newspapers. Fraternities are not officially recognized by the University and I will wait until this question comes up officially before I comment."

Victoria College's principal Northrop Frye had been talked to by The Toronto Telegram.

"They did not seem clear on distinction between fraternities and the University," he said.

Frats Move To Form Council

A move to organize an inter-fraternity council has sprung to life within the ranks of the University of Toronto's fraternities.

Two second-year students at University College, Boris Freesman and Walter Knox, last night confirmed reports that they had taken the first steps towards the formation of such an organization.

Freesman said he had sent a letter to each of the 37 fraternities at the U of T, requesting each to send a delegate to an information meeting to be held later this month.

The letter, sent during the first week in October, contained a resolution passed by Beta Sigma Rho, the fraternity to which both Freesman and Knox belong.

The resolution called upon the fraternities to "organize among themselves to co-operate in fulfilling the aims of fraternalism".

The letter requested each fraternity to send a mandate delegate to a special closed meeting to be held at Hart House later this month.

The delegate would have the power to make a fairly firm commitment as to whether or not his fraternity would be interested in joining the IFC.

Freesman stressed, however, "that this is merely an informational meeting, at which the general principles of an IFC could be discussed".

"An organizational meeting would be held at a later date, when each fraternity has had time to consider the proposals for the IFC," he added.

Aims of the IFC have not as yet been decided, other than the general principle outlined in the letter.

"That's the sort of thing we would hash out at an organizational meeting," Freesman said.

However, he did indicate that he personally would press for the establishment of a definite IFC stand against discrimination of any kind within the U of T's fraternities.

Jewish Fraternity To Welcome All Creeds

A traditionally all-Jewish medical fraternity last night unanimously reaffirmed a decision to open its doors to all colors and creeds.

Phi Delta Epsilon's new policy was first introduced by this year's plegmaster, Ted Tulchinsky (III Meds) who came to office on an open-door platform.

Art Silver (II per-Meds), a Phi Delta member said last night that five or six non-Jews and an Indian are among this year's rushees.

Rushees have been attending parties and other events at the rate of one a week since term began. Silver said last night's vote was the third in affirmation of the policy since last May and indicated there would be no opposition when pledging came in November.

Tulchinsky campaigned for office pledged to "break down the walls of the self-imposed ghetto."

"We've come to university to broaden ourselves, not to continue in the inertia of the past," he said.

TODAY'S FORMAL

Coco Chiffon with stunning harem skirt and draped bodice with Grecian flare and a delicate chiffon hem length streamer worn over one shoulder.

HELMAR*WA. 1-5978*46 ST. GEORGE STREET*Don't Miss*LAS VEGAS NIGHT*Drill Hall*FRIDAY, OCTOBER 16th*8.30 p.m.

- All Kinds of Gambling Games and Wheels
- Genuine Riverboat Barkers and Molls
- Meet Diamond John in Person
- Food and Drink Cheap

ALL PROCEEDS FOR UNITED APPEAL*here and now*TODAY

9 a.m. — Names of those progressing into the finals of UTDU debate team trials will be posted in the SAC office.

12 p.m. and 1.00 p.m. — A record, "I Can Hear It Now" by Winston Churchill, narrated by Edward Murrow will be played in Hart House Record Room.

1 p.m. — Bible Study in Victoria College, Room 21.

1.10 p.m. — All are invited to a Quaker Study group, Room 42F, UC.

4.10 p.m. — First meeting of an S.C.M. study group on Tillich's "Dynamics of Faith", led by Rev. Alan McLachlin. Everyone welcome. Room 14, Vic. College.

4.10 p.m. — "Unfolding of the Bible", led by Miss Nancy Holman, an SCM study group to survey the Old and New Testaments, will hold its first meeting, SCM Coach House, 110 St. George.

5 p.m. — SCM sponsored freshmen engineers group led by Prof. J. H. Ham, holds its first meeting in the Music Room, Hart House. All are welcome.

8 p.m. — Hart House Camera Club will hold its 38th annual open meeting. Speaker is Mr. Don Lizar, editor of "Focus" and past pres. of YMCA Camera Club.

8 p.m. — Lutheran Students' Association meeting. Mr. Werner

Winter will speak on "The Devil." Freshmen invited.

8 p.m. — Slavic Circle meeting. Movie of Russian, folk dances and songs. Refreshments, and a get-acquainted night. U.C. Women's Union, 79 St. George St.

FRIDAY

1.10 p.m. — "Outside the Camp," led by Rev. W. Bothwell, a preparatory study group for the Ecumenical Conference at Christmas will begin. All welcome to attend, at SCM Coach House, 110 St. George.

3.10 p.m. — A preparatory study group, led by Miss Nancy Norman, for the Ecumenical Conference at Christmas will hold its first meeting at Canterbury Centre, 99 St. George St.

7.30 p.m. — The Lutheran Students' Club will have an initiation dance at 1021 College St. Frosh especially are invited.

8 p.m. — International Students' Organization dance, with entertainment and refreshments. Everyone welcome. "Drag or stag." U.C. Howard Ferguson Hall, 73 St. George St.

8.30 p.m. — University College Players' Guild, opening of lecture series featuring Bianca Rogge, interpretive dancing. Women's Union Theatre Admission free.

Homecoming Planned

Homecoming parade this year will be a spectacle with a purpose, Bill Russell, Blue and White Society Float Parade Chairman said last night.

The parade publicizes the National University Fund and "will show Torontonians and Canadians everywhere the creative activity and good fun to be had at university", Russell said.

Parade theme is "University Expansion: The 7 of Things to Come".

Floats from all faculties and Western and Varsity bands will participate. "We hope to have a Royal Float for Miss Varsity and her retinue," Russell said.

The parade, starting at 10 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 31, will follow Bloor to Yonge Street, along Yonge to College, down College to Paddle Creek Lane, along Paddle Creek Lane to the Main Library and around Hart House Loop in front of the reviewing stand on the UC steps.

Invitations have been sent to President Claude Bissell, Walter McLean, SAC President, Barb Leaman, SAC Vice-President, and two co-chairmen of the National University Fund, to judge the event, Russell said.

++ BLEED FREELY ++

You can help yourself
through university

URTP*ROTP

THREE OF THESE PLANS
WILL GIVE YOU
GENEROUS FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE

AIR FORCE
U.R.T.P.

(UNIVERSITY RESERVE TRAINING PLAN)

Flight Cadets (male and female) are enrolled in the Reserve Force—receive 16 days pay during the University Term—and have a potential of 22 weeks additional paid employment during summer vacation months.

Openings now for
TECHNICAL AND NON-TECHNICAL
OFFICERS.

*This plan applies to the three Armed Services

Get full details at once so that you can take advantage of this opportunity now, while you are still attending University. For full information on requirements, pay and other benefits,

SEE YOUR UNIVERSITY SUPPORT OFFICER (RCAF)
LOCATED ON YOUR CAMPUS

TRI-SERVICE
R.O.T.P.***

(REGULAR OFFICER TRAINING PLAN)

Flight Cadets (male) are enrolled in the Regular Force—during the University year are subsidized for tuition with a grant for books and instruments—and receive pay and allowances throughout the whole year.

Openings now for
AIRCRAFT
AND TECHNICAL
OFFICERS.

ROYAL CANADIAN AIR FORCE

REQUIRED SUBJECT FOR '59 - '60

YOUNG MEN'S SLACKS

Enrolment: open to style-wise young men.

Three Classes: wool hopsack, bulk flannel, cotton cord.

Topic For Discussion: Ivy style gone continental.

Details: new Italian welt pockets, definitely continental . . . flap button down back pockets, real Ivy . . . foulard harmonizing trim, waistband, pockets . . . pleatless, for trim, slim, fit.

Hopsack, pair 16.95
Bulk wool flannel, pair 14.95
Corduroy, pair 10.95

PHONE AND MAIL ORDERS
FILLED — UN. 1-8111

Simpson's — The Store For Young Men — Second Floor

Simpson's

Martin Bockner presents

EWAN MacCOLL and PEGGY SEEGER
in a program of English, Scottish and
American FOLK SONGS at EATON
AUDITORIUM, Saturday, November 7th,
8:30 p.m. Tickets: $3, $2.25, $1.50 — A & A
Bookstore, Towne Records, Eaton Auditorium Box Office or Phone MELrose 3-2411.

HART HOUSE THEATRE'S FIFTY-FIRST ALL-UNIVERSITY PRODUCTION

Lillian Hellman's

THE
LITTLE FOXESDirected by
Robert Gill

Same Special
Student Rate — $1.00

SAT., OCT. 24th, to SAT., OCT. 31st, at 8.30

STUDENT SUBSCRIPTIONS STILL AVAILABLE—$3.00 FOR FOUR PRODUCTIONS

Canadian Federation

The Theosophical Society
commencing discussion of Yoge
Fri., Oct. 16, 8.15-9.30 p.m.
404 SPADINA RD. — APT. 308
HU. 9-1589

8 p.m.
BRIDGE, DANCING
and REFRESHMENTS
at the
GRADUATE STUDENTS' UNION

Subscribe Now
at Half Price*

You can read this world-famous daily newspaper for the next six months for $5, just half the regular subscription rate.

Get top news coverage. Enjoy special features. Clip for reference work.

Send your order today. Enclose check or money order. Use coupon below.

The Christian Science Monitor P-24
One Norway St., Boston 15, Mass.

Send your newspaper for the time checked.

☐ 6 months $5 ☐ 1 year $10
☐ College Student ☐ Faculty Member

Name _____
Address _____
City _____ Zone _____ State _____

*This special offer available ONLY to college students, faculty members, and college libraries.

CARABIN APPLICATIONS — SAC OFFICE NOW!

comment

a moral issue

With the first round of the SAC's attempts to deal with fraternity discrimination just over, we don't quite know whether it was a triumph of parliamentary democracy or of legalistic prowess. We rather think the latter.

In a long and agonizingly ensnared session with the press and guests looking on, the council grappled with the problem of its own jurisdiction and tried to frame its own understanding of what should have been done into the form of concrete motions.

The result was exasperating. The problem was not simply one of jurisdiction. The main trouble was that the council was trying to deal with a moral issue as if it were simply a legal issue.

When simple legality is at stake, motions are not hard to frame. The motion then simply expresses some kind of practical legal action.

But when as in the present case the SAC is required simply to take a stand on a fundamental moral issue, it seems not to be able to come to grips with it.

The result so far is an inconclusive motion expressing little more than a general decency on the part of the council.

What the council has not yet been able to decide is how to bring this decency to bear on the issue facing it. Until they do so, general statements of goodness can be nothing but weak evasions, such as we hear again and again when the question of racial discrimination comes up.

We hope that at its meeting tonight the SAC accepts the responsibility of taking a clear moral stand, and of stating its own position without wondering whether it has the legal jurisdiction to do so.

As spokesman for the entire student population of this campus the SAC has a grave responsibility. It is required to be able to enunciate so that all may hear, the principles of real brotherhood which presumably form part of its tradition.

Let us say once again that we do not ask of the SAC a motion limiting either the freedom or the privacy of fraternities in any way. We ask only an expression of specific principles on this specific issue that can stand as an example to specifically named fraternities and sororities.

Some moral pressure is all that we ask, because this is a moral issue. We hope that the SAC will have the strength to apply it.

From Helen O'Rourke

Dear Sir:

Your lead article of October the thirteenth, on the whole, was fair. However, I would like to clarify and emphasize one point. Panhellenic sent a representative in the name of all women's fraternities to dissuade Bobbi Arrington from going through the rush period without the consent of one fraternity, at least, that of Delta Gamma.

Yours truly,
Helen O'Rourke

Dear Sir:

I feel the time has come for me to clarify my position.

I wish to emphasize that the Toronto chapter of Delta Gamma has had no opportunity to demonstrate whether or not a prospective member would be rejected on the basis of color or race. I was glad when I learned that Bobbi Arrington planned on going through rushing; I wish that she had gone through with it. Naturally, I could not be sure that she would have chosen my fraternity, since each candidate makes her own choice; neither could I be sure that my fraternity would have selected her, since it also has the right of choice.

I believe that the fraternity is a good thing in itself, but I have also suspected that, as in every other segment of North American society, unjust discrimination may still operate.

Questions

Dear Sir,

The article "For one girl; it happens here" and editorial "We suggest" which appeared in Tuesday's paper raise two far-reaching questions. First, how can a liberal democratic society (or state) contain within it an undemocratic institution? Some have suggested that the state, for the sake of self-preservation should suppress it. The true liberal democrat would advocate instead (a) deny it state assistance or recognition; and (b) seek to acquaint both those in and out of such an institution with its dubious value. It is not strange that it often wishes to exist only in seclusion and is afraid of public scrutiny.

The second question is "In an international organization, what measure of autonomy can be given to individual national groups?" At the moment, this very question faces certain Canadian labor unions affiliated with their American counterparts. (Should Canadian unions be required to comply with an American law concerning Communist participation in unions?) It appears that some of the fraternities accepted the inclusion of discrimination clauses in their constitutions without protest for fear of losing certain material benefits. They have thus demonstrated surprisingly weak moral fibre. The labor unions felt differently and refused to comply.

One would hope that students in this cosmopolitan university would seek to extend their friendship amongst the student body instead of narrowing it to a small fraternity. The dominant trend in this post-war period is towards wider and wider international organizations. One's occupation after college might take him far afield. What a difference it would make if he could then renew abroad friendships made during his school days!

I think it is about time that the fraternities do some serious reflection. Of late they have been coming under very unfavourable comment. Their discipline was a cause of concern last year. Complaints from neighbours have been frequent. And now, discrimination. Perhaps the handwriting is on the wall.

P. Husbands (SGS)

crimination may still operate. I am in complete disagreement with the practice of excluding anyone from any section of our society solely on grounds of color.

Consequently, I looked upon this instance from the beginning as a test of my fraternity, and had it become apparent that Bobbi were rejected on a race or color bar, I was determined to make that an issue for the coming year at both the local and national fraternity levels.

I do not intend to resign

Logical Outcome

Dear Sir,

I left Pi Lambda Phi fraternity at the beginning of my second year on campus, after spending about half the previous year undergoing the silly business of pledging, and the other half as a relatively active member. I want it to be made clear that my leaving had nothing to do with racial discrimination as such. In fact, at the time there was one non-Jewish member of this frat, and there were no colored people for the very reason none had chosen to apply for membership. Whether a Negro could be accepted in the Toronto chapter of Pi Lam is a controversial point, and I am fairly sure most of the Frat members would disagree vehemently with my opinion on the subject.

What I did take extreme objection to was the pronounced isolationist tendencies of so many of the members. To call their outlook and interests merely narrow would be giving them much the benefit of the doubt. They were totally unconcerned with almost any activity that went beyond their own immediate interests—which were, by the way, drinking, dancing, partying, and generally wasting time which I personally believe as a university student should be utilized in a rather more intelligent way.

Furthermore, I think it's only fair the very phrase "fraternity" is a prostitution of the true meaning of the word, which, of course, brotherhood. The closest thing I ever found approaching brotherly love was the warm affection with which I was paddled on Initiation Day.

I don't want anyone thinking this blanket condemnation applied without exception within the fraternity. Several of my closets friends are still members of Pi Lambda Phi, and I certainly could not apply most of my remarks to them. But on the whole, I think what I have been saying is valid. Most of my contemporaries were decent enough people, but they were entirely insensitive to, and oblivious of, the world around them. One might even say that they had erected around themselves a ghetto, through which nothing that I consider provocative, stimulating, interesting because I still believe that if discrimination is a fact in my fraternity, then it harms the fraternity which I otherwise respect, and if I am going to do any good in this matter, which affects all society and not only fraternities, I can only do it as an active member of the fraternity.

A good citizen, acknowledging serious defects within his society, does not abandon the Society, but works from within to correct what may be wrong.

Helen O'Rourke,
President of Delta Gamma,
Toronto

or important was allowed to pass.

The ultimate reason that I quit my fraternity a couple of years ago was I finally rejected the "head-in-the-sand" attitude toward society that seemed to me to be held by most of the other members. I decided quite simply that anyone fortunate enough to be on a university campus has a special responsibility to concern himself with affairs that often seemed quite distant from him.

I have attempted to follow this decision since that time, and I feel, quite frankly, our world would be a much more decent and civilized if more of our undergraduates spent just a little more of their time thinking about problems which were perhaps not entirely personal and not entirely selfish.

I would like to add one more word, in relation to the present ugly situation of racial discrimination just uncovered on the Toronto campus. It strikes me this type of situation is a pretty logical outcome of the type of thinking I have attributed to most fraternity boys (and girls). When the main interest of a person is selfish and personal, when one's outlook is narrow and circumscribed, when one is concerned mainly with girls, parties and drink, one doesn't appreciate any subject as important as racial discrimination destroying one's serenity and obnoxiousness. Thus one attempts to ignore such embarrassing problems as admitting colored people into one's fraternity. And if, God forbid, the situation should somehow arise, I suppose one mumbles a few apologetic words about not wanting to make unnecessary trouble for anybody and if we just ignore it the whole dirty mess will blow away.

But this time it's out in the open and there's no turning back. What I am interested in now is seeing just how many men and women members of fraternities on our campus have the courage and integrity to resign from their organizations in protest of their overt and tacit racial discrimination practices. I think if only one person on the campus takes this action, progress will have been made.

Sincerely yours,
Jerry Caplan (IV UC)

Neither Jew Nor Greek

Dear Sir,

Congratulations to you for your firm stand against discrimination in the U of T fraternities; it is the most courageous thing The Varsity has done since I have been in this university.

It is ironic how smug we can be in denouncing discrimination in the southern U.S.A. and in South Africa while it exists on our own doorstep. This sort of racial snobbery is by no means confined to fraternities, but can be found quite brazenly in the big social clubs of this city. There is a theory on discrimination, and undoubtedly the fraternities will tote it out in this incident, that discrimination is not permissible in public gatherings, etc., but that it is perfectly permissible in one's private life,

For one who is not a Christian this may be perfectly valid, but for Christians, and surely they make up the great majority of fraternity members, this is absolute nonsense. It amounts to saying that one can turn one's Christianity on and off at will; that in public life St. Paul's statement that "There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither slave nor free . . . for you are all one in Christ Jesus" is valid, but that in one's private life the whole business may be disregarded. Thanks to The Varsity for its expose of followers of a religion in this university who could not even allow the founder of this religion to become a member of their private social club because of his ethnic background.

Doug Chambers (III Trin)

THE VARSITY

FOUNDED 1880

Published by
The Students' Administrative Council
of the University of Toronto
Toronto 5, Canada

Member Canadian University Press

Editorial and News Office
Basement, SAC Building — WA. 3-8742, WA. 3-8113

Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221

The opinions expressed in this paper are those of the editor.

Editor-in-Chief	Sam Aizenstat
Managing Editors	Harvey Shepherd, Susie Breslin
News Editor	Ed Roberts
Features Editor	David Lewis Stein
Sports Editor	Dave Griner
AM&D Editor	Elmo Ciprietti
Photography Editor	Andy Stabins
CUP Editor	Alan Walker
Publicity Editor	Kay McCook
Associate News Editors	Terry Bourke, Jayne Nesbitt
Executive Editor	Mark Nichols

TODAY'S ISSUE: Art Silver, Lee Richardson, Arlene Annanson, Barry Zimmerman, Warren, Pete Dembski and his SAC Blues, Bob Carson took pictures, lots of discrimination, and cea (by especial request).

"Suffer yourselves to be blamed, imprisoned, condemned; suffer yourselves to be hanged; but publish your opinions; it is not a right, it is a duty."

There is a great deal of misunderstanding about the true nature of race relations.

Seldom has the problem been more clearly or more fully defined than it was last night when Barbara Arrington said at the SAC meeting, "I stand before you as a woman of principles."

beyond the power of any legalistic definitions she has what the problem is. She has told us that she is a human one. She has told us that right and wrong and any questions of race and color and apply in the same way to human beings.

Barbara Arrington is a woman of principles and no one could doubt her speak could possibly doubt the strength of her principles.

The justice that is due to her is the justice due only to a woman of principles.

I think that you all have heard who I am from the unexpected and that you see what I am. What I'm really sorry about is that so few of you know me personally. I really am sorry about that.

And before you as a woman of principles, not just as a Negro woman of principles. And if you knew me you would understand that is the reason why I have done this, not because I am a member. I am truly sorry if all of this publicity has been a lot for you and has made things difficult and is not related to this problem, but I'm glad that I did it, and will do more to shake some of the dust off your heads and will produce some more.

Reason for tabling the motion tonight seems to have been for information on the part of the Council as to what action they were taking. After that, the motion remains to the effect that we will not recognize any fraternity or sorority which will not be reasonable scrutiny of its discriminatory practices. I would like you that I think the motion tabled for information purposes effect another "tableable" question — that is, whether or not organizations will submit to scrutiny and what are the discriminatory practices.

I suggest that you find out during this adjournment the answers to questions as well as the answer to "what can be done." If you look at the papers you will note that I have had a first hand look at discriminatory practices. I was told publicly at a Panhellenic meeting that there are no discriminatory clauses in their constitutions. That fact alone might save you some delay and the problem is that the pseudo-representative of the Panhellenic told me that it is a question of policy, an unwritten tradition legislated by the National Organization against the will of the members.

Now, you, really beg you — if you can empathize with me now — to try to please rule against their recognition even as victimized through the mud by a national organization which does not have the principles and morals of the Students' Administrative Council. I have all heard of this sort of thing around campus, but it has never been through before. No one has ever done anything about it. Your chance. Don't let something you oppose in principle go by, or else you will create your own ghettos of Negroes, Jews, etc. The time is here — so is your opportunity — do something.

Do you want to buy a book?

Copy and Counters

The Bookstore is probably the busiest spot on the campus week or so, the aftermath of registration is visible — with students complaining about the long lines and wait in queues.

Students realize that the campus bookstore is the largest in Canada. Over 150,000 titles are carried. The bookstore is managed by Harold Bohne, and Miss Margaret MacMurray and a regular staff.

At least twenty part-time students work the six thousand customers a day who stand in line for books. Make-shift supermarket techniques, exit cards and roped-off areas, will disappear in a few weeks. Textbooks will be displaced by an "esoteric" magazine rack will invite browsing. A suggestion box will disappear.

The bookstore is only one part of the activity of the University Press. The Press, in turn, is a single department in the University Community. Noise in the Bookstore, for instance, seldom penetrates the second and third floors where the Press's administrative offices are located.

The Press was founded in 1904 as a private venture and increased along with university enrollment. Necessary to build a temporary modern structure the Arts Administration, immediately beside the Press, was the site of the second Bookstore.

The new Press Building was completed. The Press moved over the main floor and the basement; the editorial offices of the Press moved onto the third floor. The sales area for books was increased, but overcrowding is still in evidence.

The University of Toronto Press occupies two buildings. The Press is out of the way, on King Street, the College Street entrance to the main building.

Printing and job printing is done in this three-story building. The Superintendent is Roy Gurney who, this year, is governor of the International Association of Printing House Craftsmen. Roughly one hundred union employees work under him.

The Press, which is not permitted to solicit job printing, is one of Toronto's largest printers. It is also one of the four presses in the world which can set four-line mathematical formulae automatically. Besides numerous technical publications, the Press prints "The Tamarack Review" and last year's "Jargon." It also employs a full-time typographer.

The editorial and administrative offices of the University of Toronto Press are above the Bookstore. On the third floor, eighteen full and part time honours graduates are employed, under the supervision of the Editor, Miss Frances Halpenny, to edit manuscripts of press publications. Miss Halpenny, in her spare time, also manages the Coach House Theatre.

"The Canadian Journal of History" and "The University of Toronto Quarterly" are both edited here. Carpenter's "Eskimo" is currently being reprinted and at least three student editors are working between lectures on "The Dictionary of Canadian Biography."

This last named item is a million dollar project under the general editorship of Dr. George Brown of the History Department.

The second floor of the Press Building houses the administrative staff, the accounting and promotion departments. Student credit accounts for the Bookstore are opened here. The two front offices are those of the Director and Assistant Director of the Press.

Son of the Chancellor of the University, Marsh Jeanneret has doubled the size of the Press within the last six years, and with the Assistant Director, Miss Eleanor Harman, both are responsible to the Senate for the Publications Fund which finances scholarly publications.

Since the University of Toronto Press printed and published its first book in 1911 (a handbook of Latin), it has gained a great deal of prestige. It currently employs 180 people and edited about 30 publications last year. One of the reasons for this rapid expansion in the face of rising printing costs is the way Mr. Jeanneret views the purpose of the University Press. It must reconcile that "delicate balance" that a university administration must maintain between teaching functions and research activities.

just loved 'em

Unsophisticated Oranges

Perhaps there is no art-form quite so sophisticated as opera, with its reliance upon make-believe, the characteristic Aristotelian called mimesis. Sophistication leads in course to subtlety. Consequently, when we come to consider an opera that is neither sophisticated nor subtle, we wonder naturally how successful it can hope to be.

Prokofiev took the bull by the horns, so to speak, and in 1921 produced his first opera, The Love for Three Oranges. As we might expect, it wasn't at first successful; it ran for two whole performances and then was shelved until the New York City Centre Opera revived it after the last war. Therefore, it speaks well both for the real, inherent worth of the opera and for the courage of the Canadian Opera Company, that this group in its eleventh annual season has mounted Prokofiev's opera and has achieved a considerable measure of success.

Tuesday night's performance at the Royal Alexandra Theatre was the first of five in the current two-week run. There are of course numerous rough spots and inconsistencies that will be resolved as the Festival reaches its close. But the immense enjoyment registered by the less-than-capacity audience is proof undeniable that, as would have been denied in 1921, The Love for Three Oranges, is good entertainment.

In opera there are no peripheral details. We must take all aspects of the production into account. We may therefore lay stress on the admirable results achieved by Murray Lauffer, the set designer, Marie Day's costumes, Joyce Hill's choreography, and, not least by any means, the orchestral arrangement by Ernesto Barbi, who spent four months at the task. Mavor Moore's direction left us at moments confused, because of the profusion of characters on the stage at most times.

Vocally the performance was uneven. A chorus of five distinct sections poses a material problem, and this was satisfied for the most part. But we could only hear half of what the chorus had to say; they are an important element, and for the smooth disclosure of the plot they must be understood. Similarly, some of the vocal soloists were not intelligible throughout; we could mention on this head Mary McMurray as Clarissa and Barbara Strathdee as the princess Ninetta. Don Garrard, playing the essentially straight-man part of the King (see cut), realized the dependence which the plot lays upon him, and was most careful to be heard clearly.

We responded most eagerly to Alan Crofoot's portrayal of Truffaldino. The right amount of buffoonery, of mock-heroism, of arrant cowardice made his the most acceptably acted role. Preparing for a long, perilous journey, for example, he armed himself with helmet and sword; when the journey was over, he was content to creep back home rather than face the danger confronting him. But, true to character, he came through admirably under compulsion. Crofoot's acting, in short, was expertly calculated to help him tell his part of the story.

And what a story! A thumb-sucking prince, far enough past puberty to fall in love violently, and he falls in love with three oranges he has never seen.

A chorus that parodies five distinct sections of the opera public: the Tragedy-lovers, Comedy-lovers, Romance-lovers, Empty-heads, and Absurdities. But we weren't embarrassed at this betrayal of our tastes.

In sum, it is a plot that exploits each and every farcical situation in its complete ridicule of Grand Opera. And here we can come back to the point we started with; however, much this opera may appear to betray opera's cause, nonetheless as the Canadian Opera Company is handling it, we consider it one of the most satisfying operas we have seen.

A word about the music. Ernesto Barbi reduced the score considerably to meet the available forces; it was fully adequate, nonetheless. Susskind handled it with intimate understanding, although at moments we felt the tempo drag. The singing parts are not difficult, but we could tell that the vocalists were at ease with a conductor they could follow out of the corner of their eye.

We have been offered, then, a performance that, although pleasing, is not quite up to the highest standard this company can achieve. But first performances tend to leave something to be desired. Consequently we are not dismayed; the production will grow in polish, and those who visit the Royal Alexandra for a performance of this opera will be far from disappointed.

Ted Barrow

cbcelebrity

Program Building

Probably the most notable element in last night's CBC Celebrity Series Concert in Hart House, given by the famed Brazilian pianist Guimaraes Novaes was, in spite of the pianist's transcendent lyricism, the remarkably perceptive program building. This concert program can be seen from any viewpoint whatever and still it makes stark, good sense. Here is an artist who knows how to build to her own individual, emotional and technical pinnacle without sacrificing the feelings of the audience during the climbing process.

To begin with, if anything is going to settle an audience into an evening of music-making, certainly a Bach chorale prelude is a sure-fire prescription. The F Minor prelude, she played with a piercing melancholy. Nevertheless the continuous melodic line hung together due to her astonishingly facile legato playing. The three Scarlatti sonatas were played with less mechanism than one hears in most Scarlatti interpretations, but the clumsy romantic tinges coupled with the Beethovenian range of expression, were rather too troubling to convince one of any affinity Madame Novaes might have with the Italian Baroque.

Surely the first great climax of the evening was Novaes' playing of the Beethoven 'Andante Favori'. The horribly demanding octave passages in both hands were played with such a degree of perfection that one was left breathless. There are very few living pianists possessing the technical equipment to effect the contract between the silken elasticity of the right hand and the staccato insistence of the left, that Mme. Novaes brought to this music.

After intermission, Novaes continued building to her climax with a set of pieces more suited to her style—and indeed this is a gross understatement—with 'Papillons'. Seldom is Schumann heard anywhere with such overwhelming subtlety and at the same time retaining the bold rhythmic and tonal dynamism, characteristic of the composer.

The Brahms and Debussy works performed served as a needed breath of air before the performance of the work that Mme. Novaes had come to play, the great B flat minor Sonata of Chopin. The driving first motive overpowered one with its sense of urgency but for my ears the contrast of the second thematic group was not apparent enough because of the strange manner in which she ran the mood of the first group over the first halting cadence. Nevertheless, since her conception is so grand and convincing as a whole it must be accepted on its own terms.

Novaes is a highly personal art, to appreciate it is to give of oneself to be manipulated at will. Regardless of the misgivings during this process, the end result is almost inevitably successful. Such was the case last night.

—Paul Robinson.

John R. Colombo

Speaker Calls Red China Moving, Pathetic Spectacle

The Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for York Centre told University of Toronto students yesterday Big Brother is everywhere in Communist China.

Fred Stinson, who made a meeting of the U of T Club this private tour of Red China this summer, keynoted the first.

Appeal Off

United Appeal got off to a healthy start this week with the School of Social Work contributing $109 to campaign coffers.

The figure is 109% of expected Social Work returns, U.A. officials said last night.

Las Vegas Night marks the official campaign kick-off on Friday, Oct. 16. Fun and games begin in the Drill Hall, 119 St. George St., at 8:30 p.m.

United Appeal starts in colleges and faculties Oct. 19 and ends Oct. 30.

He said propaganda plays the basic role in the life of every Chinese. "Billboards bearing pictures of surly-looking Westerners holding bombs beside vibrant, scowling Chinese peasants are plastered everywhere while female voices come out of nowhere, encouraging the workers to return to the communes and help build a greater China," he said.

When he asked his interpreter what his nightly reading was the man said "Marx and Marxism". But the interpreter added he was not a member of the party because "my political consciousness is not firm enough. The people will decide this."

Mr. Stinson pointed out even children are encouraged at school to report on their parent's activities and attitudes.

On the question of Chinese recognition in the United Nations, Mr. Stinson said "the Chinese don't want to be in the UN or recognized. They want to hold out as a people scorned by the West."

The PC labelled Red China's massive population a "moving and pathetic spectacle."

Vic Votes

Results of elections to the 673 executive and other groups at Victoria College were announced last night.

President of the freshman class is Al Ruffman; Deanne McLeish, associate president; Leslie Gore, secretary; Ernie Cook, treasurer; Gail Fowle, women's athletic representative.

Members at large are Beth Cullen, Dawn Magwood, Ted Raife, and Nancy Wright. Debating representative is Nancy Hamilton.

In a by-election, Dave Lemmon was chosen as 670 president. Don Matheson was elected president of the Vic Athletic Union.

COACHING

Calculus, Accounting, Introductory lessons on: Theory of Compound Interest, and Life Contingencies.

Call RU. 3-2257 evenings

CLASSIFIED ADS.

LISEZ-VOUS LE FRANCAIS?
Abonnez-vous aux Nouvelles Francaises de Toronto: Toutes les activites Francaises de la ville. Tarif special etudiant $1.50. Renseignements — Tel. LE. 1-5309.

TYPING

These notes, etc. Picked up from and delivered to University. Phone PL. 9-6874.

TRAVELLING TO CHICAGO

In near future? Call Ken, WA. 2-1930.

COMFORTABLE — FREE

Accommodation — 3 minutes from university — required by young lecturer in return occasional tuition. WA. 3-6611, local 491.

YOUR BLOOD

the greatest gift of all

We Aren't Moonsick, Vic Debaters Decide

Speakers opposing the motion, "Resolved That Moon Sickness Is the Most Serious Disease of Our Age" won 31 to 19 in a Victoria College debate last night.

Donna Youngblut, first speaker for the affirmative, pointed out the moon has always been symbolic of "unbalancing sickness and all number of mental aberrations".

She charged that just as man's preoccupation with astrology in the past prevented him from attempting to conquer his surroundings, so we are now sacrificing the problems of the earth to our struggle to reach the moon.

First Speaker for the opposition, Mike Galway, countering her charge man has become almost paranoid in his obsession for power, said "in every great achievement, there has been a political scam".

He added that a far worse disease with which we are afflicted is "ridicule, scorn, and narrow-mindedness sometimes called conservatism".

Marc Somerville, second speaker for the ayes, after mentioning "in ancient times the moon was worshipped as a deity with human sacrifice, asked if it was still necessary "to sacrifice lives to the moon, this time on a political altar".

Second speaker for the opposition, Norm Williams, said "man is built so he desires to be first. We need something above the mundane, in this case, our striving for the moon".

Seized Student Film Returned By Soviets

OTTAWA, Oct. 14, (CUP) — Films will be returned to one of six students who had photographic film seized while in the Soviet Union on a tour this summer.

Films belonging to Roland Lamontagne, past president of the Laval University were given to the National Federation of Canadian University Students this morning in Ottawa by Victor Selivanov, second secretary of the Soviet Embassy.

The films had not been developed. Earlier the embassy official said it was likely the sixth member had "committed some wrong and they must respect other nations when they take pictures."

Mr. Selivanov repeated that he did not know if the other films would be available. Asked why only Lamontagne's films had been returned, he replied that the ex-president was a special guest of the Soviet Union.

Soviet custom officials took films from the six members of the Nficus tour at the Soviet-Polish border in June. Since that time Nficus has attempted to recover them, but with no results.

Following the incident, Lamontagne sent a telegram to the Department of External Affairs which has since said there was nothing they could do.

RED CROSS CLINIC DATES FOR DONORS

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 16 — VICTORIA

Margaret Addison Hall — Auditorium
9:30 - 11:30 a.m. 1:30 - 4 p.m.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 19 — VICTORIA and EMMANUEL

Margaret Addison Hall — 9:30 - 11:30 a.m. 1 - 4 p.m.

MUSIC and MEDS

67 College Street — 12:00 - 3:30 5:30 - 8:00

SPECIAL NOTICE

To all Students Who Left Books For Sale at the

BOOK EXCHANGE

PAYMENTS are being made today, between 11:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

(Please have your counterfoil with you for identification purposes)

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS

SWIM CLUB — WOMEN

Speed Swimmer Time Trials THURSDAY, OCTOBER 15, at UTS Pool between 5:30 and 6:30. All swimmers welcome. Bring suit, cap and towel. Report to Coach Garay.

GAMES TODAY

SOCCER	North 12:30	Trin. B	vs	St. M. B	Hilgenberg
	South 4:15	Med B	vs	Vic	Mayhovich
	North 4:15	Wye	vs	Knox	Selzer
FOOTBALL	East 4:00	Trin.	vs	Vic	Golden, Starkman, Barrett
VOLLEYBALL	(Major) 1:00	Sr. SPS	vs	U.C.	Parkons
	4:00	Vic Caven	vs	U.C. Prat Nots	Goldman
	8:30	U.C. Beta Sigs	vs	Dent, H Yr	Dugan
(Major) 7:30	SPS. III	vs	Pharm	Dugan
8:30	Pharm. B	vs	Knox B	Dugan

INTERCOLLEGIATE LEAGUE

Varsity at QUEENS

PLEASE NOTE:

The Special Train to Kingston will leave Union Stn. at 8:30 a.m. Toronto time
SATURDAY, OCTOBER 17th

(You may return at 7:45 p.m. Kingston time or any later trains)

TICKETS SHOULD BE PURCHASED TODAY

Train Tickets

are on sale at the SAC Office — $6.00 Return

(Game tickets may also be purchased with train tickets)

Game Tickets Only

are on sale at the ATHLETIC OFFICE, HART HOUSE, from 9:15 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

$2.50 $2.00 $1.75 $1.50

Brisk Breezes Blow As Varsity Sailors Sail

The advent of summer usually brings to an end all U of T athletics. The most noteworthy exception to this rule is the University of Toronto Sailing Team.

Winners last year of the Grant Trophy, symbol of Intercollegiate supremacy, the U of T Sailing Team successfully competed in three major sailing events this summer.

On May 7-8, the team participated in the New Inter Sectional Regatta held at Tufts University, Boston.

Toronto placed second to Bow-doin University, losing by two points. Toronto skipper Robin Beamish, however, was high individual scorer with 50 points.

On May 15, Toronto took first place at the Dartmouth University Invitational Regatta, winning the Phelps Trophy.

Six Universities competed in the regatta. Bowdoin finishing second and Dartmouth third.

High individual score went to Peter Beamish who collected two firsts, three seconds and a third. Members of the winning crew were Hilley Carr and Mary Dillon.

On Sept. 19 and 20, Varsity competed in the Coast Guard Academy's International Invitational Regatta at New London, Conn., finishing ninth out of 13 competing universities.

Coast Guard Academy took top honors, while runners up were Boston University, Cambridge University (England), and University of London (England). Oxford University also had an entry.

Skippers for the tourney were again the two Beamish brothers.

Fourteen entrants contested this year's Varsity Sailing championships in Nordberg's at Queen City Yacht Club.

After racing in breezes varying from eight to three knots Al Rae and Charles Grant emerged as the new U of T Sailing team.

The final five skippers competing in the round robin elimination series and their scores were as follows:

Al Rae (27), Charles Grant (25), Larry Smith (24), Chris Chapman (24), and Dick Coles (10).

The Intercollegiate Sailing Championships will be held in Toronto on Sunday, Oct. 25 at Nordberg's Queen City Yacht Club. Rae and Charles will attempt to retain the Grant Trophy for Toronto. At least four Universities will be competing.

... and in this corner by pam hill

A shy, young freshee, representing St. Hilda's College, took all the top honours at St. Andrew's Golf Club last Friday.

Leslie Bull, handing in a handicap of -11, teamed up with Mary Selby to hand in an aggregate score of 97 for 18 holes. Miss Bull had forty-five strokes for the nine-hole course, and Miss Selby fifty-two. Not only did the team gain first place, but the attractive co-eds placed first and second in the individual scoring.

Miss Bull also won the "hidden hole" event.

The twosome competed against teams from St. Mike's, P&OT and UC. The whole thing was a great success and is quoted as being "terrific fun!"

Almost of primary importance at this point of the game is the swimming situation. The Swim Club discussed Intercollegiate trials over lunch last week, and the general consensus was to hold them as soon as possible. The idea being to give the coach (Mrs. Valerie Gary, one time Olympic swimmer) some working material.

Thus, trials are TONIGHT, 5.30 at the UTS pool, (Bloor and Spadina). These will be by no means definite or conclusive (more trials on Monday), but just a few short sprints for some ideas.

In that some Intercol. swimmers have graduated, there are from three to five positions open on the team. If you're even interested in speed swimming, come on out. You've nothing to lose by it—and maybe a free trip to Western to gain!

The Interfaculty tennis tournament was finally played to the semi-finals last week, although not completed. However, this was enough to decide the Intercollegiate team. And here it is: president Margot Nunn (III Trin.), Diana Doern (I St. Mike's), Delene Raymond (I PHE), and Sylvia Binkley (III Trin.).

These members go to McMaster on Thursday for the Intercollegiate tournament on Friday and Saturday between Varsity, McMaster, McGill, Western and Queen's. Here's a 'tip o' the hat' in high hopes that they can retain the championship.

Tomorrow at noon in the Stadium, two-membered archery teams will start shooting for the Interfaculty tourney. Each person shoots four ends (six arrows per end) at thirty yards. The shooting is carried over till Monday and Tuesday noon also.

There is also room for a new member on the Intercol. archery team—and Vhu assures me that you don't even have to be good!

Well, the girls' baseball season is rolling. Last year's finalists, Victoria College, gave the incompetent Snidflans a real walloping on Tuesday noon: 16-1! Man!

But even more unexpected was yesterday noon's game between Pharmacy and Meds. By some freak of the imagination, Pharmacy actually won. The competent "Pharmers" trounced Meds 11-0 (although the Medans trounced Pharmacy men in football a little later in the p.m.). Pharmacy produced a most able pitcher in the person of Judy Skene—a no-hit game. Good to see Pharmacy win for a change. Carry on, gang.

PUNTING PETER POTTER on the right and STEVE CHISHOLM on the left. Potter's educated toe has made him the leading Varsity scorer, while Chisholm is the leading runner for the Blues.

Mitchell Leads Scoring Playoff Settled Today

Veteran tackle Bill Mitchell of Western Mustangs has taken a slim lead in the scoring race in Senior Intercollegiate football.

He has accomplished this without scoring a touchdown while accumulating the twelve points to his credit, by way of three field goals and three converts.

Terry Porter of Queen's is in second place with touchdown and two singles, while Peter Potter of Toronto and Joe Irvin of McGill are in third spot with seven points apiece.

Twelve more players follow with 6 points, each having scored one touchdown. Six Toronto players are among the dozen.

Blues are not expected to have more than two of their injured players back for this Saturday's tilt with Queen's. Probable returnees to the lineup are tackle Mike Chykalluk, and centre Pete Eby. Both missed last week's contest with Western.

Those not ready to dress are Walt Sopinka, Malcolm Bell, and Mike Muir. Muir sustained a badly bruised hip against Western, and it is problematical whether he will be ready Saturday.

Whether or not there is to be a play-off in case of a tie will be known today. Dean J. W. B. Sissam, head of the executive committee of the Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association was to have taken a poll of the Universities concerned by telephone yesterday, and he is expected to announce the results of the poll today.

A play-off, if agreed upon, would take place if Varsity won their remaining games, including that with Western on October 31 at Varsity Stadium. It has been suggested that it be held at Varsity Stadium the Tuesday night following the last scheduled game.

Banner Track Meet Campus Soccer On

Today, a combination Intramural and University Championship track meet will be held.

The scoring system will be arranged so that a running tabulation will be kept of both meets simultaneously.

This system will ensure that a competitor who has been on an Intercollegiate team will not score points for his faculty in the Intramural meet. On the other hand, an athlete running at Varsity for the first time will be able to obtain points for his faculty by placing in both meets.

It is fully expected that George Rhoden (ex Olympic Gold medalist) will break the record for the 100 and 220 yard dash if the weather isn't too cold.

Defending champions for both meets are University College.

For the first time in three years an Intramural Harrier race will be run on Monday, Oct. 26 at 5:30 p.m. in Riverdale Park. Defending champions are again University College.

University Championship Harrier run will take place on Oct. 29 in High Park.

Intramural soccer is in full swing again on the campus.

In last week's action Trin. A edged Sr. SPS, 1-0. G. Meikle scored the only and winning goal for Trinity.

SPS IV trounced St. Mike's B, 3-0. W. Williams, A. Erschow, and T. Danissov were the goal getters for the winners.

UC took the measure of Meds. B, 3-0 in Friday's action. Scorers for the Redmen were A. Sorokivsky, L. Mayhanovich and S. Ryan.

Trin. A and Meds. A battled to a scoreless draw in one of the more thrilling matches of the young season. Marring what appears to be a banner year of Interfac athletic rivalry, however, are several defaulted games.

Trin. B and Jr. SPS defaulted their games to SPS III and Vic. because the former failed to field a complete team.

Continuing in Soccer action this week, Forestry squeezed past Emmanuel by a 2-1 count. Don Dickson provided the margin of victory with a two goal effort. B. Roberts tallied the lone Emmanuel tally.

Name	Scoring	TDCFGSTSP
Mitchell (W)	12	3 3 - - 12
Porter (Q)	6	1 - - - 2 3
POTTER (T)	6	4 - - - 3 7
Irvin (M)	6	1 - - - 1 7
McMURRY (T)	6	1 - - - - 6
LOUGHTEED (T)	6	1 - - - - 6
DANN (T)	6	1 - - - - 6
CHISHOLM (T)	6	1 - - - - 6
MURCHIE (T)	6	1 - - - - 6
MUIR (T)	6	1 - - - - 6
Cosentino (W)	6	1 - - - - 6
Shepherd (W)	6	1 - - - - 6
Wickham (Q)	6	1 - - - - 6
Polzema (W)	6	1 - - - - 6
Wydenow (W)	6	1 - - - - 6
Robb (Q)	6	1 - - - - 6
Lambert (M)	6	1 - - - - 6
JACK (T)	2	- - - 1 - 2
Richards (Q)	2	- - - 1 - 2
Ritchie (Q)	1	- 1 - - - 1

Soccerites Win Two

For the second week in succession both soccer squads came through with shut-out victories.

In the Senior game, Toronto had most of the play in the first half, but at the interval were only ahead by one goal scored from close range by Mike Mahon. After the break the Blues dominated the game almost completely and put on a display of fine soccer. Roger Peretz was the man on the spot to net the Blues' second counter, placing the ball well away from the Western keeper to score. Mahon rounded out the Toronto score sheet with another goal late in the second half to make the final tally 3-0 in Blues favor.

In the Intermediate game, Baby Blues ran roughshod over a Western team that just couldn't get going. For most of the game Toronto were hammering at the Western goal and ran up a total of eight goals with no reply from their opponents. Scorers in the goal feast were Stan Fraser (3), Selwyn Ryan (3), Walcott and McLean L. one each.

This afternoon the senior team are hosts to Ryerson who have gained promotion to the Senior League this year. Game time is 2:30 p.m.

The Scoreboard

FOOTBALL
Senior
	P	W	L	T	F	A	P
Western	2	2	0	0	46	11	4
Toronto	2	1	1	0	45	17	2
Queen's	2	1	1	0	21	32	2
McGill	2	0	2	0	13	58	0

Future Games
Sat., Oct. 17—Toronto at Queen's
McGill at Western
Western Intercollegiate
	P	W	L	T	F	A	P

UBC	3	3	0	0	105	38	12
U of Alta.	3	1	2	0	64	64	2
U of Sask	2	0	2	0	13	80	0

* (All B.C. games are 4 points)

SOCCER
Senior
	P	W	L	T	F	A	P
Toronto	2	2	0	0	7	0	4
OAVC	2	2	0	0	15	3	4
Ryerson	1	0	1	0	3	8	0
McMaster	1	0	1	0	0	4	0
Western	2	0	2	0	0	10	0

UC Group 1

Intramural football has again appeared on the back campus to the delight of all ardent sideline coaches, hecklers and free entertainment moochers, (cheerleaders being a good portion of the sight worth seeing).

Although closer coverage of the sport will follow in succeeding issues a brief look at what's in store is warranted.

The dark horse of the Group I gridgers are the boys in red from UC. After many years in Group II, the Redmen by virtue of an undefeated season last year are getting a crack at the "big time".

Will coaches John Flowers and Marv Grosman be able to mould a relatively inexperienced group of recruits into worthy scrimmage mates for big, tough SPS remains to be seen tomorrow.

BUY FLOWERS
for all occasions at the
PARK PLAZA FLORISTS
10 AVENUE ROAD
WA. 3-6361
10% DISCOUNT TO
STUDENTS AND STAFF

UNIVERSITY BLAZERS
Custom Made
Especially Priced for Students
$27.50
Fine Flannel Worsted Trousers
$16.50
Business Hours: 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.
Monday through Saturday
Suits Made to Measure
Latest Styles and Design
PARNES Clothing Co.
705 QUEEN STREET WEST
EM. 6-2025
Sample at S.A.C. Office

Bissell Tells Americans: Border A Benevolent Fifth Column

University of Toronto President Claude T. Bissell told the 54th American Life Convention in Chicago yesterday Canadian college graduates crossing the border form a "benevolent fifth column" in United States society.

Dr. Bissell said Canadian people have the tendency to pull their hair over the number of their students streaming south each year.

"No doubt we would be stronger if we could bring back some of these, but there is still satisfaction in knowing about the contribution of Canadians to American life."

He noted that every American campus he visited in the past has had a U of T graduate on staff.

He told his American listeners that the U of T has turned out top people in the arts and professions in which no course is offered at the University. He singled out journalists, actors, and producers.

Dr. Bissell made it clear university education has gained a new and commanding priority in the community.

"The signs are there for all to see. Articles on higher education have become a staple of almost any magazine; and university presidents, accustomed in the past to speaking only to university assemblies, find themselves invited to address a flattering diversity of societies."

This, he said, means the university has been accepted as "senior partner in society".

The Doctor emphasized a college is no longer a type of aristocratic adornment or useless flourish at the end of a formal education, but a "preparation for life".

Dr. Bissell said universities have been boosted into a position so they now figure as a key factor in the sphere of national policy.

He said that when Russian Premier Khrushchov came to the U.S. last month he brought a number of advisers, one being the Soviet Minister of Higher Education.

"Many other incidents along this line show academic heads and professors are now rapidly becoming the only genuine form of international exchange," he said.

Speaking about private university institutions, Dr. Bissell said, they are slowly being squeezed out of existence because of high costs. "Most universities are supported by funds from state, provincial or federal grants."

Near the end of his speech, the president said universities on both sides of the border have entered "into a solemn contract with the past and future" and the present is just the point where the two impinge.

"University," he continued, "is a long term research; it is constantly searching for a breakthrough in human ignorance. The results of such research are slow and cumulative, but ultimately revolutionary."

THE MEDICAL SOCIETY and P.O.T. PRESENT

PANACEA

- Dancing To: Shelly Schiller
Cy McLean
- SPS vs Meds: Basketball
Squash
Volleyball
Water Polo
- Splash Party

HART HOUSE — OCT. 16

$2.00 per Couple

● EVERYBODY WELCOME ●

(Tickets on Sale at Medical Society Office
Medical Bldg. Wed. - Fri. — 1 - 5 p.m.)

It's Fun to DANCE

AT
Mart Kenney's Ranch
EVERY SATURDAY

CANADA'S FINEST
BANDS

Special Student Rates
$1.00 per person

Reservation and Information
AT. 8-1282

DIAMOND RINGS

SAVE THE BIG MARK-UP BY BUYING
YOUR DIAMOND RINGS DIRECT
Satisfaction Guaranteed or Money Refunded

Tel: EMpire 8-5268

WINSTALL DIAMOND CORP.

1219 Bank of Comm. Bldg.
25 King St. West Toronto, Ontario

Hart House

TODAY

Holy Communion, 8 a.m. — Chapel
Record Room Instruction, 5.15 p.m. — Record Room
ART CLASS, 7 p.m. — Art Gallery
Archery, 8 p.m. — Rifle Range
CAMERA CLUB — OPEN MEETING, 8 p.m. — Music Room
Speaker: Don Lizar, Y.M.C.A. Camera Club — "The Fun of Photography". New Members especially welcome.
NEW ART EXHIBITION — Art Gallery
Paintings, Drawings, Watercolours and Prints
RONALD KING and PETER KOLISNYK

Hart House Main Gym — 10 a.m.
Saturday, Oct. 17 — U of T TABLE TENNIS TOURNAMENT

FASTER STARTS

Quicker, surer stops with
KAUFMAN
Golden Jets

— the basketball shoes scientifically designed
to improve your game

Wear the shoe chosen by so many well-known Canadian basketball teams . . . Golden Jets. New non-marking RIPLE® Soles lengthen the stride, propel the foot forward for fast get-aways, or "dig in" for instant, non-skid stops.

Golden Jets let you play longer without tiring because cushion action of RIPLE® Soles absorbs shock, reduces foot fatigue. You'll want these other Golden Jet features too:

- * PROFESSIONAL LAST (narrow at heel, wide at ball of foot)
- * SHOCK-ABSORBING CUSHION ARCH PROTECTOR
- * "BREATHABLE" UPPERS of long-wearing heavy duck

Golden Jets come in white with golden trim. Ask for Golden Jets at your nearest sports or shoe store.

NEW RIPLE® SOLE
gives super action

Made by Kaufman Rubber Co., Limited, Kitchener, Ont.

Park Road Baptist Church

1 Block North and East of
Bloor - Yonge

Minister: Rev. Murray J. S.
Ford, M.A., B.D.

VICTOR E. GRAHAM, Organist

SERVICES AT
10.45 a.m. and 7.30 p.m.

A Cordial Invitation to all
Students to Attend Inspiring
Services

U. C. Leather Goods Manufacturing Company Limited

3047 Dundas Street W.
RO. 3-3461

Consult us for your requirements:—

—in briefcases
—underarm portfolios
etc.

Favourable discount 20%
to university students and
staff.

There's Something Special
about du MAURIER

The Exclusive "Millecel" Filter Tip,
the most efficient filter yet developed, lets
you draw free and easy, for full smoking
satisfaction. du MAURIER combines
the finest Virginia tobaccos to give
you perfect mildness and smoothness. Once you smoke
du MAURIER you'll make the
distinctive red and silver package
your favorite — always.

du MAURIER

A Really Milder High Grade Virginia Cigarette
with the EXCLUSIVE "Millecel" FILTER TIP

The Motion

WHEREAS the resolution of the SAC deploring fraternity discrimination on the basis of race, color or creed was a statement of policy.

WHEREAS it is necessary that specific action be taken on an issue which has contravened the fundamental principles of this University as an educational institution.

WHEREAS any organization whose active membership is comprised largely of undergraduates necessarily reflects upon and concerns the reputation of this University.

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED:

1) That the SAC should withdraw whatever privileges presently enjoyed by fraternal organizations which have a specific discriminatory clause in their constitution on the basis of race, color or creed or admit to discriminatory practices on the basis of race, color or creed; specifically with reference to Torontonensis, the Students' Handbook, or any other Student publication, on the initiation of the Publications Commission.

2) that the SAC strongly recommend to the President of the University of Toronto that any organization which the President to his satisfaction has in fact found to be practicing discrimination on the basis of race, color or creed, should cease such practices to the satisfaction of the President or the offending members of said organization will lose all privileges of membership in the University of Toronto.

3) that a Committee be formed and funds made available to the Committee for the purposes of taking effective action to combat the discriminatory practices on the basis of race, color or creed of the fraternities and sororities whose membership comprises undergraduates of the University.

that the terms of the Committee will be clearly defined by the SAC and the Committee as such will in turn be directly responsible to SAC for presenting initially a detailed program which will finally result in the education and edification of the undergraduate body at large and such undergraduates in particular who are presently members of fraternities and sororities which practice discrimination on the basis of race, creed or color.

It is recommended that the Council, in its good judgement suggest to the Committee that the course of action be one of an educational advertising program within the bounds of the campus of the University and shall conform to the following requirements, namely:

- (a) such advertising shall be in good taste;
- (b) shall be in keeping with the rules and regulations of all official publicity media;
- (a) shall not infringe upon the privacy of any individual or group;
- (d) and must in all ways be in keeping with the high standards of this institution and subject to its approval.

PETER DEMBSKI, St. Michael's College representative on the Students' Administrative Council, drives home a point during last night's emotion-charged SAC meeting. (VSP Bell)

THE VARSITY

Vol. LXXIX — No. 12

Friday, October 16th, 1959

SAC To End All Privileges

By SUSIE BRESLIN
Varsity Co-Managing Editor

In a breathless, overflowing and subdued council chamber, the Students' Administrative Council last night moved to oppose in practice racial discrimination in student organizations.

In its motions, the council in effect:

- severed its connections with any discriminatory student organizations.
- took steps to initiate a campaign to educate University of Toronto students against racial discrimination.
- offered to split the cost for establishing a lectureship in race relations with the university administration.
- assured that every U of T student would have a chance to read the full minutes of the four-hour meeting.

Council defeated a motion that would have recommended that President Bissell and the university Caput employ at their discretion the power to expel university students who damaged the reputation of the university by participating in discriminatory organizations.

As the vote announcing the defeat was read, Barbara Arrington wept silently at the sidelines.

At the end of session, Miss Arrington, the Negro co-ed whose revelations concerning discrimination in campus sororities touched off national indignation, thanked council for acting on her behalf.

"I must confess that the publicity has been a terrific strain, and I'm so glad you made it worthwhile."

Sam Ajzenstat immediately proposed the following motion, which was carried unanimously:

"That the SAC extend to Barbara Arrington its gratitude for the courage with which she took upon herself her responsibilities as a citizen of this university in placing this issue before the SAC."

Council session was opened with a two-page motion by Peter Dembski (III SMC) advocating that:

1) The SAC sever its connections with discriminatory campus organizations by withdrawing special student privileges in SAC publications. This motion would involve treating such organizations as outside advertisers in Torontonensis by removing their listing under campus activities, and charging them $150 per page as against the $16 now in effect, removing them from the Students' Handbook, and removing privileges in other publications.

2) The SAC recommend that President C. T. Bissell use, at his discretion and in conjunction with the university Caput, his power to expel students who insist in participating in student organizations which he deems discriminatory. Caput has the power to expel any student or students who are deemed to have damaged the university reputation.

3) The SAC appoint a committee to recommend means of educating U of T students concerning discrimination.

Main debate of the session concerned section two of the motion. Council members disagreed on whether such a motion would "abrogate" the right of free association.

Dave Tavender (III Trin) told council he opposed that section of the motion because "I believe in the essence of our democracy, that every man is entitled to his own choice".

"Discrimination in the 20th century is a horrible thing, but discrimination is a fact," Tavender said. Council cannot "sit on a high throne of justice" and is "not in a position to morally chastize" fraternities.

"I plead that morality is a question of personal decision," he said.

Clive Chamberlain (III Meds) told council "I don't think (Dembski's motion) is a resolution, it's a manifesto".

(Continued on Page 3)

West Indian Reveals More Discrimination

—New evidence of discrimination came to light early this morning in a statement by Eugene Moore, President of the West Indian Students Association.

Moore said Negroes who last summer tried to enter fraternities were turned away because of their race. During the summer, many fraternities open their doors to boarders.

"The Negroes were booked into the residences," Moore said, "and then were turned away when they showed up to move in."

Commenting on last night's SAC meeting, Moore said "it has done nothing."

He said the council, in defeating the second motion — that to expel members of a fraternity practising discrimination — "didn't have the initiative or courage to accept it."

"When they divided the basic motion into three parts, they took all the sting out of it," he added. "The SAC is nothing but an emasculated debating forum."

What is to come? "Everything will go on as before," Moore said. "You have to be asked to be a fraternity member. We just won't be asked."

BOBBI Arrington, the girl who started it all, talks with Byron Hyde, President of the International Student Organization.

and the vote

SECTION I — CARRIED, 21-5
SECTION II — DEFEATED, 7-19
SECTION III — CARRIED, 17-9

Bissell Orders Meet and a postscript ... With Sorority Heads

The President of the University of Toronto has stepped into the fraternity-discrimination issue.

Dr. Claude T. Bissell Thursday wrote to each of the eight campus women's fraternities requesting them to meet with the University administration to discuss the issue.

Dr. Bissell added he had invited representatives of the Pan-Hellenic Association which represents the eight fraternities to take part in "a frank discussion on the question of discrimination in the sororities".

President Bissell made it clear that U of T's fraternities are "not integrated with the university" as in American universities.

He continued: "Because, however, the sororities and fraternities are made up of undergraduates, the university is concerned with what they do, so that this problem raises anew the relationship."

Dear Sirs:

I think that if all of the students of the University of Toronto had been present at the SAC meeting last night they would feel as I do that the issue was fairly and completely discussed. The outcome itself should serve as a pat on the back to all of us because as members of this well-publicized society we, through our representatives on the Council, have done the right thing. This right thing was not only the motions passed but the logic and sensitivity with which they were passed. We should also be sincerely proud of the re-awakening of a sensitivity of moral issue on this campus. I know that the inaudible applause of the world will be communicated to all of us in the sense of duty which we now feel towards our society.

Congratulations to all of us, hooray we had courage, hooray we have dusted the windows of the subtly known and now see the truth. Doesn't it feel wonderful to have hope in the future again. For myself I have received a great and wonderful consequence—new friends—The Varsity.

Now if you will excuse me I have about 50 hours of sleep to catch up on.

Yours sincerely Barbara Arrington

CLASSIFIED ADS.

LISEZ-VOUS LE FRANCAIS?
Abonnez-vous aux Nouvelles Fran-caises de Toronto: Toutes les activites Francaises de la ville. Tarif special etudiant $1.50. Renseignements
— Tel. LE. 1-5399.

LOST

Set of drawing instruments in red leather case. Make — ECO-BRA.
REWARD. Call WA. 3-4931.

FOR SALE

Gentleman's dress suit — (tails) —
Size 38 — black vicuna cloth — worn only once — very reasonable. Call LE. 1-8194.

COMFORTABLE — FREE

Accommodation — 3 minutes from university — required by young lecturer in return occasional tuition. WA. 3-6611, local 491.

Trinity College Chapel*SUNDAY

8.00 a.m. — Mattins

8.15 a.m. — Eucharist

EVERYBODY WELCOME

University Lutheran Chapel

SUNDAY SERVICE — 11 a.m.

SUNDAY SUPPER — 5.30 p.m.

Student Club, every 2nd and
4th Thursday, at 7.45 p.m.

610 SPADINA

(below Harbord)

WA. 2-1884 — WA. 3-6940

smc french club

Call For National Flag

Statistics pleading the Canadian case for a distinctive national flag and national anthem for this country were presented at a meeting of the St. Michael's College
French Club Tuesday night.

Alexis Caron, MP for Hull,
Quebec, spoke to the members in French. He had conducted an extensive survey among English and French-speaking Canadian students to determine their feelings regarding the flag and anthem
questions.

"Although publicity-seekers have enlivened popular passions to the point that English-speaking Canadians insulted French-speaking citizens by expressions such as 'slackers', Canadians are united in the opinion that we should have a national flag with no mark of subjugation to another power,"
he said.

This flag is neither to bear the Union Jack nor the Fleur de Lis according to Mr. Caron's survey.

Over 80 per cent of those surveyed were strongly in favor of this distinctive flag.

Questioned regarding a purely

KNOX*Presbyterian Church

Invites all Students to join in Worship

Sunday 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Youth Rally—8.30 p.m.

Recreation—Friday, 8 p.m.

Youth Centre

16 Bancroft St.

Located Spadina and Harbord

Canadian national anthem, 73 per cent responded "yes". Of the two Canadian anthems presently in use, the majority surveyed favored
"O Canada".

Mr. Caron noted that there remains a minority in Canada which still believe the Dominion will not be united until all citizens speak a common language.

"These people sin through ignorance of Canada's historical facts,"
Mr. Caron said.

He proved through statistics
"how difficult it would be to efface the indelible mark which France has made on Canada".

Erratum

Bob Thompson, a student at Osgoode Hall, last night protested his fraternity had been wrongly listed in The Varsity as practicing discrimination in the selection of its members.

Phi Delta Phi, a law fraternity, at present has one active Jewish member, and one Chinese alumnus.

Only a few years ago, Leonard Briathwaite, a Negro student since graduated, was made the fraternity's "graduate of the year,"
he said.

The Varsity had listed the chapter as having no Negro,
Jewish or Asiatic members at present.

Thompson added Phi Delta Phi is a professional group catering to law students and lawyers and not connected with the university in any way.

Kindly Clergyman (pinching little boy's knee): And who has nice, chubby pink legs?

Little Boy: Mama.

Professor Says Barth Discovered Living God

Rev. W. O. Fennell, Emmanuel College professor of systematic theology, Tuesday described Karl Barth, contemporary German-born theologian, as the man who led the Protestant world to a rediscovery of the "living God in the Scriptures."

In the second of this year's Student Christian Movement-sponsored lecture series, "Prophetic Profiles," Prof. Fennell said the term "prophetic," if used in the Biblical sense, is particularly applicable to Barth, for, of all the men with whom the lecture series deals, Barth alone is entirely concerned with the Word of the Lord.

Prof. Fennell said that when,
due to the stresses of the First World War, Barth was forced to re-examine his position as preacher, he discovered in the Bible, not the word of man, but the word of God. "He found not the quest of man for God, but God's human quest for man."

It became evident to Barth, said Prof. Fennell, that there is no natural continuity between man and God. "From His own realm of Eternity, God entered man's temporal realm, not at man's bidding but on his own initiative, with a purpose." According to Barth, by God alone can He be known, Prof. Fennell added.

Prof. Fennell pointed out Barth's belief that solely through Jesus Christ did God chose to make His act of self-disclosure. "All else either anticipates, points to, or points back to Him. He is literally God speaking."

For Barth, all legitimate theology and preaching begins with Christ, commented Prof. Fennell, and only on the basis of faith's knowledge that God has already made Himself known does man come to know Him.

Although the Bible witnesses

God's revealing deed in Jesus Christ, according to Barth it should not be directly associated with the revelation itself, Prof.
Fennell said. He added that Barth,
therefore, is no a Biblical fundamentalists since he accepts Biblical criticism, although it is with the reservation that criticism should go beyond mere destruction to an awareness that through the attempts of the Biblical authors to reproduce his word, God is actually speaking.

Prof. Fennell emphasized that for Barth theology must always aim at "orthodoxy"; that is, the church should constantly strive towards bringing her thought and speech into accordance with the truth; God's word as it is witnessed to in Scripture.

Karl Barth was born in Basel on May 10, 1886, said Rev. Fennell, and for some years he was the minister of the Evangelical Reformed church in Munster. Since being expelled by Hitler in 1935 from a theological professorship in Bonn, explained Prof. Fennell, Barth has devoted his life to study and the completion of his great work, "The Church Dogmatics".

Although he lives in comparative isolation, Barth has never been indifferent to world affairs, said Prof. Fennell, and he has always been known as an uncompromising fighter for the truth as he sees it. It was Barth who was mainly responsible for the famous Barmen declaration, that fighting creed of the Confessing church oppressed by Hitler, he added.

EATON'S

"JAQUET"

said archaic Frenchmen, means "coat of mail!" To guard them in the joust, English knives, too, wore the "jaquet". Today, to protect you from chilly, seasonal weather, EATON'S presents a decidedly lighter version in rayon gabardine.

THE RAMJET JACKET . . . water-repellent, warmly lined; collared and cuffed in knitted wool. Available in fall shades of olive, grey, brown; sizes 38 to 44. Each, $22.95.

WOOL FELT WILSTAFF CAP . . . Matches
the youthful sports car styling of the jacket.
Sizes 6½ to 7½; in grey, olive, brown, beige,
red. Each, $3.95.

EATON'S COLLEGE STREET MEN'S SHOP
(A SHORT WALK FROM THE CAMPUS)

ROSEDALE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

129 Mount Pleasant Road
(2 blocks north of Bloor, 2 blocks east of Yonge)
11 a.m.—Public Worship
7.30 p.m.—Programme of Adult Education.
—Focus on Christian Education.
—Resource leader, Dr. J. S. Clarke
Followed by discussion and refreshments
SPECIAL WELCOME TO VARSITY STUDENTS

VICTORIA COLLEGE CHAPEL

SUNDAY — OCTOBER 18 — 11 a.m.

"A FAITH FOR TODAY"

3. THE HOLY SPIRIT — Prof. James R. Guthrie
ALL ARE WELCOME

Walmer Road Baptist Church

ONE STREET WEST OF SPADINA, ONE NORTH OF BLOOR

Welcomes Students to Its Services

SUNDAY — 11 a.m. — 7 p.m.

— Friendly After Church Firesides —

YOUNG PEOPLE MEET MONDAY at 8 p.m. — Students Like It
Dr. Harvey L. Denton, Minister — Rev. Gordon V. Crofoot, Assoc.

TRINITY

The United Church of Canada

427 BLOOR ST. WEST — at WALMER ROAD

REV. J. ROBERT WATT, B.A., B.D., Minister

John Linn, Organist and Choirmaster

11.00 a.m.—"THE FACE IN THE WINDOW"

7.30 p.m.—"ISN'T IT ENOUGH TO BE DECENT?!"

8.30 p.m.—Opening Fireside Hour

A Cordial Invitation to All Students To Attend
All Services in Trinity

Park Road Baptist Church

1 Block North and East of
Bloor - Yonge

Minister: Rev. Murray J. S.
Ford, M.A., B.D.

VICTOR E. GRAHAM, Organist

SERVICES AT
10.45 a.m. and 7.30 p.m.

A Cordial Invitation to all
Students to Attend Inspiring
Services

ST. ANDREW'S United Church

117 BLOOR ST. EAST
near Yonge St. Subway

Minister:

REV. WILLIAM BRIGGS
M.A., B.D., Ph.D.

Organist and
Choir Director:
EDGAR GOODAIRE

11 a.m. — "The Pilgrim's Way"

Rev. GEORGE G. D.
KILPATRICK, D.D.

7.30 p.m. — "Bartimaeus Is Our Name"

THE MINISTER
Students cordially invited
to attend

quebec and universities

"The Base Is The Same"

OTTAWA, Oct. 15th (CUP)—Budding hopes that Quebec's newly-appointed premier might change the provincial government's stand on federal grants to universities appear to have been dashed to the ground.

Premier Paul Sauve said yesterday that "while the voice of Quebec may have changed, the base is the same" as far as the federal grants are concerned.

"Quebec has the same position in October as it had last July, and the same is in 1867", he said.

The Premier, who took office following the death of Maurice Duplessis early in September, was speaking at a press conference following a session of the dominion provincial conference being held in Ottawa.

Premier Sauve added that Quebec does not wish to be isolated but "wants frank discussion in committee because that is the only way to solve the problem".

He continued: The Union Nationale party has maintained its policy of refusing the federal grants on the basis of the clause in the British North American Act which states that education is a purely provincial concern.

The Premier then added that the problem of how to dispose of the $23,000,000 in federal grants which are now being held in trust for the Quebec universities, is one of the most important he must face.

"It holds priority in the list of things" was the way he put it.

He went on to say that if the occasion to discuss the matter—and he stressed that this "must be in committee"—should arise, he will raise the problem.

"There seems to be some idea that the people of Quebec were hypnotized by Mr. Duplessis, but it was the other way round," he said.

The Premier said Mr. Duplessis had stated Quebec's views on the federal grants because he knew the people of Quebec believed in them, and a new premier coming into office would not change them.

Mr. Sauve pointed out that the present system of Quebec provincial grants provided as much money to the province's universities as if they had accepted the federal grants.

Asked if the universities had refused the federal grants because they were afraid, he replied that he sincerely believed their action stemmed from their moral sense and the principles involved.

Premier Sauve closed his conference by saying he hoped to meet Prime Minister Diefenbaker later today to discuss the matter.

Meanwhile, it was announced last night that Mr. Sauve will visit the University of Montreal on Oct. 24th.

The announcement, contained in a front-page article in the university's student paper Le Quartier Latin, said the Premier had accepted an official invitation, and the date "seems to be Oct. 24th".

It's not known, however, whether or not the Premier will actually speak to the university's student body.

The AGEUM, the U of M's student council, has extended an official engagement to Mr. Sauve which asks him to meet university students during his visit.

As far as is known, no reply has as yet been received from the Premier.

The train for the Varsity-Queen's game will leave at 8:30 a.m. tomorrow instead of 9 a.m. as previously announced. Tickets are still available in the SAC office.

Also being pushed are Carabin weekend applications. Thirty-seven students have so far applied.

... a manifesto of justice

(Continued from Page 1)

"There is a conflict of fundamental principles involved", he said. In addition to the principle of opposition to discrimination there is "another principle—the right of any individual to associate with people who he chooses to associate with."

Dembski said "I have been told that this is a manifesto. If this in my manifesto, I posit it as a manifesto of justice."

According to the motion, Dembski said, students "can belong to any organization as long as they do not violate the very basic principles of our institution".

"We cannot tolerate certain acts because they are contrary to the common interests of society. Murder is a personal moral act, but murder is punishable by society."

Ajzenstat told council "if democracy were an anarchy, we would be free to do whatever we liked. Discrimination is a crime, in many ways worse than murder—it strikes not at the body, but at the soul."

Tavender told council "the problems (of discrimination) concerned are international. Fraternities are trying to solve these problems. These individuals are working and straining and perhaps almost blowing up to change present regulations."

Since the problem is international, it "brings in not just our ethics but others".

Amid vocal objections from the audience, council voted to split up the motion into three parts and vote by secret ballot. Votes were:

Motion one (Severing SAC connections) 21-5.

Motion Two (recommendation to present) 7-19 (defeated).

Motion Three (educational program) 17-9.

Council then adopted a motion proposed by president Walter McLean, which read:

"That this council request the President to establish a lectureship on race relations, which this council will jointly sponsor with the administration".

The motion was passed with one objection. John O'Dell (III SPS) insisted his opposing vote be recorded, and told council he would prefer not to state his reasons for objecting "at this time".

Council also voted to have complete minutes of the meeting mimeographed and distributed to all U of T students through college and faculty representatives.

Expanding University Today Opens New Modern Aerophysics Building

University of Toronto takes a closer to space today and fills another gap in its expansion plans with the opening of an ultramodern aerophysics building in North York Township.

Dr. A. H. Zimmerman, Chairman of the Defence Research Board, Ottawa, will officially get things under way at the sparkling new laboratories with what amounts to a pint-sized canon explosion.

The chairman will push a button blasting the first firing of a unique "shock tube", a highly complex piece of scientific equipment worth thousands of dollars.

The tube, called a hypersonic shock tunnel, looks like a huge naval gun and is about 80 feet long.

Since last Wednesday, the new building has been the setting for a gathering of top aerophysics scientists, engineers, and leaders from around the globe.

Meanwhile, it is the first time in Canada's history three bodies—the Canadian Aeronautical Institute, the Royal Aeronautical Institute (Britain), and the Institute of Aeronautical Science (United States)—have met in this country.

About 150 scientists today wind up a three-day program of a series of symposiums, where each speaker presents an original paper.

Organizer of the symposiums and director of the U of T Institute of Aerophysics, Dr. Gordon N. Patterson, said the whole idea of symposiums "is to get the most up to date scientific information possible and get it quickly."

"These people will all be writing reports on their own particular work eventually, but it might be a couple of years before we get the details," he added.

Dr. Patterson pointed out symposium topics are geared around three general fields: VTOL and STOL (vertical and steep take-off and landing), gasdynamics, and astrodynamics.

At the moment the institute is soaring ahead in 43 projects dealing with aerodynamic problems including heat transfer and propulsion.

Thirty-five post-graduate students from Canada and Commonwealth countries are now spearheading the project operations.

So far U of T aerophysics division has come up with several firsts in the field of space pioneering.

Scientists at the institute have built a device capable of measuring true atmospheric pressure in open space, free of satellites carrying instruments.

Speaking proudly of his faculty's present information on pressure measurement, Dr. Patterson laid it on the line. "We are the only ones in the world who know anything about the pressure of the atmosphere."

Another Associate Professor of aeronautical engineering, Dr. I. I. Glass added: "In this phase we are ahead of everyone. We are world leaders."

The institute is well stocked with the most modern and up-to-date equipment in the world.

One machine is a three-foot "shock sphere operation" where shock waves are photographed at one one-millionth of a second by a camera developed by the Institute.

Another mechanism is an air plasma tunnel where the effect of heat on a satellite's nose cone plunging back into the earth's atmosphere can be simulated.

A low-density wind tunnel, where in conditions which simulate heights of 100 miles and more, the effect of various shaped vehicles can be evaluated.

Students and staff have been using the building since last year, but official opening was delayed on purpose to coincide with the launching of the symposium.

The Institute was founded ten years ago. Right now it is the only Canadian university division devoting full time to the problem of flight.

At present U of T Aerophysics institute is recognized by most authorities as the last word on this continent in the field of high altitude flight.

scholarship

A Canadian university graduate wishing to study in Japan will have an opportunity to do so under a Government of Japan scholarship announced this month.

Applicants should have a knowledge of the Japanese language, and preference will be given to those studying Japanese culture and science.

The scholarship will last for two years and a monthly allowance of 20,000 yen (approximately $60) will be provided in addition to tuition, matriculation and examination fees.

Application forms may be obtained from the Consulate of Japan, 180 University Ave. Toronto.

Our Readers Write

Two Letters To Bobbi Arrington

... from Jerry Caplan

I have just left the special SAC meeting which was called to discuss the issue of discrimination on our campus. I don't know exactly what I can say to you at this moment, but after watching you as you sat in the hall during these last few frustrating hours, I feel that some one on this campus must attempt to apologize to you for what has just transpired.

I can only pretend to know what was in your heart to-night; as a Jew, I do have some sensitivity to your position. But as a Pure White, I have never quite been placed in a situation parallel to your own. What must have gone through your mind as you saw the motion before Council twisted and distorted until the real issue disappeared from sight. Did you wonder, as I did, when the question of free association was debated, why not one person in the room, worried about what right of free association had been granted to Barbara Arrington? Did you realize, as so few people in the room did, that Peter Dembski's courageous motion was in essence a very simple one—that any student on this campus could belong to any club or organization that he liked, but if the club or organization practiced racial discrimination, the University of Toronto had a moral obligation to disassociate such students from our university?

Did your mind return to the 1957 Supreme Court decision on segregation in schools, with its theory that law must often mould public morality? Did you not agree with the few of us who believe that the University has a very real responsibility not to the society which now exists, but to the society which it believes should exist, and that in exercising this responsibility, it must do all it possibly can to ensure that it be made as difficult as possibly for those who flagrantly violate these ideals to operate?

Bobbi, I wish that I could describe to you the sickness that is in my heart to-night. I am tired, I am disillusioned, I am almost fed up—and I am getting late and I know I am not being very articulate or coherent. But I want you to know that there were a few people with you tonight, people who had a deep emptiness in the pits of their stomach and some tears of disgust in their eyes. If I am being very emotional, it is only because I am trying to express honestly how I felt.

I only want to say one more thing to you, Bobbi, and I hope it can somehow give some slight encouragement. I know that I am not the only person on this campus with these feelings, and I want to promise you that these people have not finished this all-important fight. Please try to maintain enough strength in the face of the terrible time you have had to believe that someday we shall see a world with the courage and intelligence to defeat social injustice of any kind, and know it was people like yourself who have made this possible.

Sincerely,
Jerry Caplan

...from Clive Chamberlain

Dear Bobbi:

Earlier this evening I attended the special meeting of the SAC which was called to discuss the problem of discrimination on our campus. I opposed the motion, which called for a recommendation to the president of the university that students who were members of fraternities which discriminate arbitrarily on membership admission be expelled from the university.

I wish to state at this moment that I am in sympathy with your cause, but I do not think your cause can be served by such a rash measure. In establishing greater freedom for some members of our society, are we to take away the hard-won freedom of all?

One of the cherished freedoms of our society is that of association. . . . we must not destroy it. Eventually our society must admit all into equal membership. . . . but this must not be done at the expense of freedom already gained. All responsible citizens must condemn arbitrary discrimination but they would be irresponsible if they tried to force the issue by depriving individuals of their rights.

The Supreme Court of the USA acted to end Negro discrimination in public institutions—this is as it should be. All public institutions should be constructed with the welfare of the whole public in mind. But as to the private individual and his associations, no government or governing body can interfere where no criminal behavior occurs. It is a matter of personal morality and conscience. It cannot be legislated.

Nuclear Power Within Fifty Years W. V. Bennett Tells Skule's Banquet

W. J. Bennett, past president of the Canadian Atomic Energy Commission, last night told engineers Atomic Power will be producing more than half of Ontario's power within 10 years.

Mr. Bennett, now president of Canadian-British Aluminium Ltd., was speaking to about 250 engineering staff and students at the annual Skule Banquet.

Availability of nuclear power for peaceful use has resulted from surplus held in case of nuclear war and from Canadian industries being kept capable of utilizing nuclear power in case of war, Mr. Bennett said.

In the next decade, he said, uranium, of which there is now a surplus, will be in great demand. He said Canada should recapture the resultant market by decreasing operating costs from the present 50 per cent of output prices.

He outlined the Chalk River development as Canada's testing ground for many engineering skills. The American atomic submarine Nautilus and nuclear shipping developments in Pennsylvania utilized tests there, he said.

Mr. Bennett divided Canada's atomic energy program into that of fundamental research and applied research. He outlined the many problems associated with designing and testing materials and fuels for reactors.

He pointed out that nuclear energy now needs only to be proved economically. While fuel costs are decreasing, the capital costs of building stations are still very high.

However, considering the transmission cost for Hydro power, and the expense of transporting fuels for thermal stations, Mr. Bennett forecast that by 1980 Atomic energy will provide a ceiling on Ontario's power costs by producing over 50 per cent of its power.

Following the awarding of scholarships and toasts to the U of T and the Engineering Faculty, Dean R. R. McLaughlin closed the evening by quoting the motto of the Association of Professional Engineers "Silent service is not enough". He was referring to the Skule Cannon.

DO YOU LIKE TO SING?

Can You Play an Orch. Instrument?

STUDENTS FROM ALL FACULTIES

Are Invited to Apply for Membership in the

U. of T. CHORUS and ORCHESTRA

Application Forms are available from your S.A.C. Rep.
or from the S.A.C. Office.

APPLICATIONS DEADLINE — FRIDAY, OCT. 23rd

TORONTO THEOSOPHICAL SOCIETY

52 ISABELLA STREET

SUNDAY — OCTOBER 18 — at 7.30 p.m.

Illustrated Lecture on "The Dead Sea Scrolls" by DR. A. D. TUSHINGHAM, Ph.D. of the Royal Ontario Museum

Lotta Hasch

(Home Ec. 57) says:

My favourite ingredients for success are a growing Savings Account and a good banking connection at...

BANK OF MONTREAL

Canada's First Bank for Students

You'll find these B of M branches especially convenient

Bloor and Bay Sts.

Queen's Park
St. George and Bloor Sts.

KENNETH A. McNEIL, Manager

JOSEPH BURDOCK, Manager
K. S. McKELLAR, Manager

a big step on the road to success is an early banking connection

12-59

Girls

Girls, this is your chance to really make good.

Auditions to pick the 16 beautiful girls for the kick-line at the Blue and White's Homecoming Show, to take place Friday, Oct. 30, will be held Monday night.

Time and place haven't as yet been decided, but they will be announced in Monday's Varsity.

So if you'd like a chance to meet thousands of eligible young males, and have a good time in addition, read Monday's Varsity and drop around for the auditions.

Homecoming Advancing Details Yet Unrevealed

The Producer-Director of this year's edition of the annual Varsity Homecoming Show last night said preparations for the spectacle are well advanced.

But U of T graduate Jim Vasoff immediately added that he could release very few details until Sunday night.

Vasoff explained negotiations for many of the show's featured acts are still in progress, and thus he could reveal no names as yet.

"However," he said, "I can say it will be even better than the smash success Homecoming Show we had in 1957."

Vasoff, who produced the 1957 show, said the 1959 show has been in preparation since last spring.

Highlight of the 1½ hour show will be the crowning of Miss Varsity 1959. The winner, to be chosen at the Homecoming Show from the contest's five finalists, will be representative of the University of Toronto, a Blue and White spokesman said last night.

"She's going to be Miss Typical College—beautiful, intelligent and charming," Homecoming Show Chairman Marilyn Croucher (II Trin) added.

"Other features of the show will be a spectacular opening which will utilize the vast spaces in Varsity Arena, and an act which will see cheerleaders from every college—at least 50 of them—taking part," Vasoff said.

He continued: "There'll be at least 18 acts in the show, and I have 12 of them lined up already."

"And I expect to have the remaining six signed by Sunday night," he added.

Vasoff explained a majority of the acts would be composed of University talent, "such as singer Priscilla Wright (II Trin)".

The show, which will be held in the Arena on Friday, Oct. 30, will be followed by a Pep Rally and Dance in the Drill Hall.

Admission will be 50 cents with ATL cards, and one dollar without.

Eesti Uliopilaskond Torontos

peakoosolek toimub puhapeaval 18 oktoobril kell 5 p.l. korp! Sakala majas — 28 Earl St.

lahem informatsoon — H. Sillastel't RO. 6-4251

Matinée
CANADA'S BEST
FILTER CIGARETTE
top taste
true mildness
best all 'round filter

The Varsity Christian Fellowship in U.C.

Presents

"MAN looks at MAN"

First Discussion: Monday, Oct. 19—1:10 p.m. — Room 44, G.U.C.
"THE GREEK VIEW"
Led by—Rev Thomas Harpur, M.A., B.th.

Today's Formal

Elegant White Satin with straight cut bodice and charming full skirt. Delicate iridescent beading running over one shoulder and bodice.

HELMAR

WA. 1-5978

46 ST. GEORGE STREET

Special Attention — 25% Discount

ON ALL JEWELLERY PURCHASES

Including: Watches, Diamonds, Silverware, Lighters, Wallets, Pens, and Pencils, Radios, Clocks, Costume Jewellery etc. etc. You must have your A.T.L. card when making a purchase.

SHEFFIELD JEWELLERS

DIAMOND MERCHANTS

323 YONGE ST. (5 doors above Dundas)

TEL. EM. 6-0977

DIAMOND RINGS

SAVE THE BIG MARK-UP BY BUYING
YOUR DIAMOND RINGS DIRECT
Satisfaction Guaranteed or Money Refunded

Tel: EMpire 8-5268

WINSTALL DIAMOND CORP.

25 King St. West

1219 Bank of Comm. Bldg.

Toronto, Ontario

MARRIED STUDENTS

Is your wife looking for employment? Attractive opportunities are available nearby.

Telephone EM. 3-1211
Local 22298

COACHING

Calculus, Accounting, Introductory lessons on Theory of Compound Interest, and Life Contingencies.

Call RU. 3-2257 evenings

LESSONS IN PRIVATE LANGUAGE SCHOOL

O. W. BECK

1598 BATHURST ST.
(near St. Clair) RU. 7-4756

DANCE TONIGHT

Oct. 16-8 p.m. "Stag or Drag" Everybody Welcome

INTERNATIONAL STUDENT ORGANIZATION — U.C., Howard Ferguson Hall, 73 St. George Street

Members 50c

Non-Members $1.00

comment

barbara's question

For more than a week now the problem of racial discrimination has been much more to us than an editorial abstraction.

If Barbara Arrington had been a "case" that we had heard about rather than a person for whom we came to feel both admiration and affection it might have been possible for us to affect an air of impartiality, and regard her story as just another item of news.

But it was not possible. Barbara's simple question "What can I do?" forced itself upon us again and again, and even now, when the SAC motion has been passed, it still does so.

What can we as individuals and as members of a university community do?

There were times when "nothing" seemed to be the answer, when we were faced with our own inadequacy, and could see no way to fight injustice except by committing injustice ourselves.

There were times when laws, written and unwritten, seemed to demand our support, others when they seemed to demand our opposition.

Nor could we always trust in individual initiative. We met individuals who rushed to the support of Barbara, but we also met individuals who rushed to the support of unjust and oppressive institutions.

Our hope now is in a combination of laws and individuals working to limit each other. We trust to the individual to oppose unjust laws, as we trust to the law to oppose unjust individuals.

What this means in this specific case is that if a group of individuals such as those which constitute fraternities have committed an injustice, then the law has a grave responsibility to deal severely with them.

But if in so doing, the law itself commits an injustice, it then becomes the responsibility of the individual to oppose the law no matter what the consequences.

For this reason we find ourselves in the paradoxical position of believing both that a motion of the nature of Part 2 of Mr. Dembski's motion will sooner or later have to be passed and that if it is passed it will be our responsibility to oppose it.

These are in a way disturbing conclusions. They assume a constant conflict between the individual and the law in which both elements are sacred. Out of this conflict, justice, we hope, can arise.

The action of the SAC last night has now placed the problem of "what can I do?" squarely before President Bissell.

His problem is not an easy one, nor can we make it easier by suggesting that he take an action that we will later feel ourselves called upon to oppose.

The action of the SAC, however gives us cause to hope that he will react with as much wisdom and courage in his sphere as the council members have displayed in theirs.

SA

On The Meaning Of

by David Lewis Stein

In the four days since The Varsity first broke the story of Barbara Arrington's brush with the practices of the Pan-hellenic League, much has been written about racial discrimination, fraternities, civil rights and politics. National publicity has focused on this campus to a degree I never dreamed of when I first began to work on this story. I was naive enough to believe that the story, the box-score on fraternities and the editorials would raise an issue on the campus that would be debated by the SAC, be decided as The Varsity hoped, arouse and awake the moral consciousness of some students and then gradually fade away.

I have since learned that question of racial discrimination is an extremely volatile one. It requires only a small spark to start a conflagration.

I apologize to no one for the part The Varsity played in starting this fire, but I think it is perhaps a little unfortunate that what I feel to be the real issue had been obscured. A moral victory has been won, and I write now only in the hope of making clear what I believe are the spoils of battle.

In the mass of wordage that has been written and has yet to be written about the two SAC meetings, it is remarkable how little attention has been paid to the speech that Barbara Arrington made to the first meeting of the council.

For beyond any power of a newspaper to editorialize or a council to legislate, she defined the problem and called us all to account for our actions.

When Bobbi said, "I stand before you as a woman of principles," she elevated all that had been written and said to a level far beyond any question of politics or jurisdiction of any legislating body.

For me, at that moment, all I, as an individual working for a newspaper had set out to do, had been accomplished. - What followed last night and what still might come, was only so much "sound and fury".

For Barbara had told us what we had almost forgotten, that the question of racial discrimination is not and has never been a question of politics, civil rights, fair play or even of tolerance.

The question is a moral one.

And the kind of moral judgment that Barbara called upon us to exercise transcends all other moral judgment, public and private.

When she said "I stand before you as a woman of principles" she was telling

Your kisses bring welts

Healthy Healthy Healthy

Tom Lehrer classifies himself as a "parodist". According to the Oxford Dictionary, a parody is composition in which an author's characteristics are ridiculed by imitation.

Mr. Lehrer does not consider his humor as "sick". According to him "sick" humor deals with diseases. Mr. Lehrer mentioned disease only once in the course of the performance he gave at Eaton's Auditorium on October 9th.

But it seems to this reviewer, at least, that a broader interpretation could be put on "sick". Humor in the United States, following the MacCarthy hearings and the election of President Eisenhower, suffered a blight. Political jokes were taboo on television and radio and humor became tepid and dull.

There has always been an undercurrent of irreverence in American humor. Comedians such as Will Rogers and humorists like Robert Benchley attacked the government and established institutions with incisive irony.

During the Eisenhower Administration the undercurrent ran so far underground that it almost disappeared entirely. But it was still there and finally it burst out in 1957 with the rash of so-called "sick jokes". In these jokes, not only were established institutions attacked but motherhood and traditions which had hitherto been sacrosanct even to the brilliant humorists and satirists of the 20's became subjects for jokes.

Such jokes as "Apart from that Mrs. Lincoln, how did you enjoy the play?" and "Mommy, why do I keep going around in circles? Shut up or I'll nail your other foot to the floor," were repeated everywhere and eventually became the subject for learned articles in national magazines.

The humor emphasized the grotesque and the profane and found in them the element of the absurd that brings laughter. It was during this era of "sick jokes" that the first record by Tom Lehrer appeared and without any significant advertising spread across the country.

The sick jokes have gradually died down but Tom Lehrer has remained. His humor has survived the grotesque and absurd of the "sick jokes" and gained a permanent place in our humorous literature.

Perhaps one of the principle reasons for Mr. Lehrer's success is his unerring sense of showmanship. He began his program by announcing that he had been asked to introduce Tom Lehrer. Since this was his first appearance in Toronto, the gag worked and most of the audience sat respectfully while Tom Lehrer introduced Tom Lehrer as one of the greatest creative geniuses that the United States has ever produced. When he was finished with his introduction, Mr. Lehrer said, "And now without further ado, Tom Lehrer" and sat down at the piano.

He began his program with parodies of various types of popular songs. And this device of taking one particular type of song, such as the love song, and burlesquing it in all its different forms, was carried on through the whole program.

It justified Mr. Lehrer's claim to be a parodist, but there was more than just ridicule of an author's characteristics in his songs.

When he parodied the torrid brand of love song with the "Masochist's Tango" he was attacking more than just an over-exaggerated type of emotion. Such lines as "Your kisses bring welts like nobody else" and "Let our love be a flame and not an ember, say it's me you want to dismember" are more than just attacks on a type of song.

We asked Mr. Lehrer whether his biting attack on the Boy Scouts in the "Boy Scouts Marching Song" was made from any base. We wanted to know whether he had some kind of overall program that he would like to advocate or whether he just didn't like Boy Scouts.

Mr. Lehrer replied that he personally didn't have anything against the Boy Scouts. He said, "They do some good things, I suppose. It's just that everyone else takes them so seriously. I just don't think people should take anything too seriously."

And this perhaps is the key to Mr. Lehrer's success. The grotesque and the absurd are present in his song, but with little of the viciousness of the "sick jokes". His sick humor is, for lack of a better word, "healthy".

The healthy irreverence has returned to American humor and in the case of Mr. Lehrer it has also been accompanied by good taste. The "sick joke" was a reaction against five years of blight and was an excess necessary to break through the unnatural restraint that had been imposed on laughter. And now that their purpose has been accomplished, Tom Lehrer remains to reinstate irreverent humor to its proper stature.

Mr. Lehrer's lyrics are sharp and ingenious. For me the high point of the evening was a parody of the old-time revival hymn which stated the case for science which had progressed to the point that when the "bomb" comes, we will all go up to heaven together. Mr. Lehrer made his point with such lines as "What a significant achievement, universal bereavement" and "Just sing out a Te Deum when you see the I.C.B.M. and we'll all go up together".

Mr. Lehrer has a remarkably flexible voice that he uses to underline the lyrics of his songs. When singing a minuet, his voice is high and effete and when doing a western ballad he adopts a wonderful twanging accent.

Mr. Lehrer's sure sense of showmanship assures him of a prominent place as an entertainer and his brilliant wit ensures him of a permanent place in the ranks of American humorists.

David Lewis Stein

THE VARSITY

FOUNDED 1880

Published by
The Students' Administrative Council
of the University of Toronto
Toronto 5, Canada

Member Canadian University Press
Editorial and News Office

Basement, SAC Building — WA. 3-8742, WA. 3-8113

Editor-in-Chief
Managing Editors
News Editor
Features Editor
Sports Editor
AM&D Editor
Photography Editor
CUP Editor
Publicity Editor
Associate News Editors

Sam Aizenstat
Harvey Shepherd, Susie Breslin
Ed Roberts
David Lewis Stein
Dave Griner
Elmo Ciprietti
Andy Stabins
Alan Walker
Kay McCook
Terry Bourke, Jayne Nesbitt

TODAY'S ISSUE: Although we lost numerous staffers to the SAC meeting, we still saw Peter Allen, Stan Barron, George Harpur, Sheldon Greenburg, Phil Palter (artist), Fred Host, Bob Shuster (who runs copy), Barry Zimmerman (who wears a beard), Gene Glusky (who's only here by special request), Dave Humphries, Paul Robinson, Sheila Swerling, Philip Nicholas, Doug Marshall, Walter McLean, Peter Dembski, Stan Dubas, Virginia Lomax, Mike Sherman, numerous other SAC members whose names we have unfortunately forgotten, and yes Elizabeth Addison, there is a Santa Claus.

Victory

Cream at the Crest

comment

Tongue-Twistful Thomas Treat

was. She was defining not but what is human in all I know of no finer definition than "a woman being" than "a woman being".

question before the council, the council to every student university, was not whether an been done to a Negro but justice had been done to a in which Barbara put to each "If this were an injustice could I oppose it? If I would, oppose it being done toington".

has, I believe, acted to the responsibility. To have gone would have been to destroy had already been gained. answered a moral question.

has spoken in the name of of this university. It still each individual student to question Barbara put before first SAC meeting.

through The Varsity and burst of publicity that has the wake of the Tuesday Varsity, that that many become more fully aware of racial discrimination. I hope mbers of those fraternities with written discriminatory lose with unwritten discrimination, will answer, as individuation that Barbara Arrington em.

at I hoped to accomplish part in bringing this whole to the public.

that those who participated and all those who support will understand that we oppose an injustice against creed or color. We opposed against a "woman with prin-has been a victory, then the victory that has been

"It is spring, moonless night in the small town, starless and bible-black, the cobblestones silent and the haunched, couters'-and-rabbits' wood limping invisible down to the shoeblack, slow, black, crowblack, fishingboat-bobbing sea."

These are opening lines of Under Milk Wood, a 'play for voices' which opened Wednesday night at the Crest Theatre. They were written, of course, by the late Dylan Thomas, an artist who possessed the unique talent for creating a complete and vivid picture of life with a few deft strokes of the hand.

The difficulties encountered in this production are numerous, and I admire the Crest for attempting such an unorthodox approach to drama, because Under Milk Wood is a play of words, not action. Fifty-seven voices in all weave in and out of this fantastic, poetic, dream world. To unite these parts, and to adequately convey the original intentions of the author present quite a challenge, and if the reaction of the audience on the first night is any indication, the production, on the whole, is a successful one.

There is very little scenery on stage (two drooping trees and a clothesline), throwing the entire burden of communication upon the cast. Yet the barren stage is effective in that it doesn't distract from the rich and colorful fabric of the author's poetry, which creates such description and background that anything else would be superfluous.

The entire cast sits on the stage, and appears whenever their parts come up. Most of the costume changing is done right in front of the audience, from the clotheine, and this is at first puzzling, yet we soon forget these distractions as the words of Dylan Thomas dominate the stage. There is some pantomime, but the main action lies in the emotional and dramatic power of the verse.

Under Milk Wood is the evocation of a Welsh town-that-never-was (but is now), from midnight to midnight. And during that span of a single day, the author has captured the entire lives of every inhabitant of Llaregyb Hill.

Powys Thomas, the director, also plays the important and meaty role of the narrator, who introduces and describes each character in the play. He has so much to say that he tends to rush his lines, and fails to vary the tone of his voice enough to do justice to the range of emotional situations evoked by the author. However, when he forgets himself and becomes involved in the impact of the language, he holds the audience in the verbal palm of his hand.

One of the best performances is that of William Needles, who plays the part of Captain Cat, "the retired blind sea captain, asleep in his bunk in the seashelled, ship-in-bottle, shipshape best cabin of Schconer House, dreaming . . ." Mr. Needles is also seen in the role of one of the voices, and in his attempt to contrast the two characters, his second interpretation is rather lifeless.

A consistently moving character on stage is that of Polly Garter, a lovable and sensitive person, portrayed by Norma Renault, who never plays her part, but becomes that person. Polly gives us some of the best examples of the author's genius for profound yet brief sentences, such as her words to her baby: "Oh, isn't life a terrible thing, thank God?"

It is to be expected that there would be some mumbling and fumbling for lines, especially on opening night, and it must be remembered that the majority of the cast carry four or five parts, and do exceptionallly well in keeping them separate. But for these occasional slips, the actors skillfully pour out the turning, tripping, yearning, wistful, tongue-twistful verse of Dylan Thomas. If there was any doubt before about the talent of the author, Under Milk Wood should acclaim Dylan Thomas as a man with the genius for creating mood, description, character and action with clarity and conciseness never before achieved with words. Who else could have said so much with so little, as in the following picture of a boy who refused to kiss a girl: "And the shrill girls giggle and muster around him and squeal as they clutch and thrash, and he blubbers away downhill with his patched pants falling, and his tear-splashed bluburns all the way as the triumphant bird-like sisters scream with buttons in their claws and the bully brothers hoot after him his little nickname and his mother's shame . . ."

The question arises whether Under Milk Wood is suitable to the stage. Originally it was a radio play on the B.B.C., and later adapted for dramatization. The poetic quality of the work is so great that little can be done to further communicate it. However, the added sense of sight does lend a visual unity which might be lost owing to the large number of parts. Image upon image is thrown to the audience, and the latter has to be extremely attentive to catch the musical magic of the lines, which flow forth in the strong, virile language of life. Without this effort of the audience (and I don't think it is too much to ask), the communication is lost.

The production of Under Milk Wood at the Crest Theatre is a pleasant and fascinating journey to the wonderful world of Dylan Thomas, and although the ride is quite bumpy at times, it is well worth the aesthetic bruises.

Philip Nicholas

Marylou Cohese With Ease

Marlian Church was the site of a recital given by Kenneth Marylou Waves, violin and piano. The program proved to be the highlight of the evening. The contemporary Toronto composer, Alexander Scriabin, was featured. In fact it was so well received that it was repeated as an encore concert. The work has a reminiscent of Stravinsky's Concertantes. The style is typically inspired with relaxed dissonances and much of the motif used throughout is attractive in its twists and turns. The second fast section, searing and especially notable as a tremolo attacks of the slower section. The program also included a Larghetto by Mr. Perkins made good use of the piano to display a fine, one. The Mozart Sonata in G from the year of Don Juan. The new problems however, mostly concerning the balance of the two solo instruments. The voluptuous brilliance of Miss Dawes' playing seemed at time to relegate the violin line to an accompaniment. Nevertheless, the sonata emerged quite successfully due to the secure rhythmic balance and unity of conception exhibited by the pair.

The Poeme of Ernest Chausson is beginning to sound like a dusty relic of an age of virtuoso violinists. Mr. Perkins did nothing to dispell this impression despite his ease with the formidable technical demands of this work.

Although written in Brahms' last year, the Sonata in D minor should not be taken as the testament of a senile old man, but as the creation of a man who is still thrilled with the feeling of life and only slightly more mellow in style than the works of his younger days. In this Duo Mr. Perkins and Miss Dawes did cohesse well with regard to over-all style. In future, however, Mr. Perkins would do well to remove some of the gentlemanly timidity which presently mars his playing.

Paul Robinson

operatic memorandum

The current engagement of the Canadian Opera Company at the Royal Alexandra is running into the embarrassing situation of having less-than-capacity houses for its three artistically satisfying productions. Last night's performance of Rossini's Barber of Seville, which was rather poorly attended will be reviewed in Monday's Varsity. Photographed at right are Patricia Snell as Rosina and Andrew MacMillan as Seville's famed Dr. Bartolo. The festival will continue through next week, with good seats at regular and student rates available for all performances, which start at 2 p.m. and 8.15 p.m.

Tonight: Prokofiev's satirical fairy-tale comedy, The Love for Three Oranges will be repeated under the baton of Walter Susskind.

October 17: The Barber of Seville, in English (matinee). Verdi's La Forza del Destino, in Italian (evening)

October 19: The Barber of Seville.

October 20: La Forza del Destino.

October 21: Matinee of "The Love for Three Oranges", "Barber of Seville" in the evening

October 22: The Love for Three Oranges

October 23: La Forza del Destino.

October 24: Matinee, The Love for Three Oranges, evening

Scraps Collected From The Cutting Room Floor

The age of mass entertainment is upon us. It's really quite amazing how many people have never read a good book, attended a concert, gone to an art show, or even seen a stage play in their lives. It's also remarkable that so few of these same people have never seen a movie. The film medium, as Bud Schulberg has so aptly described it, is "the greatest common denominator". Everybody goes to the movies. Even babies, to the intense annoyance of the more seasoned patrons.

Since it reaches such a huge segment of the population, and in particular the younger generation within that segment, the motion picture has had the strongest censorship of all the arts imposed on it.

Only last week I heard that a short subject entitled, "The Mechanics of Love" had been seized by the New York censors upon its return from a European booking, and summarily despatched to the purifying influence of the bonfire. Well, I can't offer any defense for this film, because I haven't seen it. But I've heard about it and it sounds far more childish than pornographic—the sexual act symbolized by hammers driving in nails, a pile-driver pounding a steel post, and nonsense like that. And anyway, I'm not in favour of total abolishment of censorship. However vicariously thrilling the full portrayal of the sexual act may be, I still have basically a do-it-yourself Weltanschauung.

I have a fairly vivid recollection of my initial exposure to the liveliest art. It was in Ottawa in 1942. Germany had invaded the Soviet Union the previous year, and now those "goddamned Reds" were suddenly our friends. The policies and the ideology of the U.S.S.R. were whitewashed to an acceptable parlor pink, and various groups, the most prominent of which was the "Friends of the Soviet Union," organized massive cultural exchanges in an attempt to show us just what our new-found friends were like.

I suppose that during that period a great many of the old Russian film classics were brought back to thrill us again; I don't know for sure. All I remember are two very short scenes from films playing on the same program. The first showed stocky Slavic types performing the simple athletic exercises we are all familiar with from our high school days (those remote, prehistoric times!). The second scene showed a kindly, armor-clad Russian treacherously stabbed in the neck by a nasty Russian serving the cause of the Teutonic Order.

The film, in case you haven't already guessed, was "Alexander Nevsky". The director, Sergei Eisenstein, had completed this, his first sound movie in the epic manner, in 1938. A year later, the Molotov-Ribbentrop Pact was signed, and "Alexander Nevsky", which contained a none-too-subtly disguised warning to the Germans to stay out of the "Russian Land", or else, was quietly shelved by the Soviet commissars.

Of course, I wasn't aware of all these political convolutions at the time: after all, I was only five years old, and all the war meant to me was food rationing. I haven't recovered from that yet.

About ten years later I saw "Alexander Nevsky" again. The title meant nothing to me, all I knew about the picture was that it had a horrendous battle sequence in it, and let's face it, at the time I loved nothing so much as a good old-fashioned knock-down battle on the ice. Still do, as a matter of fact.

The battle lived up to my every expectation. Then suddenly a scene began which looked familiar. It was the foul play scene I had seen ten years previously, and my delight was positively traumatic.

Like most other people I went through a bitterly anti-Hollywood period, but fortunately I grew out of it. I quite agree that the major studios present little else than earned opiates for the masses, but it's a business, and I don't quarrel too vehemently with it. I like my bread and circuses as much as the next man. That's why I have little sympathy with the intellectual esoteric-élite who advocate the abolishment of Hollywood and all she stands go somewhere else, but I can certainly exist adequately on what is here.

What I'm saying is that Hollywood isn't hurting anyone, except when it descends to propaganda, and then it is just as dangerous as any of the totalitarian countries. If I favored any kind of censorship, it would be one which curbed this practice.

In a rambling, personal article such as this, it's impossible to discuss what films are in general, and in particular what the so-called "art movie" is. Perhaps later I'll try to talk about this extremely complicated subject, if I can ever raise enough energy to slip a sheet of paper into the typewriter. Right now it's time to conclude my observations as little lamely as possible.

A great many people have felt that the sudden rise of television has struck a death blow at the motion picture industry, as it had in its time demolished vaudeville. I don't think this is the case at all. Vaudeville was a fossilized art form, unable to adapt to new conditions. Its demise was almost predestined. But the film medium has multitudinous possibilities and competent talents to put those possibilities to use. Television is a grave challenge. Hollywood has discovered that her tried and true formulas are not enough any more to restore the incredible shrinking box-office to a healthy state. Now she has to pull up her socks, put a new cover on her casting couches, and present her audiences with more controversial themes. In fact, the slogan: "Movies are better than ever" may become an actual fact, thanks to the cutthroat competition offered by television.

But they have a long way to go before they can even match up to the great classics of the past, when movies were young and filmmakers pulled no punches. It's too easy to become overconfident.

Warren Wilson.

Toshro Mifune in Magnificent Seven which will be shown this Sunday by the U of T Film Society.

for, and substituting a continual diet of avant-garde nightmares. Gentlemen, why take half measures? Why not get rid of Loblaw's stores as well? Basically, the two businesses are the same: both try to reach a large consumer market with attractive canned products, and both expect to make lavish profits in so doing. Have you ever seen those Loblaw's displays? Now there's real entertainment for you. I could wander through those aisles for hours. I know that within those glossy wrappers are all sorts of wonders to delight my senses, and if I search carefully enough, I may even come across a few surprises. Of course, if I want more nourishing food at a smaller outlay, I'll

The University of Toronto Film Society starts off its 13th season this Sunday, October 18, at the Astor Theatre, Yonge and Charles Streets.

The featured film will be Kurosawa's epic of 17th Century Japan, "The Magnificent Seven", starring Toshro Mifune.

Season tickets, at $5.00 each, are still available from the S.A.C. Office. All showings start at 2.15 p.m.

Oct. 18—THE MAGNIFICENT SEVEN, Japan

Nov. 1—MARIUS, France

Nov. 15—VOLPONE, France

Nov. 29—IVAN THE TERRIBLE (PART 2), USSR

Dec. 13—CONFESSIONS OF FELIX KRULL, Germany

Jan. 17—GREED, USA

Jan. 13—NINOTCHKA, USA

Feb. 14—THE MEDIUM, Italy

Feb. 28—THE DOOR IN THE WALL, UK

Mar. 13—TO BE ANNOUNCED

HART HOUSE*WEEK-END

Saturday, 10 a.m. — U of T TABLE TENNIS TOURNAMENT, Hart House Main Gym
Caledon Hills Farm: Hart House Glee Club

NEXT WEEK

MONDAY, October 19th:

7.15 p.m. Revolver Club — Rifle Range

TUESDAY, October 20th:

8.00 a.m. Holy Communion — Chapel

7.00 p.m. Glee Club Full Rehearsal, DEBATES ROOM

7.00 p.m. Art Class — Art Gallery

7.15 p.m. Bridge — East Common Room

8.00 p.m. Archery — Rifle Range

WEDNESDAY, October 21st:

12.15 p.m. Noon-Day Prayers — Chapel

1.00 p.m. INTRODUCTORY LECTURE IN SQUASH — Music Room, Derek Boquet

5.00 p.m. WEDNESDAY FIVE O'CLOCK RECITAL—Music Room

Paul Brodie—Saxophonist

7.00 p.m. Table Tennis — Fencing Room

7.15 p.m. Revolver Club—Rifle Range

8.00 p.m. Exploration Society Open Meeting—

Debates—Film on Antarctica

THURSDAY, October 22nd:

8.00 a.m. Holy Communion — Chapel

5.15 p.m. Record Room Instruction—Record Rm.

7.00 p.m. Art Class — Art Gallery

8.00 p.m. Archery — Rifle Range

8.00 p.m. DEBATE — Debates Room — "The Welfare State Inevitably Saps Individual Initiative" Visitors: United Kingdom Debating Team

SUNDAY, October 25th

9.00 p.m. SUNDAY EVENING CONCERT—

Great Hall — Ezra Schabas, Clarinet

Ann Stephenson, Soprano; —

Leo Barkin, Piano

MEDS CHALLENGES SKULE

— in —
BASKETBALL — VOLLEYBALL — WATER POLO — SQUASH
— at —
PANACEA

MEDS ANNUAL FALL DANCE — FRIDAY, OCT. 16, 8.30 p.m.
SPLASH PARTY IN POOL FOR ALL — 10-12 p.m.

WELCOME, GAMBLERS, to

LAS VEGAS NIGHT

TONIGHT, 8.30 p.m.

In the Drill Hall, 119 St. George St.

Diamond Jehn, the notorious Riverboat gambler, has just arrived with his Barkers, Molls and genuine honky tonk pianists to run the house.

All sorts of gambling games, plus food and drink cheap.

ALL PROCEEDS FOR UNITED APPEAL

We'll Even Accept Your Winnings!

HART HOUSE THEATRE'S FIFTY-FIRST ALL-UNIVERSITY PRODUCTION

Lillian Hellman's

THE LITTLE FOXES

Directed by
Robert Gill

SAT., OCT. 24th, to SAT., OCT. 31st, at 8.30

STUDENT SUBSCRIPTIONS STILL AVAILABLE—$3.00 FOR FOUR PRODUCTIONS

Same Special
Student Rate — $1.00

Two Tickets Only
On Each A.T.L. Card

All Aboard

At least 600 cheering Varsity Blues' fans will leave tomorrow morning on the football train for Queen's University.

The SAC office and Hart House Athletic office report tickets are selling well but there are still 700 tickets to be sold today.

Tickets for the train and the game or the train alone are available in the SAC office and game tickets are at the Hart House office.

Starring in Person
CHRIS BARBER

("The petite fleur" band)
Eaton Auditorium
Wed., Oct. 28 — 8.30 p.m.
(Reserved seats $1.75, $2.75 at Auditorium, A & A. Promenade)

jazz!

HOUSE OF HAMBOURG
GRENVILLE at YONGE

Fri. & Sat: 11.00 p.m.—3.30 a.m.
Sunday: 9.00 p.m.—12.00 a.m.

JAZZ

AT THE GALLEIN
IT'S DIXIE

Friday — to Bob Stagg
Saturday — to Jeff Berry
Swing Sunday to Bud Hill
STUDENTS half price Friday
—50c (Big deal they say in the hip world.)

2 Berti Street
(2 Bks. E. Yonge off Queen)
Fri. 10 to 2; Sat. and sun.
Starts 9

Jazz At United Appeal

Peter Appleyard, well-known Toronto jazz musician, will head the program at a noon jazz concert in aid of the University of Toronto United Appeal Oct. 16 - 30 campaign, UA officials announced yesterday.

Campaign Is Optimistic
But Bloody Pessimistic

Things look both optimistic and pessimistic for the Red Cross blood campaign which starts on campus today.

"If students honor their pledge cards, the campus goal of 4,500 pints will be met," Nancy Davidson, SAC Student Service Commissioner, said last night. 4,500 pints will supply Toronto with enough blood for three weeks.

The campaign got off to a bad start on Tuesday when only ten out of 30 pledges turned up at an advance clinic for Law. However, Desmond O'Rourke, Law SAC Representative, told the SAC meeting Wednesday that Law reprobates will fulfill their pledges at a second Law blood clinic scheduled for Oct. 26.

With the quota up 2,000 pints over last year and in the face of poor response for the last several years, Miss Davidson urged donors to keep their appointments. "The whole process only takes half an hour," she said.

Students who have not yet pledged blood can go to any clinic at any time or to 67 College St. between noon and 3:30 p.m. during the Oct. 16-30 campaign, she said.

The concert at Convocation Hall on Oct. 22, will also feature singer Joyce Sullivan, Mike White and his Imperial Jazz Band, Bud Hill, and the UC Sky-Way Singers. MC will be CKFH disc jockey Phil McKellar. Admission is free but a collection will be taken.

U of T UA objective is $6,500. This is part of the city goal of $9,000,000 which will be divided among 88 Toronto charities.

On Tag Day, Oct. 31, fraternity girls will collect contributions along the Homecoming Float Parade route and at Varsity Stadium.

Friend: My wife can be an angel when she wants to be.

Man: Mine, too; any time, now.

here and now*TODAY

1.10 p.m. — The SCM preparatory group for the Christmas Ecumenical Conference holds its first meeting at the SCM Coach House, 110 St. George St. The meeting will be led by Rev. W. Bothwell.

3.10 p.m. — An SCM preparatory study group for the Christmas Ecumenical Conference holds a meeting at Canterbury Centre, 95 St. George St., led by Miss Nancy Holman.

SUNDAY

2.30 p.m. — A meeting of the Polish Students' Club will be held at the Polish Combatants Hall, 206 Beverley St.

7 and 8.30 p.m. — A student service followed by a welcome to the Campus Club by University of Toronto president Claude T. Bissell will be held at Bloor St. United Church. Dr. House will be the second speaker.

8.45 p.m. — SCM will hold a fireside featuring a play-reading preparatory to the Tuesday lecture on Camus. Everyone is welcome to the SCM coach house for an evening of fellowship.

MONDAY

1.10 p.m. — The preparatory group for the Christmas Ecumenical Conference holds a meeting at the Chaplain's office, Hart Hse. The meeting will be led by Jim Henderson.

3.10 p.m. — A preparatory group for the Christmas Ecumenical Conference will hold its first meeting in room 14, Victoria College, led by Keith Dixon.

8 p.m. — The German Language Club of the University of Toronto invites all students interested in improving their German conversation to an evening of fun at the Club's first meeting. The place will be the Wymulwood Music Room, Victoria College. A film will be shown, followed by the election of officers, games and refreshments.

Jazz at Chelsea — 22 Sheppard St.

EM. 3-2336

STARTS AT 12.00

FRIDAY — Bud Hill Quintet

SATURDAY — John Swan's Fabulous Quartet

SUNDAY — Dixieland (9-12)

University College

THE ALEXANDER LECTURES

By Professor Geoffrey Bullough, King's College, U. of London

"MIRROR OF MINDS"

(Changing Psychological Assumptions as Reflected in English Poetry)

Monday, Oct. 19, to Friday, Oct. 23, Inclusive

1. Conflict in the Microcosm
2. Shakespeare on the Mind
3. Reason and Unreason
4. Intimations of Immortality
5. The Individual and the Racial Image

HART HOUSE THEATRE, at 4.30 p.m.

HILLEL

FRIDAY EVE — OCTOBER 16 — 8.30 p.m.

Paper by Gerald Cooper on

"Proselytism — Its Modern Implications"

SUNDAY EVE — OCTOBER 18 — 9.00 p.m.

Dr. Aaron Kamerling Will Speak

CARABIN APPLICATIONS — SAC OFFICE NOW!

"a classic"

Lovely Boosts Ticket Sales

The University of Toronto Film Society launched a publicity stunt in University College Junior Common Room Wednesday by staging what amounted to a one-girl burlesque show.

Just as UC students were eating lunch at noon, the huge oak doors of the Common Room swung open.

In came Gerry Sperling, technical director of the society, trailed by a pretty blond, Linda Dees (III UC) decked out in a blue raincoat.

Miss Dees strolled over to a table, climbed up, and while everyone gaped, let her coat fall to the ground revealing a shapely figure in a red and white bathing suit.

The JCR was quiet for a moment.

Then a series of cheers, whistles and cat calls echoed through the air.

When the noise finally died down, Sperling began plugging the attributes of the film society, saying Miss Dees "had many film tickets concealed on her person and would willingly sell them to any takers."

Looking at his walking female advertisement, Sperling said she was "following in the tradition of Sergei Eisenstein—a real classic". He appealed to the intelligentsia present to help create for Miss Dees what he called "a classic atmosphere".

Later Miss Dees bounced in and out of the male section of the audience selling tickets and raking in money.

The U of T Film Society is an active member of the Canadian Federation of Film Societies. The organization shows outstanding movie classics which can not be seen in local commercial theatres.

The Society also boasts a production group complete with a 16 mm camera.

The Society has made four films, two of them winning honors at the Canadian Film Awards.

LOVELY LINDA Dees promotes ticket sales for this year's University of Toronto Film Society series. The publicity stunt was in University College's Junior Common Room yesterday. (VSP Stabins)

RED CROSS CLINIC DATES FOR DONORS

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 16 — VICTORIA

Margaret Addison Hall — Auditorium
9.30 - 11.30 a.m. 1.30 - 4 p.m.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 19 — VICTORIA & EMMANUEL
Margaret Addison Hall — 9.30 - 11.30 a.m. 1 - 4 p.m.

MUSIC and MEDS

67 College Street — 12.00 - 3.30 5.30 - 8.00

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 20 — MEDS & MUSIC
67 College Street — 12.00 - 3.30

NURSING, KNOX and ARCHITECTURE

Sir Daniel Wilson Auditorium — 9.30 - 11.15 1 - 4

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 21 — MEDS

Hart House — 9.30 - 11.15 1 - 4

U.C., P.O.T., P.H.E.

Sir Daniel Wilson — 9.30 - 11 1 - 4

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 22 — U.C., P.O.T., P.H.E.

Sir Daniel Wilson — 9.30 - 12 2 - 4

DENTS and PHARMACY

67 College Street — 10 - 12 3.30 - 5

TYPEWRITERS

$1.00 A WEEK BUYS . . .

. . . $1.50 A WEEK RENTS

Get a free typing course and a liberal trade-in allowance for your old typewriter when you buy a new modern machine from us.

Phone HO. 1-1843 Today

...GIVE BLOOD!

Sports * Trophies * Games

Before you Buy give WILSON'S

a try

The HAROLD A. WILSON

CO. OF TORONTO LTD.

328 DUPONT STREET

WHOLESALE PRICES TO

EVERYONE

SOCCER
North	12.30	SPS. IV	vs	SPS. III	Bonfield
South	4.15	Pharm	vs	Law	Hansen
FOOTBALL
East	4.00	Sr. SPS	vs	U.C.	Stokes, Chapnick, McCulloch
West	4.00	Dent	vs	St. M. E	Abella, Flancman, Kolodzie
VOLLEYBALL
	1.00	St. M. II	vs	SPS. C	Pomerant

GAMES TODAY (MEN'S)

PLEASE NOTE:

RE: VARSITY at QUEENS Sat., Oct. 17th

Special Train Leaves at 8.30 a.m. Toronto Time — Due at Kingston 12.00 a.m.

(This is half an hour earlier than previously advertised)

If we do not see you

On the Special in the morning

We did at least invite you

Even if still yawning!

The train arrangements for this trip are certainly the best

Back here in Toronto — same day

For a good night's rest!

Why not spend $6.00 train fare

And see things for yourself

The cost of entrance to the game

Depends upon your wealth.

SUPPORT
THE VARSITY
BLUES

The Athletic and SAC Offices are able to help you with tickets just so long as they last

CHEER WITH YOUR CHEERLEADERS

MUSIC
BY THE
BLUE & WHITE
BAND

N.B. — The colour party will join the band at half-time.

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS

BASKETBALL

League I	League II	League III
PHE III	Medis	POTS I
St. Hilda's Jr. Sr.	PHE II	U.C. Sophs
St. Mike's A	St. Hilda's Sophs	Vic Jr. Sr.
Vic Sophs		O.C.E.
League IV	League V	League VI
PHE I	St. Mike's B	Pharmacy
St. Hilda's Freshies	Vic Freshies I	U.C. Jr. Sr.
U.C. Freshies	Nursing Jr.	POTS II
Vic Fresh II	Dentistry	Nursing Sr.

Game and Practice Schedule—Week of Oct. 19—Oct. 23.

O.C.E. Mon. Oct. 19 5.30—O.C.E. - Vic. Jr. Sr. (Hutt, Patterson) 6.30—Nursing Jr. 7.30—St. Hilda's Jr. Sr. 8.30—St. Hilda's Freshies

Wed. Oct. 21 5.30—Medis - PHE II (Kanep, Clousen) 6.30—POT I - U.C. Sophs (Kanep, Clousen) PHE I - St. Hilda's Freshies (Russell, Philpott) 8.30—U.C. Freshies - Vic Fr. II (Russell, Philpott)

Tues. Oct. 20 5.30—O.C.E. - Vic. Jr. Sr. (Hunt, Wood) 6.30—Nursing Jr. 7.30—St. Hilda's Jr. Sr. 8.30—St. Hilda's Freshies

Thurs. Oct. 22 5.30—St. Mike's - Vic Freshies I (Atkinson, McLeod) 6.30—Nursing Jr. - Dentistry (Atkinson, McLeod) 7.30—Nursing Sr. - POT II (Black, Kidd) 8.30—Pharmacy - U.C. Jr. Sr. (Black, Kidd)

L.M. Mon. Oct. 19 5.30—St. Hilda's S. PHE I 6.30—PHE II 7.30—Pharmacy 8.30—Dentistry

Tues. Oct. 20 5.30—St. Hilda's S. PHE I 6.30—PHE II 7.30—Pharmacy 8.30—Dentistry

Wed. Oct. 21 5.30—Nursing Sr. 6.30—POT I 7.30—POT II 8.30—U.C. Jr. Sr.

Thurs. Oct. 22 5.30—Medis 6.30—POT I 7.30—U.C. Freshies 8.30—U.C. Sophs

There will be a meeting of the basketball representatives on Friday, Oct. 23 at 1 p.m. in the Lower Gym of the Women's Athletic Building.

(WOMEN'S) SOFTBALL SCHEDULE FOR WEEK OF OCT. 19

Varsity Varsity Trinity

Mon. Oct. 19 Med. vs D. Hyg. Pharm vs St. Mike's B

Tues. Oct. 20 Nurs. vs PHE I Vic II vs U.C.

Wed. Oct. 21 Vic I vs St. Mike's A St. Hilda's vs PHE II

Thur. Oct. 22 St. Mike's B vs Meds D. Hyg. vs Pharm

Fri. Oct. 23 POTS vs PHE I Vic II vs Nurs.

All games are played at Varsity Stadium or Trinity Field from 1-2 p.m. Please try to be on time. Default Time—1.20 p.m. Home team is last team mentioned. (e.g. D. Hyg.).

WOMEN'S SOFTBALL PRACTICES

Varsity Stadium

Mon. Oct. 19—Nursing, PHE I
Tues. Oct. 20—Pharmacy, PHE II
Wed. Oct. 21—POTS
Thur. Oct. 22—PHE I
Fri. Oct. 23—PHE II

(WOMEN'S) ARCHERY CLUB

The Interfaculty Outdoor Tournament begins today, Oct. 16th and runs through all Tuesday, Oct. 20. You don't have to be a Robin Hood to enter, so come and join the fun.

Bring a friend and shoot your college or faculty to victory. See you on one of those days at the stadium!

Soccer Blues Whip Ryerson

The Soccer Blues continued on their winning way with a 4-2 victory over Ryerson on the front campus yesterday afternoon. Ryerson, who gained promotion to the Senior League this season, showed lots of hustle and enthusiasm with the result that it took the Varsity team a little while to settle into anything like a smoothly moving side.

Toronto gradually took command and secured a one goal lead before the interval. Roger Peretz was the marksman. Peretz netted two more in the second half as Varsity continued to press home their outfield advantage. Mike Mahon who has scored in every game so far counted again to make the Toronto total of four. Late in the game Emil Primorac and Eddie Csongradi sustained injuries which may keep them from making the trip to Montreal to meet McGill on Saturday.

Primorac has badly bruised ribs while Csongradi has a hip injury. Ryerson staged a rally in the closing minutes of the game and with Toronto playing a man short managed to find the Blues net twice. Paul Avis who missed today's game because of a field trip will be in the line-up for tomorrow's match with McGill. Chris Carr will be called up from the Intermediate ranks to help fill the gaps caused by injuries.

The Blues leave for Montreal from Union Station this afternoon at 4:30 p.m.

ACH NOD, LADDIE, YE WOULD NAE BE THINKIN' O' TAKIN' OOT ON ME WOULD YE ??

THORNTON.

One Eyed Benny Says Blues 33-7

It is being a sad and deserved fate which awaits me when I am arriving at the annual clambake of all the world's bookmakers. I do not even expect it and I am nonplussed when it happens which is not the way to show a profit or anything.

But they pay me no heed, let alone the heavy tribute which I come to expect from my underlings and others who avail themselves of the use of my prodigious mind in making their own calls. This is hurting all the more since it is a technique which I develop even earlier than my dear friend and booze companion Scarface Al invents the "ride" and I do not care to be repaid in my own coin since I never carry more than $50 in cash but am usually stashing cheques from various travellers.

All this is coming about and around because of the speech before the convention in which I refer to the terrible things which my own Benny-chosen Blues do to the Queen's whom I refer to as "the Three-Coloured Laddies from Quennie U". This is causing an uproar inasmuch as it seems my buddy Frosty Phineas from Iglooville some time ago corners the Chameleon racing concession and his star performers are having even more different colours than the Gaels and my comments are amounting to prejudice against them which is something like fixing a race and Phineas does not like this as he vows that he never sets up a boatrace in his life and all his operations are on the level.

Old Frosty is so enraged that he calls for a vote on a motion to expel Old Me from the Friendly Reunion of Atrophied Tipsters (FRAT). However, when it is reported that one of my snivelly sidekicks and dopy-runners from The Varsity is in the convention through all the books fall into line. It is being 33 little blackballs for the Varsity and a mere seven approving votes for the Scotties who blanch in fear when they see the might of my own Rejuvenated Bluesers.

At Western it is a horse of another colour and since I am twice as shy since I am being once burned I steer clear.

Track Team

Coach Fred Foote last night named the following 38 students to represent the University at the Senior Intercollegiate Track Championships at McMaster on October 21.

They are: G. Ashby, W. Blair, A. Berereton, W. Crothers, E. Carmichael, D. Cook, A. Conway, V. Crawford, M. Copeland, J. Druckheck, B. Gregory, J. Griffin, B. Hutzel, S. Irwin, E. Moskal, E. Jackson, G. McTaggart, R. McElligot, K. Money, J. Roos, E. Robertson, F. McNutt, J. Swinden, G. Rhoden, R. Repo, P. Pirso, E. Reynolds, H. Tanzer, J. Snider, J. Zadyiko, N. VanLoon, P. Jewell, E. Stronach, N. Turk, P. Watson, R. Hamilton, D. Winter.

No Playoff Says OQAA Gael's Defence Strong

There will be no play-off in the Senior Intercollegiate football league in the event of a tie between two teams for first place. The announcement was made yesterday by Dean J. W. B. Sisam, President of the Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association.

The reason given was that mid-week games cannot be sanctioned because of the disruption in class schedules that this would cause.

The ruling was passed despite the fact that the coaches of the two teams likely to be involved,

Varsity and Western, were wholehearted in their support of such a mid-week game should Varsity beat Western in Toronto on October 31.

Meanwhile, coach Dalt White's Varsity team prepped for the game with Queen's at Kingston this Saturday.

White said that, "he expected

Queen's to be tough in their own ball park". Last year's powerhouse led only 7-3 at halftime after walloping the Gaels 44-0 at Varsity the week before.

Kingston has been the graveyard for many a good ball club from Varsity, particularly in the days when Jocko Thompson and Ron Stewart were making life miserable for opposing coaches. Queen's have no Stewart now, but they remain one of the best defensive teams in the league.

OQAA STATEMENT

The possibility of a mid-week play-off in the Eastern Intercollegiate Football League (O-Q.A.A.) has been discussed, but this contingency is covered by an agreement made between Queen's, McGill, Western and Toronto last June.

It has been a principle laid down for some years by the University Administrators concerned that mid-week games, play-offs or otherwise, cannot be sanctioned for major football competition, because of the disruption in classes, not only for the players but for the whole student body.

With this in mind, proposed changes in declaring a champion in the Eastern Intercollegiate Football League (O-Q.A.A.) were circulated last June to the Executive Committee representatives and the Athletic Directors of Queen's, McGill, Western and Toronto so that the Eastern champion could be declared in time to play for the Canadian Championship at Varsity Stadium on November 14.

Two changes in the present regulations were set out:

(1) The traditional play-off between the first and second place teams (provided the second place team had beaten the first place team at least once) was waived.

(2) In the event of a tie for first place between two or three teams, the Championship would be awarded to the highest scoring team, the formula to be decided by agreement between the four colleges.

Thus, under this agreement, should a tie for first place occur between two or three teams at the end of the current season, the team that has scored most points against the other tied team or teams will represent the East at Varsity Stadium on November 14.

Panthers Edge Vic 2-1 UC Still Track Champs

BL DAVE INGRAM

In a close fought battle on the back campus yesterday, Trinity Black Panthers beat Victoria Red and Gold 2-1.

Neither of the two rivals played their best football as fumbles and loose defences played an important part in the contest.

Vic opened the game as if they were going to completely overwhelm Black Panthers. However, the Trinity line held, and Vic scored only a point on a punt by Duane Wills.

Trinity fought back to score one point on a punt by Mike Innes, the first half ending in a 1-1 tie.

After several unsuccessful attempts to score, Trinity broke into the lead to stay on another single by Innes.

The game ended in a flare of tempers as two players were thrown out of the game.

Both teams seemed unprepared for this game, but their next contest should prove to be a big one.

In other intramural action, UC retained their Track Championship yesterday afternoon in the meet run in conjunction with the University track championships.

UC gained first place with 39 points over Meds. St. Mike's and SPS with 31½, 24½ and 24 points respectively. Only competition to the top three teams came from Vic. who gained 19½ points.

In Group II football Wednesday, Jr. SPS walloped Forestry 12-0. Bruce Porter and Paul Moyer scored the majors for Skule.

Meds squeezed past Forestry in the other closely contested struggle. Charrow and Steele bootied singles for the winners. Stoney provided the point for Forestry.

The Scoreboard

FOOTBALL
Senior
	P	W	L	T	F	A	P
Western	2	2	0	0	46	11	4
Toronto	2	1	1	0	45	17	2
Queen's	2	1	1	0	24	32	2
McGill	2	0	2	0	13	58	0
Future Games
Sat., Oct. 17—Toronto at Queen's
McGill at Western
Western Intercollegiate
	P	W	L	T	F	A	P
U.B.C.	3	3	0	0	105	38	12
U of Alta.	3	1	2	0	64	84	2
U of Sask.	2	0	2	0	13	80	0
(*All B.C. games are 4 points)
SOCCER
Senior
	P	W	L	T	F	A	P
Toronto	3	3	0	0	11	2	6
OAVC	2	2	0	0	15	8	4
Ryerson	2	2	0	0	5	12	0
McMaster	1	0	1	0	0	4	0
Western	2	0	2	0	0	10	0
Thursday's Results
Toronto	4	Ryerson	2

... and in this corner

by jo perry

Brrrrr!! It would appear that winter has descended upon us at a very inopportune time. With the baseball season just barely under way, it opened on Tuesday to be exact, we girls have to be part Eskimo to withstand these near freezing temperatures.

As a friend of mine would say, "It's like Greenland's icy mountains" and I don't think she would be far from wrong. Sure it's brisk and invigorating but it's quite a sight to watch our girls in Varsity Stadium, their noses running and their fingers red and numb from the cold. Have you ever tried to catch a baseball with unco-ordinated muscles and hands that you can hardly feel? It's great fun but seems somehow to take away from the spirit of the game. It's enough to make one move to the balmy south!

Just to take a peek at the uniforms (?) — and I use the term loosely — is enough to make any would-be baseball star wonder. Why there was one girl there in a heavy winter coat and woolen gloves. No, she wasn't a spectator (we don't seem to get any of those), she was the centre fielder. Imagine trying to swing a bat in that get-up! But I bet that she was the only really comfortable player even if the ball was in the catcher's mitt by the time she got the bat off her shoulder. And there was one in Bermuda shorts — must have been that Eskimo I have in the back of my mind.

Now don't get me wrong. These girls are keen and willing. But I, for one, can't see why practices couldn't have gotten under way the first week that we were back and then the schedule could have started just that much sooner. We were all as physically fit then as we are now, if not more so, after a long summer's work. Also, it may be hard to remember, but we did have some lovely warm (and sunny too) days away back when The World Series is all over and here we are just getting started.

To take a glance at another female (?) sport, there is football, which hasn't even begun yet. Now there's a dandy bruising game if ever there was one! But this is one sport that the players enjoy in the cooler weather. After all heat energy is produced rapidly and football muscles soon limber up.

I was watching the second year Phys. Ed. girls playing field hockey in Varsity Stadium the other day. There's a really inspiring sight — watching all those healthy and physically fit specimens running up and down the field in their short skirts. There I was, a lone spectator, bundled up in slacks, sweaters, and a heavy coat, and feeling I was watching an outdoor ice hockey game in the middle of winter.

All said and done, cold weather and what have you, it is wonderful to see these gals taking part in all the sports that "Ye Ole College" has to offer. Keep up the good work. Who knows, next year may find us with warm weather into November.

Law Petitioning

A petition circulated among University of Toronto Law students called for fraternities to be responsible to the Students' Administrative Council.

The petition was signed by law students in all years.

It read:

"We feel that activities sanctioned by the SAC as 'student activities' should be responsible to the SAC. In particular, actions of fraternities should be reviewed by the SAC with the view of approving or disapproving of them as student activities.

"Should these fraternities not be willing to submit to this degree of supervision, they should not be afforded the privileges granted other student activities.

"This is written to acquaint the SAC law representative with our feelings on the matter in the hope that it will assist him to determine his stand on this and related questions."

He: Do you know the secret of popularity?

She: Yes, but not tonight.

Mental Hospital

Premier Leslie Frost announced Wednesday a new psychiatric hospital is to be built by the Ontario government and the University of Toronto.

Premier Frost and Mr. Eric Phillips, head of the board of governors of the U of T, said that the new $5,000,000 hospital will be built on the northwest corner of Huron and College Sts.

The hospital fits in with the government's new approach to mental illness and is based on the concept that it is a curable disease.

U of T Graduates Help Prepare Book About Alcohol and Society

A group of University of Toronto graduate students have laid the ground work for a book about social aspects of alcohol.

U of T President Claude T. Bissell said Tuesday the Harry

M. Cassidy Memorial Research Fund has granted a research award to Professor Howard Jones for preparation of the book.

The professor, from the University of Leicester, England, has been lecturing on campus for the past year.

The graduate project included carrying out intensive interviews with alcoholics under treatment or in jail.

Dr. Cassidy, who died in 1951, lectured at U of T twenty years ago.

Before coming to Toronto, he had been on staffs of the universities of California and his native British Columbia.

Three times during his career he gave up positions to return to Canada because he felt he was a Canadian and wanted to remain one.

A year before he died, Dr. Cassidy was nominated as a candidate for the leadership of the Ontario Liberal party. However, he was later put out of the running by another candidate.

Former U of T president, Sidney Smith referred to Dr. Cassidy as "one of the pioneers in Canada in increasing the prestige of the social worker and as an inspiration to colleagues and students alike."

THE MEDICAL SOCIETY and P.O.T. PRESENT

PANACEA

- Dancing To: Shelly Schiller
Cy McLean
- SPS vs Meds: Basketball
Squash
Volleyball
Water Polo
- Splash Party

HART HOUSE — OCT. 16

$2.00 per Couple

• EVERYBODY WELCOME •

(Tickets on Sale at Medical Society Office
Medical Bldg. Wed. - Fri. — 1 - 5 p.m.)

Co-Ed Queen

She's the queen of the campus, and of course she favors you know what... the cold crisp taste of Coca-Cola. She knows that anytime, everywhere, Coke is the real refreshment. We don't say that the secret of her success is Coca-Cola... but it helps!

BE REALLY REFRESHED...HAVE A COKE!

SAY 'COKE' OR 'COCA-COLA'—BOTH TRADE-MARKS MEAN THE PRODUCT OF COCA-COLA LTD.—THE WORLD'S BEST-LOVED SPARKLING DRINK.

Fun 'n Fashion campus teens

They're here... in fabulously smart, bright colours—the new lushly lined cold-weather footwear in a wide range of styles and materials. Some to wear over your shoes, some instead of shoes, that weigh next to nothing on your feet. Look marvelous with pants — smart with skirts too. Keep your toes warm as love all winter in CAMPUS TEENS.

Available at all leading shoe and department stores.

GP FOOTWEAR

OF UNITED RUBBER

THE VARSITY

Vol. LXXIX — No. 13

Monday, October 19th, 1959

We Won

WINGBACK BOBBY DANN (90) heads for paydirt after taking a pass from quarterback Nick Sopinka late in the fourth quarter of Saturday's game with Queen's. Grabbing vainly is Queen's Dave Richards (63). Varsity won 7-0. Story on page seven.
(Varsity Staff Photo by Cavanagh)

expansion

Science Council Urged

The chairman of the Canadian Defence Research Board told University of Toronto students Friday that Canada should form a scientific council to ward off threats of Communism.

Dr. A. H. Zimmerman, speaking at the official opening of the new U of T Aerophysics Building in North York, said Ottawa should beam attention on problems of education and scientific research.

He said the West must go all out to sharpen up the quality of its science graduates if Russia continues to overwhelm the United States in numbers of engineers receiving degrees.

Dr. Zimmerman said the core of the "obvious scientific problem" in Canada is lack of money.

"The less obvious problem is that of bridging the gap in communication and understanding between the academic and scientific communities on the one hand and our legislators and industrial leaders on the other," he said.

SPS Takes Honey-Pot In Contests With Meds

Medsmen proved too weak to keep the engineers from capturing their beloved "honey-pot" Friday at the Faculty of Medicine's Panacea extravaganza.

The "honey-pot", a trophy consisting of a silver urinal mounted on a mahogany base, is awarded by Meds each year to the victor of the Panacea contests between the Faculty of Medicine and SPS.

At the Panacea dance, staged in Hart House, SPS and Medicine locked horns in four athletic events: basketball, volleyball, water polo, and equestrian.

Only on the squash courts were the Meds able to trush the engineers.

Another highlight of the gala evening was a professional artist, Miss V. Cummings, who sketched many of the lovely girls at the dance.

Dancers could swing to the brassy music of Shelly Schiller or sway to the relaxed tones of Cy McLean.

Anyone with a gambling streak had choice of dice, cards, roulette, in the East Common Room, where the huge sum of $250,000 in play money could be bought for a quarter.

Highest winner at the end of the night was given a panda bear.

Panacea, a famous pre-war Meds dance, was successfully restored last year in conjunction with the School of Physical and Occupational Therapy.

The dance this year was a crowded and lively affair, although officials felt turnout of premedical students was small.

This is the second year the Meds have gone down to defeat at the hands of the engineers.

But there was no sadness. One medical student remarked, "the honey pot should rightly go to the engineers, since it is emblematic of them".

Nfcus' New President Heads Toward Leiden

OTTAWA (CUP) — The newly-elected President of the National Federation of Canadian University Students left for Leiden Holland last night on the first leg of a journey that will range from Europe to Vancouver.

Jacques Gerin, fourth-year engineering student from the University of Montreal will chair the annual meeting of the Co-ordinating Secretariat of the International Student Conference. Canada was awarded the honor at the last meeting of the ISC in Peru. The Co-ordinating Secretariat has its headquarters in Leiden.

After the meeting he will visit the headquarters of the National Union of Students of England, Wales and Northern Ireland to maintain the strong contact Nfcus has with that body.

Upon his return, Gerin will begin a tour of Canadian universities.

The Students Administrative Council's Publications Commission meets today to start an investigation into possible discriminatory policies among the University of Toronto's fraternities.

The Commission has been empowered by the SAC to deprive any fraternity employing discriminatory policies in selecting its membership of special student privileges in the U of T's publications.

The special privileges include reduced rates for space in Torontonensis and the right to be listed in the Students Handbook.

The Commission hasn't as yet decided upon what course of action it will take, but Publications Commissioner Clive Chamberlain (III Meds) last night outlined the proposals he will place before the Commission.

"The first step will be to send mimeographed copies of the minutes of last Thursday's SAC meeting and a covering letter to each fraternity", Chamberlain said.

"The letter will outline the SAC's policy with regard to discrimination among student organizations, and will include a short questionnaire as to the admission policies of the individual fraternities", he added.

"We'll then ask the fraternities to return the questionnaire, and then we'll take any action we think necessary", Chamberlain said.

"If they say 'yes, we have a discriminatory clause in our constitution' then the Publications Commission will refuse to accept them as a student organization — which means they will not be eligible for special student rates", he continued.

"And if they say 'no, we have no such policies', and the Commission is reasonably satisfied that no discriminatory policy exists, then all will be well", Chamberlain said.

When asked what would happen if a fraternity simply did not reply to the Commission's letter, Chamberlain said "before they get student rates they will have to tell us what we want to know".

He went on to explain that the Publications Commission will not take any action other than sending the letter and questionnaire unless it receives a specific complaint.

Lifting of their student status could be an expensive process for the fraternities.

At present they pay $16 for a full page in Nensis.

It costs an outside advertiser $150 for the same amount of space.

Discrimination To Be Penalized: Commission Looks At Fraternities As Mandated By Students' Council

manitoba debate

Student Aid Plan Hit

By Doug Parkinson
President; Canadian University Press

WINNIPEG (CUP) — The chairman of the University of Manitoba branch of the National Federation of Canadian University Students last week charged that a plan for student aid proposed by a University of Toronto committee last year is a "pie-in-the-sky illusion".

Miss Dale Smith spoke out against the plan during an Oxford-style debate, but an overwhelming two-to-one vote at the conclusion indicated student support for the plan as a basis

Miss Smith said the plan, "sanctions the establishment within our society of a class of professional student parasites."

She went on to urge, "Let us retain some of the rugged inflexibility of a Canadian scholarship system, dependence of our forefathers, and the individualism which our democracy implies." She blasted the plan as being, "that myth of the almighty hand-out."

The plan, proposed by the U of T President's Advisory Committee on Student Aid, would guarantee free tuition to first-class students and generous scholarships and easy loans for second-class students. The plan also suggested consideration of a change in vacation periods.

Speaking in favor of the resolution were the U of M World University Service chairman and the co-chairman of external affairs. The council president joined Miss Smith in speaking against the plan.

Snow Dance At All

OUTING CLUB (on right) feeds deer (on left) surrounded by snow (center) as they try to enjoy their fall canoe trip in Algonquin Park. The snow, four inches, sneaked up on them overnight and all but beached their canoes. (Outing Club Photo)

Members of the University of Toronto Outing Club held a "snow dance" in Algonquin Park Saturday night and by Sunday they were wishing the hadn't. Four inches of the white powder covered their area, curtailing the planned canoe trip.

"We sat around Saturday night singing carols," said Dave Rutenberg, the club's vice-president, "expecting a few flakes. We woke up Sunday to find the tents darkened with the snow."

Apparently the 11 girls in the party were naturally better padded than the about 20 male members. They started snowball fights. The boys huddled by the fire.

"We had cold cornflakes for breakfast," recalled Rutenberg. He later admitted hot bacon followed, cooked by the girls.

One girl, who will remain mercifully anonymous, missed a step as she tried to get out of a canoe.

She slithered gracefully up to her waist into the freezing water of Lake of Two Rivers.

"But we all had a good time," said Rutenberg. "Even her."

The Outing Club's next expedition will be Nov. 7. Members will practice mountain climbing on the Collingwood Hills. Let's hope they won't need snowshoes, as they did last winter in the New York State Adirondacks.

"Where'd ya get the black eye corporal?"

"In the war!"

"What war?"

"The boudoir."

TYPEWRITERS

$1.00 A WEEK BUYS . . .
... $1.50 A WEEK RENTS

Get a free typing course and a liberal trade-in allowance for your old typewriter when you buy a new modern machine from us.

Phone HO. 1-1843 Today

TYPING

Theses, Essays, Notes, Charts, French, German, Latin, English
Prices Upon Request
Apt. 12
21 AVENUE RD.—WA. 2-7624
MRS. M. D. STOTT, B.A.

CLASSIFIED ADS.

LISEZ-VOUS LE FRANCAIS?
Abonnez-vous aux Nouvelles Françaises de Toronto: Toutes les activités Françaises de la ville. Tarif Spécial étudiant $1.50. Renseignements —Tel. LE. 1-5309.

LOST

Set of drawing instruments in red leather case. Make — ECO-BRA. REWARD. Call WA. 3-4931.

FOR SALE — '52 BUICK

Custom hardtop, automatic, white-walls, body and engine A-1. Two-tone, a very clean car. Will accept best cash offer. Phone Shelly after 6 — RU. 1-1629.

TYPING

Thesis, notes, etc. Picked up from and delivered to University. Phone PL. 9-6874.

KITCHEN HELP WANTED

12.30 to 2 p.m., Monday thru Friday. Call Sam Maleolmson, WA. 1-1561.

ROOM FOR RENT

Male boarders only. Apply 39 Prince Arthur or phone WA. 1-9012.

chevrier can't come

Two University of Toronto political groups which accepted a challenge to debate with a former cabinet minister have received word that the debates have been cancelled.

Lionel Chevrier, former Liberal Minister of Transport, offered earlier this month to debate with any campus group on any topic during his proposed visit to the campus this fall.

The campus CCF and Liberal Clubs accepted the challenge. The Progressive Conservative Club president Dave Crane (III Vic) said that the PCs had not received an official invitation to debate.

CCF president Giles Endicott had announced his club would debate the topic: "The Liberal party truly represents social and economic progress."

Mr. Chevrier has cancelled his visit and, naturally, the debates.

His message to the Liberal Club said he would be unable to attend due to other pressing business.

here and now

TODAY

1.00 p.m. — Rev. Tom Harpur will speak at a group discussion sponsored by the Christian Fellowship for UC students in room 111, UC.

1.00 p.m. — The medical faculty VCF is holding a Bible study in room 213, Anatomy Building.

1.10 p.m. — Rev. Jim Cunningham will lead a preparatory study group for the Christmas Ecumenical Conference in the Chaplain's Office, Hart House.

3.10 p.m. — Mr. Keith Dixon will lead another preparatory study group for the CEC in the same place.

7.30 p.m. — Badminton for all graduate students in the Drill Hall, 119 St. George St.

8.00 p.m. — The U of T German Language Club invites all students interested in improving their German conversation to its first meeting which will include a film, election of executive, games, and refreshments in the Wymilwood Music Rm., Victoria College.

TUESDAY

1.10 p.m. — Dr. Bennett from India will lead a nurses' study group on comparative religion in Rm. 103, School of Nursing.

1.10 p.m. — "The University, A Challenge to Faith", a freshman study group, will be led by Rev. Alan McLachlin. All freshmen welcome in the SCM Office, Hart House.

1.10 p.m. — "The Quaker Approach", an SCM sponsored study group on the Quaker faith meets in room 42-F, UC.

5.00 p.m. — There will be a meeting of the Blue and White Society in the SAC office.

5.10 p.m. — Rev. R. W. Miller will speak on the subject "Camus" at the third in the series of SCM Tuesday Lectures in the West Hall, UC.

7.30 p.m. — Dr. Phelan, former president of the Institute of Medieval Studies will speak on "The Notion of a Christian Philosophy" at Newman Club, 89 St. George St. All are welcome.

J. VASOFF PRESENTS

THE TAMBURITZANS

Of Duquesne University, Pittsburgh, Pa.
In their First Toronto Appearance

Massey Hall, Sat., Oct. 24 — 8.20 p.m.

$1.50 $1.75 $2.25 $3.00

• An evening of music, song and dance from Central and Eastern Europe with original costumes, authentic instruments, and a cast of thirty.
NEW YORK, N.Y.

"Delightfully entertaining . . . in Carnegie Hall."

ST. LOUIS, MO.

"Some of the most spectacular in Slavic music, dance and costuming."

STUDENT RATE — $1.50 Ticket for $1.00

Martin Bockner presents

EWAN MacCOLL and PEGGY SEEGER
in a program of English, Scottish and American FOLK SONGS at EATON AUDITORIUM, Saturday, November 7th, 8:30 p.m. Tickets: $3, $2.25, $1.50 — A & A Bookstore, Towne Records, Eaton Auditorium Box Office or Phone MELrose 3-2411.

UNITED APPEAL CONCERT

THURS., OCT. 22 — 12.00 - 2.00 p.m.
Convocation Hall

Peter Appleyard — Joyce Sullivan
Mike White and his Imperial Jazz Band
Bud Hill, Modern Jazz Group
& Student Talent
And — Phil McKellar as M.C.

The Varsity Christian Fellowship in U.C.

Presents

"MAN looks at MAN"

First Discussion: Monday, Oct. 19—1:19 p.m. — Room 44, G.U.C.
"THE GREEK VIEW"
Led by—Rev Thomas Harpur, M.A., B.Th.

A.V.R. 1959-60

The A.V.R. Committee calls for the submission of the following to the S.A.C. Office:

1. Applications for the position of DIRECTOR for the 1959-60 Show
2. Applications for the position of CHOREOGRAPHER for the 1959-60 Show.
3. Applications for the position of ORCHESTRA LEADER for the 1959-60 Show.

The Deadline for all applications is Friday, Oct. 23, 1959

Last Day!

— FOR —

CARABIN APPLICATIONS

WEEKEND EXCHANGE

NOVEMBER 19 - 22

SAC OFFICE

University College

THE ALEXANDER LECTURES

By Professor Geoffrey Bullough, King's College, U. of London

"MIRROR OF MINDS"

(Changing Psychological Assumptions as Reflected in English Poetry)

Monday, Oct. 19, to Friday, Oct. 23, Inclusive

1. Conflict in the Microcosm
2. Shakespeare on the Mind
3. Reason and Unreason
4. Intimations of Immortality
5. The Individual and the Racial Image

HART HOUSE THEATRE, at 4.30 p.m.

HART HOUSE THEATRE'S FIFTY-FIRST ALL-UNIVERSITY PRODUCTION

Lillian Hellman's

THE LITTLE FOXES

Directed by Robert Gill

Same Special Student Rate — $1.00

Two Tickets Only On Each A.T.L. Card

SAT., OCT. 24th, to SAT., OCT. 31st, at 8.30

STUDENT SUBSCRIPTIONS STILL AVAILABLE—$3.00 FOR FOUR PRODUCTIONS

THE VARSITY

campus profile

An Ulcer For Abner

by Alan Walker

Ask campus businessman Abner Steinberg what he is, and he'll answer "an impressario, or maybe an entrepreneur. But don't call me a promoter."

The second year University College student, who is in the process of organizing the first U of T sports car club, has been a full-time businessman for several years, (he's now 21), and has had an ulcer since he was 14. Business is in his blood.

"It all started when I was 12 and saw my first sports car," he said. And from that moment on he decided he was interested. But not in driving.

"I just sell the product, I don't use it," he holds. "I don't drive professionally."

His first brush with the sports car racing business came in 1957 when he tried to promote a race in Gwillinbury township.

"The township was all for the idea," Steinberg said. "They were hairy about it. Their tongues were hanging down to their navels."

We asked him why. He summed it up.

"I never directly suggested they might make a profit out of the plan," he said. "I merely forecast possibilities. They took it from there."

Steinberg appeared in the township offices with an official-looking plan for his raceway, sealed with red wax. It bore an official architect's insignia. Steinberg had labored over the scroll almost a day.

"I exuded my great personal charm," he said, "and they gave in."

With the same tactics he talked Sunnidale Township of three-quarters of a mile of snow fence.

The first race never came off, in spite of Steinberg's shrewdness. He failed to get provincial approval for the race, and he blames the Canadian Automobile Sports Club.

"The CASC let it get around that I intended to run the race on dirt roads," Steinberg said. He went on to say the CASC has a monopoly on sports car races in Canada, and that if you don't have one of their licences you can't get any of their drivers. The CASC controls the bulk of the best drivers in the business.

After his Gwillinbury flop-out, Steinberg approached Artie Somerville, the owner of the Edenvale airport which is not controlled by the province.

"It's an old air force base, with a beautiful surface used for landing heavy bombers," Steinberg recalled. "It took me almost eight months of dickering with Somerville to get my hands on the field."

It is on this field, at Edenvale, that Steinberg has held sway ever since. A map of the field shows a number of interesting place names including "Collin's Corner."

Looking momentarily reverent, Steinberg said "that was named for Art Collins who died on the curve in 1949. He was the first Canadian racing driver to die in a professional race."

"All the other corners are named after drivers who suffered misfortunes on them at one time or another," Steinberg mused.

At this point we asked the young but grey-haired man how he could sign contracts at the age of 19. He gulped, swallowed another Gelusil pill (his constant companions) and said "I never implied I was 21, that would have been fraud."

He admitted he was riding pretty close to the line, but added happily, "I have a good lawyer."

This is the way he got that ulcer. He's been eating cheese sandwiches and pabulum for several years because of it.

"Pabulum's wonderful stuff," he'll tell you. "Did you know they have it out in five different flavors now?"

The first race on the Edenvale track was for motorcycles only, and was held May 16. Only 1,000 people turned out.

"It rained and then froze over," Steinberg said bitterly, grinding his teeth helplessly.

"We had Franco Farne at the race," he said. "He's the European motor cycle champion. Naturally he won."

We were interested in how Steinberg financed these races, when he wasn't showing a profit.

"Some people invested in them because they thought they would make a profit," he chuckled, "and others invested because I bought their products to improve the track."

How does Steinberg get all this money from business concerns?

"They have a basic faith in Abner Steinberg," he said, "and they know I won't be broke for very long. They know I'll make good some day."

"It's not hard to get a credit rating," he continued. "There are so many ways to make money." He trailed off, apparently thinking of some new ones.

"I have a plan whereby I can convert Canadian wheat into Japanese yen and then into Canadian dollars by re-investing them into Japanese industry." His eyes gleamed.

"How much are you in the hole at the moment?" we asked.

"Well, I'm in a hole but it isn't a very big one," he said. "I charge $2 for car races and $1.50 for cycle races. I hope to pull out of the slump."

"How much?" we persisted.

"Well," he stammered, "I have a number of deals cooking and it won't be long before some of them start to pay off."

"How much?"

He looked straight ahead, reached for his supply of Gelusil, and muttered "14 grand."

We asked him how his credit rating was bearing the loss. He didn't answer directly, but told a fable.

"Once there were two men named Joe and Mo," he started, "in business together. Joe was the front man and his name was on the door. He had the credit rating. Behind him is Mo. He really ran the business and was the brains behind the organization."

He then explained the connection.

"I'm Mo," he said brightly. "I have several Joes."

He went on to say he wasn't worried about his $14,000 debt.

"All big businessmen go broke on the first few ventures," he said.

"The problem about the racing business is that I'm competing against enthusiasts," he said.

"They are in the business, but they race themselves, and they band together with other racers. They often run at a loss and they don't mind it."

We asked Steinberg what makes a racing driver tick.

"They want to be big fish in little ponds," he said. "Often they are people who don't do so well in their normal ways of life, and they turn to racing so they can show off a bit. They like to get out on the track where people can see them."

The second race was July 4. This was for motorcycles also, with the added attraction of a parachute jump by Ilona Berger, the former Hungarian sky-diving champ.

"You should have seen the press buildup I gave her," Steinberg gloated. "She came over after the revolution. I really made her out a hero."

For this second race, Steinberg had better luck with the weather.

"It was a beautiful sunny day," he said. "Everything was fine, but the Queen showed up within ten miles and everybody had to go and see her instead."

July 11 was the date of the first automobile race, and it rained. About 2,000 spectators showed up.

"I gave finishing money to all the drivers," Steinberg recalled proudly. "It was the first time this had been done in Canada."

He had earlier said it cost each driver about $1,000 to race a car, after they had paid off mechanics and met other expenses. We asked him how much finishing money was.

(Continued on Page 5)

comment

comment

serious

Today is absolutely the last day for applications for the University of Toronto-Université de Montreal Carabin weekend.

Weekend officials are disappointed at the number of applications that have been received so far. So are we.

What is accomplished on this weekend is, admittedly, limited.

Nevertheless, this not an opportunity to be missed. This weekend is, at the very least, a lot of fun and is also a good way to open your eyes about our neighbour province.

The weekend should be especially interesting this year. Quebec has seen the death of its long-time leader, Maurice Duplessis; the province is waiting to see what changes this will bring.

The students who are accepted for the weekend will not regret it.

Apply.

delirious

If we ever thought that U of T students were unimaginative in promoting charity campaigns, we are now sure of it, after reading the report of the device used by students in Bristol England in support of one of their charities.

According to a Reuters report, "Students dressed as gangsters clashed with police outside a bank today when they tried to stage a mock holdup to publicize their annual charity campaign".

This is the kind of initiative and good sense that we need over here and have the right to expect from an institution of the intellectual calibre of the U of T student body.

May we then suggest that in aid of the present blood campaign a grave-robbing expedition be organized.

It may even turn out to be easier to squeeze blood from a corpse than from the average U of T student.

delirious

At the age of eight many young about-to-be-men join the Cub Scout movement. The ideal of purity in thought word and deed is thoroughly impressed upon them.

And if the truth be known, most young men of eight years old are pure in thought word and deed.

But sometime between the age of purity and the age of entrance into university, a mysterious change, which we have never quite understood, takes place. Somehow the purity of the true Boy Scout begins to diminish. By the time a Boy Scout is a sophomore, he just isn't what he once was.

There is just no questioning the impurity of the university students.

We feel that such a state is deplorable and we want as crusading journalists, to do all we can do remedy the situation.

We propose, in brief, to revive the Boy Scout movement on this campus. We sincerely believe that no man is ever too old to be a Boy Scout.

We are arranging now to have a busload of old ladies pull up every day in front of Hart House at one o'clock in the afternoon. The members of the Troop will then assemble and help the old ladies across the street. The bus will take them home again.

Goodness, we hope, will shine forth from every corner of the University of Toronto. We might even be able to do away with the spotlights.

In order to start the U of T boy scout Troop, we need a peerless leader.

As firm believers in democracy, we propose to select him by secret ballot.

We urge all students to send to The Varsity the name of a comrade whom they think is the purest person they know in thought word and deed.

Members of The Varsity, their copy runners, proof readers, their advertisers, members of their immediate families and members of their not-so-immediate families, are not eligible for this competition.

The noble ideals of Boy Scoutism must not be allowed to perish.

dls

University College has lived through 100 years of fun, jubilation and strife. As we look back on those hundred years it is fitting we log some of those fun-filled hours and some of those events that have made U.C. the fine university that it is today.

Construction was begun on UC in 1885, and was completed in 1889 at a cost of $350,000, to which the library, museum and other accessories added another $50,000. In 1858 the crowning stone of the main building was laid by the governor, Sir Edmund Walker Head.

In its first year, 1859-60, there were 80 students. In its tenth year enrolment had jumped to 187. At that time there were 76 Anglicans, 20 Methodists, 59 Presbyterian, one Jew and a few other assorted students. At that time there was resident room for 50 students.

In the years following UC's construction several people reported seeing a large figure roaming the campus, usually on misty nights.

Whenever it was approached it disappeared until a lucky undergraduate met the ghost and actually succeeded in story first-hand.

The spook said his name was Diabolos and he had been one of the masters working on UC. He and Paul Diabolos were carving gargoyles on the UC building.

Diabolos had been attempting to carve off's girl friend Susie and had carved a likeness of Reznikoff on the gargoyle hanging on.

One of Reznikoff's friends told him the image, and the fact that Diabolos was his image, and he had been one of the masters working on UC. He and Paul Diabolos were carving gargoyles on the UC building.

When he found out about a scheme between Diabolos and Susie at the time of the night he was determined to get his revenge. He was waiting he carved an even more lifelike likeness of him on the adjoining gargoyle.

When Diabolos and Susie appeared, Reznikoff was waiting for them.

cornell, aherne expose

GBS In Theatrical Flirtation

"All I ask is to have my own way in everything . . . I often feel like a Pope . . ." Who, other than G.B.S. could have thus acidly shredded his own tendencies to pomposity?

In a well-filled, though not packed Massey Hall last night, an eager, slightly awed audience settled down expectantly and obediently to the task of participating a little better than passively in a single-night-spectacle that involved a variety of theatrical giants, most of them living.

Guthrie McClintic in association with Sol Hurok presented Katharine Cornell and Brian Aherne in Jerome Kilty's "witty tour de force", a play called "Dear Liar", concocted from extracts of correspondence between George Bernard Shaw and Mrs. Stella Patrick Campbell, directed by the author, and with costumes by the illustrious Cecil Beaton.

This play—better, this reading in two parts—is a professionally and smoothly put together sampling of the long-distance flirtation spun between G.B.S. and Mrs. Pat, that half Irish, half Italian enchantress who kept audiences in theatres during much of the early part of this century, and who was a rival and contemporary of Ellen Terry.

Miss Cornell, statuesque and beautiful as ever, carries her magnificent gowns with easy, unobtrusive style and grace, while Mr. Aherne displays an informal elegance which is surely his, and not Mr. Shaw's.

We see, through Mr. Kilty's eyes, a Shaw slightly more mellow and much more human than Superman. Miss Cornell, who has a beautiful face, does not, however, show the bell, who was said to be a fascinating individual, the most tractable as an actress.

Much detail is revealed in Irish playwright—political and affections; a description of mother's funeral was described with courage and conviction.

Mr. Aherne, who has a beautiful face, does not, however, show the bell, who was said to be a fascinating individual, the most tractable as an actress.

Act I, which deals with Shaw's struggle to have his Eliza in Pymouth, is a two-month successful and the outbreak of World War I.

Act II resumes the story, entirely fruitful association with bell drops occasional in y "Laugh and the world acts snore and you sleep amidst encounters difficulties in Hollywood, trends of personality totes, and "The Apple-Cart". We see her son was killed, and provokes Mr. Shaw to a syllabic outburst. Mrs. herself superseded by a and fades into subsistence somewhere between the and France.

This was good theatre spoken, and there was a relation between silliness found the overall polished; a well polished polished artists.

THE VARSITY

Published by The Students' Administrative Council of the University of Toronto
Toronto 5, Canada

Member, Canadian University Press.

Editorial and News Office — Basement, SAC Building — WA. 3-8742, WA. 3-8113
Business and Advertising Manager E. Al. MacDonald,

TODAY'S ISSUE: It seems we saw just about everyone except those who were supposed to work. But we were very glad to welcome Barry Zimmerman, Warren Olanow, Lee Richardson, Maryanne Kelso, Fred Host, Morgan Tamplin, Sally Bambridge (by a rather round-about method), Phil Palter, Mitro 'Mac' Makarachuk, Fred Zemans (with a small assist from other friends besides), Rota Lister, CUP President Doug Parkinson, (who dashed back to Ottawa headquarters before we got a chance to see him), a new policy (which means we all get some sleep and go to lectures for a change).

years

And Growing Old Gracefully

the largest of the colleges, is the only one which is non-
As such it receives no support from any denominational in our walls all religions, races and creeds receive equal ty. We are proud of the fact that our faculty has become ard for free thought.

the years the JCR has become a haven of university and liberals. But not only the CCF'ers found U.C. a incubator. The Tories Whigs and Radicals have also at different times under the gargoyles.

of the hideous building with the orange spotlights are on all the frontiers of the campus carrying with them individualism and vivid principles of their college.

Fred Zemans, President, UC Literary and Athletic Society

He charged at Diabolos but was not fast enough.
Diabolos ducked into a doorway just in time to avoid a blow which made a great gash in the oak door. This gash may still be seen in the door today.

Diabolos fled to the top of the central tower waiting in ambush with a knife for Reznikoff who was in hot pursuit.

When Reznikoff caught up to him, Diabolos mortally wounded him and cast him down the 120 foot tower well.

That was the story related to Alan Aylesworth, later Sir Alan Aylesworth. The only proof was an empty bottle of whisky Alan discovered after he had blacked out after the ghost's story.

One of the worst tragedies to hit UC was the great fire of 1890, only 31 years after its opening.

On St. Valentines Day, Feb. 14 a "conversation" was scheduled to be held in the east corner of the building. During the preparations one or more of the oil lamps—which were to be used for the illumination of several microscopic slides—fell.

Almost immediately the oil spread, the whole eastern wing was ablaze and the fire was rapidly spreading toward the central tower. The whole eastern wing and most of the main front was destroyed with the exception of some of the masonry. The great bell which had been at the top of the tower fell down and was smashed.

The loss included the entire contents of the library — more than 33,000 volumes — some of which were irreplaceable and much of the biological and ethnological collections.

In the period around 1895 the university was under the strict and complete rule of the provincial government. This was deeply resented by some staff and all the students.

A fiery young student by the name of William Lyon Mackenzie became a student leader when he called for a general boycott of lectures to protest provincial control in 1895.

For days professors lectured to empty or near empty classes while students lined the halls, filled the library and in general did nothing. Hart House was never so widely used.

The editor of The Varsity, Jim Tucker, was dismissed because he refused to print an apology for remarks he made in the paper. But the dismissals did not end there for a popular professor who sided with the students was dismissed.

The uprising was not in vain. Government rule was relaxed.

an entrepreneur, impresario, industrialist but no promoter

(Continued from Page 3)

"I gave $150 to the faster cars and 10 to 25 bucks to the little ones," he said. "They appreciated my little gesture."

The next race will be Oct. 25 and here's where the University comes in. It is being run in connection with the U of T sports car club, promoted (you guessed it) by Abner Steinberg.

"So far we have 10 members, all with cars," Steinberg said. "Anyone interested in the sport is welcome to join the club, whether or not they have a car."

Why did he pick U of T for the club?

"In a sports car club you have to have people all from the same class," Steinberg said. "It just doesn't work out to have a laborer running against a businessman."

"There isn't really a definite class here at U of T," he went on, "but everybody at University is more or less equal in status. These days anybody with the price of a down payment can get a sports car," he added.

"That is, a production sports car,"
he said scornfully.

"There will be a beauty contest at the U of T race," Steinberg said.
"The girls will be picked out of the crowd and we hope to see lots of co-eds there. The winner will get to ride around on the victory lap holding the checkered flag. She will also get a small trophy and a kiss from Abner Joseph Henry Solomon Steinberg."

What does Steinberg think of U
of T co-eds?

"There are lots of women around campus with bodies," he said, "but ecceh! I have not yet met one with any grace or breeding. Put a pillow over their heads and they might be all right."

How about marriage?

"I take out girls of course," he said, "but I have never become attached to any one particular girl, and I would like to, actually."

"Of course in business a wife has to be a show-piece," he said.
"They're hard to find. And besides, marriage has disadvantages. It is liable to become semi-permanent or even permanent."

Steinberg is not one to wrap all his eggs up in one basket. He also owns a "profitable print shop." And here again he never misses a trick if he can help it. The programs for his races are printed by his own press. One fold of green cardboard, they sell for 25 cents.

On his academic life, what little time he has for it, Steinberg refers to his Political Science and Economics course as "a hobby."

"I do it in my spare time," he said.
"If I want to do well in school I can be top of my class."

As we bade goodbye to Abner Joseph Henry Solomon Steinberg, we asked him to supply a title for himself.

"I am an entrepreneur, an impressario, an industrialist," he said. "I am not a promoter."

"I find anything I try to do," he threw over his shoulder, "I can invariably do it better than anyone else."

Words to live by Abner, words to live by.

HART HOUSE

Today

ART GALLERY — Ronald King and Peter Kolisnyk
Exhibition, Paintings, Drawings, Watercolours and Prints.

PRINT ROOM — Exhibition of Silk-screen Prints by Sister Mary Corita

Rifle Range — Revolver Club, 7.15 p.m.

Tomorrow

8 a.m.—Holy Communion, Chapel

7 p.m.—Glee Club Full Rehearsal—DEBATES RM.

7 p.m.—Art Class — Art Gallery

7.15 p.m.—Bridge — East Common Room

8 p.m.—Archery — Rifle Range

Coming Events

WEDNESDAY—

1 p.m.—Introductory Lecture in Squash, Music Rm.

5 p.m.—Wednesday 5 O'Clock Recital, Music Room
Paul Brodie, Saxophonist

8 p.m.—Exploration Society Open Meeting
—Debates Room

THURSDAY—

8 p.m.—Debate—Visitors: United Kingdom
Debating Team
"The welfare state inevitably saps individual initiative"

SUNDAY—

9 p.m.—SUNDAY EVENING CONCERT, Great Hall
Ezra Schabas, Clarinet — Anne Stephenson, Soprano
Leo Barkin, Piano

SUNDAY EVENING CONCERT

GREAT HALL, HART HOUSE

OCTOBER 25th — 9 p.m.

ANNE STEPHENSON, Soprano
EZRA SCHABAS, Clarinet
LEO BARKIN, Piano

Free tickets available to members of Hart House.
Women invited if escorted.

GAMES TODAY

FOOTBALL: E. 400 St. M. vs Med Kelner, Posen, Lipson

SOCCER: N. 12.30 St. M. A vs Trin. A Ryan
S. 4.15 St. SPS vs Med. A Selzer

VOLLEYBALL: 1.00 St. M. IV vs SPS. H Pomerant
4.00 Pre-Dent vs Pre-Med. I B Sigal
5.00 Med. I Yr. vs St. M. III Sigal
6.00 Med. III Yr. vs Dent. I Yr. Sigal

LACROSSE: 5.00 SPS. I vs Med. A Naylor, M. (mer)

GAMES TUESDAY

FOOTBALL: E. 400 Vic. vs St. SPS Chapnick, Godley, Marchut

SOCCER: North 12.30 Vic. vs U.C. Patarachia
South 4.15 Jr. SPS vs Med. B Ryan

VOLLEYBALL: 1.00 St. M. VI vs SPS. H Pomerant
4.00 U.C. Hutton vs St. M. V Goldman
6.30 For. A vs Arch. A Dugan
(Major): 7.30 Kuo vs Med. Dugan
8.30 St. M. VIII vs St. M. VII Dugan

LACROSSE: 1.00 U.C. I vs St. M. A * Hodgkinson, Chubb
5.00 SPS. III vs Med. I Yr. Barrett, Misener
6.00 Dent vs Med. B Barrett, Misener

Meds Track Champions Three Records Broken

Three new records were set at the most successful track meet in years in Varsity Stadium Friday afternoon.

Medicine captured faculty honors with 57 points over defending champions UC and Victoria who garnered 29 and 20 points respectively.

Architecture's Steve Irwin was awarded the Cody Trophy for individual excellence in the meet. The versatile architect amassed 14 points as he won first place in the javelin throw, second in the hop step jump, second in the broad jump, third in discus and fourth in the 100-yard dash.

Tied for second place were Jan Roos (Medicine) and George Rhoden (Medicine).

Highlight of the afternoon's proceedings was Irwin's record smashing javelin toss. Irwin broke the record set by Varsity coach Hal Brown in 1939 (181'3 3/4") with a 181'10 1/2" throw.

Roos broke the record for the mile run, covering the course in four minutes 33.7 seconds, while the Victoria 440 relay team of MacEachern, Snider, Watson and Brerton set a new record of three minutes 41.6 seconds for the course.

Discus—1. F. McNutt, Forestry; 2. H. Armstrong, PHE; 3. S. J. Win, Arch; 4. B. Plumb, PHE. Distance 113'2".

Pole Vault—1. J. Zadyko, Med; 2. W. Blair, Pharm; 3. E. Mosk, S. M. Height 11'.

120 Hurdles—1. D. Cook, UC; 2. M. Copland, UC; 3. V. A. Crawford, Med; 4. G. Ashby, Med. Time 16.1 seconds.

Hop Step Jump—1. R. Repo, Med; 2. S. Irwin, Arch; 3. V. A. Crawford, Med; 4. E. Reynolds, UC. Distance 43'1 1/2".

100 Yards—1. V. G. Rhoden, Med; 2. A. Brerton, Vic; 3. G. Ashby, Med; 4. S. Irwin, Arch. Time 10.4 seconds.

880 Yards—1. P. Watson, Vic; 2. B. Carmichael, SPS; 3. J. Snider, Vic; 4. VanLoon, UC. Time 1:59.3 minutes.

Javelin—1. S. Irwin, Arch; 2. J. Duhaak, O.E.; 3. J. Swindon, Trin; 4. B. F. Plumb, PHE. Distance 181'10 1/2". (Record).

High Jump—1. K. Money, Med (Grad); 2. J. Sewell, Vic; 3. H. Cas, ternak, PHE. Height 5'10 1/2".

1 Mile—1. J. Roos, Med; 2. P. Watson, Vic; 3. R. Hamilton, Trin; 4. J. Graham, Med. Time 4:33.7 minutes (Record).

Shot Put—1. B. Jackson, SPS; 2. P. Piro, PHE; 3. H. Armstrong, PHE; 4. R. Repo, Med. Distance 35'5".

220 Yards—1. V. G. Rhoden, Med; 2. W. Crothers, Pharm; 3. H. Brerton, Vic; 4. A. Conway, Trin. Time 22.5 seconds.

Broad Jump—1. H. Tanzer, Med; 2. S. Irwin, Arch; 3. A. Brerton, Vic; 4. V. Crawford, Med. Distance 19'5".

3 Miles—1. J. Roos, Med; 2. J. Snider, Vic; 3. J. G. Griffin, Trin; 4. M. Tuck, UC. Time 15.37 minutes.

220 Hurdles—1. M. Capeland, UC; 2. G. Ashby, Med; 3. J. MacInnis, Med. Time 29.1 seconds.

440 Yards—1. B. Crothers, Pharm; 2. R. Repo, Med; 3. B. Carmichael, SPS. Time 51.9 seconds.

Relay 4 x 440—1. MacEachern, Snider, Watson, Brerton, Vic; 2. Rhoden, A. hvy. Roos, Brebner, Med A; 3. VanLoon, Piro, Turk, Berger, UC; 4. Tanzer, Sprowle, Unger, MacInnis, Med B. Time 3:41.6 minutes (Record).

Rugger Chappies Upset McGill Take Five Point Series Lead

University of Toronto Rugger Blues, playing at McGill on Saturday, defeated McGill Redmen 8-3 in the first game of a two game home and home total point series for the Intercollegiate Rugger championship.

It seemed unlikely that Blues, facing McGill on their home grounds could end a four year run of defeats unless the forwards were to play far above the level they had shown so far this season. To the open delight of a handful of Toronto supporters, they did so.

Led by Barrie Reid, Blues completely dominated the line-outs, and with the second row packing better than ever before. Paul Chapman hooked the ball consistently, even when Redmen put the ball in the scrum.

Only in the loose did Blues fail to outclass their opponents, and even there the back row gave close support to the three quarter line in both attack and defense.

Behind the scrum, John Brebner did everything well that a fullback should, but the performance of the remainder of the back-line was a thing of shreds and patches. Individually they had their moments, but as an attacking line they were too slow at both passing running, particularly at half back.

Varsity scored through a try by Barrier Reid, converted by Ray Cornhill, and a penalty goal kicked by Neville Nankivell, giving them eight points. McGill's three points came from a penalty goal-kicked by S. Khazzam.

The Scoreboard

FOOTBALL

Senior

	P	W	L	T	F	A	P
Western	---	3	3	0	0	57-18	6
Toronto	---	3	2	1	0	52-17	4
Queen's	---	3	1	2	0	24-39	2
McGill	---	3	0	3	0	20-69	0

Weekend Results

Toronto	---	7
Queen's	---	0
Western	---	11
McGill	---	7

Future Games

Sat., Oct. 24—Queen's at Toronto

Western at McGill

Western Intercollegiate

	P	W	L	T	F	A	P
U.B.C.	---	3	3	0	0	105-38	12
U. of Alta.	---	4	2	2	0	114-67	4
U. of Sask.	---	3	0	3	0	16-130	0

*(All B.C. games are 4 points)

Weekend Results

Alberta	---	50
Saskatchewan	---	3
RUGGER
Toronto	---	8
McGill	---	3

(Toronto leads 2 game total points)

Physical Education and Athletics COACHING and INSTRUCTION

Boxing and Wrestling 5.00 p.m. daily
Fencing and Gymnastics—Tuesdays and Thursdays 5.00 p.m.

Weight Training—10.00 a.m. to 4.00 p.m. daily

Start of Judo—12.00 noon—31 Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday
Swim Tests. Make an appointment at the Key Office in the Athletic Wing

HARRIER (Cross Country) RACES

INTRAMURAL RACE—HIGH PARK COURSE—SATURDAY, OCT. 24th—11.00 A.M. SHARP! Open to all undergraduate students who have not been members of a Senior Intercollegiate team.

UNIVERSITY RACE—HIGH PARK COURSE—THURSDAY OCT. 28th—3.30 P.M. SHARP! Open to all undergraduate students.
ENTRIES FOR BOTH RACES NOW BEING ACCEPTED AT INTRAMURAL OFFICE, HART HOUSE.

QUEEN'S AT VARSITY OCTOBER 24th

Student Football and Hockey Books on Sale
at the Athletic Office, Hart House

9.30 a.m. to 5.00 p.m.

If you have not got your book, buy it today.
Combined Book $2.50 — Football Only $2.00.

RED CROSS CLINIC DATES FOR DONORS

MONDAY, OCTOBER 19 — VICTORIA & EMMANUEL
Margaret Addison Hall — 9.30 - 11.30 a.m. 1 - 4 p.m.

MUSIC AND MEDS

67 College Street — 12.00 - 3.30 5.30 - 8.00

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 20 — MEDS & MUSIC
67 College Street — 12.00 - 3.30

NURSING, KNOX and ARCHITECTURE

Sir Daniel Wilson Auditorium — 9.30 - 11.15 1 - 4

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 21 — MEDS

Hart House — 9.30 - 11.15 1 - 4

U.C., P.&O.T., P.H.E.

Sir Daniel Wilson — 9.30 - 11 1 - 4

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 22 — U.C., P.&O.T., P.H.E.

Sir Daniel Wilson — 9.30 - 12 2 - 4

DENTS and PHARMACY

67 College Street — 10 - 12 3.30 - 5

Blue
and White

FOOTBALL DANCE

- Hart House
- Saturday, October 24 — 9 p.m.
- $2.50 per Couple
- Tickets — S.A.C. Office Only

These tickets will be sold on a first come, first served basis only.

No telephone reservations can be accepted. A certain number of tickets will be reserved for Queen's students.

Mustangs So Lucky

Western Mustangs delved deep into John Metras' supply of proverbial horseshoes as they eked out a narrow 11-7 victory over a revitalized Redmen from McGill, Saturday at London.

With their minds obviously on the half time celebrations to come Mustangs turned in a pitifully inept first half of football. At half time, graduates of Western showered many gifts and honors on head coach Metras (including a spanking new automobile) who was celebrating his twenty-fifth year of association with Western athletics.

Western lead 1-0 after the first half on a single by Bill Mitchell, when the booting ace missed a field goal from the McGill 15 yard line. A crowd of close to 10,000 saw McGill pile up eight first downs to Mustang's three and an unimpressive 24-yards gained rushing.

Western mustered their only effective attack of the game early in the third quarter. Wydareny scored the major on an end sweep from eight yards out. The convert was good.

Mitchell scored again for Mustangs early in the fourth quarter completing his second field goal attempt from the McGill thirty-five yard line.

The last half of the quarter belonged exclusively to McGill. Behind the fine passing arm of John Roberts and good running by Carl Hansen, Redmen dominated play on both the ground and the air. Hansen scored McGill's major on a pass from Roberts from the Mustang 20. Joe Irwin completed the convert.

STEVE CHISHOLM fumbles as he is hit by the Queen's tacklers on the last play of the first half at the Gaels' goal-line. Chisholm's fine running made him a standout in the game despite the bobble.

Blues Overcome Gael's Defence Win 7-0 In Thrilling Finish

By Dave Griner
Varsity Sports Editor

KINGSTON, Oct. 17—Varsity Blues took over second place in the Senior Inter-collegiate football league as they edged the Queen's Gaels 7-0 here this afternoon in a rugged hard-hitting game.

Blues' powerful ground attack, spearheaded by Steve Chisholm, and John McMurtry moved the ball consistently throughout most of the game, but a stubborn Queen's defence held Varsity to one point over the first 55 minutes.

When Blues finally broke through for a TD, it was set up by their defence. Queen's gambled on third down on their own 28, and failed when three tacklers led by Trevor Eyton stopped the ball carrier inches short of the first down.

Varsity got one first down, and then Nick Sopinka passed into the flat to Bobby Dann who cut down the sidelines for the score.

Blues had a wide margin in play throughout the game, rolling up 322 yards running and passing, while holding Gaels to 199 yards. That they were not able to convert the margin into points on the scoreboard can be attributed mostly to a hard tackling never-say-die Queen's defence.

Equally impressive was the Varsity defence aided by the kicking of Peter Potter. Although he did not turn in an impressive average, Potter constantly kept the Gaels hemmed down near their goal line with his high spiraling punts. The height of his kicks seldom allowed the Queen's team many yards in runbacks whereas Varsity were getting 6-12 yards regularly.

Two Varsity drives died when an alert Queen's defence intercepted a pass to end one and recovered a fumble to choke off the other. Blues eventually counted when Potter hoofed a 50 yard kick into the end zone where Weldon Thoburn tackled Mike Pettit for the rouge.

Queen's marched to the Varsity 25 in the second quarter, but linebacker Sandy Bell, a standout for Blues, trapped quarterback Kent Plumley for a 12 yard loss, and Robin Ritchie's 35 yard field goal attempt was blocked by Paul Burroughs.

In the dying minutes of the quarter, Blues marched 73 yards to the Queen's 9, then on the last play of the half, Steve Chisholm fumbled when hit near the goal-line and the threat was ended. Highlight of the drive along the ground were the slashing runs of Chisholm and John McMurtry.

The third quarter was scoreless, as both teams hammered away without any marked success. The turning point came when Queen's gambled on third down with less than five minutes to go in the game.

Needing one yard for the first down on their own 28, Queen's went for it, but Ritchie was stopped by Thoburn and Trevor Eyton and Varsity took over the ball.

Two running plays by Chisholm took the ball to the 12, and then Sopinka passed to Dann for the TD. Potter's convert attempt was no good.

Queen's roared right back after the kick-off, and with a crowd of 7,500 standing in the rain, Plumley hit Ritchie for 13 yards, then passed to Bob McAleese for another 38 and a first down at the Varsity 28.

Burroughs ended the threat when he intercepted a pass by Potter intended for Plumley.

Standouts were easy to find on both sides. The entire Gael wing-line deserves much credit, with George Bethune coming in for the roses, while Ritchie was the best of the backfielders.

Bell made a great effort for the Blues, particularly in the first half, when the Queen's line was part. Chisholm had his finest day outchargin' its Varsity counter-in a Varsity uniform, as he churned for 118 yards in 16 carries.

Notes . . . McMurtry gained 80 yards in 17 carries . . . Potter averaged just better than 38 yards per kick . . . Myers intercepted two Queen's passes . . . Creswell gained 42 in 8 carries before he was injured.

MILT JEWELL (21) moves in to hammer Queen's backfielder. Also moving in is Casey Wood (43).

Abner's Raceway

One of the members of the newly formed University of Toronto Automobile Club smashed the Class D production sports car record at the Edenvale Race track this weekend.

Bud Martin II UC raced his car against two clocks to gain official recognition for his time.

According to the explosive Mr. Steinberg, 36 drivers have combined to form the aforementioned club. CAPUT will be approached for official recognition following tomorrow's club meeting.

The meeting is scheduled for 5 p.m. in room 52L in University College. Election of officers and the formation of a constitution are on the agenda.

The first official race will most probably be run on Sunday October 25, at the Edenvale Race Track.

JOHN MCMURTRY (91) grimaces as he is about to be tackled after another of the frequent gains he made during Saturday's game with Queen's.

Oh My Aching Ulcer!

Toronto — Centres: Crawford, Jewell; guards: Bulucon, Eyton, Bell, S. Dever; tackles: Thoburn, Jackson, Wood, Bradstock, Kay; ends: Jack, House, Lougheed, Baird; quarterbacks: Sopinka, Campbell; backs: Wyles, Myers, Dann, Chisholm, Creswell, Murchie, McMurtry, Burroughs, Connolly, Knowles, Potter.

Queen's — Centres: Steinburg, Saegert; guards: Wilson, Shearn, Arber, Bethune; tackles: Johnson, Posps, Ware, Hawkins; ends: Robb, Plumley, Sharpe, Thompson; quarterbacks: Plumley, K. Richards; backs: Ritchie, McAleese, Todd, Wicklum, Johnson, Skene, Forter, Pettit, McGill, Strickler, Pasloski.

First Quarter

1. Toronto, single (Potter).

Second Quarter

No scoring.

Third Quarter

No scoring.

Fourth Quarter

2. Toronto, TD (Dann).

Bleeding Slowly

The quickening pulse of the University of Toronto's blood campaign has been slowed down by colds and by failures to fulfill pledges.

Students' Administrative Council Student Service Commissioner Nancy Davidson (II T) said many donors are being turned away from the clinics because they have colds.

"We usually ask them to drop back in a few days", she added.

Miss Davidson also pointed out that many students are not honoring their pledges to donate blood.

"While there's nothing we can do about this, we don't like it at all", she commented.

Friday's donations from Victoria totalled 240 pints, and Red Cross officials anticipate a further 250 donors to bleed at today's clinic.

The total will be well over the combined Vic-Emmanuel quota of 450 pints.

This year the blood clinic sites are being distributed about the campus so that students will be able to travel shorter distances to give blood.

foreign students

Any foreign U of T student interested in carrying the flag of his country for the United Nations Club at the football game Oct. 24 should call John Beatty at WA. 3-6020.

MARRIED STUDENTS

Is your wife looking for employment? Attractive opportunities are available nearby.

Telephone EM. 3-1211
Local 22298

COACHING

Calculus, Accounting, Introductory lessons on Theory of Compound Interest, and Life Contingencies.

Call RU. 3-2257 evenings

BUY FLOWERS

for all occasions at the

PARK PLAZA FLORISTS

10 AVENUE ROAD

WA. 3-6361

10% DISCOUNT TO STUDENTS AND STAFF

Special Attention - 25% Discount ON ALL JEWELLERY PURCHASES

Including: Watches, Diamonds, Silverware, Lighters, Wallets, Pens, and Pencils, Radios, Clocks, Costume Jewellery etc. etc. You must have your A.T.L. card when making a purchase.

SHEFFIELD JEWELLERS

DIAMOND MERCHANTS

323 YONGE ST. (5 doors above Dundas) TEL. EM. 6-0977

Today's Formal

Boffant lipstick red embossed taffeta waltz length skirt. A gathered diagonal drop lends to the straight bodice. A simple touch of elegance. $59.

HELMAR

WA. 1-5978

46 ST. GEORGE STREET

DIAMOND RINGS

SAVE THE BIG MARK-UP BY BUYING YOUR DIAMOND RINGS DIRECT Satisfaction Guaranteed or Money Refunded

Tel: EMpire 8-5268

WINSTALL DIAMOND CORP.

1219 Bank of Comm. Bldg.

25 King St. West

Toronto, Ontario

BLEEDING BUT SMILING is Stan Dubas, Students' Administrative Council finance commissioner who gave blood at Victoria College yesterday.

Vegas Net $150

Over 200 University of Toronto students showed up last Friday to cash in on fun at Las Vegas Night, which kicked off the United Appeal drive on Campus.

The affair, sponsored by the Students' Administration Council, was staged in the Drill Hall at St. George St., and run by volunteers of SAC and the Students Services.

The event was highlighted by a 'gay nineties' style decor during the evening. Officials wore elaborate costumes typical of the period.

A dixieland jazz group bounced out a musical background to the proceedings.

Meanwhile, the celebrated Diamond Jim was exposed as Paul Schreider (II UC). Earlier it had been reported that a mysterious gambler, tagged Diamond Jim, would travel from his Mississippi riverboat to U of T and oversee the activities.

The house won as usual. The $150 which remained as profit was given to the UA in the name of the U of T.

All the gamblers were not unsuccessful. One gentleman left $45 richer.

This is the first stunt launched by UA to drum up funds from students.

GOOD HAIRCUT

RIGHT NEAR HERE

4 BARBERS - NO WAITING

600 University Avenue

Just below College

In the Basement

Open Monday through Friday

8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

ONLY $1.00

Pi Lambda Phi has notified UA it will offer a bottle of whiskey to the faculty which donates the highest amount of money.

The Fraternity added they consider the engineers have it in the bag.

pc's confer

D. G. Creighton, former head of the University of Toronto History Department will be chief speaker at the Progressive Conservative Club Caledon Conference, Oct. 23-25. PC officials announced last night. Dr. Creighton's subject will be Sir John A. Macdonald.

Caledon weekenders will participate in seminars on government labour, fiscal and economic policies.

Walter Dinsdale, Manitoba MP, will address the conference on "Ethical and Moral Values in Politics".

Hayrides, dances and movies are also planned.

Anyone interested in attending the conference can contact Jerry Collins at HU. 5-9626 for further details.

UNIVERSITY BLAZERS

Custom Made

Especially Priced for Students

$27.50

Fine Flannel Worsted Trousers

$16.50

Business Hours: 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Monday through Saturday

Suits Made to Measure

Latest Styles and Design

PARNES Clothing Co.

706 QUEEN STREET WEST

EM. 6-2025

Sample at S.A.C. Office

U. C.

Leather Goods

Manufacturing Company Limited

3047 Dundas Street W.

RO. 3-3461

Consult us for your requirements:—

—in briefcases

—underarm portfolios etc.

Favourable discount 20% to university students and staff.

Seeking Top Actresses For Homecoming Show

Officials of the 1959 edition of the Varsity Homecoming Show last night announced that one top-name Canadian entertainer has already been signed for the show and they have high hopes that another leading television personality will also consent to appear.

Crest Theatre actress Toby Robins has already signed a contract to take part in the 1½ hour show, and present indications are that CBC singer Joan Fairfax will also appear, Homecoming Show Chairman Marilyn Croucher (II Trin) said.

Miss Croucher also announced that a provisional panel of judges for the Miss Varsity contest has been selected.

The contest, to choose a girl who will represent 'The spirit of the U of T' will form one of the highlights of the 1½ hour Homecoming show.

"We may be a bit optimistic about the attendance," she said, "but we're ready for 8,000 students and 2,000 general public."

The Homecoming Show will be held in Varsity Arena on Friday, Oct. 30th. Admission will be 50 cents for students with ATL cards, and $1 for all other persons.

Student Paper Folds

OTTAWA, Oct. 14 (CUP) — Carleton University, one of the few universities in Canada to grant a degree in journalism, recently found itself without a college newspaper.

The Carleton's entire editorial staff resigned last week. "One person resigned, then everyone resigned," said a member of the college staff. Reasons for most of the resignations seemed to be lack of experience.

Reported financial difficulties in securing the advertising necessary to support the paper may have some bearing on the resignations. Ads are secured through a Central Advertising Bureau operated by students.

The students are doing their best to get the paper reorganized. A list posted in the college was signed by about 32 students and latest reports indicate the paper will be back in business in two weeks.

carabins

Today is absolutely the last day for receiving applications for the Carabin weekend, that unique annual exchange between the U of T and the Université de Montreal.

Application forms may be picked up at the Students Administrative Council office any time before 5 p.m. today.

So if you would like to take part in one of the highlights of the U and T's cultural and social year, drop down to the SAC office before 5 p.m. today.

Debating Team

For the second time in the history of the University of Toronto Debating Union, women have made the team. UTDU vice president Bill Graham announced Friday.

Joyce Cohen (I UC) serves her second year as a regular with the team, and Linda Silver (III UC) will participate as one of four alternates.

UTDU will debate in several Canadian and American universities, and will participate in a few radio and television programs, Graham said.

Other members of the team are Max Rotstein (I Law), Marvin Catzman (I Law), Robert Kaplan (II Law), James Coleman (II Law), R. Jones (I SPS), John Greisman (II Meds), Richard Tan (II SMC), Norman Williams (III Vic), Pat Wooten, Jay Waterman (III UC), Fred Gans (III UC), Jerry Izenberg (III UC), Jerry Caplan (IV UC), R. Edison, and S. Goldenberg. S. Hansen, Walter Fox (II UC), and Dave Higgins will serve as alternate debaters.

THE S.A.C.

BOOK EXCHANGE

— AT —

119 ST. GEORGE STREET

IS NOW CLOSED

For the convenience of those students who have been unable to collect the proceeds from the sale of their books we are arranging for further payments to be made on MONDAY, OCTOBER 26th at the S.A.C. Office from 2:00 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.

— NOTICE —

The Exploration Society, in conjunction with the Society of Exploration Geophysics, will present ANTARCTIC CROSSING in the DEBATES ROOM of

HART HOUSE on OCTOBER 21 at 8 p.m.

This film depicts the conquering of the frozen continent of the south by world famed scientist, Sir Vivian Fuchs. It is a heart-grIPPING drama of man's fight against the elements in his quest for scientific knowledge.

We will be fortunate enough to have Dr. J. Tuzo Wilson present to act as chairman and to give us some of his own views obtained when he visited Antarctica.

ALL WELCOME — COFFEE WILL BE SERVED

GIRLS — Come on out and kick for the HOMECOMING SHOW

CHORUS LINE AUDITIONS

MONDAY, OCTOBER 19, 5 p.m.

At Convocation Hall, Trinity College

Garrett Demands Re-Opened Case

By ALAN WALKER
Varsity Cup Editor

Ian Garratt, who was suspended from his portfolio as Blue and White Chairman Sept. 30, says he may be down but he isn't out.

Following consultation with a lawyer, Garratt said last night he will have his case reopened by the Students' Administrative Council.

Council President Walter McLean pointed out the SAC had already voted unanimous non-confidence in Garratt at an earlier meeting.

"The SAC gave him a break by not expelling him completely," he said. "If he persists the SAC will be forced to take more seriously a motion regarding his complete expulsion from the Council."

A motion to expell Garratt was defeated at a closed session of the SAC Sept. 30. The same meeting saw his portfolio suspended.

Garratt said as reason for his reopening the case, he wanted to "clear my name."

"In view of the fact that the Music Committee is now investigating me, I feel I should take immediate action," he said.

Garratt said he was worried the storm was gathering when he found his SAC file missing Monday. A recent SAC ruling says no files can be taken out of the office unless they are signed out. Garratt said the file wasn't officially out of the office.

The listed charges against Garratt were ones of "irresponsibility and conduct unbecoming a Council member." Garratt attacked these charges relentlessly.

"They made private charges they couldn't prove," he said, "but then at the meeting they mentioned only the charges of irresponsibility and unbecoming conduct. These are meaningless."

He went on to say although the specific charges were not mentioned at the meeting as charges, everybody concerned had heard about them, and had assumed them to be true because they went unanswered.

"I want a specific charge placed against me," Garratt said. "I will disprove it."

Jerry Case, last year's SAC Chairman, will act as Garratt's counsel.

"Ian was never officially told of the charges against him," Case said last night. "He had no chance to prepare a rebuttal to them. He was outside the session when they were brought up."

Garratt was pacing the halls outside the Hart House Debate's Room during the latter part of his trial.

"He was proved guilty by insinuation," Case said. "This action of the SAC was an extreme brand of McCarthyism, and we are sure we will win."

Walter McLean admitted the decision of the Council was based on opinion.

"The closed session was not a court of law," he said. "The case was not one of circumstantial evidence. We didn't have to have facts to convict him."

Case also commented on the closed session.

"I think a closed session is incompatible with the judicial atmosphere that should have prevailed," he said.

Vince Kelly, last year's SAC President, is also in Garratt's corner.

"The charges against him were generalizations," he said last night. "He had no time to think. He was maligned by innuendo. The whole campus thinks he stole money."

Garratt charged two members of the five-member SAC executive with spreading the charges against him. "Everybody knew about them," he said, "but they weren't brought up so I could knock them down."

Garratt was asked why the SAC had been so determined to clip his wings.

"I don't like to sit back and see irregularities in procedure," he said. "Other people will overlook them. I won't. I noticed them and mentioned them. I made a lot of enemies."

Peter Dembski, who led the investigation committee formed to look into Garratt's activities, said last night Garratt was sufficiently warned.

"What was done, was fairly done," he said.

Wayne and Shuster May Star in Homecoming Show

There's a three to one chance that Canadian comedians Wayne and Shuster will appear in the 1959 edition of the annual Varsity Homecoming Show.

The show's producer-director, University of Toronto graduate Jim Vasoff, said last night the well-known comedy team has agreed to appear in both the show and the half-time entertainment at Saturday afternoon's game.

"But," he said, "There's a condition attached to it — they can only appear if prior commitments don't demand their presence".

Vasoff said such commitments included the Ed Sullivan Show. Wayne and Shuster have a standing contract with Sullivan for a certain number of appearances annually.

Vasoff said he would know definitely by Friday whether the two comics would be able to appear.

Besides their appearances on the Sullivan Show, the pair have a regular program on the Trans-Canada network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. They are also in great demand for personal appearances.

Exact nature of the acts the two will present if they are able to appear in the Homecoming Show is not yet known, but Vasoff said it's hoped to feature them in a choreography routine during the half-time of the Western-Blues game — this year's Homecoming gae.

Vasoff also announced that it looks as if another top-name top-name Canadian star will take part in the Homecoming Show.

"There's a 90-10 chance we'll get Singer Joan Fairfax", he said.

"Only hitch is that Miss Fairfax has a television show Sunday, and her appearance in the Homecoming Show is only possible if she can rearrange her rehearsal schedule," he said.

Other Homecoming Show acts announced last night include a West Indies Calypso Group, and a quartet from Victoria College's Middle House.

Both groups are composed entirely of undergraduates.

The Homecoming Show will be held in Varsity Stadium Friday, Oct. 30th.

Four Men Accused Of Assault at U of T

A laborer working on the new University of Toronto Arts building was allegedly attacked by four unidentified men yesterday.

Police are investigating a complaint laid by Frank Paquette, 32, who says he was stopped and assaulted while at the wheel of his truck at 9.45 a.m. yesterday.

Police have not released the names of the four men.

Witnesses said the truck's gear shift stick was knocked into first gear during the attack, putting it into motion.

One of the four alleged attackers, while running alongside the truck, fell and caught one arm under the vehicle's front wheel, the witnesses said.

The man has been reported in Toronto General Hospital receiving treatment for lacerations to the arm and a broken shoulder.

One witness said the alleged assailants were apparently under the influence of alcohol. Paquette was threatened with a rock during the attack, they said.

Detective F. Stratten of the Metropolitan Toronto Police Department said last night: "A private complaint was filed by the

Colds Cut Down Blood Donations

Campus colds continue to jeopardize University of Toronto's blood campaign, officials said last night.

The total of 538 pints collected so far (from Victoria College, Emmanuel and Law) is "quite satisfactory, considering the number of donors turned away because of colds", Red Cross officials said last night.

In the face of a "desperate need" for blood, officials repeated their request that students fulfill their pledges. "If everyone who pledged blood turns up, the U of T quota of 4,500 pints will be met," they added.

Blood clinics operate for Meds, Nursing, POT, UC, Architecture and Knocks today.

The U of T blood campaign ends Oct. 30.

PROFESSOR GEOFFERY BULLOUGH of King's College, the Anglican College in the University of London, speaks during the second of the five lectures included in this year's Alexander lecture series.

Topic of the series, which ends Friday, is "Mirror of Minds".

TYPING

Theses, Essays, Notes, Charts, French, German, Latin, English Prices Upon Request
Apt. 12
21 AVENUE RD. — WA. 2-7624
MRS. M. D. STOTT, B.A.

COACHING

Calculus, Accounting, Introductory lessons on: Theory of Compound Interest, and Life Contingencies.
Call RU. 3-2257 evenings

HART HOUSE ORCHESTRA ASSOCIATES

1959-60 Season

Concerts on Sunday Evenings, with

DR. BOYD NEEL Conductor

November 8th — English composers
November 22nd — Italian Settecento composers
December 13th — Bach family
January 17th — Edvard Grieg
February 17th — Classicists & Contemporaries

STUDENT SUBSCRIPTIONS FOR THE FIVE CONCERTS $4.50

Available at the Hall Porter's Desk, and at the Arts Colleges (Victoria College Alumni Hall) at noon daily this week.

GOOD HAIRCUT RIGHT NEAR HERE

4 BARBERS — NO WAITING
600 University Avenue
Just below College
In the Basement
Open Monday through Friday
8 a.m. to 6 p.m.
ONLY $1.00

UNIVERSITY BLAZERS Custom Made

Especially Priced for Students

$27.50

Fine Flannel Worsted Trousers $16.50

Business Hours: 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.
Monday through Saturday
Suits Made to Measure
Latest Styles and Design
PARNES Clothing Co.
706 QUEEN STREET WEST
EM. 6-2025
Sample at S.A.C. Office

CLASSIFIED ADS.

FOR SALE—1958 M.G.A.

Convertible, Continental kit, spoke wheels, $1,850. Financing available. Phone WA. 2-3293.

KITCHEN HELP WANTED

12:30 to 2p.m., Monday thru Friday. Call Sam Maleolmson, WA. 1-1561.

ROOM FOR RENT

Male boarders only. Apply 39 Prince Arthur or phone WA. 1-9012.

MALE STUDENT

To share large comfortable room with engineering student. Full board and laundry. LE. 4-6960.

FOR CASH SALE

51 Vanguard, excellent mechanically, motor, tires, body solid, new battery. Cheap! OX. 4-8485 after 5.

FOR RENT

Room for one or two girls in apartment. Quiet environment. 29 Avenue Rd. Call WA. 3-1026.

SELF CONTAINED APARTMENT

In professor's home, close to University, available Nov. 30 for single woman. Modest rent in return for some household assistance to be arranged. WA. 2-9284.

LOST

Brown hand tooled wallet (with A.T.L. card). Between Bayview and the University. Call HU. 9-8495.

VACANT, NEWLY DECORATED

Furnished large room, suitable for one or two girls. Kitchen facilities available. Bloor-High Park district. Call Lee, RO. 6-2435 (between 9 and 5 p.m.).

LOST

Ladies, gold watch, engraved. Reward. Phone HU. 3-4702.

SOCIETY OF FRIENDS (QUAKERS)

FRI., OCT. 23 at 8:15 p.m.

SPEAKER — ARTHUR MORGAN
"THE CHALLENGE OF THE MODERN COMMUNITY"
ROYAL ONTARIO MUSEUM — ROOM 64
(Bloor and Avenue Road)

*There's Something Special
about du MAURIER*

The Exclusive "Millecel" Filter Tip, the most efficient filter yet developed, lets you draw free and easy, for full smoking satisfaction. du MAURIER combines the finest Virginia tobaccos to give you perfect mildness and smoothness. Once you smoke du MAURIER you'll make the distinctive red and silver package your favorite — always.

du MAURIER

A Really Milder High Grade Virginia Cigarette
with the EXCLUSIVE "Millecel" FILTER TIP

Daylight Saving Ends Saturday

THE PERFECT ONE COLOUR
LOOK IS NOW YOURS!

Kitten

solves
the match
problem!

No "just-off" colours but guaranteed colour harmony! So, for tea at the Dean's or cokes at the corner it's the new Kitten matching skirt and sweater in heather-mix lambswool... soft as a handful of Scottish mist... in subtly muted colours.

THE SWEATER: Wing-neck, bracelet-sleeved pullover, sizes 34 to 40, price $10.95.

THE SKIRT: slim and half-lined, sizes 8 to 20, price $17.95.

Look for the name Kitten

GUARANTEED
TO MATCH

7330

EATON'S

The Shaggy
Collar
Story

Raccoon is the rage again... to put you in the football spirit and keep you warm at the games. Our corduroy brief coat is collared in snuggly raccoon, lined with rayon pile and quilted rayon over warm interlining, adding up to grand insulation for cross campus dashes on blustery winter days. Red, green, brown, beige. Sizes 10 to 18.
each 39.95

PHONE UN. 1-5111 SPORTSWEAR
EATON'S — Main Store — Fourth Floor — Dept. 246

WEDNESDAY FIVE O'CLOCK RECITAL

HART HOUSE MUSIC ROOM—TODAY 5 p.m.

PAUL BRODIE, Saxophone

University Men and Women Welcome—No Tickets Necessary

DIAMOND RINGSSAVE THE BIG MARK-UP BY BUYING
YOUR DIAMOND RINGS DIRECT
Satisfaction Guaranteed or Money Refunded

Tel: Empire 8-5268

WINSTALL DIAMOND CORP.1219 Bank of Comm. Bldg. Toronto, Ontario
25 King St. WestSATURDAY LUNCH
GREAT HALL, HART HOUSE

BEFORE THE QUEEN'S-VARSITY GAME

Open to MEN and WOMEN of the University and their guests.

Saturday, October 24th, from 11:45 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Skog
says..."Don't look back, something might be gaining on you!"

Satchel Paige, the ageless Negro pitcher, first came to fame back in the 1930's when he played semi-pro baseball. He frequently called in the outfield and proceeded to strike out the batters in one, two, three order. He was old then, but in 1953 he was still going strong. Someone asked Satchel what rules he followed to stay so young and active. Here was his reply:

"Avoid fried foods, which angry up the blood. If your stomach disputes you, lie down and pacify it with cool thoughts. Keep the juices flowing by jangling around gently as you move. Go very light on the vices such as carrying on in society. The social ramble ain't restful. Avoid running at all times. Don't look back, something might be gaining on you."

It's that last bit of advice that I like most of all. If we could train ourselves to plan ahead for problems we are bound to face, we'd all have more peace of mind and perhaps live longer.

One of the problems you will face eventually is money for retirement. The NALAC's Life-time Income Plan will help you solve it by providing a regular cheque every month of your life, from the retirement day you specify. If something happens to you, your family will still receive a regular monthly income. Your NALAC representative will be glad to explain a plan for your future that will give you more "Confident Living" today.

Confidently.

H. P. Skoglund
H. P. SKOGLUND,
PresidentNORTH AMERICAN
*Life and Casualty Company*LIFE SICKNESSGROUP
ACCIDENTCHARLES E. REA — Toronto Manager
99 Avenue Road Phone WA. 5-5994here and now*WEDNESDAY

1 p.m.—Dr. F. A. Sherk will discuss "Revelation and Reason" in the Engineering VCF study period, room 2065, Wallberg Building.

1 p.m.—The Engineering Debates Club will debate the topic "White Skin is a 'Carte Blanche'" in the Mechanical Building, room T-102.

1:10 p.m.—Trinity College study group will be led by Mrs. E. Hardy in room 8A, Trinity College.

1:10 p.m.—The Faculty Members Group will meet in the Chaplain's Office, Hart House.

4:10 p.m.—Miss Nancy Holman will lead a "New Testament Christianity" Bible study group in the SCM Office, Hart House.

5:30 p.m.—SCM will meet for supper and hold its fall assembly meeting afterwards at the Coach House, 110 St. George St.

THURSDAY

12 noon—Undergraduate Nurses will discuss "Faith and Living" at the Group Discussion Series sponsored by the Varsity Christian Fellowship in room 53, School of Nursing. The speaker will be Rev. Arthur Lee.

1 p.m.—VCF Bible Study for UC students will be held in room 111, University College, and for Vic students in room 21, Victoria College.

4:10 p.m.—"Era of the Angry Young Men" will be discussed at the Group Discussion Series of the Varsity Christian Fellowship in room 19, Victoria College. The novelist, Miss Grace Irwin will be the speaker.

4:10 p.m.—Rev. Alan McLachlin will lead an SCM study group on "Tillich's Dynamics of Faith" in room 14, Victoria College.

4:10 p.m.—Miss Nancy Holman will lead in SCM study group on the "Unfolding Drama of the Bible" in the Coach House, 110 St. George St.

4:15 p.m.—Mr. E. B. Joliffe, an expert on Chinese Affairs, will address an open meeting of the CCF Club on the subject of China in room 34, Victoria College.

5 p.m.—Rehearsal for flag carriers of the United Nations Club and others for United Nations Day, Saturday, Oct. 24 will take place at Varsity Stadium.

5 p.m.—Cheerleaders from every college and faculty and dancers for Homecoming Show are to practice at Varsity Stadium.

1 p.m.—Prof. J. M. Ham will lead a freshman engineer's study group in the Music Room, Hart House. All new Skulemen welcome.

7:15 p.m.—External Affairs' Committee will discuss "The West Indies in Transition" with delegates from the 1959 WUS Summer Seminar in the Music Room, Hart House. Speakers will be Mary Fraser, Bob Matthews, and Paul Druckman.

7:45 p.m.—Dr. F. A. Sherk of the Department of Mathematics will speak to the Lutheran Student Club at its regular meeting at 610 Spadina Ave. Refreshments will be served.

9 p.m.—There will be bridge, games, dancing and refreshments at the Graduate Students' Union.

8 p.m.—The Psychology Club will meet at Elmsley Hall, St. Michael's College.

FRIDAY

8:30 p.m.—West Indian Students' Association plans their annual fall prom in Trinity's Convocation Hall. Admission is $1 for members, $1.25 for non-members.

— Victoria College —
Installation of Northrop Frye
as Principal

Tonight at 8.00 p.m. in Convocation Hall

Staff and students are cordially invited to attend

Hart House*TODAY

12:15 p.m. Noon-day Prayers—Chapel

1:00 p.m. INTRODUCTORY LECTURE IN SQUASH
Derek Bocquet. New members especially welcome. Music Room.5:00 p.m. WEDNESDAY FIVE O'CLOCK RECITAL
Music Room—Paul Brodie, Saxophone
University men and women welcome.

7:00 p.m. Table Tennis—Fencing Room

7:15 p.m. Revolver Club—Rifle Range

8:00 p.m. EXPLORATION SOCIETY—
OPEN MEETING, Debates Room
Film on Antarctica—
New members welcomeTOMORROW

8:00 a.m. Holy Communion—Chapel

5:15 p.m. Record Room Instruction—Record Room

7:00 p.m. Art Class—Art Gallery

8:00 p.m. Archery—Rifle Range

8:00 p.m. DEBATE—"THE WELFARE STATE
INEVITABLY SAPS IN-DIVIDUAL INITIATIVE"Visitors: United Kingdom Debating Team—Debates RoomAPPLICATIONS

Scana Conference—Texas A &amp; M, Dec. 9-12

World Affairs Conference—McGill, Nov. 17-20

S.A.C. Office TodaySame Special Student Rate — $1.00THE LITTLE FOXESDirected by
Robert Gill

SAT., OCT. 24th, to SAT., OCT. 31st, at 8.30

STUDENT SUBSCRIPTIONS STILL AVAILABLE—$3.00 FOR FOUR PRODUCTIONS

BLUE & WHITE
BAND

Practice for Week Oct. 19-23

Tues., Oct. 20, 5 p.m.
Drill HallWed., Oct. 21, 5 p.m.
Varsity StadiumThurs., Oct. 22, 5 p.m.
Varsity StadiumIn case of rain, rehearsals will be held in Drill Hall.BUY FLOWERS
for all occasions at the
PARK PLAZA FLORISTS
10 AVENUE ROAD
WA. 3-6361
10% DISCOUNT TO
STUDENTS AND STAFFYOUR BLOOD*the greatest gift of all*TYPEWRITERS$1.00 A WEEK BUYS ...
... $1.50 A WEEK RENTS
Get a free typing course and a liberal trade-in allowance for your old typewriter when you buy a new modern machine
from us.

Phone HO. 1-1843 Today

comment

our lonely man

Seldom have we heard the problem of the isolation of the artist more vividly expressed than it was last night by Irving Layton when he spoke before the Graduate English Club.

When Mr. Layton spoke of his consciousness at an early age of being "different" and his constant painful awareness of the "ephemeral" quality of the world, he was, in effect, telling us what an artist is.

The artist is possessed always by what Bertrand Russell has called "unyielding despair". He knows that whatever he does, must pass away. He knows that death is his unavoidable end, that his work will pass into oblivion.

And yet as Thomas Wolfe once pointed out most beautifully in an essay entitled God's Lonely Man, this special knowledge gives rise to a strange paradox.

For the man overwhelmed by "unyielding despair" is also the man who finds the most intense joy in life.

It is just this special combination of intense joy and deep despair that sets the artist apart and envelops him in an appalling loneliness.

And too, it is this strange conflict of emotions that creates the magnificent imbalance in an artist which he seeks to rectify with his works.

It is this acceptance of the inevitable and his defiance in the face of it, that came to us from Irving Layton as he spoke last night in the Croft Chapter House.

dls

THE VARSITY

Editorial and News Office

Basement, SAC Building — WA. 3-8742, WA. 3-8113

TODAY'S ISSUE: A slow, quiet night at The Varsity . . . like, without any panic buttons. Helping us were Fran Maine, Fred Host, George Harpur, Lee Richardson, Larry Zolf, Mike Razminsky, Dave Helwig, Maryanne Kelso, Bob Shuster (car for sale), Susan Kastner, John Robert Colombo and Mike Cavanagh (darkroom scientist), all members of the underground.

our readers write

igor, west indians, and boy scouts

deviation

Dear Sir:

We read in Varsity, October 15th, 1959: "Mr. Biriukov pointed out, along with Murray Ross, U of T vice-president, the academic pace of the average student in Canadian universities is far below that of the USSR." Let us quote Professor Bladen, Dean of the Faculty of Arts: "In January a young South African, Edward Davis, serving as a Visiting Professor in the University of British Columbia, gave his impression of 'The University System in Canada' in a post news talk over the C.B.C. . . . What then of Edward Davis? After a few months in one university in Canada he feels able to assess the universities of Canada, and he finds them wanting. After thirty-eight years in one university in Canada, I find myself able to talk about that one, but I am so conscious of the variety of the Canadian universities that I am not prepared to generalize, as he does . . . Yes, we must be critical and must welcome intelligent criticism. But let us be proud, too."

What then of Mr. Biriukov? After two days in one university in Canada he feels able to assess the universities of Canada, and he finds them wanting.

We read in Komsomolskaja Pravda, the newspaper of the Soviet Student Federation, the president of which Mr. Biriukov happens to be, that more than a thousand students of Leningrad University had been expelled because of deviation from Marxist tenets.

How many Canadian students were expelled because of deviation? The pace of Canadian universities is indeed far below.

B. A. Szabo

resignation

Dear Sir:

Up to a few moments ago (October 16) I was a member of the Executive of the West Indian Students' Association. I say that because I hereby publicly resign from my position.

I have just finished reading a letter in today's Varsity, signed by the President of the Association, and I quote: "On behalf of the West Indian Students' Association, we the members of the Executive . . ."

And in closing: "On behalf of the Executive, I am . . ."

This is my first inkling of the "Executive's" move. When the meeting to take this action was held, I do not know, as I have not been summoned to any. Such an action is lacking in mere common courtesy, to say the least. I consider the principle entirely out of order.

A meeting of the Executive should have been called, and a vote taken. Should the motion then be carried, no one, even a person in the minority, could have had any right to complain. But, I do not appreciate anyone speaking for me without my at least knowing it.

The Pagan And The Professors

"If there are any reporters present, I want them to write that I think all square-toed infants should be boiled in milk."

This was the first of many remarks made by Irving Layton at the Graduate English Club last night. The first meeting was held in the Croft Chapter House with about sixty incredulous English Graduates present. There was a look of stunned astonishment on their features.

"Poetry is built on conflict," the beaming author, of over twelve volumes said. "The poet tragically affirms life against the enemies of Puritanism, Parochialism, Philistinism and the repression of sex." The Graduates looked positively alarmed.

"And, in addition," he said, "poetry deals with the earthy, brutal aspects of life and the brute aspects of pain. A poet has a sense of life; if he doesn't have this, he is either a critic or a university professor."

The last statement broke the ice. The affable Irving smiled — "children love me like a story" — and he knew he had his audience. "The poet must go through his private hell," he continued. "He must be different and he must face the horrors of life with detachment."

The poet-studded audience included about six campus literary personalities and one full-fledged literary critic. "As if to displace a popular image of myself," he said, "I am not a sexologist, although I do say that sex is enjoyable."

Mr. Layton had the habit of creating excitement with his unrestrained images and unbridled reminiscences. "Just the other day I met a young poet on Yonge Street. He had been an alcoholic for ten years. He told me he cut out drinking and smoking; I didn't ask him what else he did without."

"But he wasn't a poet," Layton said, "although he had endured resentment and was properly angry with social injustice. I saw my own life in his failure. There but for the grace of God go I."

Layton beamed. His latest volume of collected poems "A Red Carpet for the Sun" had sold over two thousand copies. "It has sold better than any, other book of Canadian verse and my books have outsold all other American poets in the last year."

The Roumanian-born poet moved to Canada in 1913 at the age of one. "I was too young to persuade my parents to return," he said. "But my new environment was favourable because I lived with the immigrant humanity on St. Elizabeth Street in Montreal."

"As a poet I try to communicate the feeling of these experiences. I have learnt to do this by reading and conversing with the novelists and the writers of my time."

"But I try to be immediate in my verse. A leaf falling in 1959 is not falling in the same way that it fell in 1859. It tickles the moustache of Hitler. For the leaf falls through our sensibility. It is the poet's task to recreate this."

"Consequently I believe the poet is a self-menaced animal. I have often been considered a happy nature boy with an open fly," he said with sarcasm in his voice.

Mr. Layton smiled and his audience smiled with him. He explained that there were two obsessions in his life. "There is the knowledge that everything is ephemeral and the feeling that pathos is everywhere. As a result, man is doomed to defeat but the poet does not accept his inevitable defeat."

This was followed by Layton's impassioned readings of seven poems. Coffee and discussion closed the evening. Layton, everyman's ideal of the poet, was immediately surrounded by admirers, autograph-hunters and English Graduates in search of a thesis.

John Robert Colombo

The collected poems of Irving Layton — "A Red Carpet for the Sun" — will be reviewed in Friday's issue of "The Varsity". The paper-back edition sells for under $2.00 and contains over 200 poems.

A copy of this letter is being forwarded to the Executive Secretary of the Association.

Yours truly,
Joy Gordon, III U.C.

discrimination

Dear Sir,

We the executive members of the West Indian Students' Association wish to draw your attention to a story in the Telegram of October 16 under the headline "Racial Bans Rife on Campus" attributed to our President.

In our view the headline was dangerously misleading, seeing that it could be construed to mean that the University as a whole, including administration and staff, are involved.

This is contrary to our experience as was pointed out in a letter to the Varsity of October 16th. Our statement read as follows: "We are not aware of the link between the University and fraternities, but if they received any special privileges as campus organizations, we ask that they be brought in line with the policy on the Administration of the University which as far as we know does not practise discrimination on the ground of race, colour, or creed." Moreover, it is the feeling of overseas students as a whole that the University has maintained a consistent policy of fairness and impartiality.

The Telegram's reporter failed to make this clear as we requested him to do and we felt therefore that it was incumbent upon us to draw it to the attention of all concerned hoping that it will serve to clear up any misconceptions which may have arisen.

On behalf of the executive members of the West Indian Students' Association, I remain,

Very sincerely yours,
Eugene Moore, President

indignation

Dear Mr. Editor,

Just what is "dls" trying to prove in his article in The Varsity on Monday. Did a Boy Scout sell him a rotten apple Saturday. I doubt it: a person with such a poisoned mind would be too cheap to buy an apple. "dls" must be telling us his life story when he talks about "a mysterious change" from the innocent naivete of cub-hood. The writer's concept of the scout movement is also obviously as broad as his mind (determined scouts helping old ladies across streets).

Is The Varsity just trying to fill up space by printing such tripe? I suggest you purge your "crusading journalists. If you can't print decent material, then take a hint from the staff of the Carleton University Paper, and don't print anything. Instead of an election for senior campus scout, I suggest "dls" elect himself senior parasite, for he takes pleasure in destroying what is good—the Boy Scout Movement.

Brian R. Hayes (I Vic)

kingston trio

R and

The Kingston Trio wiggled, jived, and bongo-ed their way in Massey Hall audience last night. The whole show was a "bit much".

Nevertheless for two and a half hours, and sometimes weary hours, and tapped as the guitar strummed musically chugged their way through the past few months the Kingston Trio a type of folksy hydromatic bongo money and top place on every hit record continent. The folksongs, usually obscure and hazy past of some ballad in the United States, hit a cross between and roll and sad jazz.

Recent records of the group, have to the million mark, include "Foley" and Scotch" and the "Rider on a Pale Horse". The theme of many of the records is some pathetically sick situation that is like a frontier hanging, zombie man in a graveyard, and in one case a child who on the subway perpetually became sad to leave.

And last night the groups commercial folksongs ran true musical rhythmic propulsion that storm in the blood of even the most usual, the trio managed to range the offbeat lyric under the sun, and lighter ballets dwelled in psychology, on troubles in Africa, German, French, and Italian pop of a frustrated seaman, and rowdy trek of a great plains hunter.

The evening's high moment came when the trio swung into the version of the "It Takes A Worried Man". In the unintelligibility of most of the night, the words in this jazzed through strong, clear, forceful, and organized with the rumbling background.

Although the Kingston Trio, University of California, the projected their routine with polished

On My Way to School

On my way to school
I used to pass
A Baptist church and fields of grass.

"Jesus Saves"
Above the gate
Would comfort me
I were late.

The church is gone,
The Street is paved,
The Home Bank thrives
Where Jesus Saved.

Bargain

an years married bliss
have I been disloyal
ve;
I am told, are still

e set barter your maidenhead
heard-of infidelity,
between three and five to-
and it is done.

erving Layton's "A Red for the Sun" (McClelland ewart Limited, Toronto,

audience request night

DiStefano Subveral Supervoice

Giuseppe Di Stefano, undoubtedly the greatest actor, and possibly the greatest tenor that Italy has produced in the past few decades drew a less-than-capacity, heavily-Sicilianized audience to Massey Hall Monday night. His program was obviously planned with a pre-dominantly Anglo-Saxon clientele in mind, but the outspoken fans soon made it quite clear what they wanted to hear. We then proceeded to rip up our program, laden with folk and art songs, and settled back to an evening of popular operatic arias drawn from the loud requests of the local Italian colony.

Three Bellini songs which opened the program were most satisfyingly sung with clear diction, much feeling and the required smooth legato line. Before each of the Sicilian folk songs (three of which were dropped by popular request) he explained what he was going to sing about, supplementing his lack of English with appropriate nods, smiles and meaningful gestures.

The sub-verbal communication which went on between singer and audience produced the first substitution, "Vainement ma bien aimee" from Lalo's Le Roi D'Ys, a soprano aria which tenors have appropriated for their own display. Here the tenor lacked the light supple quality which, in the past, have made his pianissimos the best since McCormack's; the slight harshness may have been due to his Italianized French diction.

For the rabid top-note fans, Di Stefano had little to offer in this recital. The ringing high C's which he pours out effortlessly in his recordings of Trovatore, Norma and Puritani were nowhere in evidence. Only in "Core Ingrato" in the Sicilian group did he come out with a fully sustained top B.

Although he was coaxed into singing "E lucevan le stelle" from Puccini's Tosca, and despite his protest that he had caught a cold in Montreal, his rendition was superb; the full-throated voluminous tones brought peals of "Bravo" even before he was finished. The only reservation which stands out in the otherwise sensitive accompaniment of Toronto pianist Mario Bernardi was his awkwardness in slipping into the powerful, melodramatic mood required for his aria (although Mr. Di Stefano had no such problem).

The opening section of Petri's arietta showed a delightful, airy softness in the tenor's voice; not that it was more subdued, but only more notable because of the excellent breath control.

The only thing that was lacking in this recital was the exquisite Bel Canto colouring he has achieved on records, in particular, his recording of the "Tormento di Federico". On Monday night, DiStefano's voice seemed to range from two extremes—the lusty, Italianate flair and the delicate, captivating falsetto. But the ideal Bel Canto balance of the two, which he has achieved in the past was not heard.

Maurice Holder.

A M
&
D

two . .

International Artists' Celebrity Series gets under way this Friday at 8:10 p.m. with a Massey Hall recital by one of the greatest violinists of our time. The name Yehudi Menuhin has spelled magic ever since a little eight-year-old in knee pants stepped out onto the stage in San Francisco and immediately became the outstanding child prodigy of the last hundred years.

Pianist Leon Pommers will accompany Mr. Menuhin in Beethoven's Sonata in F major, Op. 24 (The Spring), Paganini's Concerto in D major and "Il Palpitante" and Szymanowski's Dryades et P.N. The violinist will also perform the Sonata in G for unaccompanied violin which Bela Bartok composed for him in 1944.

Some seats for this concert alone are available but a subscription for the complete series would be more economical for these excellent concerts.

Goes Native

howled, parts of a show the boisterclapped treesome

act. In parleyed
both top cross the
from the ection of red rock

re soared
"Soda NTA". around incidents ancing in o stayed no fare

ish and
With a up up a individ-
of every e softer ical psy-ween the problems ous and hen the ling disc relative ing the g came nchron-

guitars.
st of the ally inoffbeat

humour on par with top funny men in the business. A television censor would have red pencilled many of the cracks, but for the liberal night club circuit they were big stuff.

The show hit sweet and sour spots. Only props on the stage were a table, chair, and microphone. At one point two of the trio left the stage. Then the third began a throaty, torchy song on his own. It became pitifully clear he needed more experience to sharpen up his performance.

The trio had an enthusiastic and energetic beat. For the most part that was all. Even near the end of the act this too became a bit tedious. The reason was simple. All the songs and ballets were musically painted against what amounted to a monotonous and repetitious background conglomeration of banjo and guitar gyrations.

One lilting tid-bit, tagged "Zombi Zamboree" had one or two audible words, but consisted mostly of howls, screams and grunts. One of the singers, literally man-handling a banjo, started bouncing up and down on the stage like an Elvis Presley shifting out of low gear. He became so excited and overcame with his own physical manipulations of the song, that he crashed into the table sending a couple glasses of water spilling over the other two performers.

Earlier in the evening one of the group explained the origin of an original Spanish folksong labelled "Coplas". "We'd sing you the original lyrics except for the plain fact they were dirty," he said.

For the finale of the show the group drummed out a rousing version of "The Saints Come Marching Home". It amounted to a musical orgy, looking at one time similar to several zulus, bellowing during mating time with the aid of a couple of guitars and a banjo. However, the packed house went wild.

After it was all over the performers came out to take the bows. One of them clutched the microphone. "We are certainly glad you are the type of people who know what we are trying to do in the sphere of music."

To use the old cliché: "these are the best and worst of times."

Terry Bourke.

. . advances

Paul Brodie, considered by many as Canada's leading saxophonist, will give a recital in the Music Room of Hart House this afternoon at 5 p.m. After advanced study with the great French virtuoso Marcel Mule he returned to become the first permanent saxophone teacher of the Royal Conservatory.

His program on the Alto Saxophone, with the piano accompaniment of Dr. George Brough will start with a transcription of Handel's Violin Sonata No. 3, in four movements. The original saxophone works on the program include two by Jacques Ibert, Histoires and Concertino da Camera, and other selections by Bozza, Lantier, Granados, and Rungius-Meurice.

Women are most welcome at this and all the other Wednesday 5 o'clock concerts, escorted or not, so girls, please come upstairs to the Music Room this afternoon and put life into this concert. It's free.

ADVANCE NOTICE

MONTREAL EXCURSION TRAINS

VARSITY at MCGILL

The Students' Administrative Council Will Operate Special Trains To and From Montreal

Return Fare $12.50

(Special S.A.C. tickets which can only be used for the S.A.C. trains with no refunds on unused single sections of the tickets.)

Leave Toronto Friday, November 6th, 1959, at 2:30 p.m. (with Dining Car). Arriving Montreal (Central Stn.) 9 p.m. (Supervised by S.A.C. Officials)

OR

Leave Toronto Friday, November 6th, 1959, at 11:15 p.m. (no Dining Car). Arriving Montreal (Central Stn.) 7:15 a.m. (Supervised by U of T Police)

Return from Montreal (Central Stn.) Sunday, November 8th, 1959, at 4:15 p.m. (with Dining Car) (Supervised by S.A.C. Officials and U of T Police). Arriving Toronto 11:00 p.m.

PLEASE READ CAREFULLY

This will be the only trains for which the University will accept responsibility. Students who travel any other way are doing so as private individuals.

CONDITIONS

It is estimated that about 1,500 students are planning to go to Montreal and in view of this all S.A.C. trains will be strictly supervised.

No alcoholic drinking will be allowed.

These trains, with so many passengers, are a tremendous responsibility especially on the heavily travelled route to Montreal. The trains are being operated with an assurance to the Railway that there will be no delaying of the trains on route by students, the lighting will be undisturbed and damage prevented in every way possible.

Tickets will be sold only on a conditional basis (signed by each student) the conditions being as follows:—

1. The student's conduct shall in no way bring discredit upon the University.
2. Alcoholic beverages must not be brought to the trains or offered or sold to other students.
3. The communication cord must not be pulled except in case of real emergency. Even then you are required to report to the officials and explain the circumstances. To pull the cord for any other reason is a criminal offence.
4. Lighting equipment must not be disturbed in any way.
5. Any damage to the train must be reported to the officials immediately.
6. You are required to obey any instruction given by an official.

(THE RIGHT IS RESERVED TO REMOVE ANY PERSON FROM THE TRAIN WHO IS CREATING A DISORDER.)

RESERVATION

If you are prepared to adhere to the above conditions please complete the following details and send this reservation to the S.A.C. office immediately so that a ticket can be reserved for you—we shall be limiting our responsibility this year to the number of students we can properly supervise.

ALL TICKETS MUST BE COLLECTED BY THURSDAY, NOV. 5th 1959.

Name .....

Address .....

Telephone .....

I wish to reserve a ticket for the ..... afternoon train ..... night train and accept the conditions of sale. (Signed) .....

NO TICKETS WILL BE ISSUED ON THE DAY OF TRAVEL—TICKETS
WILL NOT BE ON SALE AT THE STATION OR ON THE TRAIN.

IMPORTANT MEETING

AT VARSITY ARENA—THURS., OCT. 22, 5:00

For all faculty cheerleaders cheering at home-coming weekend.

SKATING

RECREATIONAL—CO-EDUCATIONAL

Wednesdays and Thursdays 11:00 a.m. to 12:30 noon

Physical Education credits granted November 18th to March 31st

REGISTER: Women—Women's Athletic Building.

Men—Mr. Griffiths' Office, Hart House.

ALL STUDENTS WELCOME

WANTED—MANAGERS

For Intercollegiate Wrestling, Boxing and Swimming Teams. Please make application for one of these positions in the Intercollegiate Office, stating experience, Faculty, Year etc.

QUEEN'S AT VARSITY OCTOBER 24th

STUDENT FOOTBALL AND HOCKEY BOOKS ON SALE AT THE ATHLETIC OFFICE, HART HOUSE

9:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

If you have not got your book, buy it today.

Combined Book—$2.50; Football only—$2.00

GAMES TODAY

GAMES TODAY
FOOTBALL	East	4:00	Pharm	vs	Forestry	Weinrib, E. Abella, McCulloch
SOCCER	North	12:30	Trin. B	vs	SPS. IV	Hansen
	North	4:15	Forestry	vs	Wye	Bonfield
	South	4:15	Arch	vs	Emman	Seizer
VOLLEYBALL	Major	1:00	SPS. III	vs	U.C.	Jeanjean
		4:00	Pre-Med I O	vs	U.C. Loudon	Drainin
		5:00	St. M. I	vs	Med. II Yr	Drainin
		6:00	SPS. Kremlins	vs	Pre-Med II Yr	Drainin
		7:00	Med. IV Yr B	vs	U.C. Taylor	Coolhill
		8:00	SPS. F	vs	St. M. III	Coolhill
LACROSSE		1:00	U.C. II	vs	SPS. II	Spanatz, Roth
		5:00	St. M. B	vs	Vic. II	Barrett, Naylor
		6:00	SPS. IV	vs	II Pre-Med	Barrett, Naylor
		7:00	Law	vs	Trin	Barrett, Naylor

GAMES THURSDAY

GAMES THURSDAY
FOOTBALL	East	4.00	U.C.	vs	Trin	Golden, Flancman, Mandel
SOCCER	North	12.30	SPS. III	vs	St. M. B	Hilgenberg
	South	4.15	Pharm	vs	Knox	Jensen
VOLLEYBALL	Major	1.00	St. M.	vs	Sr. SPS	Jeanjean
		4.00	Arch B	vs	Emman	Goldman
		6.30	Med. IV Yr A	vs	Dent. II Yr	Eamer
		7.30	Wyc. A	vs	For. A	Eamer
		8.30	Wyc. B	vs	For. B	Eamer
LACROSSE		5.00	I Pre-Med	vs	SPS. V	Naylor, Misener
		6.00	Med. A	vs	Vic. I	Naylor, Misener
		7.00	Knox	vs	Pharm	Naylor, Misener

SPORTS SCHEDULES—WEEK OF OCT. 26th

IMPORTANT—MANAGERS: ALL TEAM REGISTRATION LISTS MUST BE FILED IN INTRAMURAL OFFICE BY WED. OCT. 28th. BLANK FORMS ARE ATTACHED TO ALL GAME BOARDS FOR YOUR CONVENIENCE.

FOOTBALL—Mon. Oct. 26	East 4:00	Forestry	vs	Med	Godley, Chykalluk, Kolodzie
Wed. Oct. 28	East 4:00	Vic	vs	U.C.	Welnrib, Keiner, McCulloch
	West 4:00	Jr. SPS	vs	St. M.	Chapnick, Barrett, Lipson
Thur. Oct. 29	East 4:00	Trin	vs	Sr. SPS	Golden, Starkman, Mandel
Fri. Oct. 30	East 4:00	Pharm	vs	Dent	Stokes, Flancman, Marchut
SOCCER—Mon. Oct. 26	North 12:30	Sr. SPS	vs	St. M. A	Hansen
	North 4:15	Med. B	vs	U.C.	Seizer
Tues. Oct. 27	North 12:30	Pharm	vs	Forestry	Hilgenberg
	South 12:30	SPS. IV	vs	St. M. B	Farwell
Wed. Oct. 28	North 12:30	Jr. SPS	vs	Vic	Hansen
	North 4:15	Med. A	vs	Trin. A	Bugarski
	South 4:15	Knox	vs	Arch	Mayhanovich
Thur. Oct. 29	South 4:15	Wyc.	vs	Emman	Jensen
Fri. Oct. 30	North 12:30	Trin. B	vs	SPS. III	Bonfield
	North 4:15	Law	vs	Forestry	Arvis
LACROSSE—Mon. Oct. 26	1:00	Vic. II	vs	I Pre-Med	Hill, Roth
	5:00	SPS. I	vs	U.C. I	Hodgkinson, Grist
	6:00	SPS. II	vs	Dent	Hodgkinson, Grist
Tues. Oct. 27	5:00	Vic. I	vs	St. M. A	Barrett, Misener
	6:00	Pharm	vs	SPS. IV	Barrett, Misener
	7:00	II Pre-Med	vs	Knox	Barrett, Misener
Wed. Oct. 28	1:00	SPS. V	vs	St. M. B	Hill, Spanatz
	5:00	Trin	vs	SPS. II	Naylor, Haskell
	6:00	Dent	vs	SPS. VI	Naylor, Haskell
	7:00	Med. I Yr	vs	Law	Naylor, Haskell
Thur. Oct. 29	5:00	U.C. I	vs	Vic. I	Hodgkinson, Chubb
	6:00	Med. B	vs	SPS. II	Hodgkinson, Chubb
Fri. Oct. 30	1:00	St. M. A	vs	SPS. I	Spanatz, Roth
VOLLEYBALL—Mon. Oct. 26	1:00	U.C. Pilgrims	vs	SPS. H	Stein
	4:00	Pre-Med I A	vs	U.C. Jeanneret	Granatstein
	5:00	Med. III Yr.	vs	SPS. C	Granatstein
	6:00	Sr. SPS	vs	Med	Granatstein
Tues. Oct. 27	1:00	SPS. J	vs	St. M. VIII	Sigal
	6:30	Arch. A	vs	Pharm. A	Stein
	7:30	SPS. D	vs	U.C. Taylor	Stein
	8:30	Emman	vs	Pharm. B	Stein
Wed. Oct. 28	1:00	St. M. I	vs	SPS. A	Drainin
	4:00	Pre-Med I O	vs	U.C. Frat Note	Goldman
	5:00	SPS. Kremlins	vs	U.C. McCaul	Goldman
	6:00	Dent. IV Yr	vs	Trin	Jeanjean
	7:00	U.C.	vs	Pharm	Jeanjean
	8:00	St. M.	vs	Knox	Jeanjean
Thur. Oct. 29	1:00	St. M. V	vs	Pre-Med I A	Coolhill
	4:00	St. M. VI	vs	U.C. Sigma Al	Goldman
	6:30	U.C. Beta Sigs	vs	Med. II Yr A	Sigal
	7:30	SPS. B	vs	Dent. II Yr	Sigal
	8:30	U.C. Hutton	vs	U.C. Jeanneret	Sigal
Fri. Oct. 30	1:00	Pre-Dent	vs	Vic M.F.H.'s	Drainin

Interfac Summary

Things have been booming on the Intramural front, with almost all fall and winterish sports underway.

In Group II football action this week, Meds battered a weak St. Mike's entry 20-1. Zadiyko, Turner and Charron scored majors for the doctors while Ashby booted two singles. Tomas kicked the only point for the Irish.

In Soccer activity, St. Mike's A defeated Trinity 1-0. Frans Andrighetti scored the winner.

Sr. SPS overwhelmed Med A 3-1. Casey, Atucha and Doench scored for the skulemen while Bill James got the doctors' lone tally.

Vic and UC battled to a 1-1 tie. Vic happened to score both goals, however. Binnington got the first for Vic while an unidentified teammate scored on his own goal trying to clear.

In the opening games of the young lacrosse season, SPS I walloped Med A 9-2. For engineers, Lawrence and Wallace scored hat tricks while Simpkins, Simpson and Dawson garnered singles. Thompson got two goals for the losers.

Howie Lil' Bar Roth went on a scoring spree, sinking five goals as UC battered St. Mike's 18-0. The game was called in the fourth quarter. Hill, Misenar, and Stan Fraser scored three each with Naylor getting two and Spanetz and Musselman garnering singles.

The Scoreboard

FOOTBALL

Senior

P W L T F A P

Western	3	3	0	0	57-18	6
Toronto	3	2	1	0	52-17	4
Queen's	3	1	2	0	24-39	2
McGill	3	0	3	0	20-69	0

Future Games

Sat., Oct. 24—Queen's at Toronto
Western at McGill

MORGAN DEVER, whose consistent line play and excellent blocking has been a great asset on Blues offensive line. The veteran guard has proven himself a capable leader.

More Injuries Weaken Blues

It never rains but it pours! That's how Dalt White, coach of the Varsity Blues, feels as he looks over the mounting casualty list of his team.

Five first stringers were missing when the Blues clashed with Queen's last Saturday at Kingston, and now as a result of that game two more may join them on the sidelines.

Halfback Dave Cresswell pulled a hamstring muscle in his right leg and will almost certainly not dress this Saturday. Steve Chisholm, who has performed in All-Star fashion for the Blues to date, has aggravated a neck injury received at training camp and may be unable to play.

This would mean that Doug Boyd and Mike Smith, who have not seen any action so far this season, would dress. Another who would not doubt get a good crack at running would be Al Connolly.

The smallest man on the team at 5'6" and 155 pounds, Al showed plenty of speed and ability in Kingston last week where he did a terrific job running back punts. His three runs from scrimmage produced 19 yards, for an average of 6.3 yards per carry.

White feels that the Blues' failure to score as much in their last two games has been as much because of the good play by the opposing teams as bad plays by the Blues themselves.

Most observers feel that the Blues are bound to break out of the famine soon. White also was surprised at the feeling among some sections of the press that the Blues must have played badly to only beat Queen's 7-0. He pointed out that over the years, Toronto has never beaten Queen's in Kingston by more than a touchdown or so, and more often than not Varsity lost.

SCORING

Name	T	D	C	F	S	T	P
Mitchell (W)	4	4	1	1	17
DANN (T)	2	-	-	-	12
Wydareny (W)	2	-	-	-	12
POTTER (T)	4	-	4	8
Potter (Q)	1	-	-	2	3
Irvin (M)	1	1	-	1	8
MCUMTRY (T)	1	-	-	-	6
LOUGHREY (T)	1	-	-	-	6
CHISHOLM (T)	1	-	-	-	6
MURCHIE (T)	1	-	-	-	6
MUIR (T)	1	-	-	-	6
Coventino (W)	1	-	-	-	6
Shepherd (W)	1	-	-	-	6
Wickham (Q)	1	-	-	-	6

Swimmers Needed....

By Marius Van Nooten
Varsity Swimming Coach

With the opening of a new scholastic year, many new faces have arrived on the campus, many among whom will be able to fill a position on the Varsity Swimming Team.

As most people well informed about our sport will note, Toronto has had for the last three years the most successful swimming team in its history, having been undefeated in Dual Meets all last season and holding the Canadian Intercollegiate Swimming title for the last three years. During the past two seasons we have been fortunate in having with us Bill Yorzyk, a former Olympic champion, as a member of the team and during last season as a coach. Because of Bill's studies (III Meds) he has been unable to continue swimming. This together with the loss of other lettermen has weakened our team. We urge all those who feel qualified to come down to the pool as we are in desperate need of swimmers.

This year we are having the toughest Dual Meet schedule in the history of any sport at the University. Among others, we are swimming against three of the top American swimming teams, namely Indiana, Michigan State and Bowling Green.

Practices are from 4.30 p.m. every day except Monday at Hart House. On Thursdays we swim at the New University Settlement pool.

comment by mike chykaliuk

The Interfaculty football league zoomed off on a tremendous blast of blood, gore and injuries last week when all teams engaged in their season openers.

The knock them down — step on them — and kick them in the ribs pattern of previous campaigns was perseveringly pursued. Many observers believe that the Interfaculty league is rougher than the Senior Intercollegiate league where the Blues are receiving their lumps this year. If injuries were used as the criteria, then this certainly would be the case.

In the contest between Victoria and Trinity seven players were pummelled seriously enough to adjourn to Dr. MacIntosh's clinic for the rehabilitation of football crocks. Two of the seven spent the night as guests in the Health Service infirmary.

Why all the mutilation?

Many causes could be advanced, including poor condition of the contestants, inadequate practise facilities, faulty equipment, hit and miss officiating, and poor coaching.

But the cardinal sins committed are the atrocious blocking and tackling. The players block with their elbows, tackle with their heads and mutilate with the knees.

Except for SPS there are virtually no qualified blockers and only three or four good tacklers per team.

Perhaps the players could share some of the blame because of the lackadaisical attitude, laziness, and lack of ability, but this would have to be a very small minority indeed. Most of them are young, eager and hungry or they wouldn't be playing the sport to start with.

Only the coaches of the respective teams can be responsible for this rank assortment of knees, elbows, fists and profanity.

Players are not taught how to block so they improvise and use their elbows. They don't know how to tackle so fists and knees are employed. Perhaps these hatchet men should pad their fists and knees instead of their shoulders!

Surely in a city the size of Toronto there should be enough qualified men to supply adequate coaching at the U of T. Of course, these coaches will have to be paid, something that isn't done at the present time.

Would not the extra cost of coaching be partly shouldered by the reduced medical bills due to fewer injuries? This, indeed, would be the ounce of prevention required.

The improved coaching at this level would also produce superior candidates for the Senior and Intermediate Blues.

Even if the result were not immediately noticeable it would be preferable to see the candidates properly conditioned instead of turning them out to pasture till the next game like a team of horses.

The responsible heads of the Intramural machinery can be justly proud of the progress already made. They have a well organized league. They have thousands of dollars worth of equipment at their disposal. They hire the officials, as such, and keep a record of the games.

But why stop on the five yard line with the goal in sight? Each year dozens of students are needlessly injured because they don't know how to play the game. Let someone show them how.

Stop the slaughter before a fatality halts it for us.

Blues Off To Aggieville Soccerites Have Injuries

Still smarting from an upset last Saturday the Blues travel to Guelph today for Senior and Intermediate games against the Guelph Aggies.

The Senior Blues suffered their first defeat of the season last Saturday when the McGill Redmen edged an injury ridden Toronto team by a single goal. The second game of the two-game total goal series will be played this coming Saturday.

Of the five injured players, Louis Mayhanovich is out for the season with torn knee cartilages, but Bell, Duncan, Primorac and Green should be fit again for today's game. The Blues will have to field a full strength team if they are to have a good chance of beating the Aggies, who have run up an impressive string of victories this year.

Offensive power seems to be the Blues' chief problem this year. The defense anchored by veteran Cobby Green is probably the best in the league, but the forward line has not clicked so far this year. Injuries permitting, Blues' first string forward quintet will be together for the first time this year in today's game and coach Tommy Duncan is hoping that they will slip into last season's form.

Meanwhile the Baby Blues will tangle with the Intermediate Aggies in an attempt to bring their season's record to three wins and no defeats. The teams for tomorrow's game are:

SENIORS: Kovacsovichs, Avis, Watson, Taylor, Green, Primorac, Bell, Duncan, Morris, Mahon, Poretz, Csongradi, Carr.

INTERMEDIATES: Devis, Kallins, Stroud, O'Leary, Walcott, Casey, McLean L., McLean W., Ryan, Hamilton, Fraser, Walker, Puski.

All the above players should report to Hart House main entrance at 12.15 today.

... and in this corner by pam hill

Okay, Glisky! You asked for six inches, and this is the best I can do at this point of the game.

Before I start, this is not a "girls' sports column", so if that's what you're looking for, look elsewhere, m'boy. If you're just looking for some "stream of consciousness" to muddle over in a lecture, read on, Macbeth!

At 9.10 last night, just as I'm about to toddle on up to my wee sack — having been pleasantly treated to a Collins at the Embassy — I'm rudely aroused by this note saying: "Pam Hill: STORY DESPERATELY needed at Varsity tonight." Joy!

So I call Gene to see if he's pulling another one of those fast ones, but no luck. He's serious.

9.15. I call Sharon to see if she has any info. — on anything. All she has is a tennis scoop from last week-end, which I already knew about and wasn't so hot anyway.

So I call Viuu to get the deal on the Interfac. Archery tournament, just yesterday completed. But oh no! She's out.

Try Janet Medland. Swim team's supposed to be a vague reality now. Line's busy. (Not that that's irregular at that number!)

There was another note from Mary Stiles. Maybe the Hockey Club has decided to have an Exhibition match with the Leafs — or at least the Argos. Or maybe Pharmacy is being put up a League.

"Mary's out right now. Can I take a message."

So I phone the big boy-friend. He comes up with the BRILLIANT suggestion of phoning all the girls that were in the tournament (as if I knew who was in the thing!) and figure out from them who came first. Oh clever, my dear! (But at least I got the invite to a hot meal out when I get this six inches done!)

So, on the way down the hall to my room, I politely stop in at Pam Kerr's room to see how our baseball practise was, and how our Senior-Junior team did against PHE. Since I — like a good filial daughter — had allowed my maternal parent to take me to see "Anatomy of a Murder" (second sitting, lousy movie), I had asked Pam to make proper excuses for me at these charming athletic functions, and tell them how good I was (never having appeared in either sport before!) and how terribly interested I really was. And she tells me that I wouldn't have been used on the B-ball team, and that they're not using me in the baseball game today.

So, after five minutes of reducing my wild gestures, screams and pleas to quiet sobbing and belching, I quietly retire to mine cell (having devoured — alone — the better half of a box of Peak Frean digestives all by myself — uninvited). And all I need is four more lines!

The swim team really is starting practises this Thursday, and will be working regularly five days a week. The turn-out for the trials was revoltingly apathetic! Baseball and B-ball can go to ... Kingdom Come! I'm sure the hockey must be featuring Turk Broda — or at least Ronnie Knox. We came second to Queen's in the Intercollegiate tennis at MacMaster, and that's good. Cheers, chaps!

Political Leaders To Speak At PC Caledon Weekend

A number of well-known political figures will participate in the Progressive Conservative Club Caledon Conference, Dave Crane P.C. Club President, announced last night.

Hon. James N. Allen, Provincial Minister of Finance, will open the conference. He will discuss government fiscal policy and the recent Dominion-Provincial Conference on Finance.

Saturday's luncheon speaker will be Milan Jakubec, President of the Canadian Mutual Co-operation League, whose subject is: "Theory and Practice of World Communism." A discussion of defence policy and international affairs will follow.

Heath McQuarrie, MP for Prince Edward Island is scheduled to address the conference on the role of the Conservative Party in Canadian history.

Sunday's speakers include MP Walter Dinsdale and Prof. Donald Creighton. The conference will be closed Sunday evening by John Trimble, President of the Ontario Young Conservative Association.

"This is an excellent opportunity to meet government leaders and to gain a better contact with politics," Crane said.

Cost of the weekend is $3.50 and transportation will be provided. For further information phone WA. 5-7945.

McGill Offers Mambo Course

MONTREAL, Oct. 14 (CUP) — McGill students will soon be able to trip the light fantastic. Dancing lessons are being offered by the McGill Students' Union and the Women's Union.

Courses in cha-cha, mambo, samba, and rumba will be conducted by Miss Mildred Barry, a well-known Montreal dancer. Instruction will cover the elementary dance steps as well as advanced Latin-American rhythms.

The class is to be limited to thirty people with equal representation of each sex. A second set of lessons will be set up if there is sufficient demand. The classes will be two hours long for eight weeks.

Commenting on the plan, Peter Clibborn, Chairman of the Union Board of Managers, said, "I think dancing is a good thing." Zafar Kahn, President of the Union was not available for comment. The fee for the course is ten dollars.

More Girls Than Men Try Out For Carabin

A total of 169 applications for the Carabin weekend exchange were received before applications closed yesterday.

Artists made a poor showing in the number of forms submitted. Engineering applications were up, medals remained the same and submissions from women in the faculties of nursing and therapy fell down.

Of the applications, 89 were received before last Friday with a rush of 80 yesterday. Women contributed 103, with 66 applications from the males.

From St. Michael's College, only four men applied against 23 women from SMC.

Friday's edition of The Varsity will announce results of the Carabin selections.

Speak On China

A recent traveller in mainland China will be the speaker at today's regular meeting of the campus CCF Club.

E. B. Joliffe, a Toronto lawyer, was born in China and visited the country this summer with other Toronto lawyers.

The meeting is at 4.15 p.m. in room 34, Victoria College.

It's Fun to DANCE AT Mart. Kenney's Ranch

EVERY SATURDAY

CANADA'S FINEST
BANDS

Special Student Rates
$1.00 per person

Reservation and Information
AT. 8-1282

Martin Bockner presents
EWAN MacCOLL and PEGGY SEEGER
in a program of English, Scottish and
American FOLK SONGS at EATON
AUDITORIUM, Saturday, November 7th,
8:30 p.m. Tickets: $3, $2.25, $1.50 — A & A
Bookstore, Towne Records, Eaton Auditorium Box Office or Phone MEIrose 3-2411.

United Appeal Concert

Thursday, October 22
12.00 — 2.00 p.m.

Convocation Hall

PROGRAMME

Mike White and his Imperial Jazz Band

Ruth Ann Scott — 1959 A.V.R. star
Doreen Uren — Pianist

Skyway Singers — U.C. Folk Singers

Bud Hill — Modern Jazz Group

Joyce Sullivan — C.B.C. singing star
Doreen Uren — Pianist

Peter Appleyard
and Phil McKellar as M.C.

— NO ADMISSION CHARGE —

DONATIONS WILL BE ACCEPTED

You can help yourself
through university

URTP ROTP

EITHER OF THESE PLANS
WILL GIVE YOU
GENEROUS FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE

AIR FORCE
U.R.T.P.

(UNIVERSITY RESERVE TRAINING PLAN)

Flight Cadets (male and female) are enrolled in the Reserve Force—receive 16 days pay during the University Term—and have a potential of 22 weeks additional paid employment during summer vacation months.

Openings now for
TECHNICAL
AND NON-TECHNICAL
OFFICERS.

*This plan applies to the three Armed Services

TRI-SERVICE
R.O.T.P.*

(REGULAR OFFICER TRAINING PLAN)

Flight Cadets (male) are enrolled in the Regular Force—during the University year are subsidized for tuition with a grant for books and instruments—and receive pay and allowances throughout the whole year.

Openings now for
AIRCRAFT
AND TECHNICAL
OFFICERS.

Get full details at once so that you can take advantage of this opportunity now, while you are still attending University. For full information on requirements, pay and other benefits,

SEE YOUR UNIVERSITY SUPPORT OFFICER (RCAF)
LOCATED ON YOUR CAMPUS

ROYAL CANADIAN AIR FORCE

Blue and White

FOOTBALL DANCE

- Hart House
- Saturday, October 24 — 9 p.m.
- $2.50 per Couple
- Tickets — S.A.C. Office Only

These tickets will be sold on a first come, first served basis only.

No telephone reservations can be accepted. A certain number of tickets will be reserved for Queen's students.

A retraction . . .

With reference to the statements and my remarks in the front page story regarding Ian Garratt vis-a-vis the Students' Administrative Council which were published and distributed in The Varsity of Wednesday, October 21st, 1959, I hereby formally and publicly retract any and all of these statements, and request that The Varsity publish this retraction in a prominent position at the earliest possible opportunity.

I also wish to apologize to the members of the Students' Administrative Council, to the student body at large and to Ian Garratt, the subject of my remarks, for any inconvenience or embarrassment these remarks may have caused.

Walter McLean
President, Students' Administrative Council.

. . . of some remarks

Council president Walter McLean pointed out the SAC had already voted unanimous non-confidence in Garratt at an earlier meeting . . .

"The SAC gave him a break by not expelling him completely," he said. "If he persists the SAC will be forced to take more seriously a motion regarding his complete expulsion from the council." . . .

Walter McLean admitted the decision of the Council was based on opinion.

"The closed session was not a court of law," he said. The case was one of circumstantial evidence. We didn't have to have facts to convict him."

The Varsity, Oct. 21, 1959.

THE VARSITY

Vol. LXXIX — No. 15

Friday, October 23rd, 1959

Voters Uphold Welfare State

A Hart House debates audience last night supported the United Kingdom Debating Team and threw out by a 126-47 vote a proposition that "the welfare state inevitably saps individual initiative".

The proposition was supported by Peter Dembski (III SMC) and Ken Wyman (IV UC). British debaters were James Gordon of Glasgow University, Scotland, and Roger Tilbury of Exeter University, England.

Wyman termed his speech a plea for a return to 19th-century liberalism while Dembski said the welfare state infringes on the rights of the individual.

Gordon pointed out the welfare state provides a background against which initiative can thrive and Tilbury described the welfare state as it operates in England.

Heckling, cheering and repartee between the speaker and audience reached a high point during the second and third speeches—those of Gordon and Wyman.

Gordon picked up a reference Dembski had made to long underwear, saying Dembski's argument was woolly and covered too much ground.

When Wyman cited a report in Maclean's Magazine, audience heckling led him to shout he would defend Maclean's Magazine to the death.

Dembski's opening speech began with the long underwear reference. Comparing it to the welfare state, he said it "not only is close to personal freedoms but also restricts them to a large extent."

He compared the welfare state with capitalism. A free society can not coexist with the welfare state, he added. "It is the prerogative of the individual and his will to decide to do good or evil."

Gordon denied the Welfare state means nationalism. "The Conservative Party in Great Britain is wholeheartedly in favor of the welfare state," he said.

He compared the welfare state to "a gigantic insurance scheme with the state as the insurance company." He urged it is "the duty of the state when all else fails to step in and protect the citizens of the country."

It is not sapping initiative to guarantee people will get needed health services, education, old age benefits and unemployment insurance, he said.

Wyman said monolithic institutions, both capitalistic and state, are destroying primary institutions such as the home and church.

He compared the welfare state to a drug which temporarily eliminates pain but makes people forget the cause of the trouble.

"Can we not find a means to return to tradition," he asked, "to find a means of preserving the small group?"

To advocate a welfare state, he continued, is to advocate bureaucracy which has caused every civilization preceding this to perish.

Tilbury stressed the welfare state fosters the availability of education to all. "Literacy is something which should be owned by everybody."

A national health insurance scheme, he said, means the difference between a piecemeal system and a comprehensive one. Introduction of such a scheme in Britain, he said, immediately raised the number of people covered to all of Britain's 44,000,000 population from a previous 20,000,000.

Garratt Says Michigan Letter Will Support Plea of Innocence

Ian Garratt's case against the Students' Administrative Council began to take shape last night with a letter which he says will prove him innocent.

The letter, from the University of Michigan Marching Band's executive, asks Garratt for a "final answer" on the matter of bringing the marching band to Toronto.

Before Garratt was suspended from his portfolio as Blue and White Chairman last month, charges against him said he had attempted to hire the band without authorization of the SAC's Executive committee.

The letter, dated Aug. 24, reads in part:

"We of the University of Michigan Marching Band are eagerly awaiting the decision of your council as to whether they are going to present our group . . . at the homecoming football game . . . Please let me know when I can expect a final answer."

The letter is signed by James Shortt Jr., Faculty Business Manager, University of Michigan Band.

Garratt said the complete file of letters from himself to the University of Michigan is missing from the SAC office.

"The letters I wrote would clear me right away if they were available," Garratt said last night. "I am being investigated by a committee from the Faculty of Music now, and I haven't been able to make it known that arrangements made by me were only tentative."

"I have written to Michigan for the whole story," Garratt went on. "The fact that these letters are missing has left the impression that I made definite arrangements."

As United Appeal and blood campaigns today wind up their first week on campus, U.A. and Red Cross officials are still predicting favourable outcomes.

Blood contributions to date total 969 pints, leaving 3531 pints to be collected next week if the campus quota of 4,500 pints is to be met. However, if everyone who pledged blood turns out, the goal will be reached, officials added.

Anyone who has not yet pledged to bleed, may go to the nearest clinic or 67 College St. next week.

Meanwhile, the U.A. campaign is progressing "very well", Nancy Davidson, SAC Student Service Commissioner, said last night.

With five faculties reporting as of yesterday, proceeds total $259.

Yesterday's jazz concert at Convocation Hall brought U.A. $234 nearer the campaign goal of $6,500. With the $195 netted from the Vegas Night, the U.A. grand total is now $688.72.

Two UofT Campaigns Struggling For Quotas

United Appeal

FACULTY	DONATIONS
Social Work	$109.81
Nursing	3.00
SMC	20.56
Forestry	12.35
Total	$259.72
Jazz Concert	$234.00
Las Vegas Night	195.00
Total	$429.00
GRAND TOTAL	$688.72

As United Appeal and blood campaigns today wind up their first week on campus, U.A. and Red Cross officials are still predicting favourable outcomes.

Blood contributions to date total 969 pints, leaving 3531 pints to be collected next week if the campus quota of 4,500 pints is to be met. However, if everyone who pledged blood turns out, the goal will be reached, officials added.

Anyone who has not yet pledged to bleed, may go to the nearest clinic or 67 College St. next week.

Meanwhile, the U.A. campaign is progressing "very well", Nancy Davidson, SAC Student Service Commissioner, said last night.

With five faculties reporting as of yesterday, proceeds total $259.

Yesterday's jazz concert at Convocation Hall brought U.A. $234 nearer the campaign goal of $6,500. With the $195 netted from the Vegas Night, the U.A. grand total is now $688.72.

We've got President Bissell. We've got Principal Woodside and Principal Frye and we've even got an expansion program.

We've got mangoes and bananas you can eat right off a tree. We've got football and volleyball and a lot of dandy games.

What ain't (pardon us Dr. Frye) we got? We ain't got dames!

This shameful lack cannot be long tolerated at an academic institution with such strength of intellectual tradition as the University of Toronto so proudly possesses.

This year a MISS VARSITY will be chosen to show that beauty has once more taken her proper place as one of our intellectual pursuits.

On page five of this issue, the candidates for the title of MISS VARSITY appear in all their photogenic glory.

Its enough to make one gasp.

Deadline For MCWA Applications Tuesday

Deadline for applications for the McGill Conference on World Affairs, Nov. 17-20, is Tuesday at 4 p.m. So far only one application has been received. Conference officials want at least ten applications by Tuesday.

Opposition leader Lester Pearson will be main speaker at the conference. His topic will be "The Problems of Undeveloped Countries".

Subject of the conference is: "Afro-Asia".
Delegates from Canadian

American, and possibly British universities will attend the conference. University of Toronto is sending two delegates.

Other speakers at the conference are Sir Leslie Munro, former president of the United Nations General Assembly, and Dr. Arthur Smithies, head of the Foreign Aid Division of the United States State Department.

Application forms are available in the Students Administrative office. The conference is free to delegates.

Caput Meet may Discuss Fraternity Discrimination

There's a strong possibility that the issue of alleged racial discrimination by University of Toronto fraternities will be discussed tomorrow by Caput, the University's supreme disciplinary body.

The Caput holds its regular monthly meeting tomorrow, and while no formal agenda has been announced officials say the discrimination question may be discussed.

The Caput, which consists of heads of all colleges and faculties at U of T, has the final jurisdiction on any disciplinary case involving students of the U of T.

It has the power to expel students, to suspend them for a stated period of time, or to impose fines.

It can also recommend to the University Senate that diplomas and certificates of academic standing be withheld from students who have been convicted of a breach of university regulations.

Only student members of the Caput is the President of the Students Administrative Council, who serves ex-officio. The SAC president does not have a vote, and attends Caput sessions as an observer.

TYPING

Theses, Essays, Notes, Charts, French, German, Latin, English
Prices Upon Request
Apt. 12
21 AVENUE RD.—WA. 2-7624
MRS. M. D. STOTT, B.A.

GOOD HAIRCUT

RIGHT NEAR HERE
4 BARBERS — NO WAITING
600 University Avenue
Just below College
In the Basement
Open Monday through Friday
8 a.m. to 6 p.m.
ONLY $1.00

CLASSIFIED ADS.

FOR SALE—1958 M.G.A.

Convertible, Continental kit, spoke wheels, $1,850. Financing available. Phone WA. 2-3293.

FOR CASH SALE

51 Vanguard, excellent mechanically, motor, tires, body solid, new battery. Cheap! OX. 4-8485 after 5.

FOR SALE—52 TRIUMPH

Mayflower, 2 door sedan, maroon, excellent condition, $200 or best offer. RU. 7-1771.

SCOOTER FOR SALE

1958 Lambretta 150 LD with luggage rack, windshield and bermuda bell. Call Hugh Gordon, WA. 3-8411.

FOR SALE

Man's tuxedo suit, small size (5'6") $20.00. Call HU. 5-7118.

EARN EXTRA MONEY

Selling portable and standard typewriters, and tape recorders. Phone HU. 9-1104.

LOST

Brown hand tooled wallet (with A.T.L. card). Between Bayview and the University. Call HU. 9-3495.

LOST

Ladies, gold watch, engraved. Reward. Phone HU. 3-4702.

ROOM FOR RENT

Male boarders only. Apply 39 Prince Arthur or phone WA. 1-9012.

MALE STUDENT

To share large comfortable room with engineering student. Full board and laundry. LE. 4-6960.

FOR RENT

Room for one or two girls in apartment. Quiet environment. 29 Avenue Rd. Call WA. 3-1026.

SELF CONTAINED APARTMENT
In professor's home, close to University, available Nov. 30 for single woman. Modest rent in return for some household assistance to be arranged. WA. 2-9284.

VACANT, NEWLY DECORATED
Furnished large room, suitable for one or two girls. Kitchen facilities available. Bloor-High Park district. Call Lee, RO. 6-2435 (between 9 and 5 p.m.).

THE S.A.C. BOOK EXCHANGE

at 119 ST. GEORGE STREET

IS NOW CLOSED

FINAL PAYING OUT — MONDAY, OCTOBER 26th at the S.A.C. Office, from 2.00 p.m. to 5.30 p.m.

A.V.R. 1959-60

The A.V.R. Committee calls for the submission of the following to the S.A.C. Office:

1. Applications for the position of DIRECTOR for the 1959-60 Show
2. Applications for the position of CHOREOGRAPHER for the 1959-60 Show.
3. Applications for the position of ORCHESTRA LEADER for the 1959-60 Show.

The Deadline for all applications is Friday, Oct. 23, 1959

EATON'S

"PRIMUS INTER PARES"

said ancient Romans, means "Leader among its peers." And, in those days, Mediterranean tailors decreed that the Toga occupy the same 'primus inter pares' position that today is held by

THE CONTINENTAL SUIT!

In greys, blues, fashionable burnished browns... handsome wool worsted fabrics. Sizes 37 to 44. Each 75.00.

MEN'S SHOP EATON'S COLLEGE ST. MAIN FLOOR
A SHORT WALK FROM THE CAMPUS

WUS Chooses Israel For Summer Seminar

The State of Israel has been approved as site of the 1960 summer seminar of World University Service of Canada.

Over 80 student and faculty delegates from 33 universities and colleges across Canada met at McGill University last Thanksgiving weekend for the 14th National Assembly of Canadian WUS.

The Assembly set $15,000 as target for Canadian contribution to the International Program of Action, which assists needy students in many parts of the world. Support was pledged to the work of the Canadian Committee for World Refugee Year, and it was decided to draw particular attention this year to Algerian and Hong Kong refugee students.

Mr. Bernard Ducret, General Secretary of WUS International headquarters in Geneva, attended the Assembly unexpectedly. U of T delegates were David Scroggie (Meds) and Penny Rennie (Trin.).

HELMAR

Iridescent midnight blue cocktail dress, straight bodice delicately edged by matching beading sprinkled with rhinestones and spaghetti. Straps. $59.

46 ST. GEORGE — WA. 1-5978

Matinée

CANADA'S BEST
FILTER CIGARETTE

top taste
true mildness
best all 'round filler

Another Big Buy at COLES!

31st EDITION GRAY'S ANATOMY

Brand New! Perfect Condition!

usually
18.50

9.95

coles

726 YONGE ST.

1 block below Bloor

299 YONGE ST.

at Dundas

370 BLOOR ST.

1 block West of Spadina

Open Till 10 P.M. Every Night

THE VARSITY

comment

Towards A Last Appraisal

By David Lewis Stein

Since the second SAC meeting The Varsity has received many letters expressing a wide variety of opinions on the issues that were discussed at the meeting. This is as it should be for one of the chief aims of The Varsity in bringing the story before the public was to stimulate students into awareness of an evil problem.

But from the letters, something else has also become apparent. There is a great deal of misunderstanding about the true nature of the SAC's refusal to pass on the second part of Mr. Dembski's motion.

If the misunderstanding persists, I believe a good part of the victory we so rapturously believed had been won on Thursday night, will be unfortunately lost.

Again and again I have attempted to make clear

mr. frye moves in

Fearful Phrasemaking

Color, music, wit, and pagentry were the key ingredients flavoring the installation of Victoria College's new Principal in Convocation Hall, Wednesday night.

In front of a packed house, Northrop Frye, a leading Canadian scholar, received the scarlet robes of his office.

Vic undergraduates, graduates and academic heads from across the country showed up to watch the sparkling ceremony.

Northrop Frye is no stranger to the University of Toronto. After graduating from U of T he launched a career as lecturer in English at Victoria, eventually worked his way to a full professorship.

Highlight of the evening was Principal Frye's installation address, well spiced with his noted brand of polished humour and subtle wit.

His speech analysed the position of today's student in the university community. He singled out especially, modern attitudes of many students towards college and studies.

"For many students, the ritual act of going to university each autumn is carried out because some inscrutable providence has decreed they should be there during the mating season," he said.

"This sexual ritual," he continued "may be equated to the ceremonial dance of the northern whooping crane."

Professor Frye stressed a majority of students have no idea why they are in college. But he added "if they are lucky they may find out later."

At one point he explained to the audience that his use of the word 'man' must be taken to include both male and female students.

"Or," he said, "as late U of T president Sidney Smith always said man embraces woman."

Mr. Frye told the crowd a university cannot be first rate unless the long hours of study required and the intellectual atmosphere are acceptable to the student body.

"If we reach the stage where bookworms are condemned for their devotion to learning, the university will deteriorate into nothing more than a fresh air club for the over privileged."

He talked about the role and necessity of the arts course in university life. "Science tries to escape controversy and appeals to the mind with experimentation and cold facts. But in the humanities there is no final appeal except that of humanity itself."

The principal said "education can only lead to mal-adjustment of ordinary life."

"When the student arrives at university he becomes part of a community which is dedicated to preserving the great, lasting values and memories of mankind. He must make a decision between these values and the fleeting activities of the dissolving present in ordinary life."

He emphasized the process of learning about that the struggle was against a moral injustice and that the victory won was a moral victory. The injustice was not an injustice merely against one race or even against one member of one race, but against one individual. And the victory won, was victory for a woman of principles, to the end that such a thing need not ever occur again.

Somewhere during the course of the second SAC meeting the term "right of free association" was applied to Mr. Dembski's proposal. This misnomer only served to confuse an already subtly defined issue. It was not the right of "free association" which was in question but the right of "personal freedom." That is, the freedom of any student to think for himself and to act according to his own decision.

things is "easy." "However," he said, "a university does not want him to only know about things, but to make them part of himself."

The new principal blasted students with lack of drive, who operate at "ten percent of their intellectual capacity."

"A majority of middle class students turn up at university each year and take their seats by right like the British House of Lords."

Professor Frye said if education keeps soaring ahead with an academic attitude of laxity, the institutions of learning on this continent "will soon be radioactive with ignorance."

"The root of all the nonsense in our educational system is the stupefied conception of what we call our way of life."

He forecast a grim future for western democracy saying that at the moment all hopes of freedom based on the trained teacher and the dedicated student.

The great scientific strides of Russia have awakened the United States, he said. "Now the Russian tortoise is not only on the heels of the Americans, but it has the bold nerve to say it shall soon be in the lead."

Earlier in the evening U of T President Claude T. Bissell, extended greetings of the university saying Professor Frye's appointment as principal has opened up a new era in the history of Victoria.

"The union of Frye with Victoria will mean the crystallization of a new student society at the college," he added.

The president referred to the Vic professor as a man of insight, sympathy and universal knowledge, who will nourish the intellectual spirit of all U of T.

Dean of the Faculty of Arts, Vincent W. Bladen, expressed hope the principal's load of duties would not cut into any of his future projects in the field of literature.

President of the Victoria College Student Union said it is hard to be principal and right at once. "I am confident Professor Frye will not only be the best of principals, but at the same time as right as humanly possible," he said.

Northrop Frye has gained an international literary reputation for his works of criticism and books on poets Blake and Joyce.

In 1959 he was awarded the Pierce Gold Metal by the Canadian Society for top contributions to Canadian Literature.

Besides this he has given lectures at leading universities in the United States and abroad.

A touch of music was added near the end of the ceremony when everyone in the hall rose to their feet and hit a rousing version of the "Old Ontario Strand", Vic's school song.

Then suddenly, a group of students from Burwash Hall, a Vic residence where Professor Frye formerly stayed, rushed forth waving placards and surrounded him on the stage.

Of the issues that were raised during the week that followed The Varsity's exposure of the actions of the Panhellenic League, none has caused such widespread misunderstanding as the second part of Peter Dembski's motion.

Mr. Dembski's proposed that "the SAC strongly recommend to the President of the University that any organization which the President to his satisfaction has in fact been found to be practicing discrimination on the basis of race color or creed, should cease such practices to the satisfaction of the President or the offending members of said organizations will lose all privileges of membership in the University of Toronto."

There has been criticism of the SAC for its failure to pass this section of the Mr. Dembski's motion and perhaps even a growing bitterness among students participated in the events of the week.

It is not the purpose of this article to attempt to keep alive an issue which has already been formally settled. It is not an attempt to arouse feelings which have been gradually cooling over the past week.

This article is written only to clarify an issue which the writer believes may have obscured the true meaning of what took place. It has become increasingly apparent that such clarification is needed.

For if those who participated directly and in spirit do not fully understand the issues in question there is a very real danger that they will become discouraged and bitter. And if this bitterness is allowed to harden into apathy and cynicism, then much of what was gained will be lost.

This article is written in the hope that when the need again arises, those who stood up and were counted last week, will stand up and be counted again.

If Mr. Dembski's motion had been passed and acted upon by the caput, it would have meant that the university authorities would have been taking upon themselves the responsibility for what organizations a student may join and which he may not.

How does this affect the question of racial discrimination in fraternities and sororities?

The fraternities and sororities have no legal connection with the University of Toronto. Since there is no formal connection there is no way to formally abolish them except by forbidding students to join them. If as Mr. Dembski suggested, the caput had decided to expel any member of a fraternity or sorority which was proven to engage in discriminatory practices, they would in effect have been encroaching upon the personal liberty of the students.

This would have been to answer one injustice with another, perhaps greater, injustice.

Nevertheless, the problem remains and a solution must be found for it. And it is exceedingly difficult to tell a man who is being kicked in the face, that his tormentor has the right to kick him.

And yet, for the time being, this is what must be done. Nothing is gained when the rights of all students are diminished because a small minority of students are abusing those rights.

It seems to me that there are two aspects to the problem of racial discrimination. The first and most destructive, is economic discrimination. This would prevent a man from earning a decent living because of his race or religious beliefs. This type of discrimination can be fought with legal machinery. "Fair employment practices" codes and "fair accommodations" acts are a way of ensuring a man the basic freedom to earn money and the opportunity to spend it in any way he chooses.

The United States Supreme Court decision against segregation was based upon the fact that the "separate but equal" facilities were not, in fact equal. Equality in this sense did not mean "social" equality, but equality of opportunity. Education as an avenue to self-improvement is guaranteed to everyone.

The struggle of the NAACP in the courts has always been to achieve equality of opportunity. They have never, to my knowledge, attempted to prosecute a purely social organization.

The second type of discrimination is more widespread and more insidious. It is "social discrimination" that rules against a man socially because of his national origins, color, or religious beliefs. Many people nourish private prejudices and these become hardened into constitutional clauses and unwritten laws when these people band together to form organization.

Discrimination is morally wrong whether it prevents a man's economic progress or whether it inhibits him socially. Economic discrimination can be attacked with laws but social discrimination creates another problem.

Social organizations do not in any way infringe upon the public domain. They do not attempt overtly to affect or alter the course of public affairs. Their sole reason for existence is the pleasure enjoyed by the members in each other's company. And their right to band together for this purpose is only one of the practical applications of the theory of "personal freedom."

And fraternities, whether we like it or not, and despite their idealistic pretensions, are nothing more nor less than social clubs. They have no reason for their existence beyond their own self-amusement.

I have heard it argued that fraternities, by virtue of the fact that they impress upon undergraduates a philosophy do enter into the public domain. It is of course true that they do maintain and disseminate a philosophy that is opposed to the principles of an academic institution, but it is also true that they do not do so publicly. If they would only publish their vicious and narrow principles or even if they would proclaim them in banners hanging from their little castles on St. George Street, they could be publicly attacked and perhaps even subject to legal action.

But unfortunately, the principles of "fraternism" are such that fraternities prefer to keep them secret

(Continued on Page 7)

Camus Calls Morality, Life Absurdities, Says Lecturer

University of Toronto students were told Tuesday death has a message for man.

Rev. R. W. Miller, speaking of Albert Camus, French Nobel Prize winner, in the third of The Student Christian Movement's series of Prophetic Profiles, said, "The message of death is the absurdity of life, and all morality is nonsense and anything is permissible".

Rev. Miller, book steward of the U of T, is also a former pupil of Carl Barth, subject of the second Prophetic Profile.

What Camus lacks as a philosopher is made up by his intellect," said Mr. Miller. "His intellect as an artist gives his philosophy a bite."

The theme "sensual joy of living" filled his early writings, but more recent writings harbor the "moderation in all things" theme. Outstanding aspects of Camus' idea is man must shape his own life without external resources, and he does this not by himself or by himself but for the community.

"This means life is a revolt against everything which binds or destroys the individual," Mr. Miller said.

"Camus feels he could not live as a person without his art. To him art is not a solitary delight but a means of stirring the greatest number of men by providing them with a privileged image of our common joys and woes," he added.

He explained the artist is not a solitary figure but a speaker for the common man, forcing himself to understand rather than judging. These are some of the views expressed by Camus in his speech in Stockholm at his acceptance of the Nobel Prize.

Camus wrote "The Stranger" in which he depicts the life of a man with a simple and ordinary attitude towards life who is tried for killing an Arab, but convicted on evidence of his unemotional attitude to his mother's death.

In "The Plague", he stresses it is much simpler and less exerting to be a victim of the plague than constantly to avoid contacting it.

Pep Rally

Officials hope for big crowds at a pre-game pep rally to be held Friday at 9 p.m. in the Drill Hall, 119 St. George.

The rally precedes the Varsity-Queen's football game Saturday, at 2 p.m. in Varsity Stadium.

Game spectators will also be able to see contestants for the Varsity Queen title.

The Blues and White committee also plans a post-game tea dance in the Drill Hall at 4 p.m., Saturday.

We Regret To Announce The Temporary Closing Of Club Timbalea

Reopening A.S.A.P.

at New,

Better Premises

here and now

TODAY

1.10 p.m. — SCM plans a preparatory study group for the Christmas Ecumenical Conference in the Coach House, 110 St. George St., led by the Rev. William Bothwell.

3.10 p.m. — Another SCM ecumenical preparatory group will meet in the Canterbury Centre, 95 St. George St., led by Miss Nancy Norman.

7.30 p.m. — COSA plans a general meeting in the UC Women's Union, 79 St. George St.

8.30 p.m. — The West Indian Students' Association will hold its annual fall prom in Trinity's Convocation Hall with music by the Tropitones Steel Band. Everyone is welcome, admission for members is $1.00 and for non-members $1.25.

SATURDAY

9.30 a.m. — SCM plans a retreat and reading day until noon in the East Chapel, Timothy Eaton Memorial Church, led by the Rev. Alan McLachlin. Lunch is provided, and further information is available at the SCM office, Hart House.

2.30 p.m. — United Nations flag-carriers will convene at Gate 8.

Varsity Stadium. Those without game tickets should arrive by 1.45 p.m.

SUNDAY

11 a.m. — Prof. Fennell will speak on "Man" in Vic's series "A Faith for Today" in the Victoria College Chapel.

8.45 p.m. — SCM plans a fireside reading and discussion of Camus' "The Stranger" at the Coach House, 110 St. George St.

MONDAY

1.10 p.m. — The Rev. Alan McLachlin will lead a senior reading seminar for third and fourth year students in the SCM office, Hart House.

1.10 p.m. — SCM plans a preparatory study group for the Christmas Ecumenical Conference, led by the Rev. J. S. Cunningham, in the Hart House Chaplain's office.

3.10 p.m. — Mr. Keith Dixon will lead an SCM preparatory group for the Ecumenical conference in room 14, Vic.

TUESDAY

8 p.m. — The Anthropology Club plans election of officers and showing of slides in the Wymilwood Copper Room. Refreshments will be served.

Bravo Brodie Continued

trayed. In "Palace" once again Mr. Brodie proved that the saxophone in the hands of an expert is capable of all the emotion created by any other instrument. "Beggar" was suitably sad and sombre.

Although Ibert's "Concertino Da Camera" was listed on the program, Mr. Brodie said after conferring with Dr. Brough, they had decided it should be played by a full orchestra.

The Hart House Music Committee is doing a fine job in bringing remarkable musical talent to the University of Toronto. Paul Brodie and George Brough are prime examples of their excellence in taste. We look forward to further concerts in the series.

ALAN WALKER

J. VASOFF PRESENTS

THE TAMBURITZANS

Of Duquesne University, Pittsburgh, Pa.

In their First Toronto Appearance

Massey Hall, Sat., Oct. 24 — 8.20 p.m.

$1.50 $1.75 $2.25 $3.00

The most spectacular in Slavic Folk Music and choreography interpreted for a North American audience.

STUDENT RATE (with A.T.L. Card) — $1.50 ticket for $1.00 (at Massey Hall)

Notes on any subject are easier to write, easier to read when you use

CAMPUS SCHOOL SUPPLIES

Clean, crisp paper for every student need.

GAGE STATIONERY

A DIVISION OF W. J. GAGE LIMITED

TORONTO • MONTREAL • WINNIPEG • VANCOUVER

HART HOUSE THEATRE'S FIFTY-FIRST ALL-UNIVERSITY PRODUCTION

Lillian Hellman's

THE LITTLE FOXES

Directed by Robert Gill

Same Special Student Rate — $1.00

Two Tickets Only On Each A.T.L. Card

OPENING TOMORROW and ALL NEXT WEEK at 8:30

STUDENT SUBSCRIPTIONS STILL AVAILABLE—$3.00 FOR FOUR PRODUCTIONS

What Makes Pop Corn Pop?

Popping corn contains water. When the water gets hot enough, the kernel explodes. Result: popcorn.

We're not passing this information along as a public service. Actually we're up to the same old game.

You see, popcorn makes most people thirsty. Fortunately, when most people get thirsty they hanker for the good taste of Coca-Cola.

Wouldn't you like some popcorn right now? C'mon now, wouldn't you?

SIGN OF GOOD TASTE

SAY 'COKE' OR 'COCA-COLA'—BOTH TRADE-MARKS MEAN THE PRODUCT OF COCA-COLA LTD.—THE WORLD'S BEST-LOVED SPARKLING DRINK.

Comment: UofT poets to appear in Ryerson Chapbook collection

Edited by John Robert Colombo

Evocation of Love

Catherine Arthur

the night we met the moon was like an orange squashed in someones lunch

we wrapped our love in newspaper listening to the world hum: words words, words

the night you left the moon had withered, wrinkle-skinned—last weeks news is stale

War Song

Alexander Leggatt

Red are the roses that grow by the door
Twining around the gate
Framing a window for anxious eyes—
Red are the lips that wait.

Red is the fire that licks for forge
Through which the blade must pass
Washed by the savage tongues of flame—
Red is the blood on the grass.

By The Shore

John Robert Colombo

Pausing for driftwood
let us watch

as the sea pauses
to cast up driftwood

as the sea is erased
by the driftwood it casts

For Publication

Francis Sparshott

When I was younger I said

I will make puppets

To dance from the ends

Of my hangnail fingers

On long strings at my bidding:

Puppets of dangling wood.

So I took-chisel and rule

And I made puppets

That danced from my fingers

(Cunningly jointed and carved)

With an articulate fumbling:

Treen turned life.

Now that I'm older I find

They amuse me no longer

So I've taken and hung them

From trees in this orchard

Where they dance better at the wind's bidding

Than ever they did at mine

Within a few weeks "The Varsity Chapbook", a collection of poems by University of Toronto students, will be available at the Bookstore and at bookstores across Canada. The poems featured on this page are by some of the poets included in the volume.

The thirty-two page chapbook, which sells for one dollar, will contain poems by sixteen campus writers. Also on sale will be "The McGill Chapbook", a similar collection by students from Montreal, including D. G. Jones, Leonard Cohen and Daryl Hine.

Both volumes have been specially designed for The Ryerson Press by the well-known typographer, Harold D. Kurschenska of the University of Toronto Press.

"The Varsity Chapbook" and "The McGill Chapbook" are the two latest additions to The Ryerson Press' famous chapbook series which stems from the first editions of Charles G. D. Roberts and Bliss Carman. The editor of the series, Dr. Lorne Pierce, hopes interest in these two collections will be sufficiently high to warrant the annual publication of such verse by his Press.

"The Varsity" will print additional details concerning the publication date. There will be a review and the U of T Bookstore will prominently display the volume.

The poems on this page are printed here to give potential readers a suggestion of what to expect, although none of these poems are included in the chapbook. Poets not represented on this page but included in the collection are: Harvey L. Shepherd, Henry Beissel, David Humphries, Gabrielle A. Kubinyi, Annette Oelbaum Cohen, Douglas Tisdall and James Reaney.

Strawberry

Frances Wheeler

My head
Don't you know
Is a very Small place
And there really Isn't room
Inside of it
For anything
Much but
You and me
and you for
The sandy tea.

The Solstice

Jay Macpherson

A Joshua's justice: the sun upon the mound
And five kings underground.
Transfixed on heaven's hill,
At dead of noon the tyrant sun hangs still.

Tipping, he slants towards evening; when the five
Rise up and walk alive
The earth that shrouds his sleep.
And as they walk they bind his sense more deep.

No Thought Crosses

Christopher Priestley

No thought crosses your mind of the Footsore 'squares' but contempt as you
Ride past, proud on your motorbike,

Straight-backed, blackened with leather.

Wait; you soon will forget about

Highways also and even the Long wind bucking behind you; for

All thought slips from the aged like

Stale beer spilled on the gravel.

Soon no shreds will remain but a Few black pieces of skin and some

Bones, not worth the despising.

Gray Land

E. A. Lacey

All about lie low hills and the wash

Of quiet gray undreaming seas. Great drifts of cloud

Pile high the snowy heavens overhead. The trees

Are frost-rimmed needles pointing to the moon,

Or are they monuments to some dead race

Who lived and tilled the earth here once, until time's slow freeze

Erased them and their fields and festivals.

Then go softly, softly as the winds that breathe

Over these low hills where bearded grasses shake.

For fear that the earth-change come over you.

The Young Virgins

Gerry Vise

There are the young virgins

Walking in the sun,

And I, beside them,

Virginal also,

Watching them.

See how their flesh,

Taut-transparent,

Glistens with light reflected,

Absorbed.

Limbs that are:

Straight; proud line of neck;

Breasts full-round

Soft, cuppable.

And I, virginal,

Beside them!

her beauty which is its own excuse and never dies

Irving Layton

"Try not to play up the beauty aspects of this Miss Varsity contest," an official said to us earlier this week. "We want to emphasize the intellectual qualities."

Implicit in this request was the old idea that physical beauty is somehow a less noble, nature, or wonderful endowment than the mental faculties.

So strongly do we disagree with this idea that we are in danger of overstating the case in favour of pure sensuality.

We are prepared to say that most of the great aberrations in the history of the world have been aberrations purely of the mind. Most of the great crimes we can remember have not been crimes of passion or of lust, but have grown directly out of more or less well-thought-out philosophies.

We find it surprising how seldom the flesh has offended.

On the other hand, we can think of many occasions on which beauty has saved where the intellect might have destroyed.

Se we wonder just where this tradition that the enjoyment of each others beauty can in any way be harmful came from.

Not that we wish by any of this to malign the properly functioning intellect.

We just think it has a better chance of functioning when tempered by the appreciation of beauty for the sake of beauty.

Not only do we believe that the pictures printed opposite will quicken more minds than pictures of the contestants' cerebral lobes would.

We also believe they will work in a strongly humanizing direction, perhaps reminding us that we are as much human in the way we resemble animals as in the ways we differ from them.

Here are 8 beautiful girls. They need no other claim to fame.

And whether she bends or straightens to each bush
To find the children's laughter among the leaves
Her quiet hands seem to make the quiet summer hush —
Berries or children, patient she is with these

Trinity	Gill Guest
Wycliffe	Carol Reed
Nursing	Sandy Simpson
OCE	Glenna Hart
Forestry	Jean Patterson
PHE	Zita Hertzman
Law	Anne Williams
UC	Cyrel Kofmen
Pharmacy	Margaret Malaweski
Victoria	Marjorie Chapman
St. Michael's	Jane Hungerford
P&OT	Nancy Davidson
Meds	Nadine Hradsky
SPS	Marlene Metzger
Dentistry	Carole Brydon
Music	Diana Wright

beauty an

Your figure, love,
Curves itself
into a man's memory.

THE VARSITY
FOUNDED 1880

Published by
The Students' Administrative Council
of the University of Toronto
Toronto 5, Canada
Member Canadian University Press
Editorial and News Office
Basement, SAC Building — WA. 3-8742, WA. 3-8113
Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-8221

The opinions expressed in this paper are those of the editor.

Editor-in-Chief
Executive Editor
Managing Editors
News Editor
Features Editor
Sports Editor
AM&D Editor
Photography Editor
CUP Editor
Publicity Editor
Associate News Editors

Sam Aizenstat
Mark Nichols
Susie Breslin
Ed Roberts
David Lewis Stein
Dave Griner
Elmo Ciprietti
Andy Stabins
Alan Walker
Kay McCook
Terry Bourke, Jayne Nesbitt

TODAY'S ISSUE: Stan Barron, Clive Bell, Debbie Halper, Lee Richardson, Warren Olanow, Bobbi Arrington, Erna Newman and friend, Peter Brawley, Bianca Rogge, Paul Robeson, Martin Stone, Fred Host and his art, Art Silver who tried, Susan Kastner and her love affair with the K, Phil Palter who phoned, a colorful Fran Maine, a sadly disillusioned Liz McCullough, Here and Gone Sally Bambridge, one lonesome and lost Vic balloon, and lots and lots of news.

Photography This issue: Frank Bergson.

"Suffer yourselves to be blamed, imprisoned, condemned; suffer yourselves to be hanged; but punish your opinions; it is not a right, it is a duty."

All this I saw through my improved

the beast

To a great extent women form the focal point of Irving Layton's poetry. Layton has said that much of his poetry is an attempt to work out a definition of independence. It is an independence largely achieved through interdependence, usually sexual between men and women. We have taken some lines about women from Layton's collected poems, A Red Carpet for the Sun, published by Maclelland and Stewart and put them with the pictures of some of the contestants for the Miss Varsity contest. A full list of contestants is published at the left.

in lieu of a review

not as some men say women's eyes, blue or grey;
kisses given and taken.

When I plucked my moment of gold
Out of your hair,
Your hair became raven black.

And that no theory of pessimism is complete
Which altogether ignores them.

She was a lovely splinter with a promise

Last Appraisal - Continued

hellenic League, they even keep them secret from their own members. And as long as they keep their principles strictly within their sterile enclaves, they cannot be subject to legal action either by the university or by government.

Yet the prejudice and its inevitable result, institutionalized discrimination, must be fought wherever and whenever they appear.

And there is, beyond the employment of clear cut legal action, a means of fighting discrimination.

This summer, Ralph Bunche's son was refused membership in a tennis club in New York City. Dr. Bunche thought it over for a few days and then gave the story to the newspapers, in much the same manner as Barbara Arrington gave her story to The Varsity.

The New York Post splashed it across several pages of several editions. The other papers picked it up and it was carried over the wire services. Within a week, the chairman of the tennis club resigned from his position and Dr. Bunche's son was offered a membership.

At no time did anyone suggest legal action against the tennis club.

Although it is seldom that such a dramatic victory is achieved, I believe that this is the way, and the only way, in which social discrimination can effectively be fought. When social discrimination, which is irrational and emotional, is subjected to the impersonal rationality of cold, hard print it is forced to retract and it withers.

And with each new public attack upon private discrimination, it becomes increasingly difficult for the bigot to justify himself to his audience and for the bigot's more timid disciples to justify their position to themselves.

This is unquestionably the slow way to achieve an end. It is difficult at times to believe that anything at all is truly being accomplished. But perhaps a good gauge of "progress" is the speed which emotions were aroused on this campus and among the general public. If there had not been a whole history of public exposure of similar incidents, such a fever of activity would never have occurred.

This is not the revolutionary way. But as compelling as revolution may at times seem, it is often also true that violent revolution brings in its wake only more violence and in the end, the principles of the revolution become submerged in the general holocaust.

This way requires enormous self-discipline. It demands of combatants a realistic establishment of goals and a realistic appraisal of results. It demands of those in whose name the struggle is waged an almost superhuman patience and a steadfast refusal to sacrifice principles in order to achieve short term results.

We urge then, that those who enlist themselves to combat prejudice, fully understand the different ways in which the fight is waged and the limits that must be set at each stage of the struggle.

But I sincerely believe that if this is done, then the victory is assured.

alumnae production uneven

A Month In Old Russia

The University Alumnae Dramatic Club is presenting its version of Tugenev's A Month in the Country this week at the Coach House Theatre. This play is a typical representative of 19th-Century Russian realism; that is, it is almost totally devoid of action and concentrates instead on describing the complex psychological patterns and problems of its heroes, the Russian gentry.

The Russian gentry were facing a difficult time in 19th-Century Russia. The society was going through a period of transition in which the old, traditional way of life was decaying and being replaced by a new enterprising capitalism which required the gentry to adjust or become extinct. For the most part, they were intelligent, attractive individuals and some were able to make this adjustment; however, the majority, faced with an almost insoluble problem, gave up and surrendered themselves to an indolence, often passivity, which resulted in their becoming superfluous men in society.

The writers of the time saw and recorded this tragedy. They realized, however, that this was not only a universal tendency towards indolence but, more than that, it represented the difficulty of the sensitive to adjust to a society, especially when that society is in the process of changing; it was the plight of the thinking individual caught in a social interregnum when old mores are dying and society is seeking a new direction and a new theme.

This, then, is the background for A Month in the Country. Its heroes spend most of their time in the drawing room indulging in biting witticisms and exchanging social pleasantries. Yet always underlying this atmosphere of tranquility and boredom exists the awareness that all is not as it should be and the propensity to frequent and sudden emotional extremes. Natalia Petrovna (Marion Stewart), the heroine, and Rakitin (Rex Southgate), the male lead, are engaged in a rather frustrating Platonic love affair while the dull husband spends most of his time "away on business". All are content until a young man whose freshness and innocence contrasts with the decadence of the others succeeds in having two women fall in love with him—Natalia Petrovna and Vera, her young ward, played by Molly Golby.

Miss Stewart almost succeeds in portraying the intelligent and charming Natalia Petrovna's plight. She is gifted with a wide range of inflections, an excellent stage presence and a most expressive face. Where she must appear the sophisticated woman she puts these assets to good use but where she is forced to portray a woman who completely loses control of herself and her emotions Miss Stewart tended to be too much "la grande dame" and not enough the believable woman.

As for the two male leads, both gave rather uninspired performances. Mr. Southgate interpreted Rakitin's bored sophistication by means of a continuous scowl and by posing stiffly in attitudes which at times were almost comical. Where Rakitin was in the throes of an emotional crisis in which he is barely able to maintain his dignity and his veneer of worldliness, Mr. Southgate looked and acted as though he were trying to suppress a yawn.

In the role of the young tutor, David White presents a rather dull picture of a lad who is supposed to be vital, enthusiastic and spontaneous. Mr. White seemed to be unsure of himself and never quite knew what to do with his hands.

Miss Golby, as young Vera at least attempted to give us a picture of youthful exuberance. It was only marred by a lack of variety of gestures and voice. However, she failed almost entirely in portraying the conversion from young girl to mature woman which occurs at the end of the play.

The other characters ranged from mediocre to competent and provided a few humorous moments during the production while the sets by Mr. Passano provided a simple and effective background for the action which, of course, was severely restricted by the limitations of such a small stage.

Thus Blanch Hogg, the director, has presented us with a highly uneven production. However, the University Alumnae Drama Club must be commended for giving us the opportunity of viewing a rarely performed but highly worthwhile play.

Martin Stone

Slovene songbirds Barbara Kindl and Georgianne Spolarich, will appear with the Duquesne University Tamburitzans at Massey Hall Saturday night. Student tickets at $1.00 available at box-office on presentation of ATL card.

3. "Velut arbor aevo . . ."

Horace's pregnant remarks about the flourishing and durability of the tree with age, provokes some interesting contrasts in the world of music. We dutifully tuned in this summer to as many broadcasts as we could in the C.B.C.'s recorded summer replacement for the Metropolitan Opera performances, and, as in previous years, almost all the opera's broadcast have fallen from the current live repertoire of most opera houses of the world. The programme would appear, if nothing else, at least to give us a chance of hearing operas below the consideration of box-office accountants and—hence, of some more abstruse worth to the listening public.

Why have such operas as L'Africaine, Il Matrimonio Segreto, and Linda di Chamounix lost favour with music lovers in general since their day? Why, indeed, in spite of a hefty push from the recording industry, always looking for that new gold-mine, have they not succeeded in making a "come-back"?

The answer cannot lie in a lack of success from the start, for these operas and innumerable others were immensely popular in their day. But the answer does lie, partly, in the reason for this popularity. They were written of and for their time; their characters were reflections of the people who watched them, and so they were loved.

For the same reason, but looking at it the other way round, they are no longer popular because the audiences are no longer the same. We cannot possibly view such an opera as it was viewed in those days; too much that conditions an audience has changed: social custom, our experience as listeners, our perspective of musical history, musical history itself, and aesthetic tastes. Even then, however, a few operas have achieved a venerable age in spite of these factors: Orfeo ed Euridice, for example. But there, that is a special case, and its great advantages of unstinted art, genius, drama,

The Sunday Evening Concert Series in the Great Hall of Hart House opens this Sunday night with a concert by a trio of top-notch local artists. Clarinetist Ezra Schabas, soprano Anne Stephenson and Leo Barkin, piano will be heard in various combinations.

Richard Strauss' Four Last Songs is the major item on the program. Leo Barkin, pianist for the Toronto Symphony will perform with Miss Stephenson in this work. Then Ezra Schabas joins Mr. Barkin in Brahms' Sonata Op. 120 No. 1. The three then combine in Schubert's pastorate, The Shepherd on The Rock.

Tickets are available free of charge at the Hall Porter's Desk. Of all the concerts in the Great Hall this is the only series which women may not attend on their own initiative, but must be escorted.

sax packs music room

Bravo Brodie Alto

Paul Brodie is a master of a difficult instrument, the alto saxophone. His instrument becomes even more difficult when he plays it because of what he plays — classical compositions, often transcriptions from works written for other instruments. But this doesn't bother Mr. Brodie.

A spellbound audience heard Mr. Brodie in concert Wednesday in the first of this year's Hart House Five O'clocks.

Most of us are used to hearing a saxophone played in a jazz vein, and Mr. Brodie, realizing this, painted a quick picture of the history of the saxophone, outlining its place in classical music. He described the instrument as a "tonal link between the brasses and the reeds," and pointed out that although it was invented in 1840 it was as late as 1930 that it was recognized as a solo voice, thanks especially to French composers such as Jacques Ibert. As for jazz, Mr. Brodie said "I don't think jazz would be much without the voice of the saxophone."

In his first selection, Handel's Sonata Number Three (for violin), Mr. Brodie at once impressed the audience with his wonderful control and command of his instrument. The four movements of the sonata showed him in his best possible light.

The real show stoppers were the four of the eight "Histories" by Ibert.

Transcribed from piano music, these pieces are titled, in the Saint-Saens tradition, "Tortoise," "Little White Donkey," "Beggar" and "Palace of Glass."

Mr. Brodie prefaced these musical tone poems with a short defence of transcriptions. "There is nothing wrong with playing transcriptions," he said, and he pointed out that Bach meant his music to be played on any instrument ("from harmonica to glass water pipes," said Mr. Brodie), as long as the key was unchanged.

In "Tortoise" the piano played a demanding part. Lumbering along slightly behind Mr. Brodie's alto, the meaning was clear. In "Little White Donkey," with its highly melodic theme, all the stubbornness and at the same time the indecision of the beast was portrayed. (Continued on Page 3)

on music criticism

by Ted Barnes

and emotional truth have evaded the oppression of time.

The rest, though, have not possessed these all-important ingredients in sufficient quantities or of such high quality that they can maintain our interest for long. Even Mozart's Abduction from the Harem, with its frenzy over a Turkish attack, seems amusing to us today; there was a time, though, when such an incident on stage would thrill an audience with the genuine horror that arises from immediate experience.

One opera that seems to present a real problem is Beethoven's Fidelio. It is seldom enough performed these days, and yet it has stuck on like a burr; it refuses to be cast off. When the Vienna Opera house reopened in 1955 after repairs to war damage, Fidelio was chosen to do the job. Why? Beethoven shows in it his inexperience with opera and with writing for the human voice in general (a fact we must remember in criticizing vocalists in a performance of his great Ninth Symphony with its Choral Finale). It contains a few conventions that are so many cold leftovers from the more succulent eighteenth century. Dramatic tension is not too skillfully handled.

Then why, in spite of these very real disadvantages, is it still "popular" in its way? Well, it has something that only great operas have: a deep sincerity of purpose and execution that express a philosophy as meaningful now as ever. It is Beethoven's ideal, the keystone of his grand Choral Symphony.

He who attends a performance of Fidelio leaves with a feeling of joy and peace that absolutely absorbs his soul. Florestan's pathos and that of the Chorus of prisoners, the sudden culmination of the struggle for justice, and the joyous ending (it has brought tears to my eyes and doubtless to those of others) have a directness that is seldom equalled. Genius and truth do not often reach such a pinnacle

MICHAEL DAVIDSON as Oscar and Zivile Nalivaika as Birdie, his wife, in a tense scene from THE LITTLE FOXES. The Lillian Hellman drama, under the direction of Robert Gill, opens a week's run on Saturday, Oct. 24th at Hart House Theatre.

Med Society Supports Female Profs To Discuss SAC Fraternity Stand Lack Of Women Scientists

The University of Toronto Medical Society last night decided to send a letter to the U of T Student Administrative Council praising them for their action in the hot fraternity issue here last week, despite objections from some society members.

Meds' members were definitely anti-discrimination, but some felt the discrimination issue had been "oversensationalized and beaten to death".

All agreed it was best to oppose the frat issue, but they said by heaping slander on the fraternities a partial injustice had been committed.

Many U. of T. fraternities are affiliated in some way with American chapters and their American cousins are able to outvote a Canadian branch on any issue.

This makes it impossible for some frats here to maintain an international standing and still integrate.

One medman argued that frats were clubs and were entitled to their own criteria regarding membership but "If they wished to be in any way associated with the university they should in no way discredit it."

Another member asked why the "discriminational conflict" here was being played up when in the world immediately about us there are so many major issues facing us.

A motion to send SAC a letter agreeing with their position was passed 15-4.

Three University of Toronto professors are among five of Canada's leading women scientists who have been selected to write a magazine article discussing the small proportion of women among ranks of Canadian scientists.

Astronomy Professor Dr. Helen Hogg, Human Genetics Prof. Dr. Norma Ford Walker and Paleontology Professor Dr. Madeleine Fritz are among the authors of the article, in the November issue of "Chate-laine".

The article asks why only one in 50 Canadian scientists is a woman—although one-fourth of Canada's working population is female.

Dr. Hogg says the majority of women are interested in the humanities and others are often tied to their homes.

Dr. Walker, in the article, stresses, "to compete with men, a woman must consider her work a full time job, especially if she wants to reach the top." She also felt the husband's attitude was and important factor.

"It is in the practice of the profession that differentiation occurs," says Mrs. Alice Turnham of McGill, who believes otherwise men and women have equal qualifications.

And Dr. Helen Battle from the University of Western Ontario felt very few girls with the ability for science were getting proper education in order to make science a career.

CCFer Says Chinese Heading For Disaster

A former CCF leader told University of Toronto students yesterday Communist China will never beg for help no matter how tough the going gets.

Speaking to the U of T CCF Club Edward Joliffe, past opposition leader in the Ontario Legislature said "by extreme socialism the Chinese have sown the seeds of their own destruction."

He pointed out the conformity imposed by the regime is injecting the people with the virus of their own downfall.

Mr. Joliffe, who was born in China, has lived most of his life there. He said the enormous and spectacular progress made by China along material lines in recent years has nevertheless produced a richer and fuller life for them.

Switching to the country's cultural aspect, he said, "at the moment there are more than 3,000 drama, ballet, and opera companies scattered throughout the land."

"Contrary to the West, the Chinese intellectual has always been revered, and ranked highest in that society."

Mr. Joliffe made it clear the Americans by their constant refusal to allow Red China into the United Nations, are the ones responsible for throwing up the Bamboo Curtain."

"And this, more than anything else, has been the cause of more damage," he said.

Not A Promoter? Abner Plans Race

Abner Steinberg has called himself the man who isn't a promoter.

New you can see him in action.

At least nine University of Toronto students, including Abner, will be speeding around Edenvale Raceway this Sunday.

Practice for this first race of the U of T sports car club will begin at 11 a.m. The race will be at 2.30 p.m., and believe it or not, admission is free.

Spectators can sit in the special stands, or if they want a really close look at Abner they can line the fence around the track.

Edenvale is located on highway 26, 17 miles northwest of Barrie. If you need a ride, or can supply space in your own car, phone Frank Bergson at ME. 5-6764. This is a co-operative effort all the way.

BLUE & WHITE THIS WEEKEND

• TEA DANCE

After the Game On Saturday
Drill Hall — 4-6 p.m.

• PEP RALLY!

Tonight — 9-12 p.m.
Drill Hall — Only 25c

Come Stag or Drag — But COME!

• FOOTBALL DANCE

Saturday, November 8, 9.00 p.m.
$2.50 per Couple — on Sale S.A.C. Office
Don't Hesitate — Only a Few Left!

Hart House

Week-End

AT CALEDON — School of Nursing (Friday night)
Progressive Conservative Club
SATURDAY — SATURDAY LUNCH, before the Queen's-Varsity Game — GREAT HALL
VISITORS' SUNDAY — Hart House will be open from 2-5 p.m. to members, their families and friends. Tea will be served from 3-4.30 p.m. in the Great Hall.
9.00 p.m. — SUNDAY EVENING CONCERT — Great Hall
Anne Stephenson, Soprano — Ezra Schabas, Clarinet
Leo Barkin, Piano
Free tickets available to members of Hart House — Women invited if escorted.

Next Week

MONDAY, October 26th
5.00 p.m. — Glee Club Full Rehearsal — DEBATES ROOM
7.15 p.m. — Revolver Club — Rifle Range
TUESDAY, October 27th
2.00 a.m. — Holy Communion — Chapel
7.00 p.m. — Glee Club Full Rehearsal — Music Room
7.40 p.m. — Art Class — Art Gallery
7.15 p.m. — Bridge — East Common Room
7.30 p.m. — CHESS CLUB OPEN HOUSE — Debate Room
Mr. D. Grimshaw, Ontario Jr. Champion, will take on all comers in a simultaneous exhibition Refreshments provided.
Admission: Free.
ART GALLERY — NEW EXHIBITION — Claire Shenker
WEDNESDAY, October 28th
12.15 p.m. — Noon-day Prayers — Chapel
1.00 p.m. — 2nd INTRODUCTORY LECTURE IN SQUASH — Music Rm. Speaker: Derek Boquet
1.30 p.m. — NOON HOUR CONCERT — East Common Room
7.00 p.m. — Table Tennis — Fencing Room
7.15 p.m. — Revolver Club — Rifle Range
THURSDAY, October 29th
8.00 a.m. — Holy Communion, Chapel
8.15 p.m. — Record Room Instruction — Record Room
7.00 p.m. — Art Class — Art Gallery
8.00 p.m. — Archery — Rifle Range

HART HOUSE ORCHESTRA ASSOCIATES

1959-60 Season

Concerts on Sunday
Evenings, with

DR. BOYD NEEL
Conductor

November 8th — English composers
November 22nd — Italian Settecento composers
December 13th — Bach family
January 17th — Edvard Grieg
February 17th — Classicists & Contemporaries

STUDENT SUBSCRIPTIONS
FOR THE FIVE CONCERTS
$4.50

Available at the Hall Porter's Desk, and at the Arts Colleges (Victoria College Alumni Hall) at noon daily this week.

Sports * Trophies * Games

Before you buy give WILSON'S a try
The HAROLD A. WILSON
CO. OF TORONTO LTD.
328 DUPONT STREET
WHOLESALE PRICES TO EVERYONE

BLOOD
DONORS
Are GOOD CITIZENS

jazz!

HOUSE OF HAMBOURG
GRENVILLE at YONGE
Fri. & Sat: 11.00 p.m.—3.30 a.m.
Sunday: 9.00 p.m.—12.00 a.m.

RED CROSS BLOOD DONOR CLINIC

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 23
U.C. — 9.30 - 11, 1 - 4
Sir Daniel Wilson Residence

The Varsity Christian Fellowship In U.C. Presents

"MAN LOOKS AT MAN"

Second Discussion Led By—

Mrs. L. Wynne, M.A.—Monday, Oct. 26—1.10 p.m. Room 22, U.C.

"The Views of B. Shaw and the Neo-Darwinians"

FOR FOOD AND FUN

Join The VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP in a
FOOTBALL SUPPER

AFTER THE GAME—SAT. OCT. 24 — 5.30 P.M.
AFTER SUPPER ENTERTAINMENT, FACULTY PARTIES
COST — 75c

HILLEL

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 25 — 9.00 p.m.

Concert — "THE JOHN SWAN QUINTET"

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 27 — 8.30 p.m.

First Session: "Jewish Ethics and Moral Philosophy"

— Dr. Kamerling

Blues Rugger Favorites

Varsity Rugger Blues carry a five-point lead into the second game of the Intercollegiate rugger championship against McGill Redmen Saturday, giving them a chance to win the series for the first time in 10 years.

The Blues upset the Redmen 8-3 at Montreal last weekend—the first time in four years that the McGill side has been defeated by Toronto. This is a margin of one converted touchdown.

Saturday's second game of the two-game total-points series will kick-off on the Back Campus at 11 a.m.

The Blues are confident of scoring another win. Their backfield has been bolstered by Julian Valance, sidelined so far this season because of a pre-term operation.

No other changes have been made in the lineup and the Varsity forwards are again expected to dominate in set scrums and lineouts.

With John Brebner in the backline and Valance at fullback, the Blues backline will be given lots more punch and power, something sadly lacking in the Montreal game.

The team is a mixture of overseas students studying in Canada and Canadians who have taken the game up recently. Canadian newcomers are John Cottenden and Hugh Johnston, plus veteran George McKay.

SPORTS CARS

Ten members of the U of T Auto Club will take to the track at Edenvale Race Track at 2:30 this Sunday. The track is on Hwy. 26, four miles south of Wasaga. No admission charge to students, those wishing a ride contact Frank Bergson at ME. 5-6764.

Track Title To McGill Varsity Close Second

McGill retained the Intercollegiate track championship at Hamilton Civic stadium by amassing 41 points against a field of seven universities yesterday afternoon, and thereby winning the Tate Mackenzie trophy for the second year in a row.

University of Toronto came very close, however, taking second place with a 38 point effort.

McMaster University placed third with 36 points, followed by Western with 34, Ontario Agricultural College came well back in the standings with 11 points, trailed by Assumption University with nine and Queen's with six points.

Only one record fell by the wayside. McGill's Pete Adams set a new mark for the three mile gallop with a time of 14:44.3 minutes. The former record was set in 1926 by S. Tre-nouth of Queen's with a time 28 seconds slower than the present one. Fanatically enough four runners finished ahead of the record time in this meet. Adams, Hackett, Jan Roos (U of T), and Clairmont broke the old mark.

Adams was also high individual scorer of the meet winning the Hec Phillips trophy won last year by McMaster's John Passmore.

Two Western Mustang's footballers gained firsts at the meet. John Metras Jr. won the Javelin while George Shepherd took first in the 440 hurdles.

Ken Money (Toronto) took high jump honors with a 6'2½" leap. Sparked by a brilliant finish by George Rhoden, Varsity won the mile relay. Bill Crothers, Pete Watson and Bob Carmichael were other members of the team.

Dave Cook beat out Passmore in the 120 hurdles when the latter stumbled 6 yards from the finish line.

Varsity's Javelin ace Steve Irwin was unable to compete in the meet.

Group 1 F'ball In Tie Redmen Upset Trinity

The Group I football league is all tied up. Every one of the Big Four teams have won and lost a game. Trinity beat Vic, Vic beat SPS, SPS beat UC and UC beat Trinity.

The Redmen, Black Panthers scrap had everything new expected of this brand of football. Excellent football, atrocious fumbles, very good line play, flights of fists and knees, poor officiating countered by a few good calls, and all in all good clean, gory entertainment.

Quarterback Ray Gouvette sparked the UC offence tossing touchdown passes to Gord McTaggart and Boris Wolcheck. John Reimer made both converts count.

Trinity appeared a shoe-in in the first half of the contest. Keith Acheson scored early in the first half on a good off-tackle run. Roger Young booted the point.

An injury to quarterback Mike Innes took some of the wind out of Panthers sails. Innes suffered a mild concussion and will probably retire from football for the season.

In other Group I action on Wednesday, Vic Red and Gold ground out a 6-1 win over Sr. SPS. It was another very close battle. Condlin scored the major for Vic while Civirenko supplied Skule's only point.

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS

SOFTBALL GAMES FOR WEEK OF OCT. 26

Varsity
Mon. Oct. 26—UC vs PHE I
Tues. Oct. 27—St. Mike's A vs PHE II
Wed. Oct. 28—PHE I vs Nursing
Thurs. Oct. 29—Pharm vs St. M. B
Fri. Oct. 30—PHE I vs Vic II
Games are played from 1-2 p.m.—Default time is 1:20 p.m.

Lists of all team players with their medical ratings have not been received from St. Mike's A, St. Mike's B, U.C., PHE I, PHE II, POTS, Pharmacy, St. Hilda's, D. Hygiene. These lists must be handed in to the W.A.A. office, corner of Harbord and Huron immediately. Failure to do so will force team to withdraw from tournament

BASKETBALL

Game and Practice Schedule—Week of Oct. 26 to Oct. 30

O.C.E.	Mon. Oct. 26	Tues. Oct. 27	Thurs. Oct. 28
5:30—St. Hilda's Jr. Sr. vs Vic Sophs (White, Clauson)	St. Mike's B vs Nursing Jr (Wood, Clauson)	Nursing Sr. vs Pharmacy (Wood, Clauson)	PHE I vs UC Freshies (Mahood, Black)
6:30—Vic Jr. Sr. vs O.C.E.			POT I vs Vic Jr. Sr. (Mahood, Black)
7:30—St. Hilda's Sophs			Meds vs St. Hilda's Sophs (Philpott, Hutt)
			PHE III vs St. Mike's A (Philpott, Hutt)
W.C.E.	Mon. Oct. 26	Tues. Oct. 27	Thurs. Oct. 28
5:30—PHE III vs Vic Sophs (Kane, Patterson)	U.C. Freshies vs U.C. Sophs (Papp, Coad)	U.C. Freshies vs U.C. Sophs (Papp, Coad)
6:30—Dentistry vs Vic Freshies I (Kane, Patterson)
7:30—POT II vs U.C. Jr. Sr. (Papp, Coad)
8:30—St. Hilda's Frs. vs Vic Fresh. II (Papp, Coad)
L.M.	Mon. Oct. 26	Tues. Oct. 27	Thurs. Oct. 28
5:30—Nursing Jr.	O.C.E.	PHE I	Nursing Sr.
6:30—St. Hilda's Freshies	U.C. Freshies	PHE II	Pharmacy
7:30	U.C. Sophs	POT I	Dentistry
8:30	U.C. Jr. Sr.	Meds	St. Hilda's Jr. Sr.

ARCHERY CLUB

will continue to shoot at Varsity Stadium every noon hour except Wednesday. Come out and enjoy the fun!

INTRAMURAL HARRIER RACE

SATURDAY, OCT. 24th—HIGH PARK COURSE—11:00 a.m.

ENTRIES CLOSE TODAY 1:00 p.m. AT INTRAMURAL OFFICE

FOOTBALL	East	4:00	Dent	GAMES TODAY	vs Jr. SPS	Stokes, Starkman, Barrett
SOCCER	North	4:15	Law	vs Arch	Bugarski
VOLLEYBALL	1:00	SPS. J	vs St. M. VII	Pomerant
LACROSSE	1:00	U.C. II	vs SPS. VI	Hodgkinson, Chubb

Montreal Excursion Trains

VARSAITY at MCGILL

Return Fare $12.50

Make your reservations IMMEDIATELY.
Forms available at S.A.C. Office.

QUEEN'S at VARSITY, OCT. 24

Student Football and Hockey Books on Sale
at the Athletic Office, Hart House

9:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

If you have not got your Book, buy it today
Combined Book $2.50 — Football Only $2.00

VARSAITY vs. QUEENS

Tomorrow at 2 p.m.

OFFICIAL LINE-UP

QUEEN'S GOLDEN GAELS

- Gus MacKay
- Pete Saegert
- Jerry Steinberg
- Dave Wilson
- Jim Shearn
- Ross Arber
- George Bathune
- Bill Johnson
- Bill Miklas
- Sam Poaps
- John Ware
- Gary Lucenti
- Frank Hawkins
- Stewart Watts
- John Carrick
- Don Plumley
- Jim Green
- Don Robb
- Bob Burleigh
- Dennis Sharpe
- Gord Dougall
- Peter Thompson
- Gary West
- Kent Plumley
- Dave Richards
- Norm Dunstan
- Robin Ritchie
- Bob McAlleese
- Brian Todd
- Mike Wicklum
- Gord Johnson, Captain
- Dick Pearce
- Gord Simester
- Dave Skene
- Terry Porter
- Mike Pettit
- Wayne McGill
- Gary Strickler
- Dick Pasloski
- Coach: Frank Tindall
- Asst. Coaches: Hal McCarney, Al Lenard, Jack Cook

VARSAITY BLUES

- Ron Crawford
- Milt Jewell
- Peter Eby
- Peter Warren
- Bill Bulucon
- Trevor Eytton, Co-Capt.
- Sandy Bell
- Morgan Dever
- Weldon Thoburn
- Bruce Jackson
- Mike Chykaliuk
- Casey Wood
- Brian Bradstock
- Bill Kay
- Mike Muir
- Doug Jack
- Doug Lougheed
- Doug Baird
- Walt Sopinka
- Everett Rush
- Nick Sopinka
- Bob Campbell
- Doug Wyles
- Doug Boyd
- Dick Farr
- Steve Chisholm, Co-Capt.
- Mike Smith
- Ian Knowles
- Al Connolly
- Pete Potter
- Dave Creswell
- Ken Myers
- Bob Dano
- John McMurtry
- Paul Burroughs
- Jim Murchie
- Manager: Bob Miner
- Coach: Dalt White
- Asst. Coaches: Jack Kennedy, John McManus

Cut out this line-up and use it tomorrow. Lineups will not be distributed in the Student Section.

The Scoreboard

FOOTBALL

Senior	P	W	L	T	F	A	P
Western	3	3	0	0	47-18	6
Toronto	3	2	1	0	52-17	4
Queen's	3	1	2	0	24-39	2
McGill	3	0	3	0	20-69	0

Future Games

Sat., Oct. 24—Queen's at Toronto
Western at McGill

Western Intercollegiate

P	W	L	T	F	A	P
U.B.C.	3	3	0	0	105-38	12*
U of Alta	4	2	2	0	114-67	4
U of Sask	3	0	3	0	16-130	0

*(All B.C. games are 4 points)

SOCCER

Senior	P	W	L	T	F	A	P
Toronto	1	0	A	V	C		0

Miss Varsity Contest

Contestants representing sixteen faculties will be presented at the Pep Rally in the Drill Hall, Friday Evening, October 23.

Five finalists will be chosen at the Football Game October 24 and will be announced at half time.

The final selection of the winner will be announced at the Homecoming Show in Varsity Stadium on Friday Evening, October 30.

INJURIES OR NO, HE'S STILL TOUGHER, THAN WE THOUGHT...

GAELS CONFIDENT THEY WILL WIN

Blues Sore And Weary

Hopes Rest On Rookies

Varsity Blues, already staggering under the impact of a dozen serious injuries, received word last night that two more players may not be able to play in Saturday's game with Queen's.

Guard Bill Buluon is sick in bed with influenza and half-back Al Connolly, who performed so capably in Kingston last week, has pulled a leg muscle which just might prevent him from dressing for the game.

The silver lining in the clouds is wrapped up in the news that the X-rays of Steve Chisholm's neck did not reveal anything, so he will probably play. In addition Mike Muir, an end, is ready to go after missing one game with a pulled thigh muscle.

Varsity started the season with a bench that was a mile deep. There were two or three good ball players at every position. Then, in three ball games, Joe Foreman (broken ankle), Walt Sopinka (knee injury), Mike Chyaliuk (shoulder injury), Malcolm Bell (shoulder separation), Dave Creswell (leg injury), Mike Muir (leg injury), and now possibly Buluon and Connolly were lost to coach Dalt White.

What appeared to be another season of comfortable wins, has now turned into a life and death struggle in each game for White's squad. And the pressure is really on after that loss to Western.

White said, "There is no doubt about it, we are a weaker team now than we were when we played McGill and even Western at London. I'd hate to think where I'd be if I hadn't carried as many players as I did at the beginning of the season."

Queen's meanwhile, are disgustingly healthy. Terry Porter has fully recovered from a shoulder separation, and tackle Gary Lucenti will return to the lineup.

Coach Frank Tindall is confident that his team can win, particularly if they can rectify their shortcomings on offense.

Blues will probably try to pass more against Queen's this week, particularly if a dry field is available.

Benny Ribs Tinny-Doll

Picks Bluesers 20-6

It is tickling my riblets muchly as I read of how the Golden Gaels of Queenie U grow incensed at the scibblings in a Toronto newspaper which declares openly and without shame what I know to be truth all along and even in the middle, though it grows somewhat scraggy at the edges. This is nothing other than that report which tells of the nothingness and less of chances which the little Scotties from Kingspound do not even have against My own sweet Blues last week. The coach of the Gilded Scotties raves and raves of how his men are being unenthusiastic towards the said article and towards the writer of same, and how they are going to teach everybody a lesson when they see the little boys blue who are the knights errand of the Torontos so that nobody takes their names in vein again. It is being indeed a bloody business.

But Benny, which is I and not quite that, am not fooled and now I reveal to all my faithful little fishies who read me in The Varsity and sundry other waste by-products of campus life just what a hoax all this is. I am having a report from my favourite agent in Queenieville who tells me that it is being a prerequisite for entrancing into that hotbed of learning and suchlike submersive activity that they are being unable to read even a letter. It is being all a part of the progressive approach to education which does not wish to clutter up the minds of the pupils with accumulated nonsense so that they do not have an original thought and thus never make up their own minds and become conformists and maybe even join fraternities or the SAC or things like that so that they do not have a chance to grow up like good Gaels do and throw beer bottles at football games.

What really happens is that Frank Tinny-Doll who is their coach which is just a Queenieville euphemism for Keeper and animal trainer, reads the story to them but since they do not understand words he is having to communicate by telling them pictures but he does this with so pronounced an American accent that the boys from Queenie U are not comprehending and to make matters worse they do not understand. All of which is showing what a high standard of education there is at Queenie U which comes about inasmuch as they are all so full of hot air that they are able to blow up their standard which is an army surplus balloon and cut it loose so that it floats way up high and ends up hovering over Varsity stadium so that Tinny-Doll and his charges who are being so called because they are clear liabilities watch the game from a comfortable perch while our own dear Bluesers take them 20 to 6.

VARSITY RUGGER BLUES practice a lineout as they prep for the second game of their series with McGill. Blues won the first 8-3.

Baby Blues Win 47-0

Wright Paces Attack

By DAVE INGRAM
Varsity Staff Reporter

On a very cold afternoon at Varsity Stadium, the Toronto Intermediates steamrolled over the Ryerson Rams by a score of 47-0.

Toronto opened the scoring in the first quarter when after a march from their own 35 yard line, Martiniuk scored from the 15 yard line.

Mike Wright kicked the convert and scored a single minutes later on a third down punt.

Wright scored the Baby Blues second touchdown which he also converted, on a 35 yard punt return down the sidelines. On the ensuing kick-off Wright scored a single when Jamie Knowles tackled the Western defender in the end zone.

The only scoring in the second quarter occurred when Gary Coddling blocked a Ram punt and fell on it in Ryerson's end zone for a touchdown.

Intermediates fourth touchdown was scored by Mike King from the one yard line after he had made several long gains.

A fumble by Toronto and an eventual recovery by lineman Casper Pold, proved good for a touchdown after he had run for 40 yards.

Again loose ball-handling proved fatal when Noel Bates and Brock Cromwell recovered a fumble in Ryerson territory. Then on a third down pass from Harold Hall, Bob McMurtry scored.

The final touchdown came when Wright, who scored a total of 17 points during the game, went over.

Baby Blues played an improved game from their previous one but seemed to become a little lackadaisical in the fourth quarter when a basketball score became apparent. "Lupie" Lackey, co-captain of Toronto, played a strong game defensively.

Soccer Blues Defeat Aggies 1-0

Playing their finest game of the season, Senior Blues soccer team came up with a thrilling 1-0 victory over the OAC Aggies in Guelph last Wednesday. The win was a big one for Varsity because the Redmen are perennial challengers for the Intercollegiate title, and the win gave the Blues the lead and a bit of breathing room in the title race.

Despite the unusual appearance, for a soccer game, of Guelph cheerleaders, band and myriads of Redmen supporters, the Blues settled down from the opening whistle to play a fast, close marking game which kept the Aggies from using their superior speed. A Blues defensive re-arrangement, partly enforced by injuries and partly deliberate, put captain Cabby Green up against Guelph's star forward Ian Thomasos. Veteran full-back Paul Avis filled Green's place at centre-half, Jim Watson moved from left to right-back and utility defenceman Doug Taylor played the left back slot to complete the shuffle.

Thanks to the flexibility of the Varsity players the 'new look' defence clicked from the start, their job being made much easier by Green's terrific play which kept the Aggies star and play maker right out of the game. The return of injured Emil Primorac steadied the defence, and goalie Julius Kovacsovics was unbeatable in the Blues' net, pulling off two miraculous saves in the last five minutes when the Aggies pulled out all stops in an effort to get even.

One of the heartening aspects of the game for Blues' coach Tom Duncan was the new spirit in the Varsity attack. The return of workhorse Jim Duncan gave some pep on the Varsity left and Brian Michez, a Blues' top player from last year, returned to action and lead the Varsity attack on the right.

At the beginning of the second half Coach Duncan made a change which was to win the game for Varsity when he moved diminutive Eddy Csongradi to centre-forward for the Guelph defence was unable to match Csongradi's speed. The Blues' attack began to give the Aggie goal-keeper plenty to do and at the mid-way mark of the second half Csongradi on a pass from Michez beat the Redmen to score the only goal of the game. From then until the end of the game the Aggies pressed but the Varsity team fought right back to preserve the win and grab two points.

This Saturday the Senior Blues will host McGill in the second game of a total goal series. The McGill team grabbed a 1-0 lead in the opener last week.

In the Intermediate game the Baby Blues and Aggies exchanged goals at a rare pace. When the dust settled each team had scored five to share the points.

TYPEWRITERS
$1.00 A WEEK BUYS ...
... $1.50 A WEEK RENTS
Get a free typing course and a liberal trade-in allowance for your old typewriter when you buy a new modern machine from us.
Phone HO. 1-1843 Today

Trinity College Chapel
SUNDAY
8.00 a.m. — Mattins
8.15 a.m. — Eucharist
EVERYBODY WELCOME

KNOX YOUNG PEOPLE
Invite all PRESBYTERIAN STUDENTS to a STUDENTS' DINNER to be held in Knox Church (630 Spadina Ave.)
SUNDAY, OCT. 25 — 4.45 p.m.
R.S.V.P. 8.30 a.m. to 6.30 p.m.
WA. 4-0561

ROSEDALE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH
129 Mount Pleasant Road
(2 blocks north of Bloor, 2 blocks east of Yonge)
11 a.m.—Public Worship
7.30 p.m.—"16th Century Reformation"
—its significance and its relevance for today.
Followed by discussion and refreshments
SPECIAL WELCOME TO VARSITY STUDENTS

DANCE TO THE...
TROPITONES STEEL BAND
At West Indian Fall Prom — Trinity College, Convocation Hall
FRIDAY, OCTOBER 23 — TIME 8.30 p.m. to 1 a.m.
Members $1.00 each Non-Members $1.25 each
EVERYBODY WELCOME

DIAMOND RINGS
SAVE THE BIG MARK-UP BY BUYING YOUR DIAMOND RINGS DIRECT
Satisfaction Guaranteed or Money Refunded
Tel: EMpire 8-5268
WINSTALL DIAMOND CORP.
1219 Bank of Comm. Bldg.
25 King St. West Toronto, Ontario

Ivan Nastikoff
(Med. 53) says:

I prescribe regular doses of cash to keep my Savings Account healthy at ...
BANK OF MONTREAL
Canada's First Bank for Students
You'll find these B of M branches especially convenient
Bloor and Bay Sts. KENNETH A. McNEIL, Manager
Queen's Park JOSEPH BURDOCK, Manager
St. George and Bloor Sts. K. S. McKELLAR, Manager
a big step on the road to success is an early banking connection
U3-59

for uc show:
Top Choreographer
Don Gillies, choreographer to Wayne and Shuter, will plan the choreography for the University College book-show "Katy Cruel", producer Gary Griesdorf announced last night.
Mr. Gillies will be assisted by Connie Campbell, who is also a dancer on CBLT's "Hit Parade."
The show, an original "musical tragedy" by Michael Rasminsky and David Helwig, will be directed by William Davis, director of the UC-SMC production of "The Crucible." It will run in the Hart House Theatre the second week of January.
Auditions for "Katy Cruel" run from Monday to Wednesday, 1-4:30 p.m. in the Howard Ferguson Hall Auditorium. "Beautiful girls and talented males—singers, dancers, actors—from all over the campus are urged to try out," Griesdorf said. "The show has seven leads and 'a multitude of supporting parts.'"

University Lutheran Chapel
SUNDAY SERVICE — 11 a.m.
SUNDAY SUPPER — 5.30 p.m.
Student Club, every 2nd and 4th Thursday, at 7.45 p.m.
610 SPADINA (below Harbord)
WA. 2-1884 — WA. 3-6840

KNOX Presbyterian Church
Minister: Dr. Wm. FITCH. Spadina and Harbord
WELCOMES ALL UNIVERSITY STUDENTS
● Worship Services—11 a.m. 7 p.m.
● Young People's—8.30 p.m.
● Recreation—Friday — 8.00 p.m.
Youth Centre 16 Bancroft St.

BLOOR ST. UNITED CHURCH
300 BLOOR ST. WEST
Ministers:
Rev. Dr. Ernest Marshall Howse
Rev. J. Stanley Kennedy
Organist and Choirmaster Frederick C. Silvester
11.00 a.m.—"The Circumference of Life"—Dr. E. M. Howse
7.00 p.m.—"One Thing Thou Lackest"
Rev. J. Stanley Kennedy
The Campus Club will meet after the Evening Service. There will be a Panel Discussion on the United Church booklet "Life and Death." All students welcome.

Park Road Baptist Church
1 Block North and East of Bloor - Yonge
Minister: Rev. Murray J. S. Ford, M.A., B.D.
VICTOR E. GRAHAM, Organist
SERVICES AT 10.45 a.m. and 7.30 p.m.
A Cordial Invitation to all Students to Attend Inspiring Services

ST. ANDREW'S United Church
117 BLOOR ST. EAST near Yonge St. Subway
Minister: REV. WILLIAM BRIGGS M.A., B.D., Ph.D.
Organist & Choir Director: EDGAR GOODAIRE
11 a.m.—"The Iron Gates of Life"
7.30 p.m.—"Human Isotopes"
Students cordially invited to attend

Philosophy Becoming Pagan Says Lecturer

A Saint Michael's College Philosophy professor told a group of University of Toronto students Wednesday world thinkers are slowly channelling philosophy into a pagan stream.
Reverend G. B. Phelan, speaking to the Newman Club, said revealed truths originally meant wisdom to early fathers of the Catholic Church.
"But from that point on," he continued, "the two-fold level of personal reflection and acceptance of revealed truths carried through until they ended in the hands of Descartes."
"Then this eighteenth century philosopher threw out thinking based on revelation."
Rev. Phelan pointed out philosophy can be defined in two ways. It is the sum total of knowledge men have attained, he explained, and it is also the use of the mind to find truth.
"We do not learn philosophy but rather we cultivate it from within ourselves," he added.
Professor Phelan said some philosophers do not launch their investigation of a matter with the authority of God's word. In contrast to this, he noted the theologian always begins by saying God's word has been revealed.
"A man, however, may be both a theologian and a philosopher," he said.
Nevertheless, the SMC professor admitted there are some truths which man can reach himself, but there are others he added quickly which require God's revelation.

Avenue Park Barbershop
STUDENT PRICES
152A BLOOR WEST (just east of Avenue Rd.)

U. of T. Chorus and Orchestra
Applications — S.A.C. Office NOW!

Walmer Road Baptist Church
ONE STREET WEST OF SPADINA, ONE NORTH OF BLOOR
Welcomes Students to Its Services
SUNDAY — 11 a.m. — 7 p.m.
— Friendly After Church Firesides —
YOUNG PEOPLE MEET MONDAY at 8 p.m. — Students Like It
Dr. Harvey L. Denton, Minister Rev. Gordon V. Crofoot, Assoc.

FOLK SINGERS
Small classes of private or group lessons in folk, classical or modern vocal coaching. Central — reasonable — by U. of T. graduate. Phone WA. 1-9577 (6-7 p.m. only)

CULTE EN LANGUE FRANCAISE
le 25 Octobre à 3 Heures
(et tous les derniers dimanche du mois)
à L'EGLISE BAPTISTE "JARVIS STREET"
(Coin Jarvis et Gerrard — Entrée Rue Gerrard)

VICTORIA COLLEGE CHAPEL
SUNDAY — OCTOBER 18 — 11 a.m.
"A FAITH FOR TODAY"
4. MAN. — Prof. William O. Fennell
ALL ARE WELCOME

TRINITY
The United Church of Canada
427 BLOOR ST. WEST — at WALMER ROAD
REV. J. ROBERT WATT, B.A., B.D., Minister
John Linn, Organist and Choirmaster
11.00 a.m.—"IN HIS SHOES"
7.30 p.m.—DO YOU EVER SAY YES?
8.30 p.m.—Fireside Hour
A Cordial Invitation to All Students To Attend All Services in Trinity

Potter's Punts Perfection

— See Story, page 7

MIKE SMITH (81), Blues rookie halfback wheels through a big hole in the Queen's defense to pick up some yardage as tackle Weldon Thoburn (40) supplies the blocking.

Caput Announces Frat Investigation

Fraternities on the University of Toronto campus are being investigated by the Caput "with a view to definite action."

Following a closed meeting Saturday morning the Caput, supreme disciplinary body on the U of T campus, issued a statement unanimously endorsing President Claude T. Bissell's declaration of principle "that any action of discrimination based upon race, religion or color strikes at the very heart of the life of the University of Toronto."

"The application," the statement continued, "of this principle to the recent incident involves a study of the complex and technical question of the relations between the University and the fraternities."

The incident mentioned is the controversy over pretty Negro co-ed Bobbi Arrington who was edged out when she tried to join a sorority. Bobbi said the president of one sorority took her for a "walk around the block" and told her no-one would bid for her if she tried to join the organization. Shortly after the Arrington incident was made public, President Bissell explained the fraternities and sororities were technically private clubs, but that they were made up of undergraduates of the university and so the university is concerned with what they do.

"The university will not remain aloof because of its technical position as being apart from sororities and fraternities," he said.

Saturday the Caput backed Dr. Bissell up completely.

The members of the body, all heads of faculties and colleges at U of T, retired behind locked doors of the board room shortly after 11 a.m. It is understood the issue of the fraternities and sororities was discussed for more than two hours.

In most cases involving student discipline, jurisdiction is vested in the Caput, which has President Bissell as its chairman.

THE VARSITY

Vol. LXXIX — No. 16

Monday, October 26th, 1959

federal grants next?

End Discretionary Grants

Premier Paul Sauvé of Quebec announced Saturday his government intends to enact legislation which will guarantee grants to his province's universities.

Speaking at a dinner in his honor at the University of Montreal, of which he is a graduate, Mr. Sauvé said his government plans a program of regular yearly subsidies to the universities.

He also said the province will help university building and expansion program by guaranteeing loans contracted by the universities and defraying all or part of the interest charges and amortized funds.

The Premier said the aid programs will be financed entirely by Quebec's own resources and not by federal grants.

The province, led by the late Premier Duplessis, has steadfastly refused to accept the federal grants, first paid in 1953.

The federal government now holds the cumulative grants—which now total some $25,000,000—in trust for Quebec's universities.

(Continued on Page 3)

Music Will Decide On Garratt's Case Today

By ALAN WALKER
Varsity CUP Editor

Today's session of a music faculty students' council may spell the end of Ian Garratt as a representative to the Students' Administrative Council.

The music council will hear the report of a special committee which has been investigating Garratt for two weeks.

Garratt was suspended from his position as Blue and White chairman on the SAC in a closed meeting Sept. 30 on charges of "irresponsibility and conduct unbecoming a member of council". Ever since, he has been gathering evidence to appeal his suspension.

Today's meeting will see both sides square off for a final battle. Peter Dembski, who chaired the SAC committee which investigated Garratt in September, has been invited to the meeting. So has Jerry Case, last year's SAC chairman who has taken up Garratt's cause.

The meeting may see either Garratt's exoneration or his removal as music's SAC rep. In either case, Garratt says he intends to appeal the SAC decision.

Case said last night: "We will deal with statements given to the investigating committee by Walter McLean and Barbara Leaman," Case continued. "I have noted discrepancies in these statements, and a great lack of familiarity with proper procedure in these matters. It was just wrong, that's all."

In McLean's statement, said Case, the SAC President suggested Garratt's resignation was called for when the council voted non-confidence in him. "This is unheard of," said Case.

"McLean cleaned house this year, and as a result he left himself on his own and didn't know what he was doing," he said.

"I might add," he continued, "I feel the Music Committee is doing an excellent job. I only wish the SAC had seen fit to do such a thorough job."

Dembski said he still thinks what the SAC did was correct.

McLean said last night: "No request to reopen the case has come to the executive committee at this point, and the council has had no official communication to my knowledge regarding further developments in this case."

Tickets On Sale But Stars Still Uncertain

Tickets for the 1959 Homecoming Show go on sale today but officials still aren't sure that their headline stars will appear.

The indecision persists despite earlier predictions by Producer-Director Jim Vasoff that "there's a three to one chance Wayne and Shuster will come".

Latest comment by Homecoming officials is that the comedians will "try to come" to the Friday night portion of the celebrations, but that plans for their appearance in the Half-Time Show at Saturday's Varsity Western game are definitely off.

However, other big-name performers will definitely appear.

They include TV singer Joan Fairfax and actress Toby Robins.

Plans for the Oct. 31 Homecoming Game also remain indefinite. Opposition leader Lester B. Pearson may kick-off, "but his appearance has not yet been confirmed," Homecoming officials said last night.

Tickets for the Homecoming Show are available at the SAC office, for 50 cents with an ATL card, $1.00 without. There are no reserved seats and tickets can be bought at the door.

CLASSIFIED ADS.

FOR SALE—1958 M.G.A.

Convertible, Continental kit, spoke wheels, $1,850. Financing available. Phone WA. 2-3293.

FOR SALE—1951 METEOR

Mechanically perfect (recently fixed). Body in good condition. Must sell. Best offer takes it. Phone Bob. WA. 3-9510. Room 163.

LOST

Pocket watch in vicinity of Medical Bldg. Phone HU. 8-4314.

LOST

Ladies gold watch, engraved. Reward. Phone HU. 3-4702.

LOST

Light brown wallet with key, area of U.C. Trinity. (Two weeks ago.) Call M. Ward, BE. 3-9268.

FOR RENT

Furnished double room near university. Contact F. Halpern, 485 Huron St., WA. 4-0028.

EARN EXTRA MONEY

Selling portable and standard typewriters, and tape recorders. Phone HU. 9-1104.

FOUND

Change purse "P&amp;OT Huts" on Thursday. Call Gerry, WA. 4-2922.

FOUND!

- 3½ prs. of gloves
- 3 scarves
- 7 sets of keys
- 1 man's ring
- 7 pens—1 pencil
- 1 pr. glasses
- 1 silver charm bracelet

APPLY

S.A.C. OFFICE
GOOD HAIRCUT
RIGHT NEAR HERE

4 BARBERS — NO WAITING
600 University Avenue
Just below College
In the Basement
Open Monday through Friday
8 a.m. to 6 p.m.
ONLY $1.00

ROOM & BOARD

— FOR —

MEN & WOMEN

Campus Co-Operative
32 SUSSEX STREET
WA. 1-2520

U. C.
Leather Goods
Manufacturing Company
Limited

3047 Dundas Street W.
RO. 3-3461

Consult us for your requirements:—

—in briefcases
—underarm portfolios
etc.

Favourable discount 20%
to university students and
staff.

... university education for everyone

(Continued from Page 11)

The province's universities have been receiving annual grants from the Provincial government in lieu of the federal grants, but these grants have been given at the discretion of the government, and are not provided for by legislation.

Mr. Sauve said the Government will see to it that everyone of average income can afford a university education, and it is the Government's hope that the new legislation would promote this aim.

If universities had to rely on tuition fees alone to cover their administration costs, he said, fees would be so high education would be restricted to the wealthy classes.

Yet universities must be able to rely on a certain yearly income. Otherwise they would not be able to plan ahead. And they must be free from political pressure, he said.

"For this reason the Government will, on the first day of the Legislature session, propose on the order of the day a bill to assure universities of a steady income," he said.

The provision of statutory grants has long been an aim of Quebec university students, who have actively campaigned for them for three years.

Last year three University of Montreal students camped in the doorway of Premier Duplessis' Legislature office for months in an attempt to see him and ask him to give up discretionary grants in favor of statutory ones.

here and now

Today

1 p.m. VCF plans:—

—A Bible study for second pre-meds, second and fourth year medical students in room 213, Anatomy Bldg.

—A talk by Mrs. Lawrence Wynne on "The View of Bernard Shaw and the Neo-Darwinians" in Rm. 22, U.C. The talk is the second in a "Man Looks at Man" series.

4 p.m.—Graduate students are invited to tea at the Graduate Students' Union, 22 Hoskin Ave.

5 p.m.—The Blue and White committee will meet in the SAC office.

8 p.m.—Vic plans a soph-fresh debate in Vic Alumni Hall on the topic: "Resolved, that the Toronto atmosphere is beneficial to Victoria College." Kit Pick and Terry Glavin will support, and Mary Jane Miller and Gordon Albright will oppose.

Tuesday

1 p.m.—VCF schedules a Bible study for first-pre- and first-year meds and P&OT in Rm. 213, Anatomy Bldg.

1.20 p.m.—Vic plans a noon-hour concert featuring a preview of the Bob Review in the Wymilwood Music Room.

3-5 p.m.—Torontoensis editor Sandra Whittall plans a meeting with all interested students to make yearbook plans in the Nensis office, SAC building basement.

YOUR BLOOD
the greatest gift of all

Montreal Weekend

Hotel reservations at the
SHERATON MOUNT ROYAL
phone
LIONEL COLMAN
WA. 2-2514

Request your Sheraton student identification card necessary for student rates.

U. of T.
FLYING CLUB MEETING

Tuesday, October 27
8.00 p.m.
Music Room—Wymilwood
Refreshments will be served

Trinity College Chapel

WEEKDAY SERVICES

7.00 a.m.—Mattins
7.30 a.m.—Eucharist
6.00 p.m.—Evensong

SUNDAY SERVICES

8.00 a.m.—Mattins
8.15 a.m.—Eucharist
9.15 a.m.—Sung Eucharist & Sermon

EVERYBODY WELCOME

TYPEWRITERS

$1.00 A WEEK BUYS ...
... $1.50 A WEEK RENTS

Get a free typing course and a liberal trade-in allowance for your old typewriter when you buy a new modern machine from us.

Phone HO. 1-1843 Today

TRAIN FOR THE BEST OF TWO WORLDS

Develop your leadership ability, acquire new technical skills, benefit financially and continue your university courses by enrolling in the tri-service Regular Officer Training Plan (ROTP). It provides for:

- university tuition fees paid by the Department of National Defence
- a monthly salary
- and a career in the Canadian Army
- allowances for board and room, books and instruments
- free medical and dental care

Then, on graduating, you will have not only your chosen professional training, but also the Queen's Commission as a career officer in the Canadian Army with the prestige and many personal advantages it brings.

A LIMITED NUMBER OF CANADIAN ARMY VACANCIES IN THESE ROTP "UNIVERSITY QUOTAS" ARE STILL AVAILABLE.

If you want the best of both worlds, find out what this plan can offer you today.
For further particulars, contact your University Support Officer (Army):

CAPT. V. F. GEORGE

119 St. George Street
EM. 6-8341 — Local 222

FOLK SINGERS

Small classes of private or group lessons in folk, classical or modern vocal coaching. Central — reasonable — by U. of T. graduate. Phone WA. 1-9577 (6-7 p.m. only)

The Varsity Christian Fellowship in U.C. presents ...

"MAN LOOKS AT MAN"

Second Discussion led by Mrs. L. Wynne, M.A.
MONDAY, OCTOBER 26 — 1.10 p.m. — Room 22 U.C.
"The Views of B. Shaw and the Neo-Darwinians"

DIAMOND RINGS

SAVE THE BIG MARK-UP BY BUYING
YOUR DIAMOND RINGS DIRECT
Satisfaction Guaranteed or Money Refunded

Tel: EMpire 8-5268

WINSTALL DIAMOND CORP.

1219 Bank of Comm. Bldg. Toronto, Ontario
25 King St. West

Today's Formal

Pink brocade waltz length gown enhanced by wide band of gathered brocade which ties at back and extends in two wide streamers to hem, $58.00.

HELMAR
46 ST. GEORGE STREET

WA. 1-5978

comment

THE VARSITY

profile

Intelligence
Metaphysics
And Motion

by Erna Newman

In a rambling old house on Walmer Road filled with stained glass windows, struggling young actors and painters, antique furniture, a small battalion of cats, exercise bars and ubiquitous full-length mirrors, a small, vibrant European woman is working night and day to foster a new art form in Canada.

Miss Bianca Rogge is one of the small band of artists in Canada dedicated to the establishment of "modern dance" as a dynamic mode of expression in this country.

"Modern Dance" for Rogge means a "religion". She practices her "religion" through "the expression of an idea in the movement of my body". "Modern dance" differs from ballet in that technique never assumes first place. Technique is only a vehicle for the expression of an idea. It is never an end in itself as it is in ballet.

Since coming to Canada from Germany in 1956, Miss Rogge has spread her gospel of artistic expression through movement.

Since her arrival Miss Rogge has lectured on "artistic expression through movement" to audiences throughout Toronto. She taught modern dance in various recreational centres in the city and recently she established a studio in her home at 24 Walmer Road in order to provide more intensive training for her rapidly expanding group of enthusiastic students.

On October 17th she lectured on the history and theory of modern dance before the U.C. Players' Guild and illustrated her talk with performances by her students. In February of next year Miss Rogge's group will take part in a "Modern Dance Festival". It will be the first time that such an ambitious festival has been attempted in this city.

For Bianca Rogge modern dance is a "Metaphysical cult". No more than five feet four inches tall, Miss Rogge has the unique ability to draw all attention to her without uttering a word, as soon as she enters a room or joins a group. Her erect carriage, waistlong hair, and the serene intensity of her face, immediately strike the eye. When she talks about dancing, her audience is instantly aware of being in the presence of a dedicated artist.

Bianca Rogge was born in Latvia and began studying ballet in the capital city of Riga at the age of seven. "The teacher was very strict," she recalls, "She used to beat her dancers with a stick and scream Santa Maria while she did. I was so terrified of her that I could never remember what I was supposed to do. One day she screamed to me 'You will never be a great ballet dancer'. She made me so ill from fright that I switched to Russian Ballet.

Although still very young, Miss Rogge began to feel that the oppressive concentration on ballet technique was hemming her in. She began to feel that dancing could be somehow different although she was still too young to formulate her impressions clearly.

At the age of eleven she became seriously interested in painting and gave up dancing. Her teacher encouraged her but then gave an exhibition which her parents attended. They were so shocked at the "modern art" approach that they forced Miss Rogge to stop taking lessons from him.

Since she was no longer interested in ballet her family arranged for lessons in modern dance.

Her new teacher was Mary Wigman who was to play the most influential role in the formulation of her future career.

In speaking of Mary Wigman, Bianca said, "She had long flowing hair and the way she moved struck me as wonderfully exciting. She told her aunt, with whom she was extremely close, that she must dance and drop all else.

Miss Rogge said, "I studied seriously with Mary and lived and died for dancing. I had trouble imposing form on the excess of emotion I felt that I had to express. I thought I'd never be able to work a complete dance through".

We asked her about the famous "Wigman theory of dance".

"Mary had great respect for the moving body," Miss Rogge said. "When a student improvised, no one in the room spoke a word. It was like a religious ceremony. Mary could create an atmosphere around her so that even the most mediocre of her pupils carried away something with them. The school was the universe and Mary was the priestess."

"She sometimes spoke throughout the whole class," Miss Rogge remembers. "She once said something I have never forgotten."

"She said, 'You can do what you want in your private life, but the prostitution of movement I cannot allow in my class.'"

After completing her studies with Mary Wigman, Miss Rogge moved to Berlin and the Master School of the Dance. She served a short season as dance mistress in Trier, Germany, and performed in "evenings" which were well received by the public.

Following the striking success of her first full scale "dance concert" in Berlin, Bianca Rogge lived the life of a concert dancer. She toured Germany for several years before settling down to teach in her own studio in Berlin.

Miss Rogge felt at that time that she could not fully understand anyone who did not dance.

When Miss Rogge came to Canada four years ago with her artist-husband she knew no one and had no connections. She had always considered Canada as a land of Indians and Mounted Policemen, and she was most pleasantly surprised to see the number of people who consistently attended cultural events in Toronto.

She believes that Torontonians are hungry for culture but insecure in their judgments, and afraid to accept the unknown because it may reflect on their judgment. At the same time they have a serious approach and a respect for the old culture of Europe. There is no place yet, she maintains, that can afford to allow unconventional performances which the public may not immediately understand and appreciate.

"Toronto," Miss Rogge said, "is a city of many gifted people but at the same time a city of professionals".

Modern dance is more than simply a mode of artistic expression for Miss Rogge, it is a way of life.

"I learned from Mary Wigman," Miss Rogge said, "That in modern dance, one must never move without feeling what one did from the inside."

"Mary used to say that we should sit alone and find the core of our being and then begin to move."

Bianca Rogge believes that modern dance can be a hobby only up to a point.

"Every art can be a hobby," she said, "But the hobby eventually kills itself. One day the hobbyist becomes frustrated with only putting part of himself into his art. Art needs an audience or the source of idea is blocked. An idea must be given. It is like the prophet who receives a vision and does not share it with others."

"I feel sometimes as if I were an empty vessel which receives an idea and then gives it away again. The pleasure of moving it is in itself a wonderful experience but when I conceive an idea I feel only that I must dance it."

No one who has met Bianca Rogge can come away without being impressed with her dedication to art and her overwhelming sincerity. Her enthusiasm is contagious and her students often spend many hours just sitting in her magnificent cluttered and comfortable old living room just talking to her about dancing.

"Before a performance I pray," she said, "I give thanks that I am able to dance. My mind becomes a carte blanche and I do not speak until I go on stage. I find this gives me the greatest freedom when I am dancing. Dancing will be my life until the day comes when I am no longer able to move my limbs."

comment

garratt and the sac

All through the Ian Garratt case it has been impossible for us to print the full story of his expulsion from the Blue and White chairmanship. The meeting at which the expulsion took place was a closed session and no report of it was released to the press.

It is possible however for us to make a few general comments, now that the case has got to the point where Garratt may lose his seat on the SAC.

Without attempting in any way to whitewash Garratt, we are forced to say that his tactlessness was met with an equal tactlessness on the part of Council members with whom he dealt.

A good deal of Garratt's guilt arises out of his personal impulsiveness, and his unfamiliarity with council procedures.

At many points along the way to his trial, starting last spring when he began to make arrangements for Blue and White activities without consulting Executive members, it seems to us that it would have been so simple a matter to take him aside and explain to him the limits of his office.

Instead he was allowed to go his merry way until the Executive committee decided it was time to vote no confidence and face him with official charges.

The charge of "conduct unbecoming a council member" arose out of a similar situation. Smelling some sort of scandal, Garratt asked some questions in the SAC office. Had someone told him then just why his suspicions were groundless, that might have been the end of it. Instead he was evaded, brushed off, and allowed to think what he might until the charges started flying back and forth.

The culmination of the tactless handling of the Garratt affair came when the Council voted to go into closed session to hear his case. It may be argued that this move was taken partly to protect Garratt, but in a presumably democratic organization we believe that closed sessions always cost more than they are worth.

If the session had been an open one, the President of the SAC might not have had to make the apology that was printed in this paper on Friday.

Finally throughout the entire case a note of personal vituperation has been allowed to cloud the issue on both sides.

The responsibilities of government are great, even if it is only student government. At the very least, some sort of statesmanlike diplomacy may be expected from campus politicians, in smoothing over differences and incompatibilities among one another.

It is too late now to handle the Garratt case fairly. The best thing the Council can do now is, so to speak, "make a clean breast of things" by releasing a report of its closed session for publication.

They can also determine, in the event that such a case ever arises among them again, to handle it like legislators who are aware of the responsibilities that go with their power.

nix on vixen

Lillian Hellman Outfoxed

On Saturday evening in Hart House Theatre, Lillian Hellman's "The Little Foxes" opened. Miss Hellman's play is strongly written with a tightly-knit plot. Its weakness is indicated by a comment of Miss Hellman's concerning what she attempts to do as a writer; quoted in the program is a statement to the effect that the author considers herself to be a moral writer—one who cannot resist the final summing up. In this sense she has failed with "The Little Foxes." What summing up is done, is done by Alexandra who holds a relatively unimportant place in the struggle of this play.

However the production, outside of this consideration of "summing up" has not given us the full impact of the horror that Miss Hellman is describing. Because it lacked unity and strength the viewer tended to look on these people and their greed as petty, and at times even amusing, rather than vicious and twisted. Mr. Gill has failed to give his production a definite shape. At times one wondered whether the play was perhaps comedy; even in moments demanding great strength the effect was too often amusing.

Mary Anderson as Regina has approached her part thoroughly and minutely but was not able to bring the various facets of Regina together to give us the effect of a real human being. As a young actress she lacks the ease of command to build to the moments of power in Regina. Her two brothers Benjamin and Oscar, played by Alexander Legatt and Michael Davidson respectively failed in this same way. Mr. Legatt succeeded in unifying his portrayal to a greater degree than Mr. Davidson or Miss Anderson. Again his characterization lacked truth, and substituted in its place is an amateur image. Mr. Davidson gave us only the image of the amateur image, totally failing to give us the small, vicious quality of Oscar.

Zivile Nailivaika playing his wife, a woman driven to near insanity by her husband, has grasped the over-all picture of her character and played her on one high key. As Regina's daughter Alexandra, Hamilton gave us one very strong moment in Aunt Birdie in Act III, and for a short time felt the destructiveness of greed, and its effects on the young girl.

Patrick Arnoldi as the Northern businessman and Havelock Gradidge as the Negro man handled their parts with ease and confidence. Sheila Tait as the other servant and George as the son Leo merely walked through the play.

When the play came to life, it was the work of Peter Cherrie as Regina's husband. His portrayal had truth and strength, and at times we felt his technical ability.

Mr. Gill's use of the staircase provided some interesting moments with Mr. Cherrie at the end of Act II and again in Act III.

"The Little Foxes" provides a great deal of material because it demands of young actors the portrayal of a group of people who are either confirming their cruelty, or like Birdie, are totally destroyed by an atmosphere of greed and inhumanity. The Hart House production made an attempt, achieving a few moments, but failed in its overall effect.

Some Practical Hints

by Sybille Pantazzi

The dependence of the average student on libraries, and in particular on the University Library, has been shown recently by the news of the 900 volumes stolen from the Wallace Room in the last three years.

Is this dependence necessary? Since the average student finds library regulations and fines irksome, why doesn't he assert his independence legitimately by buying the books he needs most?

A survey of the list of books missing from the Wallace Room shows that English literature heads the list with 193 volumes. Fifty titles chosen at random from this number show that more than 50 percent of the titles are available in inexpensive paper-bound editions—and this also applies to a proportion of the books missing from other fields.

Here are some examples: Conrad, Lord Jim (which is available in three different editions 50-80 cents); Melville, Moby Dick (of which two copies were taken, is available in six different editions from 50-90 cents, and an abridged edition at 35 cents). This applies also to Thackeray's Vanity Fair, Hardy's Tess . . . and the works of E. M. Forester, T. S. Eliot, etc. There are no less than 25 titles of works by Henry James available in paperback editions.

A great number of books of literary criticism were also stolen, among them 18 on Shakespeare. But Bradley's Shakespearean Tragedy and Granville Barker's Preface to Hamlet can be bought respectively for $1.35 and $1.25.

In addition to the paper-bound editions

there are a number of inexpensive editions of the Classics of English literature such as: World's Classics, Everyman's Library, Home University Library, etc.

The following lists will be helpful to the student who will let you consult it; Penguin Classics (available free at the University Book Shop); Good Reading, a guide to the best books, edited by the Council on College Reading, 1956 (50 cents).

Other sources for inexpensive editions are: 1. Second-hand book-shops (Albion, John Britnell, Old Favourite, etc.); 2. The Salvation Army or Crippled Civilian; 3. Publishers' sales (Macmillan, Oxford, etc.); 4. Auction sales (Ward Price, etc.); 5. Image sales (Toronto Symphony, etc.); 6. Sale, usually in May, etc.). 7. A statement where remainders can be bought for little as 7 cents.

The works of Browning, Wordsworth, Keats, Lamb, etc., are available second-hand for as little as 25 cents. Sainsbury's Manual of Prosody is available for 10 cents at the Symphony Society. Other examples could be given.

The advantage of owning a book is obvious; no filling in of slips, no queue, no fines, the freedom to lend it, and above all you need it. Finally owning a book is the effect of making one respect the rights of other owners of books, private or public.

THE VARSITY

FOUNDED 1880

Published by
The Students' Administrative Council
of the University of Toronto
Toronto 5, Canada

Member Canadian University Press

Editorial and News Office
Basement, SAC Building — WA. 3-8742, WA. 3-8113

Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221

The opinions expressed in this paper are those of the editor.

Editor-in-Chief: Sam Aizenstat
Executive Editor: Mark Nichols
Managing Editors: Harvey Shepherd, Susie Breslin
News Editor: Ed Roberts
Features Editor: David Lewis Stein
Sports Editor: Dave Griner
AM&D Editor: Elmo Ciprietti
Photography Editor: Andy Stabins
CUP Editor: Alan Walker
Publicity Editor: Kay McCook
Associate News Editors: Terry Bourke, Jayne Nesbitt

Lack of space, lack of people, but plenty of time. Familiar faces included Carolyn Purdon, Lee Richardson, Barry Zimmerman, Roman Horban, Fred Host, Riho Pold, Cathy Clark, Peter Brawley, Dorothy Mikos, Sylvia Pegis, Bill Davis, Marcy Stone, Ab Steinberg, especially Gene Glisky and memories of a rather wet but very wonderful weekend.

"Suffer yourselves to be blamed, imprisoned, condemned; suffer yourselves to be hanged; but publish your opinions; it is not a right, it is a duty."

Leonard Cohen, young Canadian poet and literary personality, will read from his writings next Saturday evening, October 31, at 8:30 p.m.

Sponsored by the Contact Poetry Readings, Cohen will appear at the Isaacs Gallery, 636 Bay St. The admission charge is fifty cents.

Forthcoming bi-weekly readings will feature such noted poets as Denise Levertov, Alfred Purdy, A. J. M. Smith, Alden A. Nowlan, Charles Olson and three-French-Canadian writers.

This year the readings are operating on a grant from the Canada Council. Further information may be had from the secretary, Ken McRobbie, at WA 1-2371.

o'casey in the attic

Juno And The Gunman

Take an old coach house attic; elevate a third of the floor about 8 inches for a stage, and casually assemble about 40 chairs to fill in the rest of the space; find a dozen acting enthusiasts, and you have the ingredients which have gone into the West End Players' current production of Sean O'Casey's Shadow of a Gunman, now playing at 248A Brunswick Avenue.

If there is one thing which the West End Players are proving to their nightly audiences, it is that good theatre is still possible without the usual commercially successful play and the conventional 500-seat auditorium, and in this they appear to be following the precedent set by the York Community.

The play they have chosen for their first production of the season was O'Casey's first public success, and while it does not have all of the greatness of "Juno and the Paycock" or "The Plough and the Stars", it is nonetheless absorbing, and the beginnings of young genius are sometimes evident. The story, set in Revolutionary Ireland of 1920, centres around Donal Davoren, a 30-year-old poet, who seems to have difficulty distinguishing his own poetry from that of Shelley (whom he quotes on every possible occasion), and his pedlar roommate, who as Donal's foil represents, in O'Casey's words, "the superstition, the fear and the malignity of primitive man."

In the short and somewhat disjointed sequence, Donal and Minnie Powell, a young romantic girl who lives in the same tenement, become romantically involved; a suitcase full of I.R.A. bombs accidentally finds its way into Donal's room; the Irish Loyalist Army raids the house and, on the basis of a romantic whim, Minnie takes the suitcase to her own room to protect Donal — an impulse which leads to her death at the Army's hands as they discover the bombs. The play ends with Donal bemoaning the weakness in him which allowed Minnie to take the risk; but even now, the tragedy is submerged with poetry: "Ah me, alas! Pain, pain, pain ever, for ever! It's terrible to think that Minnie is dead, but it's still more terrible to think that Davoren and Shields are alive! Oh, Donal Davoren, shame is your portion now till the silver cord is loosened and the golden bowl be broken. Oh, Davoren, Donal Davoren, poet and poltroon, poltroon and poet!"

The only serious weakness in the play is that with most of the action — for example, Minnie's shooting — taking place offstage, practically everything depends upon the dialogue and the interplay of personalities as they shape and are affected by the events of the play, and Jay Shannon in the role of Donal unfortunately fails to bring needed life to the part. For the most part his reactions are stiff and without passion. As Seumas Shields, Nicholas Lawlor is highly effective; his self-centred fears and his superstitions come across vividly — sometimes with so much force that Donal is submerged.

The most pleasing performance, however, is given by Ann Livingston as Minnie Powell. She is easily the strongest character in the play, and Miss Livingston ## slavic mystique, anyone?

Holy Mother Russia!!

The Tamburitians came to Toronto on Saturday night and those who were interested enough in Slavic folk songs and dances to turn up at Massey Hall were treated to a spectacle they will long remember.

It is generally agreed that Slavic dancing has more variety than any other body of ethnic dances. This may be due to the fact that for the Slav dancing is almost as natural and necessary as walking.

The Tamburitians are not a group of professional dancers. They are university students who are working their way through college by means of these appearances and as a result, they approach these dances with an enthusiasm and spontaneity which made up for any lack of complex choreography while still showing us some of the subtleties and varieties of the Slavic dances.

The program began with a group of Croatian songs and dances, moved on to Macedonian, Slovenian, Russian, Roumanian, Bulgarian, and finally Polish. From the first moment this brilliantly costumed company leaped onto the stage to the accompaniment of tamburitzas (small stringed instruments) and guitars, Massey Hall was filled with an excitement and tension unusual for this building.

It is unfortunate that more opportunities do not exist for seeing this art form.

Martin Stone

Editor's note: The enthusiasm generated by this concert has already produced plans for a similar group at U. of T. After the concert, a contingent of Varsity students, headed by Joe Grimaldi, who have made use of Tamburitza repertoire at many parties, decided to organize and expand. Anyone with a guitar, oud, lute, bandura, balalaika, or just an interest is invited to join by contacting Grimaldi through the AM&D department.

portrays with gentle grace the girl's naive courage and assuredness. James Beggs as Tommy Owens takes certain liberties with O'Casey's character outline, but he finds no difficulty in drawing attention to himself onstage; he is delightful with his brash and free-wheeling delivery.

The supporting roles are all filled adequately if not outstandingly. Bernard Taylor as an irate landlord does very well with a part which has no connection with either the theme or the plot of the play, and Mary Morter portrays the talkative Mrs. Grigson with spirit.

The direction is by Sean Mulcahy, and while his staging is excellent, the emphasis on Irish humour detracts from the play's impact as a tragedy.

The play will continue to the end of this week; it is an enjoyable production of a play not commonly seen.

PETER BRAWLEY

The Hart House Orchestra Associates, fast turning into a quaint Settecento music club, will be presenting their first concert on Sunday, Nov. 8, in the Great Hall of Hart House. This year's program will be as esoteric as ever, of great interest to the musicologist and of even greater interest to students who like sheer joy and delight in their music. Season memberships are available to men and women at the Hall Porter's Desk, Hart House. $4.50 for the five concerts.

plays sonata bartok wrote for him

Maudlin Yehudi Menuhin

Apart from the educated people, there was apparently an enormous number of pop-concert fans at Massey Hall on Friday evening. Yehudi Menuhin, the darling of millions, was trying to play a program consisting chiefly of larger works, but, after each individual movement, most of the gigantic audience felt he was finished for the moment and tried its darndest to show him that they really would like more.

At first we actually wondered if we did want more, for Menuhin's program opened with a rather unsuccessful treatment of Beethoven's Spring Sonata, in F major, op. 24. It really is a lovely thing, but we must insist on the opinion we formed several years ago when Menuhin played the Mendelssohn Violin Concerto here with the TSO; he takes a while to warm up, and in the meantime we were subjected to all sorts of uneven tone qualities, heightened now and again by what must have been the strident nasality of an open string. We squirmed.

On the other hand, although Bartok's Sonata in G for unaccompanied violin, was far better played, and Menuhin was called back twice for applause, not everyone was applauding. It seems that in some dark corners of Toronto's ivory tower we still refuse to accept Bartok. A more considered, polished performance could hardly be imagined; not surprising, perhaps, since Bartok wrote the sonata for Menuhin in 1944.

The opening Tempo di Ciaccona did not bind itself to the chaconne form too rigidly; Bartok seems to have made a new invention out of it. Similarly, the Fugue had more Bartok than Bach to it, although here and there we could recognize a hugeness and depth of texture that we have unfortunately come to associate with Stokowski's questionable versions of Bach toccatas. Since the tone came from one violin, however, we were suitably impressed.

An adagio Melody follows, almost romantic but tinged with the sad experiences of the twentieth century. Here Menuhin achieved a smooth, pure lyricism that would have been welcome in the Beethoven sonata; however it contained additional dark and tragic colours that would have been out of place in the other work.

The concluding Presto movement was extremely well played; even the accompanist, Leon Pommers, managed to show here that he really was good enough a pianist to be associated with Menuhin.

After intermission we were treated to Paganini's popular Concerto in D, op. 6. We can't here go into the question of the merits of playing with violin and piano alone a work written for violin and orchestra but we were disappointed with the results of the transcription. As for the performance, though, we were displeased only with some of the double-stopping in the last movement; Menuhin had done so well in the Bartok that his momentary lapses in this work tended to mar an otherwise exemplary performance.

Ted Barnes

Mustangs Quash Stubborn McGill

University of Western Ontario Mustangs held greedily to their grip on first place in the Intercollegiate football race by defeating winless McGill Redmen 12-3 in Molson Stadium Saturday afternoon.

McGill continued their form of a week ago by bottling up Western's ground and air attack in the first half. Veteran Joe Irvin kicked two singles to give Redmen an early 2-0 lead. One of the singles came on a field goal attempt that went wide of the target.

Western penetrated the McGill defense early in the second half. Grinding consistently along the ground, Lionel Conacher and Meco Poliziani carried the brunt of the Mustang offense. Frank Cosentino threw few passes, but those he did complete went for big gains.

John Wydarenny scored the first Mustang touchdown on an end sweep. Bill Mitchell's convert missed the mark. Wydarenny, by scoring his third major of the season leads team-mate Mitchell by one point for the individual scoring championship.

Following much the same pattern Western scored their final touchdown midway through the second half. Conacher bulled his way over for his first touchdown of the season. The convert attempt failed.

Irvin kicked another single to round out the McGill scoring.

Wrestlers

University of Toronto, defending Intercollegiate wrestling champs, are in dire need of potential grunt and groaners to round out this year's squad.

Coach Jack Amos is pleased with the recruits he has so far, but many of the positions are not yet filled.

Wrestling practices are held every night at Hart House from 5:00 to 6:30.

The Intercollegiate meet will be held in Kingston, Feb. 26 and 27.

After 10 Years We Win Rugger

U of T Rugger Blues played McGill in the second game of a two game total points series for the Eastern Canada Intercollegiate rugger championship Saturday morning, and though they lost the game 3-0, they still brought home the cup for the first time in ten years, winning the series 8-6.

The game was played on a mud patch under pouring rain, and in these conditions, even the most experienced players could expect to fumble as many passes as they held.

The McGill team realized this and settled down to play a spoiling game, taking the ball on with their feet when they had possession, falling on it in defense and waiting for the Blues to make a mistake.

In this matter Varsity were obliging and to some extent their forwards were to blame. The pack used the same tactics which had been so successful the previous week, and persistently fed the ball to their backline which led to near disaster.

It is hard to blame three quarters for making mistakes, because their main fault was the lack of experience in playing with a slippery ball, but they largely made up for this with determined tackling.

The McGill score came from a typical incident when a Varsity player threw a wild pass behind a loose scrum, which was intercepted by a McGill forward; a quick hack ahead with the fullback slipping in the mud, and Bill Murchison had scored for McGill. The attempt at conversion failed and that was the series.

If it was the inexperience of the Blues which cost them the match, it was probably the growing nucleus of Canadians in the team, John Cottenden, Hugh Johnson, and George MacKay in the backline, and Barry Reed and Ray Cornhill in the pack, which helped Varsity bring back the title after ten long years.

The Scoreboard

FOOTBALL
Senior
	P	W	L	T	F	A	P
Western	4	4	0	0	59-21	8
Toronto	4	3	1	0	59-23	6
Queen's	4	1	3	0	30-46	2
McGill	4	0	4	0	23-81	0

Weekend Results
TORONTO	-	7	Queen's	...	6
Western	...	12	McGill	...	3

Future Games
Sat., Oct. 31 - Western at Toronto; McGill at Queen's

Western Intercollegiate
	P	W	L	T	F	A	P
U.B.C.	3	3	0	0	105-38	12*
U of Alta.	5	3	2	0	138-67	6
U of Sask.	4	0	4	0	16-154	0

Weekend Results
Alberta	...	24	Saskatchewan	...	0

RUGGER
McGill	---	3	TORONTO	---	0
Toronto win 2 game total point series 8-6.

SOCCER
TORONTO	---	5	McGill	---	1
Toronto wins 2 game total goal series 5-2.

INTRAMURAL FOOTBALL
Group II
Dentistry	...	14	SPS Jr.	...	0

SENIOR INTERCOLLEGIATE HOCKEY
The Varsity Blues Hockey Team will start practicing Friday, October 30th, at 5:30 p.m. at Varsity Arena. Any new players interested in trying out for the team please contact Jack Kennedy, Coach, Hart House Athletic Office.

Leave Toronto — Friday, November 6th, 1959 at 2.30 p.m. or 11.15 p.m.

Varsity at McGill SAT. NOV. 7th 1959

COME HAVE FUN

ON THE MONTREAL SPECIALS

If you're going on the Night Train
We hope you'll get some sleep
But if you're coming on the Day Train
Let's tell you who you'll meet.
There's our group of happy cheerleaders and Don Page who's such a rage
Most of the Blue and White Band with music of this age
They will serenade us — as on the way we go right through to Montreal — and well — you know!
All we ask is that you help us get those trains up there on time
And woe betide the fellow who delays us on the line
We are expecting quite a welcome
when we get to Montreal
According to the many rumours of preparations by McGill
Get your reservation early
No deposit — just a form
See you at the S.A.C. then but please make it after dawn!

HOTELS

We can advise you
re student rates

NOTE:

We have been advised that with your co-operation it may be possible
to get the afternoon train to Montreal soon after 8 p.m.

TRAIN TICKETS

$12.50
Return Fare

Return From Montreal (Central Station) Sunday, November 8th 1959 at 4.15 p.m.

RESERVATION

(ON A FIRST COME BASIS ONLY)

If you are prepared to adhere to the conditions previously advertised, please complete the following details and send this reservation to the S.A.C. office immediately so that a ticket can be reserved for you — we shall be limiting our responsibility this year to 1600 students (800 on each going train).

ALL TICKETS MUST BE COLLECTED BY THURSDAY, NOV. 5th, 1959.

Name .....
Address .....
Telephone .....

I wish to reserve a ticket for the ..... afternoon train ..... night train and accept the conditions of sale. (Signed) .....

NO TICKETS WILL BE ISSUED ON THE DAY OF TRAVEL — TICKETS
WILL NOT BE ON SALE AT THE STATION OR ON THE TRAIN

TICKETS WILL BE AVAILABLE NEXT THURSDAY TO THOSE WHO HAVE MADE THEIR RESERVATIONS

For Those Who are Going for the Game — It Starts at 2.00 p.m.

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS

SWIMMING

Open practice hours for SPEED and SYNCHRONIZED swimmers every MONDAY, WEDNESDAY and THURSDAY from 4 to 6 at LILLIAN MASSEY POOL

This time may be used for interfaculty teams as well as for
"dip time." An instructor will be present.

UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICE

FREE CHEST X-RAYS!

FOR STAFF AND VOLUNTEERS

Staff members and students in non-compulsory groups who were not able to attend the survey last Thursday may still get a chest
X-Ray by going to the Falconer Hall Coach House, rear of 84
Queen's Park, any time between 9.00 a.m. and 12.00 noon, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday of this week.

PROTECT YOURSELF : : PROTECT OTHERS

FACULTY CHEERLEADERS

PRACTISE TONIGHT

DRILL HALL — at 5 O'CLOCK

GAMES TODAY

SOCCER
North	12.30	Sr. SPS	vs	St. M. A	Hansen
North	4.15	Med. B	vs	U.C.	Silzer
LACROSSE
	1.00	Vic. II	vs	I Pre-Med	Hill, Roth
	5.45	SPS. I	vs	U.C. I	Hodgkinson, Grist
	6.00	SPS. II	vs	Dent.	Hodgkinson, Grist
VOLLEYBALL
	1.00	U.C. Pillars	vs	SPS. H	Stein
	4.00	Pre-Med. I A	vs	U.C. Jeannette	Granatstein
(Major)	5.00	Med. III Yr.	vs	SPS. C	Granatstein
	6.00	Sr. SPS	vs	Med.	Granatstein

 GAMES TUESDAY |  |  |  |  |  |  || FOOTBALL |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |
West	4.00	Forestry	vs	Med.	Godley, Chykaluk, Klodzie
SOCCER
North	12.30	Pharm	vs	Forestry	Hilgenberg
South	12.30	SPS. IV	vs	St. M. B	Farwell
LACROSSE
	5.00	Med. A	vs	St. M. A	Barrett, Misener
	6.00	Pharm	vs	SPS. IV	Barrett, Misener
	7.00	II Pre-Med.	vs	Knox	Barrett, Misener
VOLLEYBALL
	1.00	SPS. J	vs	St. M. VIII	Sigal
	6.30	Arch	vs	Pharm. B	Stein
	7.30	SPS. D	vs	St. M. III	Stein
	8.30	Ennman.	vs	For. A	Stein

SOMEWHERE in this mound of muddy football players behind the referee in foreground, is Varsity halfback Doug Boyd who has just scored a TD for the Blues. Boyd ran in terrific style in his first Intercollegiate game. (VSP Stabins)

Rookie Halfbacks Star Blues Win Mud Bowl

By DAVE GRINER
Varsity Sports Editor

The big Gael from Kingston finally blew out Saturday afternoon after two weeks of furious activity as Varsity Blues slogged through the rain and mud to gain a 7-6 decision over Queen's at Varsity Stadium before 5,000 drenched onlookers.

The margin of victory in this exhibition of old time two-backs-and-a-kick football was the single point kicked by Varsity half-back Peter Potter in the last play of the first half. It was ironic that Queen's, often the winner of close games in past years because of their superior kickers, should receive a hoist on their own petard.

Three times in the first half, the mud on the ball led Potter to fumble the snap from centre, but each time he was equal to the occasion, running out of the pocket and kicking the ball on the run in a manner that must have warmed the hearts of any oldtimers who were watching.

Sharing the spotlight from an offensive angle were rookie half-backs Mike Smith and Doug Boyd. Both ran from scrimmage in a manner that made the fans forget that Steve Chisholm and Dave Creswell were unable to play. In addition, Boyd scored the only Varsity touchdown in the third quarter.

Defensively, Varsity's line, led by Trevor Eytton the veteran centre guard, were equal to most occasions, holding the Gaels to one lucky touchdown late in the fourth quarter.

As it happened, the touchdown pass from Plumley to Mike Wicklum slipped through the Varsity defenders' hands just as it had done to a Queen's defender the week before in Kingston.

On that occasion, Bob Dann was on the receiving end of the touchdown pass, this week, it was he who allowed the ball to slip through his fingers and give Queen's their only score.

This left it up to Terry Porter to miss the convert and give Varsity their narrow win.

Earlier, Bill Kay had blocked a Porter punt on the Varsity 27 yard line and saved what would have been the tying point.

The majority of the first half was taken up by much grunting and shoving between the 25 yard lines and an immoderate number of punts as neither team's offense could handle the rain and the mud as well as the opposition.

Then came the big break of the game. Punting from his own 25, Porter got off a short kick and Varsity had a first down on the Queen's 47. Four plays took the ball to the 28, and on third down Potter went to kick.

He managed a short wobbler that bounced about 18" inside the end zone about a foot from the sideline and then careened out of bounds for a single without any Queen's man having a chance to lay a hand on the ball.

Queen's fumbled seven times during the game, and while they recovered most of them, the law of averages finally caught up with them on the second play of the third quarter.

A Varsity player recovered a bobble by Kent Plumley, Queen's quarterback. From there, Blues slithered 47 yards in 12 plays for the TD, after just making a first down on the Gaels' four yard line by the depth of the coat of mud on the ball. Boyd dove over from a yard out behind good blocking from Bruce Jackson and Bill Bulcon. The convert attempt was wide.

More pushing and grunting ensued, and then with time running out, Queen's moved the ball from their own 32 for a touchdown in a dozen plays. Plumley tossed 8 yards to Mike Wicklum for the

TD. Some sloppy Varsity tackling greatly aided the drive.

Thus the stage was set for the drama of the tying convert, but Eytton broke through and blocked Porter's low kick.

Plumley was the outstanding Queen's player on offense as he completed 13 of 20 passes and rallying his club late in the game in a drive that just fell short.

Blues' quarterback Nick Sopinka called an astute game, mixing up the three running plays he was using in clever fashion. The offensive line looked very sharp as every player blocked in great style. Testimony to this is the 227 yards Varsity gained rushing in 55 plays during the game.

Notes . . . McMurry was the leading Varsity groundgainer with 84 yards in 21 carries . . . Smith had 73 in 18 . . . Boyd 63 in 12 . . . Ritchie was Queen's best with 54 in 13 . . . Varsity lost end Doug Jack for the season with torn knee ligaments . . . Porter reinjured his shoulder and may be through for the season.

Soccer Blues Champs Again

Playing in a sea of mud on Saturday, the Varsity Soccer Blues beat the visiting McGill team by a score of 5-1 to win the Eastern Division title of the O.Q.A.A. The Blues won the total goals series 5-2 and in this game showed a reversal of form from the game in Montreal last week when they allowed the Redmen to grab a one goal lead.

Once again the Varsity line-up was changed due to injuries. On doctor's orders Captain Roy Green and wing-half Emil Primorac sat out, but Stew Bell returned to fill his old spot at left-half, and Roger Peretz was switched from the forward line to fill the other gap. The one-goal lead which McGill carried into the game was wiped out with the first Varsity attack, for with the game only a minute old Blues' Brian Michez pushed a centre from Jim Duncan inside the near post to even the score.

The Blues were on top of the Redmen from this point on and had several good chances to go ahead stopped by a tough McGill defence. Eventually at the mid-way mark of the first half, Roger Peretz put Varsity out in front for the series when he scored on a penalty kick. With both teams finding it hard going in the mud, the score remained at 2-0 in favour of the Blues until half-time.

At the start of the second half the Blues resumed their almost continuous assault on the McGill goal with Varsity inside-forwards Jim Duncan and Eddy Csongradi keeping the Redmen's defence busy. Duncan's persistence was rewarded when he worked the ball through a confused Montreal defence to hammer home Varsity's third goal.

The McGill team, abandoning their close-passing game which literally bogged down in the mud, suddenly began to have a good share of the play and Blues' keeper Julius Kovacs had to be very alert on two occasions to keep the Varsity goal intact. The game suddenly tightened up when Guy Steed scored from a melee in front of the Blues' net to cut the Varsity series lead to one goal.

Moments later, however, Blues scored two quick goals to clinch the game. The first came when Mike Mahon let a bullet shot go which slipped from the fingers of the unfortunate McGill keeper, to the feet of Blues' Michez who promptly scored his second goal of the game, and made the series score 4-2 for Varsity. Two minutes later the same Michez centred the ball after a fine run down the Varsity right-wing to Csongradi who headed the ball to Mahon, who in turn nodded it into the net. This goal ended the scoring for the game as the deteriorating ground conditions made constructive soccer impossible.

Baby Blues Play Rams

Tomorrow Intermediate football gets under way for the third time this year, the second time against the Ryerson Rams. In the last meeting between the two teams, Baby Blues won handily against the team that defeated them last year 8-7 to win the championship.

Ryerson, a school of only 1,700 males, has lost all its games this year, two to Western and one each to Queen's and Toronto.

Hand injuries to Mike Pearson, John Huot, and the quitting of one player might hamper Toronto's chances slightly.

Intermediates seem to be turning into a better ball club with each minute of play. With such players as Wright, Hall and King on offense and Lackey and German on defense, Baby Blues will probably make Tuesday's game a runaway against the winless Rams. Game time is 2.00 p.m. at Varsity stadium.

TOO CLOSE!

Toronto: Centres: Crawford, Jewell; guards: Bulcon, Dyer, Bell, S. Eytton; tackles: Thoburn, Kay, Bradstock, Wood, Jackson; ends: Jack, House, Lougheed, Baird; quarter-backs: Rush, Sopinka, Campbell; backs: Wyles, Boyd, Smith, Knowles, Potter, Myers, Dann, McMurry, Burroughs, Murchie.

Queen's: Centres: Saccert; guards: Steinburg, Wilson, Shearn, Arber, Bethune, tackles: Johnson, Poops, Ware, Lucant, Hawkins; ends: Plumley, D. Robb, Sharpe, Douglas, Thompson; quarter-backs: Plumley, K. Richards; backs: Dunstan, Ritchie, MacAfee, Wicklum, Johnson, Skene, Porter, Pettit, McGill, Strickler.

First Quarter
No scoring.
Second Quarter
1. Toronto, Single (Potter)
Third Quarter
2. Toronto, TD (Boyd)
Fourth Quarter
3. Queen's, TD (Wicklum).

JOHN McMURTRY (91) ignores his dangling chin strap and the Queen's tackler as he looks upfield for more running room. McMurry was Varsity's leading rusher in Saturday's game, gaining 84 yards at an average of four yards a carry. (VSP Stabins)

Two Campaigns Dragging

United Appeal, now rolling into its second week of campaigning on the University of Toronto campus has $741.14 towards its goal, while blood donations so far total 1212 pints, officials said last night.

Pledge cards do not have to be filled by prospective donors, who give blood at the nearest clinic. The Red Cross Mobile Unit will be at Trinity College at the beginning of this week.

With over one-half campaign time gone, only one-quarter of the 4,500 pint blood quota has been reached. On Friday, Pharmacy, UC, and P&OT added 293 pints to the total.

Casting Today

Casting for the UC show "Katy Cruel" starts today in Howard Ferguson Hall. The time is 1 to 4:30 p.m. and lots of dancers, singers and actors are needed. Officials plan to cast from talent all over the campus until Wednesday.

United Appeal

FACULTY	DONATIONS
Social Work	$109.81
Las Vegas	$195.00
Concert	$237.20
SMC	$20.56
Nursing	$13.25
Forestry	$14.35
UC	$114.00
Emmanuel	$22.50
Wycliffe	$14.50
TOTAL	$741.17

Le Club Francais de Victoria College

première réunion
le 28 octobre
à 8 heures
à Wymilwood

Martin Bockner presents
EWAN MacCOLL
Britain's Foremost Folk Singer
and PEGGY SEEGER
in a program of
FOLK SONGS
SAT., NOV. 7 at 8.30 p.m.
EATON AUDITORIUM
TICKETS $3.00, $2.25, $1.50
at A & A Book Store
Toune Records
Eaton Auditorium Box Office or PHONE ME 3-2411

UNIVERSITY BLAZERS Custom Made

Especially Priced for Students
$27.50
Fine Flannel Worsted Trousers
$16.50
Business Hours: 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.
Monday through Saturday
Suits Made to Measure
Latest Styles and Design
PARNES Clothing Co.
706 QUEEN STREET WEST
EM. 6-2025
Sample at S.A.C. Office

Don't Be Taken By The "Vitamin Racket"

How many extra vitamins do you really need a day? Can a food supplement make men more virile, women more receptive? November Reader's Digest answers many questions about vitamins and gives you a chart to use in checking the brand of vitamins you buy! Get your November Reader's Digest today: 35 articles of lasting interest.

HART HOUSE THEATRE'S FIFTY-FIRST ALL-UNIVERSITY PRODUCTION

Lillian Hellman's

THE LITTLE FOXES

Directed by
Robert Gill

Same Special
Student Rate — $1.00

Two Tickets Only
On Each A.T.L. Card

TONIGHT AND ALL THIS WEEK AT 8:30

STUDENT SUBSCRIPTIONS STILL AVAILABLE—$3.00 FOR FOUR PRODUCTIONS

HART HOUSE ORCHESTRA ASSOCIATES

1959-60 SEASON

Concerts On Sunday Evenings, with

DR. BOYD NEEL

CONDUCTOR

November 8th — English Composers

November 22nd — Italian Settecento Composers

December 13th — Bach Family

January 17th — Edvard Grieg

February 17th — Classicists & Contemporaries

Student Subscriptions for the Five Concerts — $4.50

Available at the Hall Porter's Desk, and at the Arts Colleges
(Victoria College Alumni Hall) at Noon Daily This Week

RED CROSS CLINIC DATES FOR DONORS

MONDAY, OCTOBER 26 — U. OF T. LAW
Lawrence Park Community Church
Bayview at Lawrence — 2-4 6:30-8:30

O.C.E.
Ground Floor Gym of O.C.E. — 1:30-5:15 p.m.

MUSIC

67 College St. — 12-3:30 p.m. 5:30-8:30 p.m.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 27 — MUSIC

67 College St. — 12-3:30 p.m. 5:30-8:30 p.m.

TRINITY & WYCLIFFE

Convocation Hall, Trinity — 9:30-11:15 a.m. 1-4 p.m.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 28 — ST. MICHAEL'S

Brennan Hall — 9:30-11:30 1-4 p.m.

ENGINEERING & GRADUATE STUDIES

Huron & College (Old Dental Bldg) 10-1:30 2:45-4:30 p.m.

THURSDAY, OCT. 29 — ENG. & GRADUATE STUDIES

Huron & College (Old Dental Bldg) 10-1:30 2:45-4:30 p.m.

FRIDAY, OCT. 30 — ENG., GRAD. STUD. & FORESTRY

Huron & College — 10:30-1:30 2:45-4 p.m.

Hart House

TODAY

5.00 p.m.—Glee Club Full Rehearsal — DEBATES ROOM

7.15 p.m.—Revolver Club — Rifle Range

TOMORROW

8.00 a.m.—Holy Communion, Chapel

5.10 p.m.—Amateur Radio Club — Code and Theory Class Introductory Meeting — New Members welcome.

7.00 p.m.—Glee Club Full Rehearsal — Music Room

7.00 p.m.—Art Class — Art Gallery

7.15 p.m.—BRIDGE — DUPLICATE TOURNAMENT
East Common Room — New Players Welcome

7.30 p.m.—CHESS CLUB OPEN HOUSE — Debates Room
Mr. D. Grimshaw, Ontario Jr. Champion, will take on all comers in a simultaneous exhibition. Refreshments provided. Admission Free.

8.00 p.m.—Archery — Rifle Range

BLUE and WHITE BAND HOME-COMING SHOW PRACTICES

MONDAY and TUESDAY — 5 p.m. — DRILL HALL

THURSDAY — 5 p.m. — VARSITY STADIUM

FRIDAY — HOMECOMING SHOW SATURDAY — PARADE & GAME

BLUE & WHITE HOMECOMING SHOW

Varsity Stadium

FRIDAY OCT. 30 — 8:00 p.m.

The Biggest and Most Elaborate Blue & White Show Ever!

Tickets on Sale S.A.C. Office — Monday Morning

ADMISSION — 50c Undergraduates, $1.00 Graduates

DON'T MISS THIS!

GET YOUR TICKETS EARLY!

Interested in a fascinating, varied, useful extra-curricular activity? In working with a friendly group of interesting but non-eccentric students? Interested in proofreading, artistic layout, telephoning, typing, organizing, dealing with people, arranging photos, editing articles, photography, sales, or art? Then why not drop in to chat with the editor of TORONTONENSIS, the all-campus yearbook, and find out what sort of work she has to offer you? Sandra Whittall will be in the yearbook office (basement of SAC Bldg.) every afternoon this week from 3.00 to 5.30.

Defeat UofO Protest

OTTAWA, Oct. 27, (CUP)—The University of Ottawa students' council Sunday put the brakes on an attempt to force changes in a controversial students' handbook published by the university administration this fall.

The council refused to withdraw for amendment a constitution which was submitted to the university administration for approval last May 31.

Although Council has not had any word of the fate of their constitution, unofficial sources have indicated it has since been amended by university authorities.

The motion for withdrawal, proposed by the five-man council executive, was made with the hope of two results. The move might:

- make room for constitutional changes which might force amendment of a controversial students' handbook published by the university this fall; and
- strengthen the council's position by bringing non-affiliated organizations on campus under its jurisdiction.

The motion was defeated by council in an 11-2 vote. Council members felt it was better to let authorities declare themselves before taking further action on the constitution or handbook.

Council also authorized written negotiations with the administration to attempt to get an interpretation of the handbook that would favor students more than the authorities. They felt the handbook as it stands is open to two interpretations.

The council has submitted constitutions to the U of O administration for almost 10 years. All proposed constitutions have either not been returned or returned too late for final council ratification.

The constitution now in authorities' hands already provides for more students authority than the handbook appears to allow. Council president Andre L'Ouillet regards the handbook as "the reply to their past requests for ratification".

The handbook spells out detailed rules for student conduct and places all student organizations under tight administrative control.

Some handbook highlights:

- prohibition of drinking, gambling or carrying fire arms on campus.

- reaffirmation of the university's right to abrogate student autonomy "whenever it deems that necessary".

- regulations insisting that all student organizations must be approved by the administration, and must submit constitutions and budgets for administrative approval.

- rules providing that any student affiliation with "inter-university organizations, whether national or international, is subject to . . . approval".

Two U of O student editors played roles in Sunday's events.

Arnold Amber, editor of the English-language Fulcrum, told council the majority of U of O's students had not read, or were indifferent to the new handbook. He said many students were afraid to express opinions because of possible repercussions from the university.

Following the meeting Paul LaRoche, editor of the French-language La Rotonde, indicated he intends to resign.

"I am leaving my post because of the amount of school work that is piling up, and to a lesser degree because the student body and council are not behind us," he said.

"We hoped that if the constitution had been withdrawn it would show that the students did not approve of the handbook".

LaRoche, a law student, said he would run for French vice-presidency in the next student election.

DIANA EDE (III Trinity), choreographer for this year's edition of the Varsity Homecoming Show, shows her girls just how to do it. The 1½-hour show will be held in Varsity Stadium Friday night.

Plan Big Weekend For Miss Varsity Finalists

Five University of Toronto co-eds have begun a week of publicity, press conferences and photographs which will end with the crowning of Miss Varsity Friday night at the Homecoming Show.

Jill Guest (Trinity), Glenna Hart (OCE), Nancy Davidson (P&OT), Anne Williams (Law) and Marjorie Chapman (Vic) were chosen at Saturday's Varsity-Queens game as the five contest finalists.

The girls will attend a press luncheon on Thursday to meet representatives of city newspapers. Friday they will be presented at a sport dinner honoring the 1909 Varsity football team. From there they will go to the Homecoming Show where Miss Varsity will be picked at the show's end.

Toby Robins, Canadian Broadcasting Corp. television actress, will present the winner with roses, an engraved compact and a savings bond.

Saturday morning, Miss Varsity will ride in the Homecoming float parade. In the afternoon she will appear in the half-time Show at the Varsity-Western game.

Meanwhile, Homecoming float parade judges were announced last night. They are: University of Toronto President Claude Bissell, Students Administrative Council president Walter McLean, SAC vice-president Barb Leaman, Neil McKinnon, president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, and Wallace McCutcheon, executive vice-president of the Argus Corp.

Twenty-two floats have been entered in the parade so far, Bill Russell, chairman of the Blue and White Homecoming Float Parade committee said.

the understanding that I would not release any material from the meeting until a report had been made to the Faculty of Music — and my material had been checked by the investigating committee.

My hands were tied, and I didn't want to press my luck. I agreed.

Up to this point, the meeting had not been called to order, and after consulting with experts, it was felt that what material is in this report does not constitute a breach of the agreement.

During the two hours of stormy debate that followed, I took down confidential material, incriminating statements and personal insults, fearing what my final article would look like after the committee had censored it.

Last night, after another meeting the committee issued a statement to me, saying they had completed their investigation.

"We will make a recommendation to the Faculty of Music as a whole at a general meeting," chairman Osborn said. "The decision will be up to them."

Later Miss Osborn said it would be at least a week until the mass meeting is held. She said it was difficult to gather the whole student body of the faculty together at one time.

As soon as the report from this committee has been made to the faculty, The Varsity will print as much of the session material as it can. Places where testimony has been deleted will be marked with asterisks and in the case of the striking out of a whole phase of testimony approximate wording will be given.

The committee to which The Varsity must submit its material consists of chairman, Ann Osborn and members, Nancy Hardy, Penny Berry, Gail Mead, Shirley Petes, John Barron, Doug James, Joe Macko and Bernard Truscotte.

Re Garratt

By ALAN WALKER

The Ian Garratt case Monday came within a hair's breadth of running up against another closed meeting.

I heard a special meeting was to be held of an investigating committee of the Faculty of Music students. As this meeting could well be influential in Garratt's expulsion as an SAC representative, I decided to be there.

At 3:45 p.m., I strolled down to the Conservatory. I recognized members of the committee buzzing in small groups in the hall, and realized they were disturbed at the report of the meeting in Monday's Varsity. It was supposed to be a secret.

The door opened, the members went in and the door closed. I knocked. John Barron, a member of the committee, informed me it was a closed meeting.

I decided to gamble, and said "it's customary to allow a reporter to enter and stay until a motion is presented calling for his removal."

Committee chairman Ann Osborn came to the door. I told her the same story.

She went inside and I could hear her say "the reporter says he's allowed in until we rule officially that he can't stay."

"Fine," said Nancy Hardy, "bring him in and we'll rule him out." I walked in.

For the first 10 minutes of argument I shifted from foot to foot just inside the door, waiting for their decision.

Miss Osborn wasn't sure whether a motion was required, or whether a ruling from the chair was sufficient.

Peter Dembski, head of the SAC investigation committee whose report resulted in Garratt's suspension as Blue and White Chairman last month, had been asked to the meeting.

He pointed out that a closed session, reported as closed, might be far more harmful than any actual report of the meeting. Committee member Doug James argued that confidential statements would be heard, which should not be made public.

I asked if I might sit down while they argued it out. I took up a position next to Garratt's counsel, Jerry Case, and started to make notes.

Finally a motion was read, that I be allowed to stay with

Three Name Stars Out Of Homecoming Show

Officials of The Varsity Homecoming Show last night confirmed earlier reports that their three headline stars would not be appearing in the show.

And they added that even Opposition Leader Lester Pearson's appearance at Saturday's Varsity-Western football game hasn't been confirmed.

Producer-Director Jim Vassoff said that comedians Wayne and Shuster would definitely not be able to make the show, and that television singer Joan Fairfax would also not be able to take part.

"Wayne and Shuster want to participate", Vassoff said, "but they can't work it into their crowded schedule".

The Canadian Broadcasting Corp. forced cancellation of Miss Fairfax's appearance, under a contract agreement which requires CBC permission for all outside commitments, Vassoff said.

As the program now stands, singer Priscilla Wright and actress Toby Robins are slated to headline cast of over 200 performers.

The show opens with a 65-girl spectacular, and will include folk singing and dance acts. Climax will be the crowning of Miss Varsity.

Although the site is Varsity Stadium, the production will not be cancelled "short of flood, storm or hurricanes", Vassoff said.

Pearson has been invited to kick off at Saturday's game, but no word from him has been received yet, Homecoming officials said last night.

carabins chosen

Names of 40 students chosen for this year's Carabin Week-end exchange were released last night by Students' Administrative Council weekends chairman Virginia Lomax.

The visit of the U of T students to the Université de Montréal this winter will be preceded by a visit of 40 U de M students here.

bob peek

"Hell, Beautiful Hell" was the theme of a noon-hour preview yesterday of this the theme of a noon-hour Revue, "The Big F".

The mixed chorus sang the lively excerpt from the show and also the opening chorus. This was followed by a duet by Pat Coulton and Phil Monde.

The review, composed of music, dancing and skits is produced by Michael Cross and John Runball.

The musical program consists of 23 songs written by a staff of Vic students under the direction of Ed Moskal.

HART HOUSE ORCHESTRA ASSOCIATES
1959-60 SEASON
CONCERTS ON SUNDAY EVENING, with
DR. BOYD NEEL
Conductor
NOVEMBER 8th — ENGLISH COMPOSERS
NOVEMBER 22nd — ITALIAN SETTECENTO COMPOSERS
DECEMBER 13th — BACH FAMILY
JANUARY 17th — EDVARD GRIEG
FEBRUARY 17th — CLASSICISTS & CONTEMPORARIES
Student Subscriptions for the Five Concerts — $4.50
Available at the Hall Porter's Desk, and at the Arts Colleges
7 am — 11 pm Daily

HART HOUSE THEATRE
ROBERT GILL, Director
AUDITIONS
Auditions will begin on Tuesday, Nov. 3rd
— For —
The Glass Menagerie
— And —
The Importance of Being Ernest
For an Appointment — Phone WA. 3-7193
or Call at Theatre Offices.

EATON'S

A Wale of a Tale

When you're clad in corduroy it's the wale that counts . . . and on this slim sheath it's wide and silky. Whether you're bound for class, council meetings, or casual dates, you'll feel chic and comfortable in this buttoned sheath. Beige or green. Sizes 7 to 15 each 19.95

PHONE UN. 1-5111
EATON'S—Main Store—Fourth Floor—Dept. 241

BUY FLOWERS
for all occasions at the
PARK PLAZA FLORISTS
10 AVENUE ROAD
WA. 3-6361
10% DISCOUNT TO
STUDENTS AND STAFF

TYPEWRITERS
$1.00 A WEEK BUYS . . .
. . . $1.50 A WEEK RENTS
Get a free typing course and a liberal trade-in allowance for your old typewriter when you buy a new modern machine from us.
Phone HO. 1-1843 Today

Today's Formal
Carnation red bouffant ball gown draped bodice appliqued with matching jewelled flowers, sweeping skirt accented by large bustle bow. $85.00.
HELMAR — WA. 1-5978
46 ST. GEORGE STREET

DIAMOND RINGS
SAVE THE BIG MARK-UP BY BUYING
YOUR DIAMOND RINGS DIRECT
Satisfaction Guaranteed or Money-Refunded
Tel: Empire 8-5268
WINSTALL DIAMOND CORP.
1219 Bank of Comm. Bldg.
25 King St. West Toronto, Ontario

Attractive Careers
— IN —
Federal Public Service
— FOR —
Civil Service
Commission Offices
JUNIOR ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICERS
ECONOMISTS AND STATISTICIANS
DOMINION CUSTOMS APPRAISERS
TRADE AND COMMERCE OFFICERS
CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION OFFICERS
FOREIGN SERVICE OFFICERS
For Citizenship and Immigration, External Affairs,
Trade and Commerce
ARCHIVISTS — FINANCE OFFICERS
These posts offer interesting work, numerous opportunities for advancement and generous fringe benefits.
STARTING SALARIES $4140 and $4200
Under-graduates in their final year of study are invited to apply but appointment will be subject to graduation. Students from all faculties are eligible to compete.
WRITTEN EXAMINATION SATURDAY, NOV. 14
Details regarding the examination, application forms and descriptive folders now available from University Placement Office
5 WILLCOCKS STREET
— Or —
CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, OTTAWA
If you write to Ottawa, please specify the classes in which you are interested and quote competition 60-2650.

HART HOUSE THEATRE'S FIFTY-FIRST ALL-UNIVERSITY PRODUCTION
Lillian Hellman's
THE LITTLE FOXES
Directed by Robert Gill
TONIGHT AND ALL THIS WEEK AT 8:30
STUDENT SUBSCRIPTIONS STILL AVAILABLE—$3.00 FOR FOUR PRODUCTIONS

Same Special Student Rate — $1.00

Two Tickets Only On Each A.T.L. Card

united appeal
United Appeal up to Monday, October 26:—
College or Faculty Total
Social Work $109.18
SMC 20.56
Nursing 40.25
Forestry 27.10
UC 114.01
Emmanuel 22.50
Wycliffe 14.50
Medicine 246.75
Pharmacy 78.67
Victoria 39.44
Knox 40.10
Trinity 26.30
P&OT 34.00
Concert 237.20
Las Vegas 195.55
TOTAL $1,246.11

blood
The blood campaign up to Monday, Oct. 26:—
College or Faculty Pints
Law 31
Victoria 403
Emmanuel 40
Music 9
Medicine 182
Hygiene 1
Architecture 30
Knox 25
Nursing 109
UC 293
P&OT 85
PHE 11
Dentistry 99
Pharmacy 53
Business Administration 1
Trinity 1
SMC 2
Engineering 17
Graduate Studies 2
U of T Press 16
Geological Science 1
Staff 8
Fraternalities 125
Social Work 17
OCE 79
TOTAL 1,640

Blood, UA Totals Low, Plan New Blood Drive
The Red Cross would like to have another University of Toronto blood drive in the spring.
Quota for the U of T is 4,500 pints. Last year in a spring campaign only 1,800 pints were given. Miss Nancy Davison, Students' Administrative Council student service commissioner, last night, said the present blood drive is expected to net 2,500 pints.

carabins chosen
(Continued from Page 1)
John Hamilton (IV SPS); Doreen Henderson (III Nurs); Keith Hollett (IV Trin); Jan Hughes (IV SMC); Anthony Ip (SGS); Diane Jackman (III Vic); Claire Jephcott (IV Nurs); Peter Jones (III Law); Tony Keith (III Law); Jim Little (IV SPS); Gary Lovatt (IV Trin); Peter Lydon (IV SMC).
John MacFarlane (III Vic); Jane MacKenzie (IV Vic); Frank MacNiven (V Dents); Bill McWhinnie (III Trin); Judy Mist (II PHE); Patricia Montgomery (III UC); Harris Oakes (IV Meds); Des O'Rorke (III Law); Sylvit Pegis (IV SMC).
Mary Percival (IV Trin); Marilyn Powell (IV UC); Monica Scott (IV UC); Dave Scroggie (III Trin); Mike Sherman (IV UC); Jeanne Shkimba (II Meds); Angela Smart (IV Trin); Mari Snyder (IV Trin); Jim Thompson (III UC); Norm Williams (III UC).

Lessons In
German & French
Private Language School
O. W. BECK
1598 BATHURST ST.
(near St. Clair) RU. 7-4756

There are a few tickets left for the BLUE & WHITE DANCE on SAT.

here and now

MONDAY to THURSDAY — UC's JCR will remain open evenings 7-10 p.m.

TODAY

12 p.m. — VCF is holding the second in their series of group discussions with Dr. Nelles Silverthorne speaking in room 53, School of Nursing.

1 p.m. — "The Practical Implication of the Christian Faith" is the subject of Rev. John Robson's talk in the series "The Christian Faith Today", sponsored by the Engineering VCF in Room 2065, Wailberg Bldg. — VCF Bible studies are planned in room 111, UC, and room 21, Vic.

1:10 p.m. — The faculty members' study group sponsored by the SCM will meet in the Chaplain's Office, Hart House.

3 - 5:30 p.m. — Editor Sandra Whittall will be in the basement of the SAC building to receive anyone who is interested in working for Torontonensis. She will also be there Thursday and Friday afternoons at the same time.

4 p.m. — Rev. John Morris will speak at the second discussion under the sponsorship of the VCF in Victoria College on the subject "Christianity — Intellectual Suicide" in the Music Rm., Wymilwood.

4:10 p.m. — Miss Nancy Holman will lead an SCM study group on "New Testament Christianity" in Cody House, Whitney Hall.

5:10 p.m. — The "Christmas Belongs to Christ" campaign will meet at Loretto College, 70 St. Mary Street.

5:30 p.m. — SCM will meet for supper and Bible study afterwards on "God's People and World" at the Coach House, 110 St. George St. Bible study will be led by Rev. Alan McLachlin.

8 p.m. — Vio French Club will hold its first meeting in the Music Room at Wymilwood. The meeting will consist of first and second-year representative elections, a skit, games with prizes, a sing-song, and refreshments.

8:15 p.m. — Le Cercle français de University College présente "Voyage en Zigzag", discours par Mlle. Jacquemin, une scène du Bourgeois Gentilhomme chansons, rafraichissements. Women's Union Theatre.

THURSDAY

12-1 p.m. and 1-2 p.m. — A recording of Dylan Thomas's "Under Milk Wood" will be played in the Hart House Record Room.

4 p.m. — The UC Model Parliament will consider the question: "Resolved the Cultural Level of this College is Higher than Ever." Guest speaker will be Dean Macdonald; the speaker of the House will be Hon. John Carrol, in the UC JCR.

4:10 p.m. — Rev. John Morris will lead a SCM study group and discussion in the Group Discussion Series sponsored by the VCF in Victoria College. The subject of the meeting will be "Christianity — Intellectual Suicide", in the Music Room, Wymilwood.

4:10 p.m. — Rev. Alan McLachlin will lead a SCM study group on "Tillich's Dynamics of Faith" in Room 14, Victoria College.

8 p.m. — Prof. G. M. Clark, Department of Zoology, will speak at a meeting of the Biology Club in the Copper Room, Wymilwood. Dr. Clark will discuss "Radiation Biology".

— There will be square and round dancing at the Graduate Students' Union, 44 Hoskin Ave.

8:30 p.m. — Prof. H. Olinick will speak to the Medical Music Club on "Musical Archaeology".

in the Toronto General Hospital Students' Lounge.

FRIDAY

4:10 p.m. — Dr. W. A. Ritchie, Archeologist for the New York State Museum will speak on "Iroquois Origins and Development" in the Museum Theatre, Royal Ontario Museum.

SUNDAY

8 p.m. — St. Michael's College Music Guild will present the "Tropitones" and a Barbershop Quartet in a concert in Brennan Hall, SMC.

SCONA

Two University of Toronto students have been chosen to attend the Student Conference on National Affairs to be held in December at Texas A and M University.

Ken Wyman (IV UC) and Peter Dembski (III SMC) were selected by a committee equally composed of faculty members and students. Alternate delegates are Rich Wilson and Art Seace, both students in their senior year at Trinity College.

Keynote topic will be "The United States: Problems of World Leadership".

New From Italy!
The 'Sportiva'
A Masculine Shoe . . .
For Campus Wear!
A rugged, casual, masculine in styling, comfortable for wear, anywhere. Exceptionally smooth leather uppers and lining, glove soft in texture. Composition ripple soles flex with every movement, you'll discover new walking pleasure. Burnished brown tone. Sizes 7 to 11.

Pair 18.95

PHONE AND MAIL
ORDERS FILLED
UN 1-8111
Simpson's
The Store For Men
Street Floor

There's Something Special
about du MAURIER

The Exclusive "Millecc" Filter Tip, the most efficient filter yet developed, lets you draw free and easy, for full smoking satisfaction. du MAURIER combines the finest Virginia tobaccos to give you perfect mildness and smoothness. Once you smoke du MAURIER you'll make the distinctive red and silver package your favorite — always.

du MAURIER
A Really Milder High Grade Virginia Cigarette
with the EXCLUSIVE "Millecc" FILTER TIP

BLUE &amp; WHITE SOCIETY

Presents

THE ANNUAL

HOMECOMING
SHOW

VARSITY STADIUM

8:15 p.m.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 30

Featuring . . .

• Guest Stars:

Toby Robins, and Priscilla Wright

• Spectaculars:

65 Girl "T-Torch" - 16 Girl "Kickline"

• Bands:

Dixieland Band - University of Toronto Band

• Top Graduate and Undergraduate Acts• Folk Singing and
Dancing Acts• Finals for "Miss Varsity
Queen" Contest

Produced by J. VASOFF

Choreography by DIANA EDE

ADMISSION: 50c with ATL card at the SAC,
Engineering Stores, U.C., Victoria College,
Trinity College, and St. Michael's College.

GENERAL ADMISSION — $1.00

comment

verily, verily

In these troubled times one of our most crying needs is unity within the Christian church.

And yet constantly we are disturbed by indications of conflict between the various denominations.

We are happy to report then that such conflicts seem to be coming to an end. The sign of this is a poster issued this year on behalf of the Christian Community on campus.

On this poster there appear together, Presbyterians and Catholics, High Anglicans and Low Baptists. All shades of Christian feeling are represented from the intellectual agnostics of the Student Christian Movement to the fundamental fervor of the Varsity Christian Fellowship.

We are sincerely happy to see this. We are not anxious that all Christian denominations should become one. Their various approaches to Christ are all valuable.

But in the interests of a sustained and consistent Christian attack on the problems of our time, we pray that the paper and ink of this poster may be converted into the body and blood of the Christian church.

THE VARSITY

FOUNDED 1880

Published by
The Students' Administrative Council
of the University of Toronto
Toronto 5, Canada

Member Canadian University Press
Editorial and News Office
Basement, SAC Building — WA. 3-8742, WA. 3-8113
Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221

The opinions expressed in this paper are those of the editor.

Editor-in-Chief Sam Aizenstat
Executive Editor Mark Nichols
Managing Editors Harvey Shepherd, Susie Breslin
News Editor Ed Roberts
Features Editor David Lewis Stein
Sports Editor Dave Griner
AM&D Editor Elmo Ciprietti
Photography Editor Andy Stabins
CUP Editor Alan Walker
Publicity Editor Kay McCook
Associate News Editors Terry Bourke, Jayne Nesbitt

Skule got their cannon, we got busy, helped by . . . Maryanne Kelso (the hers half of ours), Fred Host, Melvin Pelt, Tom Shannon (copyrunner), John Phillips, Frank Collins, Peter Brawley, Dorothy Mikos, Mike Chykaliuk, Gene Glisky (by special permission), Terry Shaw, Mike Sherman and small friend.
Photographer on duty: Hans Meyn.

"Suffer yourselves to be blamed, imprisoned, condemned; suffer yourselves to be hanged; but publish your opinions; it is not a right, it is a duty."

by

Melvin
Pelt

Heinrich At Home

Who needs a museum? Who goes there and why? What is a museum used for?

To some people a museum is a drafty building filled with historical curiosities. To some, it is a place to lose their children in on a Sunday afternoon. To some students in the Art College and the Anthropology and Art and Archeology courses, it is a storehouse of material necessary for their studies. And for some people it is a place in which to take refuge when the rains come to University Avenue.

For Theodore Allen Heinrich a museum is, in its highest function, an educational centre. Its purpose is to "collect, save, study, exhibit, and publish all manner of things relating to man and the history of his world."

It should also be a place of enjoyment. It should be a place where the mind and the aesthetic senses are stimulated.

Since accepting the position of Director of The Royal Ontario Museum in 1955, Dr. Heinrich has initiated several reforms designed to make the museum a truly "public museum" and clear away the misconceptions that many people had concerning the awesome old building on Queen's Park.

Prior to Dr. Heinrich, there were three separate Royal Ontario Museums, each having its own board of directors and full time staff. The museum of "Zoology and Paleontology", the museum of "Art and Archeology" and the museum of "Geology" all shared the same building but little else. Each proceeded on their own way with their own program. It was complex and disorganized and confusing to the public and students alike.

Dr. Heinrich's first step was to unify all these conflicting interests into one cohesive unit. In 1955 when he was appointed "director" the unification was adopted formally as museum policy, but the actual job of unification still remained to be accomplished.

Although most museum personnel admit that unification had to take place, some feel that Dr. Heinrich was not the man to bring this policy about. They feel that he was perhaps an outsider who did not really understand the problems of the museum.

One member of the museum staff does not agree at all with Dr. Heinrich's unification policies.

He said, "The philosophies of 'art and archeology' and 'natural sciences division' do not mix. A split, and a return to something approximating the old system is inevitable. The British Museum had always kept these areas divided."

In addition to uniting the different sections of the museum, Dr. Heinrich recently secured higher grants from the Provincial Government and the Board of Governors

MUSEUM OF

When Doctor Theodor Heinrich came to the Royal Ontario Museum in 1955, he brought a new concept of the purpose of a museum with him.

In the last four years he has effected many changes which have completely altered the public image of the venerable old ROM.

It is still too early to know if these changes will affect the museum.

Already Dr. Heinrich has been subjected to extravagant praise and severe criticism.

But Doctor Heinrich, from his position as director of The Royal Ontario Museum is continuing to implement a bold policy of the purpose of a museum.

gentlemen of the university which enabled him to raise many of his staff. The new salary scale for the ROM can compete with museums in other countries and in the United States for staff.

One of Dr. Heinrich's most successful innovations "information service." Opened in 1956 the information service is the museum's "public relations" office. It all publicity and publishes regular press releases to make the public more aware of the museum.

Mr. Duncan Cameron, a former veteran on the Toronto Telegram, heads the information service. He had been giving a series of highly successful talks on the CBC's morning program.

Perhaps the most important concrete expression of Heinrich's policy are the "special exhibits." He has designed to augment the regular permanent collection with the public, when they come for a special exhibit will linger long enough to view the other exhibits in the museum.

In 1957 the museum sponsored the "Silver Jubilee" last year they held the highly successful "Mr. The Mask Exhibit" attracted world wide attention. The Museum is currently presenting a show patterned after the ROM's Mask Exhibit.

This year Dr. Heinrich and his staff have new shows: Wolfe and Montcalm, Indian Pictures, Preview: 18th Century English Galleries and more.

In addition to his more sweeping efforts to public in the museum, Dr. Heinrich has also made small improvements into "opening nights" that create goodwill for his institution. Refreshments and mildly alcoholic nature are now served by waiters. There is even a dance band for the club patrons of the arts. But "opening nights" are not only.

But Dr. Heinrich feels that a true museum is more than a recreational facility. He feels that all academic levels should be encouraged to visit the museum.

The museum is always open to public school children. Special tours and classes are organized to visit the museum.

Dr. Heinrich feels that except for student in geology and art and archeology, the university should not making enough use of the museum.

"They're no farther away from us than the football stadium," he said, "and we provide a joy than an athletic contest. They are missing it if they pass through their entire academic life without getting to know us."

The museum has a well kept library for its exhibits. It has the best exhibit of Chinese history outside of the orient. The museum has a mineralogy department, although primarily for geological students, has displays that have to all students if they would regularly inspect.

Dr. A. D. Tushingham, the director of the Archeology division, said "University departments sufficiently encourage their students to come to the museum should come here often in order to receive a knowledge of the past and its effect on the present."

Inevitably, the policies as vigorous as these have provoked criticism and even some disapproval from the staff. Some older department heads feel that the museum has not paid sufficient attention to them. They feel he does not spend sufficient time on them and does not give proper consideration to their needs.

His exhibits, although intriguing to the public, occasionally lacked what some museum staff felt necessary scholarly depth. Dr. Heinrich once exhibited of "Japanese wrestling" as part of an exhibit.

The serving of cocktails and the playing of a band at an "opening night" is not what some feel is the proper accompaniment to the opening of a new Ontario Museum exhibit. They feel that Dr. Heinrich is turning an institution of learning and research into a "snoopy gentlemen's club."

But Dr. Theodore Allen Heinrich is not making concessions to the more traditional conception of a museum. He is planning an exhibit of Industrial Revolution, Business, lectures on English Pottery and this spring he hopes to sponsor an International Year of Posters.

"The Royal Ontario Museum," Dr. Heinrich is open to everybody, students and the general public. We have exhibits to interest all. Everyone

metaphysics and reverie

The Lady Writes Poetry

"In Star and Stalk" is a sixteen-page collection of new poems by Dorothy Roberts. It appears as an attractive Emblem Book, which is processed rather than printed, with a cover design by Laurence Hyde. It is available from Jay Macpherson, Victoria College, at fifty cents.

Miss Roberts writes poetry with great control and apparent precision. However, for one reason or another, I read these fourteen poems through without understanding a word of them. On a second reading I discovered why. The collection is in the nature of a sustained reverie, with many indirect statements of theme.

But this is not a failing, because Miss Roberts' poetical world is one in which concrete imagery and wild rhetoric would be unable to locate their feminine counterparts. Succinctly, Miss Roberts seems to be facing two problems in "In Star and Stalk": the problems of motherhood and identity.

The first of these is illustrated in "Our Shells." In six half-rhymed tercets, the speaker describes her arms as her child's only world. Consequently she places the child beneath the ancient light of Arcturus because:

Only the constellations house with fables
Like brilliant parables upon church windows,
Making of night a high roof for the spirit.

Thus the mother gives the child a second, symbolic birth, in which the symbols of permanence and impermanence are impressed upon his brow.

An extension of this problem is the problem of identity, which the child and the mother face separately. Enemies of the self are elemental indifference and the hard fire of man, but these are at the periphery of Miss Roberts' world. The many floral and mineral images, which could be shuffled from poem to poem without apparent harm, obscure these enemies. With an apparently pantheistic extension of sensibility, Miss Roberts disposes of the problem: "I house my uncertain self in the star and stalk."

Many of the poems in this collection would speak more unequivocally if definitely-defined images had been employed as points of embarkation. "The Apple" is less ambitious but more satisfying because the reader finishes with an image as tangible as the sensation of the poem.

"Bus Into Night" and the last section of "The Setting" are successful largely because of a metaphysical analysis of the relation between image and theme. The concluding poem in the book, "The Companions", is even satisfying in a Rilkean way, in that it identifies poem, image and subject, and is equally masterful in economy and rhyme:

I saw seventeen gravestones
Form a small heaven
In a lonely place on a hill
Away from life altogether.

In the final stanza, the stones are discovered to have tongues, and the poet leans yet closer to catch the sound of a feeling.

John Robert Colombo

COMEDICAL

ghost of its former self

Witches Of Salem

Last night, CBC-TV saw fit to offer us a synopsis of a well constructed, tightly knit play by a major American dramatist, Arthur Miller.

Miller's play, The Crucible was first produced in 1953, and was the result of extensive research into the records of the Salem, Mass. "witch hunt" of 1692, which reached epidemic proportions before it spent itself; at the time, Salem was little more than a village, yet hundreds of people were accused of witchcraft by their hysterical neighbours.

The people of Salem were hard-working and dedicated, but parochial and superstitious in their outlook; their lives were highly organized under a theocracy which allowed no outlet for human aggressions and imperfections. When some hysterical young girls accused some of the town "undesirables" of witchery in order to escape punishment for their own youthful indiscretion, the vindictive and unstable elements of the population swiftly seized this opportunity to raise disputes with their neighbours to the arena of morality, and to assuage their own guilt feeling by accusing others of "sending familiar spirits into them".

Intoxicated by the power that they find themselves wielding, the girls' accusations grow in viciousness and violence, and the play builds up with powerful momentum to the court scene, which is frightening in its portrayal of injustice. Here the lies, the hysteria, the malevolence reach their climax. Sheer injustice, administered by

"righteous" men who are doing "the work of God" screams at you and chills you.

This is a powerful and somewhat terrifying play that rings with truth. We are revolted by the actions of the townspeople, and that revulsion is enhanced the knowledge that, for all our modern-day sophistication, we are not very far removed from these vengeful and merciless people. As Miller points out, we are sure that there were not witches then, but there certainly are Communists (and Capitalists) now who are plotting our own overthrow.

What then, of last night's production? To begin with, the play had been cut to barely recognisable proportions—a scant 77 minutes—and what was left may be compared to a skeleton with a great many bones missing (having cut out so much, the producers thought it necessary to add material of their own). The play suffers badly from this drastic editing since it depends on a sequence of closely-knit events and an understanding of the personalities of the main characters to build up to its powerful climax. The acting throughout the play was of a high quality. Dianna Maddox gave a very sensitive performance as Elizabeth Proctor, a woman whose personal convictions are so rigid that she cannot tell a lie. Abigail, the leader of the girls, was excellently played by Ann Wedgeworth. John Proctor, played by Leslie Nielsen, and Rev. Hale, played by Douglas Rain, are at the end of the play the only ones who understand the issues involved. Both men interpret their roles with understanding and with an admirable command of technique. Other good acting in the play was by John Drainie as Rev. Parris, Salem's paranoid pastor, and by Douglas Campbell as Deputy Governor Danforth, chief judge at the trials.

It was a good 77 minutes but there was little resemblance to the original.

Dorothy McKos

The giant of European jazz, Chris Barber, will appear with his band at Eaton Auditorium tonight at 8.30 p.m. This English band has swept the box-offices of Europe with its basically New Orleans, yet distinctively Barber sound. Its popularity registered an amazing increase in 1959 with a two-million copy hit, "Petite Fleur" and its engagement for the film "Look Back in Anger."

geza gives genteel mozart

Susskind's Ravel Rousing

Last night at Massey Hall, the T.S.O. was joined by pianist Geza Anda. The programme consisted of only four works—Beethoven's Leonora Overture No. 3, Mozart's Piano Concerto No. 3, K. 453, Ravel's Concerto for Left Hand, and the Nobilissima Visione of Paul Hindemith.

The Beethoven, by comparison a neutral work on the program, was used as the 'opener'. That is, it was used to loosen up the musicians and the audience. It was natural, then that it should not have been what one could call great art. It was neatly played, however, and avoided any gross faults—even the histrionic off-stage trumpet was unremarkable.

Mozart's Concerto K. 453 is one of the most familiar to that composer in the repertoire. One might reasonably have expected a better-than-average performance of it, since Geza Anda is known for his Mozart. But, unfortunately, Mr. Susskind, our beloved conductor, shows little sympathy, and less comprehension for the music of the Rococo. The opening measures of the first movement were slurred by the strings (and the Toronto strings are normally our strongest point), and bungled by the woodwinds. Susskind seemed to be trying to increase the tempo all through the movement, with the result that the whole thing sounded both unsteady and strained.

An excellent practice was observed; the orchestra's personnel was drastically cut. The purpose of such a move, however, is to enable the players to play freely, and to top capacity. Mr. Susskind held back. He conducted as if he were afraid of the music, and had decided that he would use his fright to make the concerto sound discreet and genteel. Anda's lucid performance of his part of the piece served only to point up Susskind's confusion. At one point in the second movement, Mr. Anda threatened to leave the ground—to see the piece as music. Fortunately, the conductor nipped such a plan in the bud. The pianist's gorgeous tone, and his real insight were to no avail. Only in the last movement was the orchestra at all crisp or spirited. And that was too late.

Both the orchestra and the conductor came alive for the Ravel. The Concerto for Left Hand was treated by soloist and ensemble, not as a novelty, but as the really important and lyrical music it is. Geza Anda proved himself a very real virtuoso, technically extraordinarily well-equipped, and sensitive to the nth degree. His tone was ringing and pure. Here Mr. Susskind's abilities showed well.

His interpretation of the orchestral part was assured.

The last work on the program was Hindemith's Nobilissima Visione, heard for the first time at the T.S.O. last night. Hindemith's is a powerful combination of musical scholarship and sensibility. He is capable of the orchestral effects of Strauss, and of the polyphony of Bach and the Renaissance masters to whom he is so dedicated. His broad thematic sweep and modal harmonies got sympathetic treatment at Susskind's hands.

The performance was inspired; but the subscribers to the T.S.O. recognized that Hindemith used more than the tonic triad of C, and accordingly turned a cold shoulder on what was probably the highest point in an evening whose heights were great. Their unbelievable rudeness at the end of the concert points to their eternal discedit.

The Mickitties '60 production, "Short Engagement", written by Varsity staffer Philip Nicholas, with songs by Mike Lococo, promises to be an exciting, unusual college show. Under the direction of Dawn Egan, the musical will play Hart House the first week of January. Auditions for singers, dancers and actors continue today, 5-6 p.m. and 7:30 to 9 p.m. in Clover Hill.

november

Wolfe and Montcalm: The struggle for Canada. Exhibition from Sigmund Samuel collection to commemorate the fall of Quebec. Canadiana Gallery, 14 Queen's Park Crescent West.

November 3-9: Indian Pictographs: Water colours by Selwyn Dewdney Lower Rotunda.

November 10: Preview—18th Century English Galleries and Period Room. Silver, glass and ceramics of 18th century. By invitation only. 5:00 p.m.

November 11: 18th Century English Galleries and Period Room will be opened to the public.

November 19: Preview—Atoms at Your Service. The exhibit will cover the geological occurrence uranium in Canada, its refining and uses with particular emphasis on nuclear power. By invitation only.

November 20: The atoms at your service exhibit will be open to the public.

November 24: Industrial design: Art or Business? A lecture by Mr. Philip Rosenthal of the Bavarian Porcelain Works. 8:15 p.m. Museum Theatre, Admission free.

at ROM

art

Art Gallery of Toronto: Thirtieth annual exhibition and sales of contemporary Canadian Art. Paintings, drawings and sculptures being sold for $25 and up. Many young Canadian artists are being shown along with the more established. Oct. 22 to Nov. 8.

Laing Galleries: 194 Bloor St. W. Paintings by contemporary French artists, including the Canadian Riopelle.

Roberts Gallery: 759 Yonge St. Grant MacDonald is being featured to Nov. 3. See article below.

Isaac's Gallery: 736 Bay St. Exhibition of sculpture, drawings and woodblock prints by Anne Kahane.

Gallery Moos: Avenue Rd. and Davenport. Jerome to Nov. 7.

Central Public Library: Quebec photographs by Crouton; through October.

Upstairs Gallery: Shizueye Takashima closes today. Batkins from Mexico will be exhibited until Nov. 7.

Canadiana Gallery: 14 Queen's Park Cres. Wolfe and Montcalm exhibit; the struggle for Canada; from Oct. 26.

calendar

Le Club Français de Victoria College

vous invité à sa première réunion.

Un sketch, des jeux avec des prix, des chansons et des rafraichissements.

Mercredi le 28 octobre à 8 heures du soir,

dans la salle de musique à Wymilwood.

UNIVERSITY HARRIER RACE

HIGH PARK COURSE — Thursday Oct. 29 — 3.30 p.m.

ENTRIES CLOSE TODAY 5.00 p.m. AT INTRAMURAL OFFICE

SENIOR INTERCOLLEGIATE HOCKEY

The Varsity Blues Hockey Team will start practicing Friday, October 30th, at 5.30 p.m. at Varsity Arena. Any new players interested in trying out for the team please contact Jack Kennedy, coach, Hart House Athletic Office.

HOCKEY OFFICIALS WANTED

Intramural Hockey Season Opens November 19.

Applications for offices now being taken at INTRAMURAL OFFICE HART HOUSE. Good remuneration.

INTRAMURAL HOCKEY PRACTICES—WEEK OF NOV. 2nd

Men. Nov. 2 a.m. — 7.00 Meds, 8.00 UC, 9.00 Forestry, 11.00 Trin, p.m.—12.30 Dent; 1.30 Dent; 3.00 St. M.; 7.30 Pharm

Tues. Nov. 3 a.m. — 7.00 Knox; 8.00 UC; p.m. 1.00 St. M.; 2.00 Trin; 3.00 St. M.; 4.00 Med

Wed. Nov. 4 a.m. — 7.00 Med; 8.00 SPS; 9.00 Vic; 10.00 Vic; p.m. 12.30 Dent; 1.30 SPS; 3.00 Pharm; 4.00 Law

Thur. Nov. 5 a.m. — 7.00 Med; 8.00 SPS; p.m.—12.30 SPS; 1.30 St. M.; 3.40 Vic; 4.00 Emman.

Fri. Nov. 6 a.m. — 7.00 Knox; 8.00 SPS; 10.00 Trin; 11.00 Arch; p.m. 12.30 Dent; 1.30 SPS; 3.00 U; 4.30 Forestry

GAMES TODAY

FOOTBALL
East 4.00 Vic vs U.C.      W. nrl", Kclner, McCulloch

SOCCER
North 12.30 Jr. SPS vs Vic      Hensen
Nor h 4.15 M. u. A vs Trin A      Businski
South 4.15 Knox vs Arch      A. L.

LACROSSE
1.00 SPS. V vs St. M. B      Hill, Spanetz
5.00 Trin vs SPS. III      Naylor, Haskill
6.00 Dent vs SPS. VI      Naylor, Haskill
7.00 Med. I Yr. vs Law      Naylor, Haskill

VOLLEYBALL
1.00 St. M. I vs SPS. A      Dralwin
4.00 Pre-Med. I C vs U.C. Frat Nots      Golden, n
5.00 SPS. Krimlins vs U.C. McCaul      Goldman
6.00 Dent. IV Yr. vs Trin.      Perkins
7.00 U.C. vs Pharm.      Perkins
(Major) 8.00 St. M. vs Knox      Perkins

GAMES THURSDAY

FOOTBALL
East 4.00 Trin. vs Sr. SPS      Gold n, Starkman
West 4.00 Jr. SPS vs St. M.      Chapman, Bar. t. t. Lipson

SOCCER
North 12.30 Trin. B vs SPS. III      Bonfield
South 4.15 Wye. vs Emman.      Buger-ki

LACROSSE
1.00 St. M. A vs SPS. I      Spanetz, Roth
5.00 U.C. I vs Vic. I      Hodgkins n, Chubb

VOLLEYBALL
1.00 St. M. V vs Pre-Med. I A      Coohill
4.00 St. M. VI vs UC Sigma Alphas Goldman
6.30 U.C. Beta Sigs vs Med. IV Yr A      Sigal
7.30 SPS. B vs Dent. II Yr.      Sigal
8.30 U.C. Hutton vs U.C. Jeanneret Sigal

UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICE

FREE CHEST X-RAYS!

FOR STAFF AND VOLUNTEERS

Staff members and students in non-compulsory groups who were not able to attend the survey last Thursday may still get a chest X-Ray by going to the Falconer Hall Coach House, rear of 84 Queen's Park, any time between 9.00 a.m. and 12.00 noon, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday of this week.

PROTECT YOURSELF : : : PROTECT OTHERS

Red Cross Clinic Dates for Donors

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 28 — ST. MICHAEL'S

Brennan Hall — 9.30-11.30 1-4 p.m.

ENGINEERING & GRADUATE STUDIES

Huron & College (Old Dental Bldg) 10-1.30 2.45-4.30 p.m.

THURSDAY, OCT. 29 — ENG. & GRADUATE STUDIES

Huron & College (Old Dental Bldg) 10-1.30 2.45-4.30 p.m.

FRIDAY, OCT. 30—ENG., GRAD. STUD. & FORESTRY

Huron & College — 10.30-1.30 2.45-4 p.m.

HURRY! HURRY! HURRY!

Montreal Trip Reservation

(ON A FIRST COME BASIS ONLY)

If you are prepared to adhere to the conditions previously advertised, please complete the following details and send this reservation to the S.A.C. office immediately so that a ticket can be reserved for you — we shall be limiting our responsibility this year to 1600 students (800 on each going train).

ALL TICKETS MUST BE COLLECTED BY THURSDAY, NOV. 5th, 1959.

Name _____

Address _____

Telephone _____

I wish to reserve a ticket for the _____ afternoon train _____ night train and accept the conditions of sale. (Signed) _____

NO TICKETS WILL BE ISSUED ON THE DAY OF TRAVEL — TICKETS WILL NOT BE ON SALE AT THE STATION OR ON THE TRAIN

TICKETS WILL BE AVAILABLE TOMORROW FOR THOSE WHO HAVE MADE THEIR RESERVATIONS

Rinkies Romp On Rams With Powerful Attack

By DAVID INGRAM

On a muddy football field yesterday afternoon at Varsity Stadium, Toronto Baby Blues beat the improved Ryerson Rams 13-1 in a hard-fought battle.

The game was not as exciting as other games have been, probably because of the wet field and the feeling that Toronto was the far superior team.

Baby Blues broke into an early 6-0 lead when Mike King swept around the end for seven yards and a touchdown. The convert was missed.

In the second quarter Toronto scored again when Harry Hall on a keeper play went over for a touchdown Mike Wright made the score 13-0 with his convert.

Ryerson scored their only point of the contest in the second half when Jamie Knowles, after catching Mill Mylly's kick, was tackled in the end zone. During the entire game both teams were a little edgy, as shown by rough play and the odd fist thrown. This finally broke into the open on the last play of the game when there was a small ramble.

Probably one of the reasons that Ryerson did better this time was that John Sopinka was experimenting with players and plays for the big game against Western, Friday Oct. 30 at London.

Linemen John Mackay and Bruce Smith played quite well for Ryerson as did wingback Nick Villani who gained a large portion of Ram's ground yardage.

The play of the afternoon occurred when Ryerson's centre after snapping the ball charged forward, but to quarterback Brailly dismay the mucky ball stuck to the former's "derriere". Amazed Brailly pounced on the ball for a two yard gain.

Double Soccer Victory Blues Shutout McMaster

In a Senior Intercollegiate Soccer game played yesterday on the back campus, Varsity Blues beat McMaster Marauders by a score of 2-0.

Blues were in control of the game throughout, but were unable to play at top speed since they felt the strain of playing six games in the last two weeks.

Captain Roy Green returned to the line up, but Eddy Csongradi missed the game due to a knee injury. Although Varsity had the majority of the play they had trouble putting the ball in the net, with Mike Mañon and Roger Peretz failing to cash in on good scoring opportunities.

The goal which put Varsity into the lead came as a surprise to most of the players on both teams. Blues' Bobby Morris lifted a high centre into the McMaster goalmouth and the ball somehow eluded reliable Marauder keeper Vern Ashton to end up in the back of the net.

Seconds before the half-time whistle, Blues added to their lead when Mahon headed home a cross from Green who had moved to his wrong side of the field and confused the McMaster defense. The second half proved to be just as dull as the first with Marauders trying hard but Varsity content to protect their lead to the end of the game.

In the Intermediate game, Baby Blues came up with four goals in the first half and added two more in the second to defeat the McMaster Intermediate by a score of 6-0. Varsity scorers were Selwyn Ryan and Gabor Puski with two each; Bev Walker and Lou McLean getting singletons.

The Scoreboard

FOOTBALL
Senior
	P	W	L	T	F	A	P
Western	4	4	0	0	59-21	8
Toronto	4	3	1	0	59-23	6
Queen's	4	1	3	0	30-46	2
McGill	4	0	4	0	23-81	0
Future Games
Sat., Oct. 31—Western at Toronto; McGill at Queen's.
Western Intercollegiate
	P	W	L	T	F	A	P
U.B.C.	3	3	0	0	105-38	12*
U of Alta.	5	3	2	0	138-67	6
U of Sask.	4	0	4	0	16-154	0
*(All B.C. games are 4 points)
SOCCER
TORONTO - - 2; McMaster - - 0

UNIVERSITY BLAZERS

Custom Made

Especially Priced for Students

$27.50

Fine Flannel Worsted Trousers

$16.50

Business Hours: 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.
Monday through Saturday

Suits Made to Measure
Latest Styles and Design

PARNES Clothing Co.

706 QUEEN STREET WEST
EM. 6-2025

Sample at S.A.C. Office

How Do We Choose A Mate?

Theories about why people fall in love, says a noted professor, lack solid evidence! So he began an 8-year study to prove his own startling theory. In November Reader's Digest he offers a new, scientific answer to that age-old question: "What does he see in her?" (or vice versa!) Get your November Reader's Digest today: 35 articles of lasting interest.

Avenue Park Barbershop

STUDENT PRICES

152A BLOOR WEST
(just east of Avenue Rd.)

Montreal Weekend

Hotel reservations at the SHERATON MOUNT ROYAL

phone LIONEL COLMAN WA. 2-2514

Request your Sheraton student identification card necessary for student rates.

SPORTS SCHEDULES—WEEK OF NOV. 2nd

FOOTBALL—Mon. Nov. 2

East 3.30 U.C. vs Sr. SPS Golden, Chykaluk, McCulloch

Tues. Nov. 3 East 3.20 Vic vs Trin Chapman, Posen, Lipson

Wed. Nov. 4 East 3.30 St. M. vs Pharm Kelner, Flanagan, I. Abella

Thur. Nov. 5 East 5.15 Med vs Jr. SPS Stokes, Starkman, Mandel

Fri. Nov. 6 East 3.30 Dent vs Forestry Barrett, Godley, Kolodzie

SOCCER—Mon. Nov. 2

North 12.30 Trin vs Sr. SPS Jensen Bonfield Ryan

South 12.30 Pharm vs Med. B

North 4.00 Jr. SPS vs Med. B

Tues. Nov. 3 North 12.30 St. M. B vs Trin. B Hansen Selzer

South 4.30 Knox vs Emman

North 4.00 St. M. A vs Med. A Bugarski

Thur. Nov. 5 North 12.30 Forestry vs Arch Hilgenberg Bugarski

South 4.00 Pharm vs Wye Wye

North 4.00 Knox vs Law Avis

Fri. Nov. 6 North 12.30 U.C. vs Jr. SPS Bugarski

North 4.00 Vic vs Med. B Avis

NOTE EARLIER P.M. STARTING TIMES FOR FOOTBALL AND SOCCER

LACROSSE—Mon. Nov. 2

1.00 Vic. I vs SPS. I Naylor, Hill

Tues. Nov. 3 1.00 St. M. A vs U.C. I Haskill, DePetrillo

5.20 Trin vs Med. I Yr Derrett, Grist

6.00 SPS. VI vs SPS. II Derrett, Grist

7.00 Law vs SPS. HI Derrett, Grist

Wed. Nov. 4 1.00 Vic. II vs SPS. V Spanetz, Roth

6.30 U.C. II vs Dent Misener, Barrett

7.30 II Pre-Med vs Pharm Misener, Barrett

Thur. Nov. 5 1.00 Vic. I vs St. M. A Spanetz, Roth

7.50 SPS. IV vs Knox Naylor, Haskill

Fri. Nov. 6 1.00 St. M. B vs I Pre-Med Hodgkinson, Haskill

VOLLEYBALL—Mon. Nov. 2

1.00 SPS. O vs Pre-Med I A Pomerant

4.00 Vic M.F. H's vs Pre-Med I B Goldman

Major 5.00 SPS. III vs Sr. SPS Drewnig Drewnig

6.00 Med. IV Yr B vs St. M. III

Tues. Nov. 3 1.00 For. B vs Arch Strin

6.30 Dent. II Yr vs Med. IV Yr A Sigal

7.30 Med I Yr vs U.C. Wallace Sigal

8.30 Pharm. B vs Wye. B

Wed. Nov. 4 1.00 U.C. Beta Sigs vs SPS. B Dralwin

5.00 SPS. A vs Med. II Yr Goldman

6.00 Pre-Med II Yr vs Dent. III Yr Goldman

7.00 Emman vs Pharm. A Perkins

8.00 Pharm vs St. M. Perkins

Thur. Nov. 5 1.00 Pre-Med I A vs Trin Steln

4.00 UC Frat Nots vs St. M. VII Dralwin

6.30 Med. IV Yr B vs SPS. D Dugan

7.00 SPS. J vs Vic. Cavin Dugan

8.50 U.C. McCaul vs U.C. Wallace Dugan

Fri. Nov. 6 1.00 St. M. VI vs SPS. H Pomerant

4.00 St. M. II vs St. M. III Coohill

5.00 SPS. C vs Dent. I Yr Coohill

REFEREE Jack Amos asks an unidentified wrestler (bottom) whether he's had enough. Intercollegiate champion Bill Polito (top) administers hold in this Hart House action.

Jack Amos Lonesome Blues Short Grapplers

By MIKE CHYKALIUK

This week the badly depleted ranks of the Senior Intercollegiate wrestling team begin training for the defense of the Porter Trophy emblem of Intercollegiate wrestling supremacy.

Because of graduation and scholastic difficulties, only two champions and a runner-up are back. Kenny Brown, sensational rookie finalist, along with champions Bill Polito and Andy Higgins are the only returnees.

Coach Jack Amos' two exceptionally fine teams of 1959, which won both Senior and Intermediate crowns, are all mere shadows of their former selves.

Rod Carron, 191 lb. Dominion champion and Pan-American finalist, is ineligible along with 160 lb. Intercollegiate finalist Roger Doner. All the heavy-weights have graduated along with most of the lighter weights. If Andy Higgins retires as he is contemplating, Coach Amos will be left with practically no team.

This season Varsity wrestle at Buffalo, Syracuse and Niagara Falls, before they set out for Kingston and the Intercollegiate wrestling finals on Feb. 26 and 27.

Army has its lonesome ends, Varsity has its lonesome coach.

Workouts are held daily between 5:00 and 6:00 p.m. Any potential Kinisks or Watsons are heartily welcomed.

Harriers

The highlight of this weekend's Varsity, Buffalo State harrier meet was the strong showing of hard running Jim Snider of Victoria College. Snider led three Buffalo State competitors to the finish line with a time of 25:20 for the five mile distance.

Other Varsity finishers were Jim Griffen (5), Mike Turk (6), Michael Berger (7), Dick Hamilton (8), and Hugh Gordon (10).

Officially the meet was won by Buffalo State 27-29. The victory came because under the American system five runners are used. This came in handy when two Buffalo runners lost their way due to insufficient marking of the course. If only four runners were entered (Canadian rules) Varsity won 18-19.

Jaun Roos, Toronto's best long distance runner did not compete.

... and in this corner

by sharon milgram

Seems as if I've been away from this little corner for months on end, but actually it has only been a few short weeks.

During that time, besides trying to keep from drowning in a wave of school work and unsuccessfully attempting to avoid that virus which seems to be floating around campus, I was able to garner a little data on Athletics. Here's what I discovered...

With softball in full swing, Vic, once again seems to be the team to beat. Losing the softball title last year, after having won it previously for five consecutive seasons, seems only to have spurred the Victorians on to greater efforts—that is, once they get on the field. Getting the girls to the field seems to be another story. Maybe Vic has gotten to the point where it wants to give the other teams a head start.

The team that seems to have the best chance at defeating Vic is last year's winning team, PHE I, which is leading League II with a 2-0 record.

Looking at the third league, I found myself in very familiar territory. That is the league which has two of the three new entrants, Dentistry and Pharmacy. I belong to the latter which is at the moment, sitting atop the league by virtue of its two impressive, 11-0 victories.

Dentistry, the other new entrant in our League, doesn't seem to be doing too well. The tooth pullers seem to be having a little trouble pulling a complete team together. This has resulted in their defaulting their first two starts. They scraped a team together for their third game and if they can get another few girls out of that beautiful new building of theirs, they just might surprise a few of the other teams.

Certainly not wanting to ignore the third new entrant, Nursing, which has located in League II and yet not knowing too much about their activities, I can only state that the Florence Nightingales of the ball diamond have yet to win a game.

But, at least they have lost their games on the field and not by the one thing which I feel mars any sport more than anything else—DEFAULT!

I realize that it is sometimes unavoidable when one of the smaller faculties with just enough girls for a team has to default a game (remember, I said sometime), but when one of the larger faculties, with enough girls for three teams, begins to default its games, I think it is a disgrace! Thus, the following message to all participants:

The games have been arranged, whenever possible for your team's convenience, mainly through the hard work of the presidents of the individual sports. So how about showing up, miss the lunch with your boyfriend, fear yourself away from the T.V., pardon me, I mean books, for an hour or so in the evening and come out to your team's games.

The other alternative is simple. Don't bother signing up for a team. Why replace a girl who just by her presence at the game, can at least assure her team a chance for victory, when your absence from the game will only guarantee the team a loss!

comment

by gene glisky

No one seems to have bothered taking stock or compiling statistics of just how many professional football players are graduates of Canadian Intercollegiate competition. One would imagine that particular attention to the numbers swelling pro ranks would be paid in the press releases of the Big Four, unless the number has been so negligible that no special attention is warranted it.

A short chat with Jack Kennedy of the Varsity coaching staff, brought to light a rather startling fact. From memory alone and from Blues' ranks only, Jack was quickly able to recall 32 names, Argos alone having claimed 20 players.

Therein within the last 10 years lies a lot of free football talent for the pros. I say free, because none of the Big Four Clubs have had to donate time, money (particularly money) to develop a costly farm system, but have handed to them a well trained bundle of football energy.

The value of College footballers has less than subtly been acknowledged. The pros did meet and establish a draft system, so that a player, willing or not, upon graduation has to sign a contract with the team that chose him, or give up the idea of play for pay.

Now it takes no stretch of the imagination to realize that no Canadian team can get anywhere unless they have a strong Canadian bench. Under the import rule you just can't buy enough big American names, particularly if these bodies have a tendency to skip town on a whim.

The Western pro clubs (WIFU) have long been getting the short end of the deal when it came to a choice of Canadian College players. Eastern jobs being what they are, the boys who were willing to play preferred to skip in this direction. How then does the WIFU manage to develop all their Canadian talent?

It is no secret that WIFU teams have developed a rather extensive farm system. Beginning at midget and juvenile ranks and proceeding to junior and intermediate, Western clubs have donated both money and their coaches to the development of players. It is obvious that the Canadian talent pouring into the Western league has more than redoubled the original investment.

But an interesting snarl is manifesting itself in the best laid plans. Intercollegiate football has come to the West. This in itself is good, but, Intercollegiate football is coming to the main football centres of the West, and there aren't that many. This means gate receipts, players and interest in the sponsored teams will wane, while the Big Four can make a bid for the unprotected College talent.

Now this is the point of the whole discourse. I think the WIFU clubs will take action in a manner I believe is necessary in Canadian football organization. Primarily, stop trying to follow the American system. Our sports are not aligned in the same manner, nor are our College football players reimbursed for their efforts as theirs are.

Drop the College draft completely. Let each pro club sign a player with potential while he is still in University or better still in high-school. Pay him for the X on the dotted line and give him a hand with his education. If he is to be utilized later on, and at the same time the coaching staff of the University is to turn out talent for the pros, let the pros pay for the privilege.

If the pro team does not wish to pay an athlete his due, then the least they can do is give him the privilege of playing ball after graduation, where he likes and for whom he likes.

At the moment, a handful of athletes provide thrills, entertainment and money in the athletic coffers for 14,000 students at this University. Their reward for a lot of hard work could be somewhat better.

Western Lead Varsity By Thirteen Top Team Effort Needed For Win

Varsity Blues will face the moment of truth this Saturday afternoon when they tangle with the Western Mustangs in a game that will almost certainly decide the 1959 Yates Cup winners.

The situation is this: As there is no playoff this year, should two teams be tied for the top spot, the total points in the games between those two teams will decide the winner.

Varsity and Western are the only two teams likely to be tied should Varsity win the game here this Saturday. So, not only must Varsity win the game in order to tie Western, they must beat the Horsies by at least 14 points to gain a berth in the East-West game at Varsity Stadium on Nov. 14.

Blues are thus faced with a dual responsibility. They must score quite a few points (four touchdowns would be nice), and at the same time, hold Western down to as little as possible.

To do this, they must defend the grind-it-out offense that the Mustangs use, so that they can get the ball for the length of time needed to score 20 points or better.

One of the most pressing problems is that Varsity's defensive backfield has not looked too sharp most of the time this season.

Much of the tackling has been of a clutch-and-grab variety, while the pass defence has been only adequate.

Proof of this is the passing average that Kent Plumley, the Queen's quarterback who throws much like Parry O'Brien, was allowed to compile last Saturday.

On the bright side, many of the large flock of injured will be available for Saturday's game, and the Blues cannot help but be better for them.

Steve Chisholm, one of the league's best halfbacks, has recovered from his neck ailment; Mike Muir's leg has healed; while guard Malcolm Bell, out since the McGill game, and tackle Mike Chykaliuk may be ready to go again.

Varsity Sailing Champs

By ROBIN BEAMISH

With only about a week left before the ice sets in, the University of Toronto sailing team drew their season to a close with the Intercollegiate finals last Sunday.

Six Colleges competed for the Colonel Grant Trophy in a light shifty breeze on Toronto Harbor.

Varsity won the first race of the day and held the lead throughout the day. The U of T team of Al Rae and Charles Grant were pre-sciently followed by Queen's who were in contention until the last race.

Unfortunately only eight of the 12 scheduled races could be run in the light breeze when the time limit ran out.

The final results saw Toronto at 53 points, Queen's 41, Assumption 34, Osgoode Hall 30, Waterloo 29, and RMC 26.

Grant emerged as individual champion, collecting three firsts and a second for 27 points. He was closely followed by teammate Rae who garnered 26 points.

The sailing team has several events on their schedule, including a meet in Chicago on Nov. 27 and 28 and a meet at RMC in the spring. The Varsity colours will once again fly at Darmouth where the team will defend the Phelps Trophy they won last year.

Toronto are Sailing Champions for the third consecutive year.

FOLK SINGERS

Small classes of private or group lessons in folk, classical or modern vocal coaching. Central — reasonable — by U. of T. graduate. Phone WA. 1-9577 (6-7 p.m. only)

CASTING TODAY!

SINGERS, DANCERS, ACTORS

U.C. KATY CRUEL

HOWARD FERGUSON HALL

1 - 4.30

A.V.R. AUDITIONS FOR "CHRISTOPHER JONES"

NOVEMBER 3, 4, 5

7.30-9.30 p.m. — BRENNAN HALL, SMC

NEEDED: Actors, Singers, Dancers

If additional information required, phone WA. 5-6092

P. & O.T.

DANCE

- FERGUSON HALL (UC Men's Residence)
- TOMORROW
- 50¢ PER PERSON
- The Myron de Quincy Quintette

Hart House

TODAY

12.15 p.m. Noon-Day Prayers — Chapel
1.00 p.m. 2nd Introductory Lecture in Squash — Music Room
Speaker: Derek Bouquet

1.20 p.m. NOON HOUR CONCERT — "The Blackbirds"
East Common Room

7.00 p.m. Table Tennis — Fencing Room
7.15 p.m. Revolver Club — Rifle Range
ART GALLERY — NEW SHOW "Claire Shoniker Exhibition"
PRINT ROOM — Silk-screen Prints by Sister Mary Corita
(Open to Women Wednesdays from 12 noon to 6 p.m.)

TOMORROW

8.00 a.m. Holy Communion — Chapel
12.15 p.m. - 1.00 p.m. and 1.15 p.m. - 2.00 p.m. — Library Record
"Under Milkwood" — Dylan Thomas, Record Room
(Bring your lunch!)

5.10 p.m. Amateur Radio Club — Code & Theory Class —
Debates Loft
Record Instruction — Record Room
Art Class — Art Gallery
8.00 p.m. Archery — Rifle Range

CLASSIFIED ADS.

FOR SALE—1958 M.G.A.
Convertible, Continental kit, spoke wheels, $1,850. Financing available.
Phone WA. 2-3293.

LOST

1 set of keys in black leather case.
Please return to S.A.C. office.

LOST

A blue leather wallet — corner of Bloor and Avenue Road — Friday
at noon. Reward. Call F. Frommer,
RU. 3-3040.

COAT EXCHANGED BY MISTAKE
At Alexandra Lectures. Blue, trench coat. Apply Hart House
Theatre Office.

FOUND

Woman's gold watch, after Queen's football game. Call John, Room 207 B. WA. 3-8402.

DRESS ALTERATIONS

Fast service! Harbord at St.
George. WA. 3-6960.

EARN EXTRA MONEY

Selling portable and standard typewriters and tape recorders.
Phone HU. 9-1104.

FOR RENT

Furnished double room near university. Contact F. Halpern, 485
Huron St., WA. 4-0028.

ROOMS FOR RENT MALE ONLY
1 block from campus. Kitchen facilities available. $35.00 per month.
30 Harbord St., WA. 3-0036.

KNOX COLLEGE

Because of unexpected cancellations, there are a few rooms available in the Knox College residence. Apply at the office.

TYPING

Theses, Essays, Notes, Charts,
French, German, Latin, English
Prices Upon Request
Apt. 12
21 AVENUE RD.—WA. 2-7624
MRS. M. D. STOTT, B.A.

RARE VOLUMES

of Historical costume 120 hand colored pictures. Will sell or swap. EM. 4-8589 after 6.

FOUND!

- 3½ prs. of gloves
- 3 scarves
- 7 sets of keys
- 1 man's ring
- 7 pens—1 pencil
- 1 pr. glasses
- 1 silver charm bracelet

APPLY

S.A.C. OFFICE

jazz!

HOUSE OF HAMBOURG
GRENVILLE at YONGE
Friday — 11.00 p.m.
Phil Nimmons Big Band

It's Fun to
DANCE
AT
Mart Kenney's Ranch

EVERY SATURDAY

CANADA'S FINEST
BANDS

Special Student Rates
$1.00 per person

Reservation and Information
AT. 8-1282

THE "90-10" OF A COLLEGE DEGREE

"A college degree may count 90% toward your getting a job but seldom more than 10% toward your holding it."

Anonymous

That's one "90-10". There's another and that is the 90% of Canadian industry that recognizes its obligation to foster higher education if it is to continue to grow and prosper.

We at Cominco appreciated this need some years ago. Today in Canada's major universities there are science graduates working on Cominco Fellowships and undergraduates with Cominco scholarships. We have made many grants in support of university expansion programs and research projects.
We organize special visits to our plants for science classes and welcome visits from faculty members.

Through such programs we hope to secure the future of our own industry and help Canada hold her prominent place in the scientific world.

COMINCO

- TADANAC BRAND METALS
- ELEPHANT BRAND FERTILIZERS

THE CONSOLIDATED MINING AND SMELTING COMPANY OF CANADA LIMITED

Trail, British Columbia

One of Canada's Great Enterprises

215 St. James Street W.,
Montreal, Quebec

Organize National Students' Petition

By SUSIE BRESLIN
Varsity Co-Managing Editor
Massive support for a protest against execution of Hungarian youths swelled in universities across Canada last night.

The protest, started by the University of British Columbia, requests the end to executions of Hungarian youths charged with treason for participation in the Hungarian revolution in 1956. The youths have now reached 18, the legal age for execution in Hungary. They were all about 15 years old at the time of the revolution.

In Toronto, the executive committee of the Students' Administrative Council has authorized distribution of a petition protesting the executions. The petition will be circulated in all colleges and faculties early next week.

When completed, the signed protests will "go with other signatures from Canadian university students on to the Canadian Government asking the External Affairs Department to give this matter serious consideration immediately and to bring it before the United Nations," SAC president Walter McLean said last night.

"It is now possible that student presidents of all Canadian universities will sign a telegram to be sent to Premier Khrushchev asking him, in the light of his recent statements regarding peace, to intervene in the Hungarian situation," McLean said.

The SAC will also contact all Ontario universities today asking them to participate in the mass protest, he said.

SAC members will be requested to pick up the protest forms early Monday morning, and distribute them to their colleges and faculties for signatures, he said. The petitions, should be completed and be ready for forwarding to Ottawa some time next week.

Universities in Western, Quebec and Atlantic regions are also expected to be asked to participate in the protest.

In Ottawa last night, Andre L'Heureux, executive secretary of the National Federation of Canadian University Students, said Nfcus has already taken movement.

Nfcus last night sent a telegram to the Prime Minister, Janos Kadar, of Hungary which said in part:

"One hundred thousand Canadian University students deeply grieve unbelievable inhumanity. In view gravity of charged respectfully urge intervention Hungarian government."

L'Heureux said the External Affairs Department has stated it has no official information on the executions. Most information so far, he said, has come from letters "from all parts of Hungary". In addition to the mass executions, the letters also report that younger members of families are being kidnapped and deported by the Hungarian secret police.

Nfcus has wired the Research Information Committee of the International Student Conference requesting immediate information on the executions.

The organization has also contacted the World Federation of Democratic Youth, a Budapest-based Communist organization with a Canadian member on its executive, requesting an investigation into the matter.

The latter action "is more of an appeal," L'Heureux said, since "in the past they have not protested" against such incidents as the Hungarian revolution.

The reports of executions were first made public on the Ed Sullivan television show Sunday night, and since that time over one million letters of protest have been received from American citizens.

THE VARSITY

Vol. LXXIX — No. 18

Friday, October 30th, 1959

UBC Students Protest Executions At Request By Hungarian Faculty

VANCOUVER, Oct. 29 (CUP)—Students of the University of British Columbia moved today to give support to a plea presented to them by the university's Hungarian forestry faculty.

The Alma Mater Society, UBC's students' council, ordered petitions distributed throughout the university protesting the execution of Hungarian youths charged with treason in connection with the Hungarian revolution in October, 1956.

The move was in answer to a request from Dean Kalman Roller, dean of UBC's Sopron forestry division, for a campaign aimed at stopping execution of the youths, now aged 18-20.

Dean Roller first went to UBC president Norman McKenzie with his request. President McKenzie suggested the dean and other interested persons should request Prime Minister Diefenbaker to place the matter before the United Nations. He said he too was deeply concerned over the situation.

Yesterday, the AMS printed 700 forms, each with space for 50 signatures, for distribution to UBC's 10,800 students. When completed, the forms will be forwarded to Mr. Diefenbaker with the request that External Affairs Minister Howard Green be instructed to bring the matter before the United Nations.

UBC is also requesting that Premier Khrushchev use his authority to intervene in Hungary for the "cause of world peace" to prevent further executions.

Plans for the petition received a slight set-back late tonight as AMS president Peter Meekison recalled the forms for minor changes in wording.

Meekison said he expected about 9,000 signatures for the petition.

According to information received by the Sopron faculty, 30 youths have been executed in Hungary since June. The execution of another large group is expected within the next few weeks.

Sopron Assistant Dean Leslie Adamovich said 14 of the students already executed were in high school, and 16 attended vocational schools. All were aged 18-20, and were about 15-17 years old at the time of the revolution.

Authority quoted as supplying the information was Bela Fabian, leader of the Hungarian Political Prisoners' Association. Information had also been obtained from private letters smuggled over the Hungarian border.

Magyar Nenzet, the official Communist Party organ in Hungary, recently boasted that "the loudest and fiercest opposition to our regime has been removed from our universities". The magazine said supporters of "nationalism and pure democracy" must be removed from Hungary.

SAC At Home

A Really Good Laugh

After a long and tedious session, the Students' Administrative Council took time out to take a long laugh at itself last night.

Desmond O'Rourke (III Law) and Clive Chamberlain (III Meds) started the fun by proposing a lengthy motion setting up an SAC investigating committee with "unlimited power and unlimited discretion". Members, the motion said, would be free to "investigate each other or anyone else."

O'Rourke said the committee was necessary do to the presence of "creeping socialism in the form of the SHARE campaign and a direct attack on the Jehovah's Witnesses in the blood campaign" among other questionable campus activities.

He suggested himself and Chamberlain as possible committee members, since "let's face it, we're sneaks."

Mike Sherman (IV UC) suggested council should not act immediately on the motion because "we need time to investigate it."

Peter Dembski (III SMC) demanded a secret ballot for vote on the question. The request was refused by council.

Council voted to table the motion for one year. Chamberlain rose in favor of the tabling motion, and was pulled down by O'Rourke.

news snaps

Representatives to the McGill Conference of World Affairs in Montreal Nov. 17-20 have been selected by Toronto officials.

Out of 16 applicants (four of them freshmen), the following were chosen: Bob Matthews (IV Trin) and Art Scafe (IV Trin) as delegates, and Lawrence Beach (II Emman) and Keith Hoilett (IV Trin) as alternates.

An exhibition of silk screen paintings will go on view Monday in the library smoking room.

The screens are the work of a California artist. The exhibition is sponsored by the Canadian University Students' Art Committee here.

Applications for the position of editor of Jargon, the university literary magazine, close Friday. The position involves editing and making arrangements for publication. Applications should be submitted to the Students' Administrative Council office.

University of Toronto's posh new Women's Athletic Building will officially open its doors today at 3:30 p.m.

Ceremonies include unveiling of a plaque, academic procession, student choir recital, reception and tea.

OK Last-Minute Southern Safari

The Students' Administrative Council Wednesday night rushed through plans for a second exchange weekend this year.

Twenty University of Toronto students will leave Toronto November 12 by bus for the University of North Carolina, in Chapel Hill, N.C., 800 miles south of U of T.

Students who have already applied for the Carabin weekend and have indicated they would be willing to participate in another exchange if rejected for Carabin, will be automatically considered for the Southern exchange. Weekends Chairman Virginia Lomax told council. About 100 students are already eligible through this system.

SAC moved to extend applications for the North Carolina weekend until 5 p.m. Monday, Nov. 2, in order to give interested students a chance to apply. Delegates chosen will alternate discussions with parties for the weekend, and will see UNC battle the University of Virginia on the gridiron American-style Saturday.

The weekend will also see tours of UNC and neighboring spots of interest. Cost is expected to be about $30 per student. Participants will be housed in UNC residences and fraternities.

Weekends co-chairman John Wood said yesterday segrega-

"We are going down there with open minds on the segregation problem, and hope to get a new perspective on the situation up here," he said.

An American exchange has been suggested in council for seven years, and has been actively investigated for two years. An affirmative from UNC arrived in Toronto Monday afternoon, leaving officials here with just enough time to make a selection and arrange details of the trip.

CHORUS
UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

Sing! Sing! Sing!

NEXT TUESDAY evening at 8:00 p.m. in Room 62 of the Royal Conservatory of Music, 135 College St., will see the University of Toronto Chorus' First Rehearsal. If you forgot to apply, there are a few application forms left at S. A. C. Building. Get up there right away.

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

Bow or Blow, but attach yourself to the U. of T. Orchestra. Rehearsals start next Thursday Nov. 5 at 6:30 p.m. through 8:30 p.m. — There are a few Application forms left at S.A.C.

SIGN UP NOW!

More Players Needed!

Especially Brass, Strings, Woodwinds etc. etc.

Avenue Park Barbershop

STUDENT PRICES

152A BLOOR WEST
(just east of Avenue Rd.)

TYPEWRITERS

$1.00 A WEEK BUYS . . .
... $1.50 A WEEK RENTS

Get a free typing course and a liberal trade-in allowance for your old typewriter when you buy a new modern machine from us.

Phone HO. 1-1843 Today

Is Risk Of Cancer Reduced By The New Canadian Cigarettes?

When you buy cigarettes there is no way of telling, from the package, how much tar and nicotine will be in the smoke. Latest laboratory findings, in November Reader's Digest, give you this information about 17 of the popular Canadian brands.

This article makes exciting — and hopeful — reading. One cigarette now offers a 40% improvement in tar filtration. . . and 40% less nicotine in the smoke! Other brands have changed, too.

This Reader's Digest article will be talked about from Coast to Coast. At your newsstand today. Don't miss it!

TYPING

Theses, Essays, Notes, Charts, French, German, Latin, English Prices Upon Request

Apt. 12
21 AVENUE RD. — WA. 2-7624
MRS. M. D. STOTT, B.A.

RARE VOLUMES

of Historical costume 120 hand colored pictures. Will sell or swap. EM. 4-8589 after 6.

Ski Cabin For 6

near Blue Mountain and Craig Leith Clubs. Available for season. Call BA. 1-1218 evenings.

CLASSIFIED ADS.

FOR SALE—1958 M.G.A.
Convertible, Continental kit, spoke wheels, $1,850. Financing available. Phone WA. 2-3293.

FOR SALE — Well used Coonskin Coat
Useful for homecomings, etc. G. Burns - days WA. 4-9221 nights AT. 2-8105.

FOR SALE — 58 Lambretta excellent condition. Many Extras. Call Frank - HU. 7-0338.

COAT EXCHANGED by MISTAKE
At Alexandra Lectures. Blue trench coat. Apply Hart House Theatre Office.

DRESS ALTERATIONS
Fast service! Harbord at St. George. WA. 3-6960.

FOR RENT
Furnished double room near university. Contact F. Halpern, 485 Huron St., WA. 4-0028.

ROOMS FOR RENT MALE ONLY
1 block from campus. Kitchen facilities available. $35.00 per month. 30 Harbord St., WA. 3-0036.

KNOX COLLEGE
Because of unexpected cancellations, there are a few rooms available in the Knox College residence. Apply at the office.

Campus Isn't Immoral Engineers Tell Nurses

In spite of what University of Toronto nurses said, the morality of the U of T campus is not too low, a Nursing-Engineering debate decided yesterday.

Engineers defeated a motion that "the moral level on campus is too low" before more than 500 students jammed into one room of the Mechanical Engineering Building.

Judy Harman (III Nursing), first affirmative speaker, said afterwards she was surprised there was so little debate and so much entertainment.

"We will not debate about sex," she said during the debate, "but about standards in the university community, and the general morals imposed on them by the administration."

Dick Jones (I SPS) said "an aspersion is being cast against us (the Engineers) questioning our morality, which is second only to our virility. Government speakers are reminiscent of that historical moral name-calling session enjoyed by the Sabine women whom the Romans wouldn't rape."

Speaking of relations between engineers and nurses, Jones said "it is inevitable that closer contact will develop. Applause and wild cheering rocked the hall."

Answering Jones, Fran Runnings (IV Nursing) attacked the drinking and general loose living of Skule men. Miss Runnings said engineers drink to excess, that too many of them belong to fraternities and that they bolster their "childish egos" by "wild parties."

Ozzie Schmidt (III SPS) sprang back to the attack. "Throughout history," he said, "mankind's morals have risen and fallen, and today they have reached a climax."

He pointed out girls wear knee socks and sack dresses to "hide their alluring legs and figures." All this is in order to decrease sensuality and increase morality," he smiled.

Dave Rutenberg (III SPS) spoke from the floor—for the nurses.

"The moral level on campus from my interpretation of it," he said, to roars of laughter, "is too low. Although the actions of U of T students are straitlaced, their thoughts are at gutter level."

Jane Hunter (II Nursing) gave a nurse's view of the debate. "They failed to pinpoint the issue, which is quite typical of engineers," she said.

Today's Formal

Elegant white brocaded satin waltz length bell shaped skirt bodice smartly contrasted by a wide black velvet tuff with French bow at back.

HELMAR — WA. 1-5978
46 ST. GEORGE STREET

DIAMOND RINGS

SAVE THE BIG MARK-UP BY BUYING YOUR DIAMOND RINGS DIRECT

Satisfaction Guaranteed or Money Refunded

Tel: EMpire 8-5268

WINSTALL DIAMOND CORP.

1219 Bank of Comm. Bldg.
25 King St. West Toronto, Ontario

H. P. SKOGLUND, President

Skog
says...

"Man watches the stars while standing in mud"

Ever since Adam, man has been forced to do endless battle with the hazards of his own environment. And for just as long, every round has ended in a draw.

Sure, we gloat with pride when our newspapers tell us that a new man-made satellite has been put into orbit around the earth, or that a handsome, gold-plated rocket has been shot 70,000 miles into outer space. But turn the page, and our dreams of grandeur crumble to dust.

Here in our own hemisphere a volcano erupts and demolishes a Caribbean village, a tidal wave engulfs a whole town in Louisiana, while out on a misty Atlantic shipping lane a so-called unsinkable ship goes down with all hands when it collides with an unexpected iceberg.

In everyday life, the wise man will take his own private precautions against disaster. NALAC's life, sickness and accident, and income - protecting insurance are the best guarantees against the hazards of the future. Call our office soon, and learn how you can insure confident living—today and tomorrow.

...insure confident living

NORTH AMERICAN

Life and Casualty Company

LIFE • SICKNESS  ACCIDENT • GROUP

CHARLES E. REA — Toronto Manager
99 Avenue Road Phone WA. 5-5994

HART HOUSE THEATRE

ROBERT GILL, Director

AUDITIONS

Auditions will begin on Tuesday, Nov. 3rd

— For —

The Glass Menagerie

— And —

The Importance of Being Ernest

For an Appointment — Phone WA. 3-7193
or Call at Theatre Offices.

Clara Nette
(Music 52) says:

I strike the right note in my personal finances by paying expenses with a Personal Chequing Account at . . .

"MY BANK"
BANK OF MONTREAL
Canada's First Bank for Students

You'll find these B of M branches especially convenient

Bloor and Bay Sts. KENNETH A. McNEIL, Manager
Queen's Park JOSEPH BURDOCK, Manager
St. George and Bloor Sts. K. S. McKELLAR, Manager

a big step on the road to success is an early banking connection

AVR Naming The Names For Director, Dance-Man

The All-Varsity Revue—hitherto one of the quietest activities on the campus—is taking the wraps from its 1960 venture with the announcement of Barry Callaghan as director and Clifford Collier as choreographer.

This year's show, "Christopher Jones," is an original musical comedy, written by James Doris and Gino Matteo. It is a story about 'The Young Man In The Jungle' who is trying to find his way in the world of the corporation 'Organization Man'.

Matteo and Doris last year received critic acclaim for their St. Mike's book-show, "The Dedicated Men".

Assistant director Matteo is now working for his master's degree in English, while Doris, who is producing the show, is currently enrolled at the Ontario College of Education.

Director Barry Callaghan's experience includes two years of direction work at Assumption University. For the last three years, while enrolled at the U of T, Barry has been doing continuous direction work with the CBC.

Callaghan is also a professional writer. CBC radio is doing a half hour anthology of his writing in January.

The choreographer, Clifford Collier, has both studied and taught classic, oriental, and modern dance. He has also danced in Ballet Festivals in Montreal, Ottawa, and Toronto, and on Canadian Broadcasting Corporation television.

In the past, Collier has been associated with many theatre groups working on choreography and in production.

Matteo says, "We hope to establish a new tradition of good entertainment and high success for the AVR—one that all following AVR's will have to live up to."

Auditions for the show are being held in Brennan Hall, SMC, at St. Michael's College at 7:30-9:30 p.m. Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday of next week.

Doris said last night "An unusually large cast is needed: leads with both acting and singing ability, supporting roles with either acting or singing ability, and many dancers and singers."

FEET belong to Stan Dubas. Students' Administrative Council finance commissioner, who gave blood. Today is the last day of the current University of Toronto Blood Drive. (Varsity staff photo by Stabins.)

LEGS belong to the lovely gals who will form the chorus line in the U of T's better-than-ever All-Varsity Revue. The girls were practicing last night (Varsity staff photo by Nesbitt).

Blood, United Appeal Totals Are Still Low

Donations to both the United Appeal and blood campaigns at the University of Toronto are still sagging. Students' Administrative Council representative, Nancy Davidson last night said she is moderately pleased with blood donations.

"But," she added, "another crusade to get U of T students to bleed will probably have to be staged some time late in February."

Meanwhile Miss Davidson said UA still needs a generous boost in donations to hit its goal.

A final attempt to fill UA's empty money belt will be made at Saturday's Varsity Float parade.

Late blood donors will be welcomed at the Varsity Blood Clinic, 67 College St., at 12-3:30 p.m. and 5:30-8:30 p.m.—Mondays and Tuesdays.

Engineering and Forestry will have a clinic at Huron and College Streets 10:30 a.m.—1:30 p.m. and 2:45 to 4:00 p.m. today.

blood

Blood Given up to Oct. 28	Fints
Faculty	31
Lav	405
Victoria	40
Emmanuel	55
Pharmacy	269
Medicine	25
Knox	30
Architecture	111
Nursing	297
UC	89
P&OT	11
PHE	100
Dentis	251
SMC	79
OCE	220
Trinity	177
Engineering	3
Graduate Studies	32
Forestry	9
Staff	1
Museum	16
U of T Press	1
Geology	1
Music	9
Social Work	17
Unknown	1
Fraternities	125
TOTAL	2,344

united appeal

Contributions to Oct. 28
Concerts	$237.20
Las Vegas Night	195.55
PHE	37.50
Social Work	109.18
Forestry	27.10
Wycliffe	14.50
Pharmacy	78.67
Knox	40.10
Emmanuel	96.50
Architecture	45.00
Nursing	40.25
P&OT	38.28
UC	109.01
Trinity	179.30
SMC	20.56
Victoria	49.18
Medicine	345.50
TOTAL	$1653.38

Professor Warns Fallout Danger

A University of Toronto professor told students last night radiation poses a serious threat to the lives of high-altitude pilots.

Dr. G. M. Clark, of the Department of Zoology, put the radiation problem into human terms for members of the U of T Biology Club meeting at Wymilwood in Victoria College.

"Radiation knows no barriers," he said, "and by 1962, at the present rate of radioactive fallout, we shall have reached the maximum permissible safe radiation level."

Dr. Clark pointed out Southern Ontario was one of the so-called "hot spots" of the world, and it receives a large proportion of radioactive isotopes, strontium, iodine, and potassium, released by detonation of fission bombs.

In his talk, "Radiation Biology," Dr. Clark discussed the mechanism of the cellular breakdown caused by exposure to radiation.

"This breakdown of the genetic content of the cells occurs most readily in reproductive tissue, and mutation, therefore, is a large factor to be contended with," he said.

Dr. Clark said mutation "may" help along the process of natural selection, but he added mutations produced so far in Japan have been decidedly detrimental in nature.

"Very little is known about the effects of radiation on cell chemistry," he admitted, "but the University of Toronto will probably be the first to show its effects on enzymes."

Dr. Clark also claimed the moon would be an ideal dump for radioactive waste, the disposal of which is currently an important but unsolved problem.

UC Students Academic Says UC Dean At UC

A University of Toronto dean hurled a well-timed and off-beat crack against University College students yesterday calling them the "most academically-minded on campus."

Ian MacDonald, UC Dean of Men, was supporting a victorious UC model Parliament resolution in the Junior Common Room, "the cultural level of this college is higher than ever."

"While other faculties are wasting their time during the night, UC students are writing Milton's Aereopagetic around the fence of the new Arts Building," he said.

The Dean's statement referred to a group of UC students who plastered Milton's famed paragraph on freedom in bold blue letters on the construction fence early this month.

Opening for the government, Fred Zemans, defined culture from Webster's Children's Dictionary as "cultivation and tilling."

"We have been turning sod so fast we don't know where to throw the dirt," he added.

"And what better dirt is there than the Gargoyle," Zemans said. The Gargoyle is the UC newspaper.

Si Zyman (UC III) labelled culture as "training and refinement of the mind, taste and manners."

"By taste, I mean, writing on the washroom walls of the men's residences," he said.

Last speaker for the opposition, Ken Wyman (IV UC), said the "ocean of apathy is a shocking and sinister thing. The cultural level has declined and is continuing to decline."

SAME LEGS Same gals, Same show, Same rehearsal, (Same photographer).

Arrington Undecided On Frat

Barbara Arrington, the Negro student whose encounter with racial discrimination at the University of Toronto sparked wide controversy, has not decided whether to join the off-campus sorority, Beta Sigma Phi.

A Toronto member of Beta Sigma Phi wrote Miss Arrington last week inviting her to join the internationally-affiliated sorority.

"We are a sorority which is known in 14 countries, and there is no prejudice of race, color or creed," the latter said.

Bobbi last night said she will make no final decision about the invitation for another two weeks.

"I don't want to join any club too hastily, especially one of the fraternity type," she said.

"A fraternity implies more than membership—loyalty is also required and I would have to consider the fraternity as well as myself," she added.

Bobbi, a second-year honor psychology student at St. Michael's College, was rushed by several U of T fraternities two weeks ago. She was later advised to drop her plans for fraternity pledging to avoid "embarrassment."

BLUE & WHITE SOCIETY

Presents

THE ANNUAL HOMECOMING
SHOW*VARSITY STADIUM*8:15 p.m.*FRIDAY, OCTOBER 30

Featuring ...

● Guest Stars:Toby Robins, and Priscilla Wright*● Spectaculars:65 Girl "T-Torch" - 16 Girl "Kickline"● Bands:Dixieland Band - University of Toronto Band● Top Graduate and Undergraduate Acts● Folk Singing and Dancing Acts● Finals for "Miss Varsity
Queen" Contest

Produced by J. VASOFF

Choreography by DIANA EDE

ADMISSION: 50c with ATL card at the SAC,
Engineering Stores, U.C., Victoria College,
Trinity College, and St. Michael's College.

GENERAL ADMISSION — $1.00

A.V.R. AUDITIONS FOR
"CHRISTOPHER JONES"

NOVEMBER 3, 4, 5

7.30-9.30 p.m. — BRENNAN HALL, SMC

NEEDED: Actors, Singers, Dancers

If additional information required, phone WA. 5-6092

Denies Dewey Caused Theatre Educational Pampering Versus Chapel

An Ontario College of Education professor told University of Toronto students Tuesday John Dewey was not the academic darkhorse responsible for stampeding our schools into a swamp of "luxury and pampered ills".

Dr. A. A. Skinner was speaking in University College on American philosopher and educationalist John Dewey in the fifth profile in a series of weekly lectures sponsored by the Student Christian Movement.

"Unfortunately," he said, "it is the popular fallacy of most people today to point an accusing finger at Dewey, labeling him as originator of all the troubles in society and the bad shape of United States schools."

Agreeing with another critic, Dr. Skinner said, "One hardly knows whether to weep or laugh when people say Dewey's philosophy was aimed at pampering the student."

He explained Dewey's ideas were geared toward analyzing the problems of everyday life, "finding out especially how these problems arise and how to cope with them."

Dr. Skinner said Dewey broke with traditional philosophical history by saying thought should be practical rather than contemplative.

"Dewey stressed that the power of man's mind is an instrument which should be used by the human organism to help it adjust to its environment." He called the process instrumentalism, Dr. Skinner said.

Reviewing the philosopher's background, Prof. Skinner said Dewey was born 100 years ago in the state of Vermont. "He grew up in an environment of 'evolution and revolution when everyone was discussing Darwin, and the Civil War was raging."

"Dewey's parents were disappointed in him, with little hope he would turn out to be nothing more than a philosopher," he said.

The professor said it was the new resources of thought and the great strides in science during the last century that led Dewey to the belief that a new philosophy toward education was necessary.

With this in mind, Dewey then drew up this theory of 'pragmatism', a philosophy based on change and human experience.

This Dewey applied to the schools, saying it is impossible to work toward any set goals in education because of the quick-sands of change.

Skinner added Dewey made it clear "thinking is the method of educational experience, but at the same time school is a community where teaching must not outrun the child's experience".

McGill Studies Causes of Hail

MONTREAL, Oct. 29—A nine-man group from McGill University's Stormy Weather Laboratories will spend the winter studying hail that fell in storms in Alberta last summer.

The group has collected samples of prairie hailstones and masses of statistics. They are searching for the cause of hail and methods to prevent it.

Dr. R. H. Douglas, head of the group, said it is trying to discover whether there is something in thunderstorms that can be triggered to prevent hail.

KINGSTON, Oct. 27 (CUP)—What does Queen's University want, a theatre or a chapel? This is the problem facing the executive of the Queen's student council.

In a recent meeting of the Alma Mater Society, the executive rapped the knuckles of its building fund committee, saying the committee had been hasty in deciding on a theatre without considering other alternatives.

Building committee chairman George Steckoe said the committee had singled out a theatre as objective of the fund, but arts' president Roger Davidson, a member of the committee, said a lack of consideration had been given to other possibilities, mainly a chapel.

Steckoe urged the executive not to delay action or the fund would "just die". It was, however, decided to hold action for one week until a report from the committee could be heard.

Steckoe agreed to the inclusion of theology representative Larry Leafloor on the committee in order to have a member who could speak on behalf of a chapel.

The young minister was reading announcements at the Sunday service. He stumbled across one of them and the following words slipped out: "The Little Mothers' League will hold their weekly meeting this afternoon. All those who wish to become Little Mothers, please see me in the rectory."

*Class of 1961 Engineers and Honour Chemistry MenThe Procter & Gamble Co.*OF CANADA*Hamilton, Ontario*has employment opportunities for the summer of 1960

Interesting assignments of a technical nature provide valuable experience in one or more of the following fields.

QUALITY CONTROL*MECHANICAL ENGINEERING*CONSTRUCTION ENGINEERING*INDUSTRIAL ENGINEERING*PRODUCTION SUPERVISION*PRODUCT RESEARCH*PROCESS DEVELOPMENT

Application forms and Company information may be obtained from your

Placement Office — 5 Wilcocks Street*NEXT WEEK*Dr. Masumi Torotome M.A., B.D., Ph.D.CONVOCAATION HALL*5:00 p.m. Daily*MON. 9 The Scotch Tapelife*TUES. 10 The Crisis of Life*WED. 11 The Glory of Life*THURS. 12 The Impasse of Life*FRI. 13 The Pulse of Life

THE VARSITY

by Barbara Arrington

You may have noticed a small typhoon whizzing across the campus these last few weeks. The centre is dominated by a tall dark figure topped off by an egg-shaped "Liberace" head with the flat side up.

The small typhoon is Jim Vasoff, on his way to direct the Homecoming Show, the half-time entertainment for the game, and arrange publicity for the exhibition of the Tam-buritizans which he produced in Toronto.

The Tamburitizans a Slavic folk-dancing and singing group from Duquesne University in Ohio, were a critical and public success. Their show in Massey Hall on October 24 played to capacity audiences.

This left Jim with only two jobs in addition to his full time job as a sales engineer for a large construction equipment firm; the Homecoming Show and the entertainment for the half time period in the football game.

The homecoming show means a great deal to Jim Vasoff. He feels that it is an "opportunity to physically link the cultures within the Canadian structure."

"After all," he says, "The university has in its campus representatives of just about every culture, but our expression is far behind the actual representation. This is where the real function of a producer director comes in."

The Homecoming Show is more an act of loyalty for Jim Vasoff, than just another college show. He has strong ties to the University of Toronto and welcomes every opportunity to "do something for the old school."

Mr. Vasoff was born into a family of poor Macedonian immigrants. Everyone in the family worked to help meet the weekly bills, and Jim started when he was eight years old. He began as a pin boy in a bowling alley and went on to shine shoes, sell papers, books, magazines, Christmas trees and vacuum cleaners from door to door. At one point in his business career he was even a short order cook.

The classical poor boy who fought to make his way in the world in the approved Horatio Alger manner, Mr. Vasoff,

(Continued on Page 6)

homecoming

Jim Vasoff Presents

It takes a heap of living to make a home.

It takes a heap of planning, scheduling, rehearsing, publicizing, coffee and cigarettes to make a Homecoming Show.

It also takes a heap of Jim Vasoff.

For several weeks, Jim Vasoff has been running, not walking in a small typhoon across the campus, while he produced the Toronto showing of the Tamburitizans, the Homecoming show and the half-time entertainment for the game.

But he still doesn't know what he is, a full time show business producer or a full time engineer.

on music criticism

by Ted Barnes

4. It's in the Book

"That's too slow. You never hear it played that way by any conductor I know. What the devil's he think he's doing? It's a bloody dirge!"

"But check the metronome marking with your watch: eighty-four beats a minute . . . See? that's the way the composer wants it."

Here we have (free of charge to Varsity readers only) a dramatized representation of what may happen when two avid-record-collectors get together over a new purchase. And what is it all about? A harmless-looking little word that somehow has crept into the top left-hand corner of the first page of the score. It may be Adagio, or Andante, or Allegretto, or Scherzando, or even good old Allegro con brio; whatever it is, the way you interpret it often seems to depend on little more than the state of your metabolism at the moment.

Take Andante for example. A translation might be "at a leisurely walking pace". Instead of prancing onto the stage wreathed in a smile and paying homage to his fans with nods to the left gallery, the conductor would do well to put this otherwise wasted time to "good use. Let him walk onto the stage at a leisurely pace, as the score says, and get the feel of the tempo in his mind; if he needs more time, he could reach the podium via the French horn section, check the knot in his tie in the shiny kettle drums, and then come up past the clarinets, over to the double basses, and twice around the little morsel who will still be adjusting the tuning of her harp. Conductors might find this practise hazardous, however, when the music is to be played presto or vivacissimo; unless of course a hockey net were put around the podium.

Some composers from Beethoven onward have made careful use of the Maelzel metronome (invented around 1810) in order that the desired pace of their music may be arrived at by the conductor; indeed, Beethoven is said to have sent about 150 tempo-changes to his London publisher for the score of his Ninth Symphony, and that while on his death-bed.

Even granted such auxilia pro veritate, however, some conductors seem to "feel" the music differently. "I say unto you, they have their reward." Take Kozelznetz, for example. And keep him, will you? Toscanini himself was guilty of the same thing, too; his performance of the Ninth Symphony was the shortest in history. Beethoven should just have died without bothering, perhaps?

Then there are dynamic markings, little jottings under or over the notes that composers (one suspects) scribble here and there to fill in empty spaces in the score. I am beginning to think differently, however; after all, why shouldn't there be a real, audible distinction between a p (piano) and a pp (pianissimo)? Does a single p mean the composer was running short of ink? Some conductors play a passage marked p so quietly you can hardly hear it; then when they come to a pp, either they can't achieve the required difference between "softly" and "bloody near inaudible", or else they simply don't bother about the whole mess.

At the other extreme we have f (forte) and ff (you guessed it: fortissimo). This is wonderful for brass players. A mediocre conductor will really titillate the women in the front row by giving them their money's worth and more from a simple little f; when the orchestra reaches ff, the trumpets have no lip left, and just watch them blurb. The real test comes, though, with the demand, fff! By now the trumpets have quit the union, the fiddles are replacing broken strings, and the tympanist is preparing to sue because of his sprained wrist. And when a composer is bold enough to write ffff, they're too fed up to blow the roof off anyway.

Pauses are wonderful fun if you like the occasional free-for-all. One conductor will gallop right up to a pause and then almost fall into the tuba in an effort to arrest the Leviathan he has let loose; another will survey the terrain from afar, perhaps three or four whole bars ahead, and advance with utmost caution, so that by the time he reaches the pause he has plenty of time to gather together the aimlessly wandering sections of his orchestra. An excellent orchestra can conquer this kind of concert-hall pest simply by ignoring him and playing the pause as it should be done.

And so we find among conductors an inexhaustible range of attitudes toward these subconscious meanderings of the composer's brain. It seems a shame, though, that there couldn't be a stereotyped clause in every conductor's contract that requires him to follow as closely as possible the requirements of the score. He should at least have the courtesy to acknowledge the composer's right to have the audience hear exactly what he wanted them to hear. Rather reminds one of an exasperated university test, doesn't it?

comment

The Passing Of Lennox-Boyd

by Robert Saunders

When Mr. MacMillan announced the formation of his new cabinet last week, there was one significant omission on the list, the name of Mr. Alan Lennox-Boyd, the Secretary of State for Colonies since 1954. He resigned, The Telegraph tells us for "family reasons". Rumour has immediately suggested that the Prime Minister told that gentleman that his continued presence in the cabinet would be an embarrassment to all concerned. He has been made a sacrifice to atone for the sins revealed in the Devlin Report on "native plots" in the Central African Federation and a policy of slow emancipation which has drawn wide criticism.

May we look for a significant change of policy under his successor Mr. Iain Macleod? It is difficult to play the part of prophet, but it is also very difficult to foresee any major changes simply because many of the factors which pressed on his predecessor have not been eliminated.

Clement Attlee in 1937 in a debate on Indian policy enunciated the policy which has since become the guiding maxim in colonial affairs for Labour Party policy. In getting out of India, he said, it was better to err in being too soon than to err in being too late. In office after the war, they decided to pull out of India and thereby force the people of the subcontinent to make their own decisions for the future. Winston Churchill described the act as an "unjustifiable experiment." The less temperate called it "criminal folly" and described in detail the certain chaos and anarchy which would come. This attitude has survived in the Conservative benches to the present day whenever the problem of colonial independence has been mentioned; care and proper slow timing to reach maturity has been their constant demand.

The reasons for this caution find their origins in the confusions of a colonial and imperialist inheritance grafted into the Conservative Party by Disraeli and by Joseph Chamberlain. To them imperialism was a basis of power and to a lesser degree the burden of the Anglo-Saxon. This illusion foundered on the hard rocks of colonial conferences and the decentralization of empire which followed World War I. An emotional aspect of this belief reappeared in the difficult days of 1940-41; but if any credence has been given to this phantom of power since the war it was destroyed in the sands of Suez. We are left, therefore, to accept the other plea for imperialism, the duty which is imposed upon Europeans to help their less fortunate brethren of other colours. This doctrine is not fundamentally different from Gladstonian concepts; but Goldstone and his followers would have said that they could relax all colonial ties as soon as the people thus restricted wished break those ties. However, Conservatives have chosen the more paternalistic view that the obligation of empire

(Continued on Page 6)

look homeward angel

The annual trek back to campus of hordes of alumni frightens us a bit, especially this year.

For one thing, it reminds us what a rarefied existence we lead in our little community.

If we want to play games someone hands us the money to buy equipment. If we write poetry we can be assured of space in dozens of campus literary magazines. If we fancy ourselves as editors, we have a newspaper all of our own.

Apart from what is spent on us academically, hundreds of thousands of dollars are thrown into giving us a good time of various kinds.

Very soon, just a year from now for some of us, we are going to have to start looking for work. People will begin asking us for things. Homecoming week-end reminds us of this. That's why it frightens us. The four-year deferment is almost over. And here come our worldly alumni, probably trying nostalgically to recapture a basically artificial time in which they were pampered, coddled, and indulged.

But you can't go home again. Even the campus has stopped giving and has started taking.

We hope the alumni are up to it. We hope we will be too.

THE VARSITY

Editorial and News Office

Basement, SAC Building — W.A. 3-8742, W.A. 3-8113

TODAY'S ISSUE — Stan Barron, Fred Host and his camera, Dave Rubenstein and a debate, Debbie Halper, Dave Hillen, Phil Palter, Lee Richardson, Jim Vasoff and his kickline, Walter McLean, Gino Matteo, Mitro Makarchuk, Larry Zolf, Mike Nimchuk, Dave Crain, Hungarians, a story from Manitoba, and a brand new Homecoming week end.

Together Editors: Al Walker and Maryanne Kelso
Photographer on duty: Mike Cavanagh.

Lennox-Boyd can't should be maintained until the subject peoples are ready for freedom. The picture this immediately brings to mind is that of the parent administering bitter medicine to the child.

How could a Conservative therefore answer Gandhi's charge of 1931 that the British were incompetent to rule India? The Conservative imperialist has been placed in a quandary by this. And his dilemma has not been solved by the rigors of public discussion. Since World War 1, with the exception of a few misty-eyed outbursts of emotion, to most people of England the imperialist question has been dead. Most people in Britain could have no high opinion of Dominions which seemed always ready to leave Britain in the lurch and which seemed to want immigrants only as labourers and domestic servants. The fond thought of power could not persuade these people to sanction the costs and dubious morality of stationing a huge army in India in order to keep this jewel of empire in subjection. This is the crux of the problem; India by 1945-46 was ungovernable just as Ireland had been before and as Cyprus since. No amount of proclaimed virtue in helping colonies can eliminate the simple fact that what has happened in the past will happen again. Yet the seeming majority of the Conservative members of the House of Commons has accepted the view first suggested by the Round Table in 1923 that unless "we are able to harden our hearts and to ignore resolutely, demands which however persistent, are clearly unreasonable, we shall lose the empire". A curious idea of the white man's burden! Some of these imperialists continue blindly to urge that empire is an immense responsibility for human welfare and betterment; but the point is missed by a few such as the Suez group of rebel Tories in 1957 who looked at world maps with a lot of red spots on them and myopically see prestige.

Thus a substantial group of Conservatives is clothed in the self-righteousness of their belief in mission. To ask them to make haste or to use violent measures against them will merely provoke these physicians to attempt to bind the colonies tighter so that they may administer their medicines and panaceas. They cannot see that this action will provoke more violence. The end result of such policy in Ireland was a tragic hatred of Britain; and we cannot assume that the basic funds of goodwill will always be as great in future as they were among the leaders of India, Pakistan, Ceylon and Malaya. This desire to give unpalatable remedies may soon dissipate itself but its influence is still very real. Nor were the lunatic fringe of the Conservative Party, the Suez group, notably given their come-uppance at the last election.

These are the pressures against which Mr. Macleod will have to contend if he is to make any progress. There is no use in blaming the problems of empire on the mythical "establishment", the whipping boy of the "Angries" who still cling to the naive belief that the empire is a vast system of outdoor relief for the upper classes. Rather the more moderate medicine-givers must be weaned from their self-conscious virtue and charity.

For this reason we cannot hope for miracles from Mr. Macleod. Mr. Lennox-Boyd has gone. His policies will probably remain. And it will not be very long before Mr. Mboya, so recently forced to give bond for good conduct, and less recently released from prison, will be received by the Queen as one of the statesmen of the commonwealth in Africa. Or is even this hope too optimistic?

WELCOME HOME

Varsity graduates from as far back as 1897 return today to the biggest Homecoming Celebration in the history of the University of Toronto.

Thousands of U of T alumni will participate in class reunions, dinners, receptions, and discussions during the weekend which marks the start of the National Fund U of T Campaign.

Former Varsity athletes gather tonight at an Athletic Reunion Dinner honoring the 1909 football team which played in the first Grey Cup game.

However, its six surviving members are still youngsters compared to Rev. Wesley Hare, who played on the '97 team. He is driving in from St. Catharines to attend the dinner.

Speakers at the affair include Opposition leader Lester B. Pearson, former coach of the now defunct Orfuns, and Toronto Metro Chairman Fred Gardiner.

Over 21 former Blues captains and Copp award winners are expected to show up at the $10 plate dinner. Top sports names like Joe Brean, Bill Muntz of the Argonauts, Fred Smale of the Ottawa Rough Riders, another Blues coach Bob Coulter, Con Smyth, and Olympic hockey player Wally Halder.

The five Miss Varsity finalists will appear at the dinner before going to the Homecoming Show at Varsity Stadium. There, some lucky female will walk off with the first Miss Varsity title in U of T history.

The girls will be judged by Telegram columnist Nancy Phillips, Jo Ratcliffe of the Star, CJBC disc jockey Bruce Smith, Nelson Earl, Chairman of the Homecoming weekend, Walter McLean, Students' Administrative Council president, and SAC vice-president Barb Leamen.

The winner will be announced by Bruce Smith, and TV and stage actress Toby Robins will present her with eighteen roses and an engraved compact. The other finalists will also receive compacts.

Judging of the Miss Varsity contest is the highlight of the hour and a half show, which contains 18 acts and over 200 professional and amateur performers.

"This looks like a very good production. I am pleased with it," Producer Jim Vasoff said.

Kathy McBain, graduate of the Faculty of Music and second place winner on the Arthur Godfrey program last year, has been chosen to fill in for TV singer Joan Fairfax, previously scheduled to headline the show.

The National Fund Campaign will be officially launched at a breakfast for Fund canvassers in the Great Hall of Hart House, Saturday morning. U of T President Claude T. Bissell and co-chairmen of the National Fund Committee Wallace McCutcheon and Neil McKinnon will preside. A closed circuit TV system will relay the ceremonies to additional canvassers meeting in Vic, UC, SAC, and Trinity.

The annual float parade starts from Devonshire Place at 10:30 Saturday.

Jim Vasoff presents

did not neglect his studies. He stood first through public and high school. In fifth time, he stood second instead of first, and the only scholarship that was available to him he wanted to take in University.

His mother was working overtime as a Jim, and he himself had earned enough to pay a large part of his expenses in first year.

Jim Vasoff had had no dramatic experience came to University but on the first day of engineering, he noticed a sign advertising for Skule Nite. Intrigued, Jim went to the in the Engineering Building to enlist.

The girl whose name was mentioned was not quite understand what the exuberant was talking about. She thought he was in process of telling him so when Jim broke in with "Now I go Varsity". It was one of his in a moment of inspiration that came one working as a dishwasher.

Fortunately for Jim, before the traitor finish telling him what she thought of the director of the show overheard the song on the spot.

Jim was officially a script writer but he got under way, the director found that he got actors. He looked once around the room and saw Jim Vasoff. Jim found himself the producer and distinct roles in "Skule Nite".

Mr. Vasoff was the hit of the 53rd anniversary. He asked him what the girl pleaded the fifth amendment.

Following the success of his first show was fatally infected with the "theatre" year, he helped to write Skule Nite and two hour show.

Finally in third year, Jim Vasoff's became the producer and director of Skule Nite and Jim became co-director. This was the "engineers riot" and morale in the Skule

Toby Robins looks sultrily sexy and we've been promised she'll look even sexier tonight as she crowns Miss Varsity 1959. But she'll be too far away for you to tell if she's looking sultry.

The crowning ceremony is planned as the Crown-jewel glory of the Homecoming Show, which gets underway in Varsity Stadium at 8.15 p.m.

Varsity Special Photo.

w To ...

you're thinking of entering the upcoming Float Parade tomorrow. Well, here are the rules.

The Parade starts at 10 a.m., but less all floats are required to be assembled at Devonshire place by 9 a.m. They're supposed to enter by Ave. and then face Bloor St.

Despite the long-standing rule that on traffic keep right, the floats will line up in order of their position on the left side of the road.

Floats will follow route marked on map. Floats are allowed to follow their route.

Floats will make one complete circuit of the campus. Then all the six semi-finalists will be directed to the Hart House Loop where they remain until the judging is finished.

These floats are Looping, the finalists will again circle the campus.

Three finalists will then line up at the judging stand for the judging.

Judges will then pick and announce the winner.

... Parade

HOME

Parade theme this year is University Expansion: The ? of Things Come.

The three winning floats will be paraded during the Half-time Show at the Varsity-Western Homecoming Game, Saturday afternoon.

The show features a Roaring Twenties auction number, and the presentation of the 1909 Blues team by President Bell.

The climax will be the arrival of Miss Varsity and the four contest finalists riding 1960 convertibles. The Western Half-time Show will be presented before the game.

And the game, focal point of all these Homecoming activities, will be kicked off by Lester Pearson.

n't

class all the first by a hair the courses ss to help summer to before he ration for apt-writers place sign did Mr. Vasoff was in the chorus of composed file he was ady could tions, the ed Jim up rehearsal little short drafted Mr. of five

As he a "rude Mr. Vasoff

Mr. Vasoff his second head in the

ame. Both their years notorious nts lowest.

Proclaim U of T Month
In Campaign Kick-Off

A five-way breakfast-banquet and the proclamation of November as "University of Toronto Month" tomorrow morning will kick-off the largest fund-raising campaign ever staged by a Canadian university.

Minimum objective of the month-long nation wide campaign is $12,600,000, but officials of the National Fund for the University of Toronto candidly say they hope the total will be "upwards of $18,000,000".

The money will be swallowed up in the $52,400,000 which will be spent on the U of T's first five-year plan, which runs until 1963.

The plan, the first phase of the 10-year expansion program which will see the U of T's enrolment rocket to 23,000 students from the present 13,000, will see 19 new buildings built on campus.

It will also see the campus expand westwards to Spadina Ave, swallowing 23 acres of the City of Toronto in the process.

First of the new buildings, Victoria's 200-bed Margaret Addison Hall, was opened early in September, and the new Institute of Aerophysics was officially unveiled earlier this month.

Today at 3.30 p.m. the campus' 3,000 co-eds will have a place all to their own where they can be athletic as the new Women's Athletic Building is opened.

And for the next four years that's going to be pretty much the story as one by one the 19 new buildings are built and then opened and then pressed into use to accommodate an ever-growing enrolment.

But this hive of activity will be nothing compared to the busy-bodies of the National Fund as they fan out across Canada to collect their $12,600,000, or whatever sum they finally realize.

Tomorrow's official opening of the National Fund will be more of a pep-rally than a money-raising gimmick.

As the canvassers meet in five separate dining rooms—Hart House, Victoria, Trinity, St. Michael's and University College—before 9 a.m. breakfast, they will hear Mayor Nathan Phillips read his proclamation over closed-circuit television.

They'll then hear speeches from the Fund's co-chairman, Bank of Commerce President Neil J. McKinnon, and Argus Corp Executive Vice-President M. Wallace McCutcheon, they'll see a 14-minute film called "Graduates of Tomorrow" and they'll be given their last minute instructions and their little canvassers' kits.

Then they'll go out to collect the money which will enable the University of Toronto to survive and to grow.

proclamation ...

Our City is the home of one of the world's great Universities—the University of Toronto—and much of our growth and progress can be attributed to the University as a centre of learning, research and discovery. It attracts great minds from many countries and its graduates are found in the far corners of the globe.

As Canada grows, so must our University. Our progress goes hand in hand with education.

To meet the growing demand for more university-trained people, the University of Toronto is launching a public appeal for money to help carry out an urgently-needed building program. For every student at the University today, facilities must be provided for two in the near future. The money must be found now if many capable young people in our schools are to have the opportunity for university education.

Because of the importance of this appeal to every citizen and parent, and in recognition of what the University of Toronto has contributed, and will in future contribute to this community and to our nation, I hereby designate the month of November, 1959, as "University of Toronto Month".

Nathan Phillips, Q.C., Mayor

by Kay
McCook
and
Ed
Roberts

Big Families, Small Ones,
But One Thing in Common

MARJORIE CHAPMAN of Victoria College plans to go to Europe this summer and then study at the Sorbonne.

Then she wants to get married and have "not too large a family".

What does large mean, Marjorie?

NANCY DAVIDSON from P&OT is the SAC student Services Chairman which includes the blood campaign, United Appeal and the University Expansion Fund Tag Day.

She wants to do physiotherapy somewhere in Canada, which means that she doesn't like Toronto.

Tell us Nancy, why don't you want to do Physio-Therapy in Toronto?

GILL GUEST from Art and Archeology, she plans to teach in England, travel, get married and have a moderate sized family.

Moderation anyone?

ANNE WILLIAMS from Law. Law? Yes, that's what it says Law.

Anne is second year of Modern Languages and Literature specializing French, German and English.

She is a Varsity cheerleader, on the class executive, works for the "Bob" revue and plays basketball and badminton.

And she is the representative of the faculty of Law.

Law?

GLENNA HART is now rehearsing for the lead role of the mother in the O.C.E. production of Thornton Wilder's "The Happy Journey".

She wants to get married "eventually" and raise a "large family".

So the rehearsal should be useful?

For some obscure reason Glenna although she was born and brought up in Toronto, plans to stay here after graduation.

There are six judges who must exercise "Solomon's judgment" in choosing one of these lovely ladies to be Miss Varsity.

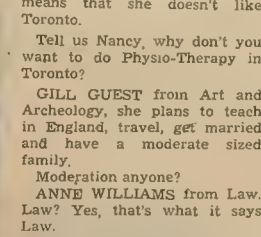

We take this opportunity to register our protest against this elaborate system of judging.

Miss Varsity should be chosen by The Varsity staff.

And then we would have five Miss Varsity's. We like them all.

MISS VARSITY candidates, from top left and counter clockwise: Marjorie Chapman, Glenna Hart, Gill Guest, Nancy Davidson and Anne Williams.

Varsity Staff Photo by Host.

Anne Kahane And Grant - - -

Grant Macdonald, whose paintings and drawings are currently being shown at the Roberts Gallery is one of Canada's more established artists. He was born in 1909 in Montreal and now lives in Kingston. He has studied in New York, at the Ontario College of Art, and in London, England. Among his many commissions, his Stratford Festival portraits have been outstanding. He paints in a traditional manner by making simple drawings first: these drawings, however, are works of art in themselves and reveal, in many cases, the personality of the sitter even more than the finished oil. His delicate, warm and intimate style makes him an excellent painter of women and children. The series of drawings of "Boy Sleeping" particularly, are examples of this attitude. An outstanding, striking painting is the "Gymnasts". Grant Macdonald is a painter painting the things he loves best, people. Without even meeting the artist, one can tell from his work that here is a remarkable personality. He is without pretensions. His art flows from his own personality and he paints within his scope. Love of materials and subject matter, fine workmanship, all prove his worth as an artist.

Another Canadian, the sculptress, Anne Kahane, is currently featured at the Isaac's Gallery. Now 35, she has studied in New York and lives presently in Montreal. Her woodcarvings, drawings and woodblock prints show that she, also, is interested in the human personality. Her sculptures are of small, rather intimate dimensions that have, on the other hand, a monumental quality. She has simplified and reduced her material (planks of poplar and walnut wood glued together) until it contains only the most significant lines and planes. In many pieces she combines both pure and painted wood.

With these two artists as examples, there seems to be a trend towards a renewed interest in people and the human figure it-

"non-objective" art that is self as opposed to the more current today. If one is to distinguish Canadian art, perhaps it is characteristic in its emphasis on humanism (in the broad sense of the word). It would seem that, once again, art is reaching out from the 'materialism' of the functionalists and from the complete annihilation of the human form by contemporary artists who create worlds within their canvases that exclude any suggestion of everyday reality. Art has been ignoring the human person, yet there seems to be a subconscious desire on the part of the sensitive artist to express a greater concern with human fate. This does not mean that the artist is trying to teach, he, above everyone is aware that in a world in which complete annihilation is threatening, in a world that is groping for some certain fate, the only certainty and the only hope is in the individual person and his love for the other person. This, then, perhaps is the characteristic quality of Canadian art, interest in humanity.

Joan Vastokas.

- - Macdonald

ARM IN ARM in redwood, by Anne Kahane. This sculpture stood at the Venice Biennale. And in the upper right another piece by Miss Kahane, and though this piece is not quite the same, you can see it at the Isaacs gallery. Which is swell. We pause.

uffs needs members

Marius—But

Marcel Pagnol's Marius will be shown by the University Film Society on November 1st. It is one of the films you never forget. It is a double panorama; in the background, the mobile geometrical images of the sails of a great port, in the foreground the human comedy of the Marseilles waterfront.

Its atmospheres of light and gloom evoke the story of a young man torn between two great loves: the sea, a woman. It is a tribute to Korda's direction that in spite of the film's age, its portrayal of the love and suffering of Marius, his girl, and their parents, never seem stereotyped or static.

The father (Raimu), is the centre of the last of the famous trilogy: Marius (1931), Fanny (1932), and Cesar (1933). Arguing, boasting, gambling, running his bar and his son with the same well-meaning volatility, his acting has great depth and life. Pierre Fresnay and Orane Demazis, as Marius and Fanny, are outdone by an eyebrow, though credit must also be given to the camera set-ups and sensitive lighting.

It is being shown at the Astor on November 1st, at 2:15, with the Critic and Film study of Odd Man Out, and Norman MacLaren's Le Merle, and will be introduced by Gerald Pratley.

But the Film Society needs 150 members desperately to support its ambitious program this year. Many were called, but few have chosen to hand over the necessary cash. Only a large turn-out at the showing will save the Society from imminent financial bankruptcy.

David Millar

york theatre finds uniforms

Courtly, Martial Mutiny

In the epilogue, The Caine Mutiny Court Martial, which opened last night at the York Community Theatre almost explains away the conflict developed in the rest of the play. Herman Wouk's adaption of his own novel is based mainly on the perennial conflict between conservative and revolutionary ideals, a conflict which focusses in Greenwald, defence counsel for the executive officer who is accused of mutiny. In the epilogue, Greenwald, at a drunken party to celebrate Maryk's acquittal, defends the neurotic captain on the ground that it was people like him who kept Greenwald's Jewish relatives from being turned to soap before the civilian soldiers and sailors could be trained. This is a travesty of the theme, and Wouk seems never to have quite decided why he is a conservative. He is the rebel without a cause turned inside out.

However, the play itself, in the first two acts, makes out a better case. It is based on the dilemma of men who see a position of respect held by a man they cannot respect, and this conflict is intensified by the war and the strain of battle. The success of the play depends on the reality of this dilemma, and it is in the creation of this that the York Theatre's otherwise good production sometimes fails. As Greenwald, Ronald Halliday is competent and sure of himself on stage, but he misses most of the depth in the character of the ironic lawyer. Ken Pauli, as the prosecutor, is similarly unsuccessful in establishing the point of his position. He must make the ideal of obedience and honour more real before the conflict in the play is decisively established. However, James Van Evera as Captain Queeg gives a fine, clear and convincing performance.

The production as a whole was smooth and enjoyable. Graham Fugie as Maryk had a tendency to let the pace lag and James Rutherford as Captain Blakely had inordinate difficulty with lines, but most performances were good. Mel Samuel and Paul Leslie were especially good in short appearances in the witness chair.

Director Donald Ford has come up with a well-shaped and entertaining production. Its chief fault is superficiality in the overall movement and the interpretation of the two lawyers. Ken Pauli does not seem to understand what he is prosecuting, and Ronald Halliday, although more aware of the meaning of his part, does not entirely realize the pain of his defence.

Dave Helwig

Friedelinde Wagner, granddaughter of Richard and Cosima Wagner, and great granddaughter of Franz Liszt, will lecture on Bayreuth at the Royal Conservatory of Music, next Thursday at 3.00 p.m. in the Concert Hall. Miss Wagner was born and raised at the Wagner home, "Wahnfried", in Bayreuth. Her brothers, Wieland and Wolfgang are the directors of the Bayreuth Festival. Since she was saved from Hitler's clutches by Arturo Toscanini, she has made New York her second home, for a long time living close to the maestro in Riverdale.

here and now

TODAY

2-5.30 p.m. — Torontoensis editor Sandra Whittall will be in the basement office of the Student's Administrative Council building to meet anyone interested in helping with the 1960 yearbook. There will be a meeting of all those interested in going on a ski-trip to the Laurentians or the

New England States during the Christmas holidays. The meeting is in the smoking room of the Sigmund Samuel Library.

4.10 p.m. Dr. W. A. Ritchie, archaeologist with the New York State Museum will speak on "Iroquois Origins and Development", in the Museum Theatre, Royal Ontario Museum.

SUNDAY

11.00 a.m. — Professor Greer Boyce will speak in Victoria College Chapel in the Series "A Faith for Today."

2.30 p.m. — There will be a general meeting of the Polish Students' Club, followed by a work session on decorations for the PSC Ball, at 206 Beverley St.

8.00 p.m. — All students and staff are welcome for coffee and TV at Canterbury Centre, 99 St. George Street.

8.45 p.m. — The Student Christian Movement will hold a fireside at

ROSEDALE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

129 Mount Pleasant Road
(2 blocks north of Bloor, 2 blocks east of Yonge)
11 a.m. — Public Worship
"The Christian Understanding of Death"
7.30 — "Focus on Christian Stewardship"
Followed by discussion and refreshments
SPECIAL WELCOME TO VARSITY STUDENTS

VICTORIA COLLEGE CHAPEL

SUNDAY — OCTOBER 18 — 11 a.m.
"A FAITH FOR TODAY"
5. REDEMPTION — Professor Greer W. Boyce
ALL ARE WELCOME

TRINITY

The United Church of Canada

427 BLOOR ST. WEST — at WALMER ROAD
REV. J. ROBERT WATT, B.A., B.D., Minister
John Linn, Organist and Choirmaster

11 a.m. "WHY DO WE RUN?"

7.30 p.m. "I COULDN'T CARE LESS!"

8.30 p.m. Fireside Hour

A Cordial Invitation to All Students To Attend
All Services in Trinity

THE VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP IN U.C.

PRESENTS "MAN LOOKS AT MAN"

Third Lecture by Prof. John Gerstner Ph.D., D.D., Mon. Nov. 2, 1.10 p.m. — Room 6, U.C.
"The Hebrew — Christian View & its Relevance Today"

1960 Graduates

Canada's Largest Employer FEDERAL PUBLIC SERVICE

needs

Civil - Electrical - Mechanical Engineering - Business ENGINEERS

An interesting and rewarding career may await you in the Federal Government if you are graduating in Civil, Electrical, Mechanical Engineering or Engineering and Business in 1960. New graduates in these fields will be employed at various Canadian centres on vital and challenging projects involving applied research, design, development, construction and production.

STARTING SALARY IS $4,740 — allowances will be made for those completing relevant post-graduate training.

CANDIDATES MUST WRITE A GENERAL OBJECTIVE TEST AT 9 A.M. ON SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 14.

Details regarding the examination, application forms and information circulars and folders are available from:

University Placement Office

5 WILCOCKS STREET

Or

Civil Service Commission OTTAWA

Park Road Baptist Church

1 Block North and East of
Bloor - Yonge

Minister: Rev. Murray J. S.
Ford, M.A., B.D.

VICTOR E. GRAHAM, Organist

SERVICES AT
10.45 a.m. and 7.30 p.m.

A Cordial Invitation to all
Students to Attend Inspiring
Services

University Lutheran Chapel

SUNDAY SERVICE — 11 a.m.

SUNDAY SUPPER — 5.30 p.m.

Student Club, every 2nd and
4th Thursday, at 7.45 p.m.

610 SPADINA
(below Harbord)

WA. 2-1884 — WA. 3-6840

BLOOR ST. UNITED CHURCH

300 BLOOR ST. WEST

Ministers:

Rev. Dr. Ernest Marshall Howse

Rev. J. Stanley Kennedy

Organist & Choirmaster

Frederick C. Silvester

11 a.m. — Century in Japan

Dr. E. M. Howse

7 p.m. — Christian Ideology

Dr. E. M. Howse

The Campus Club will meet
after the Evening Service

All Students Welcome

ST. ANDREW'S United Church

117 BLOOR ST. EAST

near Yonge St. Subway

Minister:

REV. WILLIAM BRIGGS

M.A., B.D., Ph.D.

Organist & Choir Director:
EDGAR GOODAIRE

11 a.m. — "The Ability of Christ"

7.30 p.m. — "Solid Ground"

Students cordially invited
to attend

which, the "Twentieth Century Folk Mass" will be played and discussed. Everyone is welcome at the Coach House, 110 St.
George Street.

MONDAY, TUESDAY and WEDNESDAY

8.30 p.m. — Victoria College presents the annual Bob Revere "The Big F", a sparkling satire on Vic's college life, produced by Mike Ross, directed by John Rumball. Hart House Theatre.

MONDAY

7.30 p.m. — The Ukrainian Stu-

Trinity College Chapel

SUNDAY

8.00 a.m. — Mattins

8.15 a.m. — Eucharist

EVERYBODY WELCOME

dents' Club will hold their second general meeting, in Victoria College Students' Union, Wymilwood,
150 Charles St. W.

7.30 p.m. — Badminton for all graduate students, sponsored by the Graduate Students' Union, in the Drill Hall, 119 St. George St.

KNOX

Presbyterian Church

invites all students to the Special Services
Marking the 139th Anniversary of the Congregation.
Guest Minister
Dr. John H. Gerstner
Worship Sunday
11 a.m. - 7 p.m.
Young People Meeting
8.30 p.m.
Recreation - Friday 8 p.m.
(at Youth Centre, 16 Bancroft Street)
Spadina — Harbord

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE

Thursday Afternoon Lecture Series

Nov. 5 THE VICTORIAN INHERITANCE OF GEORGE BERNARD SHAW

President Claude Bissell

Nov. 12 FROM POE TO KAFKA

Professor L. Hofrichter

Nov. 19 PROUST'S ALCHEMY

Professor V. E. Graham

Nov. 26 THUCYDIDES

Professor W. P. Wallace

Dec 3 THE PHILOSOPHY OF REVOLUTION

Mr. D. P. Gauthier

West Hall, University College, at 4.30 p.m.

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO BOOK DEPARTMENT

on the front campus

Current books of scholarly interest

Quality Paperbacks

International periodicals section

Gift and stationery supplies

Regular hours Monday to Thursday 8.30 to 5.30

Friday 8.30 to 5

OPEN THIS SATURDAY 9 to 1

SATURDAY LUNCH GREAT HALL, HART HOUSE

BEFORE THE WESTERN-VARSITY GAME

Open to MEN and WOMEN of the University and Guests

Saturday, October 31st 11.45 a.m. to 1.30 p.m.

Hart House

At Caledon: Grad Physics Society
NEXT WEEK

MONDAY, November 2nd

8.00 Holy Communion - Chapel

1.30 p.m. Sing Song (half-hour) East Common Room

5.00 p.m. Glee Club Full Rehearsal - Music Room

7.15 p.m. Revolver Club - Rifle Range

TUESDAY NOVEMBER 3rd

8.00 a.m. Holy Communion - Chapel

5.10 p.m. Amateur Radio Code & Theory Class - Debate

Loft

7.00 p.m. Glee Club Full Rehearsal - Music Room

7.15 p.m. Duplicate Bridge Tournament - East Common R.

7.30 p.m. Art Class - Art Gallery

First Library Evening - Library, Guest Speaker

Mr. Morley Callaghan "The Trend of the Times in Writing.

8.00 p.m. Archery - Rifle Room

WEDNESDAY, November 4th

12.15 p.m. Noon-day Prayers - Chapel

5.00 p.m. Wednesday Five O'Clock Recital - Music Room

Rhoda Pendleton, Soprano

7.00 p.m. Table Tennis - Fencing Room

THURSDAY, November 5th

8.00 p.m. Holy Communion - Chapel

5.10 p.m. Amateur Radio Code & Theory Class - Debate

Loft

5.15 p.m. Record Room Instruction - Record Room

7.30 p.m. Art Class - Art Gallery

8.00 p.m. Archery - Rifle Range

FRIDAY November 6th

1.30 p.m. Sing Song - East Common Room

SUNDAY, November 8th

ALL-UNIVERSITY CHURCH SERVICE - Great Hall

OPEN HOUSE THE WOMEN'S ATHLETIC BUILDING

Will be open for inspection during the week of Nov. 2 - 6 from 3.30 to 5.30

All Students are Welcome Guided Tours will be Conducted for your convenience.

The Scoreboard

FOOTBALL
Senior
	P	W	L	T	F	A	P
Western	4	4	0	0	59-21	8
Toronto	4	3	1	0	59-23	6
Queen's	4	1	3	0	30-46	2
McGill	4	0	4	0	23-81	0
Future Games
Tomorrow -- Western at Toronto:
McGill at Queen's:
Western Intercollegiate
	P	W	L	T	F	A	P
U.B.C.	3	3	0	0	105-38	12*
U of Alta.	5	3	2	0	138-67	6
U of Sask.	4	0	4	0	16-154	0
*(All B.C. games are 4 points)

SPORT OF JUDO

There are still openings in Instructional Classes at 12.00 noon on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday. This activity assists in promoting and maintaining physical and mental health.

Report to Mr. Griffith's office in the Athletic Wing.

GAMES TODAY

FOOTBALL	East	4.00	Pharm	vs	Dent	Stokes, Flannigan, Marchut
SOCCER	North	4.15	Law	vs	Forestry	Avis
VOLEYBALL	1.00	Pre-Dent	vs	Vic. M.P.H.'s	Draimlin

VARSITY vs. WESTERN Tomorrow at 2 p.m.

OFFICIAL LINE-UP

VARSITY BLUES
20 John Metras Jr.	20 Ron Crawford	21 Milt Jewell	22 Peter Eby	23 Peter Warren	24 Bill Bulucon	25 Trevor Eyton, Co-Capt.	26 Sandy Bell	27 Morgan Dever	28 Weldon Thoburn
21 Bill Mitchell	21 Milt Jewell	22 Peter Eby	23 Peter Warren	24 Bill Bulucon	25 Trevor Eyton, Co-Capt.	26 Sandy Bell	27 Morgan Dever	28 Weldon Thoburn	29 Mike Jackson
22 Wayne Neal	22 Peter Eby	23 Peter Warren	24 Bill Bulucon	25 Trevor Eyton, Co-Capt.	26 Sandy Bell	27 Morgan Dever	28 Weldon Thoburn	29 Mike Jackson	30 Mike Chykaluk
23 Brent Mundy	23 Peter Warren	24 Bill Bulucon	25 Trevor Eyton, Co-Capt.	26 Sandy Bell	27 Morgan Dever	28 Weldon Thoburn	29 Mike Jackson	30 Mike Chykaluk	31 Casey Wood
24 John Partington	24 Bill Bulucon	25 Trevor Eyton, Co-Capt.	26 Sandy Bell	27 Morgan Dever	28 Weldon Thoburn	29 Mike Jackson	30 Mike Chykaluk	31 Casey Wood	32 Brian Bradstock
25 Jim Edgar	25 Trevor Eyton, Co-Capt.	26 Sandy Bell	27 Morgan Dever	28 Weldon Thoburn	29 Mike Jackson	30 Mike Chykaluk	31 Casey Wood	32 Brian Bradstock	33 Bill Kay
26 Jack Barclay	26 Sandy Bell	27 Morgan Dever	28 Weldon Thoburn	29 Mike Jackson	30 Mike Chykaluk	31 Casey Wood	32 Brian Bradstock	33 Bill Kay	34 Mike Muir
27 Bill Parkinson	27 Morgan Dever	28 Weldon Thoburn	29 Mike Jackson	30 Mike Chykaluk	31 Casey Wood	32 Brian Bradstock	33 Bill Kay	34 Mike Muir	35 Doug Jack
28 N. Hubley	28 Weldon Thoburn	29 Mike Jackson	30 Mike Chykaluk	31 Casey Wood	32 Brian Bradstock	33 Bill Kay	34 Mike Muir	35 Doug Jack	36 Doug Lougheed
29 Ando Luik	29 Mike Jackson	30 Mike Chykaluk	31 Casey Wood	32 Brian Bradstock	33 Bill Kay	34 Mike Muir	35 Doug Jack	36 Doug Lougheed	37 Doug Baird
30 Dennis Bradley	30 Mike Chykaluk	31 Casey Wood	32 Brian Bradstock	33 Bill Kay	34 Mike Muir	35 Doug Jack	36 Doug Lougheed	37 Doug Baird	38 Walt Sopinka
31 Harvey Scott	31 Casey Wood	32 Brian Bradstock	33 Bill Kay	34 Mike Muir	35 Doug Jack	36 Doug Lougheed	37 Doug Baird	38 Walt Sopinka	39 Bob House
32 John Humphrey	32 Brian Bradstock	33 Bill Kay	34 Mike Muir	35 Doug Jack	36 Doug Lougheed	37 Doug Baird	38 Walt Sopinka	39 Bob House	40 Everett Rush
33 Jack Coups	33 Bill Kay	34 Mike Muir	35 Doug Jack	36 Doug Lougheed	37 Doug Baird	38 Walt Sopinka	39 Bob House	40 Everett Rush	41 Nick Sopinka
34 Bob Fox	34 Mike Muir	35 Doug Jack	36 Doug Lougheed	37 Doug Baird	38 Walt Sopinka	39 Bob House	40 Everett Rush	41 Nick Sopinka	42 Bob Campbell
35 Larry Sraw	35 Doug Jack	36 Doug Lougheed	37 Doug Baird	38 Walt Sopinka	39 Bob House	40 Everett Rush	41 Nick Sopinka	42 Bob Campbell	43 Doug Wyles
36 Bob Pearson	36 Doug Lougheed	37 Doug Baird	38 Walt Sopinka	39 Bob House	40 Everett Rush	41 Nick Sopinka	42 Bob Campbell	43 Doug Wyles	44 Doug Boyd
37 Ed. Mularchyk	37 Doug Baird	38 Walt Sopinka	39 Bob House	40 Everett Rush	41 Nick Sopinka	42 Bob Campbell	43 Doug Wyles	44 Doug Boyd	45 Dick Farr
38 Richard Clark	38 Walt Sopinka	39 Bob House	40 Everett Rush	41 Nick Sopinka	42 Bob Campbell	43 Doug Wyles	44 Doug Boyd	45 Dick Farr	46 Steve Chisholm, Co-Capt.
39 Lorne Forstner	39 Bob House	40 Everett Rush	41 Nick Sopinka	42 Bob Campbell	43 Doug Wyles	44 Doug Boyd	45 Dick Farr	46 Steve Chisholm, Co-Capt.	47 Mike Smith
40 Gary Boug	40 Everett Rush	41 Nick Sopinka	42 Bob Campbell	43 Doug Wyles	44 Doug Boyd	45 Dick Farr	46 Steve Chisholm, Co-Capt.	47 Mike Smith	48 Ian Knowles
41 Ken Rysdale	41 Nick Sopinka	42 Bob Campbell	43 Doug Wyles	44 Doug Boyd	45 Dick Farr	46 Steve Chisholm, Co-Capt.	47 Mike Smith	48 Ian Knowles	49 Al Connelly
42 Frank Cosentino - Captain	42 Bob Campbell	43 Doug Wyles	44 Doug Boyd	45 Dick Farr	46 Steve Chisholm, Co-Capt.	47 Mike Smith	48 Ian Knowles	49 Al Connelly	50 Pete Potter
43 Clark Samways	43 Doug Wyles	44 Doug Boyd	45 Dick Farr	46 Steve Chisholm, Co-Capt.	47 Mike Smith	48 Ian Knowles	49 Al Connelly	50 Pete Potter	51 Dave Creswell
44 Dino Galgani	44 Doug Boyd	45 Dick Farr	46 Steve Chisholm, Co-Capt.	47 Mike Smith	48 Ian Knowles	49 Al Connelly	50 Pete Potter	51 Dave Creswell	52 Ken Myers
45 George Shepherd	45 Dick Farr	46 Steve Chisholm, Co-Capt.	47 Mike Smith	48 Ian Knowles	49 Al Connelly	50 Pete Potter	51 Dave Creswell	52 Ken Myers	53 Bob Dann
46 John Sloan	46 Steve Chisholm, Co-Capt.	47 Mike Smith	48 Ian Knowles	49 Al Connelly	50 Pete Potter	51 Dave Creswell	52 Ken Myers	53 Bob Dann	54 John McMurry
47 Gary Ewart	47 Mike Smith	48 Ian Knowles	49 Al Connelly	50 Pete Potter	51 Dave Creswell	52 Ken Myers	53 Bob Dann	54 John McMurry	55 Paul Burroughs
48 Roger Stewart	48 Ian Knowles	49 Al Connelly	50 Pete Potter	51 Dave Creswell	52 Ken Myers	53 Bob Dann	54 John McMurry	55 Paul Burroughs	56 Jim Murchie
49 Frank Loftus	49 Al Connelly	50 Pete Potter	51 Dave Creswell	52 Ken Myers	53 Bob Dann	54 John McMurry	55 Paul Burroughs	56 Jim Murchie	57 Manager: Bob Miner
50 John Wydarney	50 Pete Potter	51 Dave Creswell	52 Ken Myers	53 Bob Dann	54 John McMurry	55 Paul Burroughs	56 Jim Murchie	57 Manager: Bob Miner
51 Roy Wood	51 Dave Creswell	52 Ken Myers	53 Bob Dann	54 John McMurry	55 Paul Burroughs	56 Jim Murchie	57 Manager: Bob Miner
52 Barry Thompson	52 Ken Myers	53 Bob Dann	54 John McMurry	55 Paul Burroughs	56 Jim Murchie	57 Manager: Bob Miner
53 Meco Poliziani	53 Bob Dann	54 John McMurry	55 Paul Burroughs	56 Jim Murchie	57 Manager: Bob Miner
54 Lionel Conacher	54 John McMurry	55 Paul Burroughs	56 Jim Murchie	57 Manager: Bob Miner

Coach: John Metras

Coach: Dalt White

Asst. Coaches: Jack Fairs
Ed DeArmon, Mike Yuhaz

Asst. Coaches: Jack
Kennedy, John McManus

Cut out this line-up and use it tomorrow. Lineups will not be distributed in the Student Section.

Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! MONTREAL TRIP RESERVATION

(TICKETS ARE NOW BEING SOLD)

If you are prepared to adhere to the conditions previously advertised, please complete the following details and send this reservation to the S.A.C. office immediately so that a ticket can be reserved for you — we shall be limiting our responsibility this year 1600 students (800 on each going train)

All Tickets MUST be Collected by Thursday, November 5th, 1959.

Name

Address

Telephone

I wish to reserve a ticket for the ..... afternoon train ..... night train and accept the conditions of sale.

(Signed)

NO TICKETS WILL BE ISSUED ON THE DAY OF TRAVEL — TICKETS WILL NOT BE ON SALE AT THE STATION OR ON THE TRAIN

Huge Intramural Program Is Rolling Dents And Meds Group II Favorites

Lady Luck was just a little kind to Trinity as they edged Sr. SPS 7-6 in a well played Group I football contest. Skules' quarterback Derrick Lunn put SPS ahead with an eight yard ramble around end. The convert attempt went wide. Panthers fought back to score an uncovered major early in the second half. Speedy Barry Matheson carried for five yards off tackle for the touchdown.

The game winning point came on a 30 yard punt by John Cook. The ball, for all practical purposes was coming down just within the Skule end zone, and it appeared the receiver would be able to carry it out of danger. The fickle football, however, struck the cross member of the goal and bounced deep into the SPS zone for the point.

Victoria Red and Gold ran up their highest score of the season as they trounced a disorganized UC Redmen 21-0. Conduin scored two majors for the Vicmen while Seeback garnered the other. Mathews was credited with a two point safety touch, while Lambert completed the only Vic convert.

In Group II activity, Jr. SPS edged a revitalized St. Mike's squad 6-0. Dinsmore's TD provided the margin of victory.

Meds floored Forestry 29-0, to tie Dents as top powers in Group II. The quality of play in this game indicated that the second group finalists will provide tough playoff opposition to the major group.

Charron and Fear scored two touchdowns each for the doctors while Ashby completed three converts and Hall booted two singles.

Earlier in the week, Jr. SPS received similar treatment at the hands of Dents, as the dentists won 14-0.

Playing much better than pre-season expectations warranted, Dents boast a football powerhouse this year. Pete Morin and Norm Tolsky scored the majors for Dents. Tolsky's TD came when he picked up an SPS kick blocked by Telesniki and romped down field for the score. Morgan completed both converts.

In Soccer play this week, Sr. SPS and St. Mike's A battled to a scoreless deadlock. Forestry defeated Pharmacy 4-0. Years' Kill, Van Bers and Moens provided the goals for the woodsman. UC defeated Meds B 4-1.

Trinity A edged Med A 2-1 in a hard fought match while Knox shut out Architecture 1-0. W. Perry scored the winner for Knox. Close games were the order of the day as Vic edged Jr. SPS 2-1. Nevee and Bonfield scored for Vic while Roth tallied for Skule. Wycliff defeated Emmanuel by the same 2-1 score.

Turning to Lacrosse results, Vic II beat I Pre-Med 4-0. Shields, Atkins, Waugh and Welsbrod supplied the goals.

SPS I walloped St. Mike's A 7-2. Wallace scored a hat-trick for Skule while Lawrence counted two and Simpson and Dawson one goal each. Fama and Kostyk scored for the Irish.

Med I and Law battled to a 5-5 draw. White and Sloan scored two goals each for the doctors while Armitage got a single. Macdonald and Black doubled for Law with White counting one goal. Dents defeated SPS VI 6-4. Derrett scored four goals for the winners while Kennedy helped with two. Gibson counted two for SPS with singles coming from Bakke and Irwin.

SPS III shut out Trinity 3-0. Banks, Chapple and Rigney were goal scorers for the engineers.

St. Mike's B edged SPS V 2-1. Possmayer and Schmidt scored for the winners.

Finally, looking over the volleyball picture, SPS H defeated UC Pilams 15-6, 15-9. SPS J beat St. Mike's VIII 15-3, 15-8. Med I won over St. Mike's V 15-5, 2-15 and 17-15. Knox knocked St. Mike's (how many teams have they got) 15-4, 12-15 and 15-4. UC slipped by Pharmacy 15-3, 8-15 and 16-14.

Victoria won the Intramural harrier meet, squeezing by UC 28-24. Individual winners were J. Snider (Vic) followed E. W. Lahay (UC) and G. Jaschke (Vic).

Army and Navy

Soldier: Is your ice cream pure?

Salesgirl: As pure as the girl of your dreams.

Soldier: Give me a ham sandwich.

Helen: You say you saw the wedding? Who gave the bride away?

Harold: Nobody said a word.

Ralph: Do you know what good clean fun is?

Agnes: No, what good is it?

BLUE & WHITE TEA DANCE .... 25c At The Drill Hall

AFTER THE GAME — ON SATURDAY — 4 - 6 p.m.

THE FOOTBALL DANCE

SATURDAY NIGHT IS COMPLETELY SOLD OUT

SENIOR INTERCOLLEGIATE HOCKEY

The Varsity Blues Hockey Team will start practicing Friday, October 30th, at 5.30 p.m. at Varsity Arena. Any new players interested in trying out for the team please contact Jack Kennedy, Coach, Hart House Athletic Office.

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS

SOFTBALL—WEEK OF NOV. 2

Varsity	N.W. Trinity	S.E. Trinity
Men. Nov. 2—POTS vs. UC	Nurs. vs. PHE I	St. M. B vs Dents
Tues. Nov. 3—Vic II vs PHE I	PHE II vs St. M. A	St. Hilda's vs Vic I
Wed. Nov. 4—PHE II vs St. H	UC vs Nurs.	PHE I vs POTS
Thurs. Nov. 5—UC vs Vic II	Pharm vs Dents	Meds vs St. M. B
Fri. Nov. 6—POTS vs Nurs.	St. M. B vs Pharm	St. M. A vs Vic I

Games this week are to be played in the south-east corner of Trinity Field, as well as in the north-west corner of Trinity and Varsity Stadium. Default time - 1.20 p.m.

BASKETBALL

Game and Practice Schedule—Week of Nov 2 to Nov 6.

O.C.E.	Mon. Nov. 2	Tues. Nov. 3
5.30—Vic Freshies - St. Hilda's Jr. Fr. (Clauson, White)	St. Hilda's Jr. Sr. - PHE III (Patterson, Mahood)	Vic Freshies - St. Mike's A (Patterson, Mahood)
6.30—Vic Sophs - St. Hilda's Jr. Sr. (Clauson, White)
7.30—Nursing Jr. 8.30—St. Hilda's Sophs	Wed. Nov. 4	Thurs. Nov. 5
5.30—UC Sophs - Vic Jr Sr (Wood, Russell)	5.30—POT I - OCE (Wood, Russell)	Pharmacy - Nursing Sr. (Clauson, Black)
6.30—POT I - OCE (Wood, Russell)	7.30—St. Hilda's Sophs - PHE II (Papp, Load)	Nursing Jr. - St. Mike's B (Clauson, Black)
8.30—UC Freshies - PHE I (Papp, Load)		Vic Freshies - Dentistry (Hutt, Philpott)
L.N.	Mon. Nov. 2	Tues. Nov. 3
5.30—Nursing Sr.	6.30—UC Freshies	7.30—UC Freshies
8.30—Meds
		Wed. Nov. 4
		Pharmacy
		POT II
		U.C. Jr. Sr.
		Thurs. Nov. 5
		POT I
		UC Sophs
		PHE I
		PHE II

"EXPORT"
PLAIN OR FILTER TIP
CIGARETTES

Montreal Weekend
Hotel reservations at the
SHERATON
MOUNT ROYAL
phone
LIONEL COLMAN
WA. 2-2514

Request your Sheraton student identification card necessary for student rates.

Stronger Blues Defence For Game With Western

Most of the walking wounded will be available when Varsity Blues tangle with the Western Mustangs tomorrow afternoon in the BIG game of the year.

These include tackle Mike Chykaluk and end Walt Sopinka. Those not playing will be Dave Creswell and Malcolm Bell.

Blues are spending their last few practice hours sharpening up their pass offence. Not only must the Blues win, but they must do it by two touchdowns.

This means that they must score frequently and to do this a dry field and a good pass attack are almost essential.

The addition of Chykaluk and Sopinka to the Varsity defence should improve it immeasurably. Bruce Coulter, coach of the McGill Redman went so far as to say that Blues must have Chykaluk playing if they hoped to beat the Horsies.

Rookie halfbacks Mike Smith and Doug Boyd, so impressive against Queen's last week, will probably dress for the game. Boyd will probably run the left halfback spot in Creswell's absence.

Mustangs hopes ride with Lionel Conacher and Frank Cosentino on offence. Conacher is leading grandgainer in Inter-collegiate play this season, he has gained over 400 yards.

Metras hopes that his defence will be as effective as it was in London where they stopped the Blues four times inside the Mustang 10 yards line. Had Blues scored on those occasions, the score would have been around 30-16 for Varsity.

Notes . . . Varsity's leading grandgainer is fullback John McMurtry . . . he has amassed 178 yards in 53 carries . . . in the three years that Dalt White has been coaching the Blues, he has compiled a won 6 lost 3 record in games with Western . . . this includes a 46-0 and 41-7 pair of slaughters . . . this should prove to those Metras worshippers that them who have the horses wins.

DOUG BOYD rookie halfback with the Blues will be playing in veteran Dave Creswell's spot when Varsity meet Western in Saturday's game.

W.A.B. Opening Today New Pool Attraction

By PAM HILL

Forty years ago, the women of the University of Toronto started dreaming about a Women's Athletic Building of their own. Now in 1959, that idea has been actualized, formalized and materialized, and this 30th day of October commemorates the official opening of same.

The motion that a new Women's Athletic Building be founded on the "new campus" was approved by the Board of Governors in '57, and yb the end of that year, plans were finished, a location was sited and the actual building was begun in May, '58.

Now, this afternoon, an official Opening Ceremony is being witnessed in the large gymnasium of the new building. Over 5,000 graduate "T" holders have been invited, and tea is being served afterwards.

The speaker, Dr. Benson, who was president of the Women's Athletic Association from 1922 to 1945, will be introduced by the chairman, Mrs. Clark, the only female ever admitted to the Board of Governors. Also present in the procession to the platform will be Colonel Philips, chairman of the Board of Governors, President Claude Bissell, and present president of the Women's Athletic Association, Mrs. Kirkwood.

Besides guest speaker Dr. Benson, there will be a PHE choir of fifty voices, and the unveiling of the plaque, officially recognizing the founding and opening of the new building.

From 5:30 to 9:00 tonight, these guests will be welcomed to tea, and guided tours of the building and a U. of T. picture: "Graduates of Tomorrow."

All next week, November 2 to 7, from 3:30 to 5:30 every afternoon, the undergraduates are invited to Open House—open to anyone: male, female, Phys. Ed., Arts, Engineering, etc.

There is an Upper and Lower Gymnasium, both of which are larger than the Hart House gyms. And on top of that, there is a Large Gymnasium, 120' by 100', twice the size of the other two. A polyethylene covering has been purchased to cover the floor when the room is used for assemblies ((or exams!))

Further, there is a corrective room, a dance studio, individual team rooms, a common room, a lounge, a locker room containing 2500 lockers, two lecture rooms, offices, an archery range and golf cages. These are all in the touch-up stages of finishing—painting, furnishing, and heating. Most of the colours are a clean white, yellow, palish blue and

Benny The Bold Calls Western Cold

It is being the big weekend when all the graduated lusher are returning to the Campus and each carries with him the symbol of success—a chocking full twenty-sixer and a batch of Benny's old betting slips, which are not hay as they are being worth a goodly deal less.

I ask my old pal and booze companion what it is he does on campus and he answers lightly that he is a merely tourist as he is rubberchecking his way around the place on his holidays. Being as I am a sincerely fellow who does not mince his words or his opportunities I clap my friend—who is called Nathan of the Union which comes about as no self respecting hood ever uses him as a confederate on any jobs or otherwise—on the arm and offer him a proposition of mutual profit which happens as I make enough on dear Nathan for the both of us.

So it is happening that Nathan circulates among those older fish who return for the Homecoming and are, of course, being too wise to bet against Benny so that they follow my lead and bet my way so that it is being difficult to lift their loot.

Which is why I am circulating during the week several false rumours among the daily paperhangers of King Street to the effect that my own dear Blues do not have great chances and my former fishies who now are having enough money to buy these papers are reading these false reports and turning their hearts and wallets toward the Westerns.

Which is being the psychosomatic moment when old Nathan hits them with a bad marker and draws their loot from their withered old clutches with honeyed words and sticky fingers as they think that they bet with the correct callings but do not realize that these are being come one for fishies who are wise in their own eyes.

Only now do I release my true calls and glean the full profit from my nefarious scheme which keeps my Bluesers under wraps until the right moment which is now.

The Purple Ponies from Western who are riding high and handsome as they grow fat on the adulation of benighted sports-writers of small clairvoyance. But I notice that they grow somewhat faded in the harsh glaring lights of publicity and of day so that they are being now only a pale image of their former selves. But they are not having to worry longishly about their advanced anemia as the Torontos are getting busily to work at blackening the picture for them and their future as well if not worse. In order to get an idea of what is to happen to the Westerns in the debacle of this weekend I laboriously count up the dirty smudges on the picture which I am heretofore rescribing and I see that there are a total of some thirty three while there are a bare thirteen bright spots left to the livid horsilets who hide their head between their tails and toddle off home. In the meanwhile I am celebrating with my own dear Bluesers over the victory which I achieve for them. Note it well now Fishies Varsity 33, the Westerns 13.

It is very sad, especially when they return to their home corral Johnny Metras is crying so hard he starts a flood and cleans London from the map, as it is nothing more than an accidental dust speck therein to begin with, while the Purple Ponies are getting their just deserts as they are pastured on the north forty together with the other sheepish ones.

grey. All benches and other such wood-work are a regal U. of T. blue. The colours and medias look terrific, and it should be quite a thrill to actually start working in it.

But, of prime importance is the new swimming pool. It is 75' long by 45' wide, two lanes wider than Hart House. The bleachers seat 350, and there are ample shower-stalls, dryers, etc. A one metre board and a three metre board are not the least of attractions here!

But just to keep looking to the future, I hear the men are eager to get space on the new campus for an athletic building containing naught but the largest gymnasium in North America with a swimming pool beneath it. We wish them the luck and success that we've had with our new W.A.B.

This building, on the corner of Harbord and Huron Sts., was designed by Fleury, Arthur and Barclay. It is the most complete structure on the North American continent for women's athletics, and is by far the most modern as far as athletic equipment is concerned that this University—or any other Canadian U. for that matter—has ever seen.

Baby Blues Play Colts

By David Ingram

After today's game at Western, Baby Blues will hang up their cleats for another year. Thus far they have played three games, winning two and losing one.

Today's game against Western should prove whether or not they have advanced from high school stars to Varsity material. Many players such as Mike King, Mike Wright and Bob Lackey deserve a tryout with next year's Blue team.

I think, it is a shame that Intermediates are not in a football league of some sort vying for a championship. It becomes much harder to practice week after week when everyone knows that there is no cup at stake. Surely the University could work out some deal with the O.R.F.U. Junior League in Toronto and vicinity even if they had to play four point games. Without a league there is a lack of spirit throughout the University to ward Baby Blue football and this should not be so.

Good luck Intermediates in your final game.

LET'S BEAT THOSE MUSTANGS!

Discriminate Off Campus In Winnipeg

WINNIPEG, Oct. 27, (CUP)—Discrimination against West Indians has taken place in "many cases" in Winnipeg, but never on the University of Manitoba campus, the president of the West Indian Association said recently.

John Owai was commenting on the recent incident at the university of Toronto during which Bobbi Arrington was elbowed out when she tried to join a fraternity. The resulting controversy caused the Caput to state "definite action" may be taken.

Owai said "there is no question discrimination exists, but I haven't come across any case on campus". He told of an attempt in Winnipeg by negro students to obtain lodging in response to an advertisement. When they called last month they were told there was no room available.

Hit Commonwealth

Ask Punch

WINNIPEG, Oct. 29 (CUP)—The Commonwealth should put punch into its meaningless but often well-meant declarations according to a student symposium held at the University of Manitoba last weekend.

The group felt that in its present form the Commonwealth is almost useless, but its potential as a moral force for good in world affairs is very great.

To overcome this condition the symposium recommended:

- the setting up of a permanent consultative council to discuss thorny problems;
- a permanent secretariat to act as an investigation body, and information centre;
- a Colombo plan for Africa.

The symposium agreed if the member nations lived up to the principles which bind them together in the Commonwealth, and if the Commonwealth exerted pressures on its members to uphold the ideals to which they pay lip service, then the association would set an example of harmonious and peaceful living to the rest of the world.

The students recommended the formation of a permanent consultative council which would discuss all common problems, thorny or not, and suggested there should be standing commissions on these problems.

A plan similar to the Colombo plan should be established for Africa, the students said, but study should be given as to the best way to conduct such aid. This would allow underdeveloped countries to proceed at a suitable pace which would not upset their natural social and cultural lives too violently.

Mohammed Sein of Pakistan explained that Commonwealth aid, especially Canadian, is appreciated more in Asian countries than in American, because it is felt that Canadian aid is given disinterestedly and without political strings attached.

As a result of the interest aroused by the symposium, a model Commonwealth consultative council will meet at the university late in November, and once or twice in the second term.

Sports - Trophies - Games

Before you Buy give WILSON'S a try
WHOLESALE PRICES TO EVERYONE
The HAROLD A. WILSON
CO. OF TORONTO LTD.
328 DUPONT STREET

jazz!

HOUSE OF HAMBURG
GRENVILLE at YONGE

Fri: 11 p.m. Phil Nimmons Big Band
Sat: 11.00 p.m. — 3.30 a.m.
Sunday: 9.00 p.m. — 12.00 a.m.

martin bockner presents

EWAN MacCOLL

Britain's foremost folk singer

& PEGGY SEEGER

in a program of

FOLK SONGS

Sat., Nov. 7th at 8.30 p.m.

EATON AUDITORIUM

Tickets: $3.00, $2.25, $1.50 at A & A Bookstore, Towne Records, Eaton Auditorium Box Office, or Phone MEIrose 3-2411

Skulemen Get Cannon In Attack By Daylight

University of Toronto medical students are still scratching their heads, after six engineers pulled a flash raid Monday and snatched a prized Meds' trophy.

Under the noses of about 40 Meds students, the Skulemen ambled into the Medical Building Cafeteria about 2 p.m. Monday, and casually sat down at a table near a showcase housing a replica of the treasured Skule Cannon.

As the Medsmen ate lunch, talked and played cards, one of the engineers smashed the showcase lock and grabbed the pint-sized cannon.

The wooden and silver duplicate cannon was then dropped into a waiting briefcase; the Skulemen rose, walked out, and roared off in a car.

The leader of the Engineering group that staged the undercover stunt, said the action was launched to revenge a Meds kidnapping of the original Skule cannon last year.

At that time the Meds' Society lured two Engineers into lugging their cannon to a phoney address saying it was part of a publicity scheme to help with the blood drive.

On the way, the pair of Skulemen were attacked by a screaming mob of Medsmen who managed to lift the cannon from Engineering hands.

Later a truce was called. At an impressive ceremony in front of Hart House both sides made up and Meds gave back the cannon. As a token of good will the Engineers presented the replica to the Meds.

After that the duplicate cannon was not seen again until this fall when it turned up in the cafeteria showcase. But a week ago the Engineers learned the whereabouts of the replica.

"When we spotted it, our group decided full revenge for the kidnapping last year had not been reaped," an unidentified Engineer said.

Skulemen then spent three days going over the details of what they termed the "big snatch".

After two unsuccessful attempts to hoist the cannon Monday morning, Skulemen finally captured their prize on the third attempt.

To celebrate the victory they hauled the real Skule cannon under the cafeteria window and fired it. There was no response from any of the Medsmen inside.

President of the Meds' Society, Bob Lee, who found out about the snag Tuesday, said that all good Medsmen were "upset over the situation".

He added the Engineers had committed a grave injustice to Medicine by sweeping the cannon which represented a symbol of faith between the faculties.

Engineer president Bob Collins predicted war between the two faculties, but warned Meds to "think before starting anything they may be sorry for".

Chelsea Club

22 SHEPPARD ST.
EM. 3-2336

Tonight — Unusual Sounds with the

Alf Coward

Quartet

Sat. — Jumping with Johnny Swan's Quartet plus Pat Riccio Starts at 12

Folk Music

EVERY SUNDAY 9 - 12

Chelsea Club

This week Jerry Gray of the Travellers
22 SHEPPARD
EM. 3-2335

Player's Please

THE MILDEST BEST-TASTING CIGARETTE

HART HOUSE ORCHESTRA ASSOCIATES

1959-60 SEASON

Concerts On Sunday Evenings, with

DR. BOYD NEEL

CONDUCTOR

November 8th — English Composers

November 22nd — Italian Settecento Composers

December 13th — Bach Family

January 17th — Edvard Grieg

February 17th — Classicists & Contemporaries

Student Subscriptions for the Five Concerts — $4.50

Available at the Hall Porter's Desk, and at the Arts Colleges (Victoria College Alumni Hall) at Noon Daily This Week

It's a puzzlement:

When you're old enough to go to college, you're old enough to go out with girls. When you're old enough to go out with girls, who needs college? Oh well, there's always Coke.

SAY 'COKE' OR 'COCA-COLA'—BOTH TRADE-MARKS MEAN THE PRODUCT OF COCA-COLA LTD.—THE WORLD'S BEST-LOVED SPARKLING DRINK.

Varsity staff photo by One-Eyed Benny

AND O
U
T

See Page 7

THE VARSITY

Homecoming
Game

Vol. LXXIX — No. 19

Monday, November 2nd, 1959

I
N

Varsity staff photo by Terry Shaw

Made to treasure — gifts of lasting beauty in <sup>18-8</sup>Stainless Steel

AVAILABLE IN CANADIAN
RETAIL STORES
FROM COAST TO COAST

Here are gifts of enduring beauty that promise a lifetime of usefulness, many crafted by Canadian manufacturers in stainless steel containing Inco Nickel. Look for them in fine stores everywhere during the Christmas season.

You'll see the "gleam of stainless steel" in kitchen appliances and utensils, pots and pans, serving trays and fine, modern flatware. What lustrous and attractive gifts they make!

Inco Nickel gives stainless steel many of the excellent qualities that make it so practical around the home. Stainless steel—so easy to clean and keep clean—stays bright and new-looking for years and years.

This Christmas, select gifts of lasting value from the many fine quality Canadian products made from stainless steel containing Inco Nickel.

Write for a free copy of "The Exciting Story of Nickel."

THE INTERNATIONAL NICKEL

COMPANY OF CANADA, LIMITED

55 YONGE STREET, TORONTO

RESIGNED EDITOR Anne Tilbrook, who quit The Ryersonian when a discrimination article was not allowed to see print, pounds out copy in The Varsity offices. (Varsity staff photo by Walker.)

All Ontario U's To Join Petition

by Gene Glisky

Reports from universities throughout Ontario last night indicated the Hungarian petition plan initiated by the University of British Columbia Thursday has achieved massive proportions.

No reports were available on the fate of the plan in Western, Quebec and Atlantic regions.

The petition plan was adopted Thursday by the UBC Alma Mater Society after Dean Kalman Roller, head of UBC's transplanted Hungarian forestry department, asked UBC president Norman McKenzie for help in protesting the execution of Hungarian youths.

The youths, all aged about 18, have now reached legal execution age, and are being condemned for treason because they fought in the 1956 Hungarian Revolution.

Walter McLean, University of Toronto Students' Administrative Council president, said last night forms are now ready for distribution throughout U of T.

When completed, originals will be forwarded to Premier Nikita Khrushchov in Moscow, and photostatic copies will be sent to the Canadian External Affairs Department with the request that the matter be brought up in the United Nations.

McMaster University has already sent a telegram to Khrushchov protesting executions already reported and asking for information concerning executions scheduled in the next few weeks.

McLean said he has contacted student leaders at McMaster, Queen's, University of Western Ontario and Ontario Agricultural College, and all have agreed to distribute forms among their students.

Floats, Frats, Fund Mark Homecoming

The biggest Homecoming celebrations ever held by a Canadian university this weekend kicked off the biggest fund drive ever held by a Canadian university.

A five-way banquet breakfast Saturday morning was the official starting point for the month-long $12,600,000 campaign of the National Fund for the University of Toronto, but returning grads and non-studying students started the Homecoming celebrations long before that.

Closed-circuit television linked up the five dining rooms — Hart House, Burwash Hall, Strachan Hall, Brennan Hall and Howard Ferguson Hall — used for the breakfast.

First big event over the weekend was the opening of the new Women's Athletic Building Friday afternoon, and Friday night the male athletes of the U of T did a little bit of boasting too as they attended

THE VARSITY

Say Censored, Editors Resign

By ALAN WALKER
Varsity CUP Editor

Two editors of The Ryersonian new paper have resigned because an article on fraternity discrimination was squelched in the paper last week.

Anne Tilbrook, news editor, and Martin Dunn, managing editor, charged the newspaper was "under the thumb of Queen's Park".

"It's news that should be printed," Miss Tilbrook said last night, "but every move we make is carefully scrutinized by the Ministry of Education."

Mr. Dunn, says he watched helplessly as a front-page editorial was censored out of existence. "I don't feel like working for a paper that can't speak for itself," was his comment.

The article concerned Delta Sigma Phi, which is affiliated with a chapter on the University of Toronto campus. The fraternity's constitution has a clause restricting membership to "young men of the Caucasian race, living by modern Christian principles."

The Oxford English dictionary defines "Caucasian" as a member of the white race.

Last year, Ryerson Principal H. H. Kerr called the fraternity "a great asset to the Ryerson campus."

"In my editorial," Mr. Dunn recalled, "I expressed the idea that although the fraternity, as a private organization, has every right to discriminate, such discrimination should not be recognized by the school."

Miss Tilbrook and Mr. Dunn said the paper had planned to publish the article and editorial Oct. 27, but that the school's director of journalism, E. U. Schrader, decided to hold the

See also page 8 for Martin Dunn's personal story

THE PETITION

"We the undersigned, members in good standing of the University of Toronto, let it be known in the name of humanity that:

We hereby ask Premier Khrushchov to use his influence to have the lives spared of the young men and women who participated in the 1956 Hungarian Revolution, thereby demonstrating the sincerity of his plea for world peace."

article until he had conferred with the editors. As a result the article never appeared.

Mr. Schader was previously supervisor for Delta Sigma Phi. Last night he said he had resigned when he learned of the discriminatory clause.

Ryersonian editor-in-chief Bill Scott said last night the article might still be printed. He denied Miss Tilbrook's statements of political interference, and said Mr. Schrader had suggested the article be withheld only because the facts were incomplete.

Neither Miss Tilbrook nor Mr. Dunn were at a meeting held to discuss the article.

"It was an accident they weren't there," Mr. Schrader said, "it wasn't planned that way."

Delta Sigma Phi is known on the Ryerson campus as a "football fraternity" because most of the members of the Ryerson Rams are members.

There are no known cases of anyone being barred from membership. However, fraternities at Ryerson do not use the bid system as do U of T frats. Membership is by invitation only.

news snaps

—Auditions for the All-Varsity Revue are planned for Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday from 7.30-9.30 p.m. in Brennan Hall, St. Michael's College.

—An exhibition of silk screen paintings from California opens in the university library today.

Sponsored by the Canadian University Student Art Committee, the collection will be on view all this week.

—Auditions for University College's musical-tragedy "Katy Cruel" continue this week.

Prospective participants are asked to go to UC's Howard $6,500 campus goal collected so far, has extended its campaign until Wednesday.

Ferguson Hall Tuesday from 1-4.30 p.m. and Wednesday from 12.30-2 p.m. Male chorus members and more lead auditions will be welcome, officials say. Talent for the show is coming from all over the university.

—With 2,500 pints of blood in the kitty so far, the Red Cross winds up its university campaign tomorrow. Donations will be accepted all day today and tomorrow at the Red Cross clinic, 67 College St.

a banquet at which six survivors of the team of OT9 (the first team to win the Grey Cup) were guests of honor.

Friday night also marked the official start of the undergraduate's celebrations as 2,600 Toronto and Western students and a sprinkling of alumni gathered in Varsity Stadium to shiver through the two-hour Homecoming Show.

Highlight of the two-hour show was the crowning of Victoria College Marjorie Chapman as Miss Varsity, 1959.

Anyone who was close enough to see actress Toby Robins crown the U of T's first queen agreed that Miss Chapman's smile more than made up for the two-hour shiver.

Next big event on the crowded Homecoming schedule came early Saturday morning as students gave vent to their thoughts on the expansion program.

The 22 floats entered in the Float Parade had themes ranging all the way from Mohammed coming to the mountain to a rocket ship which said "the sky's the limit".

Faculty of Law emerged the winner, with the entry from St. Michael's taking second place.

The Faculty of Pharmacy's float took third place honors. Floats in the parade nearly had to float as a 12-hour down-pour overnight and throughout the morning dumped three inches of rain on Toronto.

MARJORIE CHAPMAN of Victoria College shows why she's Miss Varsity 1959. The pretty co-ed was officially crowned at Friday night's Homecoming Show. (Varsity staff photo by Shaw.)

why sign?

In 1956, the Hungarian revolution brought cries of outrage from statesmen, newspapers and the general public.

Protests were registered formally with governments and individuals added their personal appeals.

There were even the beginnings of a volunteer force similar in spirit to the "International Brigades" that fought in Spain.

The full weight of all the public opinion that mass communications of all the western nations could muster, was focussed for several weeks on Hungary.

And the result?

Russian tanks rolled into Budapest and within a matter of days the Hungarian revolution was crushed.

The acres of wordage that had been so passionately expended on the Hungarian revolution had not for one moment altered the course of events.

The Russian tanks were a cynical reply to the "force of public opinion".

And now, students are again being asked to add to "the force of public opinion" again in attempt to alter the course of events in Hungary.

And it is highly probable that the result will be the same. The cynicism of the Kadar government will answer these petitions in the same spirit that it did in 1956.

And yet there are two, very good reasons for signing the petitions that are now being circulated by the SAC representatives.

The first and perhaps most important reason is that we just do not know what the results of the petitions will be.

There are admittedly, excellent reasons for believing that the petitions will fail to make the least impression in Moscow.

The precedent for failure was well established in 1956.

But each new petition is submitted under different circumstances. And although the results of the petition may be perhaps predicted they are never assured.

And as long as there is a chance, no matter how fragile, that the petition may succeed in its aims, there is reason to sign it.

And there is a second reason signing the petition. Even if it has no effect whatever on the course of events in Hungary, it will have served a good purpose.

It will have recalled in a dramatic way the events of the revolution in 1956.

It will have reminded us that the spirit of the revolution has not been fully suppressed. For there can be no good reason for these executions other than a pointed example.

And every time we acknowledge the existence of this spirit and support it publicly, we are helping it survive.

We hope that we have provided two good reasons for signing these petitions.

If the response is apathetic, then the cynicism of the communists will have been justified by the cynicism of their opponents.

And we will all have lost.

The Tea Party And

By GENE GLISKY

As 30 Varsity football Blues (1959 edition) scrimaged solemnly in the chill glaring confines of Varsity Stadium in preparation for the big game next day, on Friday evening 250 members of former Varsity football squads (1898-1958) sat to dinner in the plush Empress Room of the Park Plaza Hotel.

Object of this stellar gathering was to pay tribute to Varsity Blues of 1909, winners of the First Grey Cup, the most coveted trophy in Canadian Football.

The dignity of years, the pressures of successful professional careers, have done little to remove the squared athletic shoulders and the twinkling eyes of a fine group of gentlemen.

Six of the remaining eight members of that historic team were present at the head table. Captain Jack Newton, Ewart Dixon, Dr. Smirle Lawson, George Kingslone, James J. Pearson and manager Bert Allison received the resounding applause of all present.

Surviving players who could not attend were Gordon A. Rankin, and E. Murray Thomson. Because of illness, coach Dr. Harry Griffiths was not present.

Captain Newton continued to hand out assignments, as he declined to speak for the team and handed the speakers role to "Red" Dixon.

Looking back in retrospect, said Mr. Dixon, "we feel there is not much time left. And therefore it has given us a great amount of pleasure to meet and greet our old friends and teammates again."

He went on to express regret on the absence and illness of Coach Griffiths.

The original "Big Train" of Canadian football, Dr. Smirle Lawson also spoke on behalf of the team. Looking as big, fast and tough as any present day fullback, Lawson created a jovial atmosphere. His comments varied from good natured ribs at Conn Smythe, to a nostalgic and lively discourse on the old time football tactics.

"Those boys really wanted to win," said Smirle, "I still carry the teeth marks of a boy that bit me."

"They were rough and tough, there was one fellow who wasn't much of a football player, but he could squirt tobacco juice with deadly accuracy so they used him."

Lawson concluded with a statement that was the creed of the "Big Train".

"All I wish to take from this life with me is laughter and a lot of good friends."

Football was throughout, the main topic of conversation, but time out was called to officially open University of Toronto month. An objective of $12,600,000 has been set, and a concerted effort to raise that amount will be required from all the ex-members of the Blues.

President Bissell, mayor Nathan Phillips and Lester B. Pearson all commented on the opening of the campaign.

Mr. Pearson said, "I am now playing a game with a split-P attack and a very unbalanced line, where there is unlimited interference and no illegal blocking. I am not sure whether on the team I am coach, quarterback or a lonesome end."

Of primary interest was the discussion concerning the subsidization of university athletes. Although all agreed that subsidization as such did not exist at the present time, surprisingly enough the idea of financial help to a student athlete was not rejected but actually endorsed as a sensible idea.

Enthusiasm and a mild form of football fever pervaded this distinguished gathering. Grayning a little, perhaps not quite at playing weight, the Varsity Blues through the years adjourned to the paid bar.

There, many a game was rewon relost or replayed, but slowly and surely the conversation drifted to the business world and a discussion of the stock market.

maughamism

Sixpence For Olivier's TV Debut

A dramatisation of Somerset Maugham's early novel, The Moon And Sixpence was chosen as the vehicle for Sir Laurence Olivier's American television debut last Friday night. The plot, somewhat loosely based on the events in the life of Paul Gauguin, deals with the life of Charles Strickland, a "dull" English stockbroker who deserts his family at the age of 40 to become a painter. But this is no romantic story of the tender awakening and subsequent fulfillment of artistic ambition. Strickland is a strange and tormented personality; he is cruel, selfish, brutal and sensual. Maugham says:

"His life was strangely divorced from material things, and it was as though his body at times wreaked a fearful revenge on his spirit. The satyr in him suddenly took possession, and he was powerless in the grip of an instinct which had all the strength of the primitive forces of nature. It was an obsession so complete that there was no room in his soul for prudence or gratitude."

The quality of the production Friday night was

The devil comes to the Victoria College tonight under the auspices of the "The Big F", this year's Bob Revue. A satanic thread weaves through this series of skits, ultra-contemporary in flavour. Written by Pat Bonn and Michael Cross, who is also producer, the show stars Heather Meen and Deane Hutchinson. Performances tonight, Tuesday and Wednesday at Hart House start at 8.30.

generally high, but the total effect was one of unrelated scenes rather than a cohesive whole. This is undoubtedly explained by the fact that the original kinescope was four hours long and the version was 75 minutes. The producer's bridge scenes by quotations from the book was largely confusing.

Olivier brought to the role of Charles Strickland his great talent and solid technique. He subsequently made the part seem much more realistic. Strickland is the sort of man who might dream about, but this cut-off in the hands of a lesser actor could have degenerated into a caricature. He was effective in the final scenes when Strickland is dying of leprosy.

Hume Cronyn turned in another of his manlike performances as a fellow artist, Stroeve. Stroeve is something of a caricature, but he understands art and is the only one who understands Strickland's genius; he is utterly devoted to Strickland. Jessica Tandy is Dirk's wife, whom Strickland seduces, then rejects. She did her best with meagre material. Deane Hutchinson portrayed the English writer who is telling the story, and Cyril Cusack played the pathetic doctor in Tahiti. Judith Anderson played another performance as Judith Anderson, in the guise of Tiare, a Tahitian hotelkeeper.

This production had a great deal of individual parts were excellent, but the overall can be said of the whole is that it is interesting.

THE VARSITY

Editorial and News Office
Basement, SAC Building — WA. 3-8742, WA. 3-8113

FOUNDED 1880

Published by
The Students' Administrative Council
of the University of Toronto

Toronto 5, Canada
Member Canadian University Press
Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221

The opinions expressed in this paper are those of the editor.

Editor-in-Chief	Sam Ajzenstat
Executive Editor	Mark Nichols
Managing Editors	Harvey Shepherd, Susie Breslin
News Editor	Ed Roberts
Features Editor	David Lewis Stein
Sports Editor	Dave Griner
AM&D Editor	Elmo Ciprietti
Photography Editor	Andy Stabins
CUP Editor	Alan Walker
Publicity Editor	Kay McCook
Associate News Editors	Terry Bourke, Jayne Nesbitt

"Suffer yourselves to be blamed, imprisoned, condemned; suffer yourselves to be hanged; but publish your opinions; it is not a right, it is a duty."

TODAY'S ISSUE — Lee Richardson, Fred Host, Ted Schafer, Mike Cross, Dave Bell, seven rolls of undeveloped film, Walter McLean, Brian McCutcheon by long distance, Roberts, rat, badger and all the other winds in the willows, father of many, husband of none.

Sexnik Bloodnik Broodnik

THE BLOODY BROOD (Downtown) offers the theatre-goer a basket full of beatnik "kick"—reefers, wild jazz filled parties, sudden violence, a generous dollop of raw sex and the best "kick" of all, good, commercial cinema entertainment.

Produced entirely in Toronto during March of this year by Meridian Films, this highly predictable, but skillfully put together sex and violence melodrama, proves that Canadian talent can produce a good commercial film. Producer-Director Julian Roffman, a veteran craftsman of documentary filming, has, with the help of three American imports and a superb cast of Canadian actors come up with a fast-paced, thoroughly entertaining piece of film.

Scriptwriters Edward Ullman and Ben Kerney have cleverly juxtaposed beatnik bedroom antics with vicious murder and the result is a stereotyped tableau loaded with slob appeal. Essentially, it is the story of the restless search for kicks by a group of against-the-grain beats, whose self-appointed leader, an epigrammatic dope pusher (Peter Falk) decides that the most in kicks is to feed an innocent messenger boy a hamburger spiced up with ground glass. The poor kid's straight-arrow older brother, however, doesn't dig the scene and soon is hot on the trail of the kick-killers, while a cynical flatfoot (Robert Christie) is off in search of a motive. Along the way, we meet a wild assortment of beatnik caricatures—an insanely talented sculptor (George Sperdakos) who hurls cement around and shouts "Michaelangelo, get out of town"; a goateed, horn-rimmed intellectual goon (Ron Taylor) who digs Mulligan on a transistor radio; a wild-eyed, boozey poet (Kenneth Wickes) whose most inspired line is "paddy cake, paddy cake, riddle for squares"; a hip-flicking, bedroom-eyed little sexnik (Anne Collings) who shakes the leotards around with considerable virtuosity; a punky, hard-punching slob (Bill Brydon) and a fork-wielding, sunken-cheeked delinquent (Michael Zenon) who delight in major surgery performed in dark alleys; a cadaverous, kick-hunting TV producer (Ronald Hartmann) who looks as if he had been suckled on bad beer; a hair up, hair down, neurotic little chick (Barbara Lord) who can't quite get with the beat; and, of course, a host of Toronto's beatniks playing themselves.

Generally, it's all very commercial, B-grade material, but then it is all very well done. The film has good pace, despite its stock situation predictability, and a suspense-chocked climax filled with enough brute violence to satisfy any ghoul. But skillful Director Julian Roffman is not aware that violence not only differs from intensity, but defeats it, or that such blatant naturalism as his must necessarily lead to unreality.

But despite these raults, the film is all of a piece, all of a personality, well cut and remarkably well photographed. Eugen Shuftan's camera roves around the realistic sets, cornering an exchange here, arresting an interesting face there, and always aware of the dynamic unity among the characters.

In the acting department, American import Peter Falk, like so many disciples of "The Method", is one-thousand percent sincere; he would not dream of uttering a line until he had lived it right down to the last drag on his reefer. His south of the border associates, Barbara Lord and Jack Betts, are equally convincing in a style more closely associated with traditional Hollywood film acting. It is the Toronto actors however, who shine brightest in the smaller, character roles, especially Bill Brydon, whose leather-jacketed punk will give most viewers a permanent dark-alley phobia.

Ted Schafer.

GRADUATE EMPLOYMENT

with the

CIVIL SERVICE OF CANADA

There are approximately 400 openings for Arts, Commerce and Engineering graduates of the Class of 1960.

ALL APPLICANTS, EXCEPT THOSE HONOUR STUDENTS APPLYING FOR SCIENTIFIC RESEARCH, MUST WRITE THE EXAMINATIONS TO BE HELD ON NOVEMBER 14. ONLY CANDIDATES SELECTED FROM THESE EXAMINATIONS WILL BE CALLED TO INTERVIEWS.

Full information on openings and examinations may be obtained at the Placement Service, 5 Wilcocks Street.

FINAL CASTING DAY

U.C. KATY CRUEL FOLK OPERA

SINGERS! DANCERS! ACTORS!

DIRECTED By Wm. DAVIS

CHOREOGRAPHY By DON GILLIES

TUESDAY NOV. 3, 1-4:30
HOWARD FERGUSON HALL

C
R
U
E L
by ARTHUR MILLER
directed by WILLIAM DAVIS
Next Week—Wed., Nov. 11—Sat., Nov. 14
THE U.C.-ST. MICHAEL'S THEATRE GUILD
TICKETS—HART HOUSE BOX OFFICE
ADMISSION: $1.50 - STUDENTS: $1.00

1961 ENGINEERS AND HONOUR CHEMISTRY MEN

The Proctor & Gamble Co. of Canada

HAMILTON, ONTARIO

has employment opportunities for the summer of 1960

Interesting assignments of a technical nature provide valuable experience in one or more of the following fields.

QUALITY CONTROL
MECHANICAL ENGINEERING
CONSTRUCTION ENGINEERING
INDUSTRIAL ENGINEERING

PRODUCTION SUPERVISION
PRODUCT RESEARCH
PROCESS DEVELOPMENT

Application forms and Company information may be obtained from your Placement Office.

our tednik

BUY FLOWERS
for all occasions at the
PARK PLAZA FLORISTS
10 AVENUE ROAD
WA. 3-6361
10% DISCOUNT TO
STUDENTS AND STAFF

Avenue Park Barbershop

STUDENT PRICES
152A BLOOR WEST
(just east of Avenue Rd.)

TYPING

Theses, Essays, Notes, Charts,
French, German, Latin, English
Prices Upon Request
Apt. 12
21 AVENUE RD.—WA. 2-7624
MRS. M. D. STOTT, B.A.

TYPEWRITERS

$1.00 A WEEK BUYS . . .
... $1.50 A WEEK RENTS
Get a free typing course and a liberal trade-in allowance for
your old typewriter when you buy a new modern machine
from us.

Phone HO. 1-1843 Today

PLAYBOY

MEN'S WEAR Shop

NOW HEAR THIS HARK

TO THE CALL
OF

THE KNAVE OF HEARTS
The Traditional Playboy

WHO HATH

GRANDLY OPENED THEIR DOORS

TO THE MAN . . . WITH A FINE SENSE OF ADVENTURE
TO THE MAN . . . WITH AN ALERT EYE FOR THE GOOD THINGS IN LIFE . . .

. . . PARTICULARLY FINE
CLOTHES WITH DASH AND VERVE.

SLACKS—BOLDLY STYLED
... $9.95

SPORTSCOATS—DASHING
... from $24.95

SUITS . . . ORIGINAL CON-TINENTAL STYLING.

Come in and get your
"Lucky 11" draw card. You may win a suit, coat, slacks or shirt.

Hours—9 a.m. to 6 p.m.
Thursday to 9 p.m.

790 Bay Street at College

Toronto - EM. 6-9466

PLAYBOY
MEN'S WEAR Shop

FRANK COSENTINO [62], Mustangs' quarterback managed to elude the grasp of these Varsity tacklers and attempt a pass. The hard rush put him by the Varsity players in this pic was typical of the fine defensive play by Blues in Saturday's game.

VSP Hoshkiw

Gaels Edge McGill 6-1

KINGSTON, (Special) — Queen's Golden Gaels continued their domination over the last place McGill Redmen, overcoming a stubborn defense and very wet conditions to beat McGill 6-1, here today.

Little headway was made by either offensive team in the first half of play. A constant rain and subsequently slippery footing made the game little more than a punting exhibition.

Immediately following the opening kickoff in the second half, Gaels marched 94 yards in two plays for the touchdown.

Mike Pettit received the McGill kickoff on the Gaels 16, handed off to Neil Dunstan who used his blockers to perfection to carry the ball to the McGill 47. Using both their quarterbacks from scrimmage, Gaels' Kent Plumley pitched to Dave Richards who in turn tossed to Bob McAleese for the major. The convert attempt went wide.

Redmen roared right back to the attack, but the Queen's defense held them out on the one yard line.

Joe Irwin kicked a single for the only McGill point.

The high flying Gaels met Western Mustangs in the last game of the season next Saturday at London.

Baby Blues Crush Colts

At Western last Friday afternoon, Toronto Baby Blues walloped Western Colts 32-0 in an Intermediate Intercollegiate exhibition game.

Baby Blues arrived at London to find out that the Western newspaper was boasting Colts as the best Intermediate team in years. After Intermediates read this report, they became riled. Soon after they took the football field Brian Cooper scored a touchdown, and from that point on they never stopped rolling.

Barry Rowland scored from the five yard line after Mike King, who was playing with a frozen back had set it up with an 80 yard run.

The other touchdowns were scored by Andy Grodzinsky, Bob McMurtry, and Brian Cooper. Harry Hall added one convert and a single to make the final score 32-0.

The complete Baby Blue team played well for John Sopinka's last game as coach for this team. The Blues should have a fine team next year judging from the Intermediates grand finale.

Soccer Blues Win Two Sweep Mustang Series

Varsity soccer teams swept a twin bill with scores of 5-1 and 2-0 from the visiting Western Mustangs on Saturday in Intercollegiate games which were delayed by the late arrival of the visitors.

Blues were kept waiting for two hours before the Mustangs, who had transportation troubles, finally showed. After hanging around so long, Blues were very slow in getting going once the game started and for most of the first half played well below their top form. Varsity had several scoring chances but as in previous games, the forwards managed to miss the net. Blues' Brian Michez and Jim Duncan were the pick of the forward line in the half.

In the second half the heavy going in the mud began to tell on the gallant Mustangs who so far had stayed with the Varsity team all the way. Blues' superior ball control enabled them to move the ball in the mud and do less running than the Western team. The first Varsity goal came on a penalty shot awarded to Blues which Roger Peretz took and made no mistake. Minutes later Peretz notched his second goal when he neatly heeled the ball home on a cross from Michez.

Varsity began to make the home score when he drilled through the centre of the Mustang defence and scored a low shot which caromed into the up-right into the net. The Mustangs came fighting back to score after three successive Varsity defensive miscues. Western's Dell through. However, quick goals by Brian Jim Duncan and Caddy Green clinched the game, the final score being 5-1 for Varsity.

In the Intermediate game the Baby Blues kept their unbeaten record with a scratchy 2-0 win over the Western Intermediates. Baby Blue scorers were Stan Fraser and Gabor Puski.

The Scoreboard

FOOTBALL

	Senior	P	W	L	T	F	A	P
Toronto	5	4	1	0	72-30	8
Western	5	4	1	0	66-34	8
Queen's	5	2	3	0	36-47	4
McGill	5	0	5	0	24-37	9

Weekend Results

Toronto	13	Western	7
Queen's	6	McGill	1

Future Games

Sat., Nov. 7—Toronto at McGill; Queen's at Western.
---

Intermediate

Toronto	32	Western	0
---------	----	---------	---

Western Intercollegiate

	P	W	L	T	F	A	P
U. B. C.	3	3	0	0	105-38	12
U. of A.	6	4	2	0	171-73	8
U. of S.	5	0	5	0	22-187	0

Weekend Results

Alberta	33	Saskatchewan	6
---------	----	--------------	---

SOCCER

	Senior
Toronto .....	5	Western 1

Intermediate

Toronto	2	Western	0
---------	---	---------	---

Like Thanks

Our warm hearted, jovial, brown eyed ever lovin' sports editor is grateful.

He is grateful to the footweary sharp lensed members of The Varsity photography staff who contributed many yards of exposed film and took pictures at the football game last Saturday.

Fellas, you did a good job. Not only that, you also took some good pictures.

In acknowledgement of the fine job you gentlemen performed, the Sports Editor hereby invites you all for a long tall cool one. Bring your own money.

Sports - Trophies - Games

Before you Buy give WILSON'S a try
WHOLESALE PRICES TO EVERYONE
The HAROLD A. WILSON CO. of TORONTO LTD.
328 DUPONT STREET

WANTED BOXING MANAGER

Please make application Intercollegiate Athletic Office.

SPORT OF JUDO

There are still openings in Instructional Classes at 12.00 noon on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday. This activity assists in promoting and maintaining physical and mental health.

Report to Mr. Griffith's office in the Athletic Wing.

A MESSAGE TO THOSE WHO ARE GOING ON THE

MONTREAL WEEK-END

(NOVEMBER 6th to 8th)

$12.50
RETURN
FARE

SAC
TRAINS
ONLY

FROM FOUR WORRIED FELLOWS WHO HAVE TO SUPERVISE THE TRAINS

From past experience we have found, the walk to Montreal, is pretty long and tiring with no chance to rest at all.

Please believe us when we say—we do not wish to spoil your fun. The trips should be enjoyed by all for we too are also young!

We are anxious not to report you for mischief on the train, Let's get together on these trips and bring no one home in shame.

If you see some other fellow doing something out of line Please prevent him going further and please do it in good time.

We have some rules and regulations to get these trains safely through And we are sure that you will help us yes indeed—that means you too!

It is not a lot we ask for—just your help in every way, So we all may enjoy the week-end and happier trips be here to stay.

(signed) your Four Friends

P.S. We hope this answers the three engineers who said: "What have you done to our week-end?"

Note: Reservations already received—afternoon train 450
—night train 250
(Absolute maximum on each going train will be 800 persons)

TICKETS ARE NOW ON SALE AT THE S.A.C. OFFICE
NO TICKETS WILL BE ISSUED ON FRIDAY, NOV. 6th.

Montreal Weekend

Hotel reservations at the
SHERATON
MOUNT ROYAL
phone
LIONEL COLMAN
WA. 2-2514

Request your Sheraton student identification card necessary for student rates.

GAMES TODAY
FOOTBALL	East 3.30 U.C.	vs. Sr. SPS	Stokes, Chykaluk, McCulloch
SOCCER	North 12.30 Trin	vs. Sr. SPS	Jensen
	North 4.00 Jr. SPS	vs. Med. E	Ryan
LACROSSE	1.00 Vic. I	vs. SPS. I	Naylor, Hill
VOLLEYBALL	1.00 SPS. G	vs. Pre-Med I A	Pomerant
	4.00 Vic. M.F.H's	vs. Pre-Med I B	Goldman
(Major)	5.00 SPS. III	vs. Sr. SPS	Drevnig
	6.00 Med. IV Yr. B	vs. St. M. III	Drevnig
GAMES TUESDAY
FOOTBALL	East 3.30 Vic.	vs. Trin.	Chapnick, Posen, Zapon
SOCCER	North 12.30 St. M. B	vs. Trin B	Han-en
	South 12.30 Pharm	vs. Arch	Bonfield
	North 4.00 Knox	vs. Emman	Seizer
LACROSSE	1.00 St. M. A	vs. U.C. I	Haskill, DePetrillo
	5.00 Trin	vs. Med. IV Yr.	Sigal
	6.00 SF3. VI	vs. SPS. II	Drrett, Grist
	7.00 Law	vs. SPS. III	Drrett, Grist
VOLLEYBALL	1.00 For B	vs. Arch	Stein
	6.30 Dent. II Yr.	vs. Med. IV Yr. A	Sigal
	7.30 Med. I Yr.	vs. U.C. Wallace	Sigal
	8.00 Pharm. B	vs. Wyc B

Hockey Blues Practice

Practices begin today at Varsity Arena for those wishing to try out for an Interfaculty hockey team. The Intercollegiate Blues, however, have been working out since Friday.

Coach Jack Kennedy has almost 40 candidates on hand from which to rebuild after graduation has deprived him of most of last season's championship team.

The most interesting struggle will come for the goalkeeping job. Bob Giroux, last year's understudy to Ray Dunn is the prime candidate. Opposing him are Al Fleming, a member of the Blues in 1957, and Don Keenan, who has some Junior A experience and who played one game for Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League last year.

A promising defence prospect has turned up in Ian Sinclair. Sinclair played for the Toronto Marlboros in the Junior OHA last season, but did not turn out this year.

Returning stalwarts include defenceman Harry (Cyclone) Neale, Neil Munro, and Frank Sullivan along with forwards Howie Roth, and John MacDonald, last year's captain.

THREE MUSTANGS DOWN, and one to go as Varsity corner linebacker Paul Burroughs tugs at the faceguard of Western half-back John Wydareny in Saturday's game at the Stadium. The play was good for 6 yards.

BLUES WIN GAME 13-7 BUT LOSE ROUND 23-16

By DAVE GRINER
Varsity Sports Editor

Varsity Blues won the battle but lost the war. They defeated the University of Western Ontario Mustangs 13-7 Saturday afternoon at Varsity Stadium before some 14,000 fans.

But, in failing to win the game by 14 points, Varsity lost their chance to lead the Mustangs on total points in the two games between the teams, which under league regulations decides the winner of the Yates Cup should Varsity and Western end the year tied in points.

The game was played on a terribly muddy field which hampered offensive operations considerably. This does not, however, detract from a magnificent performance by the Varsity defensive team, who held Mustangs scoreless for the better part of the game and set up numerous scoring opportunities for their side.

The first of these came early in the second quarter. A bad snap eluded the Western punter Ed Malachuk and Varsity gained a first down on the Western seven yard line. Three running plays at the Mustang line failed and those who had seen the game at London began to wonder if it was possible for Blues to score a touchdown against the Western team.

Any fears were dispelled when, after an exchange of punts, full-back John McMurtry took a pitch-out from Varsity quarterback Nick Sopinka and passed 36 yards to Mike Muir who dragged three tacklers the final five yards to the goal line.

The convert was wide, and at half-time Varsity led 6-0.

Right from the start, the first half was packed with thrills. Varsity were called for clipping on the third play of the game and this nullified a long run by McMurtry on a screen pass to the Western 18.

A few minutes later, Western's fine fullback Lionel Conacher slanted off right tackle, then cut back to the other side and burst 21 yards before the last Varsity defender hauled him down.

Western kicked off at the beginning of the third quarter and a terrific runback by Bob Dunn brought the ball near mid-field. The last two men managed to hold him.

Varsity went nowhere, and an exchange of punts followed. Blues gained a first down at the Western 47 and a 40 yard pass and run play from Sopinka to Dann, put them in scoring position.

On third down, Steve Chisholm just managed to squeeze over for the TD. The convert was wide again.

Following the kickoff, Western were forced to kick, but Blues' defensive end Doug Baird charged in and blocked the kick. He then recovered the loose ball at the Western 33.

Varsity got one first down and then surprised the spectators by trying the risky field goal instead of kicking the easy single which would have tied up the series. Dann's kick was wide and short.

Late in the third quarter, Mustangs' quarterback Frank Cosentino found the range and hit Bob Pearson for a 53 yard passing gain, to the Varsity 15. Mustangs got one first down, but a great Varsity defensive line rose up and threw back Western on three successive plays.

Varsity had another good chance to kick the single when they were in a third down and two to go at the Western 30. They declined the sure point and gambled. The gamble failed and Varsity were still 12 points up on the game, but one point down on the round.

A pass interception of a Sopinka aerial by Mustang back John Sloan gave Western a first down at their own 35 with less than six minutes to play. One play later, Dino Galgani raced for the TD to crush any hope Varsity had of winning the game by 14 points. Not a man laid a hand on him on his 53 yard romp. Mitchell converted.

A pair of pass completions by Sopinka enabled Peter Potter to kick a single later in the quarter to increase the Varsity lead.

On the last play of the game, a Western receiver was in the clear for a TD but slipped and fell in the mud.

Notes . . . Western had 15 first downs, Varsity 14 . . . Galgani was the leading Western ground gainer with 74 yards in 7 carries . . . Conacher was held to 73 in 24 . . . total yardage was, Western 299, Varsity 246 . . . Sopinka completed 12 of 22, Cosentino only 3 of 13 . . . but called an excellent game

AN INTERCEPTION by Mustang halfback John Sloan of a pass intended for Mike Muir (50) forms a graceful tableau. VSP Hoshkiw

We Tried!

TORONTO — Centres: Crawford Wood; guards: Dever, Jewell, Bell, S. Eytan, Bulucon; tackles: Jackson, Thoburn, Chykaliuk, Kay; ends: Muir, Loughheed, Biard, House; quarterbacks: Rush, Sopinka; backs: Dann, Farr, Connolly, Kowles, Myers, Chisholm, Potter, McMurtry, Burroughs.

WESTERN — Centres: Metras, Neal; guards: Mundy, Edgar, Barclay, Parkinson; tackles: Mitchell, Bradley, Scott, Humphries, Coups; ends: Mulachuk, Clark, Forstner; quarterbacks: Rysdale, Cosentino; backs: Conacher, Poliziani, Galgani, Sloan, Boug, Stewart, Loftus, Wydareny, Wood, Thompson.

First Quarter

no scoring

Second Quarter

1 Toronto, TD (Muir)

Third Quarter

2 Toronto, TD (Chisholm)

Fourth Quarter

3 Western, TD (Galgani)

4 Western, convert (Mitchell)

5 Toronto, single (Potter)

EV RUSH fumbles when tackled by a Western player late in the fourth quarter of Saturday's game with Western at Varsity Stadium. The bobble of the slippery ball had little effect on the score as the Varsity defence, for whom Rush was a standout, forced the Mustangs to kick after they had recovered the fumble.

VSP Shaw

"A Free Voice"

By MARTIN DUNN
Ex-Ryersonian Managing Editor

Tuesday morning I was told by my classmates that a story on discrimination in a Ryerson fraternity was being withheld.

After three hours of heated discussion we, Anne Tilbrook and myself, were told that the principal of the school and the Minister of Education had to be informed of the situation before the story could be printed. We were told that Ryerson depended on politicians for its existence and that we couldn't "step on their toes" unless we could accomplish something.

I told both the director and the editor-in-chief that unless the story was printed I would resign as managing editor. The story was never printed and both Anne and I resigned.

We had no intention of hurting the school or the Ryersonian, but we felt that this discrimination should be exposed and that SAC and the administration should make it quite clear that this frat "colony" was not recognized by the institute.

E. U. Scherader, director of journalism, was the supervisor of the fraternity. Having learned of the discrimination clause, he has resigned. But the fact still remains The Ryersonian was not allowed to print the story. And despite the fact the remaining editors agreed not to run the story, it would have been printed, but for fear of reaction from powers that be.

Even aside from the discrimination issue, I feel a newspaper, campus or otherwise, should have a free voice. If a newspaper cannot speak for itself, I don't feel that its worth working for.

here and now

TODAY

1 p.m.—V.C.F. plans a bible study group for second-pre, 2nd and 4th year Medical in Room 213, Anatomy Bldg.

1 p.m.—Dr. John Gerstner will talk on "The Hebrew Christian View and its Relevance Today" at the Varsity Christian Fellowship, Room 6 U.C.

4 p.m.—Tea will be served at the Graduates Students' Union, 44 Hoskin Ave.

7 p.m.—Monsieur Roch Valin, Professor of Linguistics at Laval, gives an Alliance Francaise de Toronto Lecture on "Existe-t-il un Francais-Canadien?" Admission to the talk in Emmanuel College Lecture Hall, is 25 cents.

TUESDAY

1 p.m.—A former professor of political science in the University of Sopron, Hungary, Dr. W. Szenci, will speak on "The Role of the Satellite". The FROS sponsored talk is at 3 Willocks Street.

1 p.m.—V. S. Ristic Peng will speak on "Dostoevsky" at a Canterbury Centre Lunch, 99 St. George St.

7:30 p.m.—Morley Callaghan speaks to a meeting of the U of T Library Club, in Hart House Library.

CLASSIFIED ADS.

RIDE NEEDED

On weekends to Rochester, New York or anywhere in western New York area. Will share expenses. Call John Kick, WA. 2-8819.

PRIVATE ROOM

Bath and board in exchange for occasional baby sitting and light evening duties. Phone ME. 3-1062.

Ski Cabin For 6
near Blue Mountain and Craig Leith Clubs. Available for season. Call BA. 1-1218 evenings.

NEWMAN CLUB

89 St. George St.
Presents the 1959-60 philosophy Series:
November 3: Professor Lang
"Common Sense and Philosophy"
November 17: Professor Dewart
"Philosophy and Science"
December 1: Professor Schonleber
"Philosophy Speculative and Practical"
January 12: Professor Owens
"The Nature of Metaphysical Thought"
January 26: Professor MacDonald
"Philosophy—Its Place in a University Education" February 9: Professor Lawrence
"Philosophy and Freedom"
February 23: Professor Gilson
"Philosophy Today"
Each Lecture begins at 7:30 p.m.
ALL ARE WELCOME

THE VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP IN U.C.

PRESENTS "MAN LOOKS AT MAN"

Third Lecture by Prof. John Gerstner Ph.D., D.D., Mon. Nov. 2. 1:10 p.m. — Room 6, U.C.
"The Hebrew-Christian View & its Relevance Today"

A.V.R. AUDITIONS FOR "CHRISTOPHER JONES"

NOVEMBER 3, 4, 5
7:30-9:30 p.m. — BRENNAN HALL, SMC
NEEDED: Actors, Singers, Dancers
If additional information required, phone WA. 5-6092

UNIVERSITY BLAZERS Custom Made

Especially Priced for Students
$27.50
Fine Flannel Worsted Trousers
$16.50

Business Hours: 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.
Monday through Saturday
Suits Made to Measure
Latest Styles and Design
PARNES Clothing Co.
706 QUEEN STREET WEST
EM. 6-2025
Sample at S.A.C. Office

RED CROSS CLINIC

Any student interested in donating blood from any faculty can go to 87 College St.
Monday or Tuesday
12:00 — 3:30
5:30 — 8:30

NEXT WEEK

Dr. Masumi Toyotome M.A., B.D., Ph.D.
CONVOCATION HALL

5:00 p.m. Daily

Mon., Nov. 9 — THE SCOTCH TAPE LIFE
Tues., Nov. 10 — THE CRISIS OF LIFE
Wed., Nov. 11 — THE GLORY OF LIFE
Thurs., Nov. 12 — THE IMPASSE OF LIFE
Fri., Nov. 13 — THE PULSE OF LIFE

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 11 — QUESTION SESSION
VICTORIA COLLEGE ALUMNI HALL, 7:45 p.m., All Welcome
CHAIRMAN: PRINCIPAL CAUSLAND

SUNDAY, NOV. 15, 4:00 — CLOSING SERVICE
In The GREAT HALL, HART HOUSE

A New Charter Bus Service Out of Metro Toronto

Small and large modern Coaches available, including the latest Designed Coaches, the Courier Chalaner with all the very latest equipment.

SPECIAL RATES FOR STUDENTS' ACTIVITIES

For Information Call:

THE NEWMARKET COACH LINES LTD.

TORONTO — AV 5-5451

or write: 346 Enford Road, RICHMOND HILL, Ont.

Today's Formal

Iridescent blue poie de soie draped to one side of bodice is a matching gathered band blossoming at waist into large poof waltz length skirt and matching stole. $59.00.

HELMAR — WA. 1-5978
46 ST. GEORGE STREET

HART HOUSE LIBRARY EVENING

Tuesday, November 3rd - 7:30 p.m.
Guest Speaker: Morley Callaghan
"The Trend of the Times in Writing"
All Hart House Members are invited to attend

HART HOUSE THEATRE

ROBERT GILL, Director

AUDITIONS

Auditions will begin on Tuesday, Nov. 3rd

— For —

The Glass Menagerie

— And —

The Importance of Being Ernest

For an Appointment — Phone WA. 3-7193
or Call at Theatre Offices.

Hart House

TODAY

1:30 p.m. Sing Song — East Common Room
5:00 p.m. Glee Club Full Rehearsal — Music Room
7:15 p.m. Revolver Club — Rifle Range

TOMORROW

8:00 a.m. Holy Communion — Chapel
5:10 p.m. Amateur Radio Code & Theory Class — Debates Loft
5:00 p.m. Glee Club Full Rehearsal — Music Room
7:15 p.m. Duplicate Bridge Tournament — East Common Room
7:30 p.m. Art Class — Art Gallery

7:30 p.m. FIRST LIBRARY EVENING—Library
Guest Speaker: Mr. Morley Callaghan
"The Trend of the Times in Writing"

8:00 p.m. Archery — Rifle Room

WEDNESDAY

5:00 p.m. WEDNESDAY FIVE O'CLOCK RECITAL —
Music Room — Rhoda Pendleton, Soprano

SUMMER JOBS

with
Defence Research Board

PHYSICS ENGINEERING PHYSICS ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING MATHEMATICS
limited openings also in

Chemistry Metallurgy Biochemistry Mechanical & Aeronautical Engineering Physiology

ACADEMIC STANDING—Graduate students, or third and fourth year students with first class or high second class honours. CITIZENSHIP—Must be Canadian citizens or British subjects. Halifax, N.S. - Valcartier, Que. - Ottawa, Ont. Kingston, Ont. - Toronto, Ont. - Ralston, Alta. Victoria, B.C. - Fort Churchill, Man.

Please obtain Application Forms IMMEDIATELY from the UNIVERSITY PLACEMENT SERVICE and mail, with indication of academic standing, to:

Director of Personnel
P.O. Box 23,
Ottawa, Ontario.

Summer employment interviews on campus will be arranged for Dec. 3 and 4.

The full title of the president's report is "Report Of The President To the Governors and the Senate of the University of Toronto".

The report is perhaps of particular interest to those charged with the governing and administration of this university, but it is of even more interest to those charged an annual fee for attending it.

What Dr. Bissell and his colleagues propose will effect eventually every student of this university.

THE VARSITY

Vol. LXXIX-20

Tuesday, Nov. 3rd, 1959

Special Edition

quo vadimus

President's Report

By DAVID LEWIS STEIN

● "The university must be concerned with its inner core—its own students, undergraduate and graduate—but, provided that the work there is not attenuated or diluted, the university should also embark upon a frankly imperialistic and expansionist programme outside."

● "The strongest guarantee of the continued existence of the intellectual community here is the preservation of the honor course system and increasing emphasis upon graduate work."

● "In this slight lull before the storm of expansion, we should be bending all our resources, to attract as many senior scholars as possible to our departments. I think, for instance, that we should make a concerted attempt to bring back Canadians who occupy senior posts in the United States."

● "One can think of many other unifying agencies—of the new Bookstore, for instance, one of the few genuine bookstores in Canada, surely in our unbookish society 'a rich jewel in an Ethiopian's ear.'"

● "This university is committed to a high degree of specialization. Specialization can be narrow if it is associated with mastery of technique and with a sullen addiction to intellectual isolation. But specialization when it is associated with one of the major disciplines, whether in the humanities, the social sciences or the sciences, is a major road to a liberal education."

● "We are engaged then in no grandiose expansion plans, and mutterings of 'elephantiasis' can come only from those who are sleeping comfortably in the past. We are not adding a single new academic department or division to our programme; we are simply strengthening what we already have in order to do our traditional job."

In his first "President's Report", Dr. Claude T. Bissell has made a bold attempt to clarify the functions and purposes of the University in relation to the expansion program.

"We must always remember," President Bissell said, "that the main purpose of the university is not, for instance, to produce genial men of the world; or for that matter, to produce engineers, doctors, dentists, teachers, preachers, business men and statesmen; it is rather to turn out men and women who believe in the power of the organized and disciplined men."

The report outlines in greater detail the various areas in which this policy of intellectual concentration will be carried out.

In 1915, Dr. E. F. Sheffield presented a paper on the expansion of enrolment that predicted the number of Canadian University students in 1957-8 would be 77,300. The enrolment has already exceeded that figure by 9,000 students.

The President's report estimates that by 1975 there will be 92,000 students in universities in Ontario, of which 46,000 will be attending institutions in the area of metropolitan Toronto.

Plans for a new university in Toronto to help share the responsibility for the increased enrolment have already been made. "York University" in its initial phases, will work in close co-operation with the faculty of the University of Toronto.

As outlined in an agreement drafted by Dean C. A. Wright of the U of T Law School, the association will last for a period of not more than eight years and the courses offered by the new university during this period will be confined to its faculty of arts.

In reference to the new university Dr. Bissell said, "It is appropriate that an old foundation should lend help to a new one . . . But it would be hypocritical to deny that our motives were not also firmly rooted in enlightened self-interest."

The "enlightened self-interest" of the University of Toronto, seems to be an interest in having the new university absorb a large proportion of those students who are more interested in the type of broad education that is now offered by the three-year BA course.

The report notes the fact that more and more arts students at the U of T are going into the honor courses. In 1958 they comprised 54 per cent of the full-time arts students.

In these circumstances Dr. Bissell questions whether the university should not seriously consider restricting the number of students admitted to the general course.

Concerning the possible alternatives to the present general course arrangement he said: "It may be, however, that general education in the sense of an education that attempts to give the student an introduction to all of the major areas of learning can be more effectively given in other institutions."

The system of the federated arts colleges may provide

Community of Scholars

comment

lebensraum

The annual report of the president of the U of T is usually an uncontroversial record of administrative and academic successes.

This year's report, Dr. Bissell's first, is more like a manifesto, not simply because the president is expected to outline an educational philosophy in his first report, but because for the U of T it represents a statement of principle on the eve of battle.

The fight, as was reiterated by almost every faculty head who contributed to the report, is a fight for space. The weapon is $52,000,000 dollars.

First of all the president seems to intend that the university should be a promised land to which our academics exiled in foreign lands could at last return.

More important, the community itself will have a somewhat different and rather controversial shape.

What will most affect this shape is 1) President Bissell's determination to avoid further "professional saturation," and 2) the possible decline of the General Arts Course in favour of the Honor Arts Courses.

We are all for the placing of limits on the growth of the professional faculties. The ideal of the self-contained liberal arts college as the core of the university is one that badly needs implementation or reimplementation in the face of a sometime discrediting of theoretical thought in the face of the influence of "know-how."

And we tend to be a bit dubious about the pious hope that the professional faculties themselves are maintaining a satisfactory level of education in the "useless" fields such as philosophy, literature, and art. We doubt whether there is very much left of the trivium or quadrivium in a modern professional training.

As for the possibility that the U of T should not be giving a general arts education but should be concentrating on the arts specialist, we are a bit dubious about that one too.

We do agree that the Honor Courses should maintain a high degree of specialization. But the General Course is, we feel, vital to the kind of organization the report envisages.

As things are now, a student comes out of a high school education that has made him a half-educated man, and goes almost immediately into a specialized course. It is suggested in the report that this specialized course if pursued deeply opens up all sorts of other fields to the enquiring student.

But this is not the way it works. The enquiring student in an Honor Arts Course actually finds his focus narrowing progressively until he is spending all his energy in one small section of his own specialty.

Thus the greatest need for general education is not among the students in the general course. If it were, then York University could very well become the centre of general education for non-specialists. It is the specialists themselves who are in need of a preliminary general education that would open out to them a larger world than their own special one and give them some empathy with their academic colleagues.

A possible solution would be an improvement in secondary education. Another would be the institution of pre-Honors years on the model of pre-medical years.

Yet so important is this to us, that we are willing to go as far as suggesting a much more drastic solution: that any student wishing to enter an Honor Arts Course would be required to present a BA degree in General Arts. He could then proceed to an MA degree more distinct from the PhD than at present. That is, all Honor Arts courses should be post-graduate courses. We cannot think of a better way for the university to embark on its "imperialist and expansionist program" in the world at large as well as in and for itself.

THE VARSITY

Editorial and News Office
Basement, SAC Building — WA. 3-8742, WA. 3-8113

In this issue:

Fred Host, Bob McGhee, C. T. Bissell and Walter McLean
"Suffer yourselves to be blamed, imprisoned, condemned; suffer yourselves to be hanged; but publish your opinions; it is not a right, it is a duty."

Four Hundred Signatures Already

Protest Growing

By HARVEY L. SHEPHERD

The first signatures—about 400 of them—on a petition protesting the execution of Hungarian teen-agers who have come of age since the 1956 uprising had been received by the Students' Administrative Council last night.

Walter McLean, SAC president, last night said the only opposition to the petition has come from a few students in the Medical Faculty.

The SAC hopes to have the petitions almost completed by Wednesday night. The petitions are now being circulated by SAC faculty and college representatives.

The petitions will be sent to Premier Nikita Khrushchov asking him to exert his influence to halt the executions, and to the Canadian government asking for United Nations intervention.

Similar petitions are being circulated in universities across Canada.

A statement has been received by the National Federation of Canadian University Students from the Canadian External Affairs department recognizing the concern expressed by student groups in Canada about the executions.

The statement said the Department is making every attempt to explore the situation and cited investigations of the 1956 uprising being conducted through the United Nations.

NFCUS has also estimated that about 100 Hungarian teen-agers have been executed by military tribunals. The information was released by the Hungarian Information Agency in Montreal and was in letters from Hungary received by Hungarian students and immigrants in Canada.

The Agency said sudden disappearances and deportations of younger members of families had been reported.

Barna Szabo, secretary of the Toronto branch of the Union of Free Hungarian Students, said that Hungarian refugees in Toronto have received information from the Free Europe Committee in New York that an estimated 150-180 Hungarian teen-agers were recently presumed to be awaiting execution.

The Committee, which sponsors a radio station in Europe, has contacts behind the Iron Curtain.

New York columnist Ed Sullivan on television show Oct. 25 said 150 were awaiting execution.

Szabo last night said the reports of the executions came as no surprise to Hungarian refugees at the U of T campus.

He said the Neue Zürcher Zeitung, a Swiss newspaper, as early as last summer published a list of 35 Hungarian youths presumed to have been executed. An official of the Hungarian Consulate in Toronto, Szabo said, questioned the accuracy of the list, but not the fact that there had been executions.

"The executions were not a surprise," he said. "It was a surprise that Mr. Sullivan mentioned them."

Szabo said it is impossible to ascertain the number of youths being executed or even the nature of the charges laid against them.

The petitions now being circulated at the universities were originally prompted by the University of British Columbia and its Hungarian Faculty which comprises students and staff from Sopron University, Hungary, during the 1956

Ryerson Staffers Fear Expulsions

Anne Tilbrook, the Ryersonian news editor who resigned over a suppressed discrimination article last week, said last night she may be expelled from Ryerson. "It's happened before", she said.

Ryersonian editor Bill Scott said on a metropolitan telecast last night the article concerning discrimination by Delta Sigma Phi was withheld because it contained "half truths".

Miss Tilbrook and managing editor Martin Dunn said they resigned because fear of political repercussions had caused suppression of the article.

Scott last night flatly denied any political interference. He said Ryerson is a "new and small school" and that it couldn't stand bad public relations.

Miss Tilbrook said last night "Martin and I are both getting a little worried. Although we haven't been officially threatened with expulsion the article was suppressed in our paper and we did go to outside sources with it."

Miss Tilbrook said she was phoned Sunday night by a member of the Ryerson journalism faculty and told she would be in danger of expulsion if the story went too much farther.

The story was carried by city radio and television stations today, and the report of Sunday night's phone call was mentioned in broadcasts.

Delta Sigma Phi is the only fraternity at Ryerson with a discriminatory clause in its constitution. The clause restricts membership to "Caucasian" (white) males, living by "modern Christian principles".

E. U. Schrader, Ryerson director of journalism, was supervisor of Delta Sigma Phi. He said he resigned from the fraternity when he learned of the discriminatory clause.

Christopher &amp; Co.

Auditions open tonight for the All-Varsity Revue's "Christopher Jones".

Officials hope for a large turn-out for the original spoof on the world of big business. The show has several major parts, a few minor character parts, and a large mixed chorus of singers and dancers.

The show will play in the Hart House theatre in the second week of February.

Preliminary auditions will run Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday from 7:30-9:30 p.m. in Brennan Hall, St. Michael's College.

President's Report

Continued From Page 1

studied carefully with the intention of making some modifications. The present system is not equal to the demands of increased enrolment, but there is no intention of changing it to a unified system.

The "crisis" is expected to come first to University College, since it is the provincial arts college and the largest of the four in the federated system.

A University College committee under chairmanship of UC's principal Moffat Woodside has been established to study ways of meeting the problem without radically altering the nature of the college. If the committee recommends a limitation on enrolment, President Bissell and his advisers are preparing a number of alternatives.

And York University, it would seem, is the most promising of these alternatives.

In addition to physical expansion the university plans to concentrate on securing competent academics to staff the new buildings. Efforts are being made to lure back to this country, Canadians who have occupied senior posts in American academic institutions.

The salary scale of the U of T is now equal to that of the outstanding American universities and the intention to maintain this equality.

In addition to substantial salaries, prospective professors will be offered group insurance, housing allowances and increased funds for travel to conferences abroad.

In line with the policy of increased spending, greater attention is being paid to the school's financial studies. Although there was only an increase of 10 per cent in the total number of students enrolled in the studies, there was an increase of 20 per cent in the number of students doing full-time graduate programmes.

At the other end of the academic scale, Dr. Bissell does not foresee any immediate changes in entrance requirements. Apparently, no one has yet with a better test of qualification for university entrance than the grade XIII examinations.

The University of Toronto, as Dr. Bissell says, is an "intellectual community".

His first report indicates that he does not see this conception in any way weakened by the problems presented by the expansion program.

Cruel Miss

Final auditions for the University College folk opera "Katy Cruel" begin today.

Auditions run today from 2-4:30 p.m. and tomorrow from 12:30-2 p.m. in UC's Howard Ferguson Hall. Director Bill Davis is reviewing talent from all over the university.

Writer Mike Rasminsky said last night the turn-out has been good so far, but more male dancers are required. "We would also like more auditions for lead roles in order to have a wider range of selection," he said.

The show will run in the Hart House theatre the second week of second term. Rasminsky composed the scores for the show, and Dave Helwig wrote book and lyrics. Don Gillies, head choreographer for the Canadian Broadcasting Corp., will plan dance routines for the show.

Cast list should be announced later this week, Rasminsky said.

A noted Canadian writer will lecture at a Hart House library evening tonight.

Morley Callaghan, a short story writer and novelist, will talk on "Modern Trends in Writing" at 7:30 p.m.

All Hart House members are invited.

Tickets for the McGill football weekend must be picked up at the Students' Administrative Council office by Thursday. A list of students going on the weekend will be made up that night and posted in the SAC office Friday.

Private Owners

Two University of Toronto professors advised the Board of Broadcast Governors yesterday to bar owners of establishing newspapers and radio stations from eligibility for ownership of private television stations.

Prof. Donald Creighton and Prof. Paul W. Fox presented their opinions in a private brief to the BBG.

The two professed "genuine alarm" at the "growing trend toward concentration of ownership in the industries disseminating news and opinion".

"Control by fewer and fewer individuals of the media of communication is not salutary for democracy. And if those in control are of limited stature, it can have an adverse effect upon the moral tone of an entire society," they said.

WEDNESDAY FIVE O'CLOCK RECITAL

Hart House Music Room
TOMORROW — 5 p.m.

RHODA PENDLETON, Soprano

University Men and Women Welcome — No Tickets Necessary

Hart House

TODAY

8.00 a.m. Holy Communion — Chapel
5.10 p.m. Amateur Radio Code & Theory Class - Debates Loft
7.00 p.m. Glee Club Full Rehearsal — Music Room
7.15 p.m. Duplicate Bridge Tournament — Map Room.
7.30 p.m. Art Class — Art Gallery

7.30 p.m. LIBRARY EVENING — Mr. Morley Callaghan will speak on "The Trend of the Times in Writing" — Library.

8.00 p.m. Archery — Rifle Room

WEDNESDAY

12.15 p.m. Noon-day Prayers

5.00 p.m. WEDNESDAY FIVE O'CLOCK RECITAL — Rhoda Pendleton, Soprano
University Men and Women Welcome

7.00 p.m. Table Tennis — Fencing Room

Today's Formal

Magnificent black lace over white satin short to bouffant skirt straight bodice trimmed by a wide white satin band and large matching poof at waist.

HELMAR — WA. 1-5978
46 ST. GEORGE STREET

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE

THURSDAY AFTERNOON LECTURE SERIES

"The Victorian Inheritance Of George Bernard Shaw"

by President Claude Bissell

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 5, at 4.30 p.m.

West Hall, University College

Big F Is Fine Fun

For the first time in a few too many tries Victoria College has produced a Bob Revue which has the elements of a hit campus show. It's the Big F, the 1959 edition of the half-century old Bob Revue.

And most of the credit goes to the people who at long last ditched that sacred cow of college shows — "the book show" — and made at least a part of the Bob Revue into a revue. It's only to be regretted that they didn't do a more complete job, because the weak spots in The Big F are inevitably those connected with the book show into which scribes Pat Bonn and Mike Cross have incorporated the five or six sparkling skits which make The Big F a success.

It is hard to single out any individual acts for special praise, but if we had to, Gerry Collins and Murray Corlett would get the palm leaves for their two skits lambasting Metro Chairman Fred Gardiner and Prime Minister John Diefenbaker's somewhat tarnished and shopworn vision.

The Middle House Quartet also won good ovations as it showed why Vic is noted as a College which can produce good male quartets.

Top individual kudos go to Imps Peter Pearson and Al Gallo who consistently managed to steal every scene in which they appeared.

The two leads—Deane Hutchinson as Satan and Heather Meen as Delilah—both turned in top-notch dramatic performances. When it came to their singing, however, we regretted that the show's producer hadn't taken a notch from Hollywood and used dubbed voices.

The poor book show was another handicap which Satan, Delilah and their hellish cohorts failed to overcome in personal combat.

Single most glaring faults in the show was its length. Not even the sparkling skits and the several fine performances could amuse the audience for 2½ hours. Running a close second to the length in the fault sweepstakes was the opening scene; kindly described as disappointing, sub-standard and altogether worthless.

Frank Cochran's music tended to follow the stereo-typed pattern of college shows, but several amusing sets of lyrics by Bonn and Cockran managed to make it listenable.

The same could be said of the choreography. Choreographer Brenda Leake managed to use about every hackneyed routine we could remember, but the polished vitality of her dancers made up for most of this deficiency.

But even when these were joined with Beth Smith's sets and the weaker portions of the book show, they couldn't quite manage to blot out the brilliance of many of the skits, and the show must be considered a success.

And if they promise to cut that opening scene, we may even go to see it again.

Ed Roberts

U of T ORCHESTRA

Blow or Blown, but attach yourself to the U. of T. Orchestra. Rehearsals start next Thursday Nov. 5 at 6:30 p.m. through 8:30 p.m. — There are a few Application forms left at S.A.C.

SIGN UP NOW!

MORE PLAYERS

NEEDED!

Especially Brass, Strings, Woodwinds etc. etc.

GRADUATE EMPLOYMENT with the CIVIL SERVICE OF CANADA

There are approximately 400 openings for Arts, Commerce and Engineering graduates of the class of 1960.

ALL APPLICANTS, EXCEPT THOSE HONOUR STUDENTS APPLYING FOR SCIENTIFIC RESEARCH, MUST WRITE THE EXAMINATIONS TO BE HELD ON NOVEMBER 14. ONLY CANDIDATES SELECTED FROM THESE EXAMINATIONS WILL BE CALLED TO INTERVIEWS.

Full information on openings and examinations may be obtained at the Placement Service, 5 Wilcocks St.

TYPEWRITERS

$1.00 A WEEK BUYS . . .
... $1.50 A WEEK RENTS

Get a free typing course and a liberal trade-in allowance for your old typewriter when you buy a new modern machine from us.

Phone HO. 1-1843 Today

CLASSIFIED ADS.

PRIVATE ROOM, BATH, BOARD
In exchange for occasional baby sitting and light evening duties. — Phone ME. 3-1062.

DRESS ALTERATIONS

Quality workmanship, fast service. Harbord at St. George. Call Mrs. Zador after 10 a.m. WA. 3-6960.

LOST $30.00

Within last 2 weeks — Call Dave Solomon WA. 4-2121

A VERY SMART HARDTOP
DELUXE. Excellent condition and performance. No rust. Overdrive. 1952 Studebaker. Asking $395, but accept reasonable offer before weekend. WA. 2-7595.

NEED EXTRA MONEY

5000 Scotch Pine Xmas tree to be marketed. — Call CL. 3-1108 or write Sky Loft Lodge, R.R. 4, Uxbridge.

MISSION IN THE UNIVERSITY

.. Next week ..

Dr. Masumi Toyotome M.A., B.D., Ph.D.

CONVOCATION HALL

5:00 p.m. Daily

Mon., Nov. 9 — THE SCOTCH TAPE LIFE
Tues., Nov. 10 — THE CRISIS OF LIFE
Wed., Nov. 11 — THE GLORY OF LIFE
Thurs., Nov. 12 — THE IMPASSE OF LIFE
Fri., Nov. 13 — THE PULSE OF LIFE

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 11 — QUESTION SESSION

VICTORIA COLLEGE ALUMNI HALL, 7:45 p.m., All Welcome
CHAIRMAN: PRINCIPAL CAUSLAND

SUNDAY, NOV. 15, 4:00 — CLOSING SERVICE
In The GREAT HALL, HART HOUSE

here and now

TODAY

- 1-4:30 p.m. — Auditions for Katy Cruel, this year's UC show, will be in UC's Howard Ferguson Hall.
- 1 p.m. — VCF first-pre and first-year Meds and P&OT will study the Bible in room 213, Anatomy Building.
- V. S. Ristic Peng will discuss Dostoevski at a Canterbury Lunch at 99 St. George St.
- Dr. William Szenel, former political science professor at Sopron University, Hungary, will discuss "The Role of the Satellite" at FROS, 3 Willcocks St.
- 1:10 p.m. — SCM plans study groups: for freshmen in the SCM office, Hart House, and on comparative religion in room 103, Nursing.
- Quaker Study group will discuss Quaker beliefs and practices with everyone welcome in room 42F, UC.

GROUP FORMING

For the study and discussion of
METAPHYSICS & OCCULT
CHRISTIANITY
For information call WA. 3-3849
from 10 - 4

Ski Cabin For 6

near Blue Mountain and Craig Leith Clubs. Available for season. Call BA 1-1218 evenings.

European University Graduate teaches

German & French

Private Language School
O. W. BECK
1598 BATHURST ST.
(near St. Clair) RU. 7-4756

COACHING

Calculus, Accounting, Introductory lessons on: Theory of Compound Interest, and Life Contingencies.
Call A. G. Donn RU. 3-2257 evg's

10-Piece Dance Band

Music for all occasions supplied by Gord Staple's Orchestra, an experienced group of musicians with a repertoire of music to satisfy all tastes. For those who want the very best in music, please contact:
BOB BELL, BE. 3-2325

WY?

NEWMAN CLUB

89 St. George St.
Presents the 1959-60 Philosophy Series:
November 3: Professor Lang "Common Sense and Philosophy"
November 17: Professor Dewart "Philosophy and Science"
December 1: Professor Scholteber "Philosophy—Speculative and Practical"
January 12: Professor Owens "The Nature of Metaphysical Thought"
January 26: Professor MacDonald "Philosophy—Its Place in a University Education"
February 9: Professor Lawrence Lynch "Philosophy and Freedom"
February 23: Professor Gilson "Philosophy Today"
Each Lecture begins at 7:30 p.m.
ALL ARE WELCOME

5 p.m. — Blue and White will meet in the SAC office.

7:30 p.m. — Morley Callaghan will talk about "The Trend of the Times in Writing" at a Hart House Library Evening in the HH Library.

7:30 - 9:30 p.m. — AVR auditions for "Christopher Jones" will be in Brennan Hall, St. Mike's. Many actors, singers and dancers are required.

8 p.m. — UC and Trinity Classics Club will hear Prof. W. J. N. Rudd on "The Spirit of Horatian Satire" in the Women's Union, 79 St. George St.

WEDNESDAY

No Varsity will be published Wednesday. The regular weekly athletic schedules will run Thursday.

12 - 2:30 p.m. — Katy Cruel auditions will be held in Howard Ferguson Hall.

5:10 p.m. — Christmas Belongs to Christ Committee will meet at Loretto College, 76 St. Mary St.
7:30 - 9:30 p.m. — AVR auditions as on Tuesday.

THURSDAY

7:30 - 9:30 p.m. — AVR auditions as above.

James Gordon, 18, a University of Toronto student, died Saturday night of suffocation when fire broke out in the basement of his Governor's Rd. home where he was studying.

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS

BADMINTON

The Drill Hall will be open for recreational Badminton every Tuesday from 4 - 6. Rackets and Birds will be supplied from 4 to 6 ONLY.

DIAMOND RINGS

SAVE THE BIG MARK-UP BY BUYING
YOUR DIAMOND RINGS DIRECT
Satisfaction Guaranteed or Money Refunded

Tel: EMpire 8-5268

WINSTALL DIAMOND CORP.

1219 Bank of Comm. Bldg. Toronto, Ontario
25 King St. West

A.V.R. AUDITIONS FOR "CHRISTOPHER JONES"

NOVEMBER 3, 4, 5

7:30-9:30 p.m. — BRENNAN HALL, SMC

NEEDED: Actors, Singers, Dancers

If additional information required, phone WA. 5-6092

Kitten

new

matching skirt and sweater

Go glamorous in this dramatic new one-colour ensemble... jumbo-knit pullover in Shetlantex (a beautiful blend with 20% mohair), wide-set turtle neck, easy lines and long sleeves, size 34 to 40, price $12.95 — with slim Shetlantex skirt — sizes 8 to 20, price $16.95 — at good shops everywhere.

GUARANTEED TO MATCH

Look for the name Kitten

Victoria University THE ARMSTRONG LECTURE

by
PROFESSOR I. A. RICHARDS
HARVARD UNIVERSITY

"The Future of Poetry"

FRIDAY, NOV. 6, at 4:30 p.m. — HART HOUSE THEATRE

WORLD REFUGEE YEAR

Speaker

Dr. Leslie Cooke

WORLD COUNCIL OF CHURCHES

Place: Room 8 U.C.

Time: WED. NOV. 4th, 1-2 p.m.

Sponsored by Students Administrative Council

Endorsed by S.C.M. and W.U.S.

HILLEL

Thurs., Nov. 5 - 1:00 p.m. U.C. Room 8

Dr. Jessie Macpherson, Dean of Women, Victoria College on "The Freudian Ethic"

Fri., Nov. 6 - 8:30 p.m.

Mr. Ben Kayfetz on "200 Years of Canadian Jewry"

Sun., Nov. 8 - 9:00 p.m. — Debate

Participating: Arnold Epstein, Shaya Izenberg, Stephen Lewis, and Kenneth Wyman.

SUMMER JOBS WITH DEFENCE RESEARCH BOARD

PHYSICS
ENGINEERING PHYSICS ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING MATHEMATICS

limited openings also in

CHEMISTRY
METALLURGY
BIOCHEMISTRY
MECHANICAL & AERONAUTICAL ENGINEERING
PHYSIOLOGY

ACADEMIC STANDING — Graduate Students, or third and fourth year students with first class or high second class honours.

CITIZENSHIP — Must be Canadian citizens or British subjects.

Halifax N.S. — Valcartier, Que.

Ottawa, Ont. — Kingston, Ont.

Toronto, Ont. — Ralston, Alta.

Victoria, B.C. — Fort Churchill, Man

Please obtain Applications Forms IMMEDIATELY from the UNIVERSITY PLACEMENT SERVICE and mail, with indication of academic standing, to:

Director of Personnel

P.O. Box 23,

Ottawa, Ontario

Summer employment interviews on campus will be arranged for Dec. 3 and 4.

MISSION IN THE UNIVERSITY

NOV. 9 — NOV. 15

Hungary Protest Hindered

By SUSIE BRESLIN

Reports from across Canada last night indicated that a national student protest against execution of Hungarian youths has come close to being bogged down in red tape.

Although the protest movement was begun by the University of British Columbia, Ontario universities seem now to be its only staunch supporters.

The National Federation of Canadian University Students last night advised that petitions be sent to Sir Leslie Munro, head of a special United Nations committee now investigating Hungary. Such a move would require rewording and recirculation of the present petition, which is addressed to Premier Khrushchev.

Canadian University Press correspondents in Ottawa reported that McGill's Student Executive Committee president Bryce Weir has refused to circulate the petition until more factual information concerning the petition has been obtained by Nfucs.

Reports also indicate UBC, which initiated the mass protest, has agreed to postpone any action until a decision on who should receive the petition has been made.

In Toronto, Students' Administrative Council president Walter McLean said last night he did not intend to let "seeming confusion of leadership" kill the petition.

"At this point it seems unnecessary to repeat all that has been done when the intent behind them is to protest this action to the United Nations through the Canadian government and Moscow," he said.

McLean wired UBC, whose motion was used in the Toronto petition, demanding immediate information on the proposed changes.

He said he has written UBC repeatedly during the past week, and has received no answer.

The telegram said in part, "we are not prepared to circulate a new petition now. If necessary we will take the responsibility for forwarding petitions signed here."

The Nfucs advice concerning the petitions came from a Nfucs policy never to protest to governments which are not directly involved in a situation.

Nfucs emphasized the External Affairs Department had no facts concerning the 150 Hungarian teenagers allegedly awaiting execution in Hungary.

Nfucs today received a report from the International Commission of Jurists which said there have been both executions and death sentences passed in Hungary over the last six months.

The report said, however, that their information placed the number executed at less than the 30 reported on the Ed Sullivan show two weeks ago.

Nfucs emphasized that aside from personal letters received by Hungarians here, the ICJ report was the first official confirmation of the alleged mass executions.

Nfucs said it was still waiting for information from other sources, especially from Sir Leslie Munro.

In Ontario, only opposition for the petition came from those who felt the information had not been sufficiently confirmed.

McMaster University said an official denial of the executions made by the Hungarian government last weekend had caused opposition to the petition.

McMaster finished its circulation of the petition yesterday with 587 signatures from an enrolment of 1,457.

McMaster students were momentarily solemn Saturday when a float participated in the Homecoming parade draped in black and flanked by two black cars. The float, entitled "Hungary, 1959," carried a banner which read: "31 have died, must 150 follow?"

University of Western Ontario reported yesterday it had just begun circulation of its petition.

Queen's University finished its mass petition yesterday with over 1,500 signatures from an enrolment of about 3,000.

University of Toronto had gathered almost 2,000 signatures yesterday, with returns far from completed in most major faculties.

The Ontario College of Education and the School of Social Work will both be contacted next week, since all students from the two faculties are engaged in field work in the city this week.

The Ontario Agricultural College is also participating in the protest movement.

No word has been received as to whether universities in the Atlantic region will circulate petitions. UBC appears to be the only university in the Western region participating, and no Quebec universities have begun petitions.

THE VARSITY

Vol. LXXIX No. 21

Thursday, November 5th, 1959

U of T Petition

Faculty	Signatures	% Enrolment
P&OT	72	42.4
Forestry	58	65.2
Music	40	54.
Emmanuel	50	57.5
Wycliffe	35	94.6
Knox	50	98
SMC	202	23
Law	115	74.6
Vic	308	20.5
SGS	113	11.6
Trinity	203	33.8
P&HE	212	82.7
Architecture	98	63.2
SPS	502	25.5

TOTAL 1,967

The above returns are incomplete. No returns have been submitted yet from: Pharmacy, Dentistry, UC, OCE, Social Work, Meds, Nursing.

Speaker Says Quebec Not Overly Autonomist

A high Quebec civil servant last night told University of Toronto students and staff Quebec province is hardly more autonomist than Ontario.

Jean-Charles Bonenfant, chief librarian of the Quebec legislative library, delivered the annual Grey lecture. The Grey lectures are sponsored by the history department to promote better relations between French and English-speaking Canada.

Mr. Bonenfant said the federal or provincial-dominion setup of Canada is made possible by two conflicting forces, one towards provincial participation in national affairs and the other towards autonomy.

If the latter seems to be preponderant in Quebec, he said, this can be accounted for by the disadvantages for Quebec in the Canadian constitution.

Representation in Canada's House of Commons is by population rather than by provinces, he said, and representation in the Senate is by regions rather than provinces.

Despite the bilingual nature of Canada's constitution, he said, the French used in official Canadian documents and the like is nearly always a translation of the English. Thus a French-speaking Canadian who wishes to do well in federal circles must perform the almost superhuman feat of mastering a second culture.

Football Train

The responsibility of weekend football trips is very great and because of the drastic measures which could be taken if any serious situation develops I would request all those taking part to refrain from unlawful drinking in public places and from causing property damage of any nature, in particular to the reserved trains to Montreal on this McGill Weekend.

I am making this request in the general interest of all the students, and in the hope of preventing serious repercussions on the Toronto campus from the behavior of a few of its students on this Montreal weekend.

Walter McLean,
SAC President

Ryerson Color Clause Rescinded Years Ago

The president of the Ryerson chapter of Delta Sigma Phi fraternity says the discriminatory clause in the fraternity constitution over which two Ryersonian editors resigned no longer exists.

A Ryersonian article Tuesday said the controversial clause was repealed two years ago at a national convention of the fraternity.

President Bill Davis said he only found out about the repeal within the last week when he checked with the University of Toronto chapter of the fraternity. He said, however, that while he thought there was a clause, the fraternity was not discriminating in choosing members.

The first Ryersonian reference to the clause appeared the day after Anne Tilbrook and Martin Dunn took their rejected articles to The Varsity.

Miss Tilbrook and Mr. Dunn both resigned after articles concerning discrimination were "killed".

Miss Tilbrook said she saw the clause restricting membership to white Christians in a publication dated in the early 1920s

In the Ryersonian article, editor-in-chief Bill Scott said he had killed the articles because they might lead to "bad publicity for Ryerson".

"Since the school is comparatively young," he said, "it is subject to public scrutiny to a great degree."

In a statement in the same article, Miss Tilbrook and Mr. Dunn gave their reasons for resigning.

They said they wanted the Ryerson Students' Administrative Council, the administration and The Ryersonian "to make a public statement denying the fraternity recognition. Even though there is no official recognition on paper, this group of Ryerson students is inevitably associated with Ryerson in the minds of the student body," the two ex-editors said. "We wanted this association publicly severed."

McGill Weekend

1,500 To Hit Funsville

Advance tickets sales indicate about 1,500 University of Toronto students will invade Montreal for the McGill-Varsity game this weekend.

About 700 tickets have been sold to date. Another 250-300 sales are expected today. All tickets must be bought by 5 p.m. today, officials said.

Engineers now participating in a field trip in Quebec, will be joining the Toronto group in Montreal and returning on the Students' Administrative Council-sponsored train. Officials also estimate another 200 students will go to Montreal by car.

Stricter enforcement of railroad rules will surround this year's trip. A record-breaking, havoc-making trip two years ago resulted in considerable train damage, and repercussions from Caput on wreckage ringleaders. The trip also came close to disaster when a student pulled the train's emergency brake a few feet short of a bridge which could not have supported the weight of a braked train.

Last weekend's Queen's train came close to a similar disaster. The emergency cord was pulled with an express train 20 minutes behind the slower football train.

SAC president Walter McLean said last night: "The SAC will very likely not sponsor another train if there are incidents on this train."

Trains for the weekend leave Union Station at 2:30 p.m. and 11:15 p.m. Friday. The return train leaves Montreal's Central Station at 4:15 p.m. Sunday, but students are requested to be at the station by 4 p.m.

Cost of a return fare is $12.50. Standard cost of a return ticket to Montreal is about $22.00.

For More Homecoming Pictures See Page Five

TYPING

Theses, Essays, Notes, Charts,
French, German, Latin, English
Prices Upon Request
Apt. 12
21 AVENUE RD.—WA. 2-7624
MRS. M. D. STOTT, B.A.

MONTREAL TRIP!

READ PAGE 10

There's Something Special
about du MAURIER

The Exclusive "Millecel" Filter Tip,
the most efficient filter yet developed, lets
you draw free and easy, for full smoking
satisfaction. du MAURIER combines
the finest Virginia tobaccos to give
you perfect mildness and smoothness. Once you smoke
du MAURIER you'll make the
distinctive red and silver package
your favorite — always.

du MAURIER

A Really Milder High Grade Virginia Cigarette
with the EXCLUSIVE "Millecel" FILTER TIP

Sir George Williams Editor Quitting Over Alleged Editorial Restrictions

Another editor of a student paper has resigned because of alleged restrictions.

Ben Zimet, editor of The Georgian at Sir George Williams College, said he resigned last week because he refused to put up with "the pseudo-guardians of morality who have attempted to restrict free thought and expression in The Georgian this year".

Zimet said he felt these persons, members of the college administration and certain students, looked for "filth and dirt" where none existed.

This, he said, drove him to the conclusion that the duties he had assumed this year appeared to be too insignificant and time-consuming.

"Because of my position," he said, "I have been forced into contact with various individuals with whom I have absolutely nothing in common. This I no longer wish to do."

"I have erred in accepting this position," he went on. "The lure of prestige and power blinded me."

He said he found the editorial ideas of The Georgian incompatible with his own philosophy.

In a Georgian editorial which appeared the same day as Zimet's resignation, it was stated the time has come when it must be made clear the newspaper is not the personal property of a few individual members of the college administration and student government.

Ian Moore, former editorial associate, was elected as new editor-in-chief. He says he expects little change in The Georgian's policy.

Indian Speaker Wants Canada Policy Neutral

An Indian speaker told the University of Toronto United Nations Club this week Canada should hook itself to a policy of neutrality.

Jit Granhir said, "Canadian students know little about my country other than what they glean from newspapers and television." He outlined the immense growth and development of India since the time of Ghandi.

"India is still in the process of building up and can't afford to enter into any major conflict."

He said, "India wants to play the part of peacemaker and hopes to encourage negotiations. This is why India has adopted a policy of neutrality."

"There is only conflict," Mr. Granhir said, "when one country is well fed and another is not. A universal standard of living would eliminate this."

"Although India would not ask for help, if she were ever to become involved in a conflict she would not refuse help," he added.

Avenue Park Barbershop

STUDENT PRICES
152A BLOOR WEST
(just east of Avenue Rd.)

BUY FLOWERS

for all occasions at the
PARK PLAZA FLORISTS
10 AVENUE ROAD
WA. 3-8361
10% DISCOUNT TO
STUDENTS AND STAFF

DIAMOND RINGS

SAVE THE BIG MARK-UP BY BUYING
YOUR DIAMOND RINGS DIRECT
Satisfaction Guaranteed or Money Refunded

Tel: EMpire 8-5268

WINSTALL DIAMOND CORP.

1219 Bank of Comm. Bldg. Toronto, Ontario
25 King St. West

TYPEWRITERS

$1.00 A WEEK BUYS . . .
$1.50 A WEEK RENTS

Get a free typing course and a liberal trade-in allowance for your old typewriter when you buy a new modern machine from us.

Phone HO. 1-1843 Today

UNIVERSITY BLAZERS Custom Made

Especially Priced for Students
$27.50

Fine Flannel Worsted Trousers
$16.50

Business Hours: 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.
Monday through Saturday
Suits Made to Measure
Latest Styles and Design

PARNES Clothing Co.

706 QUEEN STREET WEST
EM. 6-2025
Sample at S.A.C. Office

CLASSIFIED ADS.

LARGE BEDROOM
(Twin beds), 4 elevators, hot water, quiet, in luxurious apartment, ten minutes from University. WA. 3-1703.

BED-SITTING ROOM
For girl student - Avenue Rd. bus route. Telephone HU. 8-8645.

SEMI-CLASSICAL 1953
Sunbeam Talbot drop head, new rings and head, heater, mechanic's manual. Needs some repairs. $450. Phone WA. 5-6572 noon to 5 p.m.

EXPERT THESIS TYPIST
Fast personalized service. (electric machine). Irene Kenyon, 146 Bernard Avenue, WA. 3-4011.

A VERY SMART HARDTOP
DELUXE. Excellent condition and performance. No rust. Overdrive. 1952 Studebaker. Asking $395, but accept reasonable offer before weekend. WA. 2-7595.

NEED EXTRA MONEY
5000 Scotch Pine Xmas tree to be marketed. - Call CLaremont 3-1108 or write Sky Loft Lodge, R.R. 4, Uxbridge, Ont.

1961 ENGINEERS AND HONOUR CHEMISTRY MEN

The Proctor & Gamble Co. of Canada HAMILTON, ONTARIO

has employment opportunities for the summer of 1960

Interesting assignments of a technical nature provide valuable experience in one or more of the following fields.

QUALITY CONTROL

MECHANICAL ENGINEERING

CONSTRUCTION ENGINEERING

INDUSTRIAL ENGINEERING

PRODUCTION SUPERVISION

PRODUCT RESEARCH

PROCESS DEVELOPMENT

Application forms and Company information may be obtained from your Placement Office.

MISSION IN THE UNIVERSITY
MAIN SERIES 5:00 p.m. DAILY IN CONVOCATION HALL
NOON HOUR LECTURES: WATCH "HERE AND NOW" FOR TIME AND PLACE - NOV. 9 - NOV. 15

External Affairs Seminar Coming

A campus-wide seminar on external affairs will be sponsored Saturday by the University of Toronto's CCF Club.

At the giant seminar, discussion topics will include Colonial Convulsions, The Mushroom Cloud, Struggle for Asia, and the European Dilemma.

The seminar will not be limited to CCF participation.

Chairman of the opening panel on Colonial Convulsions is Eugene Moore, West Indian Students' Association president. Professor J. Cairns, George Mwicigi, and Selwyn Ryan, will speak on France and Algeria, Britain and Central Africa and the Dutch and the Apartheid. This panel starts at 10 a.m.

Fall-Out, Nuclear Disarmament, and Canada's Position will be discussed during the 11.30 a.m. panel by Professor D. Steenburg, Andrew Brewin and Professor D. Gauthier. Peter Dembski, Students' Administrative Council member, will preside.

Panel three at 2 p.m. deals with the Economic Problem, Asian Naturalism, and the Chinese Impact. Marc Somerville (II Vic) will preside with a discussion between Professor Ali Tayyeb, Mrs. M. Lazarus and E. B. Jolliffe.

The European dilemma will be dealt with by Professor K. McNaught, Mark Gayn and Professor J. Spencer under the headings of Canada and NATO, Disengagement, and Germany. Ken Wyman will be chairman.

David Lewis, CCF National President will speak at the seminar banquet to follow.

Admission to the banquet at 6 p.m. is $1.25. The Seminar is at 33 Cecil Street, one block south of College between St. George and Spadina.

St. Mike's Gryphon Rises Phoenix-Like From Ashes

By TERRY BOURKE

Saint Michael's College's literary magazine, the Gryphon, is slowly rising from its ashes after burning out in a blaze of apathy last year.

Gryphon editor Dave Brisson of the SMC Writers' Group which sponsors the magazine said last night scheduled publication date for the Gryphon's fall term issue Dec. 17.

Last year the Gryphon hit the rocks after lack of interest turned the whole venture into a bad dream.

At that time Gryphon editor Joan Bulger blamed the magazine's failure on the fact the majority of SMC students did not have time to devote to composing the serious type of literature demanded by the Gryphon.

Other students in the college pinpointed the slump of the magazine on skimpy publicity. They said a decided lack of publicity led to lack of knowledge of just exactly what the magazine was and what it was trying to do.

At that time several members of the SMC Student's Administrative Council said they felt the Gryphon was too high-brow and "not reaching enough of the students."

And the year before last the situation was somewhat the same, with the Gryphon collapsing through lack of student interest.

But now all this has changed. Brisson said publicity in The Varsity has been responsible in part for injecting new student enthusiasm over the magazine. "But," he added, "much more important in reviving the Gryphon spirit has been the Writer's Group itself."

Brisson made it clear that each year interest in the Gryphon and whether it will be published or not pivots on the qualities of the Writers Group Meetings.

The group meets each week. SMC students bring contributions and read them in front of their fellow students. Criticism follows.

From these contributions the best are selected. This week

Brisson, Brigit Elson (III SMC), Francis Gremese (III SMC) and Phil Nichols (II SMC) go into literary huddle to judge what pieces will appear in the Magazine.

Both prose and poetry receive equal billing this year in the Gryphon. Before the magazine died there had been a preponderance of poetry.

A clause in the SMC Students' Council constitution says because the Gryphon is an undergraduate effort all material filling its pages must be undergraduate only.

In the past his clause has often been waived in favor of graduate contributions. The reason was easy. There was never enough top rate undergraduate literature submitted to grind out a decent sized Gryphon.

Brisson said there is doubt that graduate material will be required for this issue. "Nevertheless," he continued, "if the articles and poetry of undergraduates don't come up to par, graduate contributions will be gladly accepted."

The Gryphon editor pointed out that for the first time in two years students with writing talents are coming out of their hiding places and flocking to the group meetings.

The 1959 - style Writers' Group is more informal. Students from all years are taking part. Formerly the Gryphon had been staffed either by SMC seniors or graduates.

"Thus first-year students feel more easy at the writers' meetings. In other words they don't feel like intellectual midgets," he said.

"It is only through the Writer's group we can spark literary enthusiasm in the students and bring to light the best writing talents in the college," he added.

Deadline for all material is Nov. 10-14. About 600 copies of the magazine will be printed, and left in Carr Hall Library. One hundred issues will be distributed to other colleges across campus.

A second edition of the Gryphon is set for Easter. Both issues will try to steer clear of a highly intellectual climate and present instead a varied, well-rounded, selection of articles.

Brisson said most of the ground work for the magazine has been done. "Now we sit back and wait for student reaction."

Call Christopher Jones Better Than McGill Hit

AVR producer Jim Doris hopes to make theatrical history with this year's production of "Christopher Jones".

Doris said, "We're out to make this the show of the year. We believe that with the experienced directors we have, the chance is ours to put U of T talent on the theatrical map".

Doris added, "The people behind AVR's "Christopher Jones" are taking dead aim on the original McGill show ("My Fur Lady"). It's about time U of T took up the challenge that has been thrown down quite some time ago—to produce a better book-show than Fur Lady".

"Jones" hopes to do this. In fact, "Jones" hopes to break right out of the college level of trite, cute shows, and give the Toronto drama critics something to crow about," he said.

Tonight marks the end of the semi-final auditions for the musical comedy. There are still openings for lead roles, dancers, and chorus singers. Barry Callaghan, director of the show, asks all those with talent to "come out and give it a try".

Last of the semi-final auditions will be held tonight between 7:30 - 9:30 in Brennan Hall, SMC.

LEGGY MISS Callahan looks demure on SMC table last night between auditions for the All Varsity Revue. Those black legs? They're tights, we're afraid. (Varsity staff photo by Harpur)

Want A Trip?

The University of Toronto United Nations Club journeys to New York City November 19-3. Anyone is welcome to go along.

Tours of the U.N. buildings and meetings with Canadian, Indian and Soviet delegations have been arranged.

The trip costs about $27. For further information contact Joseph Cruz at RU. 1-9896.

Otherside

Tomorrow morning The Varsity will appear on campus as a full-fledged magazine.

Called Otherside, the magazine has 32 pages and appears under the guiding hand of Executive Editor Mark Nichols.

Copies may be picked up at The Varsity's usual distribution points, a little earlier than The Varsity's usual distribution time.

They're for free—but only one to a student.

Staff Meeting

Down but not out, News Editor Ed Roberts has called but yet another News Staff Meeting.

As intimated in the countless letters which he laboriously scribbled over the past weekend, the meeting will be held in The Varsity's offices at 1 p.m. tomorrow.

Main speaker will be Roberts; but it's rumoured that comedians Wayne and Shuster, who could not make the Homecoming Show, will appear.

HH Service

Solemn High Mass will be celebrated in the Great Hall, Hart House this Sunday at 11 a.m.

This is the second University Church Service and is under the auspices of St. Michael's College.

The Celebrant will be Rev. William Gibbons. Rev. Donald McNeil will preach.

Two Campus Campaigns Finish Short Of Success

Student contributions to blood and money drives have fallen short of their mark, Red Cross and United Appeal officials said last night. The campaigns ended yesterday.

Although returns for United Appeal are still incomplete, only $2524.48 of the U.A. goal of $6500 has been turned in so far.

Blood

College or Faculty	Pints
Nursing	112
Forestry	48
Wycliffe	25
P&OT	89
Knox	25
Emmanuel	40
Trinity	220
SMC	254
Victoria	406
Meds	210
SPS	449
Social Work	17
Dents	162
Law	31
Architecture	30
UC	297
Pharmacy	55
Music	9
PHE	11
SGS	12
OCE	79
Staff	12
Anonymous	5
U of T Press	16
Museum	2
TOTAL	2,614

United Appeal

College or Faculty	Contributions	% of Faculty
Social Work	$109.18	145
Emmanuel	106.50	122
Knox	40.10	78
P&OT	96.96	54.5
Trinity	316.15	52
Nursing	80.99	50
Meds	345.50	40.5
Wycliffe	14.50	39
Forestry	27.10	30.5
Architecture	45.00	29
PHE	42.50	29
Pharmacy	78.67	23.5
Vic.	248.11	16.5
UC	205.65	12
SMC	50.81	6
SGS	40.00	4
TOTAL	$1,842.00
Concert	237.20
Las Vegas Night	195.55
Tag Day	249.65
Grand Total	$2,524.48
Outstanding: Law, Music, SPS, Dents.

Response has been "quite disappointing", Nancy Davidson, Student Service Commissioner said yesterday. However, SPS and Dentistry contributions which will be collected at the end of this month in conjunction with SHARE, are expected to increase the total, she added.

The campus blood campaign was "satisfactory", considering the number of people turned away because of colds, Miss Davidson said. Donations from the colleges increased over last year.

Nursing topped the blood poll with 68.5 per cent of the faculty donating. As winner it will be presented with the replica of the Engineers' cannon "as soon as it is found", Miss Davidson said. The replica was stolen two weeks ago from the Faculty of Medicine, last year's winner.

A second blood drive will be held in late February to bring the present total of 2614 pints up to the campus quota of 4500. The same people will be able to give again.

A LECTURE BY

RICHARD ROBINSON

of the Asiatic Studies Department at 7.30 — The Toronto Theosophical Society
52 ISABELLA STREET

Installation of
Dr. F. C. A. Jeanneret
As Chancellor
Monday, Nov. 9, at 8 p.m.
Convocation Hall

Honorary Degrees will be conferred on
His Excellency M. FRANCIS LACOSTE
Ambassador of France in Canada

His Excellency SIR JOSEPH JOHN SAVILLE GARNER
U.K. High Commissioner in Canada

GRADUATE STUDENTS

Buses leave 44 Hoskin for the

Caledon Hills Trip

AT 12 NOON SATURDAY, NOV. 14

$2.00 COVERS EVERYTHING

Register now at the Graduate School

SOLEMN MASS

WITH SERMON

Sunday, November 8th

11.00 A.M.

Great Hall

Hart House

Staff, Students and Public cordially invited

A University Church Service
Under the auspices of
St. Michael's College

MISSION IN THE UNIVERSITY

-- Next week --

Dr. Masumi Toyotome M.A., B.D., Ph.D.

CONVOCAATION HALL

5:00 p.m. Daily

Mon., Nov. 9 — THE SCOTCH TAPE LIFE
Tues., Nov. 10 — THE CRISIS OF LIFE
Wed., Nov. 11 — THE GLORY OF LIFE
Thurs., Nov. 12 — THE IMPASSE OF LIFE
Fri., Nov. 13 — THE PULSE OF LIFE

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 11 — QUESTION SESSION
VICTORIA COLLEGE ALUMNI HALL, 7:45 p.m., All Welcome
CHAIRMAN: REV. K. I. JOBLIN

SUNDAY, NOV. 15, 4:00 — CLOSING SERVICE
In The GREAT HALL, HART HOUSE

Caput Still Considers Discrimination Action

A special committee set up by the University of Toronto to study racial discrimination in Toronto fraternities has yet to decide on a course of action.

The issue flared up last month when Bobbi Arrington, a negro coed in St. Michael's College was advised not to enter fraternity rushing "to avoid embarrassment".

Following publication of The Varsity edition which sparked off the incident, U of T President Claude Bissell asked the Panhellenic Association which supervises activities of Toronto women's fraternities to meet with a special committee now studying fraternity relationships with the university.

No date has been set for the meeting.

Dean of Dentistry, Roy Ellis, chairman of the committee, has received information from an officer of the Panhellenic Association which he said "will be followed up".

The Caput, student disciplinary body at the U of T has already endorsed the President's statement that any religious or racial discrimination "strikes at the very heart of the University of Toronto".

President Bissell has said he feels the study being conducted will take "considerable time". Direct action has been recommended by the Caput, but President Bissell said yesterday, "You can't legislate people into virtue".

The Students' Administrative Council of the U of T last week mailed a questionnaire to all campus organizations, including fraternities, asking if they had discriminatory clauses in their constitutions.

Organizations practising discrimination will no longer be included in the Students' Handbook which lists all university features. They will also be required to pay $150 a page in the yearbook, Torontonensis, instead of the special $16 previously charged fraternities.

Bobbi Arrington, centre of all the publicity last month reports "all is back to normal".

after us again

Stripper Matinee

Negotiations have already been launched with the musicians' union to allow the Lux Burlesque Theatre to produce a 4:30 p.m. show. If all goes well, free passes will be given out around campus for the afternoon shows.

Earlier in the year several lovelies handed out about 2,000 free passes to U of T students.

"The results," he said, were overwhelming." As of two nights

Vandalism

The University of Toronto Anglican Women's Training College has sent up a flare for help.

Several weeks ago someone stole the name plates from Soward House, the Training College residence.

They have not been seen since. The plates labelled "Soward House" and "Anglican Women's Training College" cost over $120.

The college says it cannot afford the expense of replacing the plates.

Officials of the college believe it may be the work of one of the fraternities on the same street.

This is the second time in a short period the plates have disappeared.

The first ones were not recovered and the college was forced to dig up funds to replace them.

ago, 1,781 passes had been redeemed out of a possible 2,000.

Lux said the Varsity element at his shows proved to be the most rowdy, cheering, hooting, catcalling group in the theatre. "And I loved it," he added.

Lux said he is not only interested in maintaining the patronage of his old customers, but luring new ones "like students".

Trinity College Chapel

WEEKDAY SERVICES

7.00 a.m. — Mattins
7.30 a.m. — Eucharist
6.00 p.m. — Evensong

SUNDAY SERVICES

8.00 a.m. — Mattins
8.15 a.m. — Eucharist
9.15 a.m. — Sung Eucharist & Sermon

EVERYBODY WELCOME

VICTORIA UNIVERSITY

THE ARMSTRONG LECTURE

1959

"THE FUTURE OF POETRY"

Professor I. A. Richards

HART HOUSE THEATRE TOMORROW

at 4.30

Tonight Is The LAST NIGHT!

A.V.R. AUDITIONS For

"CHRISTOPHER JONES"

7.30 - 9.30 p.m. — Brennan Hall, S.M.C.

Needed: Actors, Singers, Dancers

HEAR

DR. MASUMI TOYOTOMI

SUNDAY, NOV. 8, at 11 a.m.

Walmer Road Baptist Church
(Corner Louther and Walmer Road)

ESTELLE CRAIG'S

WORLD ADVENTURE TOURS

Presents the unusual color film

"The Splendors Of Persia"

with Clifford Kamen in person

A fascinating story of an ancient land reborn!

TUES. - FRIDAY - SAT., NOV. 10-13-14 at 8.30

SPECIAL SUPPER SHOW — WED., NOV. 11 at 5.45

"Zanzibar To Zululand"

Clifford Kamen in person

Face wild elephants; meet a Sultan; dance at a Zulu wedding!
A remarkable film-story.

Tickets $1.20, $1.40, $1.60

EATON AUDITORIUM

UN. 1-1144

comment

THE VARSITY

Sprinkled generously around this page are photos of last weekend, Homecoming Weekend. On the left is the winning float, and the other photos show scenes of diverse jubilation during the day.

Varsity staff photographer Hans Meyn was really hopping Saturday morning. These are three of the pictures he took. There were a lot more.

in which wkr writes

On Odds And Ends

by Alan Walker

recordwise

The title "Erotica" on a long-playing record is sure to catch the eye, and it's too bad the record of that name isn't more readily available in commercial outlets, but you know how people are.

This record is without a doubt the most unusual, frightening and delightfully obscene disc available today.

What is it? The sleeve subtitles it "the sounds of erotic love" and it's very easy to say, but when you hear the disc the tendency is to say "My God! It is!"

This is a delicate matter, but I think we are safe in revealing that it is a recording made on the actual scene. According to the manufacturers, the sound effects portion was actually taped under scientifically controlled yet completely relaxed conditions.

"The oldest drama, the oldest pleasure in the world," gaily continues the A & R man of Fax Records, "is spelled out in sighs and moans and cries of delight and despair, pain and pleasure, anxiety and exultation, torment and ecstasy."

A Rev. Lawrence E. White has gone so far as to have his recommendation printed on the sleeve. He says the disc is "highly recommended as a fine tribute to our greatest gift, that of creation."

Here is truly a record about which all lovers, husbands and wives can say "darling, they're playing our song."

Song? That's where the bongos come in. For some not fully explained reason, the sounds of bongo drums were dubbed in for the final result. Also dubbed in were some hearty male cries, in a language which sounds like Mexican but we wouldn't swear to it, as it's never too coherent. The only word instantly recognizable is the universal "okay?" which he throws in every few minutes.

Mind you, an hour of this sort of thing can get pretty dull, but the record is certainly a great curiosity piece. Let's hope it doesn't degenerate into just another "party record."

It costs $6.95 for the high-fidelity disc, and if you have to have the last touch in realism, the stereo tape costs $15. It's available from Fax Record Company, 1018 North Fairfax Avenue, Los Angeles 46, Calif. Of course, it was recorded in Hollywood.

newswise

Readers of The Varsity seem to have trouble reading the whole paper in one day. It's seldom you can find someone who has actually read a whole Varsity.

But in some unusual way we managed last week to read a Varsity of Oct. 23, 1911.

Under the imaginative headline UNPLEASANTNESS, SOME STUDENTS IN A MIXUP FRIDAY NIGHT, was this article:

A regrettable clash between some of the students and the city police occurred on Friday night. The trouble was most unexpected, and even at this time it is not quite understood how the row was precipitated.

A very orderly parade of men, mainly of SFS, Meds and Pharmacy, proceeded from two of the downtown theatres to Queen's Hall, where the ladies were serenaded. The crowd then went up to Victoria College, where a squad of police were stationed behind the iron fence. The police drew revolvers, it is understood, and told the students not to enter the grounds. With the swaying of the crowd against the iron fence the barrier gave way.

A member of the staff then instructed the police to allow the students to come close up to the college building. After yelling for a time the men gathered around an automobile standing in front of the gate, and joked with the driver, an undergraduate of Victoria, who drove the car a short distance to amuse the crowd.

Then a policeman took offence at some word or action of one man who was not quite himself, and laid hands on him. This quite common action was hardly wise at the time for it is believed to have precipitated what turned out to be a most unfortunate affair. The police evidently lost their heads completely, and clubbed around with their batons indiscriminately.

After a chase down St. Alban's Street the men surrounded Annesley Hall, where the police again took to batons. Some very serious clubbing took place and several men were badly hurt. About 1 a.m. the whole disturbance ceased.

bookwise

Max Beerbohm's "Seven Men" is 40 years old, and it seems strange to review it now. But a new paperback edition recently hit the stands, and good satire is good satire anytime.

Under the revised title of "Seven Men and Two Others" (Vintage K80: $1.10, 135 pages) this is a brilliant compilation of sophisticated satires on a full range of human flaws and foibles. Let each recognize himself in it somewhere.

Beerbohm's eye is that of a professional caricaturist. The stories in "Seven Men" are stories of men he has met, or at least of men whom he can convince the reader he has met. There are only eight characters depicted, but Beerbohm himself appears in the sketches by name, and he counts himself as the ninth. He has good reason to. Many of his own peculiar characteristics are revealed as he busily laughs at others. He probably intended this.

Beerbohm's satire is not sarcastic. That is too easy a form. There is a certain underlying tragic irony in all his sketches in "Seven Men."

Granted that James Pethel is humorous, but his constant search for greater thrills, until he risks his own life and the lives of those he loves, for kicks, is frightening too.

Almost at the end of the Pethel sketch, there is a switch in the focus. Beerbohm realizes Pethel's tragedy and decides it is up to him to save his wife and daughter and Pethel too, from himself. Suddenly it is Beerbohm we are watching, where before it was Pethel.

What does Sir Max do? "I am inveterately opposed to any sort of fuss," he says. He realizes Pethel has been lucky in the past, and that his luck will bring him through. Beerbohm had his chance to play the hero, and yet he says "I am no hero." That kind of self-portrayal takes courage.

COMMENT

charity

The United Appeal's agonized effort to reach its objective has presented us with the unpleasant spectacle of good people forced in support of good causes to grovel for money at the feet of the public.

It is also to a great extent explodes the myth that we are a country of widespread high standards of living.

Pensioners, cripples, the retarded and the destitute crowd around us represented by hundreds of charities within and outside of the United Appeals to remind us how insufficient public charity is to the task of putting putty in the cracks of the dyke of human welfare.

And meanwhile our government wastes hundreds of millions of dollars, more than Appeal canvassers ever dreamt of, on obsolete rockets and other pink elephants of national defence.

One does not have to be an advocate of a welfare state to believe that this money could be better spent. The United Appeal is not the only organization forced into degrading appeals for funds. Our own University is another good example.

There is still enough distress and need in this rich country, that the government need not be afraid they will sap individual initiative by doing something about a little of it.

Until they do the United Appeal and similar charities will continue to be forced to badger the indifferent public for funds and will continue to belie the hypocrisy of our "high standards of living."

THE VARSITY

Member Canadian University Press

Editorial and News Office

Basement, SAC Building — WA. 3-8742, WA. 3-8113

TODAY'S ISSUE: Fred Host (direct from the KCR and he wasn't the only one), Phil Palter, Lee Richardson, Marryanne Kelso, Walter McLean, Mitro Makarchuk, Bob McGregory (who valiantly ran copy), Cathy Clarke by proxy, and Mike Sherman cum small friend. Photography this issue: George Harpur.

Poet Of Birth, Death

On Dylan Thomas

The soul of Dylan Thomas can be reached only after one has penetrated the legend of his life. So said Dr. Millar MacLure last night in a lecture at the Ontario College of Education.

The "tradition of the creative but self-destructive artist", the "poet destroyed by civilization" has endeared Dylan Thomas to the hearts of modern readers, Dr. MacLure continued.

Thomas has a narrow but limited range, and is a poet of birth, beginning, the prenatal state, and the unborn, he said. Thomas was committed to Genesis and Revelation, and, as a result, to genesis and generation. The sexual imagery is in content or in implication, sometimes intentional, sometimes not.

Dr. MacLure was careful to point out that the key to much of Thomas's poetry is in his obsession with the paradoxical idea of being born to live, but also being born to die. He achieved extraordinary impact, and epitomized or symbolized youth in his poetry. MacNiece, Auden, and Yeats are still there along with Eliot, who always wrote as if he were an old man, Dr. MacLure said, but Thomas seems to symbolize the whole of creation in his poetry.

His images grow out of his preoccupation; his feet and heart are in Wales, a dream country, and, therefore, Thomas is a pastoral poet in the metaphysical as well as technical sense. He is a poet of childhood and of innocence which recalls the past after the fall of man.

"Fern Hill", the main topic of Dr. MacLure's discussion, is a poem about the unfallen world, although the fall is prophesied. A Welsh farm is portrayed in a world before the apple was eaten, in the cycle of day and night. The fern is one of Thomas's favorite symbols for generation.

Here we see innocence at the mercy of Time, innocence which is like creation, when "The sky gathered again and the sun grew round that very day". The poet is everything, green and golden, huntsman and herdsman, as it is with children. The farm is a body—the father.

Yet children grow up, and out of grace and tune and harmony with God. But the state of innocence exists because one can look back on it with nostalgia, and because it is all the greener when left behind and more beautiful because lost. "Once below a time", says Thomas—below, gone, buried.

Dr. MacLure drew attention to the derangement of epithets which are characteristic throughout this poem as well as many others. For example, "all the sun long" instead of "all the day long", and "Adam and maiden" instead of "Adam and Eve". His use of sound creates an extraordinary intimacy along with the images.

"Fern Hill", Dr. MacLure concluded, is a pastoral poem in praise of childhood with Biblical imagery celebrating innocence, but more than that, it is an intimate and personal testament covered with the shadow of death which appears in the last stanza. "Time held me green and dying though I sang in my chains like the sea."

Marryanne Kelso.

The Hamlet of Stepney Green, a comedy with music, by Bernard Kops will be presented by LRM productions at the Radio City Theatre, Bathurst and St. Clair starting to-morrow night. Les Lawrence, Wally Russell and Leon Major, alias LRM Productions, are Varsity graduates and all three of them had their start in theatre under Robert Gill at Hart House and were winners of the Dale award in successive years '55, '56, '57. Dino Nazzano who recently won considerable acclaim in New York and Sammy Sales, of "Bloody Brood" renown will star in the show.

Two Orchestras: HHOA and U

We were never really aware of the banners that have been unfurled, both in Europe and in many parts of Canada and the United States, by Dr. Boyd Neel and the Hart House Orchestra, until we glanced through a sheaf of press comments that document the stunning record this ensemble has built up for itself in the past half-dozen years. Ever since its first concert in 1954 (at the request of students and with the direct assistance of the Varsity's editor), it has become widely known as "an ensemble capable of playing superbly, music that has been long neglected".

The next year saw the Orchestra at Stratford, forming the nucleus of the first Stratford Music Festival. Reverberations of this event were felt even in the New York daily papers.

The Orchestra has put a still finer point on Dr. Neel's contribution to the tradition of great string orchestra playing, and to the interpretation of both classical and contemporary music for smaller ensembles.

World-wide fame was accorded the group when, in 1958, at the invitation of the Canada Council, they performed on Canada Day, August 25, at the Brussels World Fair. Soloists were Glenn Gould, pianist, and Marguerite Lavergne, soprano.

On that occasion, however, not only were baroque writers brilliantly represented. Among contemporary composers, Benjamin Britten and the late Belgian, Guillaume Lekeu, shared the spotlight with Godfrey Ridout.

Latest report is that the following program, set some time ago, will remain unchanged, perhaps the first such occurrence in HHOA's history.

November 8, 1959, at 9:00 p.m.
Suite Abdelazer ..... Purcell
Four Part Fantasia ..... Purcell
Fantasia on One Note ..... Purcell
Three Dances from Comus ..... Arne
Symphony No. 1 ..... Boyce
Simple Symphony ..... Britten

November 22, 1959, at 9:00 p.m.
Soloist: Orval Ries, oboe
Overture to Vespasiano ..... Ariosti
Concertino No. 4 in F minor ..... Pergolesi
Oboe Concerto Op. 9, No. 2 ..... Albinoni
Concerto Grosso Op. 2,
No. 2 in C minor ..... Geminiani
Oboe Concerto in C minor ..... Marcello
Concerto Grosso Op. 3,
No. 11 in D minor ..... Vivaldi

December 13, 1959, at 9:00 p.m.
Sinfonia ..... J. S. Bach
Concerto for Two Violins ..... J. S. Bach
Sinfonia No. 2 in B flat ..... C. P. E. Bach
Suite in G minor ..... J. S. Bach

January 17, 1960, at 9:00 p.m.
Soloist: Aksel Schitz, baritone
Holberg Suite ..... Grieg
The First Meeting ..... Grieg
Group of Songs ..... Grieg
Norwegian Dance ..... Grieg
Two Elegiac Melodies ..... Grieg
Cowkeeper's Tune and Country Dance ..... Grieg

February 7, 1960, at 9:00 p.m.
Sinfonia in B flat ..... Haydn
Divertimento K. 137 ..... Mozart
Capriol Suite ..... Warlock
Two Etudes ..... Ridout
Serenade Op. 11 ..... Wren

Functioning solely under student direction for the first time in many years, the U of T Symphony Orchestra, to realize its full potential as a successful campus organization, requires a number of serious musicians, especially string players.

The Orchestra is also interested in competent composers who desire to write for the standard Orchestral combination on a school level.

This year's conductors are John Swan and Douglas James, both in their third year of Music Education.

Members of the U of T orchestra are afforded the opportunity of sight-reading and interpreting various works of the standard orchestral library.

First auditions and rehearsal are being held Thursday, Nov. 5, between 6.30 - 8.30, in the basement of Clover Hill, corner of St. Joseph and Bay Streets.

Mrs. Gibbons

MRS. GIBBONS' BOYS, which opened last night at the Crest will be a delight to Eric House fans and may provide some amusement for anyone who happens to drop in. The play turns around one joke, and most of us have heard it before.

Mrs. Gibbons, lovely old homebody that she is, has raised a family of jail-birds. He two older sons are currently serving time while her youngest son is out on probation. When Mrs. Gibbons decides that the boys need a father (She has been twenty years a widow) Mr. House enters as the middle aged suitor. While Mrs. Gibbons is trying to conceal her sons' occupations from her suitor, the play is relatively funny, but unfor-and Oskar Morawetz, both of the Hart House Orchestra, are the best chamber orchestras of the city, its "human quality, as well as its musical quality."

This autumn the Orchestra gave fourteen concerts. Not only were they, however; high schools and colleges in Kingston, London, and other places brought the Orchestra home for a concert.

Amid all this activity, though, to Toronto music-lovers must be remembered, it will be remembered that the music of Handel and Bach, the host for each evening's concert, music that was presented. On Monday evening concerts which, important and well received, year's concerts are outlined.

Quite an impressive history, but out right here in Hart House, where so much of the polished attained.

Tickets may be obtained for the series, or for individual concerts, at the Hall Porter's Desk. Members may attend, in addition to concerts, all rehearsals and lectures arranged during the season.

The U of T Chorus, both here and on other campuses, especially members, especially members, especially members.

The Inter-Varsity Chorus, Toronto during February, on its own this year, good.

The Chorus, conducting fellowship and fine music.

Students from all over the world, a vocal line are asked to appear, day, Nov. 10, from 8.00 to 9.00.

Gibbons' Bad Brood Hits Crest

no exit

comment

from first floor

Come trepidation about the literalness of the title accompanied our entering "No Exit" at the First Floor Club.

First performed with impact at the Theatre du Vieux-Colombier, Paris, in 1944, amidst turmoil and French re-awakening, this re-enactment story of an unusual triangle was staged during the first part of this week by Michael Manne at the "First Floor Club".

In his opening lines, the great prophet of atheistic existentialism lets his protagonist enquire about the old-fashioned fire and torture tools of a superstitious hell. Yet a tiny almost bare room containing but three coloured box-seats, contemporary water-colour sketches, an atrocious brass-corner-statue and a letter opener, dispel this notion.

A pleasant-faced, white-smocked attendant—Vlaj Handera—leads in the dark-haired, bearded journalist Garcin, played by Michael Manne, who finds himself without toothbrush and eyeglasses and, very soon, not alone.

Inez—Miss Edith Elgey—a red-headed, quick-tongued and angular lady joins him shortly, to be followed after some dialogue by the beauty and man's woman, Estelle, portrayed by Miss Lisa Creighton. The latter's chief dismay is the complete absence of mirrors of any kind.

In a strenuous tour-de-force, the characters reveal themselves, not completely willingly, to one another and to us. "I was tried to a frizzle by the most humane government," admits Garcin, electrocuted for illegal border-crossing, who calls himself a militant pacifist, but eventually concedes that he is a coward and wife torturer.

Inez reveals herself as "a bitch who always had my way, no matter who got hurt", and a lesbian who indirectly caused a man's death by stealing his woman. She, in turn, dispatched Inez and herself by means of gas.

Estelle, most reluctant to concede that she was not damned by mistake, finally shows the ugliest picture of all, a married woman who drowned her illegitimate baby in front of its father. The latter shot himself.

More and more the trio lose their last attachments to earthly memories and concentrate upon each other with ever greater intensity. We witness the uneasy triangle of the half-willing male victor over his jealousy-torn female rival for the affections of Estelle.

Thrust into perpetuity, inescapable togetherness in an intolerably small area, the three representatives of mankind struggle through their anguish, forlornness and despair, through the realization that "hell is other people", to discover that man is the sum-total of his life.

Michael Manne challenged himself with the much-discussed double task of director and central figure. The director tends to dominate the actor a little. He has quite successfully utilized atmosphere. Without footlights, with movement almost impossible, and a capacity audience almost crowding out the actors and their tiny platform stage, he has been wise enough to concentrate on characterizations and psychological conflict, combined with a good understanding of how to build climaxes and sustain tension.

The hands-in-pocket, eruptive method form of acting, displayed by Mr. Manne, though perhaps loosely associated with some modern, psychological plays, is not entirely the best approach to such an intimate situation.

While sometimes slightly self-conscious, the ladies, especially Miss Elgey, handled their parts quite acceptably.

A sophisticated play, a sophisticated setting, and a potentially sophisticated cast.

Rota Lister.

ely this situation can't be prolonged at the first act and other sources of amusement must be found. They aren't. The act ends with the sons and a jumping in a window after break- and the rest of the play is devoted to getting them out of the apart- ment.

The production is directed by George Cowan, and must be rated as one of the lesser works. The play is full of vaudeville ham, and the pace of the whole show seems to depend on the laugh lines of any sort are not present, the players seem to have determined to make the most of every one. The result is a little bit of play followed by a joke, with a pause for the laughs.

Symphony

anto. Because of that concert, moreover, ranked in European minds with the one. One reviewer (in Le Soir) even noted "grandeur".

ed the Maritimes in an ambitious series of general audiences were privileged to see universities were included in the itinerary. and Brantford completed the tour and then its sixth season.

chestra has continued, each year, to bring generally is not heard otherwise. Last of the CBC's anniversary celebrations of which ran a full week, Dr. Neel was the and the Orchestra played much of the wood, of course, are the twenty-five Sun- the last five years, have become such an of Toronto's winter music season. This ere on this page.

on't it? And much of it has been played Great Hall, the woodshed, so to speak, and finesse of this ensemble have been

Neel; in the case of a single ship, this privilege extends only one and one week after the concert maintain its high reputation, uses, urgently requires more estival is being held in To- the U of T Chorus, since it is added inducement to 'make

Walter Kemp, offers good all those who participate.

and faculties who can hold and the next rehearsal, Tues- 100 p.m. in Room 62 of the

HBOA SOLOISTS

Aksel Schitz, professor of Leader at the Royal Conservatory of Music, will sing a group of songs by Edvard Grieg at the fourth concert on January 17. Mr. Schitz is a native of Denmark, and was decorated by King Christian X because of his activities during the last war. He underwent an operation a few years ago, and was told he would not sing again. But this did not stop him; the invitation of the Conservatory to open a professorship of Lieder, and Mr. Schitz's own reputation in Toronto, have proven how strong a will and conviction this artist has within him to propagate the art of Song.

Orval Ries, who is finishing his studies at the Conservatory, took up the oboe in High School (North Toronto Collegiate) and, before he was finished his studies there, had won a scholarship to study at the Conservatory. He has already been heard in recital in Toronto this past autumn, and will- out him the oboe concerti for the HBOA's second concert on November 22 would have to be replaced by orchestral works.

in a couple of the bit parts but some of the more important to's must be content with less. Peace-Thema is a fine store-keeper and William Needles a good Wardheeler, but Edwin Stephenson, as the second son, is pretty incredible. The second son is a dapper New York con man, Edwin Stephenson is a Teddy Boy. Ron Hartmann, as the eldest son, mugs his way to laughs but never clearly establishes himself as anything. Douglas Chamberlain, with sideburns and leather jacket, plays the youngest son, and it is really only in his performance that we find the behavior that creates the situation. Mr. Chamberlain, one feels, is the only person on stage capable of delivering a proper raspberry. Norma Renault, as Mrs. Gibbons' younger sister, is creditable as common-sense influence.

The second act of the play drags its way through the suitors' revulsion at the lack of moral worth in Mrs. Gibbons' sons. It is climaxed by the most inept piece of business seen at the Crest for some time, when Amelia Hall tries to apply Judo to a detective holding a gun on the sons. The "Judo" consists of her tapping the detective on the shoulder, at which point he lies down. A special program credit is given to the Judo expert.

The play is for the most part innocuous, and has some highly amusing moments. Mr. House is a delight doing things he has done many times before. The settings, by Michael Johnston, fill the space allotted to him. He also manages to put in a lot of rather stylized apartment roofs above the set proper, but these only serve to make the audience wonder when someone is going to appear on these roofs. Every other move anyone makes can be predicted, but if you are willing to sit back and laugh every once in a while you might find the show worth seeing.

Karl Jaffary

Norma Renault and Ron Hartmann in a scene from Mrs. Gibbons' Boys, the American comedy which comes to the Crest via London's West End. The play deals with a doting mother's naive faith in the honesty of her three delinquent sons.

Theatre

Mrs. Gibbons' Boys opened at the Crest last night and should run through next week, despite the mixed reception (see review on this page). For as little as sixty cents students may obtain excellent seats on the night of the performance. Bring your ATL card.

Look Homeward Angel. Ketti Frings' dramatization of Thomas Wolfe's magnum opus comes to the Royal Alexandra for a three-day engagement starting tonight. Gilbert Green and Andrew Prime will star in the four performances, which includes a Saturday Matinee.

The Hamlet of Stepeny Green starts tomorrow at the Radio City Theatre. Leon Major directs Bernard Kops' comedy with music.

Noah: The New Play Society presents Obey's drama directed by Herbert Whittaker, Friday and Saturday nights at the Studio Theatre, 88 Eloor East, opposite the subway.

The Crucible. Arthur Miller's Salem saga will be staged at Hart House Nov. 11, 12, 13 and 14. The UC-St. Mike's production is directed by Bill Davis. Students $1.00.

The World of Carl Sandburg. Two-time academy award winner Bette Davis and Gary Merrill come to the Royal Alexandra for a three-night stand starting Nov. 12.

The Iceman Cometh. Basia Hunter will direct Eugene O'Neill's play at the Central Library Theatre starting November 13.

A Month in the Country by Turgenev continues through November 8 at the Coach House Theatre, 200 Bedford Road.

Shadow of a Gunman. The West End Players production of this early O'Casey work closes Saturday at their 50-seat Studio Theatre, 248A Brunswick Ave. For reservations phone RO 6-2376.

The Caine Mutiny Court Martial. Performances nightly to this Saturday at the York Community Theatre, 39 LaPlante Ave.

Calendar

comment

"Wherever the real power in a government lies,
there is danger of oppression. In our Government the real power lies in the majority of the community"

James Madison

Before I begin this column, I should explain why I want to talk about the nature of government, especially democratic government. It is widely recognized that the individual today is living in the midst of a new predestination exercised not by God but by corporate man. The distinction between the good of individual man and the good of corporate man, and the preponderance of the corporate ideal have been recognized even by such comparative reactionaries as William H. Whyte, who isn't worried about the individual as such, but thinks that a bit of individualism would be good for the corporation. Consequently the company psychiatrist is to be encouraged to turn his conditioning experiments in the direction of controlled non-conformity.

The outcry against "conformity" becomes more of a cliché everyday, while nothing changes in the circumstances that brought it forth. Corporate man stands against individual man neither with any clear notion of why this should be so.

The reason why it should is this: behind corporate man and individual man stand a corporate ethic and an individual ethic. The conflict between them is of grave moral significance.

Both ethics are present in the theoretical foundation of American democracy, and it is from there that I would like to trace them. For quite a while, though, I should like to leave the question of ethics aside and discuss corporate and individual man simply as facts of the democratic scenery. Allow me to assume that both these men may have reasons for existing and acting, and let me first say just how I think they do act and can act. I will say just what I think are the techniques of the corporate man and of individual man. After that I will be able to get around to the moral questions that lie at the core of all the techniques.

There was once a time, presumably, when men frankly believed that ruling was a simple consequence of seizing power. Somewhere along the line they stopped believing it, or at least they stopped frankly believing it. The official ideology became that a ruler derives his power from the fact that he acts "on behalf of the people".

But if government is to act on behalf of the people, there must be such a thing as the people, a unit on behalf of which it can act. Thus the corporate man is born. He is the embodiment of a General Will, an abstraction that can be related to the sum of the individual wills of the greatest number of people, as in theoretical American democracy, or can become a detached entity that the leader must interpret, as happens in totalitarian democracy.

Thus the basic democratic notion, that of governing on behalf of the general will of the people is deep set not only in the folklore of American egalitarianism, but in the folklore of communism and fascism as well.

Under totalitarian democracy, the fact that the people as individuals have little will does not stop their leaders from governing "by the will of The People", and even on our own side of the world the notions that the people may well have to be made to suffer for the sake of The People and that the will may have to be submerged for the sake of The Will, are becoming so prevalent, that capital letters are beginning to seem like the most horrible political weapons ever invented.

So that in the twentieth century there would seem to have been no dictatorships. In America, in the Germany of the 30's and now, and in Russia, the "General Will" of The People has delegated away whatever sovereignty the individual wills of the people may have possessed either to a corporate group or to an individual acting in the name of their totality.

Let anyone think this pattern of corporate coercion does not exist in American democracy let us take the words, "coercion" and "freedom", and try to see them in the context of American government.

First coercion. It has been pointed out by Richard Hofstadter in "The American Political Tradition", that to the Founding Fathers, the men who wrote the Constitution of the US, freedom was anarchy, all men were born equally unprincipled, and that the function of government was precisely to coerce—to provide a means whereby the individual impulse (and how often the individual has been regarded as capable of nothing but impulses) could be held in check. And so we have James Madison writing in the Federalist No. 51. "Ambition must be made to counteract ambition . . . It may be a reflection on human nature that such devices should be necessary to control the abuses of government. But what is government itself but the greatest of all reflections of human nature? If men were angels no government would be necessary . . . In framing a government which is to be administered by men over men the great difficulty lies in this: you must first enable the government to control the governed; and in the next place oblige it to control itself."

The main theme of democracy, then, as of government is the exercise of control, the placing of restrictions. Nor is there anything surprising or odious about this. Government is necessary and is only necessary as Madison and his associates saw, because men are not angels. What is surprising is the general failure to realize the extent to which the institution of a representative form of government involves a mistrust of the untrammelled action of the individual. Democracy, that is, is a check on individualism, albeit a gentler check than totalitarianism. Furthermore coercion is not as nasty a word as it would seem to be; it stands at the basis of certain concepts such as law and order that we admire very much, and sometimes almost exclusively admire. The need to administer such a system of coercion as we call law gives rise to the corporate man. Stated euphemistically the responsibility of corporate man is to legislate for his fellow man; stated in a more radical form his responsibility is to coerce his fellow man. It is all one.

If this were all there were to be said about American democracy, we would have to judge it as not only coercive, but as unremotely and monstrously coercive as the worst totalitarian democracy we know of. But there is a difference between our national life and totalitarian national life, in spite of what some of our more agonized liberals may think.

What must be recognized is that the difference is not centred within the government. Running alongside of the main theme of American democracy—distrust of the individual—is a submerged and faintly anarchic theme—that of mistrust of the government. Thus in an uncomfortably corporate man like Thomas Jefferson we find doubts being expressed: If man cannot be trusted to govern himself, "how, then," asks Jefferson, "can he be trusted with the government of others?"

So there had to be some attempt to try and fit the notion of "freedom" into the scheme of coercive government, by means of elective representative government. But since, in this attempt, freedom was being defined by coercers who can hardly be expected to be definitive about a concept that is antithetical to their own guiding genius, two important heresies were committed with regard to "freedom." Or recommitted since neither of them were new, but were firmly based on western political philosophy. Furthermore definitions of freedom based on these "heresies" are more prevalent now than ever.

The first heresy is the notion that freedom per se does not mean a complete lack of compulsion. The statement runs roughly in this form: "Freedom does not mean being allowed to do anything at all; it means being allowed to do what is right." This is a surprisingly popular notion, as are its variations—"man is free only when he obeys the law," "anarchy is not freedom", etc. I can only suggest that the "freedom" to do right, but not to do wrong, or translated from political double-speak into ordinary language, the "freedom" to obey the law, may be fine and noble, but it is not freedom.

The second heresy arises from the notion that in a democracy "freedom" is exercised by The People, as a group. What it means when a group exercises freedom I do not know. What it is meant to mean, I suppose, is that each individual can either agree or differ with the majority group as he wishes. Furthermore he can express his agreement or difference with the group by means of his vote. However actual action is still vested in the majority group, under elective representation.

How can the individual accomplish anything in this structure? Only under two circumstances.

He must join a group or a group must join him. This too may be "good" but again it is not freedom.

What I would like to suggest is the only time that the word "freedom" has any meaning is when it is precisely synonymous with individual anarchy. In any other case freedom becomes synonymous with subjection.

This definition has two large general implications; first the word individual suggests that freedom is not properly applicable to nations, states, or any group, except by analogy; only an individual can be properly free. In the second place freedom entails doing whatever you want to for whatever reason you want to do it.

If I am not mistaken, anyone who has read this far and is willing to accept my views on coercion and freedom will feel called upon to side with the coercers rather against the anarchists. To me this is simply a consequence of the extent to which the corporate man is our ideal and the new predestination is in the ascendancy. For so long now applause has greeted any statement of man's responsibility to society, while condemnation has greeted any statement of man's responsibility to himself. In a sense it can be argued that this does not represent the victory of society over the individual, but simply the victory of the corporate individual over the anarchic individual, but again it is all one. The individual's choice has not disappeared; it has only turned against itself, and the gospel of freedom stated by individual men like Gandhi has been twisted into a gospel of coercion by corporate men like Nehru, coming in their wake.

This does not necessarily mean that we must choose between slavery and chaos. The point is that just as coercion is not necessarily the same thing as slavery, freedom is not necessarily the same thing as chaos. As I suggested earlier in this column both coercion and freedom, or as I said then, both the corporate man and the individual man have their own ethics. But before I can attempt to discuss the ethics of each we should attempt to look more closely at the practice of each of man. In the next column in this series I shall be talking about how to be coercive and how to be anarchic. The theme of individual anarchy in a number of fields will then dominate for a while until it leads us back into a discussion of the ethics of the legislator and of the anarchist.

notes from the underground

by Sam
Aizenstat

blasts beatniks

Callaghan On Critics

A leading Canadian writer told University of Toronto students Tuesday California beatniks are like "little boys with beards and girls wearing long black underwear".

Speaking in the Hart House Library, Morley Callaghan said: "Greenwich beatniks at least take pride in being themselves, but the California group take pride in being like each other."

Mr. Callaghan said he thought the "impact made by Jack Kerouac followers will fade out in two or three years".

Switching to critics, Mr. Callaghan said criticism has now become more important than writing. Critics have never written for the artist, "but now more than ever they seem to be carrying on verbal combat among themselves".

One student asked if the purpose of a critic is "to interpret conceptually what the artist sees intuitively".

"The role of the critic is not merely to judge but explore and guide in the world literature. I like criticism that really is an illumination in the world of art," he said.

"In the case of university students," he continued, "it is better that they look at writing through their eyes rather than through the highly specialized eyes of the critics."

He said, "Hemingway managed to remain popular for three decades because he had a particular response to life and stuck to it".

"Hemingway," he said, "utilized the classic themes of strength, valor, awareness of death, which appeal to men of all times."

"In this case bullfighting symbolizes what Hemingway stood for," he said.

In discussing the book "The Outsider", Mr. Callaghan said, "Colin Wilson is pretty close to being a fraud, a product of the museum."

"There is nothing in that book that hasn't been said before," he added.

A heated controversy developed over this book and "the angry young man" was discussed on the social and political level as a product of the early welfare state.

rhythm of disintegration

Teacher On Toynbee

"Western civilization has already experienced 1½ beats of the 3½-beat rhythm of disintegration."

This was historian Arthur Toynbee's theory as presented by Professor W. H. Dray of the University of Toronto Philosophy Department in the final lecture of the Student Christian Movement Prophetic Profiles series.

Toynbee gained his inspiration to write "a blasphemy against civilization" when he had a flash of insight while reading the Greek historian Thucydides' account of the Peloponnesian War. "He realized his times were going through the same throes and realized he might eventually predict the fate of western civilization," Prof. Dray said.

"Breakdown precedes disintegration according to Toynbee. In the last 400 years Toynbee says there are all the evidences of breakdown within our civilization, beginning as long ago as the wars of religion in the sixteenth century."

"Western civilization is as good as doomed," continued the lecturer. "The only prospect is a delaying action, but Toynbee will not admit this."

Toynbee writes the only hope for us is the mutating of a new religious society from our disintegrating civilization.

University Finances Are Discussed In Recent Varsity Graduate Article

University of Toronto fees contribute more than one-fifth of the university's bill, a financial report revealed yesterday.

The report, by U of T Vice President F. R. Stone, appeared in the fall issue of the Varsity Graduate. It said the rest of the bill is paid by research grants, gifts, and provincial and federal grants.

Federal grants to the universities in 1951 were on the basis of 50 cents a head on the population of Canada. This rose to $1.50 by 1958.

In 1958 this amounted to about $126 a student. By 1958 this had soared to $361.

Meanwhile provincial grants have also been rising in the last four years.

Arts students pay tuition to their own college, the article said. The university receives only a small part of the tuition from students in the three federated colleges; Victoria, St. Michaels and Trinity.

However, the university receives 60 per cent of the federal grants allotted for these arts students.

Residence, food services, and health services are self-supporting.

At the moment the university is holding a public appeal to raise $12,600,000.

This will be barely enough to finance the next five years of expansion, the article said.

OPENING NOVEMBER 6th

a comedy with songs
by Bernard Kops
the HAMLET
starring
Sammy Sales
Dino Nardizano
of STEPNEY GREEN directed
by
LEON MAJOR

PREVIEW
TONIGHT

ALL SEATS

$1

RADIO CITY THEATRE - Bathurst and St. Clair - LE 5-1700

U. of T. ORCHESTRA

First Rehearsal and Auditions

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 5, 6.30 — 8.30

Basement of Clover Hill, St. Michael's Men's Residence
(corner of St. Joseph and Bay Streets)

If you have filled out an application form — COME!

IT'S FUN TO DANCE

At MART KENNEY'S RANCH

TO CANADA'S No. 1 NAME BAND (Coast to Coast)

MART KENNEY

WITH NORMA LOCKE

SPECIAL STUDENT RATES

Reservations — Information — Directions — AT. 8-1282

Mart Kenney Orchestra — Info — AT. 8-0532

HILLEL

Thurs., Nov. 5 - 1:00 p.m. U.C. Room 8

Dr. Jessie Macpherson, Dean of Women, Victoria College on "The Freudian Ethic"

Fri., Nov. 6 - 8:30 p.m.

Mr. Ben Kayfetz on "200 Years of Canadian Jewry"

Sun., Nov. 8 - 9:00 p.m. — Debate

Participating: Arnold Epstein, Shaya Izenberg, Stephen Lewis, and Kenneth Wyman.

BLUE & WHITE BAND
REHEARSAL

Thursday, Nov. 5 — Varsity Stadium — 5 p.m.

or Drill Hall (Rain)

Friday, Nov. 6 — Union
Station 2.00 p.m. OR
10.45 p.m.

FLYING CLUB MEETING

8.00 p.m.

Wednesday, November 11

Copper Room — Wymilwood

Refreshments will be Served

Martin Beckner presents

EWAN MacCOLL

Britain's foremost folk singer

& PEGGY SEEGER

in a program of

FOLK SONGS

Sat., Nov. 7th at 8.30 p.m.

EATON AUDITORIUM

Tickets: $3.00, $2.25, $1.50 at A & A

Bookstore, Towne Records, Eaton

Auditorium Box Office, or Phone:

ME1056 3-2411

THE CRUCIBLE by ARTHUR MILLER
directed by WILLIAM DAVIS
Next Week 8.30 — Wed., Nov. 11
Sat., Nov. 14
THE U.C.-ST. MICHAEL'S THEATRE GUILD
TICKETS — HART HOUSE BOX OFFICE
ADMISSION: $1.50 — STUDENTS: $1.00

OPPORTUNITIES

for

DIETETIC STUDENTS

IN THE

RCAF

Interesting careers are available for dietitians in the Food Services Branch of the Royal Canadian Air Force.

F/O ANNA NECHKIN

As well as openings for the qualified dietitian, present training plans provide financial assistance to university graduates while completing RCAF-sponsored internships in either the hospital or commercial field.

You Are Invited

to consult with a

Specialist Food Services Officer

who will be visiting your campus

TUESDAY NOVEMBER 10th

at 10.00 a.m.

ROOM 117, HOUSEHOLD EC. BUILDING

She can tell you the general requirements for entry, training plans and opportunities available to dietitians and dietetic students in the Food Services Branch of the RCAF.

CAF-12-56

Royal Canadian Air Force

ATTENTION TORONTONENSIS REPS
Come to Nensis office S.A.C. Basement
Mon. Nov. 9, Tues. Nov. 10, or Wed. Nov. 11 from 1-2 or 3-5
To pick up order forms for Sales Campaign

HART HOUSE

TODAY
5.10 p.m. — Amateur Radio Club CODE & THEORY CLASS — Debates Loft
5.15 p.m. — Record Room Instruction — Record Room
7.30 p.m. — Art Class — Art Gallery
8.00 p.m. — Archery — Rifle Range

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 9

In order to serve a Luncheon in connection with the installation of the new Chancellor of the University, Dr. F. C. A. Jeanneret the Great Hall, the Faculty Union and Graduates' Dining Room will not be open to members for LUNCHEON, MONDAY, NOVEMBER 9th. Dinner will be served as usual in the Great Hall and Faculty Union.

From 12 — 12.45 p.m. — members of the House not attending the Luncheon will be asked to enter the House via the East Doorway and the Arbor Room door. Members will be asked to remain in the Lower Corridor at this time or may proceed to the second floor via East Stairway.

From 12.45 — 2 p.m. — members wishing to go to the Reading Room or the second floor will be directed via the West Stairway.

From 6.30 — 11 p.m. — in order to prepare for the reception in honour of Chancellor Jeanneret the Athletic Wing, except for the swimming pool and locker room, will be closed from 6.30 p.m.

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE

THURSDAY AFTERNOON LECTURE SERIES

"The Victorian Inheritance Of George Bernard Shaw"

by President Claude Bissell

TODAY AT 4.30

West Hall, University College

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS

VOLLEYBALL

Anyone interested in trying out for the intercollegiate Volleyball Team come to O.C.E. for practices on Tuesday, November 10 and Thursday, November 12 from 5.30 to 7.30.

VARSLITY at MCGILL — SAT., NOV. 7th, 1959

MONTREAL TRAINS

Leaving Union Station Tomorrow at 2.30 p.m. and 11.15 p.m.

All Tickets Must Be Collected Today

(THURSDAY, NOV. 5th)

At The S.A.C. Office
(BEFORE 5.00 p.m.)

THE PASSENGER LIST WILL BE COMPLETED TONIGHT

Tickets will NOT be on sale at the S.A.C. Office Tomorrow

Game Tickets on sale Today
$2.50 and $2.00

At the Athletic Office, Hart House or with train tickets at the S.A.C. Office

here and now

TODAY

12.10 p.m. — "Faith and Campus Living" is the subject of the third discussion of the Varsity Christian Fellowship in Nursing. Miss Joan Frewing is the speaker in room 53, School of Nursing.

12.30 p.m. — There will be a lecture on "Communicating the Faith" in room 336, Ontario College of Education. The speaker is Mr. W. Sutherland.

1 p.m. — The VCF is holding a

Bible discussion in room 111, University College and in room 21, Victoria College.

— There will be a discussion during lunch at Canterbury Centre, 99 St. George St.

1 - 2 p.m. — "Guy Fawkes Was Right: Parliament Should Go to Blazes," will be the topic of a V.C. Engineering debate in room T102, Mechanical Building.

1.10 p.m. — There will be simultaneous lectures in various colleges and faculties: "Christian Foundations" will be the topic for Engineering and Forestry in room 254, Mechanical Building. The speaker is Prof. C. P. Martin. "God and Your Job" is the topic in room 104, School of Nursing. The speaker is Mrs. G. Walters. "Christ and Ethical Relativism," Vice Music Room; Prof. G. Walters.

— "Christ, The Hope of Glory," room 4, Trinity College; Canon M. Smith.

— "Dr. Freud and St. Paul," room 71, UC; Rev. M. Flint.

4.10 p.m. — The VCF in Vic is holding the fourth in their series of group discussions. "Christianity — Society and Message" will be led by Mr. G. Stacey Woods, in the Vice Music Room.

7.30 - 9.30 p.m. — Actors, dancers and singers are welcome to the AVR Auditions for "Christopher Jones." This is the last night, in Brennan Hall, St. Michael's College.

8 p.m. — The University of Toronto Liberal Club will meet to discuss their club project for 1959-60 in room 2, Trinity. The speaker is Vern Singer, M.L.A. York Centre. Bridge, games and refreshments will be the program at the Graduate Students' Lounge, 44 Hoskin Avenue.

SATURDAY

8 p.m. All members of the VCF and those interested in the Mission are invited to a "Meet Dr. Toyotome Night". Refreshments will be served. Wymolwood Music Room, Victoria College.

SUNDAY

8 p.m. A TV open house will be held at Canterbury Centre, 99 St. George Street.

9 p.m. — Earle Moss, pianist, will be the artist at a Sunday Evening Concert in Addison Hall Common Room, Victoria College.

— Professor Emeritus C. P. Martin, former head of the Department of Anatomy, McGill University, will speak at the Meds-Nurses Fireside in the Affiliate Nurses' Residence, Sick Children's Hospital.

GAMES TODAY

FOOTBALL	East 3.30 Med.	vs Jr. SPS	Stokes, Starkman, Lipson
SOCCER	North 12.30 Forestry	vs Arch	Hilgenberg
	South 4.00 Pharm.	vs Wyc.	Burgarski
	North 4.00 Knox	vs Law	Avis
LACROSSE	1.00 Vic. I	vs St. M. A	Hodgkinson, Misener
	7.30 SPS. IV	vs Knox	Naylor, Haskill
VOLLEYBALL	1.00 Pre-Med. I A	vs Trin.	Stein
	4.00 UC Frat Nots	vs St. M. VII	Drasimin
	6.30 SPS. C	vs SPS. D	Dugan
	7.30 SPS. J	vs Vic. Caven	Dugan
	8.30 UC McCaul	vs UC Wallace	Dugan

GAMES FRIDAY

SOCCER	North 12.30 U.C.	vs Jr. SPS	Bugarski
	North 4.00 Vic.	vs Med. B	Avis
LACROSSE	1.00 Vic. II	vs SPS. V	Spanetz, Roth
VOLLEYBALL	1.00 St. M. VI	vs SPS. H	Pomerant
	4.00 St. M. II	vs St. M. III	Coolhill
	5.00 SPS. C	vs Dent. I Yr.	Dugan

Sports Schedules — Week of Nov. 9th

FOOTBALL—Mon. Nov. 9	East 3.30 Sr. SPS	vs Vic	Godley, Barrett, I. Abella
Tues. Nov. 10	East 3.30 Trin	vs U.C.	Stokes, Keiner, Lipson
Wed. Nov. 11	East 3.30 Med.	vs Dent	Stokes, Chykaluk, McCulloch
	West 3.30 Jr. SPS	vs Pharm	Weinrib, Flancman, Lipson
Thur. Nov. 12	East 3.30 Forestry	vs St. M.	E. Abella, Flancman, Marchut
Fri. Nov. 13	East 3.30 Sr. SPS	vs Trin	Weinrib, Starkman, Kolodzie
	West 3.30 U.C.	vs Vic	Chapnick, Barrett, Mandel
End of regular schedule, quarter and semi-finals next week.
SOCCER—Mon. Nov. 9	North 12.30 Trin. A	vs St. M. A	Hilgenberg
	North 4.00 Med. A	vs Sr. SPS	Bugarski
	South 4.00 Knox	vs Forestry	Ryan
Tues. Nov. 10	North 12.30 Emman.	vs Pharm	Hilgenberg
	North 4.00 Wyc.	vs Law	Bonfield
Wed. Nov. 11	North 4.00 U.C.	vs Vic	Bugarski
	South 4.00 Med. B	vs Jr. SPS	Farwell
Thur. Nov. 12	North 12.30 SPS. III	vs St. M. B	Jensen
	North 4.00 Law	vs Emman	Avis
End of regular schedule, quarter and semi-finals next week.
LACROSSE—Mon. Nov. 9	1.00 St. M. A	vs U.C. I	Haskill, DePetrillo
Tues. Nov. 10	1.00 U.C. II	vs SPS. II	Spanetz, Roth
	4.00 Vic. II	vs St. M. B	Chubb, DePetrillo
	6.30 Med. A	vs SPS. I	Haskill, Grist
	7.30 SPS. VI	vs Dent	Haskill, Grist
Wed. Nov. 11	1.00 SPS. V	vs I Pre-Med	Hill, DePetrillo
	6.30 SPS. III	vs Med. I Yr	Barrett, Derrett
	7.30 Trin	vs Law	Barrett, Derrett
Thur. Nov. 12	1.00 St. M. A	vs Vic. I	Hodgkinson, Derrett
	6.30 Med. A	vs U.C. I	Barrett, Chubb
	7.30 Pharm	vs Knox	Misener, Chubb
Fri. Nov. 13	1.00 II Pre-Med	vs SPS. IV	Spanetz, Roth
VOLLEYBALL—Mon. Nov. 9	1.00 UC Sigma Alphas	vs SPS. H	Sigal
	4.00 UC McCaul	vs Pre-Med II Yr	Pomerant
	5.00 Med. III Yr	vs SPS. D
Tues. Nov. 10	1.00 SPS. B	vs SPS. A	Stein
	4.00 UC Frat Nots	vs UC Loudon	Coolhill
	6.30 Med. I Yr	vs Dent. III Yr	Stein
	7.30 Pharm. A	vs For. A	Stein
	8.30 Wyc. A	vs Emman	Stein
Wed. Nov. 11	1.00 Pre-Med. II Yr	vs SPS. F	Sigal
	4.00 St. M. VI	vs UC PILAMS	Goldman
	5.00 Med. II Yr	vs UC Beta Sigs	Goldman
	6.00 St. M. II	vs Med. IV Yr B	Dugan
	6.00 Knox	vs U.C.	Dugan
Thur. Nov. 12	1.00 UC Pilams	vs Vic M.F.H's	Stein
	4.00 UC Jeanneret	vs St. M. V	Coolhill
	6.30 Por. B	vs Pharm. B	Eamer
	7.30 St. M. I	vs Med. IV Yr	Eamer
	8.30 Vic Caven	vs St. M. VII	Eamer
Fri. Nov. 13	1.00 SPS Kremlins	vs SPS. F	Sigal
	4.00 Pre-Dent	vs UC Sigma Alphas	Drasimin
	5.00 SPS. G	vs Dent. IV Yr	Drasimin
SQUASH—Tues. Nov. 10	6.20 Sr. SPS	vs Dent. A
	7.00 Law A	vs Med. III
Wed. Nov. 11	1.00 SPS. III	vs Trin. B
	4.20 St. M. A	vs Vic. I
	5.40 Trin. A	vs Med. I
	7.00 Dent. B	vs St. M. B
Thur. Nov. 12	1.00 Arch	vs U.C. II
	6.20 Jr. SPS	vs Med. II

esoteric soirée

Toronto's biggest social event of the year occurs this Friday night.

The most select group in Canada's largest city will gather in decidedly upper-class surroundings for a congenial evening of dancing and pleasant social conversation as they discuss the latest gossip from the world of the 400.

And though this may sound exactly like the Artillery Ball, it isn't. It's the First Varsity Staff Party for 1959-60, designed to out-rid and out-ball the Artillery Ball.

Further details (this is a nice way to say liquor policy, place, etc., etc.), are available from any masthead staffer.

Harrier To Be Run At McGill

In the University Championship Harrier run U.C.-P.H.E., bolstered by their freshman ace Mike Turk ran away from Medicine by a 22-39 score. Other U.C.-P.H.E. runners were Ed LaHay (fifth), Ron Price (sixth), Peter Bing (seventh). Turk was fourth behind Jaan Roos first, Jim...Griffen second and Dick Hamilton third.

Last week-end U of T harrier team scored a victory over Wayne University in a warm-up for the Intercollegiate finals this Saturday. The score was 21-24 for the visitors from Toronto. Jim Griffen finished third behind two runners from Wayne. Mike Turk ran fourth, Dick Hamilton fifth with Ron Price leading Ed LaHay to the tape in seventh and eighth spots respectively.

Last night coach Fred Foote named the senior Harrier team for this year. They are Michael Berger, Dick Hamilton, Mike Turk, Jaan Roos and Jim Snider. Foote believes that this team is strong with Snider and Roos and has good balance in the other three runners.

Highlight of the harrier season so far has been the strong showing of the U.C.-P.H.E. team which won its fifth consecutive University Championship in Harrier.

This Saturday the team travels to Montreal to take part in the Intercollegiate finals.

In last year's meet Varsity finished in third place behind Western and the champion Ontario Agricultural College.

MORE TOUCHDOWNS Like this one is what coach Dalt White hopes that his Varsity Blues will score when they play McGill this Saturday. Somewhere in this mound of muddy gridders, Steve Chisholm has just scored a TD against Western. —VSP Cavanaugh.

Hopes Rest With Gaels As Blues Play McGill

By DAVE GRINER

"No letup." Those are the words that Dalt White hopes to impress on his Varsity Blues as they prepare to entrain for McGill and a wild weekend and football game.

The Blues still nurse a slim hope of representing the East in the East-West game against UBC at Varsity Stadium on Nov. 14. Those hopes will be carried onto the field of J. W. Little Memorial Stadium at London by the Queen's Gaels who clash with the Mustangs this Saturday.

If Queen's win, and the odds of them doing so are approximately those of a snowball surviving in hell, Varsity could win the title by knocking off McGill.

The first game against the Redmen here was almost laughable. The McGill team was so totally inept that the game quickly degenerated into a farce. Had White not pulled his first string quarterback, Nick Sopinka, for most of the second half, the score could easily have been 70-1 instead of the final 42-1 that was registered.

This time McGill will not be nearly so easy. They gave Western the scare of their lives at London and extended them in the game in Montreal. The big McGill line, anchored by tackles Paul Harasimowicz and Tom Stepl held the Horsies to 23 points in two games. A very creditable record indeed, and one that matches that of the Blues.

Had McGill not fumbled at critical moments in both games, they might have upset the Mustangs at least once. So Varsity are not expecting an easy game. There is nothing better the Redmen would like than to upset the Blues, who have hammered them 50-7, 42-1 and 35-13 in the last three outings.

The reason White is emphasizing the possible toughness of this game is wrapped up in the terrific roar of laughter that would go up if Queen's did Varsity a favour by knocking off the Mustangs, but Blues then lost to McGill.

Vic Win 7-1 Lead Group One Football

As the dust clears on Group I football, competition, second round play has produced a league leader.

Victoria leads the group with three wins, one loss, followed by Trinity and Sr. SPS with 2-2 records and UC with three losses and a win.

SPS edged UC Redmen 15-7 on Monday, in a relatively mild, cleanly fought battle, that saw both offensive teams fail to organize a sustained attack.

Ross and Lunn scored majors for the engineers. Both touchdowns were set up by passing plays, although the last few yards were ground out on the turf.

Higgins booted the convert while Schafer added the insurance single.

Bliss scored the UC TD on a 35 yard third down gallop.

Tuesday's Vic-Trinity clash was slightly more on the rugged side, Vic turning the tables on Trinity by a 7-1 count.

Black Panthers unveiled a new quarterback in the person of Lynn McMurray. The lanky signal caller was an immediate standout, running and kicking extremely well although his passing failed to find his receivers.

Vic appeared a powerful defensive unit but offensively they showed only sporadic effectiveness.

Don Seebach scored the TD for the winners, while Don Willis added a single. McMurray booted the point for Trinity.

The game was marred by what was later determined to be a completely incorrect call by the referee, although credit must be given the Trinity coaches for refraining from protest so the contest could continue.

... and in this corner by bobby armstrong

Last Friday the new Women's Athletic Building was officially opened. Now that the women of the university have a single centre for sports, athletics will be getting into full swing.

Before the opening, the Senior T club held a luncheon. Mrs. Marg. Wright, who originated the idea of the club for Senior T winners, presented a new trophy for women's athletics; the Mary Parkes Trophy. This Trophy will be presented to the faculty or college with the highest points in intramural athletics, much like the T. A. Reed Trophy for men's athletics.

BASEBALL

In the first league Vic A's and St. Hilda's are tied for first place with three wins and two losses each. PHE A's lead the second league with five wins in as many games; P&OT is second with three wins and one loss. Pharmacy, the newcomers to league three, has won four games to stand ahead of St. Mike's B's by two points.

The regular schedule end next Tuesday. The winners of the various league will playoff to determine the intramural champions.

BASKETBALL

PHE teams dominated the play in the three leagues in which they are entered. OCE leads the third league. St. Mike's B's top the fifth league while Pharmacy and P&OT are tied for the lead in the sixth.

Practices for the intercollegiate team will start next Tuesday and Thursday from 6.15 to 8.15 in the sport's gym of the new building.

ARCHERY

Two weeks ago an intercollegiate archery meet was held in Guelph at O.A.C. Varsity, represented by Singy Paulson, highest scorer of the team, Jean Hayward, Marg Merritt and Viuu Canep, placed fourth with 2,876 points. O.A.C. won with 3,067 points.

In intramural competition PHE placed first, OCE second and St. Hilda's third.

SWIMMING

A potential swim team is practising five nights a week in Hart House and UTS pools, under the supervision of Miss Valerie Gary.

This Saturday the speed swimmers will travel to Western for a dual meet. The intercollegiate tournament will be at Western on November 20.

Lost to the team is diving champion Jane Furness. However Toronto has gained Lillian Bobson as a diver. This summer Lillian participated in the Canadian Open Swimming Championships.

Another loss to the team will be club president Janet Medland. Janet, three time synchronized intercollegiate champion will not be swimming for medical reasons.

BITS AND SCRAPS

The annual St. Hilda's-Western laerosse game was cancelled due to bad weather, badminton practice every Thursday afternoon in drill hall, free skating in Varsity Arena Wednesdays and Thursdays at 11, diptfne at Lillian Massey pool from four to six Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays, a field hockey meet this Saturday at Varsity Stadium.

Girls' Football

St. Hilda's Saints, after five years of valiant effort, finally scored not one but three touchdowns to defeat UC 19-0 in the opening game of the girls' football league on Monday.

Rookie Diane Lillie led the scoring with two touchdowns and a convert. A UC fumble in the last minute of play resulted in the third Trinity touchdown by Maryanne Berton.

Today the Saints meet their traditional foes Victoria and the Pantherites are out for blood.

Soccer Blues Play OAC Championship At Stake

The two Intercollegiate soccer games to be played here this Saturday could well be the most crucial ones of the year for both Varsity teams. Blues play host to the OAC-VC Redmen in the last meeting of the year between the two squads in contests due to start at 11:30 a.m.

Varsity can claim the honours for the first battles in Guelph as the Seniors squeezed out a 1-0 win while the Intermediate Blues played to a 5-5 deadlock. However, neither of these results were convincing enough to enable the Varsity teams to feel complacent about this Saturday's fixtures.

Redmen as usual will be up for the game, especially so this time since they claim that they have a better team than Varsity and that Blues' win in Guelph was somewhat fortunate. The game in question was undoubtedly a thriller, with Blues letting OAC do most of the running and using a solid zone defence to thwart the Redmen's attacks. As a result, to the spectator, it seemed that the Guelph team had all the play and Varsity was hanging on the ropes, but in fact Blues were well in the game as the score shows.

Varsity carry a six wins in six starts league record into Saturday's game with the Redmen boasting a five wins, one loss record. A Varsity win will virtually assure the title for the Blue and White. For a change the Senior line-up will not be decimated by injuries as has been the usual story this year.

A probable starting Senior team will be: Kovacsovic; Taylor and Watson; Bell, Avis and Green; Morris, Duncan, Csongradi, Peretz, Michez, Mahon and Primorac.

In the Intermediate game a Varsity win will bring the championship back to Toronto after a one year absence. The Eaby Blues starting squad will likely be:

Walcott and Kalbins; Carr, O'Leary and Lou McLean; Fraser, Puski, Ryan, Walker, Winston McLean, Hamilton, Stroud and Casey.

All players should report downstairs in Hart House no later than 10:45 a.m.

Two Mustangs Lead Scoring

With one game left to play in this season's Senior Intercollegiate Football, two Western Mustangs are tied for first place in the scoring race.

Bill Mitchell, veteran tackle, and John Wydareny, a rookie halfback, have each accumulated 18 points. Wydareny has three TDs while Mitchell has accumulated his points via field goals and converts.

Five players, three of them from Toronto are tied for second place with twelve points. Bob Dann, Mike Muir, and Steve Chisholm have each scored two touchdowns.

Another Varsity backfielder, Peter Potter, is in third place with ten points. He leads the league in singles with six, one more than Joe Irwin of McGill. Mitchell also leads the league in field goals. He has hoofed four so far this year.

SCORING

Name	TD	C	FG	S	ST	P
Mitchell (W)	0	5	4	1	0	18
Wydareny (W)	3	0	0	0	0	18
Muir (T)	2	0	0	0	12	12
Chisholm (T)	2	0	0	0	12	12
Dann (T)	2	0	0	0	12	12
Irwin (M)	1	0	5	0	12	12
Wicklum (Q)	1	0	0	0	12	12
Porter (Q)	1	0	0	2	0	8
McMurray (T)	1	0	0	0	6	6
Murhile (T)	1	0	0	0	6	6
Pollzlani (W)	1	0	0	0	6	6
Cosentino (W)	1	0	0	0	6	6
Gaigani (W)	1	0	0	0	6	6
Loathead (T)	1	0	0	0	6	6
Boyd (T)	1	0	0	0	6	6
Copcher (W)	1	0	0	0	6	6
Shepherd (W)	1	0	0	0	6	6
MacAleese (Q)	1	0	0	0	6	6
Robb (Q)	1	0	0	0	6	6
Lambert (M)	1	0	0	0	6	6
Hansen (M)	1	0	0	0	6	6
Jack (T)	0	0	0	0	1	2
Richards (Q)	0	0	0	0	1	2
Ritchie (Q)	0	2	0	0	0	2

GORDIE EPP will be the new look in centres when Blues take to the ice this season. Epp starred for St. Mike's Majors in the Junior OHA last season. —VSP Stabins.

JOHN MACDONALD, fourth year man on Jack Kennedy's crew is one of the few "old" stars left on the perennial Intercollegiate hockey champs. —Burns.

Hockey Blues Prep For 6th Title

Thirteen Veterans Have Gone Bumper Rookie Crop For Jake

Ice chips and fine spray are flying while the hollow boom of puck against boards vibrate the Varsity Arena rafters these fine muggy nights, and these signs of activity mean only one thing.

To an ardent hockey fan, this is a positive sign that those slap happy, rollicking Varsity hockey Blues have begun their annual shenanigans in the confines of the Bloor Street Ice Emporium.

Back to terrorize the league and chase their sixth consecutive Intercollegiate hockey title are the 1959 Varsity Blues, coaches "Big" and "Little" Jack, dignified sophomore Zamboni, ageless manager Gawley, Go Blues Go, the Blue and White Band with acoustics and all the trimmings that make the winter's Friday nights happy ones.

Many new faces will carry the blue and white colors to the hockey wars this season. Gone from last season's champions are thirteen veterans. Only five players who were first stringers through last year have returned to the fold.

By GENE GLISKY

Prominent among the returnees is Varsity's own, Brampton's own, Barrie's own, last year's Captain, John MacDonald. A scrappy right winger, the four year veteran was among the top ten goal scorers in the league from the time he joined Jack Kennedy's puck chasers.

Back also is that mean, lean bundle of defensive fury, Harry Neale (well, not so lean). By far the most colorful blue line prowler in the league last season, the immitable fat-man will add the same color to this year's contests.

Teaming up with Neale on the blue line is Western Canada's gift to Varsity, Neale Munro. An all round all-star defenseman, Munro (newly married) just about solves any defensive problems Blues may have had.

More defensive strength returns in hard-hitting Frank Sullivan. Steady, strong and rough, Sully plays both forward and defense. Currently nursing a football injury, Sullivan will return before the whistles start to blow.

A very welcome returnee to the depleted attacking force is none other than Howie Li'l B'ar Roth. A rookie sensation last season Roth (also newly married) is both a colorful and lethal left-winger.

Bob Giroux returns to the goal keeping chores. Understudy to Ray Dunn last year, Giroux played excellent goal whenever he got the chance.

Battling for a goalies' berth as well is Don Keenan. A rookie to Intercollegiate competition, he has a good record in both Junior A ranks plus in limited action with Boston of the NHL.

It is obvious by now that rookies are going to play the major role in defence of the title.

Although at this point of the season the rookies still remain an unknown quantity, prospects for Kennedy's squad have seldom appeared better.

Heading the list are a number of Junior A players and a host of last season's intermediates.

From St. Mike's Majors comes starry centre Gordie Epp. From Toronto Marlboros hail Captain Jim Murchie (right wing) and defenseman Ian Sinclair. From Lakeshore Bruins come forwards George Hicken and Dan Cerepacha. From Sudbury appears defenseman Lou Regimbal.

Intermediates who are all capable of performing in Senior league are fiery John Gatten, Jim Simpson, Walt James, Gord Gowe, Bill Griffen, Doug Lougheed, Gord Frey, Pete Warren, Terry Wensley, Jack Cooney and Al Fleming.

Last but far from least, one must always consider coaches Jack Wheelrake and Kennedy. Kennedy, the jovial mentor, is respected in hockey circles as one of the finest in the game today. On him it rests to bring his sixth hockey title to the U of T.

Jake, we know you can do it!

comment

by mike chykaliuk

One more charge for loss or gain

One more charge for glory or for shame

One more charge for victory through pain.

Last Saturday an inspired Varsity team lost a golden opportunity to win the Yates trophy. The victory, if one could call it that, was by too slender a margin to overcome the thirteen point lead the Mustangs brought with them.

The Intercollegiate "top brass" decided that in the event of a tie the fair way to decide the issue would be to award it to the team with the more favourable points for and against in the series of the teams involved, in this case Varsity and Western. Mustangs beat Blues 16-3 on a dry field in London early this year.

Saturday Blues outplayed, outsplashed, and outfought a Mustang team that was content to sit back and protect that thirteen point lead.

But, as General MacArthur once remarked, "there is no security in this world, only opportunity". Varsity had the opportunities but failed to convert them into the required points.

Several uncontrollable factors crept in to decide the outcome of the contest. The officials called a notoriously one sided game penalizing Blues 100 yards while Mustangs only got 10 yards.

Western was caught clipping and intentionally grounding the ball on the same play. They were awarded the shortest of the two penalties. When the referee was politely questioned as to the sanity of such a decision he (the ref) threatened to eject the Toronto player (the polite one) from the game.

The gridiron was covered by a slimy, slippery layer of muck (perhaps better known by a simple, slang Anglo-Saxon monosyllable) that virtually stopped the Blues offense. Toronto's straight T relying on short trap and pass plays could not move the ball in that "grit" which may have been partially prevented by the discreet use of the tarpaulin.

Yet how can one blame the team and the coaches for losing the Yates cup when they won the game 13-7? Western is claiming the title because they hold a seven point spread over Toronto in the two games.

Blues have a better points record for the entire season. They are the defending champions. In other sports such as boxing the champion has to be beaten to lose his crown. Blues were only tied.

They have won four and lost one, the same as Western, but the Mustangs are going to be declared champions. What a ridiculous situation!

This year's team was severely reprimanded by the press for not winning more handily, yet they won. The 1959 Blues may not be the greatest Varsity team in twenty years but they are the best team in the league this season.

Optimistic To The End Benny No Follow Trend

It being a sadness for this one as I pack up and prepare to leave. After all these years when I am being the outstanding greatness to make a pile upon this campus I must leave not in a blaze of glory as is my due, but rather I am leaving furtively and in shame since this is the season when I do not manipulate my wee fatelets with the customary ease and flourish of my youth and prime, and my soul is being wracked with the horror of it all and more.

But suddenly I stop and hark as I hear a toddling upon my doorstep as of someone gently bouncing, bouncing on my sewer door. Quietly I am removing the welcome mat from over my pad so that my guest is dropping in with a loud splash and the shock of his arrival causes my whole scene to quiver with delight. But it is all turning out a letdown indeed when this nocturnal visitation happens only to be my erstwhile chum Fat Sam Chubbycheeks who is known far for his wideness.

It is coming out of Fat Sam, mostly in puffy wheezes, as he treads water and garbage in my private lagoon that he comes upon a mission from the torpedoes.

"Benny," mumbles 'Cheeks' as he stumbles out onto dry land, "I am coming to tell you great news." I tell him to speak up but he answers that he knows no other language but Benny-speak and if I will wait a minute he is running for an interpreter.

"It is happening the capitulation of all your nefarious and ugly foes, dear Benny," slobbers Fat Sam. "They realize the enormity of the evil they do. This comes about as we are playing a game of blackjack with them so that we hit the fates right upon the head like it is a lead pipe cinch.

"Now it is all over and here is how it happens." I perk up my ears and listen. "The McGills are being overcome with remorse and fold before our Blues 20-6 while the Queenies are breaking the mustangs and give them to the Blues who use them to pull their surreys with the fringes on top after they win against the Tinder Birds next week.

Fire Fighters Quench POT Huts Fire —and lose axe

Fire trucks roared to the University of Toronto campus last night, extinguished a small fire in one of the buildings, and left—minus one axe.

"Probably university students took it," commented one fireman, as he left the scene of the $1,500 blaze at the Physical and Occupational Therapy buildings near Varsity Stadium.

Students from a men's residence on Devonshire Place filed out onto the street to cheer the firefighters on.

The fire broke out about 8.30 p.m. Cause of the fire has been attributed to careless smoking.

The building was unoccupied at the time.

—Varsity Staff Photos by Walker

THE VARSITY

Vol. LXXIX — No. 22

Monday, November 9th, 1959

We Win —

AND LOSE and the paradox of winning and losing on the same day is reflected in the face of four-year Blues man Bob Dann. Varsity whalloped McGill 23-0 Saturday, but lost out to Western in the competition for a chance at the east-west championship against University of British Columbia. See page 8. — VSP Ghani

Music Faculty OKs Garratt On Council

By ALAN WALKER

The University of Toronto's Faculty of Music will keep Ian Garratt as its representative to the Students' Administrative Council.

At a mass meeting of the faculty Thursday, Garratt squeezed out a vote of confidence by five votes, (28-23), in spite of a special investigating committee's recommendation of non-confidence.

The special committee arrived at its recommendation after four lengthy meetings during which it examined all the evidence brought up against Garratt at a closed SAC meeting Sept. 30.

Following Thursday's faculty meeting, the investigating committee approved the complete report of its meetings as written for The Varsity. The committee allowed a Varsity reporter to attend the meetings but reserved the right to censor the report.

However, as much of the report contains material which was originally brought up at the closed SAC session, the information, which led to the committee's recommendation of non-confidence, cannot be published.

The committee, chaired by Ann Osborn, boiled their hours of meetings down to a two-page report.

Miss Osborn read the report to the members of the faculty who were at the meeting.

It commended Garratt for his "good work in keeping the University Orchestra and Chorus alive on campus" and found that his motives were "basically good," but said he had shown a "lack of discretion" in certain actions.

Explicit details of the charges against Garratt were contained in the report. In connection with Garratt's activities, the committee said he had "acted unethically," but the committee cleared him of the two main charges laid by the SAC.

The committee said it felt an "atmosphere of distrust" had arisen toward Garratt, and said because of that atmosphere it felt he would be unable to fulfill his position as SAC representative.

After the quick reading of the report, the members present, about half the faculty, marked their ballots. Garratt was asked to leave the room.

Five minutes later it was all over. Garratt was still in possession of his SAC seat.

Editors Resign, Staff Follows

Montreal, Nov. 8 (CUP)—Failure of a move to oust University of Montreal Student Council President Hubert Reid last Thursday has brought about the abrupt resignations of four student councillors and the entire staff of the U of M student paper.

The move, reportedly in the works since September, came to a head early last week when four members of the student council, among them editor Pierre Martin of Le Quartier Latin, submitted their resignations conditional to the resignation of Reid.

The four, Martin, external affairs director Michael Robert, and publicity and advertising directors Arthur Shapiro and Gerald Martin, charged Reid with "incompetence and lack of leadership," and said they would resign unless Reid did.

An explosive council meeting that lasted until 3.30 a.m. Friday ended with the council giving Reid a 24-1 vote of confidence. Three council members abstained.

The meeting then accepted the resignations of the four.

The entire staff of Le Quartier Latin, with the exception of acting editor Luc Dansereau, immediately demonstrated their support of Martin by resigning.

Included in the sweep was Normand Lacharite, controversial student editor who has been expelled from two Quebec universities for publication of anti-administration articles.

The 22-year-old student was blacklisted by the University of Ottawa in September, 1958, and by Laval University in December of the same year.

Ex-editor Martin said following the meeting that the U of M council "lacked courage" in refusing to fire Reid.

It was rumored at U of M that Reid had bribed fellow students before his election last year, and that he had accepted funds from the provincial government.

Neither charge was substantiated.

Le Quartier Latin's new editor, Dansereau, joined the paper's staff this year.

Varsity Cheerleaders May Back Western

Even though the University of Toronto Blues have been knocked out of the East-West football playoff this coming Saturday chances are the Varsity cheerleaders will be out there in front of the stands leading student cheering.

The paradoxical situation came about last night when Students' Administrative Council President Walter McLean learned that University of British Columbia, the western standard-bearers in the playoff, would not be able to bring their cheerleaders and band east with them.

Financial difficulties have been blamed for the impasse.

McLean immediately checked with Varsity cheerleaders and the Blue and White band who agreed to help UBC in their fight against Western.

He then wired Alma Mater Society President Peter Meekison offering the use of U of T's "punch-drunk cheerleaders and musical band in the interests of national unity".

A reply is expected later today from UBC officials.

Signatures Rolling In

Arrangements for sending petitions condemning student executions in Hungary are beginning to jell.

Peter Meekison, student council president at the University of British Columbia, where the idea originated, denied Friday that the plan was bogging down.

"We already have better than 6,000 signatures," he said. Meanwhile at University of Toronto, Walter McLean said SAC representatives have gathered about 2,500 signatures.

"We hope for at least 5,000," McLean said. He pointed out that returns are still incomplete.

Universities in the Maritime provinces are showing interest in the plan.

UNIVERSITY BLAZERS
Custom Made

Especially Priced for Students

$27.50Fine Flannel Worsted Trousers
$16.50Business Hours: 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.
Monday through Saturday
Suits Made to Measure
Latest Styles and DesignPARNES Clothing Co.
706 QUEEN STREET WEST
EM. 6-2025
Sample at S.A.C. OfficeTYPINGTheses, Essays, Notes, Charts,
French, German, Latin, English
Prices Upon RequestApt. 12 —
21 AVENUE RD. — WA. 2-7624
MRS. M. D. STOTT, B.A.BUY FLOWERS

for all occasions at the

PARK PLAZA FLORISTS

10 AVENUE ROAD

WA. 3-6361

10% DISCOUNT TO
STUDENTS AND STAFF$25,000. convertible term Insurance.Students rates only $5.00 per month. Phone Harold Lubbock
EM. 6-8919CIVIL SERVICE
OF CANADAThe graduating class is reminded that applicants from all Engineering and Arts courses, except candidates proceeding to an Honour degree and seeking research appointments, MUST write the examinations to be held on November 14.A REPRESENTATIVE FROM THE COMMISSION WILL BE AVAILABLE
AT THE PLACEMENT SERVICE FROM 9 TO 4 ON TUESDAY AND THURSDAY,
NOVEMBER 10 AND 12, TO ANSWER
QUESTIONS.All written information on positions and application forms for presentation at the examination are available now at the Placement Service, 5 Willcocks Street.DIAMOND RINGSSAVE THE BIG MARK-UP BY BUYING
YOUR DIAMOND RINGS DIRECT
Satisfaction Guaranteed or Money Refunded

Tel: EMpire 8-5268

WINSTALL DIAMOND CORP.1219 Bank of Comm. Bldg. Toronto, Ontario
25 King St. WestFree Alterations

On all short and long gowns in stock.

Drop in anytime between lectures

HELMAR 46 ST. GEORGE ST.
WA. 1-5978CHRISTMAS
EMPLOYMENTApplications are now available for POST OFFICE Christmas employment
Apply on campus — Room 103 — Placement Service
5 Willcocks Streethere and now*TODAY12,30 p.m. — Mr. W. Sutherland will lecture on "The Communication of Faith" in the Ontario College of Education, room 336.1,10 p.m. — Mission in the University lectures begin with Rev. M.
Flint, room 71, UC; Canon M.
Smith, room 4, Trinity; Prof. M.
Walters, Vic Music Room; Mrs. G.
Walters, room 104, School of Nursing; Dr. C. P. Martin, room 254, Mechanical Bldg.;1-2 p.m. — Torontonensis faculty reps report to the 'Nensis office in the basement of the SAC building
today, tomorrow or Wednesday, now, or from 3 to 5 p.m. for briefing on the fall sales campaign.8 p.m. — Prof. Gwyn Walters will speak on "Some Highlights of the German Contribution to Religious Understanding," following a meeting of the U of T German Club in the Common Room of the University College Women's
Union, 79 St. George St.TUESDAY1-2 p.m. — Dr. Matsumi Toyotome will speak as a far-East critic of the "North American Organization man" at FROS, 3 Willcocks St.12,10 p.m. — Dr. G. P. Martin will lecture in room 254, Mechanical Bldg.1 p.m. — There will be a lunch discussion group at Canterbury
Centre, 99 St. George St.1,10 p.m. — A Quaker study group will discuss the history of the Society of Friends in room 42F, University College.—The Mission in the University lectures continue with Prof. G.
Walters, in room 71, UC; Dr. O.
Walters, room 111, Anatomy Bldg.;
Rev. J. Morris, Vic Music Room;
Prof. R. E. Jervis, room 254, Mechanical Bldg.; Ardeacon Hunt,
Music Residence Common Room.1,20 p.m. — Dr. C. P. Martin room
108, Dentistry Bldg.5 p.m. — The U of T Auto Club meets in room 52L, University College. A constitution and coming events will be discussed.7,30 - 9,30 p.m. — An extra night of auditions for the AVR. A few good roles are still open and men are especially needed. Brennan Hall SMC.EXTERNAL AFFAIRSMr. R. P. CAMERON, Dept. of External Affairs will speakMONDAY, NOV. 9 - 4:00 p.m.

Room 151 — Political Economics Building

For interested students who propose to write the Examinations for that department.

1961 ENGINEERS AND HONOUR CHEMISTRY MEN

The Proctor & Gamble Co. of Canada
HAMILTON, ONTARIO

has employment opportunities for the summer of 1960

Interesting assignments of a technical nature provide valuable experience in one or more of the following fields.QUALITY CONTROL MECHANICAL ENGINEERING
CONSTRUCTION ENGINEERING
INDUSTRIAL ENGINEERING*PRODUCTION SUPERVISION
PRODUCT RESEARCH
PROCESS DEVELOPMENTApplication forms and Company information may be obtained from your Placement Office.CLASSIFIED ADS.PRIVATE ROOM, BATH, BOARD
In exchange for occasional baby sitting and light evening duties. —
Phone ME. 3-1062. ---FURNISHED APARTMENT
3 rooms, one bedroom, very comfortable. Harbord & Huron district. Phone WA. 3-6678FURNISHED ROOM
Quiet, attractive room on bath floor 52 Avenue Road.DRESS ALTERATIONS
Quality workmanship, fast service.
Harbord at St. George, Call Mrs.
Zador, after 10 a.m. WA. 3-6960.LOST $30.00
Within last 2 weeks — Call Diane
Soloman WA. 4-2121.NEED EXTRA MONEY
5000 Scotch Pine Xmas tree to be marketed. — Call CLaremont 3-
1108 or write Sky Loft Lodge, R.R.
4, Uxbridge, Ont.SEMI-CLASSICAL 1953
Sunbeam Talbot drop head, new rings and head, heater, mechanic's manual. Needs some repairs. $450.
Phone WA. 5-6572 noon to 5 p.m.372 HURON STREET - FOR SALE
South of Bloor, 11 rooms including self-contained apartment on 3rd floor. Garage facilities. Oil
Heated. $27,500 with 5,000 down.
Days. EM. 4-8306 Evenings HU.
8-5507

One-Day Student Seminar Ponders World Affairs

Over 200 University of Toronto students Saturday attended a whirlwind political seminar and mulled over topics ranging from Colonial Convulsions to the European Dilemma.

And the seminar's sponsors, the U of T CCF Club, were so pleased with the response that they plan to make it an annual event possibly lasting for two days.

The day-long seminar, which CCF'ers say is the first of its kind ever held on campus, featured panel discussions on Fall-Out, Nuclear Disarmament and Canada's Position and on The Economic Problem, Asian Naturalism and the Chinese Impact as well as on Colonial and European problems.

Panel speakers included students, newspapermen, university professors and well-known political figures.

The possibility of a bloody revolution in South Africa within the next five to ten years was the most striking proposal to emerge from the discussion on Colonial Problems.

Lack of any decisive policy by the Canadian government with regard to nuclear disarmament came in for criticism in the next panel discussion, which discussed the problems of fall-out as well as Canada's position with regard to the nuclear disarmament question.

Prof. D. Gauthier of the U of T's Philosophy department was one of the Diefenbaker government's sharpest critics as he said "no cabinet minister has made any policy statements on this matter, possibly because they don't know".

Other panelists were Prof. D. Steenburg and CCF National Executive member Andrew Brewin. Panel chairman was former CCF vice-president Peter Dembski, who resigned from the campus club last fall.

Discussion on the China question by the next panel brought out the claim that Tibet is and always was considered a part of China.

CCF'er Ted Jolliffe, a panel member, pointed out that this was recognized in a treaty between Britain and China signed about 40 years ago.

Marc Somerville (II Vic) presided over the panel, which included Mr. Jolliffe, Prof. Ali Tayyeb and Mrs. M. Lazarus.

Last panel session of the seminar saw Prof. K. McNaught, Prof. J. Spencer and Mark Gayn talk of the European problem, with Ken Wyman (IV UC) as president.

The panel termed Canada's aid to NATO "ineffective and wasteful," but said it played "a psychological role".

The day's activities ended with a banquet at which CCF National President David Lewis spoke.

A Great Ol' Weekend In Good Ol' Montreal

About 1,500 University of Toronto students this week-end cheered the Varsity football Blues to a 23-0 victory in Montreal over the McGill Redmen and whooped it up in what is traditionally the wildest away week-end of the football season.

But although U of T students put a sufficient quantity of joie into two days of vivre in the wicked city, it wasn't the wild, hell-raising type of week-end which has been seen.

The Students' Administrative

Council was happy because students on the special trains to Montreal, although they were equipped with a sufficient amount of the things usually associated with fun on a football train, refrained from the type of rowdiness and vandalism which has marred the trip the last few years.

There were nevertheless fraternity house and hotel parties, football players to congratulate, women to titillate, dancing in the streets, laughter in the hallways, necking in the corners and beer everywhere. It was a good week-end.

ILS

Looking Hackward . . .

(Continued from Page 6)

completely predictable or stilted in an attempt to ape Wolfe's prose.

The whole of Look Home-ward Angel suffers from the language the author has chosen to use. She reaches always for the sure one-line laugh, even in cases where it does not fit the story line, and when she attempts to be poetic, she produces only awkward lines in the mouths of her characters. Whenever she borrows directly from Wolfe, as in the death scene and in the final scene of the play, the affect is particularly bad. What Miss Frings has seemingly failed to realize is that although Wolfe was in the broadest sense "poetic" his poetry does not scan and cannot be properly recited.

The version of Look Home-ward Angel which was presented last week at the Royal Alexandra only serves to illustrate again the problems of the adaptor and why so few adaptations succeed as dramas.

David Lewis Stein

Installation

Dr. F. C. A. Jeanneret will be installed as Chancellor of the University at 8 p.m. tonight in Convocation Hall.

At the same ceremony, honorary doctorates of law will be given to Sir J. J. S. Garner, United Kingdom High Commissioner for Canada and Hon. M. F. Lacoste, Ambassador of France in Canada.

A limited number of tickets will be available for students through Students' Administrative Council representatives or at the registrar's office, Simcoe Hall, today.

THE CRUCIBLE by ARTHUR MILLER
directed by WILLIAM DAVIS

Next Week 8.30 — Wed., Nov. 11
Sat., Nov. 14

THE U.C. - ST. MICHAEL'S
THEATRE GUILD

TICKETS — HART HOUSE
BOX OFFICE

ADMISSION: 1.50 - STUDENTS: $1.00

Remembrance

Classes at the University of Toronto will be cancelled for two hours 10 a.m. - 12 noon Wednesday for the annual University remembrance Service.

The service is arranged by the U of T Alumni Association and begins at 10:45 a.m. The COTC and the Blue and White Band will be taking part.

An academic procession from Simcoe Hall will begin proceedings and wreaths will be placed on the Memorial Tablets at the Soldiers' Tower by the chancellor and other representatives of the university.

TRAIN FOR THE BEST OF TWO WORLDS

Develop your leadership ability, acquire new technical skills, benefit financially and continue your university courses by enrolling in the tri-service Regular Officer Training Plan (ROTP). It provides for:

- university tuition fees paid by the Department of National Defence
- a monthly salary
- and a career in the Canadian Army
- allowances for board and room, books and instruments
- free medical and dental care

Then, on graduating, you will have not only your chosen professional training, but also the Queen's Commission as a career officer in the Canadian Army with the prestige and many personal advantages it brings.

A LIMITED NUMBER OF CANADIAN ARMY VACANCIES IN THESE ROTP "UNIVERSITY QUOTAS" ARE STILL AVAILABLE.

If you want the best of both worlds, find out what this plan can offer you today. For further particulars, contact your University Support Officer (Army):

CAPT. V. F. GEORGE
119 St. George Street
EM. 6-8341 — Local 222

MARKETING CAREERS

WITH

LEVER BROTHERS LIMITED

Enquiries are invited from prospective graduates who are seeking careers in Marketing Management.

This function, entailing the administration of Brand Advertising and Sales Promotion, plays a vital role in the operation and continued growth of the Company.

Applicants should be from 21 to 27 years, of average scholastic attainment, with a record of participation in extra-curricular activities and a capacity for clear, logical thinking and organizing.

The Company has a formal training programme lasting approximately twelve months. Two months will be devoted to familiarizing the trainee with business life activities of the organization. Ten months will be devoted to training in different aspects of the Marketing field. Upon completion of the training period the trainee will be appointed to a responsible position in the Marketing Division of the Company.

A Lever representative will visit the campus on NOVEMBER 12th and 13th

You are invited to arrange for an interview through your Placement Office.

Further details of the Lever organization and training scheme may be obtained from the office of your Placement Director.

comment

lockout

At 4.30 on Friday I. A. Richards, perhaps the greatest literary critic of the century, was scheduled to deliver Victoria College's annual Armstrong lecture in Hart House Theatre.

However anyone who arrived at Hart House Theatre anytime after 4.25 found the doors locked. The theatre was already full and because of fire regulations no one else was allowed in.

By 4.30 about a hundred people had been turned away.

When the lecture was about two-thirds over we managed to sneak into the theatre when the door was opened to let someone leave. We found about 15 empty seats in the theatre.

We also found in the few minutes we had left to listen to him that I. A. Richards is a man not to be missed.

He spoke of the future of poetry with marvelous humour and amazing scope, bringing in many of the preoccupations that he has spent an unusually full lifetime developing.

The few minutes we heard and reports we received after it was over, led us to believe that it was one of the finest lectures given on this campus for a long time.

The sponsors of the lecture presumably knew much better than any of us that Richards is one the important thinkers of his age.

We assume also that they knew that he would attract a larger turnout than could be accommodated in Hart House Theatre. Last year, after all, when Victoria's Principal Northrop Frye gave one of the Installation Lectures in Hart House Theatre a similar situation had the theatre locked up long before the lecture was to start.

It seems a pity, then, that Victoria College could not have arranged to have their Armstrong lecture in a larger hall. The Great Hall at Hart House would have been an improvement. Best of all would have been Convocation Hall.

We hope this is given some thought by anyone who intends to bring to the camps a speaker who is as worth hearing as Professor Richards was.

the word of god arrives

Mission To The Infidels

Professor Lawrence E. Lynch of St. Michael's college believes that there is a mild revival of interest in religion on this campus.

"Students," he said, are much more ready to discuss religious questions than they were fifteen or even ten years ago. The tendency then was to ignore these questions completely. But now the climate seems more friendly."

The Varsity Christian Fellowship has great faith in what some have called a "religious revival". They believe in it so strongly that they have spent almost a whole year received his Ph.D. from Columbia University.

Dr. Toyotome is familiar with two cultures, east and west. He illustrates vividly the principles of brotherhood which play such a large part in Christian activities.

Dr. Toyotome is particularly interested in learning from western students their reactions to such sociological studies as "The Lonely Crowd" by David Reisman, and "The Status Seekers" by Vance Packard. He wants to know how they feel about the "isolation of modern man."

In addition to Dr. Toyotome,

the session is open to all students and the VCFers hope that people who have questions raised by the mission will come to this meeting and ask them.

The heaviest scheduling of public talks has been done for the first days of the mission and the end of the week has been left relatively free in order to leave room for informal sessions. The climax of the week's activity will come on Sunday afternoon with a university-wide service in the Great Hall of Hart House at 4:00 p.m.

In addition to the formal lectures and the smaller noon hour talks, Dr. Toyotome and his associate missionaries will hold a number of informal talks in fraternities and residences around the campus. These sessions have been arranged for by invitation.

The members of the VCF responsible for all this complex planning are very careful to differentiate between their mission and the type of fervent evangelism many people are accustomed to associate with this type of project.

The purpose of this mission is only to present the "word of God" to the students, in an inter-denominational way. The noon hour sessions have been designed to deal with religious questions in many aspects of academic enquiry. The missionaries will attempt to answer all religious questions in the informal give and take manner of a "bull session".

For those whose interest is aroused by the program of the mission, the VCF has prepared a follow-up program. On November 21, the Saturday following the mission, there will be a "retreat" at the Caledon Hills Farm. Canon Moore Smith of St. Matthias Church, Toronto, will lead informal study groups. In addition to Canon Smith, several members of the local mission team will attend.

Students who express an interest in further religious study will be referred to the denominational centres of their choice on and off the campus.

The whole of the $2,500 budget for the mission has been raised by the 150 members of the Varsity Christian Fellowship. The VCF is entirely student organized and run and with the exception of one full-time staff member, who travels between four centres, they have no staff help.

Is there a place for God on this Campus? Is there a purpose in discussing God? Is there a God at all?

The members of the Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship think there is

They feel so strongly about it that they have spent a whole year planning a mission to bring "The Word Of God" to this campus in order "That You Might Believe".

They think you will.

What happens this week and in the weeks following the mission will see how right they are.

preparing for the mission which begins today.

The purpose of a mission, the members of the VCF are careful to explain, is not "to win souls." It is not their intention to harangue students with religious messages in the hope of gaining dramatic "decisions for Christ".

Rather, the VCF wish to present the "message of Christ through the spoken word". They feel that this message can be meaningful experience for university students. They hope it will become part of their life.

In order to bring this message to the campus they have assembled a small battalion of "missioners" headed by Dr. Masumi Toyotome, until the spring of '59 assistant professor of Christianity and Director of Religious Life and Program at the International Christian University in Tokyo, Japan.

The choice of Dr. Toyotome to head the mission is particularly meaningful to university students. Born in Beepu Japan, he spent several years studying in the United States and received his Ph.D. from Columbia University.

Dr. Toyotome is familiar with two cultures, east and west. He illustrates vividly the principles of brotherhood which play such a large part in Christian activities.

Dr. Toyotome is particularly interested in learning from western students their reactions to such sociological studies as "The Lonely Crowd" by David Reisman, and "The Status Seekers" by Vance Packard. He wants to know how they feel about the "isolation of modern man."

In addition to Dr. Toyotome,

A Wedding Invitation

Three luminaries of the U of T theatrical world of the recent past, Les Lawrence, Leon Major, and Wally Russell leapt together into the professional sphere Friday night when The Hamlet of Stepney Green opened at the Radio City under their auspices. Their first play, according to Martin Browne, who introduced the Penguin edition, is part of a movement in the contemporary (meaning the last two years) British theatre to get out of the rut of the "commercially saleable, because familiar, form of the realistic three act play". A Londoner would have a pretty good idea of how Bernard Kops haves himself out of the rut by reading the title page of the play: The Hamlet of Stepney Green, a Sad Comedy with some Songs. It might help a Torontonians to say that this is a melange, at times extraordinarily delightful, times not quite so, of elements of comedy, fantasy, melodrama, musical, Shakespeare and the Yiddish theatre. Every idiom is used to take off the others and itself, but the mood of the piece is too gay and gentle to call any of it satire.

The action transpires in Stepney Green, the Jewish section in London, somewhat adjusted to the facts of life and street names in the corresponding district, Kensington Avenue and Baldwin Street, in Toronto. Sam Levy (Sammy Sales) is doing the best he can to keep to his deathbed, which has been wheeled out into a little alley-garden, but he can't resist jumping up occasionally to dance a bit with his old friend Solly Segal (Jacob Reinglas). But he manages to die at the end of the first act, confiding to his mixed-up son David (Dino Narizzano), that he has been poisoned, either by his wife or his life he is not sure which. David who heretofore has lived to be a crooner or anything but the herring merchant that Sam was, decides that his real mission in life is to avenge his father's death. So he tastes a bit of the delightful second act playing Hamlet under the auspices of his father's everpresent ghost. He is worked up by his mother (Sofia Reinglas), an Ophelia who is Segal (Anna Reiser), Rosencrantz and Guildenstern (the nonce are selling tombstones (Martin Lager), and our own Ray Stancer), and finally Claudius (Dino Narizzano) who decides that it would be for the best that his widow remarries with Solly and Hamlet settles in. These last have been accomplished at the end of the third act, and Sam feels that he can now take a leave, suggesting "the world is a wedding cake."

It is a tricky play to do, with a hard to catch mood. On opening night sometimes the actors were sometimes they didn't. Sammy Sales in particular, and down; Dino Narizzano played the mad scene with zest, at other times he was a little too serious with the play's tone. The secondary roles were especially Solly Segal by Jacob Reinglas, and the Yiddish comedy, and the music of the orchestra was sheer pleasure.

The Hamlet of Stepney Green is a dramatic play for Lawrence-Russell-Major and company with, and on Friday night it was by no means unimpressive. Professional theatre differs from amateur really only begins on opening night. Give me smooth out some rough spots, this "mishmash" be a most refreshing addition to Toronto's theatre.

THE VARSITY

FOUNDED 1880

Published by
The Students' Administrative Council
of the University of Toronto
Toronto 5, Canada

Member Canadian University Press

Editorial and News Office
Basement, SAC Building — WA. 3-8742, WA. 3-8113
Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221

The opinions expressed in this paper are those of the editor.

Editor-in-Chief ..... Sam Ajzenstat
Executive Editor ..... Mark Nichols
Managing Editors ..... Harvey Shepherd, Susie Breslin
News Editor ..... Ed Roberts
Features Editor ..... David Lewis Stein
Sports Editor ..... Dave Griner
AM&D Editor ..... Elmo Ciprietti
Photography Editor ..... Andy Stabins
CUP Editor ..... Alan Walker
Publicity Editor ..... Kay McCook
Associate News Editors ..... Terry Bourke, Jayne Nesbitt

TODAY'S ISSUE — Brian Donaldson, Bill Musgrove, several people who should have been here and weren't, George Harpur, Barry Zimmerman, Peter Brawley, Dorothy Mikos, Betty Lou Joynt, a twice-wonderful weekend in Toronto and a wonderful weekend in Montreal, Cathy Clark by phone, Walter McLean, Mike Sherman sine small friend, Jim Murchie on the phone with four beers too many, a dishonest card game and a bad loser. —Photographs this issue: Alan Walker and Farouk Ghani.

"Suffer yourselves to be blamed, imprisoned, condemned; suffer yourselves to be hanged; but publish your opinions; it is not a right, it is a duty."

Miller's account of Salem
THE CRUCIBLE will be the UC-SMC production at Hart next week. Director Bill Davis' cast includes Patrick Arnoldi
Deputy Governor Danforth, Bill
as Francis Nurse, Nancy Hel-
Mary Warren, Kenneth Pogue
via Pegis as Mr. and Mrs. Proc-
N. D. Gershenovitz as Giles
Tickets for performances on 1, 12, 13 and 14 are available
Hart House Theatre box-office.
$1.00; non-students $1.50.

tricentenary

Neel, HHO Play English Music

Neel, that has been acclaimed internaone of the foremost interpreters of music has been reduced to playing in a hall because of that perennial campus pathy. Boyd Neel last night conducted the Orchestra in a programme of English an emphasis on Henry Purcell to com-the composer's tricentenary.

there was some method in programming ular works by one composer, it became at a greater variety of instrumentation is ed to explore the scope of one musician.
repeatedly stressed these works are all straightforward, short and sweet—in fact short and sweet. The Suite Abdelazer most typical of this composer's work and about the most delightful of this group.
Neel's playing seems to have taken on a sheen than was heard in past years.

Following three dances from Thomas Arne's music to Milton's masque Comus. This ual music of the time, theatrical in the case. Such music could be easily appended the performance, Milton notwithstanding.
seems to have changed his tempi in these in his Unicorn recording he prefers a lower tempo, especially in the third dance.
ult sounded a little clipped but always in the considerable scope of interpretation and of music.

Boyd's first symphony, really nothing of not a short suite for strings, received the treatment of the evening. Here Dr.
his complete understanding of the light work. It is a never-ending joy that music tre is so easily available to university spite their slowness in responding.

Britten's Simple Symphony, written nine years old and orchestrated when he was, is often endearing in its youthful out on the whole more simple than sym-the second movement, Dr. Neel turned an

150 RESPLENDENT
MALE VOICES

i. a. richards on

The Future Of Poetry

A Harvard professor told University of Toronto students and staff Friday, "today's poetry needs waking up because it has been unresponsive and unaware of what is happening in its surroundings".

Professor I. A. Richards of Harvard University delivered the unusual Armstrong lecture in Hart House on Friday. The lectures were first set up for Victoria College in 1938 by the late George Armstrong.

Professor Richards, in his lecture "The Future of Poetry", said that most people do not realize the importance of poems. "Poems rather than poets are the unacknowledged legislations of the world," he said. "The poet has only been a means to bring the poem into the world."

He further stated: "If one-half the attention given to displaying poets and their lives were given to poems the world would be better off and poems more important." He felt the poet often has no indication of the meaning of the poem he has brought into the world and, in fact, the poet is created by the poem.

Professor Richards also criticized what he terms "the Vulgar Packaging View" which he feels is practised far too much in our educational systems. According to Professor Richards this view is one which believes "if the poet has a beautiful experience, then wraps it neatly in a little poetic package to keep it free from rust and mold, then sells it to us, when we unwrap it we will have the same poetic experience".

The Professor also criticized the movement to do away with so-called misleading phrases such as the sun is "rising". He called this type of phraseology "pre-Copernican" and defined it as talking "about anything which is misleading but you don't mislead anyone because they know you are talking pre-Copernican style".

"A poem has duality," he said. There is both the physical, visual poem which is the black marks on a sheet of paper and the "something" which rises out of the poem for the reader. He said it is this something which is most important and which is the least identifiable.

During the lecture Professor Richards used a blackboard to illustrate his contention that a poem is merely brought into the world by a poet. By allusion to communication engineering which states that a signal has a source, a transmitter, a receiver and a destination, he showed that in this case the signal, or poem, has no source and no destination, just a transmitter and a receiver.

Professor Richards stated that a person cannot consider himself as the destination of the poem because then "all would have to be". He felt that "good poetry depends on the realization that behind the line of poetry stands not an experience of a poet but a relationship of words and language". He said, "there is a vast interrelationship between phrases and if it is perfected we will have good poetry".

Professor Richards ended his lecture by saying that good poetry needs a good audience and today's audiences are not good.

Bob Zimmerman

Victoria College Scarlet & Gold Dance

at ALUMNI HALL

on FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 13
8.45 p.m.

Music by Frank Coans

TICKETS $2.00 per couple — obtainable at door

Installation of
Dr. F. C. A. Jeanneret
As Chancellor
Tonight at 8 O'clock
Convocation Hall

Honorary Degrees will be conferred on
His Excellency M. FRANCIS LACOSTE
Ambassador of France in Canada

His Excellency SIR JOSEPH JOHN SAVILLE GARNER
U.K. High Commissioner in Canada
Limited number of tickets available at Registrar's Office.

OPPORTUNITIES

for

DIETETIC STUDENTS

IN THE

RCAF

Interesting careers are available for dietitians in the Food Services Branch of the Royal Canadian
Air Force.

As well as openings for the qualified dietitian, present training plans provide financial assistance to university graduates while completing RCAF-sponsored interneships in either the hospital or commercial field.

F/O ANNA NECHKIN

You Are Invited

to consult with a

Specialist Food Services Officer

who will be visiting your campus

TUESDAY NOVEMBER 10th

at 10.00 a.m.

ROOM 117, HOUSEHOLD EC. BUILDING

She can tell you the general requirements for entry, training plans and opportunities available to dietitians and dietetic students in the Food Services Branch of the RCAF.

CAF-12-56

Royal Canadian Air Force

MISSION IN THE UNIVERSITY

Dr. MASUMI TOYOTOME M.A., B.P., Ph.D.

Convocation Hall — 5.00 p.m.

TO-DAY — MON., NOV. 9

THE SCOTCH TAPE LIFE

Chairman: Rev. A. B. B. Moore, B.A.; D.D., L.L.D. President of VIC

TOMORROW — TUES., NOV. 10

THE CRISIS OF LIFE

Chairman: Rev. J. S. Cunningham, B.A., Hart House Chaplin

SPONSORED BY VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP

crying wolfe

Look Hackward, Angel

An author who sets out to adapt a prose work to the stage is faced with an immediate problem. A novel is usually the portrait of one whole life. The intervals leading to the climactic moments are bridged by narrative and exposition.

A two and a half hour play cannot hope to present all of the material included in a novel. The adaptor must choose the significant scenes in the book and alter them so that they form a logical dramatic narrative. If he is good at his job, he will succeed in preserving the meaning and flavor of the book in a condensed form.

In the case of Look Homeward Angel, the adaptor, Miss Ketti Frings, was faced with a particularly difficult situation. The novel she chose to work on was more an epic of one man's emergence as an artist, than a coherently plotted story.

Miss Frings had the choice of either sticking closely to Wolfe's chronology of events and presenting a number of scenes covering a wide span of years, or of choosing the significant sections of the book and altering them so that they covered a comparatively short span of time, and yet still managed to convey most of the important points in Wolfe's book.

Miss Frings took the latter alternative: She took a number of scenes and characters from Look Homeward Angel and rearranged them into a logically narrative form. Unfortunately in the process of changing the narrative structure of the book she also changed the nature of the characters.

The result, even if one is not familiar with Wolfe's book, is a set of stock characters going through a familiar set of events and expressing sentiments that sound vaguely like something out of a soap opera.

Eugene Gant, the young boy around whom the action centres, is the familiar gangling adolescent with a sensitive soul. He is engaged in a conflict with his mother, who for some reason never made explicit in the play but no doubt perfectly clear to spectators up on their "dramatic psychology" wants to "hang onto him". The mother is a penurious old woman, obsessed with deals in real estate.

She is, of course in conflict with her husband, who is represented as a lusty artistic soul, stone cutter who is trying to carve an angel out of marble, and who drinks compulsively to escape his wife's lack of understanding. The brother Ben is the stock "romantic" concerned with asking a "question" and the sister Helen is the customary drudge deriving her satisfaction from complaining about the duties she has to do.

Whereas Wolfe had enormous space in which to develop his characters and present extreme sides of their personalities, Miss Frings is severely limited. Instead of trying to present as much of Wolfe as possible, she has simply borrowed his characters and put them into a family "situation" drama.

Even if it did not suffer by comparison with the original,

Look Homeward Angel is inferior as a drama. The characters emerge as one-dimensional stereotypes and their actions lack significance.

It is a pity that Miss Frings' play is so lacking in quality, for a fine cast has been assembled to perform it. Miriam Hopkins as the mother and Andrew Prine as Eugene manage to draw real intensity out of their scenes together. Barbara Stanton as Laura James and Florence Sundstrom as Mrs. Pert both turn in excellent supporting performances. Unhappily neither Lee Richardson in the role of Ben Gant and Gilbert Green as W. O. Gant are convincing.

The minor roles, the boarders and assorted members of the Gant and Pentland, are all well done. But once again, they are all caricatures, called upon to present stock situations. Indeed the whole cast suffers from a dialogue that is either

(Continued on Page 3)

Matinée

CANADA'S BEST
FILTER CIGARETTE

top taste
true mildness
best all 'round filler

JARGON EDITOR WANTED

APPLY BY LETTER TO:
BOX P.C. 100, S.A.C. OFFICE

Hart House

TODAY

5:00 p.m. Glee Club Full Rehearsal—DEBATES ROOM
7:15 p.m. Revolver Club—Rifle Range

In order to serve a Luncheon in connection with the installation of the new Chancellor of the University, Dr. F. C. A. Jeanneret, the Great Hall, the Faculty Union and Graduates' Dining Room will not be open to members for LUNCHEON, MONDAY, NOVEMBER 9th. Dinner will be served as usual in the Great Hall and Faculty Union.

From 12-12:45 p.m.—members of the House not attending the Luncheon will be asked to enter the House via the East Doorway and the Arbor Room Door. Members will be asked to remain in the Lower Corridor at this time or may proceed to the second floor via East Stairway.

From 12:45-2 p.m.—members wishing to go to the Reading Room or the second floor will be directed via the West Stairway.

From 6:30-11 p.m.—in order to prepare for the reception in honour of Chancellor Jeanneret the Athletic Wing, except for the swimming pool and locker room, will be closed from 6:30 p.m.

TUESDAY

8:00 a.m. Holy Communion—Chapel
5:10 p.m. Amateur Radio Club Code & Theory Class—Debates Loft

7:00 p.m. Glee Club Full Rehearsal—Music Room
7:15 p.m. BRIDGE CLUB—East Common Room
NEW MEMBERS STILL WELCOME

7:30 p.m. Art Class—Art Gallery
8:00 p.m. Archery—Rifle Room

8:00 p.m. OPEN MEETING—AMATEUR RADIO CLUB
Map Room—Guest Speaker: Prof. G. Sinclair
New members welcome

8:00 p.m. Meeting of the Exploration Society—Bickersteth Room

10-Piece Dance Band

Music for all occasions supplied by Gord Staple's Orchestra, an experienced group of musicians with a repertoire of music to satisfy all tastes. For those who want the very best in music, please contact:

BOB BELL, BE. 3-2325

TORONTONENSIS REPS

Come to Nensis Office, S.A.C. Basement

Mon. Nov. 9, Tues. Nov. 10, or Wed. Nov. 11

from 1-2 or 3-5

To pick up order forms and posters for Sales Campaign

Class
enchantress!

Kitten

LOOPED MOHAIR

Kitten creates a looped mohair cardigan in heavy-knit texture... light as milkweed down, daring in its dramatic simplicity... in colours dipt from the rainbow... truly a 'long-term investment' for your college wardrobe... so lovely to wear, so easy to care for.

Sizes 36 to 42, price $17.95—
Pullover: price $15.95... in colours exciting and ultra smart!

Look for the name Kitten

ONE MORE NIGHT

!

A. V. R. Auditions

for

*Christopher
Jones*

All those with talent
are invited

Wednesday

7.30 - 9.30

Brennan Hall
S.M.C.

Despite the huge
response last week
the A.V.R. cast is still in need of
additional talent in all fields—

LEADS,

CHORUS
SINGERS
and DANCERS

Since the cast includes an extremely large number
of male numbers, men
of talent are especially
urged to come out.
There are still a few
good roles open.

SOCCER BLUES WIN CUP

Peretz Nets Four, Blues Win 4-1 Kovacsovics Shines In Goal

Varsity Soccer Blues won the Blackwood trophy for the seventh successive year when they defeated the OAC Redmen Senior team 4-1 on Saturday. Blue's Roger Peretz was the star of the game for the home team as he scored all four Varsity goals.

Blue's win was a result of a balanced team effort. From the opening whistle the Redmen mounted an attack on Blues' goal but the defense fought back to hold them at bay. For the first fifteen minutes Guelph did most of the attacking and had several good scoring chances but Varsity's keeper Julius Kovacsovics came up with tremendous saves to keep the ball out.

The Varsity defensive trio of backs Doug Taylor and Jim Watson, and centre-half Paul Avis slowly brought the Redmen's attack under control so that after a while Varsity moved to the offensive with wing-halves Cabby Green and Stew Bell feeding their forwards with good passes, and inside-men Duncan and Csongradi worrying the OAC defence at every turn.

Varsity began to mount dangerous attacks on the OAC goal with wingmen Brian Michez and Bobby Morris using every pass to good advantage. However, the real story of Blue's success lay in the play of Peretz. He came up with his finest game of the season; frequently it took two and three red shirts to stop his raids on the Guelph net.

Finally, with ten minutes of the first half left Blues broke out ahead on a picture goal. Csongradi gained possession of the ball on the edge of the OAC penalty area and, drawing the Redmen's defence to the centre with a fake shot, slipped the ball to now unmarked Michez who ran onto the ball and let a bullet-like shot loose at the Guelph net. The goalkeeper made a valiant effort to hold the ball but it was just too hot to handle. Instead it bounced to the feet of Peretz who planted it in the net for his first goal.

Taking heart from this Blue's swarmed back after the game re-started and minutes before the half-time whistle they went further ahead on another magnificent play by Peretz. This time it was Duncan who set up the play with a fine pass to Peretz who took the ball in full stride, faked a shot and then hammered a perfect goal past the helpless keeper.

Varsity went right into attack to start the second half, kept the Redmen on their heels, and added to their lead when the unstoppable Peretz broke through to head home across from the Varsity left-wing.

This goal seemed to tell the Guelph team that they had to do something, and they underwent a shift in the attack which brought Don Beckford, their centre-half, up to the forward-line. The surprise caused by this move caught Blue's defence momentarily off guard and OAC showed what a good club they are by scoring during this lapse when the same Beckford lobbed the ball into the goal.

The Redmen, now fired up by the goal came roaring back to harass the home goal. Once again Blue's keeper Kovacsovics came up with magnificent saves from Redmen forwards to keep the Varsity team ahead.

Gradually the fire of the Guelph team died as the Varsity defence refused to give, Peretz salted the game for the Blue and White when he notched his fourth goal of the game with a beautifully placed left-foot shot on which again the Redmen's keeper had no chance.

In the Intermediate game the story was not quite so happy for Varsity. They managed to hold a superior OAC team until the half-way mark but the Guelph teamwork told it's tale in the second as the Redmen ran up a 5-2 win. Baby Blue scorers were Stan Fraser and Chris Carr.

Western Crush Gaels 55-13 In Year's Last

LONDON, Nov. 7 (Special) — University of Western Ontario Mustangs unleashed their most powerful ground attack of the season to completely humiliate Queen's University Golden Gaels 55-13 here today.

Despite the loss of fullback Meco Poliziani, injured a week ago in Toronto, Mustangs found a star replacement in Roger Stewart who combined with veteran Lionel Conacher to score two touchdowns each and gain most of Western's 422 yards rushing.

Queen's turned in a surprisingly strong first half, Mike Pettit galloping 94 yards to open scoring. Bill Ritchie ran for the convert.

The short burst of power failed to hold Mustangs. For the whole game Gaels mustered only 10 first downs and 180 yards rushing. Kent Plumley completed five out of 17 passes for 41 yards, losing three tosses to the Western defense through interceptions.

Besides twin TD's by Conacher and Stewart, Cosentino, Roy Wood, Clark Samways and Bob Pearson garnered majors.

Tackle Bill Mitchell completed seven of the eight convert attempts to win the individual Intercollegiate scoring championship with 25 points.

Mustangs meet University of British Columbia Thunderbirds for the All-Canadian Intercollegiate title at Varsity Stadium on Saturday, Nov. 14.

BLUE & WHITE

EAST WEST CHAMPIONSHIP PLAYOFF

football dance

• 5 ORCHESTRAS — HART HOUSE

Sat. Nov. 14 - 9:00 p.m.

TICKETS — $2.00
S.A.C. Office per couple

LIMITED NUMBER OF TICKETS ON SALE

VARSITY STADIUM
ALL CANADA
INTERCOLLEGIATE
FOOTBALL
CHAMPIONSHIP
UNIVERSITY of BRITISH COLUMBIA
VS
UNIVERSITY of WESTERN ONTARIO
SATURDAY, NOV. 14 — 1.00 p.m.
— Proceeds to Paraplegic Association Medical Research —

SPECIAL STUDENT PRICE!
Playoff Coupon In Football
Ticket Book and $1.50 for a $2.50 Ticket
AT ATHLETIC OFFICE TICKET WINDOW
HART HOUSE — 9.30 a.m. - 5.00 p.m.

GAMES TODAY

FOOTBALL	East 3.30	Sr. SPS	vs Vic.	Codley, Barrett, I. Abella
SOCCER	North 12.30	Trin. A	vs St. M. A	Hilgenberg
	North 4.00	Med. A	vs Sr. SPS	Bugarski
LACROSSE	South 4.00	Knox	vs Forestry	Ryan
VOLLEYBALL	1.00	St. M. A	vs U.C. I	Haskill, DePetrillo
	1.00	UC Sigma Alphas	vs SPS. H	Sigal
	4.00	UC McCall	vs Pre-Med. II Yr	Pomerant
	5.00	Med. III Yr.	vs SPS. D	Pomerant

GAMES TUESDAY

FOOTBALL	East 3.30	Trin.	vs U.C.	Stokes, Keiner, Lipson
SOCCER	North 12.30	Enman.	vs Pharm.	Hilgenberg
	North 4.00	Wye.	vs Law	Bonfield
LACROSSE	1.00	U.C. II	vs SPS. II	Spanetz, Roth
	4.00	Vic. II	vs St. M. B	Chubb, DePetrillo
	6.30	Med. A	vs SPS. I	Haskill, Grist
	7.30	SPS. VI	vs Dent.	Haskill, Grist
VOLLEYBALL	1.00	SPS. B	vs SPS. A	Stein
	4.00	UC Prat Nots	vs U.C. Loudon	Coolhill
	6.30	Med. I Yr.	vs Dent. III Yr.	Stein
	7.30	Pharm. A	vs For. A	Stein
	8.30	Wye. A	vs Enman.	Stein
SQUASH	6.20	Sr. SPS	vs Dent. A
	7.00	Law. A	vs Med. III

Today's Football Game—Senior SPS vs Vic—will be played Tuesday.

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS
BASKETBALL

Intercollegiate tryouts will be held in the Sports Gym of the New Women's Athletic Building on Tuesday, Nov. 10 from 6.15 to 8.15 and on Thursday, Nov. 12 from 6.15 to 8.15. Anyone interested is welcome. The schedule for this year's games is as follows:

Dec. 3—Toronto at Western	Jan. 5—Western at Toronto
Jan. 30—Toronto at McGill	Feb. 6—Queen's at Toronto
Feb. 9—Hamilton Teacher's College at Toronto	Feb. 16—Toronto at McMaster (return game to be arranged)
Mar. 4 and 5—Intercollegiate Tournament at Queen's.

Nov. 9 to Nov. 13
WOMEN'S ATHLETIC BUILDING (GAMES)
SPORTS GYM

Tues. Nov. 10	Wed. Nov. 11
North 5.15—Vic F II—PHE I	South 5.15—Vic F I—St. M. B
South 6.15—Intercollegiate Tryouts	North 6.15—POT II—Nursing S
7.15—Intercollegiate Tryouts	South 6.15—UC J's—Pharmacy
	UC SPS—OCE
	Vic Jr Sr—POT I
Thurs. Nov. 12
North 5.15—PHE II - St. Hilda's Sophs	South 5.15—Mike's A - PHE III
8.15—Intercollegiate Tryouts
7.15—Intercollegiate Tryouts
L.M. (Practices)
Mon. Nov. 9	Tues. Nov. 10	Wed. Nov. 11	Thurs. Nov. 12
5.30—St. Hilda's Freshies	Nursing Sr.	Med's	U.C. Sophs
6.30—St. Hilda's Jr. Sr.	Dentistry	PHE II	Pharmacy
7.30—St. Hilda's Sophs	UC Jr Sr	UC Freshies	POT II
8.30—Nursing Jr.	PHE II	PHE I	POT I

SOFTBALL—WEEK OF NOV. 9th

Varsity	N.W. Trinity	N.E. Trinity
Mon.—Vic II vs Nurs.	UC vs PHE I	PHE II vs St. Hilda's
Tues.—POT's vs Vic II
Wed.—PHE I vs POT's	UC vs Nurs.

Playoff series will begin this week. League winners will be notified re games.

Blue & White
Band
REHEARSAL
Tuesday — 5 p.m.
NOV. 10
DRILL HALL
Attendance Imperative!

FLYING CLUB
MEETING
8.00 p.m.
Wednesday, November 11
Copper Room — Wymilwood
Refreshments will be Served

Sports • Trophies • Games
Buy Xmas Gifts Now
Before you Buy give WILSON'S a try
WHOLESALE PRICES TO EVERYONE
THE HAROLD A. WILSON
CO. OF TORONTO LTD.
328 DUPONT STREET

DOUG WYLES, Varsity wingback, reaches for a pass from Varsity quarterback Nick Sopinka. His catch gave Blues a first down at the McGill 10 yard line, but three passes failed to click. Sopinka completed 12 of 28 passes for a total gain of 227 yards and three touchdowns. — VSP Ghani

Varsity Beat McGill 23-0

A
N
D

EV RUSH, Varsity defensive halfback, intercepts a McGill pass thrown by Carl Hansen late in the fourth quarter of Varsity's 23-0 shutout of the Redmen at Molson Stadium in Montreal. Rush was a standout on defence for the Blues, who completely throttled their opponents' offence. Only once did McGill get the ball beyond midfield. — VSP Ghani

CARL HANSEN, (70) McGill halfback, goes up to bat down a pass from Varsity quarterback Nick Sopinka intended for end Doug Lougheed (52). This one was incomplete, but others were more successful. Lougheed scored one of the TD's in Blues 23-0 win over McGill at Molson Stadium on Saturday afternoon.

A Good Time Was Had By All

But what I have to say to you today is that war seems to me the most sordid, hypocritical way of making all men equal: and I accept death neither as a punishment or expiation for the coward, nor as a reward for the living.

Jean Giraudoux, Tiger at the Gates.

Our soldiers must have the fighting spirit. If you call that hating our enemies, then we must hate with every fiber of our being. We must lust for battle; our object in life must be to kill; we must scheme and plan night and day to kill.

General McNair, in charge of training U.S. troops during World War II.

A Manual For Death

By Sam Aizenstat

On one of the memorial arches beside Soldier's Tower appear the words "Take these men for your ensamples". Below them are listed the names of University of Toronto members who died in the two world wars.

Before we take men and their actions as examples we should seek to know what kind of men they were and what they did. What was asked of them and what did they give?

A clue as to what is so admirable about these men can be found in the kind of training they went through to become the kind of men from whom we might well take example. How were they prepared for their mission? A partial answer to this question is contained in a small manual published during the last war for the use of officers in training troops. A review of this book was written during the war by Dwight Macdonald and has recently been reissued in a soft cover edition of his essays called Memoirs of a Revolutionist. I shall quote at some length from his review in an attempt to form some kind of a picture of these men who are now only names to us.

The manual is called "Kill—or Get Killed: A Manual of Hand-to-Hand Fighting". Admittedly hand-to-hand fighting is getting to be an obsolete mode of combat, but it still contains in barest form the implications of war.

Macdonald begins by giving some of the chapter headings and then goes on:

"But much the stiffest chapter . . . is the one with the mild title, 'Unarmed Offense'. Here we learn the most 'efficient' methods of eye-gouging ('best accomplished by placing a thumb on the inside of the eye-socket next to the nose and flicking the eyeball out toward the edge of the cheek'), lip-tearing ('hook your thumb in the corner of the mouth and tear towards the hinge of the jaw'), sitting-neck-break (best undescribed), ear concussion blow ('approaching your opponent from the rear you can rupture his eardrums by cupping both hands and simultaneously striking them against his ears'), kick-to-kill ('After your opponent has been downed, the kill can be made with a kick . . . It is best to be wearing heavy boots'), and, above all, the proper exploitation of the testicles. The author becomes positively lyrical about these 'most vulnerable and sensitive parts of a man's body. Any strong foot or hand blow delivered in the crotch will enable the weakest man to knock the strongest senseless or disable him to the point where he is easily finished off by some other means. The strongest holds can be broken at any time, by grasping an opponent's testicles and pulling and twisting them!'"

All this of course is simply a list of theoretical methods of slaughter. It is unquestionably impressive material but the really important implications begin to appear when Macdonald discusses just how the fighting man is prevailed upon to use these methods of combat. He describes a chapter in the book devoted to the operation of a "practical indoor course" for training in these methods.

"The course is laid out in a basement and consists of a series of rooms, pits, tunnels, and corridors in which dummies and targets, in enemy uniforms, are arranged to appear and disappear, to the accompaniment of various coloured lights and sound effects, as the 'student' armed to the teeth, makes his way over the course.

"By a combination of shock, fright and induced rage the subject's civilized inhibitions are broken down and he is conditioned to stab and shoot by reflex action. 'There is no limit to the possibilities of this range,' writes the author proudly. 'The only limitation is the ingenuity of the builder.' This is an exaggeration: the British used similar courses in training their commandos several years ago, with additional improvements such as booby traps, collapsible stairs, and showers of animal blood, but they had to be toned down, apparently because the effect on the students was too severe.

"There is one rather interesting problem in operating the course. Although the writer never states so directly, it would seem there is danger that the student's inhibitions will be broken down so thoroughly that he will shoot or stab the coach who accompanies him . . . The coach is advised to keep himself in a position to grab the student's gun arm 'at any instant; after the three dummies along the course have been stabbed, 'the knife is taken away from student to prevent accident'; and finally: 'There is no place on course where total darkness prevails while instructor is near student.'"

The implications of all this are fairly simple. There is in man a deeply-felt taboo against killing. Whether it derives from religious sensibility or simply social expedience, whether it is a moral absolute or ethical relativism, the fact remains that one of the strongest characteristics of a conventionally civilized human being is an aversion to killing other presumed human beings. So strong is this aversion that it almost seems at times to be the basic criterion of "humaneness".

Now if a man is to be made into a decent soldier this taboo must somehow be overcome. Nor is it enough to trust the soldier's possible feeling that he must kill to defend his principles. After all, no matter how rationally he is convinced that killing is necessary he may still hesitate slightly in the moment when he comes face to face with the enemy and if the enemy is less thoughtful than he is that moment may be his last. This moment of hesitation represents a last regrettable vestige of humanity and must be eliminated if a man is to be metamorphosed into a fighting machine.

The technique of war training then, consists of systematically breaking down the conventions that have been laboriously built up over an entire civilization.

If this is what must be done to a man in order to make him a soldier the question arises just how it is possible to fight a war in defense of liberal principles without undermining completely those very values. As a matter of fact this undermining of values is what actually happens. World War II seemed at the beginning to be as just and noble as a war could possibly be. The outrages committed by Hitler seemed to cry out for attack. The position of the Allies appeared to be utterly righteous. Yet by the end of the war the spirit of Hitler had gained precedence over the Allies and over a former haberdasher from Missouri who as deliberately as any SS man ordered the destruction in one blow of two entire Japanese cities. When atom bombs fell on Hiroshima and Nagasaki Hitler had won the war. To save humanity the Allies had become beasts of prey and there was no longer any humanity left to save.

These then are the men whom we are exhorted to take as our examples—poor bewildered beasts deluded into committing first murder and then suicide.

These men deserve our humble tears but the war through which they passed and for which they were trained has disqualified them as examples. Their method of saving the qualities of humanity is doomed to defeat itself.

Is there, then, any way of preserving humanity? Perhaps not. On the other hand, perhaps it may not be too far from the truth to suggest that the only way to save our humanity is to refuse uncompromisingly to be inhuman. This and this alone—the refusal to become murderers—may be worth dying for.

Remembrance Day Service

A Service of Remembrance and Consecration will be held this morning at 10.45 in the Soldiers' Tower.

As in other years, the COTC and the BLUE and WHITE Band will participate.

There will be an academic procession from Simcoe Hall consisting of representatives of the Board of Governors, the Teaching and Administrative Staff, together with representatives of the SAC and the graduates of the University.

During the Service wreaths will be placed on the Memorial Tablets by the Chancellor of the University, a representative of the Association of the Teaching Staff, the Undergraduates, and a considerable number of the Alumni Associations.

The Service is to be taken by the President, Dr. Bissell, and will consist of a hymn, the Lord's Prayer, Prayers of Remembrance and Consecration, The Last Post, Two Minutes Silence, Reveille, the Placing of the Wreaths, God Save the Queen, and Benediction.

All lectures will be cancelled during the hour long Remembrance Service.

ONE MORE NIGHT

A. V. R.
Auditions
for

Christopher
Jones

All those with talent
are invited

To-night
7.30 - 9.30

Brennan Hall
S.M.C.

Despite the huge
response last week
the A.V.R. cast is
still in need of
additional talent in
all fields —

LEADS,
CHORUS
SINGERS
and DANCERS

Since the cast includes an extremely large number
of male numbers, men
of talent are especially
urged to come out.
There are still a few
good roles open.

Here And Now

TODAY
12 p.m. — The SCM Coach House is open every day for two hours for students to bring their lunch. Coffee is available 110 St. George St.
1:10 p.m. — Mr. W. J. Blackhall, will show slides taken on his recent trip to Bermuda, in the first of bi-weekly noon hour meetings of the Camera Club in the Camera Club Rooms, Hart House.
4 p.m. — There will be a meeting of the U of T Debating Team in the SAC Building.
7:30 p.m. — There will be a question session with Dr. Masumi Toyotome in the Victoria College Alumni Hall.
8 p.m. — Dr. Baker will speak on instrument controls and their simplifications in modern aircraft at a University of Toronto Flying Club Meeting in the Copper Room of Wymilwood. There will also be a discussion of a breakfast flight and gliding.

—The Italian Club of the University will present "Songs and Music of Italy" with Dr. Vinci and his singer from the Conservatory of Music. Refreshments will be served in the Wymilwood Music Room, Victoria College.
8:45 p.m. — SCM will meet for supper and afterwards Don Wilson of SCM of Canada will talk on "Latin America: The Forgotten Continent" in the S-MC Coach House, 110 St. George St.

THURSDAY
1 p.m. — Dean C. R. Feilding will speak on "Christian Frontiers of the University" at a lunch discussion at the Canterbury Centre, 99 St. George St.

—The UC Lit. will hold a general discussion on an all-college Honor Banquet in an open meeting held in the JCR, University College.
—The Engineers will debate the topic "Combines Make for Better Beer" in Room T-102 Mechanical Engineering Building.
5:10 p.m. — There will be a meeting of the "Christmas belongs to Christ Committee at Loretto College, 76 St. Mary St.
7:45 p.m. — The U of T German Club will hold its November Meeting in Brennan Hall, St. Michael's College. Everyone welcome.
—Prof. Gus Weisman of the Ontario College of Art will speak at a Lutheran Students' Club meeting at 610 Spadina Ave. Refreshments will be served.
8 p.m. — There will be dancing, bridge games and refreshments at the Graduates Students' Union, 44 Hoskin Ave.
8:30 p.m. — The UC Players' Guild Theatre Night at the production of "The Crucible" will be followed by a discussion of the play with the director and other theatrical representatives in the Hart House Theatre. Admission is by ticket only.

Special Attention — 25% Discount
ON ALL JEWELLERY PURCHASES

Including: Watches, Diamonds, Silverware, Lighters, Wallets, Pens, and Pencils, Radios, Clocks, Costume Jewellery etc. etc. You must have your A.T.L. card when making a purchase.

SHEFFIELD JEWELLERS
DIAMOND MERCHANTS
323 YONGE ST. (5 doors above Dundas) TEL. EM. 6-0977

Canadian General Electric Company Limited

BUSINESS TRAINING COURSE

Graduating students in Commerce and Finance, Business Administration, Economics, Mathematics and Liberal Arts are invited to meet with Company representatives to discuss career opportunities on the C.G.E. Business Training Course leading to key positions in the finance and other administrative functions of the Company.

Date — Tuesday, November 17

Place — University Placement Service,
5 Willcocks Street

Or, contact Manager - Auditing and Training,
Canadian General Electric Company
Limited, 214 King Street West,
Toronto, Ontario.

ATTENTION!

MORE MUSICIANS ARE NEEDED FOR THE
UNIVERSITY ORCHESTRA

The SECOND Rehearsal

Will be held in the basement of
Old Clover Hill — St. Michael's Men's Residence
(On the north-west corner of Bay and St. Joseph Street.)

THURSDAY, NOV. 12 — 6.30 - 8.30 p.m.

SUNDAY EVENING CONCERT

Great Hall, Hart House

NOVEMBER 15th — 9 p.m.

HYMAN GOODMAN, Violin

Free tickets available to members of Hart House

WOMEN INVITED IF ESCORTED

WE'VE GOT HONEST NED BEAT !

Student Discount Sales

L.P. HiFi Records (Decca, Capital, Columbia, R.C.A.)
Radios — Hi Fi Record Players. TV Sets, Tape
Recorders (all top major companies) — typewriters, pens, movie cameras, athletic equipment
etc.

UP TO 33 1/3% DISCOUNT
ON ALL ARTICLES

YOUR CAMPUS SALES REPS.

Mike Miller — WA. 3-6050 or RU. 2-2813
Jeff Lyons — WA. 1-4317 or WA. 5-4797

FOR INFORMATION AND CATALOGUES CALL AFTER 4 p.m.

THE CRUCIBLE by ARTHUR MILLER
directed by WILLIAM DAVIS

This Week 8.30 — Wed., Nov. 11
Sat., Nov. 14

THE U.C. - ST. MICHAEL'S
THEATRE GUILD

HART HOUSE

TICKETS: UC & ST. MIKES

ADMISSION: 1.50 - STUDENTS: $1.00

HART HOUSE

TODAY

12:15 p.m. Noon-day Prayers — Chapel
1:10 p.m. Colour Show — Camera Club Rooms
Mr. W. J. Blackhall will present transparencies on Bermuda.
1:15 p.m. ART TALK — Art Gallery
Mr. Nicholas Hornyanski will speak on the "Claire Shoniker Show" currently on view in the Gallery. (Gallery open to women Wednesdays 12 noon - 6 p.m.)
1:20 p.m. Noon Hour Concert — East Common Room
Cornelis Rodert, Piano—playing Chopin and Debussy

7:00 p.m. Table Tennis — Fencing Room
7:15 p.m. Revolver Club — Rifle Range

THURSDAY

8:00 a.m. Holy Communion — Chapel
5:10 p.m. Amateur Radio CODE & THEORY CLASS — Debates Loft
5:15 p.m. Record Room Instruction — Record Room
7:30 p.m. Camera Club — Instructional classes in Black and White, Developing and Enlarging.
8:00 p.m. Archery — Rifle Range

8:00 p.m. DEBATE: "Soviet Intentions are Honourable" Honorary Visitor: Blair Fraser, Ottawa Journalist and Commentator.
— Debates Room —

"Nothing should be done to stop the advance of science . . . but we tremble to think of what the fate of humanity will be if sweet reason and wisdom do not soon intervene."

Chancellor Jeanneret

New Chancellor Installed, Warns Of "Smart Cynics"

By FRAN MAINE

The University of Toronto's 22nd chancellor was installed with all the pomp and pageantry of a coronation Monday night in a crowded glittering Convocation Hall. Dr. F. C. A. Jeanneret, former principal of University College, has become the latest in the succession of Chancellors of the University of Toronto.

—VSP Shaw

Honorary Doctor of Laws degrees were conferred on Sir Saville Garner, High Commissioner for the United Kingdom in Canada, and M. Francis Lacoste, Ambassador of France in Canada, by Dr. Jeanneret who regarded it "as a very special privilege" that this should be the first duty in his new office.

In his installation address, Dr. Jeanneret urged students be discouraged from "taking courses which are mainly informational rather than the tougher type requiring real mental effort".

He said the University must beware of turning out "smart young cynics" who contribute little or nothing constructive during their lives.

"It is our duty to turn out graduates who have a world outlook, not little Canadians interested only in what is immediate and parochial," he said.

"Academic freedom is the foundation stone of a true university and of democratic education itself," he said. "But the corollary of freedom is responsibility."

Canada, not so long ago was an underdeveloped country," and "we are under tremendous obligation to Britain for the assistance given us to develop our economy and our culture," he said.

Dr. Jeanneret quoted Prime Minister Diefenbaker as saying the University of Toronto "has made its contribution to every facet of Canadian life, and is one of the ranking universities of the world".

He added we must acknowledge our realization of "increasing responsibilities for the future".

"The unified study of man and nature must advance at as uniform a pace as possible," Dr. Jeanneret said.

"Nothing should be done to stop the advance of science, so long as it gives promise of promoting the well-being of the human race," he said. "But we tremble to think of what the fate of humanity will be if sweet reason and wisdom do not soon intervene."

Dr. Jeanneret predicted that within a decade, "when our numbers will double, our primary problem will be to maintain intellectual standards and at the same time deal fairly with each individual student".

Sir Saville Garner, in his speech, said a university should be "universal and all embracing", and called it a "microcosm of the outside world".

A race for physical and spiritual safety, not just a sportive challenge is occurring now, M. Lacoste said, and added that we need "more knowledge and research to throw into the battle".

New University Hits Problems

Plans for the purchase of 300 acres as site for the new York University have broken down over a $2,000,000 cost figure.

But the university will probably open next September according to schedule. The proposed North York site lies north of Highway 401 between Woodbine Ave. and Leslie St. and was once the farm of former Ontario Premier George S. Henry. A temporary location will be Falconer Hall on Queen's Park Crescent and later Glendon Hall on Bayview Avenue will be used.

Col. W. E. Phillips, chairman of the University of Toronto board of governors, and President Claude Bissell, said the authority of the provincial board of York University is being transferred to a permanent Board of Governors which will decide about the permanent site.

Air Marshall W. A. Curtis will be the instigator of this new Permanent Board, having been Chairman of the organizing Committee and of the Provisional Board of York University for three years.

York University will be affiliated with the University of Toronto for from four to eight years. It will be non-denominational institution and have a teaching staff composed of Toronto professors and others whose appointments will be approved by Dr. Claude Bissell, and an academic program supervised by the University of Toronto Senate.

Although York University hopes to be an autonomous degree granting institution, it will at first offer a three-year general course leading to the University of Toronto degree of Bachelor of Arts.

Laval Council Acts

Editor Suspended

QUEBEC CITY, Nov. 10 (CUP)—For the second time in a week the editor of a Quebec university student paper has been suspended from his position by his student council.

The Association General des Etudiants de l'Universitaire Laval last night ratified an earlier decision by its executive to suspend Jean-Paul Gagnon, editor of Laval's student newspaper Le Carabin.

Vote in favour of the suspension, which is effective for the remainder of the current school year, was 23-10. There were no abstentions.

Gagnon was suspended because of the tone of an article in the Nov. 3 issue of Le Carabin. The article, written by Social sciences student Remi Savard, accused the Roman Catholic hierarchy of collusion with the provincial government.

The council termed the article "injuries to the Roman Catholic hierarchy and bad for the good name of the Laval students".

Laval university is run by The Oblate fathers.

There was no word last night as to the fate of the staff of Le Carabin, but earlier reports said it would resign en bloc if Gagnon was fired.

The council has not yet named any successor to Gagnon, but secretary Renald Sauterelle will be in charge of the paper's next issue — due within a few days.

The news of Gagnon's suspension comes hard on the heels of the forced resignation of Pierre Martin, editor of the University of Montreal's student newspaper, Le Quartier Latin.

Martin resigned, along with three other U of M student councillors, after the council had refused to back their demands for the impeachment of council president Hubert Froid.

Engineers To Build "Ajax" Residence For Fund Drive

Plans to build a men's residence were announced yesterday as yet another body of graduates rallied to the cause of the University of Toronto expansion fund.

The National Fund for the U of T said the Engineers' contribution toward the $12,600,000 fund will go towards the building of a men's residence to be known as "Ajax College".

The graduates, 4T9 to 5T2 promised through their representatives determination to raise more than $300,000 among themselves.

They feel one of the proposed homes built during expansion ought to be intended for engineers. Students of other faculties will be admitted "so that students will learn something of the interests of one another's academic disciplines".

R. A. McKinley, assistant industrial adviser to the Bank of Montreal, has been the organizer of much of the effort behind the idea.

The new college is to be named after the Ajax division where over 5,000 veterans were engineering students from 1945 to 1949. Ajax is located east of Toronto. Here 110 buildings were converted to house the extension.

J. D. Briethaupt 4T9, C. M. Bishop 4T9, and McKinley are co-chairmen of the campaign. Class representatives are W. W. Walker 5T0, L. V. Adshood 5T1, and J. H. Innes 5T2.

Meanwhile, the fund drive, aimed to help pay for a new 10 year development program, has collected $6,000,000 towards its ultimate $12,600,000 goal.

The chairman of the university's board of governors, Lieutenant-Col. W. Eric Phillips, said yesterday that the development project board has contributed $462,300. This does not include contributions from corporations with which board members are associated.

"We are very grateful to the board of governors for the example they have set. It displayed courage and conviction in planning the university's extensive building," said W. Grant Ross, University Associates division chairman.

There are nearly 5,000 volunteer canvassers now in Metro, soliciting alumni and corporations, and committees have been organized in 40 other Canadian centres.

Nurses Best Bleeders

The Skule cannon has been found, and will be presented to and fired by the Faculty of Nursing representative Thursday at 1:30 p.m. on the steps of the Engineering Building.

The Nurses donated 142 pints of blood, which represents 68.5% of their faculty enrolment. Forestry and Wycliffe ran a close second with 34% of the enrolment bleeding. Physical and Occupational Therapy was third with 32%. 2,636 pints of blood were donated by U of T students this year.

comment

carrier

The press release we received concerning Remembrance Day observances informed us, among other things that the COTC would be playing its usual active part in the ceremony.

This notice started us thinking about the relationship between the COTC and the university. It is a relationship we are having trouble understanding.

The COTC is the Canadian Officers' Training Corps. Similar organizations exist on campus to train officers for the navy and airforce.

What we cannot understand is what business an organization for training officers has in a reputedly "academic community".

The advantages accruing to the COTC from a campus connection are obvious. It is frankly looking for professionally trained military men and would much prefer to recruit them among men who have brain as well as brawn to devote to the various nasty little jobs that armies may be called upon to do.

It is not so easy to see what the advantages are for the university. We are supposed to be an institution devoted to the maintenance of peace and the fostering of understanding. Even if the rest of the world goes mad, the university is presumably a place where the notion that physical violence can solve problems can never gain currency.

It hardly needs to be laboured that an organization for training professional soldiers and the very idea that soldiering can be a profession are opposed to the ideals that are supposed to lie at the basis of universities.

Yet Dr. Bissell, the President of this university is also Honorary Colonel of the COTC. The leader of an intellectual community and an honorary colonel in a military organization. How can these two extremes be encompassed in one position?

Either they cannot, or we have highly misjudged and overrated the intellectual integrity of our university.

We are reminded once again of Professor Morawetz, now more properly Mr. Morawetz we are doing nothing to keep the world from drifting to destruction.

The universities are fine training organizations, it is true. And if a society has fine traditions the university will propagate those traditions.

But perhaps we must look elsewhere to see the conscience of our time formulated.

It is perhaps unreasonable to expect the university to banish from itself organizations like the COTC, odious as they may be.

But if it is unreasonable, then we must force ourselves to realize that if our society exhibits ills, the universities will spread the disease.

Lawrence Russell And Major

the crucible opens to-night

Who Are You Calling A Witch

In 1953 Arthur Miller's play THE CRUCIBLE appeared on Broadway. It dealt with the "witch trials" that took place in Salem, Massachusetts in 1692.

Many critics interpreted the play as a commentary on the activities of the "Un-American Activities Committee" and of Senator Joe McCarthy who was the leading figures on the committee at that time.

Mr. Miller has consistently denied this "guilt by association". He believes that his play deals with attitudes and ideas that have no temporal limitations.

Recently, Arthur Miller was himself called upon to appear before a committee similar to Senator McCarthy's. He admitted having certain "communist associations" but refused to submit to the committee a list of those with whom he had come into contact during these associations.

For this, Mr. Miller was held "in contempt" and taken to court. He won his case, and a severe legal limitation on the activities of the such committees was clearly defined.

Although the ideas and conflicts discussed in The Crucible are timeless, they serve well to underline the contemporary events in which Mr. Miller became personally involved five years after his play was written.

The play deals with the reactions of the town of Salem to a charge that witchcraft is rampant among them. An expert on the "influence of the devil" is called in and soon the whole town is reverberating to the charges and countercharges.

The plot centres around a group of girls who are caught dancing "naked" in the woods. To cover their act, they assert that they have been "bewitched".

The devil hunter is called in and soon the whole town of Salem is involved in the horror initiated by the charges. In the end even those who began the trials are compelled to question what they have done.

The Crucible whether it is seen as a commentary on Joe McCarthy or as a commentary on the time of good and evil, is profound and moving play.

The joint production of this play by University College and St. Michael's College opens tonight in Hart House. The play stars, Kenneth Pogue as John Proctor, Nancy H. Keeling as Mary Warren, Sylvia Pegis as Ann Crouch, James Mainprize as Reverend Parris.

Publicity has been organized by David Broadhurst and tickets have been sold by Lawrence Barber, Brian and Judy Orlan.

The cast and the vast crew of the production staff have worked hard to make this play an outstanding success. And tonight, those who are fortunate enough to possess tickets will learn just which witch is, and there is no witch like an old witch.

THE VARSITY

FOUNDED 1880

Published by
The Students' Administrative Council
of the University of Toronto
Toronto 5, Canada

Member Canadian University Press

Editorial and News Office
Basement, SAC Building — WA. 3-8742, WA. 3-8113
Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221

The opinions expressed in this paper are those of the editor.

Editor-in-Chief ..... Sam Aizenstat
Executive Editor ..... Mark Nichols
Managing Editors ..... Harvey Shepherd, Susie Breslin
News Editor ..... Ed Roberts
Features Editor ..... David Lewis Stein
Sports Editor ..... Dave Griner
AM&D Editor ..... Elmo Ciprietti
Photography Editor ..... Andy Stabins
CUP Editor ..... Alan Walker
Publicity Editor ..... Kay McCook
Associate News Editors ..... Terry Bourke, Jayne Nesbitt

TODAY'S ISSUE: John McGoe, Beryl Trimming, Fran Maine, Lee Morris, Maryanne Deiso, Jack Wayne, Fred Host, David Broadhurst, Brenda Harris, Mel Peit, Walter McLean, Dave Tavender, L. Richardson, Warren Wilson, Doug Marshall and to all a good night.

Photography This Issue: Terry Shaw

"Suffer yourselves to be blamed, imprisoned, condemned; suffer yourselves to be hanged; but publish your opinions; it is not a great, it is a duty."

Irm

A first production of a new company opened last week at the Radio City Theatre.

LRM Productions, formed less than two years ago, is a three-man operation by graduates of the University of Toronto who gained their experience with the Hart House Theatre under director Robert Gill.

Graduating in successive years, the three separately gained the E. A. Dale Award for contribution to university theatre. Since 1955 they have been working together as a production team.

Les Lawrence, Leon Major and Wallace Russell first collaborated to present Patricia Joudry's "Teach Me How to Cry," and won the Dominion Drama Festival Award in 1956.

The summer of 1956 was spent at the Garden City Theatre, where the team took over the company that year. They later moved to Coburg with their profits.

They existed here until their profits ran out.

LRM has money and experience behind it. Their "Hamlet" is "the" production at the moment, but expectations are high to maintain a permanent company.

Les Lawrence, stage and set designer for the company has also been actor, writer and graphic artist.

With the opening of "Hamlet" he left with his wife for a year's study in theatre design in France. The Lawrence team has spent most of the past two years travelling and studying in most of the countries of Europe, including Russia.

During that time, Lawrence designed the advertising and publicity for two productions in west end London.

Wallace Russell, middle member of LRM Productions, is a specialist in stage lighting and the handling of backstage and financial problems.

In 1958, he studied the problems of lighting and stage design by working with festival groups in continental Europe and the British Isles. He worked with Leon Major in the production of "Noon Has No Shadow" in London.

Leon Major is truly a man devoted to the theatre.

Since his return from Europe in early 1959, he has received wide recognition for his direction of two Crest Theatre shows, "My Three Angels," and "The Hollow". "Two for the Seesaw" was his latest and most acclaimed presentation at the Crest.

Major received a Canada Council Fellowship to help finance his European tour.

Fournier And Susskind

"The Incomparable cellist", Pierre Fournier was the centre of attention at last night's TSO concert, the second of the season. Although one could have asked for more expansive programming, the soloist used Elgar's Cello concerto as the medium for the most complete artistry on this instrument since the great Zara Nelsova last visited Toronto.

Walter Susskind's programming, although geared for his orchestra's particular abilities seemed too similar, all of the music being written within a forty-year period. In fact, this complaint can be extended to the season's programs as a whole — predominantly romantic.

Richard Strauss' "Death and Transfiguration" was played to commemorate the tenth anniversary of the composer's death and also doubled as a requiem for Alberto Guerrero, the Chilean pianist who became a luminary of Toronto's musical world.

Strauss' program for his third tone-poem, an elegy by Alexander Ritter was unfortunately reprinted in toto as program notes. We are presumably to visualize "a dying man lying upon a mattress in a poor and squalid garret"; well, for that matter the music could and did suggest on old rone, lying in bed drinking Pernod, recounting the tragedy of his existence.

Although Mr. Susskind's tempi in this work were quite orthodox, his main failure was his refusal to allow a sufficient pause before the various repetitions of the themes in the different voices of the orchestra. This failure was probably taken by many as improper balance, but I would rather attribute it to an overly strict observance of the composer's markings.

Mr. Susskind's perennial penchant for weaving frantically to a climax rather than building by volume alone served him well in approaching the eerie clangs of the gong which announce the sufferer's apotheosis. This was the only time that Strauss' program came across as really meaningful; the old master of dramatic orchestration does, after all, have the equipment to make human actions musically relevant.

Elgar's last mature work, the Cello concerto in E minor, completed after the First World War, came as an anti-climactic, almost regressive summary of his musical genius. It is really a sonata, in length and emphasis; the orchestral accompaniment being a "stream of consciousness" supplement. Here Elgar is expanding the quite novel idea which he hit upon in the cadenza to his violin concerto — which has a self-effacing orchestral background. The cello plays almost continually throughout the work.

M. Fournier used this last mentioned aspect of the work not to demonstrate the scope of his instrument, as cellists have a compulsion for doing, but to convey the emotional impact the cello can have even in a limited range. Concealing his art he often glided unnoticed from the powerful bass register to the pure (i.e. non-trangy) searing high notes. Less successful, in composition as well as performances were the numerous pizzicati given to the solo instrument.

Tchaikovsky's Fourth Symphony was the thick centre of the evening. Written in one of the suicidal moods which finally overtook him, this symphony summarizes Tchaikovsky's emotional distress at the time. Since pouring one's troubles into a work of art has gone on ever since man took chisel to cave wall, we must ignore the Freudian condemnation of this symphony, that it reeks with homosexual yearnings, phallic blasts of the trumpet, etc. I think it reeks of a lot of things, "de trop", in general; at least this performance did.

Beyond a doubt, the Toronto Symphony has the loudest brass in captivity; but its conductor did an excellent job of domestication, especially in the awesome statements of the Fate theme in the first and last movements. In one of his rare moments of innovation, Mr. Susskind brought out the second movement's muted string passages in delightful reminiscence of the composer's ballet music. And in the third pizzicato ostinato movement the conductor supplied the humour for the evening when abandoning his baton he timed the music and entrances a la Hoffmann. Except for the scattered bits of wreckage in several hectic crescendi, the orchestra reached the required level of high bombast or emotion (secundum gustibus) in this symphony.

Klmo.

TYPING

THESES, ESSAYS, NOTES, CHARTS, French, German, Latin, English Prices Upon Request Apt. 12 21 AVENUE RD. — WA. 2-7624 MRS. M. D. STOTT, B.A.

TYPEWRITERS

$1.00 A WEEK BUYS . . .
$1.50 A WEEK RENTS
Get a free typing course and a liberal trade-in allowance for your old typewriter when you buy a new modern machine from us.
Phone HO. 1-1843 Today

A chance for all atheists, agnostics, communists and the merely curious to take a pot shot at committed Christian will be offered tonight in Wymilwood, the Victoria College Union Building.

At 7.30 to-night Dr. Matsumi Toyotome, the chief missioner for the V.C.F. sponsored mission now taking place on this campus, will hold an open "question session".

Dr. Toyotome was born in Japan but spent a good many years in the United States where he took his Phd at Columbia.

Dr. Totyotome believes that Christianity has a valid message for the modern world. He believes that one must experience the "love of Jesus Christ" in order to love man. He feels that most of our lives are spent in aimless striving and that his religion has the only possible solution for us.

He is anxious to hear what we think about him and what he has to say.

BUY FLOWERS

for all occasions at the
PARK PLAZA FLORISTS
10 AVENUE ROAD
WA. 3-6361
10% DISCOUNT TO STUDENTS AND STAFF

BLUE & WHITE

TEA DANCE

AT THE DRILL HALL

AFTER THE GAME

SATURDAY

4 - 6 p.m. — 25c each

Panhellenic Dance

University of Toronto

Friday, November 13th, 1959

ROYAL YORK HOTEL

Dancing 9 - 12

$3.00 per couple

BELIEVE IT OR NOT!!

TICKETS

can be had for the giant

ENGINEERING EXTRAVAGANZA

SKULE NITE 6TO

A LIMITED AMOUNT OF SEATS WILL BE AVAILABLE TO THE GENERAL PUBLIC AT HART HOUSE THEATRE BOX OFFICE 10:00 A.M. — 6:00 P.M.

It's Fun to

DANCE

AT

Mart Kenney's Ranch

EVERY SATURDAY

CANADA'S FINEST BANDS

Special Student Rates
$1.00 per person

Reservation and Information

AT 8-1282

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE

Thursday Afternoon Lecture Series

"From Poe to Kafka"

Professor L. Hofrichter

THURSDAY, NOV. 12, at 4.30 p.m.

West Hall, U.C.

What Is

Torontonensis

* It is the official yearbook of the U of T, published by the SAC.

* TORONTONENSIS is an interest-packed book for every student on the campus, presenting in its 450 pages a review of the year's highlights, including club activities, social events, sports, organizations, and graduating classes.

* The all-campus yearbook for all students in all years all faculties and colleges.

* It is crammed with photos of you and your friends and your activities.

First 2000 copies only $2.00

* Order from your faculty rep or SAC office any time after Nov. 16.

EATON'S

There's Many A Slip

twixt the top of the hill and the bottom. But these lithe young ski separates should keep their shape and style through all kinds of spills. Jacket of "weatherproof" cotton poplin, hood zips under chin. Pants of fine worsted weave wool-and-nylon, stretch when you move.

Jacket, Sizes 14 to 18,
Blue, coral, black.
each 25.00

Pants, Sizes 12 to 20,
Red, black, navy.
each 29.95

PHONE UN. 1-5111
EATON'S — Main Store
Fourth Floor — Dept. 246

European University Graduate teaches
German & French
Private Language School
O. W. BECK
1598 BATHURST ST.
(near St. Clair) RU. 7-4756

West Indian Students' Association

Announce their

FIRST GENERAL MEETING

At Women's Union, 79 St. George Street on Thursday, Nov. 12th, at 8.00 p.m.

Important issues to be discussed and a few surprises.

MICHIGAN STATE UNIVERSITY

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

COLGATE
UNIVERSITY

MISSION IN THE UNIVERSITY
NOON HOUR ADDRESSES*TODAY — WED., NOV. 11*PHARM. R. No. 215 — 1.15 p.m.

PROF. R. E. JERVIS — Where Science and Faith Meet

TRINITY, R. No. 4 — 1.15 p.m.

PROF. D. C. MASTERS

ARCH., R. No. A204 — 1.15 p.m.

REV. H. H. KENT — Architecture and Life

GRAD. NURS. R. No. 110

MRS. L. WYNNE — Credo

EC. BLDG. R. No. 115 — 12.30 p.m.

DR. O. WATERS

TOMORROW — THURS., NOV. 12*U. C., R. No. 71

PROF. D. C. MASTERS — Protestantism and Modern Canadian Thought.

MEDS., R. No. 111 ANAT. BLDG.

DR. C. P. MARTIN — The Decline of Religion

VICTORIA, MUSIC ROOM

REV. M. FLINT — The Psycho-Dynamics of
Jesus Christ

NURS. R. No. 104 — 12.10 p.m.

ARCHDEACON HUNT — The Christian Calling

ENG. & FORESTRY, MECH. BLDG. R. 254

PROF. G. WALTERS — Faith that Works

MUSIC, RES. COMMON ROOM

REV. A LEE — The Necessity of Faith

DENTA., R. No. 108 — 1.20 p.m.

MR. W. SUTHERLAND — Why Believe?

Sponsored by Varsity Christian Fellowship

Urge Canadians Lead In Industry

Canadians were urged to take positions of leadership in commerce and industry by Murray Ross, vice-president of the University of Toronto, in a address on Friday to the Conference on Modernizing Management.

The conference was sponsored by the U of T Institute of Business Administration.

Mr. Ross said our main concern is not that a large amount of American capital is being invested here but that there should be Canadians in managerial positions.

"It is of the greatest importance for our future that the heads of businesses operating in Canada be Canadians—conscious of our heritage, aware of our traditions, and devoted to our national development," Ross said.

"We at U of T, in spite of many pressures to do otherwise, have insisted and will continue to insist that education for business follow a broad liberal education in which a man or woman obtains some knowledge of, and perspective about, the world of ideas," Mr. Ross said.

UofT Noted For Beauty, Prof. Says

"A charming and kindly man" from the University of Tokyo was welcomed very unofficially over the weekend to the University of Toronto campus.

Dr. Mukaibo, a professor from Japan, stopped Eva Poppleton (III UC) in front of University College on Saturday afternoon and asked if she could tell him something about the university.

He was armed with two cameras and was taking pictures of the U of T buildings. "In Japan, this university is noted for its beautiful buildings," he explained to Miss Poppleton.

She took him to the Arbor Room in Hart House for a cup of coffee and he told her his visit to Toronto was an unplanned stop in an 82-day trip around the world to visit major universities.

Dr. Mukaibo was invited to Whitney Hall, the UC women's residence for dinner and on Saturday afternoon Miss Poppleton introduced him to Dean Ian MacDonald of UC.

Saturday night, Dr. Mukaibo slept at a Toronto YMCA and then left Sunday morning for Chicago.

MISSION IN THE UNIVERSITY

Dr. MASUMI TOYOTOME M.A., B.D., Ph.D.

Convocation Hall — 5.00 p.m.*TO-DAY — WED., NOV. 11*THE GLORY OF LIFE

Chairman: Dean McLaughlin M.A.S.C., M.A., Ph.D.

Question Session 7.30 p.m. — Victoria College Alumni Hall

Chairman: Rev. K. J. Joblin, B.A., B.D., T.H.M.

TOMORROW — THURS., NOV. 12*THE IMPASSE OF LIFE

SPONSORED BY VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP

Fielding's Jones Is AVR's Jones

The director of "Christopher Jones", this year's All Varsity Revue, says he is impressed by the professional qualities of the work.

"By professional qualities," adds Barry Callaghan, "I mean the soundness of the story line, the depth of character, and the unity between book and music."

Gino Matteo, script-writer of "Christopher Jones" says the main character is "A direct descendant of Henry Fielding's 'Tom Jones'. Just as they both have their weaknesses—vanity and an understandable amount of arrogance, so they both have ability and a likeable personality."

"Another link with Tom Jones" is a shrewd, cunning character called Blifil who also appears in Christopher Jones," said Matteo.

AVR officials say auditions received tremendous response last week, but, because of the size of the cast, particularly the large number of male members, it has been decided to hold one more night of auditions.

Officials urge all those with talent to try out for the few good roles which are still open, as well as for chorus work and dancing.

This extra audition will be held tonight, Wednesday, between 7:30-9:30 in Brennan Hall, SMC.

HUNGARIANS

Students of the University of Toronto have joined in an attempt to stay the execution of 150 Hungarian youths, but time is running out.

The protest began on the University of British Columbia campus. Since then petitions have been circulating at universities across Canada.

Three thousand signatures have been collected at the U of T to be sent to Nikita Khrushchev.

All faculty petitions must be returned to the SAC office by 3 p.m. today.

2,000 Law Students Form East Association

Over 2,000 law students were represented at a weekend conference at Queen's University which met to form an association to encourage closer co-operation between law students.

The Eastern Canadian and Central Canadian Association of Law Students was formed by delegates from the Universities of Toronto, McGill, Western, Sherbrooke, Queen's, New Brunswick, Ottawa and Osgoode Hall. The western Canadian universities have their own association.

A constitutional committee made up of University of Toronto and Osgoode Hall students was set up at the meeting. The organization also decided to sponsor inter-school moot courts. They hope to set up a system for exchanges of professors among member universities.

The association held a banquet Saturday night and guest speaker was Professor J. A. Carry, vice - principal of Queen's University.

The convention next fall will be held at the University of New Brunswick and accordingly the National Executive will be made up of students from this university.

BLUE & WHITE Pre-Game PEP RALLY

50c

FRIDAY, NOV. 13 at 9:00 p.m.

in the

Drill Hall — 119 St. George

UNIVERSITY BLAZERS Custom Made

Especially Priced for Students
$27.50

Fine Flannel Worsted Trousers
$16.50

Business Hours: 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Monday through Saturday

Suits Made to Measure

Latest Styles and Design

PARNES Clothing Co.

706 QUEEN STREET WEST

EM. 6-2025

Sample at S.A.C. Office

University Students WANTED

FOR

PART TIME SURVEY WORK

EXCELLENT OPPORTUNITY.

Apply in writing, giving name, address and phone number to

BOX No. 2190, THE GLOBE and MAIL
TORONTO 1.

- GAMES TODAY -

FOOTBALL	East 3:30 Med	vs Dent	Stokes, Chykaluk, McCalloch
	West 3:30 Jr. SPS	vs Pharm	Weinrib, Flancman, Lipson
SOCER	North 4:00 U.C.	vs Vic	Bugarski
	South 4:00 Med B	vs Jr. SPS	Farwell
LACROSSE	1:00 SPS V	vs I Pre-Med	Hill, Roth
	6:30 SPS III	vs Med. I Yr	Barrett, Derrett
	7:30 Trin	vs Law	Barrett, Derrett
VOLLEYBALL	1:00 Pre-Med II Yr.	vs SPS F	Sigal
	4:00 St. M. VI	vs U.C. Pilans	Goldman
	5:00 Med. II Yr.	vs U.C. Beta Sigs	Goldman
	6:00 St. M. II	vs Med. IV Yr. B	Goldman
	7:00 Knox	vs U.C.	Dugan
	8:00 Trin	vs U.C. Hutton	Dugan
SQUASH	1:00 SPS III	vs Trin. B
	4:20 St. M. A	vs Vic. I
	5:40 Trin. A	vs Med. III Yr.

GAMES THURSDAY

FOOTBALL	East 3:30 Forestry	vs St. M.	Godley, Flancman, Marchut
	North 4:00 Law	vs Enman.	Avis
SOCER	4:00 U.C.	vs Vic. I	Hodgkinson, Derrett
LACROSSE	1:00 St. M. A	vs U.C. I	Barrett, Chubb
	6:30 Med. A	vs Knox	Misener, Chubb
	7:30 Pharm	vs Vic. M.P.H's	Stein
VOLLEYBALL	1:00 U.C. Pilans	vs St. M. V	Coohill
	4:00 U.C. Jenneret	vs Pharm. B	Eamer
	6:30 For. B	vs Med. IV Yr. A	Eamer
	7:30 St. M. I	vs St. M. VII
	8:30 Vic. Caven	vs U.C. II
SQUASH	1:00 Arch	vs Med. IV Yr.
	6:20 Jr. SPS	vs St. M. B
	7:00 Dent. B

SPORTS SCHEDULES WEEK OF NOV. 16th

FOOTBALL and SOCCER PLAYOFF SCHEDULES WILL APPEAR IN FRIDAY'S VARSITY. HOCKEY SCHEDULE FOR NEXT WEEK WILL ALSO APPEAR IN FRIDAY'S VARSITY.

LACROSSE—Mon. Nov. 16	1:00 U.C. I	vs SPS. I	Haskill, DePetrillo
Tues. Nov. 17	1:00 SPS. II	vs SPS. VI	Grist, Spanetz
	6:30 Dent	vs U.C. II	Roth, Hill
	7:30 Vic. I	vs Med. A	Roth, Hill
Wed. Nov. 18	6:30 SPS. IV	vs Pharm	Barrett, Chubb
	7:30 Law	vs Med. I Yr	Barrett, Chubb
Thur. Nov. 19	1:00 SPS. III	vs Trin	Grist, Haskill
	4:00 I Pre-Med	vs Vic. II	Hill, Grist
	6:30 A.C.	vs St. M. A	Naylor, Misener
	7:30 Knox	vs I Pre-Med	Naylor, Misener
	8:30 Dent	vs SPS. II	Naylor, Misener
Fri. Nov. 20	1:00 St. M. B	vs SPS. V	Hodgkinson, Spanetz
VOLLEYBALL—Mon. Nov. 16	1:00 Vic. M.P.H's	vs SPS. H	Sigal
	4:00 U.C. Hutton	vs Pre-Med I A	Stein
	5:00 Med. I Yr	vs SPS. D	Stein
	6:00 Med. IV Yr B	vs SPS. J	Pomerant
Tues. Nov. 17	1:00 Pre-Med I C	vs St. M. VI	Pomerant
	4:00 Pre-Med I B	vs U.C. Wallace	Goldman
	6:30 Dent. III Yr	vs St. M. II	Goldman
	7:30 Med. III Yr	vs Arch	Goldman
	8:30 Wye. B
Wed. Nov. 18	1:00 St. M. V	vs SPS. G	Draimin
	4:00 St. M. VIII	vs U.C. Frat Note	Pomerant
	5:00 St. M. I	vs SPS. B	Pomerant
	6:00 U.C.	vs Med	Jeanjean
	7:00 Med. IV Yr A	vs Med. II Yr	Jeanjean
	8:00 U.C. Jenneret	vs Trin	Jeanjean
Thur. Nov. 19	1:00 SPS. C	vs St. M. III	Dugan
	4:00 Enman	vs For. A	Draimin
	6:30 Sr. SPS	vs Pharm	Perkins
	7:30 SPS. III	vs Knox	Perkins
	8:30 Vic. Caven	vs U.C. Loudon	Perkins
Fri. Nov. 20	1:00 Pre-Med. II	vs SPS. F	Sigal
	4:00 Vic. M.P.H's	vs St. M. VI	Eamer
	5:00 St. M. II	vs Dent. I Yr	Eamer
SQUASH—Mon. Nov. 16	1:00 Vic. II	vs Trin. C
	4:00 Med I Yr	vs SPS. IV
Tues. Nov. 17	6:20 Dent D	vs SPS V
	7:00 Wye.	vs Pre-Med II Yr
Wed. Nov. 18	1:00 Vic. IV	vs St. M. D
	4:20 Vic. III	vs U.C. III
	5:40 Dent. E	vs Pre-Med I Yr
Thur. Nov. 19	1:00 SPS VI	vs St. M. C
	6:30 Med III Yr	vs U.C. I
	7:00 Dent. C	vs Law B

BLUE & WHITE

East - West Championship Playoff

FOOTBALL DANCE

5 Orchestras

Hart House

SAT., NOV. 14th
9:00 p.m.

Tickets: $2.50 per couple
S.A.C. Office

(Tickets Limited)

CLASSIFIED ADS.

DRESS ALTERATIONS

Dress alterations, quality work-fast service, Harbord at St. George. Call Mrs. Zador after 10 a.m. — WA. 3-6960.

ACCURATE AND FAST TYPING
Done for students. Please call PL. 7-6908—Vera McDonald, 84 Elinor Avenue, Scarborough, Ont.

372 HURON STREET - FOR SALE
South of Bloor, 11 rooms including self-contained apartment on 3rd floor. Garage facilities. Oil Heated. $27,500 with 5,000 down. EM. 4-8306.

LOST $30.00

Within last 2 weeks — Call Dave Solomon WA. 4-2121.

RUSSIAN LESSONS

Given by a Russian born and Russian educated person. Phone LE. 3-1972 after 6 p.m.

SELF-CONTAINED APARTMENT
In Professor's home close to University, suitable for two women. WA. 2-9284.

EXPERT THESIS TYPIST

Fast personalized service. (Electric machine). Irene Kenyon, 146 Bernard Avenue. WA. 3-4011.

VARSLITY STADIUM

ALL CANADA

INTERCOLLEGIATE

FOOTBALL CHAMPIONSHIP

UNIVERSITY of BRITISH COLUMBIA

VS

UNIVERSITY of WESTERN ONTARIO

SATURDAY, NOV. 14 — 1:00 p.m.

— Proceeds to Paraplegic Association Medical Research —

SPECIAL STUDENT PRICE!

Playoff Coupon In Football

Ticket Book and $1.50 for a $2.50 Ticket

AT ATHLETIC OFFICE TICKET WINDOW

HART HOUSE — 9:30 a.m. - 5:00 p.m.

BOB GIROUX poses here for this publicity shot. Unfortunately he posed a little too long yesterday in practice on one shot, and it cost him a fractured cheekbone. He will be out of action for a least two weeks. This was to be Bob's big year as he finally had the goalkeeping job all to himself after the graduation of Ray Dunn. Coach Jack Kennedy is hoping to have him back after Christmas. —Burns

Fractured Cheekbone Sidelines Blues Goalie

A serious injury has cost the Varsity Hockey Blues one of their top goalies for at least two weeks and maybe longer. Bob Giroux was struck on the left cheekbone during practice Monday by a shot, and suffered a severe, but clean fracture.

He was rushed to the hospital where he was operated on and twelve stitches used to close the wound. The injury left Don Keenan as the top candidate for the goal job in the meantime. While it is expected that Giroux will be back in two weeks, coach Jack Kennedy was not optimistic as to his returning in the stated time.

To make matters worse, it is not yet known whether Keenan is eligible to play Intercollegiate hockey. He played one game for Boston of the NHL last year, and it is thought that it might affect his eligibility.

To fill the gap made by the injury to Giroux, Al Fleming goalie with the Blues in 1957, has been called out of retirement to act as practice goalie with the team.

Blues play their first game Friday night in Canington against Turk Broda's Junior A Marlboros. According to the poster announcing the game, these are the two best teams ever matched in that district. Several notable personages will be present, including Jack Kennedy "noted Varsity coach."

Those interested in going to the game will have to be prepared to drive some 60 miles, but in what direction is not available to me at the moment.

Kennedy has trimmed his squad to 21 now, and that is probably the number he will keep. They are: Howie Roth, John MacDonald, Neil Munro, Harry Neale, Frank Sullivan, Bill Griffin, Bob Giroux, Al Fleming, Gord Gow, Pete Warren, Gord Frey, George Hicken, John Gatten, Jim Simpson, Dan Cherepecka, Don Keenan, Jim Murchie, Gord Epp, Ian Sinclair, Al Orchison, and Dave Chambers.

Rugger Blues Beaten Lose To Nomads 5-3

Varsity rugger Blues lost to Nomads last Saturday afternoon 5-3, as injuries weakened the team for the match. Despite the loss, the form of the team was better than it had been for any of their three previous games.

And they might have won if they had been quicker to take the chances given to them. It seems to be the crucial weakness of the team that when the ball goes loose, they hesitate momentarily before carrying the play on.

Again and again this hesitation gave the Initiative to Nomads, who made good use of it. Notable exceptions to this charge were George Dunsmuir among the forwards, and Captain Neville Nankivell, who gave the team an object lesson in determined play.

The Varsity score came from : chance was not missed when Desmond Howard snapped the ball up from a loose scrum and dived over the line for a try. The convert was missed.

Next Saturday, University of Michigan visit Varsity for the first time, and if Blues continue to show improvement, they should send the Yanks home beaten.

Intramural Roundup

Vic II defeated Meds B in soccer action 2-0 as Grist fired both goals for the winners. Other soccer action saw Trinity A whip St. Mike's A 1-0 on Witty's goal, while Emmanuel edged Pharmacy 1-0 on a goal by Wright.

In lacrosse, UC I plastered the defending champions St. Mike's 100. Naylor led the Redmen with four goals. Other scorers were Misnet (2), Roth, Spanetz, Frazer, and Fleming. UC II tied SPS II 3-3.

In volleyball, SPS B whipped SPS A 15-10, 13-15, 15-13. The other game saw SPS H defeat UC Sigma Alpha 15-10, 15-6.

The interfaculty hockey schedule starts next week

Soccer Blues Win Whip Ryerson 4-2

Varsity Soccer Blues defeated the Ryerson team 4-2 on the Front Campus yesterday to complete their Eastern O.Q.A.A. schedule with a perfect record. During their run to the title Blue's amassed a record of eight wins in as many starts, scoring twenty-seven goals while allowing six. Their season's effort was nine wins and one loss.

The game was dull with Blue's, already assured of the championship, content to let the Rams carry most of the play. This attitude gave the Ryerson team the lead early in the game when Del Edwards out-fought the Varsity defence and scored with a hard, low shot.

Seeming confident that the goals would come Varsity continued to play methodical soccer which kept Ryerson pressed into their own end of the field. The ball buzzed around the Rams net but some good goalkeeping kept the ball out.

Eventually Varsity evened the score when Blue's Roger Peretz pushed the ball home from a melee in front of the Rams net to complete the scoring before half-time. The second half started much the same way with Varsity wearing down their opposition with a close passing game.

Blues forged into the lead when Peretz finished off a picture passing play which started right back at the Varsity goalkeeper. The ball passed through six Blue's players on it's way down the field with no Ryerson player anywhere near. The final move was a centre from Brian Michez which Peretz headed into the net.

Minutes later Varsity opened up their lead when Eddy Csongradi used his speed to out-foot the Ram's defence and slipped the ball past the on-coming goalkeeper. Ryerson now began to open up their play and got back into contention when Edwards out-jumped a hesitant Varsity defence to notch his second goal.

However Ryerson's joy was short-lived since on virtually the next attack on the Ram's goal Peretz scored his third goal of the game from a Ram's defensive miscue. This ended the scoring for the game and for the season.

A post-season play-off the Varsity squad had been mentioned, but McDonald College, this years winners of the Ottawa and St. Lawrence Valley A. A., report that they will most likely be unable to accept any challenge due to financial troubles.

The Baby Blues closed their season out last Saturday when they lost to the OAC team. During the season they registered four wins, one tied game and one defeat to finish second in their league, scoring twenty-six goals and conceding ten.

The season can be said to have been a successful one for the Blue's squad with the Eastern and Western Division Senior titles resting again for another year in their proper place in Hart House, and the Intermediate resting for just one year in Guelph.

The Scoreboard

FOOTBALL

Senior

	P	W	L	T	F	A	P
Toronto	6	5	1	0	95	30	10
Western	6	5	1	0	121	47	10
Queen's	6	2	4	0	49	102	4
McGill	6	0	6	0	24	110	0

Western win the Yates Cup because they outscored Toronto 23-17 in the two games between the two teams.

WESTERN INTERCOLLEGIATE

P W L T F A P

U.B.C.	4	4	0	0	144	45	16
U of A	6	4	2	0	171	73	8
U of S	6	0	6	0	29	226	0

SENIOR SOCCER

Toronto ..... 4; Ryerson ..... 2

Varsity Record

Played 10, won 9, lost 1; Goals For 32; Goals Against 9

Intramural Football

Group One

Victoria	8; SPS	8
Trinity	22; UC	6

Trinity Wins Vic, SPS Tie UC Eliminated

Victoria College Red and Gold moved one point closer to winning the Group One Intramural Football when they tied SPS Srs. 8-8 on the back campus yesterday afternoon.

In the other game, Trinity Black Panthers eliminated UC Redmen from playoff contention as they whipped the UC boys 22-6 and avenged an earlier defeat at the hands of the same team.

Don Seebach scored the Vic touchdown, while Duane Willis kicked two singles. Nestor Snihura scored the Engineer's major with Schafer converting. The tying point was kicked in the last few minutes by Derek Lunn.

The touchdown by Snihura was the first given up by the ferocious Vic defence this year. In their five games, they have yielded only 12 points in all.

Rusty Dunbar scored two TD's for Trinity, for whom Lynn MacMurray was a standout with his passing. McTaggart scored the UC major.

SPS and Trinity are now assured of a spot in the playoffs. Trinity has 6 points, one less than Vic, while SPS have 5.

Mitchell Wins Scoring Muir, Dann Are Second

Bill Mitchell, a four year veteran of Intercollegiate football with the University of Western Ontario Mustangs, won the individual scoring championship of the Senior Intercollegiate Union, garnering 25 points to out-score his nearest rivals by seven points.

Strangely enough, he did not score a single touchdown during the season, but accumulated all his points by judicious use of the toes of his right foot. They helped him to kick 12 converts, four field goals and a single.

Four players were tied for second spot with 18 points each. Two of these, Lionel Conacher and John Wydareny, were teammates of Mitchell's. The others were Bob Dann and Mike Muir of Toronto. All four scored three touchdowns.

All alone in third place was Varsity's Peter Potter. He had 15 points on seven converts and eight singles. The eight singles were high for the league.

Two other Toronto players, Doug Loughheed and Steve Chisholm counted two TD's apiece.

Joe Irwin and Mike Wicklum, of McGill and Queen's, respectively, were their teams leading scorers with 12 points apiece.

The race this year was much lower scoring than last season when Tim Reid of Varsity won it with 68 points.

Name	TD	C	FG	S	P
Mitchell (W)	9	12	0	0	25
Muir (T)	3	0	0	0	18
Dann (T)	3	0	0	0	18
Wydareny (W)	3	0	0	0	18
Conacher (W)	3	0	0	0	18
Potter (T)	0	7	0	0	15
Chisholm (T)	2	0	0	0	12
Loughheed (T)	2	0	0	0	12
Irwin (M)	1	1	0	0	12
Stewart (W)	2	0	0	0	12
Wicklum (Q)	2	0	0	0	12
Cosentino (W)	2	0	0	0	12
Porter (Q)	1	0	2	0	8
Sanwavs (W)	1	0	0	0	6
Reason (W)	1	0	0	0	6
Wood (W)	1	0	0	0	6
Folzini (W)	1	0	0	0	6
McMurry (T)	1	0	0	0	6
Murchie (T)	1	0	0	0	6
Boyd (T)	1	0	0	0	6
Shepherd (W)	1	0	0	0	6
MacAleese (Q)	1	0	0	0	6
Roth (Q)	1	0	0	0	6
Lambert (M)	1	0	0	0	6
Hansen (M)	1	0	0	0	6
Pett (Q)	1	0	0	0	6
Jack (T)	0	0	1	1	2
Richards (Q)	0	0	0	1	2

Regist- Canvasser Quota Coun. Team Caps.
University College	1725 575 6 58
Victoria College	1513 505 5 50
Trinity College	566 189 2 19
St. Michael's Col.	885 295 3 30
Engineering	1902 634 6 63
Architecture	161 54 1 5
Dentistry	469 156 2 16
Forestry	88 29 1 3
Law	151 54 1 5
Library School	55 19 1 5
Medicine	848 283 3 28
Music	72 24 1 2
Nursing	166 55 1 5
Pharmacy	334 111 1 11
Phys. & Hlth. Ed.	151 50 1 5
Social Work	74 25 1 2
Totals	9171 3049 36 304

Plus required committees for transportation, traffic, food, entertainment and treasury.

Recruit Thousands For Fund Drive

University of Toronto students will be recruited by the thousands next week to canvass Toronto homes for U of T's National Fund.

The U of T Students' Administrative Council unanimously voted its support Wednesday night to a plan for sending 3,000 students out to canvass residential areas Nov. 30 from 5.30-10 p.m.

The student "blitz" is expected to collect $75,000-$100,000 for the National Fund.

The blitz will mark the only time Toronto residents will be asked to contribute to the Fund. All canvassing so far has been aimed at U of T alumni.

Each student will be expected to approach 20-25 homes during the one-night blitz. The canvass will be centered in Toronto's north-central districts.

The mammoth blitz will require swift action on the part of college and faculty SAC and external affairs reps. Names of participating students must be collected by next Friday.

The 3,000 figure represents about one-third of U of T's available enrolment.

Participants will be supplied with arm-bands, identification cards and official receipts. Residents to be canvassed will receive letters of explanation several days before the blitz.

Participants will also be treated to a giant dinner in Varsity stadium before the blitz and a dance after they have completed the canvass.

The highly organized campaign will see the 3,000 participants placed under the direction of 300 team captains, who will in turn be responsible to 30 area chairmen.

Other personnel required include:

A transportation committee (20), traffic committee (20), refreshment committee (100), entertainment committee (10), treasury committee (20).

Inter-faculty competition will be encouraged by presentation of an Encyclopedia Britannica to the college or faculty with the largest canvasser turn-out. Runners-up will be given a World Atlas and a Seven Language Dictionary.

The same prizes will be offered to the college or faculty with the largest percentage turn-out.

The blitz will provide U of T students with their only opportunity to participate in the National Fund campaign. Previous work has all been done by alumni volunteers.

The blitz marks the last day of the Fund, and also ends a municipal University of Toronto Month declared by Mayor Phillips on Homecoming Weekend, the opening of the public campaign.

The National Fund's goal is $12,600,000 out of a total $52,000,000 expansion drive. Over half the month-long National Fund's goal has already been reached.

THE VARSITY

Vol. LXXIX — No. 24

Friday, November 13th, 1959

Protest Sweeps St. Mike's Campus When SAC Chief Sullivan Resigns

By SUSIE BRESLIN

A wave of protest and indignation swept St. Michael's College yesterday over the resignation of SMC student president Jordan Sullivan.

Sullivan announced his resignation Wednesday after a stormy SMC Students' Administrative Council session Tuesday night.

He said his resignation came as the "culmination of consistent obstruction to the executive committee".

A student petition begun last night had already been signed by 75 students at Loretto College, an SMC women's residence. The petition, requesting Sullivan's reinstatement, will be circulated among all SMC students today.

An emergency executive committee meeting has been called for Monday night to consider Sullivan's resignation. Notice of a council meeting Tuesday has been posted with a plea that students of the college attend.

An issue of The Mike, the SMC students' newspaper, appeared in the college yesterday. The issue was dominated by explosive editorials by editor Paul Foley condemning the SMC SAC for having "thwarted all efforts of the Executive Committee to enact pertinent legislation". Foley asked that there be a massive attendance at Tuesday's crucial meeting to prove that "it is the will of the student body that Mr. Sullivan not resign."

Announcement of Sullivan's resignation came as a postscript to a council session Tuesday night which saw the threatened resignation of Dawn Egan, director of Mickities, the college musical.

The executive had proposed a by-law to the SMC constitution which provided that participation in Mickities would be limited to St. Mike's students. The by-law was defeated.

When Sullivan then proposed a motion barring non-SMC students from the musical, Fine Arts Chairman and Mickities producer Tom Sutherland read a letter from Miss Egan stating that she would resign her position if the council did not "stop meddling with my cast". The motion was overwhelmingly defeated.

Sullivan said last night: "I consider the council's action Tuesday night to be a vote of non-confidence in the executive committee and particularly in myself as its spokesman".

Sullivan said every major piece of legislation proposed by the executive this year has met with defeat. "It's not a personal vendetta against myself. It's simply that as a spokesman for the executive committee to the council I have been seemingly unable to inspire the confidence of the council".

Sullivan said in the past he had been "threatened with resignations of key members of council and with threats of personal violence from members of the college".

A petition now being circulated by SMC student Helen Boulas reads:

"We, as members of St.

Michael's College, demand of our Students' Administrative Council a vote of confidence for Jordan Sullivan, president, and his executive committee. By this petition we wish to express support of our president".

In an editorial in The Mike, Foley said if Sullivan's resignation were accepted it would indicate the SAC "has acted without regard to principle, that it can be dictated to by individuals, and that it is nothing more than a dance committee".

Miss Egan said last night if any further motion regarding her cast were made by council, she would "unconditionally resign".

She said she agreed that the law should be passed to apply to future SMC productions, but that applying it to this year's Mickities would rob her of six key cast members.

Reaction at SMC to Sullivan's move was varied.

Council vice-president Peter Dembski said: "Sullivan is demonstrating a good deal of courage in being able to put his principles before his office. Perhaps the wrong people may be resigning from the council".

Vice-president Dorothy Symko: "There's definitely friction on the council, and the purpose of the forthcoming meeting will be to get rid of this friction so that we can progress as a body for the rest of the year. We don't know whether the question is one of principles or of personality conflict".

John Pluscauskas: "I think it was a very dramatic move on his part, but I think it will all blow over".

John Pierce: "It's a completely personal matter, as far as I can see".

Council member Mark Louise Barrier: "I was shocked. He's justified in view of the fact that he's standing for the principle that the cast of Mickities should be from SMC".

Gryphon editor Dave Brisson: "I feel if he isn't getting the support of the council then he's definitely justified in resigning, but it speaks rather poorly of a council that cannot support a man who, in representing the executive, is trying his damndest to do what is best for the students at St. Michael's".

Petitioner Helen Boulas: "We feel that Jordan is the best qualified person for this office, and he has not been receiving the support of his council".

HH Debate

Uphold Russian Honor

A leading Canadian journalist told University of Toronto students last night Russia and the West are rushing full speed up a political blind alley by holding up a front of mutual distrust.

Maclean's columnist Blair Fraser spoke at a Hart House debate on the question: "Soviet intentions are honorable". The motion was carried 61-48.

Mr. Fraser said there has been a definite relaxation behind the Iron Curtain of the grim tension characterized by the Stalin era.

He felt the West had failed to take "full advantage" of the improved situation in Russia today by pushing for a more constructive political agreement in the sphere of international relations.

Mr. Fraser suggested that the resolution should be changed to read: "Soviet intentions are good enough so the west can take every opportunity to negotiate with the Soviet Union in good faith."

Ayes speaker S. J. Zysman (III U.C.) said the majority of people do not understand the meaning of the word honorable. "Khrushchev," he explained "is dedicated to an ideal which is directed toward gearing the resources of his country to satisfy the needs of his people."

Speaker for the noes, D. R. Jones (III SPS) called Khrushchev "a militant fanatic, anti-capitalist, a bloody butcher responsible for Ukrainian Massacres," and asked if these were the "acts of an honorable man".

"The senseless slaughter of Hungarian youths, the Berlin Blockade, and a whole list of broken treaties and agreements, back up a concrete argument for the noes," he said.

Speaking from the floor, John Pierce said he, "was dripping blood and gore" because the house was willing to agree that American intentions were dishonorable, while it gave Russia the benefit of the doubt.

Pierce stole the show by pin-pointing a spectator wearing a red sweater.

The embarrassed member promptly removed his sweater.

Sopron Students Talk About Hungary Death

In recent weeks Canadian University students have been shocked to hear of the impending executions of Hungarian students.

The students, aged about 18, can be legally executed under Hungarian law for crimes they are said to have committed during the 1956 revolt in Hungary.

Petitions are being signed at many universities, including the University of Toronto. These petitions will be sent to Prime Minister Diefenbaker and External Affairs Minister Green.

They will be asked to forward the petitions through diplomatic channels to Premier Khrushchev.

Recently two members of the Sopron Faculty of Forestry at the University of British Columbia were interviewed about the executions and conditions in Hungary.

The Sopron faculty was transferred almost intact from Hungary after the revolution. Kamille Apt, President of the Sopron students' association, said the students were accused of trying to overthrow the (Continued on Page 3)

JORDAN SULLIVAN, reads an issue of the St. Mike's newspaper. The Mike, which announces his resignation as SMC student president. (Varsity staff photo by Carson)

CURRENT EVENTS

TODAY

- 1:00 p.m. — A GENERAL MEETING
Of the Engineering Physics Club will be held in room T-102. The speaker will be D. C. Wallis (Senior Missile Engineer, Avro).
- 3:00 p.m. — THE UNIVERSITY COLLEGE PLAYERS' GUILD
Lecture Series continues with Leon Major, director of "The Hamlet of Stepan Green", lecturing on modern playwright in Howard Ferguson Hall. Admission is free. A discussion will follow.
- 7:45 p.m. — A PSYCHOLOGY CLUB MEETING
Will be held in the Music Room, Wymilwood, Victoria College.
- 8:00 p.m. — DR. MASUMI TOYOTOME
Will speak on "Christianity and Japanese Culture" in the Women's Union 89 St. George St. Everybody welcome.
- 8:30 p.m. — THE UKRAINIAN STUDENTS' CLUB
Is holding its annual Fall Dance at the U.N.F. Hall, 297 College Street.

SUNDAY

- 3:11 p.m. — THE GRADUATE LOUNGE, 44 HOSKIN AVE.
Will be open from 3 to 11 p.m. with games and refreshments. All welcome.
- 7:30 p.m. — THE HUMANIST GUILD
Will discuss "Morality" in the Hart House Debates Anteroom. Papers will be given by Don Roebuck, Beverly Cole, and Graham Scott.
- 8:00 p.m. — U.K. LABOUR PARTY MEMBER
Trades Unionist, and author, Clive Jenkins, will talk on "The Future of Socialism in Britain" under the sponsorship of the campus Socialist Forum in co-operation with the Toronto Labour Forum at the Steelworkers' Hall, 33 Cecil Street.
- 8:00 p.m. — THERE WILL BE A T.V. KAFFEE KLATSCH
From 8 p.m. to 11 p.m. at the Canterbury Centre, 99 George Street.
- 8:00 p.m. — THERE WILL BE A DISCUSSION GROUP
Meeting of the United Nations Club at 154 Leacock Road. For directions, telephone Marilyn Cook at HU. 3-2860.
- 8:45 p.m. — THE S.C.M. WILL HOLD A FIRESIDE
At the Coach House, 110 St. George Street, at which the Rev. Alan McLachlin will talk and lead a discussion on "Contemporary Art".

MONDAY

- 4:00 p.m. — DR. J. P. BLEWETT
Of Brookhaven National Laboratory will lecture on "The 30-Billion Volt Proton-Synchrotron at Brookhaven" in Rm 135, McLaughlin Laboratory.
- 7:45 p.m. — THERE WILL BE A PSYCHOLOGY CLUB
Meeting in the Music Room of Wymilwood, Victoria College.

TUESDAY

- 1:10 p.m. — THERE WILL BE A NOON HOUR DISCUSSION
On "The Irrelevance of Christianity" at the Canterbury Centre, 99 St. George Street.
- 1:20 p.m. — THERE IS A VIC NOON HOUR CONCERT
At the Music Room in Wymilwood. Marilyn and Dave Rosevear will perform a piano duet.

Special Attention — 25% Discount ON ALL JEWELLERY PURCHASES

Including: Watches, Diamonds, Silverware, Lighters, Wallets, Pens, and Pencils, Radio, Clock, Costume Jewellery etc. etc. You must have your A.T.I. card when making a purchase.

SHEFFIELD JEWELLERS

DIAMOND MERCHANTS

223 YONGE ST. (5 doors above Dundas) TEL. EM. 6-0977

University Students WANTED

FOR

PART TIME SURVEY WORK

EXCELLENT OPPORTUNITY.

Apply in writing, giving name, address and phone number to

BOX No. 2190, THE GLOBE and MAIL
TORONTO 1.

sac at a glance . . .

At Wednesday's meeting, after being subtly nagged by Chairman Claude Brodeur for beginning the session 10 minutes late, the Students' Administrative Council:

—heard a letter from President Bissell thanking the SAC for its co-operation during the fraternity discrimination issue.

—mentally calculated what they would wear at the next meeting when the Torontonensis photo will be taken.

—got an invitation for two members to go to a dance at Laval University as long as they paid their own way.

—were told the signatures gathered on the Hungarian petitions are being forwarded through proper channels.

—sent Varsity News Editor Ed Roberts to talk to the premiers of the Maritime provinces about the proposed National Student Assembly, as long as he doesn't spend more than $50.

—turned an upstairs office in the SAC building over to Varsity CUP Editor Alan Walker on condition that he "keep it tidy."

—mused over the fact that a high school band will play at tomorrow's east-west football game, while the U of T band will be confined to the stands.

—heard a request that the SAC officially recognize the U of T Sports Car Club, and decided to turn the problem over to the Caput.

—learned the President's party for the SAC will be Nov. 23.

—voted $6.50 for flowers to be sent to SAC General Secretary - Treasurer E. A. Mac Donald who is ill.

—learned it cost $750 to have a Miss Varsity.

—decided Homecoming Show cost $950.

—voted $150 to the show's producer Jim Vasoff.

—heard Blue and White Chairman Dave Tavender admit he forgot where the Blue and White party was held.

—gave two Torontonensis pages to the University Settlement House.

—okayed six telephone shoulder rests for the tired Varsity reporters.

—agreed to tap the Torontonensis phone for The Varsity.

—ratified the appointment of Gene Glisky as Varsity Assistant Sports Editor, and that of Fred Host as Senior Staff Reporter.

—thanked SAC President Walter McLean for helping to drive the bus to North Carolina.

—chuckled when McLean suggested Trinity's Dean A. J. Earp was going along for "moral support".

—heard an angry letter from a University of Western bandsman who got his glasses scratched in a fight with U of T students.

—moved with due solemnity that an investigating committee be formed, headed by Peter Dembski because of his experience with such committees.

—decided to table the matter for one year.

—roared with laughter when Dembski tongue - slipped his way through "the topic to be disgusted will be . . ."

—left.

From the Loyola News:
"Bobby-soxers are radioactive, that's why so many teen-age girls have blue genes."

Sports • Trophies • Games

Buy Xmas Gifts Now
Before you Buy give WILSON'S a try
WHOLESALE PRICES TO EVERYONE

THE HAROLD A. WILSON
CO. OF TORONTO LTD.
328 DUPONT STREET

jazz!

HOUSE OF HAMBOURG
GRENVILLE at YONGE

Fri: 11 p.m. Phil Nimmons Big Band

Sat: 11:00 p.m. — 3:30 a.m.

Sunday: 9:00 p.m. — 12:00 a.m.

Campus Representative

For long established Cosmelle Company, Modelling experience helpful but not a requirement. Preference given to those in residence.

Call RU: 1-5723

There's Something Special about du MAURIER

The Exclusive "Millecel" Filter Tip, the most efficient filter yet developed, lets you draw free and easy, for full smoking satisfaction. du MAURIER combines the finest Virginia tobaccos to give you perfect mildness and smoothness. Once you smoke du MAURIER you'll make the distinctive red and silver package your favorite — always.

du MAURIER

A Really Milder High Grade Virginia Cigarette
with the EXCLUSIVE "Millecel" FILTER TIP

Canadian General Electric Company Limited

BUSINESS TRAINING COURSE

Graduating students in Commerce and Finance, Business Administration, Economics, Mathematics and Liberal Arts are invited to meet with Company representatives to discuss career opportunities on the C.G.E. Business Training Course leading to key positions in the finance and other administrative functions of the Company.

Date — Tuesday, November 17

Place — University Placement Service,
5 Willcocks Street

Or, contact Manager - Auditing and Training,
Canadian General Electric Company
Limited, 214 King Street West,
Toronto, Ontario.

U of T Students Leave For North Carolina U

Delegates to the first North Carolina weekend exchange left the University of Toronto by bus yesterday.

The 18 delegates were chosen by the Students Administrative Council. They hope to discuss many problems of North American university life with their hosts at North Carolina State University, including the segregation question.

Participants are: John Andrews (III SPS); Peter Brawley (IV Meds); Donald Cameron

(II Law); John Copeland (IV Forestry); Charles Dunbar (II Trinity); Derek Hayes (II Law); George Hume (IV Architecture); Ed Roberts (II Vic) John Wood (II Vic); Joyce Anderson (III Nursing); Gillian Burton (II UC); Jane Davison (IV UC); Jim de Carlo (IV SMC); Shiela Geoghegan (IV SMC); Carol Jones (III SMC); Barb Leamen (IV UC); Virginia Lomax (III Vic); Dallas Rennie (IV Trinity); Ann Williams (II Vic).

Hungary Petition Continued from Page One

Communist regime in Hungary. He said reports from the Political Prisoners' Association in the United States indicated about 150 students are being held prisoner by the Communists.

He said information received from the International Justice Commission put the total executions between June 15 and Sept. 1 at 31. Other students which are in prisons "may be sentenced to death, they may be sentenced to 10, 15 years in prison," Mr. Apt said.

"The only reason why they will be sentenced to any punishment," he continued, "would be the same: turning against the Hungarian Communist regime, which is, as far as everybody knows, everything not good for the people."

He said some of the students may have done nothing more than say something out of turn about the revolution, or merely hold posters concerning the revolt.

Mr. Apt said "many of the students have not yet been tried."

"In Hungary it's a custom lately, since 1945, that people who have been arrested just

Entries in the National Federation of Canadian University Students photo contest must be in the Students' Administrative Council office by Nov. 30, contest officials announced last night.

Pictures may be entered in two categories. The black and white section is open to 8" X 10" prints, and the color section will receive 35 millimeter color slides.

First prize in each category is $100.

The contest is open to anyone enrolled at a NfCUS member university, officials said.

Entry blanks and complete rules are available at the SAC office.

stay in prisons for a number of months or years," he said.

A second student, who refused to give his name, said the situation in Hungary hasn't changed since the revolution.

"The principle is the same," he said, "secret policing."

Mr. Apt said the petitions are being sent to Khrushchev in Moscow because the Hungarian government of Janos Kadar is like a puppet theatre with "all the strings going towards Moscow."

Asked why he thought petitions from Canadian students

(Continued on Page 10)

UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICE

SALK POLIO VACCINE

WOMEN ONLY

Salk polio vaccine will be available for WOMEN students at the Health Service

110 ST. GEORGE STREET

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 17th — from 12:00 noon to 2:00 p.m.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 18th — from 2:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m.

UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICE

SALK POLIO VACCINE

MEN ONLY

Any male student who received his first two Salk polio vaccine injections at least seven months ago may come to the Health Service for a third injection at the following times:—

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 19th — 9:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 24th — 9:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m.

Any male student who has not yet had Salk polio vaccine injections but would like to begin a series will be given an opportunity to do so in January.

● Panhellenic Dance ●

University of Toronto

Friday, November 13th, 1959

ROYAL YORK HOTEL

Dancing 9 - 12

$3.00 per couple

East-West Weekend

THE

BLUE AND WHITE

SOCIETY

Has arranged the following dances for your enjoyment

1. Pep Rally 50c each

TONIGHT at 9.00 p.m. in the Drill Hall
119 St. George Street

2. Tea Dance 25c each

AFTER THE GAME ON SATURDAY
in the Drill Hall — 119 St. George St.

3. Football Dance $2.50 per couple

SATURDAY at 9.00 p.m. at Hart House
(Tickets at the S.A.C. Office, Limited number for sale)

● FIVE ORCHESTRAS ●

INCLUDING MART KENNEY

The S.A.C. Office will be open from 9.00 p.m. to 10 p.m. on Saturday for the sale of tickets to visiting students.

Skog
says...

"We pay a price
for all our free time."

Today we face a situation that would have been unbelievable a few years ago. We have too much free time. Social scientists tell us that our shorter working week gives us so much leisure time that we just don't know what to do with it all. But our free time is not so free — it has cost us the ability to relax completely. That's why we indulge in more and more expensive hobbies. We're desperately trying to get rid of all that time as painlessly as possible.

But I think hobbies like boating or photography are genuinely valuable. After all, these same social scientists also claim that the more outside interests a man has, the more "adjusted" a personality he will be. And there comes a day when a man needs those hobbies — the day he retires.

Yes, it's good to be useful and busy during your retirement. You can make those years the best of your life, but it takes money. NALAC's Lifetime Income Plan can help you eliminate all financial cares because it provides you with a regular cheque every month of your life, from the retirement day you specify. Or, if something should happen to you, your family receives a regular monthly income. See your NALAC representative tomorrow.

Confidentially,

H. P. Skoglund
H. P. SKOGLUND,
President

...insure confident living
NORTH AMERICAN
Life and Casualty Company

LIFE • SICKNESS ACCIDENT • GROUP

CHARLES E. REA — Toronto Manager
99 Avenue Road Phone WA. 5-5994

THE CRUCIBLE

by ARTHUR MILLER
directed by WILLIAM DAVIS

This Week 8.30 — Wed., Nov. 11
Sat., Nov. 14

THE U.C. - ST. MICHAEL'S
THEATRE GUILD
HART HOUSE
TICKETS: UC & ST. MIKES
ADMISSION: 1.50 - STUDENTS: $1.00

uc lecture

From Poe to Franz Kafka

Miss L. Hoffrichter of the University College German Department yesterday spoke of a struggle between fantasy and reality for the soul of man as reflected in the works of two 19th-century writers.

She was giving the second in a series of public lectures sponsored by University College. Her subject was called "From Poe to Kafka".

As the 19th century progressed the gap between the world of fantasy and that of reality became an abyss, she said.

Writers such as Poe and Kafka, who reacted against the material world, she continued, created a world of their own, and thereby became victims of this imaginary order.

Edgar Allen Poe tried to give his writing a unity which would somehow compensate for the lack of order which surrounded him. But, Miss Hoffrichter said, he succeeded only in subordinating realities more completely to a private inner world.

Franz Kafka too, the audience was told, was caught up in the realm of fantasy, and like Poe, preferred his dreams to reality. He once said that the misfortune of Don Quixote was not his fantasies, but Sancho Panza.

His themes convey an utter helplessness from which there is no exit, Miss Hoffrichter said, as opposed to the ever-present fear in Poe's literature. Like Poe, Kafka dreamt of the destruction of this world which was good only at the point of inception.

As the latter grew older, he too became fearful, speaking of ghosts who twisted his words into spears and turned them back on him, the author, she said.

Miss Hoffrichter concluded by mentioning the legion of philosophical, psychological, and sociological implications which could be drawn from the type of literature these men produced. "But," said she, "literature, like life, is so wide, and so various; it can afford to include everything."

Flying Club Plans Tour Airborne Over Niagara

University of Toronto students will tour Niagara Falls before breakfast this Sunday by air.

Members of the UC of T Flying Club have arranged to take off from the Island Airport and circle Niagara Falls, at a cost of about $7.00 each. Breakfast will be waiting in St. Catharines.

Wednesday evening, Dr. Baker, human engineering psychologist, delivered a talk to the club which featured the simplification of aviation instruments and the reduction of pilot errors in reading and judging their instruments.

"In reducing errors," he said, "the training of the operator is more important than increasing the accuracy of instruments. An improvement in design through psychological engineering decreases the effort necessary to read instruments."

The next meeting will be in Hart House, and only an interest in flying is necessary for participation in club meetings and activities. Girls are especially welcomed.

CLASSIFIED ADS.

SELF-CONTAINED APARTMENT
In Professor's home close to University, suitable for two women. WA. 2-9284.

EXPERT THESIS TYPIST
Fast personalized service. (Electric machine). Irene Kenyon, 146 Bernard Avenue. WA. 3-4011.

RUSSIAN LESSONS
Given by a Russian born and Russian educated person. Phone LE. 3-1972 after 6 p.m.

VIC COLLEGE CHAPEL
Nov. 15: 7. The Scriptures, Professor Robert Dobbie.

LOST !
On Friday Nov. 6th either U.C. or Main Library, pair glasses brown frames. Finder please phone HI. 7-0236.

Typing
Theses, Essays, Notes, Charts, French, German, Latin, English
Prices Upon Request
Apt. 12
21 AVENUE RD. — WA. 2-7624
MRS. M. D. STOTT, B.A.

TYPEWRITERS
$1.00 A WEEK BUYS . . .
$1.50 A WEEK RENTS
Get a free typing course and a liberal trade-in allowance for your old typewriter when you buy a new modern machine from us.
Phone HO. 1-1843 Today

Careers with Shell for 1960 Grads

Interviews November 19 and 20

Graduating this term? Then like thousands of fellow graduates across Canada, you're on the threshold of a budding career. Before you decide on that all-important first position, have a talk with Shell. In the departments listed, the following types of grads are required:

TREASURY—Graduates in commerce, finance and business administration.

MARKETING (Sales)—Arts, Commerce and Law graduates if bi-lingual.

For interviews, see "Opportunity" page.

For a complimentary copy of the booklet, contact your Placement Office.

SHELL OIL COMPANY OF CANADA, LIMITED

Dr. Toyotome Speaks

comment

Christianity And The Soft Sell

by David Lewis Stein

How should the message of Jesus Christ be presented to people today in order that it will have meaning for them? How can a missionary, one firmly committed to this message as a way of life, step onto a campus such as this, and hope to have an impact on the students that he meets?

Perhaps the most logical answer is to approach them intellectually, to "hit" them with the most searching questions they can ask and then reply to your own questions in a dazzling fashion that challenges your audience and leaves them breathless in your wake.

Or one might take the philosophical approach and come to religion through examining the contemporary aspects of man's dilemma and giving a Christian answer to them. Or one might begin with literature and work around to the religious problem through the literary beauty of the scripture.

Dr. Matsumi Toyotome, the chief missionary of the VCF sponsored mission that has been on this campus since Monday, has taken a different approach.

After long consideration Dr. Toyotome decided to treat students as "human beings with human problems". In his long experience as a professor and student pastor, he had found some students were losing much of the benefit of their academic work through serious emotional problems that kept them from applying themselves fully to their studies.

He felt that Christianity could solve many of these problems and allow students to get the full benefit of their courses.

He did not intend to confront them with a full set of philosophical and theological formulae. He described his approach as "poetic" and explained it by saying that he was a Japanese and it was a characteristic of the Japanese to attempt to express the most complex things in the simplest way possible. He illustrated this attitude with reference to Japanese art which attempts to express the essence of something in a few carefully chosen lines.

As it works out in practice, one might call Dr. Toyotome's approach "the soft sell". A short, stocky Japanese with sharp eyes and an instant, infectious smile, Dr. Toyotome speaks in a deep voice without any trace of accent. Whether he is addressing a large audience in Convocation Hall or sitting across a table from a single reporter, he conveys a deep conviction and transparent sincerity.

If Dr. Toyotome has a "message" it is simply Christianity. He wants to bring "Jesus Christ to students — Jesus Christ has a living message for modern students".

Jesus Christ is not, Dr. Toyotome the founder of a particular religion. When asked at a question session about the "insincerity" apparent in some churches, Dr. Toyotome admitted that it did exist, but went on to say that he felt Jesus Christ still existed in the church. Christ is, for him, a living presence.

Without Christ, he believes, man can never attain the ideal of love that so many strive to achieve. Love of man is not sufficient.

If one loves man without Christ, it is love "because of". We love one person or one group of people "because of what we think they should be or because of what we expect them to become." This applies particularly in the field of race relations where so much of our feeling is based upon the potential we believe that a different race may possess for us.

Love based upon the love of Christ is what Dr. Toyotome calls "love in spite of". In this case one loves a man simply for what he is, and never for what one believes that he might become.

Such a love is only possible when one first acknowledges the love of Christ. When one accepts the idea that God first loved man in spite of what he is. And who so loved man, when man was underserving of his love, that he gave Jesus Christ to man.

When one has acknowledged and experienced such love, then one can give of himself freely. Only then can one love "in spite of".

We asked Dr. Toyotome how he would consider Gandhi whose policy of "Satyagraha" was founded upon a concept of love that seemed remarkably close to the Christian ideal.

Dr. Toyotome confessed to a great pride in Gandhi that is shared by all Asians who feel that the great Indian leader accomplished something of world importance. But as great as Gandhi was, Dr. Toyotome does not feel he achieved the ultimate in love that man is capable of.

Such love, love "in spite of" is only possible to one who has accepted Christ and committed himself to His teachings. The love of man is not sufficient, and even though Gandhi's love had a religious basis, it could not attain the ultimate ideal.

Dr. Toyotome did not ignore the problem of social reform which several members of the campus C.C.F. club had put to him. They felt that it was more important. They felt that social reform that first raised the living standard and then worried about the soul should be an important part of the Church's program.

He cited a world-famous Japanese Christian who had, as soon as he had finished his theological training, begun an intense program of social reform. He had taken the poor into his home and helped to organize many charitable organizations to help them.

This man was a guiding light in the founding of the Socialist Party in Japan and is today one of the advisers of the party. And now, when he is in his seventies, this man is concentrating on "the saving of souls".

Dr. Toyotome told the story to illustrate what he believes should be the Christian's approach to social reform. And although it seems perhaps a little evasive, his answer is that the approach must vary to suit the situation.

Although a Christian's first concern is with the soul, he recognizes the needs of the body and he works to improve social conditions when he encounters them. It would seem that a Christian's approach must be flexible enough to meet the demands of the situation in which he finds himself.

How does a man become a "missioner"?

As a preamble to yesterday's interview, we asked Dr. Toyotome if strain of the mission's program was beginning to wear him down. He replied simply that such work was his life. He loves students and feels happy when he is among them.

Dr. Toyotome was born in Be-pu Japan and was raised in the Christian faith. He came to the United States at the age of ten and settled in California.

He did his undergraduate and graduate work in Chemistry and during the years he was working on his MA he "left religion". He did not become an Atheist, but simply wandered about without any religion at all.

When the United States went to war with Japan, Masumi Toyotome began to feel a sense of personal inadequacy. The two nations for whom he felt the greatest attachment were locked in a death struggle and he was "off in a corner playing with test tubes".

He found the answer to his dilemma in the Christian religion.

Dr. Toyotome did not commit himself to an uncompromisingly pacifistic point of view. He told a story of belonging to pacifist movement on the campus of UCLA when he was an undergraduate. The sign over the movement's headquarters read "The Yanks Are Not Coming". The day after the Nazis invaded Russia he came to school to find that the sign had been altered to read "The Yanks Are Not Coming—Too Late".

He resolved then never to get involved in pacifist movements that became war movements when one's friends became embroiled in the war, and to revise his own views to more realistic approach.

He said he believes that all men share the responsibility for bringing on a war. He does not want to feel that he too is responsible for creating a holocaust that will consume his two sons.

War to Dr. Toyotome is a horrible thing. He feels it is caused, at least in part, by something that is inherent in human beings. It is extremely difficult to understand. There is no easy answer and Dr. Toyotome admitted to intensive soul-searching in an effort to understand the problem of war.

When Dr. Toyotome returned to Japan after the war, to assume a post at the Christian University in Tokyo. He found a tremendous surge of energy around him. The Japanese, strange as it may seem to us, possess a younger culture than the United States and they seemed intent upon expanding it. They were eager for new ideas and new approaches to things.

At the same time there was a loosening of the old standards and moral codes and a vacuum had been created. Many young Japanese were disillusioned and had adopted an attitude of "we might as well cut loose and have a good time".

When Dr. Toyotome met them with the "Christian message" he found that some of them were deeply interested and that some of them were extremely hostile.

Christianity has become identified with the west and more particularly with the United States. Dr. Toyotome believes that Christianity is a universal religion. It has unfortunately been overlaid with many "western encumbrances", but Christianity is not necessarily identified with the "American way of life".

After a five year absence from the United States, Dr. Toyotome found the people extremely complacent. There was a greater emphasis on materialism and the love of material things, and at the same time an "emptiness". Moral standards had dropped and in contrast to the industrious Japanese, the Americans had lost the concept of an honest day's work. They had lost the "joy" that he believes can be found in honest labour.

Dr. Toyotome is committed to the Christian way of life. Although he has no answer to the problem of war, he believes that such an answer must be found.

He is truly a representative of two cultures, the American and Japanese. He has participated in both and is in a position to comment on both.

And when his students in Japan asked him how it came about that the United States, a "Christian" nation had dropped the atomic bomb on them, he "hangs his head in shame".

He has no answer for them.

minority report

For the past four days we have been following the VCF "Mission In The University" around the campus.

We have attended several of their public sessions and arranged for private sessions with Dr. Toyotome and his "associate ministers".

Perhaps now, while the mission is still in progress, it is a good time to publish some of our impressions.

Perhaps the chief thing that struck us in our conversations with missionaries was the problem of communication.

We just weren't talking the same language.

We would begin on mutually acceptable realistic grounds, of social reform, medicine or philosophy.

But then the conversation, since we were, after all dealing with men who had been sent here for a clearly defined purpose, would lead to discussions of Christianity.

And when we talked to the missionary of Christ, of Faith, of Christian Love and the Christian Way of Life, it became apparent that we were not talking about the same thing.

The men we spoke to all mentioned a point in their lives when they had "accepted Christ" and when they talked of Him, it was of someone to whom they felt a close personal attachment.

We didn't feel that attachment. We did not have that strength of faith.

And as our discussions evolved faith came to play a more and more important part in the answers the missionaries gave to our questions.

And since that faith was incomprehensible to us, we found that the answers the missionaries gave were unsatisfactory.

At the same time, perhaps paradoxically, we came away, deeply impressed by these men.

Their intellectual credentials were unquestionable and the strength and sincerity of their faith made discussion with them a moving experience.

And too, we came away impressed by the Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship. We found that they had planned their mission with consummate care and had avoided any temptation to "preach" at us. They claimed before their mission started that they were not in the business of "saving souls" and the conduct of the mission bore them out.

It was only that we could not accept the message they brought to us.

It was beautiful, it was moving, it was delivered by men for whom we developed an intense admiration, but it had no meaning for us.

For they were concerned with God and we are concerned with man.

We still believe that "man" is the chief concern of men, and that the problem is not answered by any religion.

If a label must be applied then perhaps "Humanism" best fits.

And at the same time we must admit we have no answer that we would substitute for the ones the missionaries gave us.

We are saying only that the Christian message as it was brought to us this week, assumed a degree of "faith" which we are not capable of.

And it has left us with the problem of attempting, in humility and not arrogance, to find a solution to the problems that confront us. And of finding the solution not without God but without "faith".

We are indebted to the VCF and their mission.

Violinist Hyman Goodman, pictured at right, will be the soloist in the Sunday Evening Concert on November 15 at Hart House.

Mr. Goodman has been concert-master of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra for the past eleven years and a major figure in Toronto's musical life for the past thirty. At this concert, Mr. Goodman will play his fine, recently acquired Gaudagnini violin made in Milan in 1757.

For this concert, Mr. Goodman has chosen Tartini's Sonata in G minor, the Adagio and Fugue from Bach's Unaccompanied Violin Sonata No. 2, the Concerto in One Movement by Glazounov, Granados-Kreisler's Spanish Dance and other selections. Leo Barkin will accompany Mr. Goodman in all but the Bach Sonata.

The concert will take place in the Great Hall, and will commence at 9.00 p.m. Tickets are available free of charge at the Hall Porter's desk, Hart House. Women, if escorted, are welcome.

surefire crucible

HH Audience Bewitched

A fascinating study in "good" and "evil" is currently being presented at Hart House Theatre under the joint sponsorship of St. Michael's and University Colleges. The Crucible, Arthur Miller's play about witchcraft in 17th century Salem, deals with that timeless quandary—what is good? In the course of the play, we meet many conceptions of "goodness": there is the essentially hypocritical "goodness" of the townspeople; there is Elisabeth Proctor's unilateral but honest concept of morality; John Proctor is a "good" man but he has contravened the system of morality that both he and the audience claim to adhere to; finally, we are presented with Abby's complete self interest which recognizes no good but her own satisfaction. Miller suggests an answer but does not give it to us outright. It is an intriguing play in every sense of the word.

Director Bill Davis has given us a generally well-paced production, with good work by the actors in the principle roles. Kenneth Pugh gave a strong performance as John Proctor; he showed a real understanding of the subtleties of Proctor's character and through a disciplined technique, was able to convey these to the audience. He was outstanding in the jail scene, reaching the heights of tragedy.

James Mainprize, in the part of Rev. Samuel Parris, perhaps made him too much of a nasty little boy rather than an advance case of paranoia, but his interpretation was generally consistent and effective, making this a relatively minor quibble. A slight difficulty with diction at the beginning of the play cleared up in a few minutes. Sylvia Pegis showed us Elisabeth Proctor's dignity but also brought out Elisabeth's limited understanding, particularly in the scene with John when he is finally driven to cry out: "Your charity would freeze beer". She was also quite effective in jail scene, when Elisabeth shows a deeper, though far more complete understanding of the real issue involved. Abigail Williams, the "damned bitch" who started all the trouble, is played by Ann Crouch. Miss Crouch gave a thoroughly good performance but her emphasis seemed to be more on the romantic girl, instead of an amoral young woman overwhelmed by passion. However, she has a good voice, speaks very well and moves well on stage. These are by any standards no mean accomplishments.

Unfortunately, David Humphreys' youthful appearance interfered with what was a sensitive approach and a real understanding of the part of Rev. John Hale, the minister who is imported to purge Salem of its witches, but who comes to recognize the fraudulence of both the Salem proceedings and the timocratic government of Massachusetts. He has a fine voice which he used to good effect. Nancy Keeling, in the part of Mary Warren, a weak, lonely girl who is frightened by Abby into calling John Proctor a wizard, gave a good performance throughout, but was really excellent in the trial scene. Patrick Arnoldi was very impressive as Deputy Judge Danforth, in his visual impact as well as his performance. There was, however, a real lack of variety in his interpretation which perhaps would not take a great deal to correct.

A strong performance was given by Kathleen Kelly as Rebecca Nurse. It's really surprising to see one so youthful give such a convincing portrayal of sanctified old age. David Gershenovitz gave a sympathetic performance as Gilles Corey, a meddling but somehow noble old man. Philma Patterson and Flora Cameron as Tituba and Sarah Good, respectively, brought zest and colour to their parts and the scene between them and their tipsy jailer is well handled.

The total effect of the play was excellent. It moved at a steadily accelerating pace which reached its pitch in the gripping trial scene during which the audience was really caught up in the tensions of the plot. There were only rare traces of the lack of depth that characterizes most college shows.

Dorothy Mike

Di Bello

In nineteen hundred and fifty, based on dedication and enthusiasm, a seventeen-year-old pianist set out to "create a musical body that would be an outlet for the most gifted serious musicians, as well as for the experienced amateur, and music as a means of recreation".

Victor di Bello, the founder and conductor of the Arte Orchestra, nurtured his orchestra from its emergence, seven years later, the national ensemble of some excellence. The debut, just as tonight's seasonal debut, set a dark-panelled period atmosphere of the Library.

A classical, promising program selected for good opening, and expectations were greatly appointed.

Following Handel's Faramond concerto, Marcello's Concerto Grosso, Op. 1, No. 4, which was unable to hear—the Haydn Horn Concerto, No. 10, provided the climatic portion of the program. Set in a pastoral mood, its Allegro, Adagio, which appeared to be an Allegretto—was richly painted by the ensemble. Unusually Eugene Rittich, the soloist, did not appear to control of his material, though, doubtless as

WOULD YOU PAY A PENNY?

Three graduate students are available for sale—providing the poems are sold.

"Penny Poems" resulted in a broadsheet contains not more than a few American writers. Bookstores are selling today's poems, five days a week.

Started in New Haven, the broadsheet is a statement that it is going national. It demands a high standard of work from everyone can afford.

Arrangements to distribute the broadsheet by Harald Bohne, Manager of the University of Toronto, will be reviewed.

In the meantime, the broadsheet is being published — "Lamplight Poems" is a student-operated Hawkhead. The poems are by campus writers. The broadsheet is on a hook on the magazine.

THE VARSITY

Member Canadian University Press
Editorial and News Office
Basement, SAC Building — WA 3-8742, WA. 3-8113
Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221

TODAY'S ISSUE: Stan Barron, Fred Host and his car, Jorden Sullivan and resignation blues, Paul Foley another editor, Mike Makarchuk, Sheldon Greenburg and his art, Bonnie Kennedy, Rota Lister, Moshie Reiter, Dorothy Miklos, Philip Greet Nicholas, Dawn Egan and an ultimatum by phone, Meryanne Kelso, Wayne Tosterman, and memories, Hungarians, one cannon, many SACs, and goodnight Ed, wherever you are.

Photographers on Duty: Bob Carson, George Harpur.

Bette Davis Shakes Sandburg's World

The world of Carl Sandburg is vital, bitter-sweet, lusty, laughable, and above all, lovable world with the strength of the sea, and the power and pathos of the human heart. The World of Carl Sandburg at the Royal Alexandra is a rather poor microcosm.

The poet, in his own words, has presented us with "poems, sayings and yarns travelling on grief and laughter, running sometimes as a fugitive air in the classic manner, breaking into jig time and tap dancing nohow classical, with interludes of midnight cool blue". There are a few rare moments when the production reaches this level, an admittedly high mark to shoot at. But most of the time it misses the target completely.

Two big-name stars, Bette Davis and Gary Merrill, sit on opposite sides of an empty throne (where sits, fortunately, the spirit of Sandburg), and interpret the works of the great poet of the people. They are both assisted and hindered in the person of Clark Allen, an excellent folk singer, who vocalizes some of Sandburg's better songs.

The magnificent entrance of Bette Davis is absolutely ruined by the school-girlish, whiny qualities of her first recitation. It is incomprehensible how she could have turned the poignant, musical effect of the poem into something resembling the boil-and-bubble incantations in Macbeth. However, later in the performance she is to do a complete reversal, and some of her character sketches are unforgettable. With her dazzling gowns and well-preserved features, Bette Davis appears as an almost-young woman with an old voice. In simply reading the poetry, her high pitch and interpretation are not at all suitable. But when she approaches poems of drama or characterization, her performance is outstanding.

Clark Allen, when he is singing, is able to hold his own on the stage. His rendition of a song about war drew the greatest applause of any of the performers. But his totally inadequate and parrot-like introductions make him appear at times like a little boy who should get himself lost.

In spite of the aura surrounding Bette Davis, most of the credit for the highlights of the evening must go to her husband, Gary Merrill. His true insight into Sandburg's works, aided by a rich, strong, powerful voice, provide us with a consistently outstanding performance which reaches all the human depths of the author. Together with his vital interpretation and the physical resemblance, Gary Merrill becomes a black-haired Sandburg talking, laughing and loving with the audience.

The production begins with birth, and progresses to youth, manhood and death. And this is exactly how it is presented to the audience—struggling at first, gaining in strength until a final maturity towards the end of the performance. Norman Corwin, who adapted and directed the presentation, very skillfully links each selection together. But something is obviously lacking in the overall unity, not so much in what is presented, but in what has been left out. All of Sandburg's magnificent portraits of the sea, the prairies, the cities, and especially of the people who live in these cities, have been left out.

Carl Sandburg is a poet of the people, a modern, unsophisticated poet who doesn't have to be clever. He is able to create poetry out of the language of the common people, and thus he is able to communicate to the majority. With direct sweeping pictures, Sandburg can paint an entire country, an entire people—in his own words, "the breathing of the earth and music of the sea". He takes us away from the romance of phantasy and shows us the healthy realism of the world we live in, the romance of the real world. His language is powerful, durable, universal, with definite qualities of jazz. It sings and swings with the beat of the human heart.

For a production of this kind, it is wise to choose a poet with a universal appeal, especially when the poet can be easily understood without losing the power and beauty of his poetry.

Philip Nicholas.

BETTE DAVIS AND GARY MERRILL are shown at left in a scene from "The World of Carl Sandburg", which opened last night at the Royal Alex. This dramatization of the common man's poet's works is completely sold out for all of its Toronto performances.

Turns To Casa Loma

ly on his old musical provide stur-pursuing of the Pro ough until profes-p's public set in the sa. Loma romised a y not dis-ture and we were b. 1 in D first part. Allegro—harmingly ately, Mr. be in full is capable of excellent performance with more adequate rehearsal.

Following a refreshment-intersected intermission, Mozart's ever-popular Divertimento K 138 set a joyous opening mood. A lively, crisp Allegro was followed by a serene and melodious Andante, and a delightfully fresh, mainly pizzicato Rondo-presto, giving the cello and contrabass an especially good opportunity to display their considerable mastery and sensitive bowing.

Handel's Concerto Grosso Op. 6, No 11, the bulkiest work of the evening, as well as the final one, climaxed a quite successful presentation. The violins in particular delighted with their rich and resonant rendition of the Andante Larghetto e staccato, giving the impression that they were on thoroughly familiar ground. Following the Allegro in a minor mood, a Largo e staccato somewhat similar to the first movement, we had an opportunity to enjoy the concert master, Anthony Ginter's, solo passage against a mellow orchestral backdrop. Lively and freely moving were the closing Allegro's chief characteristics.

Mr. di Bello can be congratulated on his considerable achievement, and the three further Pro Arte concerts in January, February and March, in each case featuring different soloists, should be worth attending.

Rota Lister.

A POEM?

le reasoned that enough students would make an investment displayed beside the cash register in their local book-are printed on odd-sized sheets of paper and each fifty lines of poetry, penned by some young unknown scribe to the series and receive one hundred copies of the special dispenser is even provided to display them.

tal venture, "Penny Poems" has received so much attention students who began the series feel that their format deb-but that it permits wholesale distribution at a price

Penny Poems" on this campus are currently being made U of T Press Book Department. When the series is available numbers.

is the exclusive Canadian agent for another poetic pub-ese are long narrow broadsides printed locally by the The current number contains three poems, two of which Penny Poems" sell for ten cents each and can be found hanging in the Bookstore.

Ruta Ginsberg

on music criticism

6. Illustrating a Paradox

It is one of the saddest paradoxes of music history that Richard Wagner, one of the great symphonists of the Romantic era, wrote only one symphony. This is a work that appeared in his nineteenth year (1832), and was given its premiere by an amateur orchestra.

One could call it an amateur symphony, too. Most early works by any composer, I suppose, are just that. The work shows remarkable, almost plagiaristic, influence from Beethoven, Weber, and Schubert. But for most composers of the nineteenth century Beethoven was the haunting genius of their almost every thought, so that in the impressionable mind of an adolescent, the appearance of reminiscences from the Master, whose work we may be sure Wagner studied assiduously, are to be excused and, perhaps, approved. As for Weber, of course, the astounding and far-reaching effect of his opera Der Freischütz (1821) has perhaps yet to be fully appreciated; this was the first really important Romantic work from the generation following Beethoven, and reflects so much the spirit of the time (as found in the writings of Byron, Nodder, Hoffmann, and a host of others).

Consequently Wagner couldn't have had better models. His attitude to symphonic form, as expressed in this only child, is quite close to that of Schubert, generally speaking. In the third movement, as a matter of fact, we meet the odd phrase that would be at home in Schubert's Great C Major Symphony (a far finer work than some critics will allow). Wagner of course was always the painstaking craftsman, and forged his way slowly; this symphony tells us a good deal about where he took his start, and by setting it beside the first few operas, largely unsuccessful (Die Feen, Das Liebesverbot), we can easily and vividly picture the rapid progress which was the result of his caution.

Perhaps the listener will notice, however, a yet closer affinity in this symphony to the four symphonies of Robert Schumann, all of which were written from nine to eighteen years later. I am not prepared at the moment to say explicitly that Schumann was not influenced by this work of Wagner's, but I should consider it highly probable. After its few initial performances it must have been largely neglected, both because of Wagner's relative obscurity at that time and during the next few years, and because of the far greater "current" popularity of the works of the acknowledged masters noted above plus Mendelssohn and the eighteenth-century classicists. Besides, Wagner gave his copy of the score to Mendelssohn, who lost it. (Only later in his life did Wagner have the score copied from the separate instrumental parts, after he had rewritten the original trombone part that was also missing.)

Therefore it appears safe to conclude that Wagner and Schumann were very close in the way they would handle symphonic form, but with no help from each other produced music that could have come from the pen of one man. This is interesting, for Wagner never wrote anything else that resembles Schumann's work.

As I said above, it is sad that Wagner produced no more symphonies. He got himself so worked up soon afterward over this business about Music-Dramas that he had no time for anything else, except perhaps falling in love with the lovely young wife of poor Hans von Bulow, that most tolerant of conductors.

It is pleasant to reconcile the lack, however, by listening to his expansive Music-Dramas as symphonies, for they bear as close a relationship to that form as they do to opera. The simplicity of purpose, balance of emphasis, wealth of orchestral colour (Some provided by instruments of Wagner's own invention), unified flow of ideas, height of inspiration and execution, top-notch orchestration: these, as well as being the qualities of any good symphony, all combine to make Wagner's Music-Dramas the "completest expression" (Scholes) of the German Romantic movement. Therefore, although we can ascribe only one symphony (as such) to Wagner, we can truthfully claim for him the distinction of being one of the great symphonists of the Romantic era.

comment

in which wkr writes on odds and ends

by Alan Walker

SEX

The Kingster Trio sings what seem to be innocuous folk songs. But the effect these songs have on people is something far more potent.

A recent party we watched a young woman writhing through some sort of spasm to one of these songs.

She kept snapping out of her trance after one track of the LP, and returning the needle. Then she was overcome again.

At the start of the song she set the beat for herself in some way by doing a sort of marching step in which she brought her feet up, far too high. At the same time her shoulders rotated and her fingers snapped.

As the song continued, she stopped snapping her fingers, and put her hands to her head. She mouthed the words of the melody and at the end of most of the bars she moaned softly.

Her hips gyrated and her whole body twisted in what seemed to be pain.

We watched, fascinated, and yet we couldn't help thinking that such motions might be better done in private, or at least semi-private.

She seemed to be going through great heights of sexual pleasure.

At the end of the song, each time it grated through the tinny speakers of the Scabreezer, she uttered a last gasp, sank to the floor and lay still.

The impression the simple song made on her could hardly be seen intellectual. It was more in the nature of a climax.

sadism

We don't mean to imply that he drove over her hat on purpose, but we admit it must have been tempting.

She was standing on the corner last week on a windy day. The hat was large, jaundiced, and overly decorated. It was ridiculous.

The woman was young, fairly good looking, and might even have been intelligent. She looked like a model. You would have thought she would have had more sense, but then probably she had to follow the styles.

She was holding a suitcase in one hand and a cosmetic case in the other, and was waiting for a streetcar. Then it happened.

A gust of wind blew the foolish hat into the street.

Now we're sure the driver of the car swerved, trying to miss it, and we're sure he just misjudged his aim a bit.

Anyway, he drove right over it.

And maybe we only imagined the satisfied gleam in his eye as he drove by, looking back at the woman who was risking her life in the middle of the street trying to recover the hat.

She got it quite easily. The car had obligingly wedged it into the streetcar rails.

records

Last week we told you about a record called "Erotica". Since that time several unusual records have been brought to our attention. Here are some of them:

"The Song of Songs" (Audio Fidelity), is a jazz interpretation of the biblical verses composed by Marty Rubenstein for a voice quartet and a jazz group consisting of sax, bass, flute and drums.

"Bawdy Songs and Backroom Ballads" (also Audio Fidelity) which has a large catalogue of such records, lists cute little numbers such as "Roll Your Leg Over" and "Seven Old Ladies Locked in a Lavatory".

"Let Me Tell You About My Operation", is part of a series of 10 albums describing in song and story the adventures of Rae Bourbon, who underwent a sex transformation in Mexico. Sings this 57-year-old performer. "I've changed my name from R-a-y to R-a-e". It's on the UTC label.

"Hypnotism", a do-it-yourself record if there ever was one, comes complete with "eye-fixation spots" and has an echo-chamber background.

This one doesn't have a name, but it's an instruction record supposed to be used with a "long-range deer call".

"What You Can Learn from the Kinsey Report" (Audio Masterpieces), is a lecture by Dr. Murray Banks and sports a cover picture of a woman looking as if she'd just seen Kinsey's question-and-answer list for the first time.

"Negro Prison Songs" (Traditional), was actually recorded at the Mississippi State Penitentiary.

"Railroad Sounds" (Audio Fidelity), is only one of a large number of discs containing the sounds of steam and diesel locomotives. Such sounds had a sharp and rapid success last year.

"Sounds of the North American Warbler", is exactly what it says (nothing else for almost an hour but North American Warblers), and is pressed by the Federation of Ontario Naturalists.

"Sounds of Camp", which we have not seen, is supposed to contain the shrieks of little children torturing each other in their own clever ways, learned possibly from their Indian pack leader.

riots

Here is another in a series of articles plucked from The Varsity of long-past years. This is taken from the issue of Nov. 8, 1911.

The headline reads A CLASH.

The Sophs and Freshies had another clash Monday. The 1T5 men had just finished their lecture on Trigonometry, when the Sophs endeavored to come in. The Freshies, however, indignantly resented their intrusion and for a time there was a miniature battle, until the sturdy warriors of 15T hacked their way through their foes.

No casualties were reported, although the glass doors no longer keep out the draught.

the forgotten book

Meyer Levin And His People

by David Lewis Stein

Meyer Levin's life and creative work spans the most colorful time in the history of the American Jewish Community. During the end of the last century and up until the first world war, Jews poured into the United States and Canada. They came mostly from Eastern Europe when the unchecked pogroms and viciously anti-semitic government policies had made life exceedingly precarious for them.

They were for the most part poverty-stricken peasants who had little knowledge of the world beyond the ghettos in which they had been compelled to live for generations. One man who came to this country as a child but still remembers the village in Poland where he was born once described the passage across the Atlantic for immigrant Jews as a transition from the middle ages into the twentieth century.

They poured into the lower east side of New York City and into Montreal and Toronto. Some stayed to labor in the sweatshops and some moved on across the country.

Whenever they stopped in any numbers they built around them a ghetto. It was the only way of life they understood. One middle-aged man who grew up during that time once told me of his father's two purposes in life. After the horrors of Europe, Canada was a paradise to him. He was an unskilled laborer and his first purpose was to make enough money to feed and educate his children. His second purpose was to keep his religion. There just wasn't enough money in the world to pay his father to work on a Saturday. The religion of the immigrants was orthodoxy. The innovations of the reform movement which had its origins in Germany, had scarcely touched the Jews of Eastern Europe.

Vestiges of the Toronto ghetto can still be seen in the cramped stores on Kensington and Baldwin streets and in the proud old synagogues on Cecil, McCaul, and Henry streets.

The immigrants stayed pretty well in their self-imposed ghettos. My grandmother never learned to speak English. But their children did not stay in the ghettos. They went to the public schools and Yiddish became a secondary language rather than a mother tongue. They saw a world of whose existence their parents never dreamed.

The result was a conflict which all but ripped the world of the ghettos apart. Not only was there the conflict between the European and American way of life, a conflict which was experienced by all immigrant groups, but there was the religious conflict. The restrictive orthodoxy which held the Jews of Eastern Europe together under the external pressure of persecution was meaningless to a generation which had not yet experienced the violent anti-semitism of Europe.

They saw before them a panorama of wealth and power just beyond their slums. They saw the ghettos as old-fashioned and unnecessary. They came out of the ghetto slums tough and hungry. And like all immigrant groups, before and after them, without roots in the country and without historical pathways open to them, they took the fastest and most vivid routes to their goals.

Better than any other American author, Mr. Levin understood this generation of American Jews. He grew up in Chicago and covered the Leopold and Loeb trial as a young reporter. He was the first American author to write about the revolutionary agricultural settlements in what was then Palestine. He worked on magazines and newspapers during the Thirties and covered the Spanish Civil war as a correspondent. He went on to Palestine in the late Thirties where the Arab riots had turned the agricultural settlements into isolated fortresses. He covered World War II as a correspondent and after the war worked actively for the Zionist cause.

He followed a group of illegal immigrants from Poland to Palestine with a movie camera and the motion picture, "The Illegal" was used to raise funds to keep the immigration going. His next movie, "My Father's House" was actually made during the struggle with made in the state of Israel.

His biography, "In Search," in addition to being a moving portrait of a sensitive artist and his time, contains some of the finest writing about Israel that has yet been done.

From 1947, until the publication of "Compulsion" in 1956, Meyer Levin kept active in Zionist causes and in fighting for just compensation from the producers of the dramatic version of the "Diary of Anne Frank", but he did not produce another novel.

What I believe to be Meyer Levin's greatest novel and the work for which he will be longest remembered, is "The Old Bunch". It was the first realistic novel about the first-generation American Jews. It followed a group of boys and girls in Chicago from the end of adolescence to their early thirties. It detailed the various ways in which the conflict of cultures worked itself out in various individuals and told how all of them, struggled to raise themselves

University College Players' Guild presents Leon Major, the first speaker in its lecture series, to-day at 5.00 p.m. in Howard Ferguson Hall.

A dynamic personality and speaker, his subject for this lecture is Brecht, Williams and other modern playwrights. Admission free; discussion period.

financially. Published in 1937 "The Old Bunch" was a critical success and a best seller.

And yet "The Old Bunch" is out of print. It is bitterly ironic, but the book is seldom read today.

Why?

I believe because there are few people, particularly Jews, today, who can really understand it. Although there is still a large group of first-generation Jews in this country and the United States, they are much smaller in numbers than the generation that preceded them. Mr. Levin's people have for the most part succeeded in their goals. They have achieved the success in the various fields they entered. They have left the ghettos and moved into comfortable suburbs. They are grandfathers preparing to turn the businesses over to their sons-in-law and dote on their grandchildren. Their hunger has been satisfied.

Their children do not understand the desperate hunger that drove their parents during the depression. They are sleek, well-fed individuals who join fraternities, work at children's summer camps and during the winter attend the cultural events of note in the city.

Hunger is alien to them. They are on their way into the professions or to become academics. They do not anticipate struggle, and if it is suggested to them as the only way in which to achieve ends, they are offended. They do not like the thought of sacrifice and exhaustive expenditure of energy. They have no dreams of empire. Their chief concern seems to be to melt as quietly as possible into the landscape.

They do not understand Meyer Levin's "Old Bunch".

Nobody regrets the disappearance of the old ghettos. But one can regret the passing of the spirit that broke them down. The conflict in cultures, as it was resolved by individuals, produced businessmen, professional men, intellectuals and artists of the highest calibre. And now that the conflict has been mostly resolved, the spirit is beginning to fade. It is doubtful that the second generation will equal the achievements of the first.

If Meyer Levin spoke for their parents, it seems that Herman Wouk speaks for them. Perhaps Wouk is no more than they deserve.

ubc's "creative campus"

Ban Literary Magazine

WINNIPEG, Nov. 12 (CUP) — The University of Manitoba's publication "Creative Campus 1959" has been banned.

The book has been ordered cleared out of the university stores and downtown bookstores.

A spokesman for the administration said, "the book is terrible. If I had read it earlier, I would never have allowed the book to go on sale at all. It is pure pornography, nothing else. It's a disgrace to the university."

The publication's editor, Brian Thomas, said "what they call pornography I thought was great art".

"They'll be sorry some day," he muttered. "Look what happened to 'Lady Chatterley's Lover', they banned that, and now it's better read than any book in the English language."

"Great art is always stepped on," Thomas said, "but it always wins out in the end. Enlightened souls will champion our cause."

Dr. J. P. Matthews, dean of arts and sciences at St. John's College at the U of M, said he thought the calibre of work in "Creative Campus" was "very high".

The booklet isn't the only thing troubling the censors at the U of M.

Following rumors that a skit in the university's "Varsity Varieties" was vulgar, director Len Stone said "the skit is suggestive, but it is a very witty, intellectual satire on present-day censorship and sexual standards."

ROSEDALE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

129 Mount Pleasant Road
(2 blocks north of Bloor, 2 blocks east of Yonge)
11 a.m. Public Worship "STEWARDSHIP"
7:30 p.m. — "THE STATE UNDER GOD"

A presentation of the Church's doctrine of church and state followed by discussion and refreshments.
SPECIAL WELCOME TO VARSITY STUDENTS

VICTORIA COLLEGE CHAPEL

SUNDAY — NOVEMBER 15 — 11 a.m.

"A FAITH FOR TODAY"

7. The Scriptures — Professor Robert Dobbie
ALL ARE WELCOME

HART HOUSE

TODAY

1:30 p.m. — Sing Song — East Common Room
SATURDAY, November 14th — AT CALEDON
Graduate Students' Union Saturday Night Party

SUNDAY, November 15th

9:00 p.m. — SUNDAY EVENING CONCERT - Great Hall
Hyman Goodman, Violin

Free tickets available to members of Hart House at the Hall Porter's Desk — Women invited if escorted.

MONDAY, November 16th

1:30 p.m. — Sing Song — East Common Room
5:00 p.m. — Glee Club Full Rehearsal — Music Room
7:15 p.m. — Revolver Club — Rifle Range

TUESDAY, November 17th

8:00 a.m. — Holy Communion — Chapel
5:10 p.m. — Amateur Radio Club Code & Theory Class
Debates Loft

7:00 p.m. — Glee Club Full Rehearsal — Music Room
7:15 p.m. — BRIDGE CLUB — East Common Room
7:30 p.m. — Art Class — Art Gallery
8:00 p.m. — Archery — Rifle Range

Art Gallery — New Exhibition — "7 West Coast Painters"

WEDNESDAY, November 18th

12:15 p.m. — Noon-day Prayers — Chapel
7:00 p.m. — Table Tennis — Fencing Room
7:15 p.m. — Revolver Club — Rifle Range

THURSDAY, November 19th

8:00 a.m. — Holy Communion — Chapel
5:10 p.m. — Amateur Radio Club Code & Theory Class
Debates Loft

5:15 p.m. — Record Room Instruction — Record Room
7:30 p.m. — Art Class — Art Gallery
8:00 p.m. — Archery — Rifle Range

FRIDAY, November 20th

1:30 p.m. — Sing Song — East Common Room

Claim Plea Misdirected Burn Kadar In Effigy

LONDON, ONT., Nov. 12, (CUP) — Not all university students are happy about petitions being circulated to try to stop the executions of Hungarian teenagers.

Half a dozen University of Western Ontario students after burning an effigy of Hungarian Premier Janos Kadar last week said they didn't feel the petition was being sent to the right place.

"Whoever is circulating the petition has the right idea," a spokesman said, "but the wrong direction."

The plan is to send the petitions to Moscow, but the group, which calls itself the Hungarian Student Liberators, believes they should be sent to Kadar.

The "Liberators" wore white sheets and Hallowe'en masks to disguise themselves "in case of any reprisals", as one of them put it.

Treasure Van, sponsored by World University Service, makes its annual visit to the University of Toronto campus Nov. 23-27.

Highlighting this year's display of articles from foreign countries will be products from Yugoslavia, all priced at student rates.

The sale has been extended from four to five days to enable proceeds to reach $6,000. Last year's sale netted $5,256.

Record receipts have been collected at the seven universities across Canada visited so far.

Trinity College Chapel

DAILY SERVICES

7:00 a.m. — Mattins
7:30 a.m. — Eucharist
6:00 p.m. — Evensong

SUNDAY SERVICES

8:00 a.m. — Mattins
8:15 a.m. — Eucharist
9:15 a.m. — Sung Eucharist & Sermon
EVERYBODY WELCOME

KNOX PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Spadina and Harbord
Minister: Dr. Wm. FITCH,

WELCOMES ALL
UNIVERSITY STUDENTS

● Worship Services — 11 a.m. 7 p.m.
● Young People's — 8:30 p.m.
● Recreation — Friday — 8:00 p.m.
Youth Centre 16 Bancroft St.

University Lutheran Chapel

SUNDAY SERVICE — 11 a.m.

SUNDAY SUPPER — 5:30 p.m.

Student Club, every 2nd and 4th Thursday, at 7:45 p.m.

610 SPADINA
(below Harbord)

WA. 2-1884 — WA. 3-6840

BLOOR STREET UNITED CHURCH

300 BLOOR ST. WEST

Ministers:

Rev. Dr. Ernest Marshall Howse
Rev. J. Stanley Kennedy
Organist and Choirmaster
Frederick C. Silvester

11:00 a.m. — Rev. William W. Simpson, (General Secretary of the British Council of Christians and Jews)

7:00 p.m. The Danger of Fence Sitting, Rev. J. Stanley Kennedy

The Campus Club will meet after the Evening Service

Park Road Baptist Church

1 Block North and East of
Bloor - Yonge

Minister: Rev. Murray J. S.
Ford, M.A., B.D.

VICTOR E. GRAHAM, Organist

SERVICES AT
10:45 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.

A Cordial Invitation to all
Students to Attend Inspiring
Services

ST. ANDREW'S United Church

117 BLOOR ST. EAST
near Yonge St. Subway

Minister:

REV. WILLIAM BRIGGS
M.A., B.D., Ph.D.

Organist & Choir Director:
EDGAR GOODAIRE

11:00 a.m. "The Word of the Lord"

7:30 p.m. — "Streamlined"

Students cordially invited
to attend

THREE
GLEE CLUBS

ONE
CONCERT

TRI-UNIVERSITY CONCERT

— Michigan State
— Colgate
— Hart House

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 28th, 8:30 p.m.

Great Hall, Hart House

TICKETS $1.25 — now on sale — HART HOUSE

MISSION IN THE UNIVERSITY Noon Hour Addresses

PHARM., R.215 — 1:00 p.m.

Dr. N. SILVERTHORNE — Experimental Christianity

MEDS., R. 111 ANAT. BLDG. — 1:00 p.m.

PROF G. WALTERS — Ethical Problems of the Specialist

ARCH., R. A204 — 1:00 p.m.

REV. H. H. HUNT — Spiritual Architectonics

O. C. E. R. 316 — 12:30 p.m.

MRS. L. WYNNE — Goals of Education

SPONSORED BY VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP

Mission in the University

Dr. MASUMI TOYOTOME, M.A., B.D., Ph.D.

Convocation Hall — 5:00 p.m.

TODAY FRIDAY, NOV. 13

THE PULSE OF LIFE

Chairman: Vice-President Ross, B.AAc., M.A.

Closing Service, Sunday, Nov. 15

GREAT HALL, HART HOUSE

4:00 p.m.

SPONSORED BY VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP

HILLEL

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 13, 8:30 p.m.

Dr. D. J. Williams on "Job and J. B."

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 15, 9:00 p.m.

Symposium on: Canadian Jewish Poets.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 17, 9:00 p.m.

Rabbi Kanerling on "Free Will and Moral Responsibility"

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 19, 1:00 p.m., U.C.
ROOM 8

Dr. John Coleman on "Albert Einstein - Scientist and Humanist"

FOOTBALL PLAYOFF SCHEDULE

Quarter-final - Tuesday, Nov. 17 at 12:00 noon and 2:00 p.m.

Semi-final - Friday, Nov. 20 at 12:00 noon and 2:00 p.m.

Final - Tuesday, Nov. 24 at 1:00 p.m. Varsity Stadium

MANAGERS OR COACHES OF TEAMS CONCERNED PLEASE CHECK WITH INTRAMURAL OFFICE AFTER TODAY'S GAMES TO ASCERTAIN PLACE IN DRAW AND TIME OF YOUR GAME

All officials are asked to check with Intramural office on their playoff assignments.

VARSITY STADIUM

ALL CANADA

INTERCOLLEGIATE

FOOTBALL CHAMPIONSHIP

UNIVERSITY of BRITISH COLUMBIA

VS

UNIVERSITY of WESTERN ONTARIO

SATURDAY, NOV. 14 - 1.00 p.m.

— Proceeds to Paraplegic Association Medical Research —

SPECIAL STUDENT PRICE!

Playoff Coupon In Football

Ticket Book and $1.50 for a $2.50 Ticket

AT ATHLETIC OFFICE TICKET WINDOW

HART HOUSE - 9.30 a.m. - 5.00 p.m.

EATON'S

"ONKOS"

In Ancient Greece, leading actors wore the ONKOS — a headpiece — to distinguish them from the chorus. Today, hats are the headgear for every man—especially on the campus, where the pleasures of donning a topper are being rediscovered.

"SAN CARLO" by KNOX, fur felt, velour finish . . . Low crown, narrow welt edge trim, woven rayon checked band. Mixtures of olive, brown, blue . . . Sizes 6 3/4 to 7 3/4. EACH 11.95

EATON'S COLLEGE STREET — MEN'S SHOP
A SHORT WALK FROM THE CAMPUS

To Query CCF Record

"That the CCF has failed miserably," will be debated by the Victoria College Debating Parliament in Vic's Alumni Hall Tuesday, Nov. 17, at 8 p.m.

David Crane (II Vic), president of the University of Toronto Progressive Conservative party will preside as Prime Minister supported by Hart

Rossman (II UC), Jerry Caplan (IV UC), ex-president of the University of Toronto CCF party and Jan Smith (III Vic), secretary of the University of Toronto CCF Club. The opposition will be composed of members of the Victoria College Debating Parliament.

David P. Gauthier, of the Philosophy Department of the University College who was a top undergraduate debater, will be guest speaker.

Hungary Petition

(Continued from Page 3)

might save the Hungarians, Mr. Apt said he believes the only thing Khrushchev cares about is "the opinion of western people."

The anonymous student "John" suggested the Hungarians would be encouraged if they knew the West was doing what it could. He said the peoples behind the Iron Curtain would feel "lost" if the western world didn't seem to care what was happening to them.

Mr. Apt said the Communists have a "very good purpose" in executing the students. The point of view of high school students is "revolutionary", he said, "and the Hungarian government knows that the only way of keeping these youngsters from trying to take some action is by putting up some sort of an example, in this case a barbarous example, by executing some of the members of the high school."

"In this way they keep them in some sort of a fear," he added.

"The way the Hungarian government arranges (the executions)," he said, "they do arrest people, they do carry out a lot of executions. They never publish it, but they still are clever enough to let people know what is going on, and some sort of a silent frightening is going on, and this silent way of frightening people is, in my opinion, a lot more effective than any big propaganda would be."

He said in one Hungarian prison there has been an average of two or three executions carried out each week.

"When the execution was going on, they usually ran a truck in the back yard or wherever the hanging place was, and they ran the engine really loudly so the other prisoners couldn't hear what the man shouts, if he shouts something. Everybody knew that there was an execution going on," he said, "but this sound of the motor was even more impressive than a shout or a yell would have been."

When asked why he had decided to remain anonymous, "John" said "the whole situation in Hungary is based on spying and frightening. If I identified myself, maybe one of my brothers or my parents would get into trouble."

"John" said even if amnesty is not granted to the condemned students because of the petitions, the thousands of signatures would have a psychological effect at least.

Attention

BLUE &amp; WHITE BAND

FOOTBALL GAME
Saturday, Nov. 14

GAME TIME - 1 p.m.

Report to Drill Hall 12:15

Dance tickets available as per usual

HH Glee Club

The Hart House Glee Club is looking for 100 beds for Nov. 28.

Men from Michigan State and Colgate universities who will be participating in the annual Tri-University Concert need accommodation for one night.

Offers will be received in the Undergraduate Office, Hart House WA 3-1802 or by Morley Bernstein at WA 3-0495.

EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES

ARTS AND SUMMER EMPLOYMENT—1960

Representatives of our Company will be conducting employment interviews on the campus 23rd, 24th, and 25th November, for arts, commerce, and for summer employment in all faculties and will be glad to discuss our requirements for regular and summer employment with graduating students and undergraduates.

Regular Employment

For graduating students in arts, commerce, business administration, economics, statistics, general science, there are openings for financial and control personnel, statistician, sales representative, traffic assistant and personnel assistant.

Summer Employment

There are approximately 114 summer openings for undergraduates as assistants to process and development engineers in the technical department of the plants and as assistants to design engineers on current projects at the plants and Head Office. There are openings also as vacation relief in production, laboratories, accounting and sales. Applications for employment during 1960 are invited from male students in the courses and years listed:

	Class of
	1961	1962	1963
Chemical Engineering	X	X	X
Mechanical Engineering	X	X
Electrical Engineering	X	X
Engineering Physics	X
Chemistry (Honours or Major)	X	X	X
Commerce or Bus. Administration	X	X
Arts	X	X

Application forms, details of openings for graduates, and Company literature can be obtained at the office of the Placement Service.

Arts and Commerce schedules for regular employment may be signed at 5 Willcocks Street, Room 102.

Summer employment schedules may be signed at 5 Willcocks Street, Room 103.

DU PONT OF CANADA LIMITED

Personnel Division

P.O. BOX 660 - MONTREAL, P.Q.

Absent-minded Professor

Not so absent-minded when you get right down to it. He remembered the most important item—the Coke! Yes, people will forgive you almost anything if you just remember to bring along their favorite sparkling drink—ice-cold Coca-Cola. Do have another, professor!

SIGN OF GOOD TASTE

SAY 'COKE' OR 'COCA-COLA'—BOTH TRADE-MARKS MEAN THE PRODUCT OF COCA-COLA LTD. THE WORLD'S BEST-LOVED SPARKLING DRINK.

Blues Have Those Blue Law Blues

Officials of the Varsity Senior Rugger Blues yesterday said a Simcoe Hall ruling against Sunday sport will mar a visit of the University of Michigan rugger team to Toronto this week-end.

The Rugger Blues, this year's intercollegiate champions, wind up their regular-season schedule this week-end with two games—one an international clash against the University of Michigan.

The Blues meet Toronto Balmly Beaches at 11 a.m. on the Back Campus Saturday to complete their Ontario Senior Rugger League schedule. They play host to the Ann Arbor visitors Sunday afternoon.

The game against Michigan is the second of a spring-fall home-and-home annual series initiated this year. It will, however, be played on a sour note because Simcoe Hall officials won't allow the use of a university field on a Sunday.

Varsity captain Neville Nankivell yesterday said, "We're pretty disappointed. We've put a lot of work into building up the status of Varsity rugger this season".

"We'd hoped the officials would waive their rule of no Back Campus sport on Sundays in view of the fact that this is the only time we can play the game and it's a long way for the Michigan players to travel."

The Blues, who beat McGill University last month to gain Varsity's first intercollegiate title in 10 years, were hoping that the Michigan contest would provide an additional highlight for the university's big sports week-end. The earliest Michigan can arrive is late Saturday.

The Michigan team extended every hospitality to Varsity when they visited Ann Arbor last spring and even donated a trophy for the annual series. Michigan won that game 10-0.

The Sunday game will likely be played at Eglinton Park in the north of the city. The possibility of obtaining the use of the Trinity Football field was being studied yesterday, but not much hope was held.

The Intermediate Blues, who also have a chance of coping a trophy and title this season, meet Bank of Commerce at 2 p.m. Saturday on the Back Campus in one of the Toronto Seaway League semi-finals. The Bank team has beaten Varsity twice this season, once in a league game and once in an exhibition.

INTRAMURAL HOCKEY PRACTICES — WEEK OF NOV. 16
Mon. Nov. 16 p.m.	12:30 St. M.	1:30 St. M.	4:00 M.M.
Tues. Nov. 17 a.m.	6:00 Wye.	7:00 SPS.	8:00 UC.
	1:00 SPS.	2:00 St. M.	3:00 Med.
Wed. Nov. 18 a.m.	7:00 SPS.	8:00 UC.	9:00 Trin.
	12:30 SPS.	1:30 St. M.
Thur. Nov. 19 a.m.	7:00 SPS.	8:00 UC.	9:00 Emman.
Fri. Nov. 20 a.m.	7:00 Med.	8:00 UC.	9:00 Vic.

FREE SKATING — CO-EDUCATIONAL — RECREATIONAL
Varsity Arena	— 11 a.m. to 12 noon — Wednesdays and Thursdays
Physical Education credits granted
Register: Women's Athletic Building Men: Mr. Griffith's Office, Hart House	— EVERYBODY WELCOME

FOOTBALL GAMES TODAY
East	3:30 Sr. SPS	vs	Trin.
West	3:30 U.C.	vs	Vic.
SOCCER	North 12:30 SPS. III	vs	St. M. B
LACROSSE	1:00 II Pre-Med	vs	SPS. IV
VOLLEYBALL	1:00 SPS Kremlins	vs	SPS. F
	4:00 Pre-Dent	vs	UC Sigma Alphas
	5:00 SPS. G	vs	Dent. IV Yr.

HOCKEY SCHEDULE—WEEK OF NOV. 16
Thur. Nov. 19 12:30	Jr. SPS	vs	Vic. II
1:30	Vic. I	vs	Trin. A
4:00	Arch	vs	Emman
6:30	Dent. A	vs	Med. I
Fri. Nov. 20 12:30	St. M. A	vs	U.C. I
1:30	St. M. B	vs	SPS. III
4:00	St. M. C	vs	U.C. III
5:30	Med. II	vs	Vic. III

TEAM MANAGERS DON'T FORGET—TEAM REGISTRATION LISTS MUST BE FILED IN INTRAMURAL OFFICE PRIOR TO YOUR FIRST SCHEDULED GAME.

SOCCER PLAYOFF SCHEDULE
DIVISION I
Game 1. Mon. Nov. 16	North 12:15	Vic vs Sr. SPS	Avls
Game 2. Tues. Nov. 17	North 12:15	Trin. A vs SPS. III	or St. M. B
Game 3. Thur. Nov. 19	North 12:15	St. M. A vs Winner (1)	Hilgenberg
Game 4. Fri. Nov. 20	North 12:15	Winner (2) vs U.C.
FINAL Mon. Nov. 23	North 12:15	Refeere—Selzer, Linsmen—Avis, Hilgenberg or Bonfield
DIVISION II
League game—Mon. Nov. 16	North 4:00	Arch vs Wye	Bugarski
Playoffs—Game 1. Wed. Nov. 18	3:15	Knox vs Arch or Wye	Bugarski.
Game 2. Fri. Nov. 20	3:15	Forestry vs Law	Avis, Ryan, Jensen
FINAL — Date to be set by teams concerned immediately after Friday game.		Official—Avis, Hansen, Ryan

Hugh Pullem

(Dentistry 48) says:

I extract more pleasure from life by keeping my finances in order with a Personal Chequing Account at

BANK OF MONTREAL
Canada's First Bank for Students

You'll find these B of M branches especially convenient

Bloor and Bay Sts.

KENNETH A. McNEIL, Manager

Queen's Park

JOSEPH BURDOCK, Manager

St. George and Bloor Sts.

K. S. McKELLAR, Manager

a big step on the road to success is an early banking connection

WITH YOUR EDUCATION AND ABILITY...

YOU CAN BE AN OFFICER

THROUGH C. O. T. C.

Develop your leadership qualities, acquire new technical skills and benefit financially, while continuing your courses, by joining the Canadian Officer Training Corps.

- C.O.T.C. TRAINING does NOT oblige you in any way to full time military service.
- ON GRADUATION, you will have the Queen's Commission either as a Regular Force Lieutenant or as a Militia Lieutenant (qualified Captain).
- SUMMER EMPLOYMENT is a big benefit provided by the C.O.T.C. You are paid an officer's salary during your summer training courses each year.

For full information see

CAPTAIN V. A. GEORGE

119 ST. GEORGE STREET

Dr. W. W. Breslin was re-elected president of the University of Toronto Alumni Association at its recent annual meeting in Simcoe Hall.

Other officers elected were: honorary president, Chancellor F. C. A. Jeanneret; honorary vice-president, Dr. C. T. Bissell; first vice-president, W. A. E. Sheppard; second vice-president, Mr. C. A. Morrison; honorary secretary, Mr. D. F. McDonald; and honorary treasurer, Mr. F. C. Stokes.

Learn To Stutter

Sixteen University of Toronto Arts graduates are returning to college to learn how to stutter.

The group are taking part in a new U of T speech therapy course, launched last year, which will eventually lead them to a degree in speech pathology and audiology.

And why are they learning how to stutter?

By understanding stuttering, the therapist will have a better knowledge of speech deficiencies and in turn be able to help patients.

Although no one knows exactly why, one way of helping the patient correct his speech defect is to have him imitate as many imperfect ways of speaking as possible.

Director of the U of T School of Speech Pathology and Audiology, Dr. C. M. Godfrey, said the need for speech therapists in Toronto is growing all the time.

"At the moment in Toronto hospitals and clinics there are only nine. A city this size needs at least 26," he said.

However, before the school can boost its enrolment, it needs more space.

The school is another reason why workers across Canada are seeking over $12,000,000 to aid the giant U of T expansion program.

Drinking Zone

An Ontario Cabinet Minister has come up with a novel idea to solve the drinking problems of University of Toronto fraternities.

Provincial Secretary Phillips said this week the Ontario Alcoholism Research Foundation should be located in the area of the Huron St. fraternities.

At the moment the Foundation is looking around for a site to build new headquarters.

An old fraternity man himself, Dr. Phillips said he really believed fraternities need the foundation, adding that in his day it would certainly have done no harm if such an institution had been located near his fraternity.

Dr. Phillips was speaking before the Toronto Building Committee, which so far has refused to the Foundation permission to construct new quarters at Harbord and Huron Sts., saying the block must be reserved for fraternity development only.

Another member of the Toronto Planning Board Leonard Gertler said having the Foundation in that area would not be incompatible with fraternity use.

Some of the committee members began to laugh, and Gertler added "I don't mean that in the loaded sense".

Dr. Phillips said after studying accounts of what went on at City Hall he had decided to approach the committee in a spirit of peace.

"I came here with a dove of peace in one hand and an olive branch in the other," he said.

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS BASKETBALL

Nov. 16 to Nov. 20

WOMEN'S ATHLETIC BUILDING SPORTS GYM

Tues. Nov. 17		Wed. Nov. 18
North		South
5.30—Intercollegiate Tryouts	Intercollegiate Tryouts	5.30—Vic Sophs - PHE III	St. Hilda's Jr. Sr. - St. Mike's A
6.30—Intercollegiate Tryouts	Intercollegiate Tryouts	6.30—St. Hilda's Freshies - PHE I	Vic Freshies - UC Freshies
7.30—St. Hilda's Sophs - Meds	U.C. Sophs - POT I	7.30—St. Mike's B - Dentistry	Nursing Jr. - Vic Freshies I
		8.30—Pharmacy - POT II	Nursing Sr. - U.C. Jr. Sr.

UPPER GYM

Mon. Nov. 16		Wed. Nov. 18		Thurs. Nov. 19
5.30—Nursing Jr.	POT I	5.30—Vic Sophs - PHE III	St. Hilda's Jr. Sr. - St. Mike's A	5.30—Intercollegiate Tryouts	Intercollegiate Tryouts
6.30—St. Hilda's Sophs	U.C. Sophs	6.30—St. Hilda's Freshies - PHE I	Vic Freshies - UC Freshies	6.30—St. Hilda's Jr. Sr.	Nursing Jr. - Vic Freshies I
7.30—St. Hilda's Jr. Sr.	PHE II	7.30—St. Mike's B - Dentistry	Nursing Sr. - U.C. Jr. Sr.	7.30—St. Hilda's Sophs - Meds	Intercollegiate Tryouts
8.30—Pharmacy - POT II

Manager. Please hand in score sheet plus an official report of each game. If this is not done, teams will not be credited with wins. Please complete medical lists.

DIAMOND RINGS

SAVE THE BIG MARK-UP BY BUYING YOUR DIAMOND RINGS DIRECT
OUR PRICES ARE UNBEATABLE

Tel: EMpire 8-5268

WINSTALL DIAMOND CORP.

1219 Bank of Comm. Bldg.
25 King St. West Toronto, Ontario

ATTENTION!!

MORE MUSICIANS ARE NEEDED FOR THE

UNIVERSITY ORCHESTRA

The THIRD Rehearsal

Will be held in the basement of

Old Clover Hill — St. Michael's Men's Residence

(On the north-west corner of Bay and St. Joseph Street).

THURSDAY, NOV. 19 — 6:30 - 8:30 p.m.

THE "90-10" OF A COLLEGE DEGREE

"A college degree may count 90% toward your getting a job but seldom more than 10% toward your holding it."

Anonymous

That's one "90-10". There's another and that is the 90% of Canadian industry that recognizes its obligation to foster higher education if it is to continue to grow and prosper.

We at Cominco appreciated this need some years ago. Today in Canada's major universities there are science graduates working on Cominco Fellowships and undergraduates with Cominco scholarships. We have made many grants in support of university expansion programs and research projects. We organize special visits to our plants for science classes and welcome visits from faculty members.

Through such programs we hope to secure the future of our own industry and help Canada hold her prominent place in the scientific world.

- TADANAC BRAND METALS
- ELEPHANT BRAND FERTILIZERS

THE CONSOLIDATED MINING AND SMELTING COMPANY OF CANADA LIMITED

Trail, British Columbia

One of Canada's Great Enterprises

215 St. James Street W.,
Montreal, Quebec

COMINCO

DECKED OUT in authentic Indian Costumes, Alexandra Johnson (III Vic), Convenor for the Treasure Van Committee, shows an expensive vase to Publicity Director Richard Gladstone.

THE VARSITY

Vol. LXXIX — No. 25

Monday, November 16th, 1959

Compromise Before Crucial SMC Meet

By SUSIE BRESLIN

Both sides moved toward compromise last night as the last round of a battle royal loomed at St. Michael's College.

The compromise came in the face of the possible death of SMC's musical, Mickities. Elimination of a big block between the SMC Students' Administrative Council and Mickities came with the resignation of Robin Barron, only non-SMC student cast in Mickities.

Barron was the cause of a tense SMC council session last week which saw an attempt to pass a retroactive by-law limiting the Mickities cast to St. Mike's students. The by-law and a similar motion were defeated by council.

Council president Jordan Sullivan announced his resignation Wednesday. Sullivan said the Mickities scuffle was the "culmination of consistent obstruction" by council to legislation proposed by his executive committee.

Mickities author Phillip Nicholas last night said the Mickities staff "would like to cooperate. It looks like we'll have to make the first move."

Barron's resignation, he said, was Mickities' move toward conciliation. "The issue isn't worth giving up Mickities," he said.

Sullivan last night said: "The cooperation of the Mickities' people is a fine gesture on their part. I have no doubt that their spirit will be met by a similar one on the part of the executive committee."

"After all, it seems to me that the art of good government is the art of intelligent compromise," he said.

Nicholas said cast spirit "hasn't been up to par" since last week's explosion. "Legally, we're right, but if we're going to stand legally and lose the spirit of the cast and the spirit of the college, it's not worth it."

Mickities' producer Tom Sutherland last night accused Paul Foley, editor of SMC's newspaper, The Mike, of lack of objectivity in his coverage of last week's events.

In an open letter to SMC students, which will be distributed today, Sutherland said Foley's editorials on the case "were one-sided and as such can hardly be said to present an objective view of the situation".

In his letter, Sutherland said the Mickities' staff was in complete agreement with the spirit of the by-law barring non-SMC students from participation in the college musical.

Mickities only objected to the by-law because it applied to members of this year's Mickities' cast who were already in rehearsal, he said.

The by-law "should have been considered at the beginning of this school year".

Since there had been no legislation regarding Mickities' casting, the show's director, Dawn Egan, had followed the precedent set by last year's production, and cast from outside the college, he said.

Miss Egan submitted a conditional resignation at last Tuesday's meeting. Her letter said she would resign if the council refused to "stop meddling with my cast".

Miss Egan last night said her conditional resignation still stands if council attempts to pass any motions regarding her cast.

Sullivan last night said: "Should the council refuse to accept my resignation, I would be the first to move a vote of complete confidence in the staff and cast of Mickities '60."

"I'm sorry if the SAC furor has weakened the spirit of Mickities," he said.

A massive movement of protest sprung up at SMC after Sullivan announced his resignation. A petition requesting a vote of confidence for Sullivan from his council has been circulating among St. Mike's students.

Humanists Discuss Sex, Politics, War At Meet

Last night at a meeting in Hart House a group of humanists upheld free love provided "a perfect contraceptive could be devised."

In a discussion of morals and sex, the Humanist Guild of the University of Toronto decided objections to pre-marital relations stem from the possibility of conception.

Sex was regarded as serving a dual purpose of satisfying a biological and emotional need.

The humanists pointed out our society hypocritically frowns on extra marital relations, while at the same time committing them.

It was generally felt intercourse between two responsible people who are in love, but due to circumstances can not legalize their relationship, is all right provided those people are willing to abide by the consequences of their actions.

Meanwhile, other humanists objected to these views saying since our society is based on the family unit, free love would in the end not only destroy this relationship, but society itself.

On the topic of homosexuality, the group concluded that if this relationship can be proven to be private because it affects only two people, society should not condemn it.

It was noted present North American laws regarding sex perversion were archaic and that Britain has a more modern code in this field.

Switching to the problem of war the humanists said it was morally right for any country to defend itself in the face of aggression.

They criticized The Varsity for views presented in what they called a "pacifist editorial".

One of the members said a man who defends himself, his family and his way of life is an example of the highest form of humanity.

Everyone agreed that if Hitler had won the war all the British would have been shipped to concentration camps and all the women to breeding camps.

Another member stressed that the "only time" an aggressor might be justified in his actions is when he waged a war to set an oppressed people free.

Donald Roebuck, President of the Club, presented a paper on "Capitalism versus socialism". Roebuck claimed he first gave the paper on the corner of Spadina and College and then revamped it for "humanist consumption".

On this subject the group split into factions. Some of the members felt because more and more Canadian capital is being controlled by a small group of men, the government is afraid to step on their toes.

Others felt the present state of economy was not as grim as their fellow humanists outlined.

letters to come

As anyone who reads other newspapers besides The Varsity knows, we have received a rather wide selection of letters concerning Wednesday's editorial on Remembrance Day.

These letters will be printed in succeeding issues as space allows.

Greeks Claim Case Against Panhellenic

Two Greek citizens claim they intend to move for suit of the Panhellenic organization.

The two, who are visiting Toronto, said they have contacted the Greek Embassy for advice in the matter. They said "Pan-Hellenic" means "All-Greek" and after discrimination against U of T coed Barbara Arrington, the use of the name is a misnomer.

They said the Panhellenic is "alien to Greece".

The pair, who refused to release their names, said the Embassy had advised them a similar case has already occurred in Toronto.

The Embassy, they said, told them that several years ago the Faculty of Pharmacy used a flag with a white cross on a red field. The Swiss Embassy forced a change in the banner since it was too close to the Swiss national flag.

The pair said they plan to bring their Panhellenic grievance before the university Caput, and then consider acting through a lawyer.

Smear Campaign Charged By Libs

By LEE RICHARDSON

Charges were laid against the Progressive Conservative Party for instituting an anti-Liberal "whispering campaign" on university campuses, at the first convention of the University Liberal Clubs of Ontario held last Saturday at McMaster University.

President of the University of Toronto Liberal Club, Phil Goulston, said, "This smear campaign is being conducted by the PC directors' office and suggests a wanton extravagance in the Liberal distribution of political pamphlets alleged to have been drawn up by an advertising bureau."

"Such a whispering campaign is similar to the one earlier instituted against Opposition Leader Lester Pearson attacking his political fitness," Goulston said. "We expect more of this in Allstar Grossarts campaign, '87 or Bust!'"

"Such campaigns are conducted with an emotional appeal, but in both these instances are entirely without foundation as regards the truth. In fact, on the U of T campus, the literature distributed by the Conservative Club has been issued at a greater cost than any the Liberals could afford to produce," he said.

According to Goulston, in the afternoon panel discussion on Dominion-Provincial-Municipal Relations, U of T delegates were in emphatic disagreement with several points raised by Controller Parker of Hamilton and Professor Thompson of the Economics Department of McMaster University.

Goulston said, "At one point, U of T delegates questioned the political integrity of Controller Parker. Because of this, we expressed the view that political parties should enter politics at the municipal level."

"In attacking Prof. Thompson's remarks one Toronto delegate emphatically insisted there was more to a politician's activities than keeping his ears to the ground for current popular trends," Goulston added.

The convention resulted in the establishment by constitution of an Ontario University Liberal Federation. The two-fold purpose of this Federation is the individual and mutual benefit of all Ontario University Clubs, and a properly constituted voice for University Liberals in the Ontario Liberal Association.

Earlier in the day U of T delegate Dick Hamilton gave a paper on the Workings of Model Parliaments for the benefit of those campuses who do not have them.

During the convention, there was a tour of McMaster's Atomic Reactor and a dinner at which Jim Scott, executive director of the Ontario Liberal Association, was guest speaker.

CURRENT EVENTS

MONDAY

4 p.m. — Dr. J. P. Blewett, Brookhaven National Laboratory,

Will speak on "The 30-Billion Volt Proton-Synchrotron at Brookhaven" at a special lecture of the Department of Physics in Room 135, McLennan Laboratory.

—A regular weekly tea will be held at the Graduate Lounge, 44 Hoskin Avenue.

7.45 p.m. — The Psychology Club

Will meet in the Music Room, Wymilwood, Victoria College.

TUESDAY

1 p.m. — Mr. Paul Laurendeau

Will speak on the "Cultural Aspects of Quebec" at FROS, 3 Willcocks St.

1.10 p.m. — "The Irrelevance of Christianity"

Will be discussed at Canterbury Center, 99 St. George Street.

—The Quaker Study Group will meet in Room 42F University College.

1.20 p.m. — Marilyn and Dave Rosevear

(piano duet) will perform at the Vic Noon Hour Concert in the Music Room, Wymilwood.

5.00 p.m. — U of T Automobile Club

Will meet in Room 52L, University College. A car is not needed for membership. Girls are welcome.

—The Blue and White Committee will meet in the SAC office.

8.00 p.m. — The Victoria College Parliament

Will debate "Resolved that the CCF has failed miserably" in the Vic Alumni Hall. The speaker will be David P. Gauthier of the Dept. of Philosophy. Speakers for the government will be David Crane (II Vic) and Hart Rossman (II-UC), and for the opposition, Jan Smith (III Vic) and Jerry Caplan (IV UC)

Hart House

TODAY

20 p.m. Sing Soc — East Common Room
 8 p.m. Glee Club Full Rehearsal — Music Room
 10 p.m. Broadway Club — Rite Range

TUESDAY

10 a.m. — Holy Communion — Chapel
 4 p.m. Amateur Radio Club Code & Theory Class — Debates Loft
 7:00 p.m. — Glee Club Full Rehearsal — Music Room
 8:15 p.m. — BRIDGE CLUB — East Common Room
 7:30 p.m. — Art Class — Art Gallery
 10:00 p.m. — Archery — Rite Range

"7 West Coast Painters" Exhibition — Art Gallery

COMING!!

150 Voices
 Three Choirs

TRI-UNIVERSITY CONCERT
 SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 28th

Bobbi Decides Against Professional Frat Offer

After two weeks of internal conflict, Barbara "Bobbi" Arrington has decided not to join the fraternity Beta Sigma Phi.

The 21-year-old Negro University of Toronto co-ed received an invitation to join the fraternity after she was snubbed by U of T fraternities.

"Beta Sigma Phi is made up of working women," Bobbi said last night. "It would be good for getting to know Canadians on an intimate level, but their cultural interests are too devoid from my academic interests."

She said the college fraternities were "geared for students" whereas Beta Sigma Phi is for "housewives or working girls".

Before announcing her decision, Bobbi had a long conversation with Mrs. Lorraine Hille, the Beta Sigma Phi member who asked her to join.

Bobbi said Mrs. Hille had told her she understood her position. "Joining Beta Sigma Phi would be too much of an outside interest," Bobbi said. "Next year or the year after that, I might be able to handle it."

She said she didn't want to join just for the sake of joining.

As for joining a U of T fraternity, Bobbi said she wouldn't do that now, "just to prove a point".

"The dust has settled," she said last night after weeks of controversy. "Everything is back to normal."

Form Girls' Organization

The University of British Columbia Associated Women Students have organized a group exclusively for female university students in Canada.

This Canadian Inter-University students organization has already gained members of the University of British Columbia and the University of Saskatchewan while co-eds at Queen's and Acadia, N.S., have expressed interest.

Patty Darling, of the University of British Columbia, one of the organizers, said the group hopes to strengthen Canadian unity through an exchange of ideas. It will attempt to get scholarships for women students, and will promote employment for them.

It has generously consented to co-operate with the National Federation of Canadian University Students on the matter.

Bissell Thinks Western Education Will Triumph

University of Toronto President Claude T. Bissell said this week he believes the North American educational system will eventually triumph over that of Russia.

He told University of Toronto Schools old boys at their annual dinner that the Russian system is too specialized and will lead to a destruction of creativity.

"Specialization that amounts simply to the mastery of a technique sacrifices the power of human creativity for the convenience of the moment," Dr. Bissell said.

The Russians are looking to the present instead of the future, he said.

"They channel all their educational facilities for the advantages of the immediate application of knowledge."

At the U of T specialized education is developed, but at all times the student is kept aware of the relation of his speciality to the whole field of knowledge, the president added.

Men and women students in
ENGINEERING ARTS / SCIENCE COMMERCE
 BUS. ADM.

Your campus will soon be visited by Bell Telephone Employment Officers.

HARRY MEYERS, graduate in Engineering and post graduate in Commerce of the University of Toronto, is now a Supervising Engineer, Trunk & Special Services.

"Like many graduates, I sought a chance to gain technical and administrative experience, job satisfaction, and the opportunity for advancement."

"I started in transmission work (many interesting challenges). With added experience I was made a Supervising Engineer, Circuit Layout, and I was asked to organize a new group to help speed the plan that is bringing modern city service to more and more suburban dwellers. "Later I was appointed a Supervising Engineer, Special Services (mobile telephones, community television, radio and TV programs). Recently, I have been involved in a modern automation method of data processing — one of the big new things associated with business communications."

"Along with these opportunities for technical development, company courses in employee relations and management have helped me assume greater supervisory responsibility."

"As a graduate seeking a lifetime career, I have been encouraged by the opportunities offered at The Bell."

Ask your Placement Officer now for career booklets.

Ontario's ten Liberal will speak to students in Trinity College, tomorrow at 8:00 p.m. Opposition leader John Wintermeyer, will talk on "Civil rights". A question and discussion period will follow. Recently at the University of Western Ontario several hundred students attended a similar talk given by Mr. Wintermeyer. Most of the questions asked then dealt with Dominion-Provincial Relations, Labour and Civil Rights.

UTDU Pulling Out Of American Tournaments

Officials of the University of Toronto Debating Union said last night the U of T debating team is pulling a switch this year and setting out on its own to tour a number of Canadian and American cities.

In the past the Canadian team, used to debating many topics, has been handicapped in regular debating tournaments with its American cousins, who debate one topic only.

But this year the U of T team has withdrawn from the tournaments, and plans to debate on different subjects with individual universities.

Officials feel that by doing this U of T will strike a better name in the debating world.

The team will visit the universities in New England, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Kingston and Ottawa.

The U of T tournament, which is the second largest in Canada, will be held at the beginning of December. 50 Universities have been invited to attend.

Twelve From SMC Will Entertain Laval

Officials of the Laval-St. Mikes exchange week-end scheduled for Nov. 20-22 last night announced the names of the students selected as delegates.

They are John Pluskarskas (IV Mod. Lang.), Cathie Shannon (III Gen.), George Sarachuk (IV SPs), Jan Van Housen (II Gen.), Vic Pappa (IV Phil and Eng.), Sandra Kealey (II Gen.), Roy McElliott (II Phys. Ed.), Loretta Healey (II Gen.), John McGee (I Soc. and Phil.), Marta Heard (IV Phil. and Eng.), Mel Brandon (III Mod. Hist.), Marguerite LeMay (IV Phil. and Hist.).

All those interested are invited to attend the discussion groups in Loretto College Saturday, Nov. 21, at 3:00 p.m.

Dr. G. B. Phelan will open the discussion group speaking on the main topic "Quebec-A New Era". Later, smaller groups will be conducted: "Cultural Aspects" will be led by Dr. D. Hayne, UC; Prof. C. Rathe, Vic., will discuss "Education"; and "The New Movements in Religion in Quebec" will be led by Sister Corinne, SMC.

Refreshments provided by the SMC French Club will be served during the discussions.

ROM Exhibit To Show Peaceful Uses For Atom

A new exhibit, "Atoms at Your Service", opens at the Royal Museum on Nov. 20. This exhibition presents a challenge, according to Dr. W. Tovell, Curator of Geology at the ROM.

"We are trying to present a highly technical and complex subject to the Canadian public," he said. "Scientists and exhibit designers have worked together to tell the story clearly and simply and I think the exhibition will be a real step forward in making the public aware of the importance and potential of peaceful and productive uses of the atom."

The exhibition will show Canada's achievement in the uranium and nuclear energy industry. There will be samples of ore, ingots of pure uranium metal, and a cobalt bomb cancer therapy machine.

The show also includes a large and detailed model of a Canadian uranium mill, and an exhibit which illustrates the growth of a uranium mining operation from exploration to the construction of a mill.

The Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario exhibit will show how electricity from nuclear power stations will be used in Ontario.

The Hon. R. W. Macdougall, Q.C., Ontario Minister of Energy Resources, will open the exhibit at a preview, on Nov. 19.

From Nov. 20 until March, 1960, the show will be open to the public and new exhibit may be added from time to time.

The University of Toronto Progressive Conservative Club meets this Thursday to elect a PC chief for the Model Parliament.

Guest speaker at the leadership rally will be the Hon. George Hees, Federal Minister of Transport, who will analyse government policy and give an outline of plans for the coming session.

Candidates for the Parliamentary leadership include Mary Holt (SMC), Murray Corlett (Vic), Bill Graham (Trinity), Jerry Collins (Vic), and Hart Rossman (UC).

NOME BAKE SALE

Plushfield Science Building
Tues. Nov. 17 12:00-2:00 p.m.
Cakes, Pies, Cookies, Candy
Everybody Welcome

CLASSIFIED ADS.

BLOOR-OSINGTON
10 lovely modern doors and bathroom, light, heat included, reasonable, suit 2 men or married couple. Self contained TV outlet, available Dec. 6th, 1959. Phone after 6 p.m. LF 7-2415.

BASEMENT APARTMENT
Good central location, 2 adults, light cooking facilities, reasonable rent. 399 Palmerston Blvd. Phone LE 5-3377.

GENERAL TYPING DONE
At reasonable rates, fast, accurate work guaranteed. Call PL 7-1573

EXPERT THESIS TYPIST
Fast personalized service. (Electric machine) Irene Kenyon, 146 Bedford Ave. e WA 3-4011.

Careers with Shell for 1960 Grads

Interviews November 19 and 20

Graduating this term? Then like thousands of fellow graduates across Canada, you're on the threshold of a budding career. Before you decide on that all-important first position, have a talk with Shell. In the departments listed, the following types of grads are required:

TREASURY—Graduates in commerce, finance and business administration.

MARKETING (Sales)—Arts, Commerce and Law graduates if bi-lingual.

For interviews, further details and a complimentary copy of the booklet "Opportunity with Shell in Canada" please contact your Placement Office.

SHELL OIL COMPANY OF CANADA, LIMITED

comment

vandals

Some weeks ago, one of Toronto's evening papers paid 3,000 dollars to erect flagpoles in Varsity stadium bearing the names of the universities taking part in a track meet. In the football game two weeks ago and again this last weekend these flagpoles and flags were torn down by university students.

What can we say about these indefatigable spoilers? How can we dig down to the inner destructiveness that cannot sit comfortably while even so small a thing as a flagpole with a little bunting on it remains standing.

Sure, it's just a little thing isn't it. It's of no importance.

And you are all tired of reading editorials about student vandalism. And we are tired of having to write them.

Only the vandals never seem to get tired.

and scandals

We are a little mystified by all the fuss about the quiz-program scandals that are presumably rocking American television. As far as we can see the shows themselves involved no really grave moral offences.

Yet not only is the public and the press reacting with high indignation, but the participants themselves came out of the shows with sufficiently bad consciences to try first perjury and then tearful contrition. Even the contestants who were not in on the "fraud" are feeling cheated because the quizzes did not allow them to turn their erudition into dollars and cents.

If fault lies anywhere it is in the conviction of these "honest" contestants that their knowledge has a cash value. This is a well known notion.

We are told for instance that right now on this campus letters are being sent out to U of T alumni in connection with the expansion campaign telling them that since their university education has raised their salaries they should kick back some of it to the old school.

We are also told that some alumni that value their educations and their university for more than simply higher earning power are finding so blatantly cynical an approach a bit disheartening.

It is this cynical approach that these quiz programs have violated. One might almost say that the sponsors have acted on the principle that there is no basic relation between knowledge and money. And the people who are reacting most violently are those who believe most strongly in the relation.

It is not a question of materialism. Knowledge in itself is capable of eliciting strongly this worldly thrill. In an anti-materialistic context, even knowledge is not the highest good. In a worldly context the conflict between knowledge and money and similar conflicts is more like a conflict between the adventurous materialism of freedom and the cowardly materialism of security.

So we can feel no great indignation because the sponsors of these shows have seen fit to pay out money for services received rather than for American knowledge. Knowledge can be its own reward. We can only wish that those soliciting money for the university believed this as much as we, and presumably a great many of the alumni do.

J. S. Woodsworth

by Larry Zolf

Readers of Professor McNaught's A Prophet in Politics, a Biography of J. S. Woodsworth, will certainly not reach unanimous conclusions or estimates about the book. Those of conservative persuasion, Neo-Orthodox, "devotees of law and order", admirers of Arthur Meighen and George Drew, followers of Hayek, "Budget Balancers", and pseudo-Nietzscheans will find this "uncomfortable" biography of a very "uncomfortable" man, quite a traumatic experience.

Equally disturbed will be those readers of doctrinaire Marxist persuasion, followers or ex-followers of the Party Line, who for over twenty years coupled Woodsworth, as a betrayer of the working class, with such charming "petit-bourgeois" companions as Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini.

Nor will the academicians, historical or otherwise, be able to ignore the book. Here for the first time, a serious student of Canadian history has tackled what hitherto serious students of Canadian history have long ignored—the Left in Canada. At long last, Mr. Woodsworth and the CCF are freed from the grasping tentacles of the political scientists, the Lipsetts, and McHenrys, who have so minutely and so scientifically analysed this "political phenomenon" that even their most academic readers have frankly become bored. In the place of political generalizations, laws, and statistics, Professor McNaught gives his readers human beings and fundamental problems of Canadian history to contend with. Their reaction will be anything but boredom.

The reasons for these mixed reactions become quite evident on close analysis of A Prophet in Politics. The first thing the reader is struck by is the obvious fact that Professor McNaught has, in true Collingwood fashion, "bridged the gap from both sides". Bringing with him the necessary "sympathy" for his subject, and an excellent historical "imagination", he has re-enacted and recreated for his readers J. S. Woodsworth full of vitality, meaning, sensitivity, and complexity.

Right from the outset the rapport between the author and the subject is evident. Discussing the intimate family life in which young Woodsworth grew up, Professor McNaught indicates the permanent values and attitudes he obtained there. It was there that he picked up "some of his most basic convictions: a deep belief in order and efficiency, . . . a deep sense of spiritual values, . . . a determination to follow the dictates of conscience, . . . a definite concept of leadership", but above all a belief that authority must always be " . . . tempered with tolerance, compassion, and the idea of service".

It was in the service of a Methodist Church, "as a circuit rider in the mission field of south-western Manitoba", 1896-98, that other values and attitudes began to take shape. Riding circuit over the scattered prairie settlements in sub-zero weather, Woodsworth picked up two more essential ideas: Prairie Democracy and religious simplicity.

On the ramifications of these two concepts, McNaught has spent a good deal of time. Some critics have felt that perhaps too much time was spent on ideas, and too little on the man himself. Others have regretted the absence of a study of Woodsworth's family life as detailed as Creighton's study of John A. Macdonald. To these contentions one can offer the defence that unfortunately financial penury forced upon the Woodsworths an absence of close family ties. Certainly one can say that John A.'s financial problems seem a bit picaresque in comparison with those of Woodsworth.

In any event Professor McNaught makes a strong case for the contention that in Woodsworth's case ideas maketh the man. Certainly McNaught's study of Woodsworth's anxiety is a penetrating one. We see the young Woodsworth in Victoria College, grappling with the implications of "higher criticism" and "Social Gospel". In London in 1899, we see the impact upon him of slums, settlement houses, war, and imperialism. We watch the religious tensions increase during his tenure as the assistant pastor of Grace Church, Winnipeg's most exclusive Methodist Church. We can almost hear the thin quivering voice and see the pointed finger as he tells his philistine audience: "The Kingdom of God is a kingdom of self control—a kingdom of self denial—and these are not virtues developed in a wealthy home". We bear with him in his desire to avoid hurting his family, a desire that led him to twice withdraw his resignations from the church and to turn to church work that made fewer demands on religious conformity.

The period spent with All People's Mission and the early war years enabled Woodsworth to shelve his religious problem and to, at the same time, emerge as one of Canada's great social reformers. It is in this period that Woodsworth become the first Canadian to do a study of Canada's ethnic groups and immigration, to obtain for Winnipeg Canada's first Juvenile Court and playground system, to inaugurate the Peoples Forum which taught foreigners the English language and institutions, to begin the Canadian Welfare League, the Adult Education and Working Men's Educational Associations. It was his activities in this period that led Henri Bourassa to describe Woodsworth in Le Devoir " . . . as the first English-speaking Canadian to have taken hold of the true ideal for Canada".

The intensification of WW I, the call to Registration and Conscription finally brought on the ultimate crisis Woodsworth so long sought to avoid. Here McNaught's analysis of Woodsworth as a pacifist is indeed a comprehensive and searching one. McNaught points out that his pacifism was complex. True, he considered war "evil" and "entirely contrary to the teaching of Jesus", but he added to these objections the fact that war "obstructed social progress, and created unlimited opportunity for the exploitation of the common man and the consolidation of capitalism was "the inevitable outcome of its undemocratic form of government."

The war hysteria's intensification to uniformity and of racial versions of churches into recruiting worth's impassioned pacifism. His dismissal from the Bureau of Social from the Methodist Church. In resignation, he stated the complex existence: "When the policy of of right and wrong, then I must of

It is these themes of pacifism, McNaught explores over and over underlie Woodsworth's existence. Only a man of intense humility on the grounds of principle, give up worker to work as a stevedore on he decided to become a socialist, cratic one. "Unquestionably there pacifist position on war and his force could not settle social issues field." It was this Gandhian objection again and again, in the Winnipeg coal strikes, in the Sarnia "sit-down" Canada's entry into WW 2. It was he broke with friends and the point ironic that it was these ideas that greater menace to University student a Conservative called a Communist "pacifist flunkie of the Ruling Class."

Of course there are always the ist" persuasion who, on viewing say "all this is fine in the abstract the problems of the 20th Century question McNaught counters with and who knows, perhaps, a more to say Woodsworth had been proven by the strong voice of the remain to plague us. Did that now, a better answer than Wood Century: the increasing resort to chronically debased human values, cracy, and the mounting pressure majority ideologies?"

Fortunately for Canadian history more than mere excellent biographical mental problems of 20th Century answers to these problems. In part General Strike, the emergence of the political role of Mackenzie King.

The Winnipeg General Strike, history that a major city was split has been treated differently by dismisses the theses of the Canadian History of the British Empire, W of which see the strike as more wise, this reviewer can only issue Naught comes much closer to what tells us that "the real story of the reigned almost supreme in 191 classes", and in "the singularly ymittee to break it—or even to pro would justify the growing reserve"

It has constantly amazed this always willing to see gray and except that of labor, radicals, and call the Winnipeg affair a Bolshevik more famous sit-downs of the 30 theses were true, there would be "spacism" interpretations of past would henceforth be the dominant "servative" historians and the be to forget that sheer coprice, the events account, in large part, for one agrees with McNaught's thesis came to grips with these important feels that of all the material dev Masters' study, McNaught's is the 33 pages.

Professor McNaught, in another of the 20s and 30s takes deep by the use of the categorical for the West". Thus in speaking of function only of Saskatchewan historical. Certainly "the enduring not so much from the agrarian McNaught. It is his contention that the Progressives was the desire

THE VARSITY

FOUNDED 1880

Published by
The Students' Administrative Council
of the University of Toronto
Toronto 5, Canada

Member Canadian University Press

TODAY'S ISSUE: Fred Host and a rewrite, Le Richardson and the Liberals, Carolyn Purdon, Rihio Pild our faithful copy runner, Maryanne Kelso, Barry Zimmerman and humanists, Jordan Sullivan by his phone, Tom Sutherland, Wayne Tosterman and memories of another Friday night, a news editor working in South Carolina, lots of space, little copy and at two in the morning, thirty.

s Political Prophet

J. S. Woodsworth is one of the most important figures in Canadian politics if only because there have been so few like him. Founder of the CCF, he was deserted even by that party when he felt called upon to stand on his basic principles. The recent biography of Woodsworth, A Prophet in Politics, (U of T Press) by Kenneth McNaught of U of T's History Department is reviewed on this page by Larry Zolf.

ss organization". Its origin ing social organization with competitive system of in-the North American com-ethnic divisions and the cons simply fortified Woodson Conscription led to his arch and to his resignation e sentence in his letter of for pacifism and indeed for conflicts with my conception rather than man."

ism, and individualism which These are the themes that phy, and political outlook.
ism could in his mid-40's, on er as a professional social er's docks. Such a man, once only be a liberal and democintimate relation between his of democratic socialism—
the national or international force that he was to raise Strike, in the Cape Breton and finally on the eve of e Gandhian principles that he himself created. It seems into Telegram considered a "petting"; this the man many many a Communist called:

"inside dopester" and "real-this and Woodsworths, will would these 'idealists' solve this perhaps unanswerable
this unanswerable question, ental one: "It would be easy mong"; that his fallacy was ity. But one question must ive then, and does it have the tragic facts of the 20th with its accompaniment of oving militarization of democ-individual to conform to ents, A Prophet in Politics is comes to grips with funda-and offers some intelligent analyses of the Winnipeg gressives and the CCF and excellent.

and only time in Canadian into two opposing classes", historians. When McNaught
ual Review, the Cambridge ars, Logan, and Morton, all a plot, Bolshevik or other-ounding cheer. Certainly Mc-really happened when he
in . . . the hysteria that the middle and upper efforts of the Citizens' Com-outbreak of violence which ated Police and militia".

that so many historians are s with every field of history gnest. Surely it is as silly to as it is to view the later and talinist subterfuges. If such of historians, for the "con-reign supreme and history major bums. The many "con-Know Nothings" tend always ment, and the momentum of disturbances. Whether or not ke, one cannot deny that he
s. In any event this reviewer the Winnipeg strike, including id that in the short space of two significant third parties their being explained away as "the agrarian revolt of that "to view the CCF as a ots politics is certainly un-st elements of the CCF spring as from urban labor and ion denominator among all reform legislation. The urban intellectuals." To this must be added the influence of the social gospel of the churches and above all the influence of Woodsworth himself. "To speak of him as the real founder of the CCF is no exaggeration".

The Morton argument that the progressive party of the 20s collapsed due to the "natural disposition of third parties to shun responsibility", and to the Ginger Group's mania for political forms such as Group Government, initiative and referendum, is attacked directly by Manitoba Progressives, desiring only a bare minimum of reform, found their answer by absorption into the Liberal Party. The Ginger Group, seeing how big business's control of Caucus and Cabinet buried all important legislation, turned to Guild Socialism as their panacea. Once this panacea proved impossible these supposedly apolitical figures turned to a new third party and control by party convention as the best means to obtain reform.

It is interesting indeed that such Group Government supporters as Agnes MacPhail, E. J. Garland and Woodsworth himself became the backbone of the new CCF. Equally interesting is the acceptance of "responsibility" by this third party in Saskatchewan, B. C., and Ontario, and for that matter, in any arena which will only offer them a chance. For those Kingophiles, who insist on seeing Woodsworth as only a "dreamer" incapable of mastering the intricacies of politics, McNaught points out that while King was assiduously wooing the Crerarites into the Liberal Party, Woodsworth was being equally adept at converting Guild Socialists into future CCFers. Again, right or wrong, McNaught offers a new interpretation which all subsequent students of the protest movements of the 20s and 30s must contend with.

Nor does McNaught avoid discussing one of the most important problems of 20th Century Canadian history: King, reformer or political parasite. Though he is not the first to grapple with the problem, he is the first to do so in the post-Dawson era. (R. MacGregor Dawson, William Lyon Mackenzie King: A Political Biography, 1874-1923, University of Toronto Press, 1958). Indeed, it is Dawson's analysis of King that McNaught uses as a touchstone for his own evaluation.

Dawson defined King "as an opportunist but with principles. His basic objectives were fixed, the steps towards those objectives, and especially the advisability of taking those steps at a certain moment were variable". As a party leader he was more interested "in the bringing together of diverse and even conflicting groups and interests, so as to secure a working agreement and a measure of common action" than he was in "the propagation and carrying out of ideas and policies". To King the unity of the Liberal Party was the one indispensable way to achieve the one indispensable element of Canadian life: national unity. It was such beliefs that "led him at times to make enormous concessions to preserve the unity of the Liberal Party".

Having thus stated the basic thesis on King, Dawson does not hesitate to state the basic problem involved in such an interpretation: "The danger of pursuing King's policy is, of course, obvious, for the party leader may well confuse the retention of office with the necessity of maintaining party unity, and jettison all principles in a frantic effort to stay in power at any cost." Did Dawson solve the problem? The answer: "The discussion of this issue is better postponed until later events in King's life provide material for judgment".

Professor McNaught, given the brashness and audacity of youth, insists on discussing the issue now, and is particularly insistent on "judgment". As an alternative interpretation to that of Dawson, he offers a very strong case. Emphasizing "the enormous concessions" and "the snail's pace of reform", McNaught comes down rather heavily on the Dawson Father Image.

It is in this heavy onslaught that Prof. McNaught comes closest to a "saints and sinners" Passion Play interpretation, to the writing of melodramatic history. Fortunately, McNaught has not written his biography with a Book of the Month audience in mind, and therefore avoided the academic sins of an "Age of Jackson" or "Age of Roosevelt".

Thus, his analysis of King is scholarly, and the questions he poses for future King scholars must be answered. Certainly, he gets to the basic problem of King when he asks: "How far, and in what ways, did King really push for the advancement of the welfare state; to what extent were his tentative moves primarily concessions to public opinions and leftist pressure?"

Again, he casts serious doubts on the Dawson thesis when, after a lengthy discussion of the Cape Breton coal strike violence in the early 20's, and King's policy of rushing troops to the scene in pursuance "of the legalistic method of suppressing effects without impartially investigating causes", he says, "R. MacGregor Dawson's biography has nothing to say on this whole subject". His attack is further fortified by pointing out the Social Credit act licensing chartered banks was "promptly disallowed" while the Padlock Law, Canada's most infamous and blatant violation of civil rights was neither disallowed nor referred to the Supreme Court for a reference case test of constitutionality.

Nor does King look too wholesome when his only response to the brutal violence and racial strife in Sarnia, 1937, was a statement "that the full powers of the state would be used to crush any sitdown strike". The statement seems all the more significant when we note that it was quoted loudly and effusively by Republican Senate "reactionaries" in their bitter condemnation of Roosevelt's labor policy.

The attack on King's foreign policy is equally well sustained. In a discussion of King's refusal to issue a formal declaration of neutrality while informally giving Canadians the impressions that neutrality was the official position, McNaught asks the following question: "Was this because he knew the Canadians dislike, above all else, the clarification of fundamentals; or was it because he himself remained in doubt where he was going?" The latter, says Prof. McNaught, seems to be the true answer. In one searching observation, he sums up the King-Woodsworth differences on foreign policy: "The difference between the two men was that King was willing to commit Canada to war in defence of a policy for which he refused all responsibility, and which he made no effort to alter; Woodsworth would refuse to commit Canada to any war, given these conditions."

Still, a good case can yet be made out for the purity of King's soul. McNaught himself provides some items for the defence. It is certainly interesting that in 1926 King offered the Ministry of Labor first to Woodsworth, and then to Heaps. In the 1926 election, King ran no Liberal against Woodsworth in Winnipeg North Centre. It is true that King moved cautiously, but there was the constitutional straight-jacket, the increase of racial tensions, and the formidable opposition of Duplessis and Hepburn to contend with.

Nor was there always "lack of daring in the face of grave social problems". When the emergence of the CIO unions in Canada caused panic in Canadian business circles and the emergence of sharp class divisions, King refused, in the face of a tranquil and orderly walkout in Oshawa, to go back on the principles of collective bargaining he so long espoused. It was this refusal that caused the celebrated break with Hepburn which nearly cost King the leadership of the Liberal party.

Again it could be argued that King welcomed the emergence of the CCF and the effective hammering of Woodsworth. Tugwell has contended that Roosevelt welcomed the presence in the US Senate of Huey Long, for he could play on the Senate's fear of the Junior Senator from Louisiana to introduce lesser but more politically successful Social Security measures. It could be argued that the Canadian business community's fear of Woodsworth and the CCF was effectively used by King and the Liberals to introduce into Canada lesser measures of reform, but ones that would pass both Houses. One almost gets the impression that Woodsworth did not mind being so used. Woodsworth, ever the reformer, never "the socialist dogmatist", always desired "immediate action on specific problems" rather than "pie in the sky when you die".

But once more, the problem comes full circle and takes on complexity. If Woodsworth was being used, perhaps he wasn't being used too effectively. For the reforms were slow in coming and piecemeal in effect. One could still conclude an estimate of King with the following appraisal: "If politics is the art of the possible, it should be recognized that statesmanship is the art of making things possible—and that the latter art was without an exponent in the Canadian government".

What, then, can we conclude about "A Prophet in Politics"? Certainly, it is first-rate history and first-rate biography. It is an achievement all the more remarkable given the limited sources of primary material available to the author. It has grappled with fundamental problems in Canadian history, and has provided answers to these problems with which later historians will have to grapple. If it has been argued that only a Donald Creighton could do justice to a John A. Macdonald, this reviewer can contend that only a McNaught could, and did do, justice to a Woodsworth. One thing is certain: this is not the last time the Canadian intellectual community will hear from Prof. Kenneth McNaught.

Attention campus literati! The Art Music and Drama department is looking for writers who have drunk deep of art and music. We will supply tickets for concerts and exhibits, print your name in bold face and if you really drink deeply enough invite you to our parties. Call us at one of our many numbers, WA 3-8742, WA 3-8113, or if you are really brave, our genial AM&D editor, Elmo, at WA 4-8034.

Iceman Cometh To Central Library

Eugene O'Neill's "The Iceman Cometh" opened Friday night at the Central Library Theatre, 20 St. George St., sponsored by the Arts Theatre Club. A special student rate of a dollar is being offered. Those interested should call Mrs. A. Wise, HU. 9-8487 for tickets. The play continues through next Saturday.

"It's a cold night - good night for a party! The iceman cometh!" This was the embarrassed utterance O'Neill muttered to Agnes Boulton on the second night of their meeting. Who was the iceman in O'Neill's life and plays?

The first act begins slowly with a multifarious group of outcasts awaiting the annual free handout of drinks from Hickey, the hardware salesman, who never fails to pull out the picture of his wife and tell the funny story of how he caught her in the hay with the iceman. The long expected Hickey arrives but he has become a Billy Sunday preaching release, peace, confession and salvation to these pipedreamers in their world of illusion. In the second act we see the iceman emerging as the anti-life principle in the form of the greatest pipedream of all, the counterfeit world of Christian peace and salvation which disguises a deeply hidden guilt. The iceman picks away at the dreams of these down-and-outs, forcing them to face "truth" and destroying the illusions which are the very basis of their lives.

It is the third act, after a much too long confession, that the iceman reveals another facet of his anti-life character. Death and hatred alone slept with Hickey's sweet forgiving wife and out of his guilt, Hickey murdered his wife. His excuse for the act was his desire to see his wife at peace and released from the faith in her husband's reformation. When he is on the border of discovering his desire was motivated out of hatred for his wife and not love and his role as saviour is threatened, he sinks back into the world of illusion, reaffirming his love for his wife, and explaining his recent deviation as insanity.

But in the world of dreams, there is an ousting among the outcasts, Don Parritt, who has squealed on his anarchist mother sending her to prison. It is only in the end that he admits the motivation for his act was hatred. His illusion that he loved his mother is destroyed. Having no myth to fall back on, Larry, the grandstand philosopher, provides him with the decision he is incapable of making. "Get the hell out of life."

This equation of life and illusion is supposedly set in a run-down dockside inn. The set designed for the play is in brown wood giving the room a combination of warmth and severity. The tone and artistic angularity are more suited to a Forest Hill recreation room, than for a dirty, cold bar for down-and-outs. The costumes, on the other hand, were selected with excellent taste and a sensitivity to the variety, and wear-and-tear required.

The most sensitive performance of the degenerates was given by Sydney Perlmutter who gave the role of Jimmy Tomorrow the true feeling of living completely in the past and in the illusion of the future. Dora, portrayed by Jacqueline Barnett gave whoredom the pride and dignity O'Neill felt for it, while her mastery of mannerism and dialect never let us forget she was a member of the oldest profession. George Sperkados selling Christian salvation form a platform of guilt, gave an honest and dynamic portrayal of Hickey. The only actors who did not achieve a high degree of excellence were in the roles of Don Parritt, Hugo Kalmár, and Ed Mosher. Jimmie Hannan, who played Don, made a good recovery after arriving late, but his performance was lacking in versatility resulting in our distaste for this overwrought, overgrown adolescent languishing into boredom. Charles Jordan, as Ed, gave a very sterile performance to his minor role. Hugo Art Jenaff is supposed to be a direct foil to Larry, and an ex-firebrand who wakens from his long bouts of drunken sleep to shout the fierce profanities of old. Instead he portrayed a drunken slob who muttered meaningless insults and gave no clarity or dignity to the character.

Basya Hunter, in spite of too long speeches, a too long play, and too many characters due to O'Neill's insensitivity to pacing and proportion and an insistence on bludgeoning us with the theme, gives the play a sensitive and skilful production.

Howard Adelman

leon major speaks on brecht's fantastic realism

Leon Major, whose production of "The Hamlet of Stepmey Green" is currently running at the Radio City, spoke on fantastic realism at UC Friday. Beginning with definitions, he described naturalism (Ibsen) as selective reality, realism as the effect of reality (Williams), fantasy as the visionary image created by the mind's eye, and fantastic realism as the extravagantly fanciful impression of life. Leon equated fantastic realism with the Epic Theatre of Bertold Brecht which attempts to depict the continuous progression of the hero in a series of scenes and climaxes.

Mr. Major contrasted realism which portrays psychologically complex characters with the epic theatre's portrayal of a character motivated out of the current situation. Williams used the screen device, music and lighting for emotional emphasis. Brecht's plays are platforms for education, satire and entertainment. The underlying maxim, "DON'T FOOL THE AUDIENCE" underlies Brechtian thought. Influenced by the mime, music, and movement of Chinese theatre Brecht drew up his concept of alienation or estrangement. It is a purposeful attempt to make the audience aware of what the actor is doing, and involves the audience in the pretense. The actor comes out to the audience unlike realism which draws the audience emotionally into participation in what occurs on the stage. A series of postulates as guides are proposed by Brecht for fantastic realism:

(1) It is not necessary to produce any particular place on the stage. The actor conveys the time and place.

- (2) Let the audience know they are watching an illusion.
- (3) Actors talk directly to the audience.
- (4) Actors speak their lines as quotations and not improvisations.
- (5) Actors must use speech, mime, and gestures to portray the development of the character.

In rehearsal, three aids are offered to the actor to achieve alienation; transfer the person from first to third, the tense from present to past, and read aloud the stage directions. Actors must portray all events as historical, involving the audience and at the same time leaving them breathless.

In practice, Leon found Brechtian theatre sorely lacking without the lyrical power of Brecht. He felt, however, that Brecht would be an extremely important influence on western theatre and this is clearly illustrated in the current production of "The Hamlet of Stepmey Green".

DIAMOND RINGS

SAVE THE BIG MARK-UP BY BUYING YOUR DIAMOND RINGS DIRECT
OUR PRICES ARE UNBEATABLE

Tel: EMpire 8-5268

WINSTALL DIAMOND CORP.

1219 Bank of Comm. Bldg.

25 King St. West

Toronto, Ontario

JARGON EDITOR

WANTED — Editor for Jargon
Literary Magazine — 1959-60

Apply — in writing — SAC Office.

UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICE WOMEN'S DIVISION

WOMEN STUDENTS who wish to play Basketball, Volleyball or Hockey are reminded that they should have a health examination as soon as possible.

Failure to comply with this regulation will mean that their team will be disqualified. Please contact the Women's Division of the Health Service immediately for an appointment.

UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICE SALK POLIO VACCINE

WOMEN ONLY

Salk polio vaccine will be available for WOMEN students at the Health Service
110 ST. GEORGE STREET

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 17th — from 12:00 noon to 2:00 p.m.
WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 18th — from 2:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m.

UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICE SALK POLIO VACCINE

MEN ONLY

Any male student who received his first two Salk polio vaccine injections at least seven months ago may come to the Health Service for a third injection at the following times:—

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 19th — 9:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 24th — 9:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m.

Any male student who has not yet had Salk polio vaccine injections but would like to begin a series will be given an opportunity to do so in January.

THE PERFECT ONE COLOUR
LOOK IS NOW YOURS!

Kitten
solves
the match
problem!

No "just-off" colours but guaranteed colour harmony! So, for tea at the Dean's or cokes at the corner it's the new Kitten matching skirt and sweater in heather-mix lambswool soft as a handful of Scottish mist . . . in subtly muted colours.

THE SWEATER: Wing-neck, bracelet-sleeved pullover, sizes 34 to 40, price $10.95.

THE SKIRT: slim and half-lined, sizes 8 to 20, price $17.95.

Look for the name Kitten

BUY FLOWERS
for all occasions at the
PARK PLAZA FLORISTS
10 AVENUE ROAD
WA. 3-6361
10% DISCOUNT TO
STUDENTS AND STAFF

TYPEWRITERS
$1.00 A WEEK BUYS . . .
$1.50 A WEEK RENTS
Get a free typing course and a liberal trade-in allowance for your old typewriter when you buy a new modern machine from us.
Phone HO. 1-1843 Today

Campus Representative

For long established Cosmetic Company. Modelling experience helpful but not a requirement. Preference given to those in residence.

Call RU: 1-5723

MULOCK CUP PLAYOFFS

QUARTERFINALS

At Varsity Stadium

Tuesday

12.00 Meds vs Senior SPS

2.00 Dents vs Junior SPS

3 UNITS for $10.00

From a choice selection of 12,000 men's white dress shirts of the finest poplin, no iron, expertly tailored, with convertible cuff, sizes 14 to 17½. Individually boxed with folding plastic hanger.

A most suitable gift for the freshman, undergraduate, members of teaching staff or faculty.

Obtainable at

CRIMOND'S-JAYSON LINENS

49 SIMCOE STREET, TORONTO. EM. 8-8154

2% of gross intake goes to Heart and Cancer Fund

GAMES TODAY

SOCCER (PLAYOFF) (league game)	North 12.15	Vic.	vs	Sr.SPS	Avis
	North 4.00	Wye.	vs	Arch.	Bugaraki
LACROSSE	1.00	U.C.I	vs	SPS. I	Haskill, DePetrillo
VOLLEYBALL	1.00	Vic M.P.H's	vs	SPS. H	Hgal
	4.00	U.C. Hutton	vs	Pre-Med. I.A	Stein
	5.00	Pre-Dent	vs	U.C. Pilams	Stein
	6.00	Med. IV Yr B	vs	SPS. D	Stein
SQUASH	1.00	Vic. II	vs	Tin. C
	5.40	Med I Yr	vs	SPS. IV
GAMES TUESDAY
SOCCER (PLAYOFF)	North 12.15	Trin. A	vs	SPS. II or St. M. B	Hilgenberg
	LACROSSE	1.00	SPS. II	vs	SPS. VI
	6.30	Dent	vs	U.C. II	Gist, Snaetz
	7.30	Vic. I	vs	Med. A	Roth, Hill
VOLLEYBALL	1.00	Pre-Med. I.C	vs	SPS. J	Pomerant
	4.00	Pre-Med. I.B	vs	St. M. VI	Pomerant
	6.30	Dent. III Yr	vs	U.C. Wallace	Goldman
	7.30	Med. III Yr.	vs	St. M. II	Goldman
SQUASH	8.30	Wye B	vs	Arch.	Goldman
	6.20	Med. III Yr.	vs	U.C. I
	7.00	Wye.	vs	Pre-Med. II Yr

EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES

ARTS AND SUMMER EMPLOYMENT—1960

Representatives of our Company will be conducting employment interviews on the campus 23rd, 24th, and 25th November, for arts, commerce, and for summer employment in all faculties and will be glad to discuss our requirements for regular and summer employment with graduating students and undergraduates.

Regular Employment

For graduating students in arts, commerce, business administration, economics, statistics, general science, there are openings for financial and control personnel, statistician, sales representative, traffic assistant and personnel assistant.

Summer Employment

There are approximately 114 summer openings for undergraduates as assistants to process and development engineers in the technical department of the plants and as assistants to design engineers on current projects at the plants and Head Office. There are openings also as vacation relief in production, laboratories, accounting and sales. Applications for employment during 1960 are invited from male students in the courses and years listed:

	Class of
	1961	1962	1963
Chemical Engineering	X	X	X
Mechanical Engineering	X	X
Electrical Engineering	X	X
Engineering Physics	X
Chemistry (Honours or Major)	X	X	X
Commerce or Bus. Administration	X	X
Arts	X	X

Application forms, details of openings for graduates, and Company literature can be obtained at the office of the Placement Service.

Arts and Commerce schedules for regular employment may be signed at 5 Willcocks Street, Room 102.

Summer employment schedules may be signed at 5 Willcocks Street, Room 103.

DU PONT OF CANADA LIMITED

Personnel Division

P.O. BOX 660 - MONTREAL, P.Q.

a modern groceteria?

No Mass Produced U of T Students

A University of Toronto Vice-President said Friday booming enrolments in faculties across campus will not be allowed to turn U of T into an educational assembly line.

Speaking to the West Toronto Kiwanis Club, Dr. Murray A. Ross said U of T regards the so called "crisis" over enrolment figures as an "opportunity".

He said U of T plans to conquer the evil of mass production by the strengthening of member colleges advising the member colleges; advising the and devising better methods for the selection of students.

Dr. Ross pointed out by 1975 enrolment in Canadian universities will shoot up to four times the present rate.

The danger he said "is that the university will become like a modern groceteria,

In view of this, U of T will boost its enrolment to only 24,000 by 1969, he said.

UofT Researcher Says Cancer May Be Cured

A University of Toronto medical expert told the Toronto Bloor Kiwanis Club Saturday that researchers think they may have cracked the toughest medical problem in the history of man—the cause of cancer.

Dr. F. G. Whitmore said that at the moment there is a strong conviction among many researchers that viruses are the cause of the disease.

"But," he added, "there is still no concrete definite proof to back this theory up."

Dr. Whitmore pointed out that a sure cure for the disease can "only be found, and found sooner by continually attacking the problem with intensive research."

He said because of the many kinds of scientific work involved in the cancer problem, U of T has established its new department of Medical Bio-Physics.

In the department people will be trained to carry out the highly specialized type of research work needed to find the solution to the "cancer dilemma".

He called the cancer problem the most difficult one in Medical science today.

MCWA Will Discuss Afro-Asian Problems

"Afro-Asia: The Problems of Underdeveloped Countries", forms the basis of discussion at third annual McGill Conference on World Affairs opening tomorrow in Montreal.

Delegates and observers from Canadian and American universities at the four-day conference will participate in round table discussions and panel debates. International statesmen scheduled to speak at evening sessions and banquets include Opposition leader Lester B. Pearson, and Andrew Cordier, Executive Assistant to the Secretary General of the United Nations. Sir Leslie Munro, New Zealand Ambassador to the United States will address the final luncheon in Redpath Hall.

Two days will be devoted to exchange of ideas between North American students and their counterparts from Africa, Asia and the Middle East. Delegates have been encouraged to submit papers which will form the basis for deliberation.

The Conference, started three years ago by a group of McGill Law students, receives financial assistance from the Students' Executive Council of McGill University and Montreal businessmen.

FREE SKATING

Co-educational - Recreational
Varsity Arena—11 a.m. to 12 noon
Wednesdays and Thursdays
Play-Ed Education credit granted
Register:
Women—Women's Athletic Building
Men—Mr. Griffiths' Office,
Hart House
EVERYBODY WELCOME

TYPING

Theses, Essays, Notes, Charts,
French, German, Latin, English
Prices Upon Request
Apt. 12
21 AVENUE RD.—WA. 2-7624
MRS. M. D. STOTT, B.A.

THE CAMPUS CO-OPERATIVE

Has accommodation for men and women

Room & Board
$56.50 per month

Board Only
$38.50 per month

32 Sussex Street.
WA. 1-2520

$25,000 convertible term Insurance

Student rates only $5.00 per month. Phone Harold Lubbock
EM. 6-8919

Sports • Trophies • Games

Before you Buy give WILSON'S
a try
WHOLESALE PRICES TO EVERYONE
The HAROLD A. WILSON
CO. OF TORONTO LTD.
328 DUPONT STREET

UNIVERSITY BLAZERS Custom Made

Especially Priced for Students
$27.50

Fine Flannel Worsted Trousers
$16.50

Business Hours: 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.
Monday through Saturday

Suits Made to Measure
Latest Styles and Design

PARNES Clothing Co.
706 QUEEN STREET WEST
EM. 6-2025

Sample at S.A.C. Office

SKI

There will be a meeting of the

U of T SKI CLUB

at 5.00 p.m.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 17th

in the

Staff Room, Hart House

Anyone interested in trying out for the Intercollegiate
Ski Team please come to this meeting.

Player's Please

THE MILDEST BEST-TASTING CIGARETTE

BLUES TIE MARLBOROS 7-7

Gatten Scores Twice As Blues Open Season

Cannington (somewhere in Ontario), Nov. 13—Two goals, nine seconds apart, late in the third period gave Varsity Blues a 7-7 tie with the Toronto Marlboros of the Junior OHA in the first game of the 1959-60 season for the Varsity team.

Centre John Gatten scored his second goal of the game with a minute and 25 seconds to play, battling in Jim Murchie's passout to give Blues the sawoff. Seconds earlier, defenceman Neil Munro had gone end-to-end to put Varsity in a position to tie.

The extreme narrowness of the Cannington Ice Cube, as the rink is better known, made wide open hockey impossible. Once a team was in its own end, it was difficult to get out.

As it happened, neither team mastered the conditions for more than a few minutes at a time. Six of the Blues' seven goals, and all of those scored by Marlboros, came in clusters as one team or the other suddenly hemmed in their opponents with fierce forechecking.

Chief victims of the conditions were the rival goalies. While neither played well enough to rate on NHL tryout, they were not helped by poor lighting, and backboards from which the puck seemed to rebound faster than the speed of the shot.

Varsity gained a quick two goal lead in the first period when Jim Murchie and George Hicken scored before the period was half over. Marlboros got one back when Ricky Hay scored and then near the end of the period, Brian Conacher, younger brother of the Western football star, went end-to-end on a beautiful effort to tie the score. Blues quickly erected another two goal lead in the second period when Captain John Macdonald scored at 28 seconds and then passed to his left-winger Bill Griffin for another goal a half minute later.

Once again Blues could not hold the margin as Conacher scored his second goal and then passed to a linemate, Howie Menard, to give Marlies their fourth goal.

Gatten scored on a pass from Murchie just past the halfway mark of the period to give Varsity a 5-4 lead which stood up until the end of the period.

Three unassisted goals between the seven and fourteen minute mark of the third period erased Varsity's lead and gave the Dukes a comfortable two goal edge. Cote, again, and Jim Wilcox, on an 85 foot slap shot, were the goal-getters.

At 18:26 Munro tied the score and set the stage for Gatten's goal.

Vic Gains Semi-Finals In Mulock Cup Football

Victoria clinched first place in Group One Intramural football Friday afternoon as they whipped the last place UC Redmen 14-0 on a muddy back campus field.

Vic now have a bye until the semi-finals of the Mulock Cup, to be played Friday afternoon at Varsity Stadium. Their opponents will be either Medicine or Sr. SPS who meet tomorrow at 12:00 noon in the quarter-finals.

First Period
1. Varsity, Murchie (Roth, Gatten) .....	3:31
2. Varsity, Hicken (Cherapek) .....	8:27
3. Marlboros, Brassard (Hay) .....	10:33
4. Marlboros, Conacher (unassisted) .....	14:35
Penalties—Hicken, 5:55; Brassard, 12:20.
Second Period
5. Varsity, Macdonald (Epp) .....	28
6. Varsity, Griffin (Epp, Macdonald) .....	59
7. Marlboros, Conacher (unassisted) .....	8:00
8. Marlboros, Menard (Jarrett, Conacher) .....	10:31
9. Varsity, Gatten (Murchie) .....	12:00
Penalties—Hicken, 6:00; Sheffield, 14:15.
Third Period
10. Marlboros, Cote (unassisted) .....	7:42
11. Marlboros, Hay (unassisted) .....	9:51
12. Marlboros, Wilcox (unassisted) .....	14:20
13. Varsity, Munro (Murchie) .....	18:26
14. Varsity, Gatten (Murchie) .....	18:35
Penalties—Gatten, 13:47; Roth, 14:30.
Shots on Goal .....	1 2 3 T
Varsity .....	12 7 8 27
Marlboros .....	8 5 14 27

Stewart and Seebach counted majors for the Red and Gold, while Rick Oaks added a safety touch.

Trinity edged Sr. SPS 6-2 on Lynn MacMurray's TD in the other Group One game played Friday, to finish second behind Victoria in the standings. MacMurray conceded a safety touch in the last quarter to give the Engineers their points.

Trinity now face Jr. SPS in the first round of the Mulock Cup playoffs, Tuesday afternoon at the Stadium. In the other quarter-final match, Medicine, the second place team in Group Two will be opposed by Sr. SPS. Both Group One teams are heavily favoured to win the games.

Dentistry, unbeaten in Group Two, will play the winner of the Trinity-Jr. Skule game in the semi-finals on Friday.

The final game is slated for Tuesday, November 24.

In Group Two football action played Thursday, Dents whipped Medicine 8-0 to finish the season with a perfect 5-0 record. Jim Biggar scored a TD for the tooth-pullers, while Jim Kelly and Paul Morgan added single points. Jr. SPS tied Pharmacy 0-0 in the other encounter.

In soccer action, Law defeated Wycliffe 2-1 on goals by Lyons and Manchester. Smyth tallied for Wycliffe. Sr. SPS edged Meds A by the same score. Atucha and Doench scored for the Engineers, Reid for the doctors.

Lacrosse games saw PreMeds whip SPS V 6-0, McGee got the hat-trick. DePetrillo scored four goals to lead II PreMeds to a 5-0 shut-out of SPS IV.

GIRLS' SOFTBALL

League One
Team	Won	Lost	Pct.
Vic I .....	5	2	.714
St. Hilda's .....	4	3	.571
PHR II .....	2	4	.333
SMC "A" .....	2	4	.333
Vic I defeated St. Hilda's 6-1 in a tie-breaker for first place.
League Two
PHR I .....	7	1	.875
P & OT .....	6	2	.750
Nursing .....	3	5	.375
UC .....	2	5	.250
Vic II .....	2	6	.333
League Three
Pharmacy .....	6	0	1.000
Med .....	3	3	.500
SMC "B" .....	3	3	.500
Dents .....	0	6	.000

comment

by john brooks

This is off-beat sports, behind the scenes reminiscing, but it's the story of a person who deserves tribute words can hardly express . . .

Every structure that's going to stand for a while must have a cornerstone. These key objects are usually bared to the elements with a great flourish of tuxedoed dignitaries, silver trowels and popping flash bulbs.

The current cornerstone of the University of Toronto Athletic Association arrived, however, with no fanfare, elaborate ceremony or blowing of trumpets.

The year was 1937—deep in the midst of the tension that gripped the world between recovery from the depression and the onslaught of Nazi-Fascist aggression.

In those days, a job was a job—When you had a chance, you grabbed, but there was little guarantee you could settle your life work.

Yet, into the midst of the turmoil that staggered Hart House as Canada prepared for war came a slim, young woman who was to become as integral a part of the UTAA as the name itself.

Her name was Phyllis Lea.

As a matter of fact, the only reason anyone paid attention to her was because her sister, Vivian, was then secretary to athletic director Warren Stevens.

Phyl's first job in Hart House was as part-time registrar of the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union.

Little did she realize, in those days when the future was bleak and fearful, the burden that was destined to fall on her tireless shoulders in the next few years.

In 1938, Vivian Lea was married and Phyl, groomed by her sister, stepped into the breach. The move came after only short training for a complicated chore.

Two years later, the war had drained the athletic offices of the executive. Mr. Stevens was gone. So was the late T. A. Reed's understudy, Phil Loosemore.

It was merciful, perhaps, that Intercollegiate athletics was curtailed between 1940 and 1944. But there was still plenty for Miss Lea and Ralph Rimmer to do.

They assumed sole responsibility for the organization and administration of a wartime football league, comprising service teams from Toronto and district. It was even more demanding than their work now.

"I can recall weeks when the two of us went through until two o'clock in the morning for three or four days. And Sunday afternoons as well," Ralph said.

In 1943, he left for a year in the armed forces, and Phyl held the fort. One part-time secretary was obtained, but marriage beckoned, and Miss Lea became the sole UTAA workhorse.

And then, with the bulk of the overseas nastiness completed, the old guard filtered back. Stevens, Loosemore, Rimmer—all returned to the desks they had so sadly left.

With their return came the rebuilding of what had become a monumental deficit in the life of male students on this campus.

Slowly, but surely, the UTAA was revived. Intercollegiate sports came back, abetted by the war-toughened men who had temporarily lost their crack at university life.

These were the men who took to the gridiron, the rink and the court. They carried the Royal Blue and White into battle. To outside eyes, they were what held University of Toronto athletics together. And that, to all intents and purposes, remains true today. The Oneschuks, Smalles, Bewleys, Reids, Elikes, Stephens—those are the names which ride the lips of sportsmen on campus.

But there are many people who make it all possible, and not the least of these is Phyl Lea. Tireless, yet often weary, smiling, yet always businesslike, she carries on her task.

Outstanding in my memory is one incident last year. The Varsity's sports department, conscious of the great contribution made to our athletic life by Dave (Red) Stephen, formed plans to give the old redhead an appreciation night.

But we needed help, and to Miss Lea we turned.

The idea mushroomed, and when Red Stephen Night rolled around, it was more than we had ever dreamed of. You who were there will remember . . .

Red, standing at centre ice in front of a table bearing the gifts he had received, using his own inimitable Stephen-talk to express his thanks.

And when thunderous applause rolled out from a packed arena, it was a rewarding moment to those of us who had played a small part.

But none of it would have been possible without Phyl Lea. She gave gladly of her tested experience to assist in every possible way—plugging loopholes, offering advice, helping with arrangements.

It was something she didn't have to do.

Yet, this was only a small part in the immense role she plays. And you could tell she was happy to join the ranks of those who paid Dave Stephen tangible tribute.

Miss Lea does not, I hope, know that this is being written. Because I am sure, had she known, her objections would have been difficult to overcome.

I have known her for only five years—yet the co-operation I received from her in my first crack at the newspaper business will remain in a special niche in my memory.

A final impression could be most aptly expressed in the words of Ralph Rimmer:

"She has been simply great."

Many people owe a huge debt to Phyllis Lea—and their unspoken appreciation contains far more gratitude than mere words can convey.

Eastern Stars Dominate Meet

On Friday afternoon O.Q.A.A. track all-stars defeated their W.C.I.A. counterparts by a 104 to 38 score while the O.S.L. squad came in third with 28 points. These three areas respectively represent the Central Western and Eastern regions of the country.

Highlights of the meet were spotlighted in the longer distances the half, one mile and three mile runs. Peter Watson was leading the half mile for almost two laps then out of nowhere came Ralph Morris (Sas) to sprint the last thirty yards and catch Watson just as he was crossing the tape.

Up to the third lap the mile race was featured by a dual bet between Peter Adams, formerly of Sheffield University, now starring for McGill, and Geoff Eales, the diminutive runner from Oxford, now running out of U.B.C., then at the sound of the gun for the final lap Dave Dryborough, formerly on the Canadian Pan American team, flashed by both runners to take a commanding 20 yard lead which he never relinquished to win handily.

The three mile run was turned into a two division race. Adams, Eales, and Art Hackett pounded on each other's heels for most of the 18 laps while the rest of pack followed further afield. With three laps to go Hackett started to drop back setting the scene for a dramatic two run for the tape. Adams and Eales were pacing each other as they had one more lap to go. Suddenly there was a gasp from the crowd as Eales turned on a terrific burst of speed to finish the last quarter mile in an amazing time of under 60.

Toronto's Bill Crothers showed fine form as he won the quarter mile run in 50 flat which is fast considering that the footing was treacherous and the rain was coming down hard. Crothers was the anchor man leading the mile relay to a narrow victory.

Results

Discus: 1. Limonchuck (McG); 2. Brady (McG); 3. Frombach. Distance 139' 4".
Pole Vault: 1. Land (McG); 2. Whelan (McG); 3. Zadiko (T). Height 11' 6".
Broad Jump: 1. McKague (L); 2. Zedek (W); 3. Morrison. Distance 21' 6".
220 Hurdles: 1. Shepherd (W); 2. Passmore (McM); 3. Legg (RMC). Time 25.4.
100 Dash: 1. Baird (McM); 2. Howson (W); 3. Cameron (Sas). Time 16.4.
80 Dash: 1. Morris (Sas); 2. Watson (T); 3. Hudson (McG). Time 13.8.8.
220 Dash: 1. Baird (McM); 2. Wilde (McM); 3. Pellow (RMC). Time 23.2.
Mile Run: 1. Dryborough (Man); 2. Eales (UBC); 3. Adams (McG). Time 4:23.3.
High Jump: 1. Money (T); 2. Reilly (McM); 3. Cameron (UBC). Height 5' 10".
Shot Put: 1. Brady (McG); 2. Limonchuck (McG); 3. Griffen (RMC). Distance 45' 7".
440 Dash: 1. Crothers (T); 2. Wilson (UBC); 3. Fraser (Q). Time 1:00.0.
120 Hurdles: 1. Cook (T); 2. Munroe (McM); 3. Thirfaith (OIT). Time 16.2.
Three Miles: 1. Eales (UBC); 2. Adams (McG); 3. Hackett (OAC). Time 14:43.8.
Hop, Step, Jump: 1. McKague (L); 2. Land (McG); 3. Reppe (T). Distance 45' 2".
Javelin: 1. Mitchell (W); 2. Metras (W); 3. Dryborough (Man). Distance 155' 8".

JOHN WINTERMEYER, Ontario Liberal leader, takes time out for a smoke after answering the question of students at a meeting of the University of Toronto Liberal Club.
(Varsity Staff Photo by Horban)

Lib Lauds Gals

Never Underestimate...

John Wintermeyer, leader of the Liberal Party in Ontario, at a meeting of the University of Toronto Liberal Club last night stated that women could have a real influence on governmental policy.

"Women's organizations, however, should be more effectively co-ordinated and encouraged, and should be less independent," he said.

His reply to the question of whether trade unions could have an influence in the Liberal Party was in the affirmative, but he said labor and management should be empowered to act together.

"The solving of problems between them should be attempted," he added.

Mr. Wintermeyer was also asked to express his feelings regarding Liberal publicity policy during campaigns.

He said circus-type campaigns aren't desired but may still be necessary to attract people's interest.

What was his feeling toward the liquor policy? "At the present time," he stated, "only a small amount of liquor tax money is being spent on worthwhile projects such as the treatment of alcoholism. Government should conduct itself in a more responsible manner with these problems."

What about the Liberal's stand on the Civil Service pleas to end patronage was the next question.

"The entire Civil Service Act should be re-examined and re-written," he said, "and temporary rather than permanent employment should be ended."

Miserable Failure Is All Around: PC's Go Down In Vic-UC Debate

By ARLENE ARNASON

The resolution "that the CCF has failed miserably" failed miserably in the Victoria College Debating Parliament last night. The Progressive Conservative Club was defeated 67-16.

"Failure or success of a political party shall revolve around their success or failure at the polls," said David Crane (II Vic), first speaker for the government.

"Their proposed new party is the CCF admission of their own failure," said Crane.

"Is the criterion of success the winning of political power?" asked Jan Smith (III Vic), first opposition speaker.

"We have forced the Liberals to be liberal and the Conservatives to be ever so slightly progressive. We shall continue to snipe at the defences of political immorality," concluded Miss Smith.

"No new name could change the CCF party," said Government speaker Hart Rossman (II UC). He then said "sad would be the day that a Canadian party has to sell its soul for a slush fund."

"The fact that this topic is being debated denies any admission of failure in the CCF party," teed off Jerry Caplan, second Opposition speaker. "Our object is to give fresh ideas to the people, not just to win elections," he said.

"You talk about dirty, stinking Communists but decline to vote in the United Nations on the apartheid in Africa," said Caplan. "The Russians don't want war any more than we do."

Canada Puts Executions Before UN And Recognizes University Concern

External Affairs Minister Howard Green said this week Canada wants the Hungarian question to be debated by the United Nations General Assembly.

Mr. Green pointed out that there is a "great deal of concern in Canadian universities" about reports that 150 Hungarian students are soon to be executed for crimes they are said to have committed during the 1956 revolution in Hungary.

Thousands of students across Canada have signed petitions addressed to Premier Khrushchev and Prime Minister Diefenbaker protesting the executions.

The latest totals available indicate almost 15,000 signatures have been collected.

The Hungarian question is not on the assembly agenda, but reports say the United States, Britain, France and other Western powers will insist that a pending report on the subject be considered.

The Soviet has rejected the idea in a statement.

The compiler of the report, Sir Leslie Munro of New Zealand, was appointed by the assembly last year as a special representative to try to get Russia and Hungary to comply with previous assembly resolutions calling for free elections in Hungary.

Sir Leslie has not been allowed to go to Moscow or Budapest.

When it was suggested that a debate on the situation in Hungary might increase tension between East and West, Mr. Green said "The question of the Hungarian students overrules the objections."

Meanwhile, in Ottawa, Prime Minister Diefenbaker said yesterday "We are having the most careful examination of that question (of executions) to ascertain whether there is a foundation for the suggestion that 150 youths await execution on reaching the age of 18."

The petition, copies of which were signed at universities all across Canada, asks Premier Khrushchev to "use his influence to spare the lives of the young men and women who participated in the 1956 Hungarian revolution, thereby demonstrating the sincerity of his plea for world peace."

Nearly 3,000 University of Toronto students signed the petition, originated at UBC.
(Continued on Page 2)

THE VARSITY

Vol. LXXIX — No. 26

Wednesday, November 18th, 1959

National Fund Is Challenge For Every U of T Student

By DAVID LEWIS STEIN

A challenge is being presented to the students of this university.

A total of $146,774.00 has been collected in private donations from the staff for the National Fund. This represented 650 contributors and is one third more than had been anticipated.

Now the students are being asked to do their part to help the National Fund. But instead of digging into their own pockets they are being asked to seek contributions from others.

On Monday November 30, a one night blitz campaign in several Toronto residential areas has been planned.

It is the only direct solicitation, other than alumni and corporations, that has been scheduled by the National Fund Committee.

The "blitzers" will be 3,000 University of Toronto Students who will spend a few hours on the night of the "Blitz Campaign" knocking on doors.

The quota of 3,000 is based on the enrolment of students. The committee feels that a minimum of one-fifth of the students is necessary to make the "blitz" a success.

College and faculty chairmen have been appointed to be responsible for the recruitment of canvassers. Each canvasser will be responsible for calling on from 20 to 25 homes on the street assigned to him.

Transportation to and from the scene of the crime will be arranged. A refreshment committee of 100 has been organized to arrange for the service of food at the campus prior to the departure of the canvassers and on their return.

A complete set of the Encyclopedia Britannica will be awarded to the college of faculty turning out the highest number of student-canvassers and other workers on the night of the "blitz". The second place college of faculty will receive a World Atlas and the third place group will get a Seven Language Dictionary.

A pre-canvass rally has been tentatively planned. At 5:30 p.m. students will gather at a number of designated rally points, for refreshments, a pep talk and the distribution of canvassers kits. At 6:30 p.m. they will leave for the areas assigned to them and at 10 p.m. they will return to a central point.

From 10 p.m. until midnight they will be rewarded for their efforts with a "windup dance and refreshments."

The objective of the one-night campaign is $75,000.

Committee chairman Barbara Leaman, the University College SAC representative is anticipating a full turnout for the evening's program.

"If we can't get one-fifth of the students out for one night to help the National Fund," she said, "then this university doesn't deserve to be expanded."

Hush Mickities Ruckus With SAC Chief Back

By SUSIE BRESLIN

In a crowded, quiet meeting, the St. Mike's Students' Administrative Council last night smoothed over the last vestiges of a rift which split the college last week.

In swift succession, the council:

—read and refused to accept a letter of resignation from president Jordan Sullivan.

—voted confidence in Sullivan and his executive.

—requested Sullivan to withdraw his resignation.

The meeting, packed by over 100 SMC students, also saw the virtual enactment of a controversial by-law concerning the SMC musical Mickities which was defeated by council a week ago and which led to Sullivan's resignation.

The meeting was given a humorous tone by accidental elimination of Sullivan from the roll call. Sullivan, still technically on the council since his resignation had not yet been formally read, corrected the error, provoking audience laughter.

The final act in the resignation drama began with the reading of a petition signed by 209 SMC students requesting a vote of confidence in Sullivan.

Upon reading of his formal letter of resignation, Sullivan left the council table.

(Continued on Page 6)

"MISS VARSITY" Marjorie Chapman of Victoria College helps spread the word of "The Big Blitz", a student canvass of Toronto homes on Monday evening, November 30. A recruiting campaign is now underway to raise a force of 3,000 Varsity students to canvass door to door on behalf of the $12,600,000 National Fund for the University of Toronto.
(National Fund Photo)

CURRENT EVENTS

TODAY

12-1, 1-2 p.m. "The Lady is Not for Burning"

Will be presented by the Library Committee in the Hart House Record Room.

8.00 p.m. — "An Introduction to Indian Philosophy"

Will be the topic of R. M. Smith, Dept of East Asiatic Studies, at a meeting of the Philosophical Society in Wymilwood, Victoria College.

THURSDAY

1 - 2 p.m. — Laslo Horvath will speak

On "Hungarian Folk Music and Its Traditions", at FROS, 3 Willcocks Street.

4.10 p.m. — Mr. Stanley Knowles

Vice-president of the CLC and past CCF member of Parliament will address an open meeting of the CCF Club on "Labor and Politics". A question period will follow and everyone is welcome, in room 8, UC.

7.45 p.m. — All students travelling with the U of T U N Club

To New York meet under the clock at Union Station. Students who have not paid the balance of their fare do so at FROS, 3 Willcocks St., between 1 and 2 p.m.

8.00 p.m. — There will be bridge

Games and refreshments at the Graduate Union, 44 Hoskin Avenue.

— Mrs. Mary Ferguson, FPSA, photographer and naturalist will talk on "The Story of Bugs and Blossoms" and will show photographs at the UC Women's Union, 79 St. George Street.

— The Hon. George Hees

Minister of Transport will address the U of T PC Club at a parliamentary leadership meeting in Convocation Hall, Trinity College.

Hart House

TODAY

12.15 p.m. — Noon-day Prayers — Chapel

7.00 p.m. — Table Tennis — Fencing Room

7.15 p.m. — Revolver Club — Rifle Range

Art Gallery — 7 West Coast Painters Show
(Gallery open to women Wednesdays noon to 6 p.m.)

THURSDAY

8.00 a.m. — Holy Communion — Chapel

5.10 p.m. — Amateur Radio Club Code & Theory Class

Debates Loft

5.15 p.m. — Record Room Instruction — Record Room

7.30 p.m. — Art Class — Art Gallery

8.00 p.m. — Archery — Rifle Range

TICKETS NOW ON SALE AT HALL PORTERS' DESK

TRI-UNIVERSITY CONCERT

NOVEMBER 28th

BOX OFFICE OPENS TOMORROW

George Bernard Shaw's

THE SIMPLETON
OF THE UNEXPECTED ISLES

Directed by Robert Gill

SAT., NOV. 28th, to SAT., DEC. 5th, at 8.30

HART HOUSE THEATRE'S FIFTY-SECOND ALL-UNIVERSITY PRODUCTION

Same Special
Student Rate — $1.00

Treasure Van Goodies Come Here Next Week

Manchadi seeds from India, black pots from Greece, peasant blouses from Mexico, and Bibles from Jordan will be sold on the University of Toronto campus next week.

Treasure Van, sponsored by the World University Service, sells handicrafts from foreign lands to finance the WUS programme devoted to bettering the health, living conditions and educational equipment of students in foreign countries.

Since 1952, Treasure Van has featured articles from Malaya, Germany, Brazil and the West Indies. This year's sale highlights Yugoslavian products, along with items from Peru, Japan, Thailand, Canada, Mexico, Greece, and Jordan.

Monday's opening is the culmination of six weeks preparation by the Treasure Van Committee which sent out 5,500 invitations to consulates, faculty members, church groups and alumni to attend the opening ceremonies.

Governor-General Vanier,

WUS honorary president, has expressed his support in reply to a letter informing him of the sale. The committee received an answer from the vice-regal acting secretary saying: "His Excellency sends his best wishes for the successful outcome of the 1959 Treasure Van display."

Treasure Van begins its week-long run at 2:30 p.m., Nov. 23, in Howard Ferguson Hall, University College.

Hungarians Continued From Page One

"Despite the skepticism of some universities and the skepticism of Nfens, the government listened," U of T SAC President Walter McLean said last night.

"I personally commend UBC, and especially Peter Meekison and his student council, for their initiative in taking hold of the situation," he said.

"I am also proud that so many U of T students had the moral conscience to take a stand. The truth was there and we wanted a further investigation. The government has stepped in to make investigations. This was the purpose of the petitions," he added.

"Where there is a possibility of such atrocities being committed, every effort must be made to uncover the facts and to ensure that such a callous disregard for human life be brought to an end," he said.

U of T

Flying Club Meeting

Wednesday, Nov. 25

8 p.m. — Hart House

ALL WELCOME

Wanted Urgently Paid Interviewers

Speaking several languages, besides English, to take part in a social survey.

Telephone: LE, 2-5482

Thursday or Friday

WA. 1-2010 Evenings

University of Toronto

Progressive Conservative Club

GEORGE HEES

Guest Speaker at Parliamentary Leadership Election

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 19th

8.00 p.m. — Trinity Convocation Hall

TYPEWRITERS

$1.00 A WEEK BUYS . . .

. . . $1.50 A WEEK RENTS

Get a free typing course and a liberal trade-in allowance for your old typewriter when you buy a new modern machine from us.

Phone HO. 1-1843 Today

BUY FLOWERS

for all occasions at the

PARK PLAZA FLORISTS
10 AVENUE ROAD

WA. 3-6361

10% DISCOUNT TO
STUDENTS AND STAFF

TRI-U

CONCERT

Featuring Music
from Brahms to Gershwin

There's Something Special
about du MAURIER

The Exclusive "Millel" Filter Tip, the most efficient filter yet developed, lets you draw free and easy, for full smoking satisfaction. du MAURIER combines the finest Virginia tobaccos to give you perfect mildness and smoothness. Once you smoke du MAURIER you'll make the distinctive red and silver package your favorite — always.

du MAURIER

A Really Milder High Grade Virginia Cigarette
with the EXCLUSIVE "Millel" FILTER TIP

B and W Starts Inquiry Of Float Parade Damage

The University of Toronto's Blue and White Society has started an investigation of the partial destruction of three of this year's entries in the annual Homecoming Float Parade.

The investigation was launched after last Wednesday's Students' Administrative Council meeting voted to table a motion censuring residents of East House at Devonshire place for allegedly damaging the floats built by Trinity, Victoria and University Colleges.

The motion was proposed following a statement by Blue and White chairman Dave Tavender (IV Trin.) that he was certain Devonshire men had done the damage.

He said that SPS men had seen them in action.

Tavender said last night the Blue and White committee had reason to believe that Devonshire men had damaged the floats, but that investigations had not as yet reached the stage where guilt could definitely be assigned.

Results of the investigation will be presented at the next SAC meeting—a week today—and at that time it will decide upon what further action is required.

BE RADIANT! BE SPARKLING!

Gay Paree offers complete head to toe beauty care at special prices to students. Guaranteed services by a graduate cosmetologist of a famous European Academy.

Gay Paree Beauty Salon

551a, Bloor Street West (at Bathurst)
9 a.m. to 9 p.m.—LE: 1-6301

UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICE WOMEN'S DIVISION

WOMEN STUDENTS who wish to play Basketball, Volleyball or Hockey are reminded that they should have a health examination as soon as possible.

Failure to comply with this regulation will mean that their team will be disqualified. Please contact the Women's Division of the Health Service immediately for an appointment.

UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICE

SALK POLIO VACCINE

WOMEN ONLY

Salk polio vaccine will be available for WOMEN students at the Health Service

110 ST. GEORGE STREET

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 18th—from 2:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m.

MEMBERS' ART SHOW

Hart House

December 7 – January 14

All men of the University are invited to exhibit drawings, paintings and sculpture in the Hart House Art Gallery

Closing date for entries — Friday, December 4th, 5 p.m., Undergraduate Office, Hart House, WA. 3-9504

Campus Representative

For long established Cosmetic Company. Modelling experience helpful but not a requirement. Preference given to those in residence.

Call RU: 1-5723

THE CAMPUS CO-OPERATIVE

Has accommodation for men and women

Room & Board $56.50 per month

Board Only $38.50 per month

32 Sussex Street.
WA. 1-2520

Women's Athletics

Volleyball

Inter-Collegiate Volleyball try-outs will continue Thursday in the Sports Gym, Thursday, November 19th, at 5:30 p.m.

It's Fun to DANCE

AT

Mart Kenney's Ranch

EVERY SATURDAY

CANADA'S FINEST
BANDS

Special Student Rates
$1.00 per person

Reservation and Information
AT. 8-1282

TORONTONENSIS

ON SALE SOON

YOUR YEAR ON CAMPUS RECORDED IN PICTURES

- Photos of — the dances you go to
- the teams you play on
- the college shows you see
- those wonderful football weekends
- your friends and enemies

Order your Nensis early at the special $2.00 price.
Booths will be set up next week in your faculty

Photo Contest

Student photographers stand to win $800 in prizes in the Nfcus Photo Contest which closes Nov. 30.

Entries will be judged in two categories: black and white 8" x 10" enlargements, divided into six subdivisions, and 35mm colour slides, subdivided into four divisions. The two winning pictures in the main categories will be awarded $100 each, and first, second and third place winners in the subdivisions will receive $30, $20, and $10 respectively.

Contest officials urge candidates to submit their entries to the SAC office by Nov. 30. Last year a large number were turned in after the deadline and missed being judged. Of 116 University of Toronto entries in last year's contest, 11 received prizes.

The contest is open to anyone enrolled in a Nfcus member university, and entry forms and rules are available in the SAC office.

DIAMOND RINGS

SAVE THE BIG MARK-UP BY BUYING
YOUR DIAMOND RINGS DIRECT
OUR PRICES ARE UNBEATABLE

Tel: EMpire 8-5268

WINSTALL DIAMOND CORP.

1219 Bank of Comm. Bldg.
25 King St. West Toronto, Ontario

University College Lecture Series

"PROUST'S ALCHEMY"

Professor V. E. Graham

West Hall, University College

Thursday, Nov. 19, at 4.30 p.m.

EATON'S

When
the North Wind
doth blow
Then we shall have Snow

... And what do the co-eds do then, smart things? They pull on these boots, of sleek corduroy, for plenty of warmth a-foot. Abundantly lined with fleecy nylon pile. Sturdy soles of cork and rubber. In black or laden green. Sizes 4 to 9
Pair 7.95

Phone UN. 1-5111
Eaton's Main Store,
Second Floor, Dept. 239

comment

the taught

Seldom does this university ask anything of its students.

If you pay your fees, pass your exams and keep your nose minimally clean, you can pass through your years here playing almost any role that appeals to you. They leave you pretty well alone.

And now they are coming to us and asking for one night of our time.

They want us to go out on the night of November 30, and knock on people's doors and ask them for money, to help the university expand.

They think that we should be able to raise $75,000.00 in one night's work.

The money is only a small part of the $12,600,000.00 goal that has been set for the National Fund.

All of the money that is collected during the course of the campaign will be of direct benefit to us.

Many of the buildings planned will be erected and in operation while we are still undergraduates.

They are asking for our help, and in the last analysis our help to them will improve conditions for us.

They're being realistic about it too. They only expect 3,000 of us to turn out. That's roughly one fifth of the student enrolment. And they've planned refreshments, entertainment and other assorted goodies to help entice us into working for them.

But maybe that's only because they know us.

And when their time schedule is broken-down, it appears that all their elaborate planning is to get us to work for only four hours.

It doesn't seem to us too much to ask.

and the teacher

In a report of a speech given by Dr. Robert M. Hutchins, a Toronto newspaper referred to him as an "educator".

The word "educator" does not do justice to Dr. Hutchins. As far as we can see it was invented to define men who neither teach nor administer educational institutions but simply theorize about the educating process itself as if it were an abstraction totally devoid of content. It represents a preoccupation in modern education with empty forms, with a method that can be applied to anything from Latin to Safe Driving.

As such it is precisely what Dr. Hutchins has been fighting against.

In his distinguished career Dr. Hutchins has been both a teacher and an administrator. But please, not an "educator".

THE VARSITY

FOUNDED 1880

Published by
The Students' Administrative Council
of the University of Toronto
Toronto 5, Canada

Member Canadian University Press
Editorial and News Office

Basement, SAC Building — WA. 3-8742, WA. 3-8113

Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-8221

The opinions expressed in this paper are those of the editor.

Editor-in-chief: Sam Aizenstat
Executive Editor: Mark Nichols
Managing Editors: Harvey Shepherd, Susie Breslin
News Editor: Ed Roberts
Features Editor: David Lewis Stein
Sports Editor: Dave Griner
AM&D Editor: Elmo Ciprietti
Photography Editor: Andy Stabins
CUP Editor: Alan Walker
Publicity Editor: Kay McCook
Associate News Editors: Terry Bourke, Jayne Nesbitt

TODAY'S ISSUE: Beryl Trimming, Arlene Arnason, Barb Leaman and friend, Debbie Halper, Walter McLean, a fortunately brief resignation, the prettiest copyrunner ever, chaos, memories of 1909, deep south draws, Maryanne Talbot who came home, Dave Crane and Gord Ross, Gordon Goldie and friends, Dorothy Miles Peter Brawley, Dave Humphries, Howard Adelman, Ted Schafer without records, Elm's big-brother-accepted-the-money, and a grateful (but not gracefully it's feared) accepted invitation from Anne with an "it".

Photography This Issue: Roman Horban.

"Suffer yourselves to be blamed, imprisoned, condemned, suffer yourselves to be hanged, but publish your opinions; it is a duty."

irmgard seefried and

Thirteen Strings From Lucerne

The management of Eaton Auditorium have just about outdone themselves more. It isn't enough apparently to offer each season such outstanding series as men's Music Club and the York Concert Society; Monday night they presented the most satisfying ensembles we have ever heard.

This was the Lucerne Festival Strings, a group of thirteen string players of calibre that no conductor is necessary; they also have a harpsichord for use when continuo is required. The orchestra's founder, Wolfgang Schneiderhan, appeared as soloist in Bach's popular E. major Concerto, and his wife, Irmgard Seefried, was soprano. Rudolph Baumgartner, concert-master, directed from his desk.

Schneiderhan's style is freely cursive, and sometimes we wondered if it was too smooth; a few rapid passages lacked the distinct articulation we should have desired. In the adagio movement, it is true, his tone was not so sweet as it might have been, but still his technique is astounding, literally. This concerto came off as an effortless performance, art of the highest form; we feel sure Bach would have been pleased. Without hesitation we may say that performance of this concerto, we have never heard a better recorded, transcribed, or live.

Miss Seefried's soprano tone resembles that of her husband on the violin. She exhibits extreme ease in handling her voice, although we regretted that the very highest notes tended to be ready in quality. But of meaning and sincerity there was no lack. Her songs (two arias with recitative from Julius Caesar by Handel and Il Tramonto, "The Sunset", by Respighi, a setting of Shelley's drastically romantic poem; we preferred the Italian translation to the English) all allowed her free expression of intense, dramatic emotion. Each was a fully conceived entity, with no inconsistencies to mar the effects of pathos, sorrow, peace, resignation, or grief that were required.

"Fully conceived entity" characterized every other work on the program, we may add. Vivaldi's Concerto in A for Strings moved along smoothly, and developed its intricate texture with logic and beauty. We marvelled at the supreme control of the players, for while each part was given its relative importance in the whole, and the emphasis was constantly shifting back and forth through the group, a balance was maintained that no conductor could have improved upon.

Paul Hindemith's Five Pieces for String Orchestra, op. 44, is like much of his other work: varying tonalities and moods, but never downright gaiety. Even in the livelier sections of this work the orchestra achieved the intended overcast of shadow.

On the other hand, Bartok's Dances were absolutely ebullient, more exciting and masterful than Menuhin gave us a few years ago. For example, the difficult harmonies for upper violins in one section, less, even with several instruments, they return to Toronto, to their small-ensemble playing in this ## new bomb at town cinema

mouse war is

The Mouse That Roared (Towne Cinema) argues against nuclear war by making people laugh at it.

This generally amusing and sometimes wackily hilarious British political farce, adapted from the novel by Leonard Wibberley, offers an off-beat solution to present international tensions. The answer: give the world's largest bomb, to the world's smallest country.

It seems, scriptwriters Roger MacDougall and Stanley Mann tell us, that not so long ago the world's tiniest nation, the Grand Duchy of Fenwick, suffered an internal economic crisis. To Fenwick's Prime Minister the answer to this lack of funds seemed obvious. Declare war on the United States of America on Monday, be defeated on Tuesday and by Wednesday the treasury would be stuffed with American rehabilitation funds.

And so, twenty frightened farmers, clad in mediaeval chain mail and led by a milquetoast forest ranger set sail for New York with Cooke's illustrated guide to the city as their plan of attack.

"That's mine, I saw it first," comments one intrepid warrior, pointing to the Empire State Building.

Soon, thanks to a series of hilarious flukes and bumbblings, the Fenwickians have captured the "Q-Bomb", an irascible, football-size device capable of destroying half the globe at one blow. Its creator (David Kosloff), his equally explosive daughter (Jean Seberg), a blustery American general (Macdonald Parke) and four New York flatfoots. The net result: Fenwick has won the war and now holds the balance of world power.

Up to this point, Mouse scurries along merrily with an abundant charge of farcical effervescence, but subsequent happenings are slow-paced and unevenly handled by both director and scriptwriter.

In an attempt to out-Guiness Sir Alec, British comedian Peter Sellers, late of the "Goon Show", plays no fewer than three roles. He is most successful as Grand Duchess Glorianna, the wee nation's prim, quaver-voiced ruler and as Count Mountjoy, Grand Fenwick's urbane, wiley Prime Minister, but falls down on role number three, that of Tulley Bascome, the seaside, lovesick idiot "Field Marshall" in charge of the invasion. Toronto's Austin Willis is also around with his impression of the American Secretary of Defense.

Less surely handled by Director Jack Arnold or any of the Part one of Eisenstein's IVAN THE TERRIBLE, which Charlie Chaplin called "the greatest historical film ever made," will be shown by the University of Toronto Film Society on Friday, November 20, in Room 102 of the Mechanics Building. Time 7.30 p.m.

Admission is 50¢, and is open to all students on campus. Part Two will be shown at the Astor Theatre on November 29, and memberships, at $3.50 for the remaining seven showings are still available.

This is the first time that both parts of this monumental film dealing with one of Russia's greatest Tsars has been shown in Toronto. It's an opportunity which shouldn't be missed.!

On Thursday evening, November 19, in the Royal Conservatory Concert Hall, the eminent Hungarian violinist, Joseph Szigeti will give an all-Bach recital.

The works chosen for this recital are Bach's Partita's in D minor and E major, and the Sonata in A minor. Composed during Bach's Anhalt-Cöthen period, these are considered to be his finest works for the instrument. Anyone interested in violin music, or in truly great artistry, should make a point of getting to this concert. Szigeti is recognised as one of the great musicians of our age, and while his technical powers have undoubtedly declined with the advancing years, the emotional depth and profound musicianship are still there.

Eggs And Excellence

The Little Red Skulehouse celebrated its annual move to the Hart House Theatre last night with the opening of Skule Night 670, and with the exception of a few rather deadly interludes, everyone had a good time.

Not to be swept along by the current trends in college productions, producer Bob Richardson and director Bob Zacharczuk have once again resisted the temptation to do a book show; the result is a revue which is sometimes funny, occasionally racy, but mostly entertaining.

In last night's show, most of the eggs were laid in the first half hour. The orchestra set that precedent by thoroughly butchering The Queen, then stumbling through what the programme informed us was an overture. It is still somewhat mystifying to this reviewer that the Skule Nite orchestra is annually made to sound like a dance band playing the Orange Hall; they still do not allow dancing on the seats in the Hart House Theatre.

Following that ill-fated overture came a spoof on Edward R. Murrow which for the most part fell flat on its face. Perhaps part of the trouble was first-night nervousness, but mostly the skit suffers from unimaginative dialogue. The closing line—Ladies and Gentlemen, good night, and good grief!—is right to the point.

From that point onward, the show improves. A couple of skits dealing respectively with antarctic exploration and skule culture are original and funny, and a dance number choreographed by Arline Patterson is excellent. What really gets the show rolling, however, is the Skule Night Chorus, which under the direction of Jim McKee carries on the barbershop tradition of the Skulehouse Four. "Tea, Tents and Travis-ty", a satire on jungle tourism, closes the first act with a bang; Carol Reed and Tom Reider are highly successful in milking every drop of humour from a very imaginative script; the calibre is professional.

The second half of the show is much more even. Two skits keep the audience in reasonably good humor, although the final one has a painfully weak ending. "Vignettes of Life" is excellent; Gary Faulkner adds a little folk music, a girls' trio offers some popular songs pleasantly but sometimes without conviction and the girls' kickline, the most shapely and agile of whom is one Marjorie Chapman, executes a dazzling rumba.

Marion Diltz has done the sets, and they are easily the best sets to grace a college show in the past five years.

The production and direction are generally of a higher standard than might be expected in a college show, although the stagehands did manage to make two or three unscheduled appearances. The orchestra improves with the rest of the show in the second half, but it is still the show's weakest member. —Peter Brawley

Hyman Goodman at HH

Hyman Goodman, concertmaster of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra, was the guest artist at last Sunday evening concert at Hart House. Mr. Goodman's program was varied both in quality of music and of artistry.

The first piece was the Sonata in G minor by Tartini. This is a pleasant, if innocuous ditty which was pleasantly played. Unfortunately, Mr. Goodman then chose to play the adagio and fuga from Bach's first violin sonata. This sonata is extremely difficult to play with the modern straight bow, and Mr. Goodman's technique was absolutely inadequate. He made this beautiful music harsh and choppy; if the adagio was pathetic, the fuga was really desperate.

Since Mr. Goodman left the hall for a short period after each number, the audience had some little chance to recover. The next work was Glazounov's Concerto in One Movement, and a very long movement it was too. Mr. Goodman displayed some really fine lyric tone in this; it's a pity it was wasted on such uninteresting music. The concerto simply meandered on in a completely formless way, resembling nothing so much as the songs that children invent to amuse themselves, and that go on and on and on.

After this venture into unpurged schmalz, we were treated to Granados' delightful Spanish Dance, arranged for violin by Kreisler. Mr. Goodman played this with spirit. The final item on the program was Wieniawski's Airs Russes, which, as the title suggests, are little songs that just drip with the glories of Mother Russia. These were played very well, and some interesting effects were achieved, but this has little to do with music.

During most of the evening, Mr. Goodman played, very well, but the specific inadequacies of this concert raises some questions. Specifically, why do concertmasters want to be soloists? It would seem obvious that both these musical endeavours are entirely absorbing and rewarding, but in different ways, just as the genius of the good piano accompanist is not the same as the solo pianist. Mr. Goodman is an excellent concertmaster, but if he imagines that he has reached the heights in his field and must branch out into other fields to attain artistic satisfaction, it is only necessary to point out the work of Mischa Mischakoff with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra to show him where his aspirations might lie.

Leo Barkin, at the piano, was noble throughout. One hopes that he received a generous fee; he earned every penny of it.

Dorothy Mikos

uproar

House would tip over into maudlin politeness or an embarrassing joke. But the, by artfully sugar-coating their plea for, and disarmament, achieve a subtle blend of didacticism and looney nonsense. The film that is wackily profound.

Ted Schafer

gaily

Another "Midnight" In Montreal?

McGill Daily this year bears a great resemblance to the famous Midnight, also published in Montreal.

The seventh issue sports a long story on the front page entitled "Torture of Algerians Condemned" and in painstaking detail the various tortures the are supposed to have suffered.

The testimony of a Miss Djamilia Bouhired is quoted as she tells of "electrode treatments". She says the were placed in or on portions of her body "which bore the mark".

is fine, and possibly some good can be obtained from this article. Perhaps the description of the tortures is enough revulsion among the students that they personally torture any Algerians. This is doubtful. In an earlier issue, however, the McGill Daily surprised. In one issue they managed to print no less than separate articles of a type usually found in a tabloid.

The first item we come across is a picture, labeled "Is scene?". It is, it's blurred, and looks as if it have come from a back issue of the National Geographic magazine, but legally it's obscene.

The picture is an article by Leon A. Jakobovits, "The Law On Obscenity".

Jakobovits speaks of the "damaging effect of the husband's view of sex instilled in children by their parents", and says much adult maladjustment can be traced back to tensions caused by sexual repression in scientific and artistic works have often been banned on a prudish judge's shallow interpretation of what is "obscene," he says, and points out that the recent code definition of obscenity in Canada does not take into account the difficulty of personal interpretation.

Jakobovits advocates the abolition of the law on obscenity.

We read this suggestion, and then turn to page six where the article is concluded. We finish it. Then we turn our eyes upwards, and read a poem entitled "Sex".

The author, writing under the name of Panurge, says sex is "love with the romance removed". This is fascinating and we read on to find the writer is apparently frustrated. Although "some use it as a whip to beat away grey boredom," the poet knows it "through reports alone".

We finish the poem. Immediately above it in turn is an article called "Sexual Segregation", by Allan Shaich.

In spite of the eye-catching title, this article has something fairly new to say. Shaich points out that there is practically no social intercourse between the two sexes on campus.

"The predominant attitude seems to be," he says, "Friday night I go out on a booze with the boys, Saturday I have a date."

He complains there is little casual relationship between college men and women. These relationships can be, he stresses, much more fruitful than the "intense, over-self-conscious ritual of the conventionalized meetings between men and women."

The McGill Daily isn't the only Montreal paper to cash in on sex this year. Le Quartier Latin, published by the University of Montreal, recently ran a two-page spread which was mostly homosexual.

"Let a person tell you he is a homosexual, and immediately your whole relationship takes on a new perspective," say the co-authors, Jean-Claude Germain and Pierre Maheu. Well... yes, we imagine it would.

Alan Walker

UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICE

SALK POLIO VACCINE

MEN ONLY

Any male student who received his first two Salk polio vaccine injections at least seven months ago may come to the Health Service for a third injection at the following times:—

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 19th — 9:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 24th — 9:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m.

Any male student who has not yet had Salk polio vaccine injections but would like to begin a series will be given an opportunity to do so in January.

SPORTS SCHEDULES — Week of Nov. 23rd

LACROSSE—Mon. Nov. 23
1:00 Vic. I	vs U.C.I	Barrett, DePetrillo
4:00 I Pre-Med	vs St. B	Barrett, Grist
1:00 SPS. VI	vs U.C. II	Hill, Roth
6:30 Pharm.	vs II Pre-Med	Naylor, Spanetz
7:30 SPS. I	vs St. M. A	Naylor, Spanetz
8:30 Knox	vs SPS. IV	Naylor, Spanetz
1:00 SPS. II	vs Vic. II	Hill, Roth
6:30 U.C. I	vs Med. A	Brown, Chubb
7:30 Med. I Yr	vs Trin	Brown, Chubb
8:30 SPS. III	vs Law	Brown, Chubb
Thur. Nov. 26	1:00 SPS. I	vs Vic. I	Naylor, Misenner
End of regular schedule, playoffs start next week. Teams which may be involved in a group playoff, please check with Intramural office.
VOLLEYBALL—Mon. Nov. 23
1:00 UC Frat Notes	vs SPS. J	Stein
4:00 UC Sigma Alphas	vs Pre-Med I B	Drainin
5:00 Pre-Med I C	vs Vic Caven	Drainin
6:00 Dent. I Yr.	vs Med. IV Yr B	Drainin
1:00 SPS. A	vs UC Beta Sigs	Stein
6:30 UC London	vs SPS. J	Goldman
7:30 Pharm. B	vs Arch	Goldman
8:30 For. B	vs Wyc. B	Goldman
Wed. Nov. 25	1:00 Pre-Med I C	vs St. M. VIII	Pomerant
5:00 Med. III Yr	vs SPS. D	Dugan
Major	6:00 Pharm.	vs Med	Perkons
	7:00 Wyc. A	vs Pharm. A	Perkons
	8:00 St. M. V	vs Trin	Perkons
Thur. Nov. 26	1:00 SPS. III	vs St. M.	Dreynik
Major	4:00 St. M. I	vs UC Beta Sigs	Cochill
	6:30 SPS. A	vs Dent. II Yr	Granatstein
Major	7:30 Knox	vs Sr. SPS	Granatstein
	8:30 UC London	vs St. M. VII	Granatstein
Fri. Nov. 27	1:00 SPS. D	vs St. M. VI	Pomerant
	4:00 Pre-Med	vs St. M. VII	Stein
	5:00 SPS. Kremilins	vs Dent. III Yr	Stein
SQUASH—Mon. Nov. 23
1:00 Trin. A	vs Sr. SPS
5:40 St. M. C	vs Dent. E
Tues. Nov. 24	6:20 Trin. D	vs Dent. F
	7:00 UC III	vs Dent. D
Wed. Nov. 25	1:00 SPS. IV	vs V.C. II
	5:40 Trin. B	vs Law A
	7:00 Law B	vs Wyc.
Thur. Nov. 26	1:00 Vic. I	vs Jr. SPS
	5:20 UC II	vs Dent. E
HOCKEY—Mon. Nov. 23
4:00 UC I V	vs Vic. IV	Kuzminski, Schaffran
Tues. Nov. 24	6:30 Law	vs Enman	Egan, McCulloch
Wed. Nov. 25	12:30 Med IV	vs SPS. VIII	Vandermeulen, Sadowy
	1:20 Trin. B	vs SPS V	Stinson, Cader
	4:00 St. M. D	vs V.C. V	Brunst, Schaffran
Thur. Nov. 26	12:30 St. M. B	vs SPS. III	Gendron, Blute
	1:30 SPS. VI	vs Trin. C	Gendron, Reimer
	4:00 Wyc.	vs Forestry	Laurie, Cur
	6:30 Pharm.	vs Knox	Brunst, Ingram
Fri. Nov. 27	12:30 Trin. A	vs Sr. SPS	Laurie, Sadowy
	1:30 SPS. VII	vs Dent. O	Harvey, Stinson
	4:40 Vic. II	vs UC II	Eard, Burt
	5:00 Dent. D	vs Med. III	Bard, Gidney

Lecture on Christian Science

TO BE GIVEN BY JAMES WATT

The present availability of divine healing will be the topic of a free, public lecture to be given in Toronto on 19th November by James Watt of Washington, D.C.

On extended tour as a member of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship, Mr. Watt speaks in Victoria College Student Union, 150 Charles St. West, at 8 p.m. under the auspices of The Christian Science Organization of The University of Toronto. His subject will be Christian Science: The Healing Science of the Christ.

Former Manager of the Washington, D.C. Office of the Christian Science Committee on Publication, Mr. Watt has traveled widely.

During World War II, Mr. Watt served as a Chaplain in the United States Army. A graduate of the Illinois Institute of Technology, he was formerly associated with various engineering companies in the United States and abroad. Later he was Director of Research and Western Manager for The Advertising Checking Bureau, with headquarters in Chicago. He has devoted his full time to the practice of Christian Science healing and to the service of the Christian Science Organization since 1942.

TYPING

Theses, Essays, Notes, Charts, French, German, Latin, English. Prices Upon Request.

Apt. 12

21 AVENUE RD. — W. 4-7624
MRS. M. D. STOTT, B.A.

UNIVERSITY BLAZERS

Custom Made

Especially Priced for Students

$27.50

Fine Flannel Worsted Trousers

$16.50

Business Hours: 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.
Monday through Saturday

Suits Made to Measure
Latest Styles and Design

PARNES Clothing Co.

706 QUEEN STREET WEST

EM. 6-2025

Sample at S.A.C. Office

SMC Rift Healed

Continued From Page One

Sullivan's letter said he felt he lacked "the confidence of the students, the Council, and the Executive Committee — all of which is necessary to fulfill the duties of the office".

He said his resignation came after opposition to all major pieces of legislation proposed by the executive. He said he had been threatened with resignations by key council members, and with physical violence by SMC students.

A motion to accept his resignation was defeated 14-1.

Further motions to express confidence in Sullivan and his executive and to request Sullivan to withdraw his resignation were passed 14-0 with one abstention.

Only opposer to the motion was council member George Saruchuk.

Sullivan refused to make a statement as to whether he would withdraw his motion. He said there was "more pertinent business to come before council which will have a great effect on the personal decision which I have to make". He promised to declare himself on the issue before the end of council's session.

Moving into the opposite side of the controversy, council then heard a report from Tom Sutherland, Fine Arts Chairman and producer of Mickities.

Mr. Sutherland said Robin Barron, only non-SMC student on the Mickities cast list, had resigned his position as a Mickities dancer.

Sutherland said with Barron's resignation the Mickities cast was now composed only of SMC students and he gave his personal guarantee that further positions would be filled by SMC students until council passed a by-law regulating Mickities membership.

Council adopted Sutherland's report, emphasizing that by doing so it endorsed Sutherland's casting policy.

Council member Jim Beingsner then moved that council express "complete confidence in Mickities '60, in its producer, director, cast and technical staff".

Sullivan announced that he now withdrew his resignation "because I want very much to be able to vote on this motion".

Council passed the confidence motion unanimously.

In other business passed during the session, the SMC council authorized investigation of possibilities of:

—sponsoring and hosting a seminar of Ontario Catholic colleges on "The Role of a Catholic College" or a similar topic.

—sponsoring a lectureship on philosophy or political science.

Both measures were proposed by Sullivan.

Ontario officials yesterday said the Department of Education will probably agree to continue the Ontario Scholarship, "the most popular scholarship in the province. The scholarship gives $400 to high-standing grade 13 students who want to attend university.

It was offered last spring for the first time, and proved so popular that the Toronto Board of Education decided to drop its own grade 13 awards.

The reason for the popularity of the Ontario Scholarship is that there are no "strings" attached.

The Toronto Board's awards tied the students to a teaching career upon graduation.

Plan U of O Committee Over Handbook Dispute

OTTAWA, Nov. 17 (CUP)—A plan for a committee to study the proposed student constitution and the controversial student manual at the University of Ottawa was announced this week.

Headed by the student president, the committee will consist of representatives from both student newspapers, (English and French), the National Federation of Canadian University Students and the faculties on campus, including professors of law and political science.

Among the manual's many rules which have been attacked, is one which does not allow on campus "books, papers, magazines or other publications contrary to Christian doctrine or morality".

Another rule states: "The University reserves the right to supervise and, if necessary, to regulate the conduct of students living outside of University residences."

A "Department of Student Affairs" is named as the university agency responsible for the control of campus organizations.

All organizations must have their constitutions approved by this department, and they must accept a "faculty advisor" at "all ordinary and extraordinary meetings".

The decision to examine the handbook and the proposed student constitution came after a student council meeting last weekend.

CLASSIFIED ADS.

CHEMISTRY TUITION

Given — Call: WA. 5-3779

EXPERT THESIS TYPIST

Fast personalized service (Electric machine). Irene Kenyon, 146 Bernard Avenue, WA. 3-4011.

DRESS ALTERATIONS

Quality workmanship, fast service. Harbord at St. George. Call Mrs. Zador, after 10 a.m. WA. 3-6960

COACHING

Calculus, Accounting, Introductory lessons on: Theory of Compound Interest, and Life Contingencies.

Call RU. 3-257 evenings

You are invited to a series of three cliché-free talks on

BASIC PERSONAL PROBLEMS

David A. Stewart, M.A., Ph.D., will attempt to survey modern man's dilemma, as an individual and a member of society. Dr. Stewart is a practising psychologist, writer and consultant to the Brookside Clinic for Alcoholics.

November 19th — Money, Power and Sex

November 26th — Personal Freedom, Creative Living and Love

December 3rd — The Practice of Empathy

All talks start at 8 p.m. Discussion follows

First Unitarian Church

175 St. Clair Ave. W., Toronto

WITH YOUR EDUCATION AND ABILITY...*YOU CAN BE AN OFFICER*THROUGH C. O. T. C.

Develop your leadership qualities, acquire new technical skills and benefit financially, while continuing your courses, by joining the Canadian Officer Training Corps.

- C.O.T.C. TRAINING does NOT obligate you in any way to full time military service.
- ON GRADUATION, you will have the Queen's Commission either as a Regular Force Lieutenant or as a Militia Lieutenant (qualified Captain).
- SUMMER EMPLOYMENT is a big benefit provided by the C.O.T.C. You are paid an officer's salary during your summer training courses each year.

For full information see

CAPTAIN V. A. GEORGE

119 ST. GEORGE STREET

SPS AND TRINITY WIN

SKULE EDGE MEDS 13-6

IN HARD FOUGHT GAME

Remarkably Few Fumbles

By NOEL BATES

Trinity College Black Panthers showed why they are considered a strong contender for the Mullock Cup this year as they defeated Junior Skule 26-0 in what might be termed an ice bowl at Varsity Stadium yesterday afternoon.

Trinity did not waste any time breaking into the scoring column when at the three minute mark of the first quarter, John Swinden took Lynn MacMurray's long pass for the Panther's first TD. The convert failed when a pass was attempted.

MacMurray again on his third pass of the day, connected with Keith Acheson for a 32 yard pass and run play for Trinity's second major of the afternoon. Roger Young added the convert.

A single point was tallied on MacMurray's kick when an Engineer was tackled behind his goal line.

The Skule team were not to be daunted though, as they came back on a "hot-potato" play which set Porter free for a 40 yard run. With the addition of a penalty, the Skule boys had a chance to score, but a dropped pass on the last play of the first half left the scoreboard unchanged.

In the second half Trinity carried the ball for most of the time but were stopped short on several marches by a stubborn Skule defence led by Dinsmore, Sturdee, and Young.

No scoring occurred until the early minutes of the fourth quarter when Barry Matheson climaxed a Trinity drive by bursting off tackle for fifteen yards and the third touchdown of the day for the winners.

The final six points were added in the last minutes of the game when Rusty Dunbar took a pitchout from MacMurray on the option play to go over the line.

Game conditions were not the most desirable and several of the players forsook their cleats for running shoes.

This win puts Panthers in the semi's against Dents on Friday.

Just notes . . . Matheson went well all game, running strongly up the middle and off tackle . . . both lines played hard but the heavier Trinity line slowly wore down their opponents as the game progressed . . . Acheson, Dunbar and MacMurray were standouts for the Panthers.

UC LACROSSE TEAM WINS 15-5

Naylor Best

HOCKEY STARTS

UC-PHE continued unbeaten in Intramural Lacrosse as they slaughtered SPS I 15-5 in a Hart House encounter Monday.

High-scoring Walt Naylor paced the UC attack with five goals, Howie Roth added another four, John Lawrence was Skule's best as he counted three times.

Other UC scorers were: Fleming (3), Mills (2), and Fraser, Galbraith and Wallace also counted for the Engineers.

SPS I whipped Vic I 4-0 in a Division One quarter-final match. Atuiha (2), Hilgenburg, and Berkely scored for the winners. In the other quarter-final, Chris Carr's three goals paced Trinity Black Panthers to a 3-0 defeat of St. Mike's "B".

Other Lacrosse action saw SPS II beat SPS VI 6-3. McGovern (2), Stinson (2), Back and Hall scored for the winners; Gibson (2), and Betty for the losers.

In Volleyball, SPS "H" whipped Vic M.F.H.'s 15-8, 15-11. SPS V defeated Pre-Med I "C" 15-5, 15-0.

Trinity C defeated Vic II in the only squash action scheduled, Adamson and Mill posted victories for the winners.

Intramural hockey action gets started tomorrow at the Bloor Street Ice Emporium. The only Group One game scheduled is that between Victoria and Trinity.

Trinity won Group Two last season and thus will be getting their first crack at the top group in some years. Victoria are rated as co-favourites with UC-PHE for this year's championship.

The big question mark on the Vic team is the defence. Last year's goalie has graduated and there is only one hold over defenceman.

STEVE CHISHOLM

Chisholm Wins Copp

Voted Most Valuable

Veteran halfback Steve Chisholm, co-captain of the University of Toronto Blues, was chosen yesterday as this year's Johnny Copp Trophy winner.

The trophy is awarded annually to the member of the Blues football team, who, in the opinion of his teammates, is the most valuable player in terms of sportsmanship, character and playing ability.

Chisholm played high school football at Port Credit, Ont., and joined the Varsity squad in 1957 after a successful freshman year at the University of South Carolina. He now is in his final year of engineering physics.

The Varsity is proud to present THE SAM AJZENSTAT MEMORIAL PAGE, a sincere and lasting tribute to some of our beloved editors' more prominent foibles. Further Memorial Pages will be presented as the occasion arises. This public service message is presented with the compliments of The Varsity's News and Sports departments.

MULOCK GAMES

PANTHERS WIN EASILY

WHITEWASH SKULE 26-0

Matheson Outstanding

By NOEL BATES

BLUES PLAY MACEDONIANS

Game Time 5:00

STEPHEN TO STAR

The Varsity Hockey Blues play their second game of the season tonight at 5:00 p.m. at the Bloor Street Ice Emporium when they oppose the Macedonians of the East York Industrial League.

Macedonians boast several old Blues' players, including Red Stephen, an eight year veteran of the Varsity team, and Claire Fisher who played here three seasons ago.

Blues are currently preparing for their trip to St. Lawrence and Canton, N.Y., this weekend where they are expected to meet their first serious opposition before the Intercollegiate schedule starts next Friday.

Any fans wishing to see to-nights exciting battle will be admitted free if they care to brave the icy elements to reach the Emporium.

WOMEN'S VOLLEYBALL TRYOUTS COMMENCE

All Welcome

TONIGHT AT 7.30

Intercollegiate tryouts for Women's volleyball will be held on Wednesday, Nov. 18 and Thursday, Nov. 19, from 5:30 to 7:30 at the Upper Gym in the new Women's Athletic Building this week.

Anyone interested in playing this year is welcome. The schedule of games this year is as follows:

Dec. 3—TORONTO at Western
Jan. 5—Western at TORONTO
Jan. 20—OAC and McMaster at TORONTO
Feb. 1—TORONTO and McMaster at OAC
Feb. 6—Queen's at TORONTO
Feb. 12 & 13—Intercollegiate Tournament at McGill

Sr. Skule won a 13-6 football game yesterday afternoon against Meds at Varsity Stadium and gained a semi-final berth in the Mullock Cup competition as a result.

Playing under the adverse conditions of sub-freezing weather and biting winds, the Skule men, although they seemed to have a much superior team, could make little headway as far as scoring went.

On their first chance to score, a penalty caused Tony Schafer's TD to be called back. However, on the second try, Schafer was successful and the score was 6-0. The convert was blocked.

In the second quarter the Engineers moved down the field on a TD march climaxed by a twenty yard touchdown pass from Derek Lunn to Jamie Edwards for the second score of the game.

The convert was again missed, and the half ended with the SPS team holding a twelve point lead.

In the second half, the doctors played a much better game, and Fear, running from the half-back spot, broke through on a dive play and cut to his right for a 70 yard TD run and the first score for Meds. The convert was missed.

The game then became quite a battle as the Meds team needed only a converted TD to win.

Two plays turned the tide against the Medsman. Lunn recovered a bad snap and his subsequent good kick to score a 50 yard single, and Ernie Kovacs' interception of a pass late in the fourth quarter to stop a Meds' drive were the key plays.

Final score was 13-6. The Skule team were slowed down considerably by too many penalties, and they should have done better.

Friday's game will see Victoria up against the well-balanced and reasonably strong SPS team and if the latter can keep clear of penalties the favored Vic squad can expect quite a battle.

Just notes . . . Patterson, Fear and Turner were the highlights of the Meds backfield . . . Mannerow was good for Skule even though he didn't break into the scoring . . . Metzling was strong along the line for the Engineers . . . last year if some people remember, it was this same SPS team that knocked out favored Trinity in the semi's.

... and in this corner

by sharon milgram

For quite a while now I have been hearing and reporting on the advantages of the Women's Athletic Building and I am definitely convinced of these advantages. But, until just about now, I really hadn't considered the disadvantages of the building. Had you?

Actually, the disadvantage I have in mind doesn't stem from the physical structure of the building nor from the facilities therein, but rather from the fact of the building. Confused? Well so was I until I figured out what I meant.

Now, follow me—if there were no new WAB "Gathletics" would proceed in a normal spread out fashion. Feminine freshmen would go to PHE classes, learn a little about the athletic life on the campus, be introduced to sports in which they would not likely have participated in high school and quite possibly partake in these sports on the interfaculty or even intercollegiate level.

But with the building being almost ready for the Fall term all these things have been delayed, thus a lack of participation in "gathletics" by Freshies.

This need not be necessary. Club presidents have been hard at work setting up schedules and arranging for instructions for those wishing to learn or improve an athletic skill. So girls, why not take advantage of the available sport instead of using the delay of the full use of one of the best things that could have happened to females on campus, the WAB as a lame excuse for lack of participation.

GAMES TODAY

SOCCER—(PLAYOFF)		North 3.15	Knox	vs	Arch	Bugarski, Hansen, Bonfield
LACROSSE		6.30	SPS-IV	vs	Pharm.	Barrett, Chubb
		7.30	Law	vs	Med I Yr.	Barrett, Chubb
VOLLEYBALL		4.00	St. M. VIII	vs	UC Prat Nota	Pomerant
		5.00	St. M. I	vs	SPS B	Pomerant
(Major)		6.00	UC	vs	Med	Perkons
		7.00	UC McCaul	vs	UC Wallace	Perkons
		8.00	UC Jeanneret	vs	Trin.	Perkons
SQUASH		1.00	Vic IV	vs	St. M. D
		4.20	Vic. III	vs	UC III
		5.40	Dent. E	vs	Pre-Med I Yr.
		7.00	Dent. C	vs	Law. B

GAMES THURSDAY

SOCCER (Playoff)		North 12.15	St. M. A	vs	Sr. SPS	Avis, Jensen, Bonfield
(Playoff)		North 3.15	Law	vs	Forestry	Avis or Green, Ryan, Jensen
LACROSSE		1.00	SPS. III	vs	Trin.	Grist, Haskill
		4.00	I Pre-Med	vs	Vic. II	Hill, Grist
		6.30	Med A	vs	St. M. A	Naylor, Misener
		7.30	Knox	vs	II Pre-Med.	Naylor, Misener
		8.30	Dent	vs	SPS. II	Naylor, Misener
VOLLEYBALL		1.00	SPS. C	vs	St. M. III	Dugan
		4.00	Emman	vs	For. A	Draimin
(Major)		6.30	Sr. SPS	vs	Pharm	Perkons
		7.30	SPS III	vs	Knox	Perkons
		8.30	Vic Caven	vs	UC London	Perkons
SQUASH		1.00	SPS. VI	vs	St. M. C
		6.20	Dent. D	vs	SPS. V
HOCKEY		12.30	Jr. SPS	vs	Vic II	Blute, Egan
		1.30	Vic I	vs	Trin. A	Cedron, Reimer
		4.00	Arch	vs	Emman	Shaffran, Laurie
		6.30	Dent. A	vs	Med I	Bruat, Ingram

VARSITY NEEDS YOU

5.30 - 10.00 P.M.

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 30

FOR

"THE BIG BLITZ"

The All-Varsity Student Canvass Of Homes In Metropolitan Toronto

SHOW YOUR LOYALTY

TO YOUR UNIVERSITY

(and your College or Faculty, too!)

IN THIS ONE STUDENT EFFORT ON BEHALF OF THE NATIONAL FUND

SIGN UP TODAY!

With your S.A.C. or E.A.C. Rep. or your RESIDENCE COUNCIL PRESIDENT

"BLITZ" CHAIRMAN

ARCH:	George Hume
DENT:	Maurice Sera
EMMAN:	Frank Lockhart
ENGIN:	Mike Dorfman
FOR:	Tony Jennings
KNOX:	Doug Blue
LAW:	Peter Mandell
MED:	Don Armitage
MUSIC:	Anita Dubois
NURS:	Joyce Anderson
PHAR:	Don Buckingham
P.H.E.	Thory Milton
P.O.T.	Ruth West
ST. MICH.	Paul Arends
"	Jane Hungerford
TRIN:	Doug Ward
ST. HIL:	Jane Watson
U.C.	Linda Bannock
VIC:	Alison Dingle
WYCLIFFE:	Robert Brown

OPEN

NEW DOORS

AT

VARSITY!

CARS

ARE NEEDED

Your "Blitz" Committee is trying to arrange for some buses to take student-canvassers to their assigned areas Nov. 30. But cars will be needed as well. Any students who have cars of their own or whose parents are willing to serve as drivers, are urged to give this information to their "Blitz" chairmen.

Wild Welcome To Carabins Loaded With Brass, Booze

By TERRY BOURKE

Toronto's old Union Station rocked and rolled last night as the University of Montreal Carabins hit the city for a weekend splash of parties, sight-seeing, lectures and good will.

Over 50 University of Toronto Carabins showed up at the station to serve their French Canadian cousins one of the wildest and noisiest welcomes on record.

As the French Carabins poured through the train gates singing their "Alma Mater", a small orgy of music and shouts broke loose, echoing throughout the huge waiting room.

U of T students rushed forth to shake hands with a bit of French Canada. As faces of old friends loomed in the crowd, there were hearty hellos and "allos" and much to talk about.

Toronto cheerleaders, decked out in white jackets and short blue dresses bounced, jumped, and yelled out a rousing version of "The Toronto Song."

Male students, wearing long touques striped in blue and white, strummed out a lively assortment of melodies, including some French ballads.

Brass flashed, and drums drummed as the U of T band blared and bugled forth its own kind of a musical welcome.

A crowd of curious spectators looked on as the French and English of two great universities staged their riotous and ritual greeting.

Despite all the movement, one of the U of T Carabins ended up disappointed. Earlier in the week his Carabin or companion for the weekend had been posted as one called "Francoise".

The unidentified student turned up at the station in his best Sunday suit, well groomed, the model of perfect manhood.

As he strained his eyes almost in a state of ecstasy, looking for his expected pretty Carabin the whole U of M group passed him by.

Then just as he was about to leave, some one tapped him on the shoulder. He wheeled out around, and there was a U of M student facing him, clutching two suit cases.

Both persons stared blankly at each other for a moment, then the French Canadian spoke:

"Allo, my name is François. I am your Carabin."

The U of T student looked startled, then put out his hand. "Welcome," he said.

Later the Carabins were hustled into cars and driven to the Trinity Buttery for a grand reception there.

Today the Carabins will tour Hart House, attend a Student's Administrative Council luncheon, and sit in on several lectures.

Then another luncheon will be given tomorrow in the King Edward's Sheraton Room, by the City of Toronto.

Au revoir will be said over tea at the Victoria College Union. Hosts will be the U of T French Club.

And then it's good-bye for another year.

KICKING AND SCREAMING U of T students welcome Carabins to happy Toronto weekend.

(Varsity staff photo by Horban)

Wild Manitoba Students Disrupt Pinkish Confab

WINNIPEG, Nov. 19, (CUP)—A meeting of the Socialist Youth League at the University of Manitoba, which ended in chaos following a demonstration by 100 non-members, will be held again next week with the same speaker.

Tuesday the laughing, shouting, drum-beating demonstrators invaded the engineering building to end the speech of Alderman Jacob Penner, who was speaking on the inevitability of Communism.

A spokesman for the demonstrators said that the interruption "was staged as a protest against the Student-Marxist attack on Dave Humphreys."

Humphreys is editor of The Manitoban, the University of Manitoba undergraduate newspaper.

Two weeks ago, Humphreys interviewed Ed Sullivan about the alleged executions of 150 Hungarians.

The Student-Marxist, an organ of the Socialist Youth League, attacked Humphreys for publishing Sullivan's claims.

During the rally the demonstrators strode into the room wearing fur hats and great coats, chanting "Russia, Russia, land of the free."

Someone screamed "Communists go home!" and another shoved through the crowd to shout "You capitalist war monger" and then fired a starter's pistol.

From this point on, the crowd became uncontrollable. Insults were hurled back and

(Continued on Page 10)

Officials Think Blitz Deadline Today Will See Canvass Quota Completed

By SUSIE BRESLIN

With a deadline today for University of Toronto's "Big Blitz" of metropolitan Toronto, officials said last night there's a good chance the 3,000-student quota may be reached.

Figures from all colleges and faculties are scanty, but two colleges—St. Michael's and St. Hilda's—have already topped their quota of volunteers.

On the other side of the scale, both Medicine and Engineering report a "very poor" turn-out of students for the five-hour canvassing campaign.

Students will approach about 70,000 residents of Toronto's north-central districts for contributions to U of T's National $75,000 for the fund.

The blitz is the only opportunity U of T students will have to contribute to the university fund-raising campaign.

It also represents the only chance Toronto residents will have to contribute to the fund. Previous campaigning has been among U of T graduates by alumni volunteers.

The mammoth drive, which will involve about 3,500 students including administrative and committee assistants, is scheduled for 5.30-10 p.m. Nov. 30.

All volunteers must sign up by 5 p.m. today. Lists will then be handed over to officials for administrative details. Volunteers will approach about 20-25 homes each.

The 3,500 figure represents about one-third of U of T's available enrolment. Both the Ontario College of Education and the School of Social Work have been left out of the campaign. Students in the two faculties will be involved in

(Continued on Page 2)

BARRED by a grill in the Trinity College Chapel, John Saxton and Ramsay Perney rehearse a scene from T. S. Eliot's "Murder in the Cathedral" which has been "barred" to most university students. The Trinity dramatic Society performance next week has already been sold out—mostly to high school students. Story on Page Two. (Dramatic Society Photo)

Licensing Unions Said Step To Hitler Labor

By TERRY BOURKE

A Canadian labor boss told University of Toronto students Wednesday night any government attempts to enforce incorporation or licensing of trade unions will be the first step in the resurrection of a "Hitler labor front."

William Mahoney, National Director of the United Steel Workers of America, was speaking in a panel on the "Responsibilities of Trades Unions" to a packed crowd in the Hart House Debates Room.

Other members of the panel, sponsored by the Faculty of Law, included Professor H. D. Woods of the Industrial Relations Centre, McGill University, J. C. Adams, Central Ontario Industrial Relations Institute, and Toronto Barrister J. H. Osler. Moderator was Law Dean Cecil Wright.

Mr. Mahoney said licensing of unions "would create peace and harmony, but the peace and harmony of a jail is not what free trades unions are seeking."

Earlier in the evening Mr. Adams fired a blast at the government for failing to pass any concrete legislation giving unions legal status in society.

"At the moment unions enjoy a privileged and unique position in the community. They can get away with almost anything short of murder before legal action can be taken."

He suggested that unions like city "be granted a licence for operations. This in turn he said would give them legal status to either sue or be sued."

"Unions would become part and parcel of society as they have always been reluctant to become. In a word; they would be taken into the bosom of the community," he said.

Mr. Osler pointed out it would be of little advantage to unions to become incorporated.

They would be placed in a position where it would be easy for industry "to get them" he said.

Switching the topic to strikes Mr. Mahoney said a wildcat walkout is seldom the fault of any action by a union.

"A union, unlike management cannot fire its members over a disagreement. Persuasion and diplomacy must be used by union officials to soothe

(Continued on Page 9)

NATIONAL DIRECTOR of the United Steel Workers of America W. Mahoney, (centre) who highlighted a HH panel on labor, makes a point to Law Dean Wright (left) and Prof. Woods of McGill. (Varsity Staff Photo by Shaw)

CURRENT EVENTS

TODAY

8.00 p.m. — The Executive of the U of T Space Club

Holds its first meeting of the year in Wymilwood. Professor N. Flong of the U of T Aero physics Dept., will lecture on "The Technical Failure of American Rockets".

SATURDAY

8.30 p.m. — Everybody is invited to the SCM party

At the Coach House, 110 St. George St. There will be games, food and dancing for all.

8.30 p.m. — China Night

An evening of dance, Chinese folk songs, folk dance and excerpts from the Peking Opera, will take place in Trinity Convocation Hall.

SUNDAY

8.45 p.m. — The SCM will hold a Fireside Dinner

In the Coach House, 110 St. George St. Mrs. Howard Norman will speak on "Japan Today".

MONDAY

4.00 p.m. — Tea will be served at the Graduate Students' Union

44 Hoskin Avenue.

7.00 p.m. — The Hart House Amateur Radio Club

And visitors are invited to tour Radio Valve Co. Ltd., a semi-automatic cathode ray plant. The plant is at the south west corner of Hwy 401 and Islington Ave. Students who wish to go and need transportation are asked to call the Hart House Undergraduate office.

7.30 p.m. — Badminton will be sponsored

By the Graduate Students' Union, 119 St. George Street.

TUESDAY

1.20 p.m. — Vic non-hour Concert

Will feature Dan Yielding (baritone) in the Music Room, Wymilwood.

TYPING

French, Essays, Notes, Charts, French, German, Latin, English. Prices Upon Request

21 AVENUE RD.—WA. 2-7624
MRS. M. D. STOTT, B.A.

Sports • Trophies • Games

Before you buy, give WILSON'S a try

WHOLESALE PRICES TO EVERYONE

The HAROLD A. WILSON
CO. OF TORONTO LTD.
328 DUPONT STREET

DIAMOND RINGS

SAVE THE BIG MARK-UP BY BUYING YOUR DIAMOND RINGS DIRECT OUR PRICES ARE UNBEATABLE

Tel: Empire 8-5268

WINSTALL DIAMOND CORP.

1219 Bank of Comm. Bldg. Toronto, Ontario

25 King St. West

jazz!

HOUSE OF HAMBOURG
GRENVILLE at YONGE

Fri: 11 p.m. Phil Nimmons Big Band

Sat: 11.00 p.m. — 3.30 a.m.

Sunday: 9.00 p.m. — 12.00 a.m.

TYPEWRITERS

$1.00 A WEEK BUYS . . .

. . . $1.50 A WEEK RENTS

Get a free typing course and a liberal trade-in allowance for your old typewriter when you buy a new modern machine from us.

Phone HO. 1-1843 Today

Sheila Billing with HOWARD FOGARTY
HIS PIANO AND HIS ORCHESTRA at the

Cloud Room

FRIDAY 9.30 p.m.—1.00 a.m. • SATURDAY 9.00 p.m.—12.00 p.m.

No Cover Charge for Dinner Guests

For Reservations call CH. 4-1151

NO MINIMUM

Skylight Hotel

DIXON ROAD AT HIGHWAY 27

NO MINIMUM

DANCING NIGHTLY • FREE PARKING • COFFEE SHOP • COMPLETE BANQUET FACILITIES

High School Students Grab Tickets For Sold-Out Cathedral Spectacular

By SUSIE BRESLIN

A spectacular production of T. S. Eliot's "Murder in the Cathedral" has been virtually barred to University of Toronto students.

The production by the Trinity College Dramatic Society in Trinity's Gothic chapel includes organ and chorus accompaniment. The seven-night run has already been sold out—over half to Toronto high school matriculation students.

Society officials say they offered blocks of tickets to Toronto high schools at a reduced rate in the hope that the production would break a Society financial losing streak.

The offer had a giant response, and 800 of the 1400 available seats were sold out. Several prospective high school viewers were turned down.

The remaining 600 tickets went to reviewers, patrons, faculty and Trinity students. The demand for tickets at Trinity alone cannot be filled, and students in other faculties and colleges have been turned away or put on a "long" waiting list, Society president Vals Ecklin said last night.

The seven-night stand—Nov. 23-26, 28, 30 and 31—has already been extended from a five-night run. Cast members are unwilling to take on additional work, Miss Ecklin said.

The Trinity chapel seats 200. Tickets for high school students cost 50 cents, for others 75 cents.

The spectacular production is directed by James Cunningham and produced by Steve Otto. Costume designer is Martha Mann. It features a husband-wife team — John Saxton as Archbishop Thomas, and his wife Juliana Gionelli as the lead female.

Cunningham will also play the part of one of the three tempters. The cast number 24, plus a choir.

Eliot's classic play is based on the story of the assassination of Archbishop Thomas a Becket during the reign of Henry II. The play is on the reading list for high school matriculation English courses, and is also on the second-year General English course this year.

Blitz Continued From Page One

Fund Nov. 30. The giant blitz is expected to collect about field work the week of the campaign.

Blitz committee chairman Barbara Leaman said last night student reception of the plan has been "much better than I'd expected. The university has surprised me."

"It will be a hard struggle, but I think we'll make the quota", she said.

Student volunteers will be assembled in eight spots around the campus the night of the blitz. They will be given a light meal, and supplied with canvassing kits, arm-bands and official pre-numbered university receipts.

Prospective donors will be informed of the blitz by letter before the campaign, and will be sent cheque forms in preparation for the canvass.

Volunteers will be served coffee and donuts after the blitz. A dance in the Drill Hall has been scheduled.

The National Fund has promised assistance with providing transportation for student canvassers.

Following is a rough breakdown of student reaction in most colleges and faculties:

Excellent: SMC, St. Hilda's, Nursing.

Very Good: Music, Trinity.

Good: Victoria, Forestry, UC.

Poor: P&OT, Wycliffe, Dentistry, Pharmacy, Law, Emmanuel.

Very Poor: Meds, SPS, Architecture.

U of T FLYING CLUB MEETING

Wed. Nov 25th

8. p.m.

Music Room — Hart House

FILM, featuring the F 104 (This is the aircraft which is replacing the Avro Arrow)

Refreshments will be served. Come and Bring Your Friends

Dear Diary...

As I take my pen in hand, I take my bottle of Coke in the other hand! Yes, dear diary, where would I be without Coca-Cola? Just a social outcast. Why, everybody drinks Coke! John and Bill and Barry and Chailey. Horace too. Confidentially, I think I'll have another bottle of Coke.

SIGN OF GOOD TASTE

SAY 'COKE' OR 'COCA-COLA'—BOTH TRADE MARKS MEAN THE PRODUCT OF COCA-COLA LTD.—THE WORLD'S BEST-LOVED SPARKLING DRINK.

Labor Leader Defends Student Charge Trade Unions' Idealism Immigrants Hampered

By DEBBIE HALPER

Attacking the belief that unions are self-seeking bodies, Stanley Knowles, vice-president of the Canadian Labor Congress yesterday told a packed house that a great deal of idealism and concern for the world's welfare exists in trade unions.

"Benefits for labor can not be won by isolating trade unions from labor in other parts of the world," he said. The former CCF member of parliament saw the building up of trade unions in undeveloped countries as the "missionary duty" of Canadian unions.

Mr. Knowles described the merger of the CLC and CCF into a political party, as the product of Canadian trade union thought for the past half century. This thinking is based on the hope of a society that will benefit all.

Moving closer to home, the former parliamentarian said: "The Canadian parliament isn't all it ought to be." Theorizing, the silver-haired politician said: "For a parliamentary democracy to function as it should, two major political parties must exist with real differences between them."

More than $1,000,000 is collected in union dues by the CLC, he said. The money is spent on: organization, education, research, and relations with the international labor movement.

"Conflicting attitudes have been inherited by the Canadian trade union movement from both Britain and United States," he said. The British tradition is that trade unions should take an active part in politics, he said, but the United States believes trade unions should stay away from politics.

These divergent views present a dilemma for the Canadian labor scene, he said, but this conflict is being resolved by the formation of the new labor party in Canada.

Proceeding to the former United Church minister's home ground—the spiritual plane—he said: "We have to examine our values and the purpose of our life." The veteran socialist emphasized an "investment in people rather than in things."

Mr. Knowles predicted "certain success" for the new party. A founding convention is planned for 1961 for the new party.

Mr. Knowles concluded by saying he would sacrifice fringe benefits for unionists, if necessary, in favor of a government that would bring benefits to all.

A University of Toronto student said Wednesday Canadian immigration authorities are closing the door against West Indian students who want to enter the country.

Eugene Moore, President of the U of T West Indies Students' Association said the authorities show "in small ways" that students are not welcome.

He added that they make it difficult for students to come here and attend university.

He told the Toronto Council of Friendship the West Indies would get more help from the Canadian government if the Caribbean Federation went Communist.

Dentist Honored

Dr. A. D. Mason, dean emeritus of the University of Toronto's dentistry faculty, will be honored with a doctorate of laws at a special convocation Nov. 25 in conjunction with the opening of the new Dentistry Building.

He joined the U of T staff in 1911.

Also receiving doctorates of laws will be Dr. J. Stanley Bagnall, dean emeritus of the dental faculty of Dalhousie University, Nova Scotia; Dr. Martin Rush-ton, dean of dental surgery, Royal College of Surgeons, Great Britain; and Dr. W. C. Fleming, dentistry dean at the University of Southern California.

Dr. Fleming will give the address.

The quote comes from Ms. Gill.

After lecturing on "Test-Tube Babies—Fiction, Fact and Future", Dr. J. D. Metrakos suggested to a McGill audience: "My advice to you is to hurry up, get married and have children by the normal act, because you don't know when some damn scientist is going to come along and change everything."

DR. NORMAN BETHUNE
MEMORIAL LECTURE
Nelson Clarke, Editor, Canadian Tribune
"How the Chinese People are Building Socialism"
Ross Russell, Veteran: Mac-Pap Battalion
"Dr. Bethune as I Knew Him"
24 Cecil Street
Sunday, Nov. 22, 8:15 p.m.
EVERYONE WELCOME!
Metro Toronto, CPC

CLASSIFIED ADS.

FURNISHED ROOM
Comfortable, for student, Reasonable. All conveniences. University district. WA. 3-0246. 63 Sussex St.

HIGH PARK-BLOOR
Modern single or double furnished bed-sitting, large clean rooms with cooking facilities, bath floor, quiet home. Reasonable price. call RO. 7-2466.

EXPERT THESIS TYPIST
Fast personalized service (Electric machine). Irene Kenyon, 146 Bernard Avenue. WA. 3-4011.

Association said the authorities show "in small ways" that students are not welcome.

He added that they make it difficult for students to come here and attend university.

He told the Toronto Council of Friendship the West Indies would get more help from the Canadian government if the Caribbean Federation went Communist.

Ray Lux of the Lux Burlesque Theatre is after University of Toronto students again.

Today his latest headliner, who calls herself Cupcakes Cassidy, was expected to hand out free tickets to her show in front of University College.

A Canadian Broadcasting Corp. cameraman was expected to be on hand.

Miss Cassidy (46-26-38) says she got into show biz on a hunch and a dare. She began at Minsky's Burlesque House in New Jersey.

Iva Soreback

(Phys-Ed. 54) says:

I keep my finances in good shape with a growing

Savings Account at ...

BANK OF MONTREAL

Canada's First Bank for Students

You'll find these B of M branches especially convenient

Bloor and Bay Sts.

Queen's Park

St. George and Bloor Sts.

KENNETH A. McNEIL, Manager

JOSEPH BURDOCK, Manager

K. S. McKELLAR, Manager

a big step on the road to success is an early banking connection

U7-SP

Notes on any subject are easier to write, easier to read when you use

CAMPUS SCHOOL SUPPLIES

Clean, crisp paper for every student need.

Little Perfect

GAGE STATIONERY

A DIVISION OF W. J. GAGE LIMITED

TORONTO • MONTREAL • WINNIPEG • VANCOUVER

Special Attention - 25% Discount ON ALL JEWELLERY PURCHASES

Including: Watches, Diamonds, Silverware, Lighters, Wallets, Pens, and Pencils, Radios, Clocks, Costume Jewellery etc. etc. You must have your A.T.L. card when making a purchase.

SHEFFIELD JEWELLERS

DIAMOND MERCHANTS

323 YONGE ST. (5 doors above Dundas) TEL. EM. 6-0977

ORDER NOW FOR YOUR COPY OF THE 1960 TORONTONENSIS

First 2000 copies only $2.00 so be first in line

Booths will be set up in Trinity, Vic, S.M.C., Nursing, Engineering, and U.C. at noon hour next week.

All faculties may order from their Torontonensis rep or from the SAC.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION - WOMEN - Voluntary Programme

Instructional and recreational periods are open to all Women Students from November 30th to December 18th, at the Women's Athletic Building. No enrolment necessary, just have your medical examination and come to class in a suitable Gym Outfit. Further information. WA. 3-6611, Ext. 768.

BADMINTON

Mon. — Sports Gym
9:00 Elem.
10:30 Elem. & Inter.
12:30 Advanced
2:30 Inter.
3:30 Inter. & Advanced
Tue. — Upper Gym
2:30 Inter.
3:30 Elem.
Wed. — Sports Gym
10:30 Elem. & Inter.
12:30 Advanced
3:30 Inter.
Fri. — Sports Gym
10:00 Inter.
12:00 Elem. & Advanced

Sports Gym
Tues. 9:00
10:00
12:30
2:30
Thur. 9:00
11:30
2:30
3:30
Fri. 3:00

Upper Gym
Mon. 12:00
3:00
Tue. 10:00
11:00
Wed. 11:00
12:00
2:00
3:00
Thur. 3:00

FENCING

Studio
Mon. 11:00
12:00
Tue. 9:00
10:00
Wed. 4:00
(Club) 5:00
Thur. 10:00
11:00
12:00

GYMNASTICS

Studio
Mon. 3:00
Wed. 9:00
4:00
Upper Gym
Apparatus
Thur. 2:00
Corrective Gym and Posture Clinic
by Appointment

BOWLING

Mid-Town Bowling
Alleys, 505 Bloor
Street West
Tue. 2:00
Wed. 2:00
Fri. 2:00
(Club)

SKATING

Varsity Arena
Figure Skat. Tue. 12:00 Folk Mon.
ing instruction Modern Tue. 3:00
Skating Wed. 11:00 Ballroom Wed. 12:00
Thur. 11:00 Square Thur. 5:00
Ballet Fri. 12:00

DANCE

Studio
Folk Mon. 5:00
Modern Tue. 3:00
Ballroom Wed. 12:00
Square Thur. 5:00
Ballet Fri. 12:00

AQUATIC PROGRAMME

DIP TIMES—L.M. POOL Synchronized—L.M. POOL LIFE SAVING—L.M. POOL
Mon. & Wed. 4:00 to 6:00 Tue. 5:00 Bronze: Mon. 11:00 Speed: Mon. & Wed. 5:30
Tue. & Thur. 1:00 to 2:00 Wed. 12:00 Fri. 2:00 Synchronized: Mon. & Wed. 6:30
Thurs. 11:00 to 2:00 Fri. 3:00 Diving: Mon. & Wed. 7:30
Fri. 2:00 to 5:00 Award of Merit: Tues. 12:00 Mon. & Wed. 7:30
Thur. 1:00
Fri. 12:00

PRE-CHRISTMAS SALE

10 DAYS ONLY
OUR ENTIRE STOCK

WORLD FAMOUS RCA VICTOR RECORDS

REG. $4.98 — SPECIAL $3.49 ea.

3 for $10.00

STEREO

REG. $5.95 — SPECIAL $4.49 ea.

3 for $12.00

ALL COMPLETE OPERA SETS INCLUDED

MANY OTHER NAME BRAND RECORDINGS
AT GREATLY REDUCED PRICES

A. & A. RECORD BAR

351 YONGE STREET

EM. 4-6832 — TORONTO, ONT. — EM. 4-6053

THE ONLY RECORD BAR THAT IS OPEN FROM 7 A.M. TO 12 MIDNIGHT EVERY DAY OF THE WEEK INCLUDING SATURDAY
Browse through the City's largest open display of 33 1/3 RPM and STEREO RECORDS and ALBUMS

comment

THE VARSITY

comment

The Faith Of A Liberal

By PETER DEMBSKI

In the month of July, a seemingly endless procession of Canadian, American and French politicians climbed the steps of history to pay homage to the God of Western political philosophy, liberalism. Like most of their religious counterparts, their sermons made the hollow sounds which an absence of understanding is compelled to echo.

In Canada the sounds are heard in two quarters as the Liberal and CCF parties vie in claiming that each is the sole defender of the liberal tradition in the Canadian variety of Western civilization. What they fail to realize in the midst of accusation and counter-accusation is that neither represents the interests of that mystical substance called liberalism.

I do not pretend that any definition I give of liberalism will necessarily be accepted by all. I merely present in this space the ideals and principles which experience and study have led me to believe are the basic conditions for the moral act and the ends towards which the liberal mind is committed.

I view man as a social animal, which unlike the other social members of the animal kingdom has a mind and a will which we identify by the word soul. The human mind supplies man with the information his will requires in order to perform the good or moral act. Since man by virtue of his nature is committed to society, he must perform the moral act in a social context. He must by the use of his will bring good to his fellow men and in the process of bringing good upon himself.

The individual in order to exercise the power of his will must exist in a state of liberty or freedom without which his will in reality does not function, as it simply becomes the appendage of an alien will, which controls the former's actions. The purpose of the liberal government, then becomes the creation of a general condition of freedom in which all the members of society are able to assert their wills in the pursuit of goodness.

A liberal government seeks to circulate this air of freedom through the establishment of laws guaranteeing the basic civil liberties of the individual, such as freedom of speech and written expression. The liberal government will also ensure the fact that all members of society possess the same liberties before the law in the support of legislation guaranteeing these rights. The liberal government will defend responsible democratic government which it views as the only means by which the whole society can truly express itself in terms of political freedom. In foreign affairs the liberal government will recognize on the international level the thirst for liberty by favoring of principles of national independence and self-determination both for its own and foreign peoples.

Government must, however, provide for the needs of society as a whole. The individual cannot seek a good value unless he is truly free of social and economic pressures which impede the development of his own personality. Thus the liberal government seeks to sponsor legislation which will ensure the individual freedom of opportunity in advancing his talents and, hence, his contribution to society. In so doing the liberal government must counterbalance the satisfaction of these mass material needs with the continued assertion of the basic liberty of the individual whose freedom of movement it can easily destroy in its quest for equality to which the Soviet experiment bears witness.

These, then, are some of the basic concepts which must guide a liberal government in pursuit of its mission to create a free society.

The Liberal Party, postulating itself as the bastion of liberal thought and action in Canada publishes pages on pages of literature praising these values. But it is conspicuously silent in demonstrating these same values in a concrete appeal to its recent government record.

In its tenure of office the Liberal government never went on record as supporting a basic definition of the rights of the individual through the passage of a bill of rights. Even now Parliament is confronted by a Bill of Rights which is more shadow than substance (since its existence is delayed by its not being introduced as an amendment to the British North America Act) its Liberal members have taken no definite stand on this piece of business before the House. A few months ago Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland, carrying the banner of liberalism, rose over the fundamental freedom of association by outlawing the International Woodworkers Union of America in a fashion that seemed to imply that a parliament may use legislative power to remove any group it may disapprove.

C. D. Howe's enforcement of closure in the twilight of Liberal power in Canada revealed that a Liberal minister (once again only with a large initial letter) was interested more in results than the democratic principle of free parliamentary debate, as silent Liberal benches spoke in tacit approval of the move.

The Liberals in foreign affairs have demonstrated a tendency to subordinate sound world relations to sound relations with the United States, as the present Liberal attitude towards recognition of Red China indicates. The meagre appropriations of the previous Liberal government to help the underdeveloped nations of the free world when compared to the huge allotments for defence, expenses indicating that Liberal governments are prone to place continental defence before the defence of democratic liberalism, as it struggles to survive in the awakening areas of Asia and Africa. The Liberal administrations of Mackenzie King and Louis St. Laurent further alienated their party from Liberal principles, as in their haste to develop the enormous resources of this country, they allowed United States interests to gain control of a larger part of the Canadian economy than Canadians themselves control. This fact more than once has led to an infringement of Canadian sovereignty which the United States State Department's recent restriction on the sale of Canadian foods to Red China illustrated.

A student of recent Canadian history finds a picture of the two past Liberal regimes being pressured by both right and left and before yielding to popular opinion and establishing fundamental social legislation. It is significant that the Canadian "New Deal" came from the pen of the Tory R. B. Bennett, not from that of the Liberal King. Furthermore, one of the last acts of the Liberal government of St. Laurent was to raise pension grants by six dollars a year, more of an insult than a step towards adequate provision for the aged.

In each of the cases the Liberals in Parliament faced the conflict of ideals against power and efficiency. In each of these cases the Liberals found votes and convenience more convincing arguments than Liberal principles which required courage as well as sound political action. In each of these cases the Liberals disavowed the basis of modern liberalism.

The observer of these events would perhaps turn to the CCF and see in it the true deposit of liberal values. The CCF has supported a strong bill of rights. It has been the champion of minority rights. It has stressed democratic procedure within the ranks of its own party as well as in the House of Commons. It has been in the forefront of agitation for a recognition of the true needs of the free world. It has been the initiator of nearly every major piece of social legislation in Canada. Its record is indeed impressive, but a deeper understanding of its attitudes and policies exposes it as a dangerous enemy rather than an ally of the liberal spirit.

The fundamental basis of liberalism, as stated above, recognizes man as possessing a mind and a will which are the heart of his creative activity. But the CCF with its stress upon national ownership and centralization seriously threatens the very existence of this free man. Man, in order to create on the economic level requires the fullest opportunities to be open to him. Yet the CCF policy of nationalization of basic industries and the subsequent establishment of government monopolies in these industries impedes the individual's power to develop his talents to their ultimate capacity.

Lying behind this outlook are two further principles which the liberal mind is fated to find repulsive. It implies that national control is necessary because Canadian industries in certain areas have usurped their responsibilities to such an extent that the government in the name of the people is obliged to take over the responsibility of ownership. It forgets that corporations are equivalent to individuals in the eyes of civil law and subject to the same protections. An individual corporation must be judged on its individual merits or demerits and cannot be punished merely because it has become associated with a system which may generally be criticized for not fulfilling its obligations to society. If this principle is not upheld in the case of individual corporations, then it cannot be upheld in the case of the individual persons and "guilty by association" will become the new source of civil law.

The second implication of the CCF tendency towards central authority is that good is produced not by the individual but rather by society through its direction by the government. This socialist conception is probably most clearly seen in the socialized medical plan adopted by the Labour Government in Great Britain which is accepted by the CCF as a "step in the right direction." Here it is not the individual physician who is able to produce good through the exercise of his will. It is society, which through the instrument of government lays down standards the individual doctor is obliged to follow. If he wishes to maintain his practise, it is society, then, which chooses what is good and then enforces its mythical will upon the individual. In essence this is the antithesis of the liberal notion defended above, depending as it does upon the individual's power to function freely.

Although these distinctions are theoretical, they find practical expression in the sapping of individual initiative and spirit which is all too conspicuous in Great Britain's welfare state. It is seen in the irrational outcry of her Angry Young Men who look with anger upon a society in which the "nationalization of the soul" has taken place.

Liberalism in contemporary Canada is faced with a crisis of great significance, the crisis of our times. A revolutionary re-evaluation of our fundamental concepts and ideals is required if the liberal dream is to survive.

The first blow in this revolution must be against both pragmatism and socialism in a courageous defense of man's most valuable possession, his liberty to create.

in which wkr writes:

On Odds And Ends

By ALAN WALKER

newspeak

In the interests of better communication, perhaps The Varsity could be printed in Newspeak. This simplified language was invented by George Orwell and used in his book "1984". Surely even the engineers could understand it after they learned a few simple rules.

The basic idea behind Newspeak is its avoidance of unnecessary words. The word "good" has, for instance, dozens of synonyms. The opposite of "good" has just as many.

In Newspeak only two words are required, "good" and "ungood". In the same way, comparatives and superlatives would be normalized to "gooder" and "goodest", and a word could be strengthened with the prefixing of "plus" or "doubleplus" (as in "doubleplusungood").

Newspeak has an almost complete interchangeability between words. One form does for the noun, verb, adjective and adverb. So, "I speed" and "the speed" replace "I run (hasten, hurry, etc.)".

For an adjective the suffix "-ful" is used, and for an adverb the suffix "-wise". (Thus, "speedful" and "speedwise" would replace "fast", "quickly" and all other words expressing the same idea.)

Newspeak is also concerned with stifling any free thought or expression of political opinion. So a Varsity Current Events item might sound like this:

"A groupthink about the doubleplusungood of crimethink will be today at 13:00 hours."

The original version would have been:

"There will be a discussion on the 'Irrelevance of Christianity' at 1 p.m."

Unworry. The Varsity (crimewrite) unplans to use Newspeak this year.

poetry

Wallace Stevens, regarded by many as one of the greatest of American poets, writes poems of fact. But these poems contain insight and vision as well.

A fine selection is economically available in a lease from Vintage, edited by Samuel French Morse. (Paperback, K85, $1.25.)

In this volume, the editor has lined up 95 of Stevens' best efforts, from the more than 400 poems in print. The approximate orders of composition is followed, which not so much show's Stevens' growth as a poet, but which shows incidental changes in the poet's outlook and suggests a fundamental unity of his work, even though it is spread over some 30 years.

"The Man with the Blue Guitar" has been our favorite for a long time, ever since we read part of it on the liner notes of a Dave Brubeck record.

It was appropriate.

"And they said then, But play you must,

A tune beyond us, yet ourselves."

It's that way with a lot of poetry and a lot of jazz too.

The man bending over the guitar, "a shearsman of sorts", and Stevens the poet both play a tune "of things exactly as they are".

nationality

One of the most important purposes for the Carabin Weekend is to promote a stronger national feeling among Canadian University Students.

It is hoped that when French and Anglo-Canadian students meet on each others home ground to discuss problems of mutual interest, a greater understanding will develop.

If the purpose of the Carabin Weekend is to promote "National Unity" then we hope it is a miserable failure.

For we are strong believers in "National Disunity".

We don't believe in "The Canadian" and we have little respect for those who are trying to artificially create him.

We believe that the greatest strength of this country lies in the divisions which lie within it.

Each group which maintains its identity and its culture, enriches the culture of the whole country.

We don't want to become "like" the French Canadian nor do we want them to become "like" us.

We want to know them; to speak their language and to understand and appreciate the products of their culture.

We want them to know us and want to show them the things which we have done that we are proud of.

We hope that the factors which separate us from the French-Canadians will continue to exist in the future with as much vigor as they have in the past.

We believe that they are one of our greatest strengths as a nation. - dls

partiality

The Trinity Dramatic Society has turned away hundreds of university students seeking tickets for its forthcoming production of T. S. Eliot's "Murder in the Cathedral".

Seven performances in the Trinity chapel have been sold out since Wednesday, two days after posters went up on a few campus notice boards.

"Murder in the Cathedral" is the modern play on the Grade XIII curriculum this year. The producers decided to capitalize on this fact to the virtual exclusion of the university community. Over 800 of the 1,400 seats available have been sold in large blocks each to high schools.

After all, the 50-cent tickets were cheaper than the book.

We realize that campus dramatic productions have a hard time selling to undergraduates, despite the best publicity. A case in point is the recent UC-St. Mike's production of "The Crucible".

The Trinity Dramatic Society failed to notice the wave of campus interest in its unusual chapel production of a popular play. And with no second thought on the direction and purpose of theatrical productions at this university, it has defeated the role of a drama club at a university.

An institution of higher education has never been interested in the arts purely as entertainment, and this is why it finds a proper place in the university community.

The Trinity Dramatic Society, ignoring these considerations by virtually omitting the university, has prejudiced its raison d'être.

We can only suggest that the cast make the great effort to have several extra performances, this time for the university. ec

The letters printed on this page represent the full range of opinions we have received on our Remembrance Day article. Since these letters raise many interesting issues and since the article "A Manual of Death" was not meant to be a complete discussion of the problems of war and pacifism, we hope to be able to deal with these questions in later issues of The Varsity

an open letter

Dear Sam,

We understand that your article and editorial which appeared in The Varsity on Remembrance Day has aroused a good deal of controversy. We are of course aware that you are no stranger to controversy, and that part of the incident does not bother us at all. What does concern us more than somewhat was an article in one of the Toronto dailies last evening. In this report a responsible member of the faculty of Victoria College was quoted as saying that the Veterans would take no action as a result of your editorial, but that they would leave it to the students to discipline you themselves.

We sincerely hope that the SAC will not take it upon themselves to discipline you in any way whatsoever. Whether we agree with what you wrote or not is not important. What is, to our mind, important, is that it should even be suggested that someone who has been appointed an editor should then be disciplined because of what he writes in his capacity as editor.

We can only speculate on the reason for the furor which you seem to have created. Perhaps you are coming too close to the truth for comfort, or perhaps there are other reasons. We only know that to discipline you for writing what you believe would be setting a dangerous precedent indeed.

As the editor of a much more insignificant journal than yours, we realize that such a decision could have effect upon our own editorial writing, and how much we are allowed to say in them. A precedent thus established could have an effect not only on the weekly publications of various colleges and faculties, but on the editorial policy in The Varsity in future years. Such muzzling is unthinkable. For an editor to have to curtail his writing just because he may be pulling the leg of some "sacred cow" is contrary to all the traditions of journalism. We may not agree with what you say, but we will defend to the limit your right to say it.

Don Cornish.

— from The Victoria Strand

psychotherapy

Dear Sir,

Has the writer of "Comment" not yet learned in an academic community, intellect should control emotions?

Nasty little situations exist, and require nasty actions. Disease can be nasty to see, nasty to smell, nasty to care for, but few sick persons have ever claimed that because this is so, nursing must be a degrading profession.

Why claim that soldiering can not be honourable just because every now and then a soldier must do something nasty? No normal person likes to kill or to be in pain, but sometimes this is far preferable to what otherwise follow. "Even if the rest of the world goes mad, the university is presumably a place where the notion that physical violence can solve problems never gain currency." Has your writer been isolated in the abnormal environment of a university for so long that he is no longer aware that many men have scruples about using force for selfish purposes, and are deterred only by fear of pain or disability? Cultured sensitive folk will recoil at violence, but because the university prefer to use persuasion, are all men wise inclined? Such innocence could be excused if the writer has led such a sheltered life that he has never been forced into a position where violence or the threat of violence was the only acceptable solution to an immediate and very pressing problem, but the process of education is intended to train us to realize that the experiences of others must be considered along with our own before we allow our attitudes to set to concrete.

Ever have a drunk paw your girl-friend? As immediate remedial measure to separate them, did you give him psychotherapy?

J. C. Kennedy, III M.D.

AND WRITE.

flog the foreigner

Copy of a letter sent to the President.

Dear Sir,

Who is this Sam Ajzenstat?

Is he fit to be a college student, or even a student of any kind?

No doubt he is a foreigner taking advantage of Canadian Hospitality and Culture.

His reference to the war dead as "poor bewildered beasts deluded into committing first murder and then suicide" hints strongly of himself as being a bewildered beast.

This is a democratic country of free speech. However, this does not include sarcastic remarks about the dead whether he be a soldier or convict.

Immediate action should be taken to suspend this student—in plain words "chuck him out".

I am afraid that if I was a student at your university I would make it extremely hot for him including a flogging.

I hope that something is done about this immediately.

Yours truly,

S. G. Ubsdell,

Fredericton, N.B.

calumnies

Dear Sir,

We are not writing to refute the pacifist arguments of your front-page article and leading editorial in Wednesday's issue of The Varsity. Men of good will have said everything there is to be said on both sides of this debate long ago and in most civilized countries today the position of the honest pacifist is recognized and respected even in wartime. Several sentences in your article, however, in which you suggest that all who sacrificed their lives in the last war were "poor bewildered beasts deluded into committing first murder and then suicide", are too appalling in their insolence and lack of taste or understanding for anyone of that generation to accept without protest.

The inference that everyone who saw service in the last war was imbued with the barbaric sentiments that you have dug up from a review of a book quoting a single American training manual is surely too ridiculous to require rejection. We are shocked that the responsible editor of the paper published by the Students' Administrative Council should have the effrontery to abuse his position by the parading of these calumnies on the day set aside for remembering graduates of this university who died for such different ideals. We refuse to believe that the student subscribers to The Varsity would endorse your offensive remarks. We trust that the Students' Administrative Council will require the publication of an apology to the dead who have been insulted.

Sincerely,

J. B. Conacher and

R. A. Spencer,

Department of History

to my son

Why do you ask me what I think of your Ajzenstat's thesis in "A Manual of Death"? Have I so uncommunicative all these years that you do not know? Or knowing, do you think me so softened by that I am likely to find a conviction opposed to everything I have believed because it is thrown in my face by a voice that supposedly expresses the clear, unprejudiced thinking of youth?

I interpret the thesis: that these dead, while they were degraded by their service to the level of beasts, that there is nothing to be admired in what they endured, and that we should therefore not be exhorted "take these men for your examples".

If I have oversimplified it, perhaps Mr. Ajzenstat has overdone the complication. Certainly he has laid out orchestration of horror by selecting passages from manuals of combat training, and as we recoil from brutality he slips across the sequitur upon which argument hangs, that such training and such combat designed to, and do, render the man a beast. He is enough to add the restrictions poor and deluded, but this is the extent of his kindness.

I suggest that it is not less rational to say that a will degenerate under combat conditions in about the same degree as he will under conditions of soft life. War is only one stamping ground for the animal, the built-in element of our humanness. He is no more beast who kills in the anger of war without immediate revulsion than he is who lies or cheats or gluttons the security of peace. And the first must exercise mainly virtue of physical courage which I am not enlightened enough to despise.

We are asked how it is possible to fight a war in defense of liberal principles without undermining completely those very values. In defense of liberal principles Has Mr. Ajzenstat lived so protected a life that he believes wars are fought for such pious causes? He seems to think that wars may be good, but make bad men. To me, wars are bad. They arise from passions that have no control. The nobler passions are generally little more than I have no mellifluous clauses with which to justify. It is the soldier I justify. In my eyes the soldier is bestial but brave; he is possessed of anger, not hatred, gives and takes death, which is not the most derogatory that can be laid upon a man nor the worst that can be inflicted upon him. The fighting man is one of all who conduct war in peril of what Mr. Ajzenstat claims must destroy him. Like Eliot's Thomas Arden, he is not in danger, he is only near to death.

And I remain unregenerate. I will not follow youthful apostle into the absurdity that war, a manifestation of man's evil, is the evil in man. I give you, with whatever influence my generation may have over yours, "these men for your example". So I am, if you be,

Your deviationist-reacti-onary
P. B. Hughes

THE VARSITY

FOUNDED 1880

Published by
The Students' Administrative Council
of the University of Toronto
Toronto 5, Canada

Member Canadian University Press

Editorial and News Office
Basement, SAC Building — WA. 3-8742, WA. 3-8113

Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221

TODAY'S ISSUE: Fran Maine and Stan Stan Barron Barron and their togetherness story, Phil Palter and pictures from the Lux Theatre, Fred Host and his Volkswagen, Al Ruffman by phone, Walter McLean who dropped in, Dave Halton, Maryanne Kelso, Sally Bambridge and Carabins by phone, Debbie Halper, Barry Zimmerman, Warren Wilson, Ted Barnes, Marty Stone, the most snobbish and unworkingest News Editor ever, and thank you Ann with an "e".
Photography This Issue: George Harpur and Roman Horban.

OUR READERS WRITE

the human act

Dear Sir,

I can well imagine the response that is greeting your article "A Manual for Death", without doubt it falls into two groups of critics: those who declare that it was in infinitely bad taste and those who question the correctness of its argument. As to the first group you have no recourse but to silence for they have not grasped your intention. I have pursued your thought avidly, not because I always agree, but because you have the rare combination of power of expression coupled with a depth of preception not often found in the editor of this publication. Former editors have had immense skill but most of them have lacked the knack of 'seeing through' to basic issues.

Well, I have not entered the lists merely to praise you. I belong to the second group of your critics, those who question the correctness of your argument. I had originally intended to write you concerning "notes from the underground" (Nov. 5, 1959) and will do that as soon as possible, but as of now I must make some precisions about Remembrance Day.

The article is skillfully composed. Those that argue that it had taste have not realized that you have seen and seized upon the very issue of Men At War. Do men at war cease to be men? If the answer is yes, then all war by that fact is inhuman and pursued by men ceases to be moral. This of us who have been attached to the armed forces during military hostilities (for myself, the Korean "police action") recognize in this the argument for pacifism and a substantial part of the plea of most conscientious objectors. War is not inhuman, it is immoral, we cannot be expected to do the immoral.

I cannot say if you have declared for pacifism. Your last paragraph could be construed to imply as much. And if in fact your argument is correct then there is no alternative but to take just that stand.

I will not quarrel with that conclusion, you can only quarrel with conclusions if you are prepared to question premises. Those who are criticizing you without taking the premises into account will no doubt say: "War is inhuman, so what, it is kill or be killed, those who live in the jungle must abide by its law." It is my view that they are even less correct than you.

My bayonet instructor told us to aim carefully for the throat and thrust crying our loudest: 'kill, kill, kill.' We learned to use piano wire for a garrot, we learned to burn men alive. Were we inhuman?

The answer, Mr. Editor, lies in what it means to be human. When I say human I mean human in its fullest sense, this man, here and now, in these circumstances, doing these acts, for this purpose. Man is not some vague essence floating around in a textbook... man is Pvt. John J. Jones, Hill 135, July 10th, 1951. Is this the John J. Jones that walked the street of Vancouver in 1949? Is this the John J. Jones that works in Toronto today? It is and it isn't. Everyone can immediately grasp the physical difference (older, fatter, etc.) but how many grasp that there is also a moral difference? The ethic of the high-school boy in Vancouver is not precisely that of Pvt. Jones gouging eyes on Pork-Chop hill. I do not say they are entirely different, I say they are not the same in every detail. Why? Because the human act, the moral act is not "murder", "theft", etc... It is this homicide and this theft, with all their unique and unrepeatable circumstances.

What then is the same and what is different? Is the morality so different here that morality is reduced to relativism? Are there two John J. Jones? This is the problem in a nutshell. Can we predicate a moral rule of every situation in exactly the same way?

Murder is always murder, viciousness is always vicious; There is an absolute and intrinsic validity to their wrongness which admits of no exception. But again this is not a human act, a human act is not vicious but this or that vicious act, it is a meaning, if you will, embodied in a concrete and subjective nature. Viciousness is always wrong in itself as killing is unjust in itself but the point is that alteration in the circumstances of a concrete human act can formally alter that act into something else. It may at first glance appear to be murder, in point of fact it may be self-defense... It is the "point of fact" that makes a profound difference.

Less I become too technical, what I am saying is this: War is a rational process however distasteful it may be. No doubt it can become irrational and inhuman, that is always the danger. Eye gouging is a technique of war, it is "mutilation". Mutilation is not the human act we expect in high school in Vancouver, or in Toronto but we can learn to expect it among men at war. It is a rational attempt to use what is available in pursuit of the common good, the salvation of human freedom and peace. It appears an ugly way to do it but the circumstances profoundly affect the application of the immutable principles, mutilation is always wrong, but on Pork Chop hill this is no longer mutilation.

Someone is already muttering, you are justifying the means by the end, or you are making morality relative. They have missed the point entirely. I am protecting the immutability of moral principles in the variety of concrete circumstances in which and only where they can be discovered.

The Pacifist wants the principles all by themselves. He has forgotten the concrete reality of human acts. He has forgotten that it is HUMANLY POSSIBLE TO DO SOMETHING IN DIFFERENT WAYS. Those who were confined to concentration camps could not possibly cooperate with the sadistic guards, neither could they remain aloof. Names were hidden (was it a lie?), food was stolen (was it theft?), men were killed (was it murder?) by rabbis, ministers and priests. Sisters in convents sheltered men of the RCAF (was it dishonesty?). No, in none of these cases. The crimes were not crimes at all, the acts were not lying, stealing etc... All for the reasons I have mentioned. All of which comes down to this: The morality of Vancouver is exactly that of Pork Chop Hill (in principle) it is not the same morality at all (in concrete acts). You cannot transfer what will be done on Bay Street to somewhere north of Pusan in all its entirety.

War becomes Hell when men do surrender reason and say anything goes. Sometimes they forget the principles altogether. They make no attempt to remain rational. But by in large we of the western alliance have kept faith with moral principle and human activity. Eye gouging becomes a rational, human type of activity, one, however, we develop and use because we are driven back on our basic human, rational resources that surround our very survival.

The habits of war are acquired and then they are put aside. Would that they could be forgotten entirely. That we develop them and use them even as we deplore them is a dramatic proof that something has wounded our nature. But that does not mean that those commemorated at Soldiers Tower died in vain, died in inhuman pursuits. I think they refused "uncompromising to be inhuman" they refused to accept the immorality of Fascism or of Communism. However dimly they saw it they saw that death was preferable to any other course. They acted wisely, bravely, humanly at all times. They were human heroes. That is why we do them honor.

James G. Case S.G.S.

the grand delusion

Dear Sir:

Read of your controversial article in our local paper and if possible would appreciate a copy of the article.

From what I have read I cannot help but feel in sympathy with the author in his attempt to pierce the "grand delusion" that blinds minds of men, and makes them slaves to ignorance.

It takes a truly humble man to understand "truth" and today we live in an age that conditions the minds of men to be anything but humble and the irony of it is that it is done in the name of christianity.

Yours Sincerely,

Don McGregor

baloney

Dear Sir,

The past has given us something for which to live, not die. I have no intention of being tamely slaughtered, negating this past and my future; self preservation is a stronger instinct than your "deeply-felt taboo against killing". If I may use the old cliché, "where there is life, there is hope".

That these men did give their lives—as you state so clearly, not tamely—is the reason that you could write your editorial, and I can call it a well written, prejudiced, nonsequitur piece of pacifist baloney.

H. E. C. Schulman, IV Arts

to kill for christ

Dear Sir,

In your editorial of November 11th you stated that you were having trouble understanding "the relationship between the COTC and the university". I ask you to consider this letter if you are sincere in managing a paper which should reflect the thinking of the student body.

As a student in the University of Toronto, I ask you to look at the "nasty little jobs" the Canadian Army actually does.

Is your news bureau so limited that you do not know the official function of the Canadian Army? Its function is that of Civil Defence. This is not merely what the news releases say. This is, in fact, what it is training for. Surely you cannot think that the small army we have is training for aggression. This is peace time—at least in the opinion of the Minister of National Defence. Tactics in hand-to-hand combat, such as are described in your feature article of November 11, are not in use in the Canadian Army today. The army is being trained to better help people like you, and to control the flow of civilian movement in the event of attack by thermo-nuclear bomb. In addition, it is being trained to rescue, administer first aid, provide communications, and generally bring order out of the chaos which such a bomb would create.

Another function of the Canadian Forces is that of serving in the United Nations Emergency Force to help maintain peace and order as it does in the Middle East.

The three "odious" Canadian services, then, in your opinion, have no right to be led by university men. They are therefore to seek leadership elsewhere. This they can do, but the university is a good source of qualified men. More highly qualified men than ever before are needed in the event of nuclear attack. Would you have the core of men who will try to clean up the disorder, should such an attack occur, led by men who are not trained to think? Would you rather have a military anarchy arise? Or would you, on reconsideration, have men with this vital role, capable of exercising some degree of intelligence?

Also, as a former commissioned officer in the Canadian Force, may I say that the Armed Services at universities provide an excellent quality of training in citizenship, leadership, and in interesting practical fields which supplement university courses.

Finally, as one trying to be a Christian, may I agree with you that on one likes war. Especially is this true of the front line soldier. The most common complaint of the infantry soldier is, "War is hell!" War certainly is sinful. But is it not the lesser of two evils? Certainly we believe in the Christian gospel. We do not love our enemies by killing them. However, to kill in battle may be in the last resort the only way to escape a betrayal of our trust to Jesus Christ. We have no right to declare that war is closed to us.

We must remember that conflict is a permanent condition of progress. We shall not advance the use of our resources by yielding to an aggressor and so exposing ourselves and the world to those who have no moral scruples. Peace must be founded upon justice. In the final analysis, the decision of the country and the Church about war is the acid test of their sincerity and fitness to survive.

Respectfully submitted,

John McLachlan

P.S. If you see fit to publish this letter, kindly do so in its entirety so that it will agree with my copy of it.

J. McL.

realistic

Dear Sir,

It was galling to be served such a dish of effete attitude in "A Manual for Death" with which Mr. Ajzenstat honoured the fallen soldiers, on Remembrance Day. Particularly fatuous is his critical reference to the "haberdasher from Missouri", who wisely decided to use atom bombs in order to hasten the termination of war. Either the writer is a deeply red subverter or a fanatical pacifist, or perhaps—with a saving grace—just a commonly benighted idealist.

War is a terrible scourge and must be avoided. But not at any cost. Once an implacable, alien enemy strikes at us it is in our interest (we are animals, even though human ones) to adjust to the reality of the situation and use all our means to mercilessly knock him out, as quickly as possible, so as to spare prolonged, all-round misery. The heroism of the individually insignificant war dead lies not in their having collectively become "beasts of prey", per se, but in having become realistic—when helplessly caught in a holocaust not of their own making—and thereupon in having individually consented, in the face of very probable death, to make a destructive stand against the enemy.

If in war Mr. Ajzenstat were to truly live up to his implied, foolish ideals then we would expect him, in Truman's place, not to use atom bombs and thus to gratuitously extend to his relentless enemy time for further slaughter of his countrymen. I would also expect, and wonder at the purpose of, Mr. Ajzenstat's willing scrupulousity and pointlessly passive stand on his being confronted with the reality of suffering destruction, or death.

Let's work for peace, by all means, but not by criticizing the works of our dead combatants nor by kowtowing to those who, less humanely idealistic, would systematically destroy us.

Yours sincerely,

Jan Wejtko (S.G.S.)

precious honor

Dear Sir:

What can be said in favor of or against your Remembrance Day article has probably already been said and it is futile—as I think you have pointed out—to attempt to solve the problem by some neatly-twisted formula.

In essence—at least when we talk of wars that are past—the case for pacifism must remain theoretical and the case against theoretical. This holds true despite the undoubtedly down-to-earth character of the article.

The case against pacifism as applied to World War Two boils down to this: that we would be a damn site worse off now had those people who went to war not done so. This is, perhaps, conjecture, but conjecture so nearly indisputable as to verge on simple fact.

And the case against pacifists boils down to this: that man is partially if not essentially evil and for one to dissociate oneself from the sins of his fellow man is somehow an abrogation of responsibility.

The dropping of the atom bombs on Japan was a symbol of a partial moral victory by Hitler over us as you suggested. But he would have won that moral victory whatever we had done—as humans we are already tarred with his brush.

I share your skepticism as to whether the world can be saved. But if it can, the world being evil, it can not be saved without dirtying one's hands.

You questioned whether it was right to say that these men could be taken as examples. In some way you questioned the validity of their sacrifice.

To suffer and perhaps die in an unequivocally good cause is noble. But to kill is always to accept guilt.

A woman in Italy was recently praised by a cardinal of the Roman Church after killing a man who tried to rape her. And perhaps the praise was correct, perhaps honor is more precious than life.

And if this is the case, the sacrifice by these men of the hope of rising simon-pure above their fellow man by an unequivocally virtuous course was a nobler—or at least more human—sacrifice than even laying down their lives.

Hai Ash (III UC)

AND WRITE

schafer jr. in new york

Sound Of 2½ Million

With two almost complete flops (Me and Juliet, Pipe Dream) in the early fifties, a not too successful TV production of Cinderella and last year's only mildly acclaimed Flower Drum Song, Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein last Monday proved they are still America's top musical-comedy team. Their latest, The Sound of Music, backed up an advance ticket sale of two and a half million dollars has turned out to be one of their best. Based on actual events as told in "The Trapp Family Singers" the story concerns Maria a postulant who leaves her convent to become the governess to the seven children of Baron Van Trapp a wealthy Austrian, and goes on to make excellent singers of the children and a husband of the baron.

To play Maria the song-writing team have again enlisted the services of Mary Martin. Miss Martin plays the role with strong Nellie Forbush overtones but still reveals the great dignity of the Baroness in the later scenes. Although she is the undisputed star of the show she is not without an excellent supporting cast. Theodore Bikel plays the Baron to perfection. The seven Van Trapp children are played by one of the finest groups of child actors ever assembled on a Broadway stage. As two of the close friends of the baron, Kurt Kaszner and the almost forgotten Marion Marlowe are given ample opportunity to show their talents.

Rodgers and Hammerstein who first introduced the ballet to musical comedy in Olderama have now changed their ways, discarding a long ballet completely and keeping the choreography to an absolute minimum. However what little dancing there is, is excellent, performed mainly by a promising newcomer, sixteen year old Lauri Peters who plays the oldest of the children.

Even more revolutionary is the team's omission of any form of overture, an unfortunate decision as Mr. Rodgers' score is possibly his very best. The songs vary greatly from the beautiful title song "The Sound of Music" to the gay and witty "How Can Love Survive?" which extols the plight of the idle rich who can't suffer for love. Instead of using authentic Trapp family songs the team has come up with a number of original European folk tunes ranging from the enchanting "Edelweiss" to the merry "The Lonely Goatherd". There is also the noble "Climb Every Mountain" not unlike "You'll Never Walk Alone". For the children to sing there is "Do Re Mi", a spirited lesson in singing and "So Long, Farewell," a novelty tune sung by them to entertain their father's guests before going to bed.

For the first time Mr. Hammerstein did not write his own book but entrusted the job to Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse. Although they are excellent playwrights their book is so weak that it mars an otherwise excellent show. The dialogue is witty but the plot concentrates entirely too much time (one and a half acts) on a rather uninteresting and too obvious love triangle which precedes the marriage of Maria and the Baron. Thus only a few scenes are left to show the trouble the anti-Nazi Van Trapps had just after their marriage in 1938 and the show ends as the family is escaping to Switzerland. Thus, this show about the Trapp family ignores the most important part of their life—their triumphant success in touring America which could have made a much more satisfying and fulfilling ending to the story.

However, despite its undistinguished book, the show combines the great talents of a superb cast and a truly fine musical score to make The Sound of Music one of the most significant musical shows in recent years.

Larry Schafer

TONIGHT THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO FILM SOCIETY will roll in the Trojan Horse of IVAN THE TERRIBLE, PART ONE. The film will be shown in Room 102 of the Mechanics Building at 7:30 p.m. Admission is 50¢, and is open to all students of the university.

Anatomy Of Proust

The work of French novelist Marcel Proust was dissected yesterday in the light of a new interpretation by Professor V. E. Graham of the University College French department.

Speaking on "Proust's Alchemy" in the third of the U.C. afternoon lecture series, Professor Graham began by stressing the need to view Proust's great novel "A la recherche du temps perdu" as a consistent unit. It is only through this process, he suggested, that one can appreciate "the symmetry, the unity, the subversive of elaborate detail to purpose, the grandeur and the simplicity of the whole novel".

The main theme of Professor Graham's novel was prefaced by a warning that Proust's work should not be considered in terms of the myth surrounding the author's life.

"Proust is lightly spoken of as a sort of neurotic, an asthmatic half-Jew, bundled up in overcoats and scarves, isolated from the work in a cork-lined room where he dabbled in the occult, sleeping all day and writing at night about sodomy, sadism and decadent French society". But despite his personal eccentricities, hypochondria and general snobbishness, the Proust legend should not interfere with assessment of Proust as a writer, it was pointed out.

The underlying theme of Professor Graham's lecture was the idea that Proust's design in the novel is essentially similar to the work of the alchemist. "For alchemy is the sense for the realization of order in the universe, the harmonizing of the mysteries of creation and of life"—in short, the same process which Proust was striving to achieve.

The consecration to science which characterized the true alchemist is also the dominant trait in Proust's character, he pointed out.

Developing his analogy of the alchemist, Professor Graham described Proust as "purifying and transmitting the base elements of experience and observation into the essences which become the gleaming gold of his art".

This interpretation was supported by reference to the main characters of "A la recherche du temps perdu" and to the imagery of fire and water which constantly accompanies them.

"Proust," the speaker concluded, sought to penetrate the essence of ideas and people".

David Hulton

on music
criticism

by Ted Barnes

In only one instance can I see that an exception can be claimed for the familiar "bon mot". There's No Accounting for Some People's Taste: record clubs who advertise in the national magazines that, if you join up with such-and-such minimum purchase and buy so many records per year, you will have the opportunity (at Drastically Reduced Costs to You!) of adding to your record collection only those records which appeal to you.

If these people are doing anything, it's "accounting" for everybody's taste in music. For others the problem isn't nearly so simple.

Take for example an orchestral conductor. He's just received a little note from the manager of the auditorium, to the effect that receipts for last Wednesday were somewhat lower than usual; it is suggested that the programme was perhaps not of universal appeal. Universal appeal! I ask you in all sincerity, is any musical programme of universal appeal?

On the outside chance that some readers have been overworked the last few years and have fallen behind in keeping track of some of the extreme manifestations of the listening public's taste (or lack of it), I'd like to mention briefly a comparatively recent phenomenon. It seems to have one, universal name; this is an advantage, since it's one less expression to have to remember. This movement (it may aptly be called such) has caused every sort of reaction among supposedly sane human beings; some have made of it a new golden calf to be worshipped, while others, Moses-like, have thrown themselves into mad frenzies of revulsion. It almost appears, then, that this new "art-form", which is ingeniously called rock-and-roll, has failed as have so many others, to appeal to everyone's taste.

The following poem, which appeared in a widely read and artistically responsible magazine in November, 1958, is a superb example of the type of reaction which rock-and-roll has aroused. The woman who wrote it obviously takes music too seriously.

ROCK-AND-ROLL SESSION*

For this the primal reed was cloven,

For this did Berlioz break his ease

And Schubert starve and deaf

Beethoven

Bend silence into symphonies.

For this the little Mozart fiddled

Beyond his bedtime, Bach was born,

And Guido got the scale unriddled,

That, paced by an hysterical horn.

The pimply heirs of Orpheus, Beating

Damp palms, might away (aspurge like fish)

To four notes endlessly repeating

Thirty-two bars of gibberish.

Surely Miss McGinley is overwrought? Surely Beethoven could spare yet another tearful shake-of-the-fist at this comedy of life? Surely the divine Mozart can allow animal man to revert to type now and again? Surely Orpheus, by now, can face up to yet another insane mob of bacchantes? Surely the less civilized among us may be allowed not only to express, but even to exhibit, our lack of taste? For if we can't satisfy everyone's taste in music, the logical step would obviously be denying them credit for having any taste at all. Such is the drastic effect of rock-and-roll; it may strip from our souls any semblance of spiritual force, but in the end it does drag us all down mercilessly to a common level. Let the conductor fear no more; let him programme nothing but rock-and-roll, and he will discover a new harmony: we all will be raving about it vehemently (some pro, some maybe even con), but the echo of response will undoubtedly be comparable, for once, for all directions.

*ROCK-AND-ROLL SESSION by Phyllis McGinley, Copyright 1958, by The Atlantic Monthly Company.

Barry Morse, one of the most versatile talents in Canada today, will be the guest of honor at next Wednesday's Hart House Library Evening.

Mr. Morse, who has done everything on the CBC television network from starring in Macbeth to doing a soft-shoe routine, has played more than 2,000 roles on the stage, in films and on TV.

He directed the first Canadian production of the English musical Salad Days, and last summer appeared in Oedipus Rex in the United States.

For those of you who don't watch the one-eyed monster and conversation-stomper (TV), Mr. Morse is probably best known for his now defunct weekly radio show, A Touch of Greasepaint, in which he and his partner Alan King played various scenes from earlier plays which had been consigned to the wastebasket because of changing public tastes.

This thoroughly professional actor, with his extensive knowledge of theatre, allowed a modern audience to hear the best of Sheridan, Fielding, Nashe and other craftsmen of past ages.

What he will talk about, nobody knows but Mr. Morse, as he requested. He hopes to involve himself in a spontaneous discussion with the audience.

The Library Evening will be Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. Only Hart House members will be welcome.

Orval Ries will be soloist in this Sunday's second concert by the Hart House Orchestra under Dr. Boyd Neel's direction. Mr. Ries will play Albinoni's Oboe Concerto op. 9 #2, and Marcello's Oboe Concerta in C minor. Other works are Ariosti's Overture to "Vespasiano", Pergolesi's Concertino #4 in F minor, and Concerti Grossi by Geminiani and Vivaldi.

Tickets are on sale at the Hall Porter's Desk in Hart House at $3.50 for the remaining four concerts, or at $1.00 for any individual concert. Off-campus they may be obtained at Promenade Music Centre, A & A Record, or Rendezvous Books. Non-student subscription is $8.00 or $2.00 for a single concert.

Labor Panel Continued From Page One

the ruffled feelings that arise in controversial issues," he said. If persuasion fails and union members decide to plot their own course of action, the result is often a wildcat strike, he added.

"Then, if the contract specifies penalties for certain violations, the board's decision should be followed."

He felt actions of this type should be kept within the industry and labor group concerned and channelled into the courts only as a last resort.

Mr. Adams charged that often the individual worker ended up with an "empty money belt" and "no job" because of a walkout created by the union leaders.

"Preposterous," retorted Mr. Mahoney. "Members of the unions have power to crush any prospective strike they don't want."

The group said Ontario laws that are geared to head off a strike, by having each side present its case before a compulsory arbitration board for decision, were "excellent."

He accused some companies of planting agents at union meetings to launch a strike so the "company can collect damages and cripple the union's treasury."

Mr. Adams argued most workers are conditioned by reams of propaganda to provoke trouble in a vague way so the union will not be blamed.

Prof. Woods said present laws and hazy contracts between labor and management in most industries "make it impossible to find any way an employer can be compensated for an infraction of contract such as a wildcat strike."

At one point the Dean questioned Mr. Mahoney repeatedly about what amount of concern unions should have for industrial rights.

"In my book the only thing that counts is union benefits," Mr. Mahoney said.

"Don't you think the good of industry is to be considered," the dean snapped.

"In my experience," Mr. Mahoney said, "it's a tribute to management that they always look after their own good interests."

BLOOR STREET UNITED CHURCH

300 BLOOR ST. WEST

Ministers:

Rev. Dr. Ernest Marshall Howse
Rev. J. Stanley Kennedy
Organist and Choirmaster
Frederick C. Silvester

11 a.m.—The Individual and the Universe
—Dr. E. M. Howse
7:00 p.m.—The Burden of Guilt
—Dr. E. M. Howse

The Campus Club will meet after the Evening Service
All Students Welcome

Trinity College Chapel

WEEKDAY SERVICES

7:00 a.m.—Mattins
7:30 a.m.—Eucharist
6:00 p.m.—Evensong

SUNDAY SERVICES

8:00 a.m.—Mattins
8:15 a.m.—Eucharist
9:15 a.m.—Sung Eucharist & Sermon

EVERYBODY WELCOME

Park Road Baptist Church

1 Block North and East of Bloor - Yonge

Minister: Rev. Murray J. S. Ford, M.A., B.D.

VICTOR E. GRAHAM, Organist

SERVICES AT

10:45 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.

A Cordial Invitation to all Students to Attend Inspiring Services

University Lutheran Chapel

SUNDAY SERVICE — 11 a.m.
Student Club, every 2nd and 4th Thursday, at 7:45 p.m.

610 SPADINA
(below Harbord)
WA. 2-1884 — WA. 3-6840

Learn More of Man's Entitlements to All Good

You are invited to attend a Free Lecture Entitled

"CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: The Revelation of True Manhood

By Friedrich Preller, C.B.S., of Berlin, Germany.

Member of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church The First Church of Christ Scientist, in Boston Massachusetts.

Tuesday, November 24th, at 8:15 p.m.
(Doors open 7:30 p.m.)

in First Church of Christ, Scientist, Toronto St. George St. and Lowther Ave.

All Are Welcome
Free parking available.

ST. ANDREW'S United Church

117 BLOOR ST. EAST near Yonge St. Subway

Minister: REV. WILLIAM BRIGGS M.A., B.D., Ph.D.

Organist & Choir Director: EDGAR GOODAIRE

Anniversary Services
11 a.m.—"Re-digging Old Wells"
7:30 p.m.—"The New Offensive of the Gospel"

Social Hour following the Evening Service.
Rev. A. C. Forrest B.A., B.D., Editor of the United Church Observer will be the Guest Preacher

Students cordially invited to attend

TRINITY The United Church of Canada

417 BLOOR ST. WEST — at WALMER ROAD

REV. J. ROBERT WATT, B.A., B.D., Minister

John W. Linn, Organist and Choirmaster

11 a.m. — "TRUE TO THE FAITH"

7:30 p.m. — "MAKE UP YOUR MIND !"

8:30 p.m. — Flerside Hour

Students made welcome at al Services in Trinity

HART HOUSE

TODAY

1:30 p.m. Sing Song — East Common Room
WEEK-END AT CALEDON

Saturday Varsity Christian Fellowship
Sunday U of T Automobile Club

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 23rd

1:30 p.m. Sing Song — East Common Room
5:00 p.m. Glee Club Full Rehearsal — Music Room

7:00 p.m. Amateur Radio Club Tour — Radio Valve Co.
For information call WA. 3-9504.

7:15 p.m. Revolver Club — Rifle Range
8:00 p.m. Open Meeting Exploration Society — Music Room

Speaker: R. A. J. Philips — "The Changing Arctic"
Ladies are invited.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 24th

8:00 p.m. Holy Communion — Chapel
5:10 p.m. Amateur Radio Club Code and Theory Class —

Debates Loft
7:00 p.m. Glee Club Full Rehearsal — Debates Room

7:15 p.m. Bridge Club — East Common Room
7:30 p.m. Art Class — Art Gallery

8:00 p.m. Archery — Rifle Range
WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 25th

12:15 p.m. Noon-day Prayers — Chapel
1:10 p.m. Camera Club Rooms — Members' Colour Show

1:20 p.m. Noon Hour Concert — East Common Room
Ken Nichol, Piano

5:00 p.m. Wednesday Five O'clock Recital — Music Room
Merla Lehman, Viola; Pierrette Le Page, Piano;
Lajos Bornyi, Clarinet.
No tickets necessary Ladies welcome

7:00 p.m. Table Tennis — Fencing Room
7:15 p.m. Revolver Club — Rifle Range

7:30 p.m. Library Evening — Library
Speaker: Barry Morse, noted Canadian actor

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 26th

8:00 a.m. Holy Communion — Chapel
5:10 a.m. Amateur Radio Club Code and Theory Class —

Debates Loft
5:15 p.m. Record Room Instruction — Record Room

7:30 p.m. Art Class — Art Gallery
8:00 p.m. Archery — Rifle Range

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 28th — Great Hall
8:30 p.m. Tri-University Concert

Tickets $1.25. Available at the Hall Porter's Desk.

MEMBERS' ART SHOW

December 7th - January 14th — Art Gallery
All University men are invited to exhibit drawings, paintings and sculpture

Closing entry date DECEMBER 7th
For information call WA. 3-9504

GET YOUR TICKETS NOW FOR

TRI-U CONCERT

$1.25 — ON SALE IN HART HOUSE

- Michigan State U. Men's Glee Club
- Colgate U. Men's Glee Club
- Hart House Glee Club

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 28 — 8:30 p.m.

Each choir will sing separate selections, then combine for three mass numbers

ROSEDALE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

129 Mount Pleasant Road

(2 blocks north of Bloor, 2 blocks east of Yonge)

MINISTER: Rev. Eoin S. Mackay, M.A.

11 a.m.—Public Worship

GUEST PREACHER: Rev. Calvin Mackay, M.A., Inverness, Scotland

7:30—"My New Life"

A colour sound-film with special interest for young people.

SPECIAL WELCOME TO VARSITY STUDENTS

VICTORIA COLLEGE CHAPEL

SUNDAY — NOVEMBER 22 — 11 a.m.

"A FAITH FOR TODAY"

8. The Christian Hope — Professor C. Douglas Jay

ALL ARE WELCOME

UKRAINIAN*CATHOLIC STUDENTS' CLUB*"OBNOVA"

WILL HAVE A GENERAL MEETING

Place: — Brennan Hall, St. Michael's College

Date: — Monday, November 23, 1959.

Time: — 7:30 p.m.

Speaker: — Rev. Fr. Hrynchyshyn

Film: — "Around the World" by Most Rev. I. Borecky D.D.

COME AND BRING YOUR FRIENDS !

KNOX PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

invites all students to attend inspiring services

11 a.m. — Invasion of History

7 p.m. — Songs of Advent

Minister: Dr. Wm. Fitch M.A., B.D., PH.D.

Young People — 8:30 p.m. — Recreation — Friday 8 p.m.

16 Bancroft Stree.

Spadina - Harbord

HILLEL

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 20, — 8:30 p.m.

PROFESSOR SAMUEL ATLAS

Hebrew Union College—Jewish Institute of Religion

on "Can Jewish Law Still Be Creative"

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 22, — 9:00 p.m.

Dr. Atlas on "Judaism and Existentialism"

RABBI'S CLASS

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 24, 8:30 p.m.

STUDENT ZIONIST ORGANIZATION MEETING

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 25, — 8:30 p.m. —

HILLEL HOUSE

Mr. Aryeh Simon, National Director of S. Z. O. on "Israel's Political Regime".

Yugoslav Consul Opens Treasure Van Monday

Mita Matevski, Yugoslavian Consul to Toronto, will open the eighth visit of Treasure Van on Monday, Nov. 23.

As part of the opening ceremonies Mr. Matevski will describe the origin and significance of the Yugoslavian handicrafts, highlights of this year's sale.

The Yugoslavian products almost didn't make the sale. They were held up by technical difficulties at Toronto harbour for several days while officials disputed over a change in an invoice.

However, the shipment was released for unloading yesterday, and Treasure Van officials predict the articles will be priced and set up in time for Monday's opening

University of Toronto President Claude T. Bissell, Warden Joseph McCulley, SAC President Walter McLean, publicity director for the Treasure Van Committee Alexandra Johnston, and Peter Weinrich who drives the Van will also participate in the opening ceremonies at 2:30 p.m.

Treasure Van, sponsored by the World University Service, has a set goal this year. An appeal for $1,000 has been issued from the executive secretary of WUS of Japan for aid to students who were victims of recent Japanese floods.

The Van runs from Nov. 23-27, daily from noon to 6 p.m. and 7 to 10 p.m. in Howard Ferguson Hall, U.C.

THIS VEHICLE MAKES

its annual visit to U of T next week with its unloading of foreign crafts and products. Treasure Van opens Nov. 23 at 2:30 p.m. and continues till Nov 27 in Howard Ferguson Hall, U.C.

(Photo Courtesy WUS)

"almost fantasy"

Rehearse "Katy Cruel"

Rehearsals for University College's musical tragedy "Katy Cruel" began Monday.

The two-hour original show was written by Dave Helwig and scored by Mike Rasminsky. It is the story of a psychological outcast, Katy, who wanders into a small, poor fishing village.

Katy falls in love with one of the town's fishermen, but is seduced by a visiting sailor. Her promiscuity brings tragedy to the town and forces her to reject the village's stable society.

Director Bill Davis calls the show "almost fantasy". The music is ballad-like in tone, with simple, poetic lyrics.

Choreographer for "Katy Cruel" is Bianca Rogge, Toronto's leading exponent of modern dance. Don Gillies, top Canadian Broadcasting Corp. choreographer who was originally slated for the show, was forced to turn down the job due to CBC commitments.

Producer is Gary Griesdorf, and musical director is Mike Rasminsky.

Cast for "Katy Cruel" are: Katy, Nan Ackerman; Helen, Nina Dorefeuk; Martha, Anne Schofield; Dan, Don Sutherland; Frank, Martin Yaffe; Black Sailor, Frank Slater; Peter, Gordon Albright; Dancers: Diane Ede, Cyril Kofman, Bill Nelson, Madeline MacRobbie, Jack Robertson, Eustace Reynolds.

Chorus: Betsy Atkinson, Jane Barker, Paula Citron, Trudy Conman, Marion Cox, April Ridd, Jennifer Moore, Penny Olmer, Lowell Felton, Katie Poug, Brenda Segal, Cynthia Wechsler, Brian Acker, Clive Bell, Nelles Van Loon, Don McLennan, Jack Harmur, Lorrie Weisberg.

INTRAMURAL WRESTLING CHAMPIONSHIPS
Preliminaries—Tues. and Wed Nov 24 and 25—5:00 p.m.
FINALS — Thur. Nov. 26—7:30 p.m.
FOR ENTRY AND FURTHER INFORMATION SEE WRESTLING COACH OR MANAGER.

JARGON EDITOR

WANTED — Editor for Jargon
Literary Magazine — 1959-60

Apply — in writing — SAC Office.

AFTER MIDNIGHT
FRI: Peter Appleyard
SAT: John Swan Quartet
SUN: 9-12, Polk Music with Joyce Sullivan
CHELSEA CLUB
22 Sheppard St. — EM. 3-2336

Socialist Youth

forth, and a member of the SYL yelled "Is this an example of your democracy?" Someone replied "At least here we don't get shot for it."

Continued From Page One

Mr. Penner tried to gain order, but was finally forced to leave the hall.

Following the meeting, a photographer from The Manitoban staff was approached in his room by an unidentified man who said "We just had a meeting and we want all the negatives and prints."

Wednesday, the SYL announced it would bring back Alderman Penner. The demonstrators said they would be there too.

The SYL has become an active force on the Manitoba campus since the opening of the school year. It is directed by students who are believed to be Communists. The Communist party is vigorously contesting the Nov. 26 campus election.

Wednesday the SYL said it considered the event "a disgrace to the student body, and to the university."

In a statement they asked "What were they frightened about? That their precious morals would be corrupted? Were they so secure in their own ideas, if indeed they have any, that they could not allow the 100 or more who did want to hear to listen?"

Sullivan made accusations that the Hungarian government is planning to execute 150 youths for their part in the 1956 revolt.

As a result of charges of executions, the University of British Columbia circulated petitions condemning the proposed executions.

An anonymous phone caller to The Varsity last night said Trinity students had kidnapped the quarterback of the Faculty of Dentistry football team, Jim Biggar.

The caller said the move was to prevent him from playing in today's Mulock Cup semifinals. He also said: "Some money changed hands. This is on the Q.T."

A check showed Biggar was not at last night's Dent football practice. The team has also been weakened by influenza.

martin ockner presents

Folk Songs around the World with

GUY CARAWAN

Sat., Dec. 5, 8.30 p.m.

at the

MUSEUM THEATRE

Tickets: $1.50, $2.50 at A & A

Bookstore, or Phone: Metro 3-2411

EATON'S

THE INQUIRING FEMALE

may discover the Campus man stating no gift preference! This problem is happily solved, however, when she visits EATON'S COLLEGE STREET, where our Men's Shop stands chock-full of enticing gifts for the male! For example:

WOOL ARGYLE SOCKS by "Welch Margetson". Nylon re-inforced heels and toes, well-elasticized tops. Extra soft, in a vast range of colours. Sizes 10½ to 12. Pair 3.50

EATON'S COLLEGE STREET MEN'S SHOP

A short walk from the Campus

GAMES TODAY
FOOTBALL (Semi-Finals)	12.00	Vic	vs	Sr. SPS	Weinrib, Chapnick, Starkman, Kelner
	2.00	Trin	vs	Dent	Chykaliuk, Stokes, E. Abella, Godley
SOCCER (semi-final)	North 12.15	Trin. A	vs	U.C.	Bugarski, Hansen, Bonfield
LACROSSE	1.00	St. M. B	vs	SPS. V	Hodgkinson, Spanetz
VOLLEYBALL	1.00	Pre-Med. II	vs	SPS. F	Dralmin
	4.00	Vic. M.P.H's	vs	St. M. VI	Eamer
	5.00	St. M. II	vs	Dent. I.Yr.	Eamer
HOCKEY	1.30	St. M. C	vs	U.C. III	Harvey, Vandermeulen
	4.00	St. M. A	vs	U.C. I	Stinson, McCulloch
	5.30	Med. II	vs	Vic. III	Baird, Gladney

INTRAMURAL SWIMMING CHAMPIONSHIPS
Preliminary Heats—Tuesday, Dec. 1—5:00 p.m.
FINALS—Thur. Dec. 3—7:00 p.m.
Entries close at Intramural office Mon. Nov. 30, 5:00 p.m.
Detailed information at Intramural office.

Eesti Uliopilaskund Torontos

SELTSKONDLIK OHTU

Toimvb punapaeual 22 novembril — tell 7

928 College Street

Einelaud, tants.

FORMALS

Long and Short

Gowns in stock or custom made for $50.00 and up.

HELMAR

46 St. GEORGE — WA. 1-5978

SIGMA ALPHA MU'S GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY BALL

Empress Room — Park Plaza Hotel

GREY CUP NIGHT — SATURDAY, NOV. 28th

Subscription: $3.50 per couple at door

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS

BASKETBALL
Games and Practices Week of Nov. 23 to Nov. 27.

SPORTS GYM		UPPER GYM
Tuesday, Nov. 24		Wednesday, Nov. 25
North	South	North	South
1:15—Intercollegiate Tryouts	1:15—Intercollegiate Tryouts	OCE—POTI	St. Hilda's F—U.C.F
		PHE II—Meds	Vic F. I—Nursing Jr
Monday, Nov. 23		Thursday, Nov. 26
1:15—Nursing Jr.	1:15—St. Hilda's Freshies	Intercollegiate Tryouts	Intercollegiate Tryouts

NOTICE: The following teams have been disqualified by allowing girls, who have neither had their medical examination nor made appointments, to play in the Intercollegiate Tournament: St. Mike's A, St. Mike's B, Pharmacy, U.C. Sophs, U.C. Jr. Sr., and Vic Sophs.

VOLLEYBALL
Intercollegiate tryouts will continue on Tuesday, Nov. 24 at the upper gym of the Women's Athletic Building and Thursday, Nov. 26 at the sports gym. All interested girls are welcome.

Hees Says PC's Gave skule prank Government To People Meds Student Snatched

George Hees, federal transport minister, last night told campus Progressive Conservatives the Conservative regime in Ottawa has brought government back to the people.

He said the defeat of the Liberals in the last general election was because the Liberals had "withdrawn into their ivory tower and because they made the error of believing their own press notices."

The Conservatives, said Mr. Hees, are speaking to small groups in Canada in order to hear from the people what the people want.

Mr. Hees said although he did not have the exact figures with him, probably the average age of men in parliament now is probably close to 40, at least 20 years younger than when the Liberals were in power. The Conservatives have "young men now with their life ahead of them who are able to speak well, and speak their minds."

The minister said, under the last government individual Liberal members of parliament "were encouraged to keep quiet if they wanted to get ahead in their party."

"The reverse," he said, "is true in the present Conservative government."

He said the Conservative government is interested in "the free enterprise system."

"The government should assist not supplant free enterprise," said Mr. Hees. He cited projects being carried out by his own ministry.

He said under the Conservative administration more money is being spent on harbors, railways, and airports, "since transportation is necessary for industry." He said the role of the Conservative government is to help industry to help itself.

In line with this policy, the Government is contributing to the $40,000,000, cost of a new Toronto jetport, to be completed within four years.

Commenting on the "tight money" situation in Canada, Mr. Hees said, "The economy of this country is bursting at the seams." He said there is a tremendous confidence in the Canadian economy, and this is reflected in the large demand for money for investment purposes.

He pointed out the role Canada is playing in the development of the West Indies Federation in co-operation with other members of the Commonwealth. Part of Canada's $10,000,000 is two Canadian-built ships.

At the same meeting, Murray Corlett (III Vic), was unanimously elected to the post of parliamentary leader in the U of T Model Parliament.

The chairman of the Toronto Transportation Commission said this week the TTC will insure the University of Toronto against any possible damage caused by construction of the new subway.

Mr. Walton met with Metro Chairman Fred Gardiner and other officials Monday.

University officials expressed concern when the TTC announced it never gave written agreements to anyone covering possible damage to property.

A smouldering feud between the faculties of Medicine and Engineering flared into action on College St. Wednesday morning.

A mob of Engineers armed with clubs kidnapped a lone Meds, John Kenzora (I Pre-Med.). Kenzora was shackled and led down College St. by the howling throng, who had previously painted a beard and moustache on his face.

About this time fellow Pre-Meds students began arriving for morning lectures. Out numbered but still game they entered the foray and managed to tie up traffic on College but not to rescue their buddy.

Kenzora was led off to be held prisoner in the Engineering Building until he expressed "proper contrition for the sin of being a Medsman."

When Skulemen learned that a group of Medsmen were singing the Meds song on the steps of the Engineering Building, they marched their captive back to home ground.

Medsmen hastily sounded a retreat and fled to the sanctuary of the Physics building.

A short time later Kenzora was released and a signed document was circulated among the Medical students by the Engineers saying he had been well treated.

U. of T.
Chinese Overseas Students' Association
All University students Cordially invited to
"CHINA NIGHT"
Date: Saturday, Nov. 21st, 1959
at 8.30 p.m.
Place: Convocation Hall,
Trinity College
$1.50 per couple—Tickets available at door—Informal Features:
Chinese Folk Songs, Folk Dance,
Excerpts from Peking Opera
Refreshments

UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICE

SALK POLIO VACCINE

MEN ONLY

Any male student who received his first two Salk polio vaccine injections at least seven months ago may come to the Health Service for a third injection at the following times:—

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 24th—9:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m.

Any male student who has not yet had Salk polio vaccine injections but would like to begin a series will be given an opportunity to do so in January.

UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICE

WOMEN'S DIVISION

WOMEN STUDENTS who wish to play Basketball, Volleyball or Hockey are reminded that they should have a health examination as soon as possible.

Failure to comply with this regulation will mean that their team will be disqualified. Please contact the Women's Division of the Health Service immediately for an appointment.

Hart House Theatres Fifty-Second All-University Production

George Bernard Shaw's

THE SIMPLETON OF THE UNEXPECTED ISLES

Directed by Robert Gill

SAT., NOV. 28th, to SAT., DEC. 5th, at 8.30
BOX OFFICE OPEN 10.00 A.M. TO 6 P.M. WA. 3-5244

Same Special
Student Rate — $1.00

Two Tickets Only
On Each A.T.L. Card

REMEMBER

"THE BIG BLITZ"

Monday, November 30

5.30 — 10.00 p.m.

The All-Varsity Student Canvass of Homes in Metropolitan Toronto on Behalf of

THE NATIONAL FUND

See Your SAC Rep
EAC Rep
Residence Council

NOW!

MULOCK CUP SEMI-FINALS TODAY

JOHN GATTEN, Blues' centre fires his third goal of the season in the game played against Macedonians yesterday afternoon. The play of Gatten and his linemates, Howie Roth and Jim Murchie has been one of the few bright spots for coach Jack Kennedy this young season.

—VSP Hoshkiw

Blues Unimpressive, Lose To Macedonians

Forward Lines Need Improvement

Defence Plays Well

RED STEPHEN STILL SMILING

By GENE GLISKY

East York Macedonians, out-hustled, outskated, outshot, and just plain outed Varsity Blues 4-2 in Varsity Arena Wednesday afternoon.

Although dressing only 10 players, Macedonians (formerly East York Lyndies, formerly Brampton Lyndhursts) appeared stronger as the game wore on.

Harry Neale put Varsity ahead mid-way through the first period on a pass from John Gatten. Macedonian's Gord Haddleton tied it up in the second frame, assisted by brother Bill.

Blues surged ahead momentarily in the third period on the best goal of the night by Gatten. Howie (Lil Bar) Roth and Jim Murchie combined on the score.

From that moment on, 'twas sad Dan Meloff, Gord Haddleton and Red Crawford made it look easy as they peppered goals against Blues' Don Keenan. Portly but still smiling Red Stephen assisted on one goal. He should have been laughing.

All in all, Blues' play was pretty dismal. Perhaps this is only temporary. After all, with only two weeks practise beneath their skis, let's not expect miracles.

The attacking lines, however, leave very much to be desired. The "beat them in the Alleys" type of play is not for this squad. They have neither the brawn, speed or individual abilities to score goals without the help of their linemates, so why keep trying to.

In this particular game, organization appeared to consist of a quick glance, apparently to discover which way is up, who were the good guys and who were the bad, and then a quick skate in all directions (at one time yet).

The Murchie, Gatten and Roth line 'will' be good. Perhaps still a little short on desire, they at least appear on speaking terms with one another.

Unless our forwards quit humping a body check yards down from the puck carrier and get down to the serious business of scoring goals, the most unenviable position at Varsity come next March will be that of "Jolly Mentor" Jack Kennedy. Somehow it seems a pity, and somehow we rather doubt that it will happen.

MULOCK CUP GAMES CONTINUE TODAY

Trinity And Victoria Favoured

Victoria and Trinity reign as favorites to enter the finals of the 1959 Mulock Cup Series when the dust of battle has cleared from today's Semi-Final games.

Victoria play St. Skule in the first game at 12:00 in the Stadium, and while Vic have the horses, it must be remembered that the best they could do was a tie the last time out against the Engineers.

This same Skule team faced a highly favored Trinity squad in last year's semi's and to almost everybody's surprise, they emerged with a 14-13 upset win over a team that had gone undefeated during the regular season.

They will also be gunning for revenge for the 29-0 plastering Victoria handed them in last year's final. But the betting is that the very strong Vic defensive line will hold firm and lead their team to the finals.

The other game is a bit more problematical. Trinity on the surface would appear to have an enormous advantage. Their attack is the smoothest in either league with Lynn MacMurray at quarterback.

But a coach of one of the other teams in the semi's had this to say: "Dentistry's players are all under 5' 8" but they run and tackle and block like h—l!"

Anything can and probably will happen. This should be one of the most interesting games in years.

Trinity Wins Hockey Opener

Knox Beats Architecture By One Goal In Playoff

SKULE SOCCERITES ADVANCE

The Intramural hockey season got off to a distinctly unpromising start for Victoria College yesterday afternoon at the Arena as both their First and Second hockey teams were decisively beaten.

Vic I's went down to Trinity 4-1. Bill McWhinney (2), Dave Ross and Charlie McNab scored for the Panthers; Lanny Doucette tallied for Vic.

Jr. SPS whipped Vic II 6-0. McLean (2), Decarli, Nakai, Nightingale, and McAuley scored for the Engineers.

Sr. SPS defeated St. Mike's "A" 2-1 on Juan Atucha's pair of goals, also in soccer playoff action. DeTullio scored for SMC.

In Lacrosse, it was Trinity 4, SPS III 4.

In Squash, SMC "C" edged SPS VI 2-1.

... and in this corner

by pam hill

The Interfaculty soft-ball-play-offs are well under way. Victoria I came out on top of the first yeague, with P&HE II and Pharmacy heading leagues two and three respectively.

According to the play-off schedule, P&HE gets a bye, while Pharmacy and Vic play one game for entry into the finals. This game was played Monday at noon (having been cancelled last Friday because of snow!) and Vic didn't even have to try. Pharmacy, a new entry into the league this year, won their six games during the season, but certainly aren't of first league calibre. Yet they do show great promise—particularly with pitcher Judy Skene. However, no dice this year, team. They were whalloped; 33-4. Would it be "reductio ad absurdum" to attribute this to the mud? Lauranne VanValkenburg, Mary Ellen Anglin and Janet Keffer all hit home-runs, while everybody else on the team crossed the plate at least once.

But on Wednesday it was a completely different story. Victoria met last year's champs, P&HE. With little Barb Black in the pitchers box for Phys. Ed., the Vic team was stunned and crippled. Even pitcher and "home-run queen", Lauranne VanValkenburg was unable to do little but pitch to their home-runs and herself strike out.

Lee Pickercell was top hitter for the Phys. Ed. team. With one man on, she hit a home-run in the early innings, and later slugged out two triples. Also hitting a home-run was Judy Smith—of noted basketball fame—the catcher.

But star of the game was Sue Robertson. In the fifth inning—all players numb to the quick with the freezing cold—Sue hit a triple with the bases loaded. About five minutes later when their side had retired, Vic had a runner on first and there was a beautiful fly to centre field. Making a terrific run-in, Sue caught the ball. The player from first had inadvertently run to second. Sue quickly threw to second to make it two out. The first pitch to the next batter was another fly to centre field. Again, Sue caught it to make it three down, side retired, inning finished, game over. The cold lassies were all pretty pleased to see the inning ended so quickly—although by then it was 2:30.

Oh. The final score? 15-0. Vic only managed to get one player as far as third base once in the second inning. And that was as close as they got to scoring position.

All in all, it was a terrific game! There were few errors, some interesting and fast plays, and some good strategy. Vic is good, but they lack the finesse and spirit of two to seven years ago. Their loss seems to be Phys. Ed's gain.

The sole criticism might be the indecision among the umpires. On a play to second, the base-man caught the ball, tagged the runner before she touched the bag, but then dropped the ball. The base-man called the runner out, which seemed reasonable to a layman in the crowd, and the side left the field. But the umpire from behind the plate came running forward and explained that the gal was safe on second, and the team was recalled to finish the inning. I was under the impression that a referee's or umpire's decision stood, be he right or wrong. Rarely does he change his decision, and certainly it is equally rare that another ump causes him to change the decision. Oh well, live and learn.

There's another game—or two—to be played in the series. It's a best of three game series. Phys. Ed. is leading 1-0 now, but you never can tell.

From land to water, the Intercollegiate Swim Team has left for Western and the big meet. Last year the gals won the meet, but are going to have a little more of a struggle this year. The team is comprised of: Liz Bell, Ann Russell, Joanie Tait, Lil Lewis, Lowell Pelton, Lynne Philpott, Pam Hill, Ann Edwards, and Sally Bambridge. The team's biggest loss is Janet Medland, Intercollegiate Synchronized Champion three years in a row. Janet is medically ineligible this year, and although we have good replacements, McGill presents quite a threat here.

A further loss is Diving Champion, Jane Furness. But Lil Bobson has been doing a terrific job, and was expected to regain the first position, but just recently injured her knee. So, whether or not she'll be diving is unknown.

The speed team is about holding its own, although Western is still the biggest threat here. Val Lewis can again be assured of capturing at least two firsts, and new-comer, Lowell Pelton looks pretty good. But, the whole meet is going to be touch and go. All we can say is good luck, team. Do your darndest!

ONE OF THE FEW CHANCES Blues had to score Wednesday is shown here as Howie Roth drifts in almost unmolested on the Macedonian goalie. He failed to score, as did all but two of his team mates.

—VSP Hoshkiw

Circulate Petition

Staff Members Demand Bomb Ban

The Petition

Petition to the Government of Canada

We, the undersigned members of the Faculty of the University of Toronto, consider it our duty to emphasize the continuing and increasing danger of nuclear war. Such war would cause inestimable suffering, and destroy the present basis of civilization. The major powers are now involved in an armaments race, despite the proved tendency of such competitions to provoke, rather than to prevent conflict. To maintain a balance of power, East and West threaten each other with instant retaliation, risking the fearful danger of accidental war. These dangers are increased, and new opportunities for disastrous action are created, by the endeavour of other powers to obtain nuclear weapons.

We therefore urge the Government of Canada to press, in the councils of the world, for an immediate and permanent end to the testing and production of nuclear weapons, and for measures to prevent the spread of such weapons to countries that do not have them. We are confident that the problems involved in the establishment of the necessary system of international inspection can be solved if there is a sincere desire for agreement.

We believe that the achievement of even these limited goals will put a check to the increasing danger of world war, and will at the same time constitute a first step towards disarmament, in which lies our only hope of survival in a nuclear age.

A committee made up of 14 U of T faculty members and one student has drafted and is circulating a petition on nuclear disarmament.

In addition to the committee, 44 members of the U of T staff, including President C. T. Bissell, have agreed to sponsor the petition. A copy of the petition has been mailed to all members of the U of T faculty.

The committee, called The Committee for Nuclear Disarmament has been meeting since September to discuss the problems of nuclear war.

"The question was whether the members of the university community should be doing something about this problem, and if so, what and how," said

Bogdan Kipling, SGS, the one student member of Committee.

Shortly after the beginning of the fall term, the committee decided its first step should be to draft a petition to the government of Canada.

The petition was drafted by a subcommittee made up of faculty members from the departments of mathematics, philosophy, geography, botany and chemistry and Rev. J. S. Cunningham the Chaplain of Hart House, and Kipling.

The petition contains three main proposals:

1) that the Government of Canada "press, in the councils (Continued on Page 2)

The Letter

Dear Colleague:

At the present time, declarations by leading statesmen appealing for disarmament appear frequently in the press. Appeals for disarmament are not new, but never before in history have they been made with such urgency as they are today.

If the statesmen who make these appeals are to be successful in implementing them, a major break will have to be made with traditional diplomacy. Such a radical change in thinking on the part of those in positions of power will not be achieved unless there is manifest a strong and vocal support from all sections of the community.

A number of members of this university, after considerable discussion, have agreed on the wording of a statement for presentation to the Prime Minister of Canada. The names of the sponsors of this document are appended.

If you are in agreement with the major points raised in this petition would you be kind enough to sign the attached copy and send it through the campus mail as soon as possible to the Chaplain, Hart House.

The Committee for Nuclear Disarmament.

D. G. Baker (Banting Inst.)
J. R. Bray (Botany)
J. M. S. Careless (History)
J. B. Conacher (History)
H. M. C. Coxeter (Mathematics)

J. S. Cunningham (Chaplain, Hart House)
W. G. Dean (Geography)
D. P. Gauthier (Philosophy)
B. Kipling (Graduate Studies)
S. K. Jaffary (Social Work)

W. A. E. McBryde (Chemistry)
J. Polanyi (Chemistry)
G. Tatham (Geography)
F. B. Watts (Geography)
C. W. Webb (Philosophy)

SPONSORS

A. D. Allen (Chemistry)
E. R. Arthur (Architecture)
D. L. Bailey (Botany)
C. T. Bissell (President, University of Toronto)
V. W. Bladen (Dean of Arts)
D. Creighton (History)
R. E. Deane (Geological Sciences)
A. J. Earp (Registrar, Trinity College)
K. C. Fisher (Zoology)
H. N. Frye (Principal, Victoria College)
T. A. Goudge (Philosophy)
W. D. B. Grant (English)
C. S. Hanes (Biochemistry)
J. N. P. Hume (Physics)
J. A. Irving (Ethics)

F. C. A. Jeanneret (Chancellor, U of T)
Rev. K. J. Joblin (Religious Knowledge)
Rev. J. M. Kelly (President, St. Michael's College)
J. D. Ketchum (Psychology)
J. C. Laidlaw (Medicine)
E. A. McCulloch (Medicine)
W. S. McCulloch (Near Eastern Studies)
W. J. McCurdy (Philosophy)
H. I. MacDonald (Dean of Men, U.C.)
J. R. MacGillivray (English)
R. F. McRae (Philosophy)
Rev. J. F. Madden (Superior, St. Michael's College)
J. D. Morrow (Medicine)
M. Fowicke (History)

D. F. Putnam (Geography)
D. Savan (Philosophy)
R. M. H. Shepherd (Classics)
J. L. Silversides (Medicine)
L. Siminovich (Medical Biophysics)
M. P. Sinden (German)
F. E. Sparshott (Ethics)
N. E. F. Steenberg (Physics)
E. A. Walker (French)
F. W. Watt (English)
F. E. W. Wetmore (Assoc. Dean of Arts)
Rev. R. J. Williams (Near Eastern Studies)
M. St. A. Woodside (Principal, University College)
K. McNaught (History)
R. R. McLaughlin (Dean of Applied Science)

P.S. On Wednesday, November 25th at 5.00 p.m. in Trinity College, Convocation Hall, a public meeting is being held to introduce this petition and a similar petition sponsored by students to the university. Faculty and students are invited.

Six Colleges Fill Quota Blitz Goal Half-Reached

Only six out of seventeen University of Toronto colleges and faculties have filled their "Big Blitz" volunteer quotas.

A desperate plea was made by Barbara Leaman (IV UC), Vice-President of the Student's Administration Council, for volunteers and to colleges which haven't filled their quotas.

"Congratulations are in order for Victoria College which topped its quota by almost 200 students," Miss Leaman said last night.

"Trinity, St. Michael's, Physical Education, Pharmacy and Architecture have also over-shot their goals, she said.

Engineering, Dentistry, Forestry, Law, Medicine, Music, Social Work and Graduate Students haven't reported yet."

Only 1390 out of a necessary 3000 volunteers have been enlisted to date.

However it's hoped that volunteers from the faculties which have not as yet reported will swell the total for the one-night blitz.

Volunteers will receive instructions by mail before the end of the week, and area captains and team captains will be announced at that time.

The deadline for volunteer reports has been extended from last Friday to Tuesday, 5.00 p.m.

Blitz canvassers will visit about 70,000 residents of Toronto's north-central district aiming at a $75,000 goal as the U of T contribution to the National Fund.

Students participating in the campaign will be supplied with canvassing kits, arm bands and university receipts and will be expected to visit about 20 homes each.

A light meal will be fed to volunteers before the campaign and coffee and donuts after. A dance will highlight the after-campaign entertainment program.

Assistance with transportation will be provided for canvassers by the National Fund

Blitz

Faculty	No. of Volunteers	Quota
P&OT	44	50
Nursing	57	63
Phys. Ed.	39	29
St. Mike's	205	175
UC	215	337
Trinity	222	112
Pharmacy	98	67
Architecture	30	21
Victoria	490	295

Engineering, Dentistry, Forestry, Law, Meds, Music, Social Work and Graduate Studies have yet to be heard from.

Ottawa, Quebec Government Agree Over Question of University Grants

QUEBEC CITY—The federal and Quebec governments have reached agreement on the long-standing problem of grants to universities, it was reported Friday.

The agreement involves a one-per-cent boost in Quebec Corporation tax which would be abated against the federal corporation tax. It will solve a problem dating from 1952 which, with money earmarked for this year, has tied up $25,000,000 of federal cash intended for Quebec universities.

The agreement is intended to eliminate a threat to Quebec provincial autonomy which Quebec provincial leaders believe was posed by federal grants to universities.

Ontario Premier Leslie Frost Friday expressed interest in the plan as a means of preserving provincial autonomy in Ontario. Ontario universities now accept federal grants.

Under the agreement, Quebec universities will receive money only from the provincial government, as has been the case in the past.

The one-per-cent rise in Quebec's corporation tax, now nine per cent, will give the province money to give the universities, compensating for the federal grants they will not and do not receive.

Federal Finance Minister Donald Fleming and Quebec Premier Paul Sauve Friday held a three-hour meeting in Quebec City.

(Continued on Page 3)

CURRENT EVENTS

TODAY

- 1.00 p.m. — VCF Bible Study groups
Will meet in room 111 for UC students, and in room 213, Anatomy Building, for 2nd year pre-Meds and 2nd and 4th year Meds.
- 2.30 - 6.00 p.m. — Treasure Van opens
At Howard Ferguson Hall, UC. Everybody welcome.
- 7 - 10 p.m. — Treasure Van continues
At Howard Ferguson Hall, UC. Everybody welcome.
- 7.45 p.m. — The monthly meeting
Of the Psychology Club will be held at Carr Hall Auditorium, St. Michael's College. There will be a movie, "Juvenile Delinquency."

TUESDAY

- 1.00 p.m. — VCF Bible Study
For 1st year pre-Meds, 1st year Meds, and P&OT in room 213, Anatomy Building.
- 1.10 p.m. — Quaker Study group
Will meet in room 42F, UC.
- 1.20 p.m. — Vic noon hour concert
In the Music Room, Wymilwood, will feature Dan Yielding (Baritone).
- 4.00 p.m. — The Humanist Guild
presents John R. Mayer, Lecturer in Philosophy at McMaster University in the Hart House Debates Room speaking on: "A Challenge To Christianity." All are welcome.
- 4.10 p.m. — A new SMC study group
Will hold its first meeting in room 14, Victoria College. The subject, "The Birth Stories of the Bible" will be lead by Miss N. Holman.

WEDNESDAY

- 12 - 6 p.m. — Open house for first year students
Will be held on the third floor of the Department of Food Chemistry, 157 Bloor St. W.
- 1.00 p.m. — Hart House Camera Club
Will hold a members' Slide Show.

(8.30 p.m. in the Great Hall, Hart House, and tickets $1.25 from the Hall Porter)

CONCERT?

TRI-UNIVERSITY

Take In The

Grey Cup Saturday

For A Well-Balanced

—Why Not

Why Not

Now Available!

A STUDENT'S GUIDE TO THE UNIVERSITY LIBRARY

This 32-page booklet describing the services and regulations of the University Library is being distributed without charge to all students at the University of Toronto.

Get your copy at any service desk in the main Library or in the University College, History, or Political Science Reading Rooms.

Petition

Continued From Page One

of the world, for an immediate and permanent end to the testing and production of nuclear weapons."

2) that the government press for "measures" to prevent the spread of such weapons to countries that do not have them."

If these proposals were accepted the problem of nuclear armament would concern those nuclear weapons now stockpiled by the United States and the USSR. A number of small countries are now clamoring for atomic weapons.

The petition refers to these two proposals as representing "limited goals" and suggest 3) that these limited goals should "constitute with those weapons not covered by the first two proposals, weapons now in the possession of the United States and the USSR.

The petition is sponsored by 44 staff members, including prominent members of almost every faculty on campus.

An exactly similar petition addressed to the students of U of T instead of the faculty will be launched at a public meeting this Wednesday at 5 p.m. in Trinity Convocation Hall.

Professor K. McNaught (History) will address the meeting. Petitions will be given to students attending this meeting and students will be asked to volunteer to circulate the petition in their faculties and colleges.

Kipling said the meeting and the petition would not be the committee's only activity.

(Continued on Page 3)

The Iceman Cometh

Special student tickets for The Iceman Cometh will be on sale every day of this week in the UC rotunda from 12 noon until 2 p.m. and will cost $1 each.

The Iceman Cometh, which opened Nov. 13 and will close this Saturday was the Arts Theatre's first production of the current season.

The play is directed by Basya Hunter and has a professional company, including George Sperdakos, Ted Pope, John Scott and Toby Tarnow.

The Arts Theatre, which consists of the theatre itself, the Arts Theatre School and the Arts Theatre Club, will present a play in February directed by George McGowan and, later, in April will present "Lysistrata", a comedy by Aristophanes.

Included in the immediate program for the club are, on Dec. 6, a discussion and analysis of the production of The Iceman Cometh, and, on Jan. 12, a symposium of Canadian Playwrights.

The panel will consist of Lister Sinclair, Jack Rosenfeld, John Gray and Len Tetserson.

The Arts Theatre offers a special membership rate for students which entitles them to all the facilities and the tickets to all the actual productions.

VEGETARIAN MEALS
Reasonable prices, served at —
Tea Rooms—73 Yorkville Ave.
Lunch 12 to 2 noon Wednesdays
—Dinner 6 to 7.30 Tuesdays and Fridays.
Information—WA. 3-1933

U of T FLYING CLUB MEETING

Wed. Nov 25th
8 p.m.

Music Room — Hart House
FILM, featuring the F 104
(This is the aircraft which is replacing the Avro Arrow)
Refreshments will be served
Come and Bring Your Friends

Sheraton Hotels STUDENT-FACULTY DISCOUNTS

Here's money-saving news for students, faculty and all other college personnel. During weekends and college vacations, Sheraton offers you special low rates—even lower rates when two or more occupy the same room. Special group rates are provided for athletic teams, clubs, other college organizations.

You get these discounts at any of Sheraton's 54 hotels in the U.S.A., Hawaii and Canada. Just present your Sheraton I.D. card when you register. To get a Sheraton I.D. card, contact:

MR. LIONEL T. COLMAN
95 St. George Street
Toronto 5, Ontario.

Phone: WA. 2-2514

HAMMOND'S AMBASSADOR ATLAS

CANADIAN DE LUXE
EDITION

Regular $29.95

Gift giving special $10.00

Bonus Book Club
1266 Eglinton Avenue W.
RU. 1-4249

Bad visibility and a low ceiling last Friday forced 15 eager young University of Toronto birdmen-to-be to cancel a planned air excursion to Niagara Falls.

Original plans were to have the flight, sponsored by the U of T Flying Club, take the students to the Honeymoon Capital of the world for breakfast, and to have them back in Toronto for lunch.

It's not the first time this year that the Flying Club has been shot down by bad weather.

"In fact, we've been having bad luck with the weather since the beginning of the year", club president Frauke Voss (IV Vio) said last night.

However the club is still trying, and at its next meeting members will discuss a proposed trip to Ithica, N.Y., on the invitation of the Cornell University Flying Club.

Kitten

new

matching skirt and sweater

Go glamorous in this dramatic new one-colour ensemble... jumbo-knit pullover in Shetlantex (a beautiful blend with 20% mohair), wide-set turtle neck, easy lines and long sleeves, size 34 to 40, price $12.95 —with slim Shetlantex skirt—sizes 8 to 20, price $16.95—at good shops everywhere.

GUARANTEED TO MATCH

Look for the name Kitten

5445

Novel Radio Telescope Planned For Algonquin

A new type of radio telescope developed by research at the University of Toronto will be built in Algonquin Park next year.

The telescope built by the new process will cost less than one per cent of the former amount.

The instrument is designed to operate on a short-wave frequency. University officials say this will make the telescope more efficient than the world's largest existing telescope, at Jodrell Bank in England.

The U of T scope will be in the form of a "T" instead of being made up of conventional metal bowls aimed at outer space.

Dr. Donald A. MacRae, professor of astronomy at the David Dunlop Observatory, said the main problem with conventional telescopes is that they cost millions of dollars to build. He estimated the U of T scope's cost at $20,000.

The bowl-type telescopes can be aimed in any direction, whereas the U of T machine will be limited somewhat, but officials feel the telescope will be of great value because of its power.

The main purpose of the new instrument will be to study the Milky Way, and to discover what radio waves come from it and what come from far beyond that cluster of stars.

The telescope will be situated on a 5,940-acre tract near Lake Traverse, about 50 miles north-east of Huntsville. It will form a part of a National Radio Observatory now under construction.

The prototype of the telescope, expected to be completed early next year, will be 104 feet long. Scientists expect this prototype to give them valuable information on the steering apparatus of the full-scale instrument, whose T-shaped cross-pieces will measure about 400 feet each.

In both versions, antennas called yagis will be set in the ground in pairs, pointing towards the stars every four feet.

The yagis will be shaped somewhat like eight-foot-long television aerials.

University Education Panel

A university student, a businessman, a professor and a writer decided on a CHUM panel last night that a university education is necessary not only in industry and politics but also in raising a family.

Stan Dubas of the Student's Administrative Council of the University of Toronto, Robert McNair, vice-president of Gerber's Ltd., Professor O. F. Morrison of the U of T Engineering Faculty and Maclean's writer, June Callwood, participated in the discussion to publicize the U of T National Fund campaign.

"The purpose of a university education is to train and educate members of a society to be useful members of that society," said Prof. Morrison.

He agreed that an appreciable amount of the humanities is required in an engineering course also, after Miss Callwood said: "A man emerging from university with an engineering degree knows how to build bridges but he does not know how to build a family and is a shabby man."

Dubas said: "A man wants a wife to have a university education so he and his wife have a common ground to stand on. A man wants a woman to think the same as he does and to discuss the problems he has."

Miss Callwood said, "A woman does one of her most important jobs as a housewife. That job is becoming more complicated every day and a housewife needs a university education."

Mr. McNair said, "In major industry which is shaping the face of our country a university education is a must."

Jake: That's a pretty dress you have on.

Mary: Yes. I only wear it to teas.

Jake: Whom?

(Continued on Page 7)

Steel Strike May Halt Building Of Skulehouse

A shortage of steel from United States mills is expected to halt construction on the University of Toronto's new $7,000,000 engineering building within the next days, it was announced Saturday.

University Building Superintendent F. J. Hostie said the steel shortage could delay the opening of the five-story building, at present scheduled for next fall.

"It is possible, however, that this could be averted by double shift work next spring", he said.

Mr. Hostie said all possible concrete work on the project was being done at this stage but this was expected to be finished within the next few days.

The steel needed for the engineering building is a type of large beam which is not made in Canadian steel plants.

The steel shortage is not expected to affect work on the new Faculty of Arts building on St. George St. as the special type of beams are not being used in its construction.

The new Engineering building is part of the U of T's current five-year plan, which will see the university expand to accommodate an estimated 23,000 students by 1963. When completed it will house the departments of Civil and Electrical Engineering, both of which have long been operating under overcrowded conditions.

Petition

Continued from Page 2)

"We hope to be able to organize educational meetings and discussion groups where informed people will talk on such subjects as the pattern of fall-out and the political implications of disarmament," he said.

"It was the feeling of the committee and others we spoke to," Kipling said, "that the university community had a responsibility to the community at large to speak on this grave problem. It is our hope that the student body will associate itself with the activities of the committee."

Fan Dancer: Doctor, I want you to vaccinate me where it won't show.

Doc: Okay, then stick out your tongue.

"Does your girl smoke?"
"Well, not quite."

TYPING

Theses, Essays, Notes, Charts, French, German, Latin, English Prices Upon Request
Apt. 12
21 AVENUE RD. — WA. 2-7624
MRS. M. D. STOTT, B.A.

Sports • Trophies • Games

Before you Buy give WILSON'S a try
WHOLESALE PRICES TO EVERYONE
The HAROLD A. WILSON CO. OF TORONTO LTD.
328 DUPONT STREET

TYPEWRITERS

$1.00 A WEEK BUYS . . .
... $1.50 A WEEK RENTS
Get a free typing course and a liberal trade-in allowance for your old typewriter when you buy a new modern machine from us.

Phone HO. 1-1843 Today

THE CAMPUS CO-OPERATIVE

Has accommodation for men and women

Room & Board $56.50 per month

Board Only $38.50 per month

32 Sussex Street.
WA. 1-2520

UNIVERSITY BLAZERS

Custom Made
Especially Priced for Students
$27.50
Fine Flannel Worsted Trousers
$16.50

Business Hours: 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.
Monday through Saturday
Suits Made to Measure
Latest Styles and Design
PARNES Clothing Co.
706 QUEEN STREET WEST
EM. 6-2025
Sample at S.A.C. Office

Grants

Continued From Page One

A one-per-cent boost in provincial corporation taxes would give both Ontario and Quebec more than the $1.50 a head of population now allotted as federal grants universities in these provinces.

Presumably the provinces would pay the difference back to the federal government — likely by abatement of some other type of federal grants to the provinces.

Details of the agreement are expected to be cleared up within a few weeks, well in time for the Quebec legislature, in session since last Wednesday, to pass any necessary legislation.

Federal university grants were begun in 1951 and Quebec universities accepted them that year. But when the provincial government officially voiced opposition the next year, Quebec universities generally refused the grants as they have done ever since.

The provincial government said that the grants were an infringement on provincial autonomy — the British North America Act says education is a provincial responsibility — and that Ottawa should not have had the money to give.

The federal government is believed to have now accepted this argument, at least partially.

BUY FLOWERS
for all occasions at the
PARK PLAZA FLORISTS
10 AVENUE ROAD
WA. 3-6361
10% DISCOUNT TO
STUDENTS AND STAFF

CLASSIFIED ADS.

DRESS ALTERATIONS
Quality workmanship, fast service.
Harbord at St. George. Call Mrs. Zador, after 10 a.m. WA. 3-6960.

FOR FAST, EFFICIENT TYPING
Call BE. 1-2720 anytime. Reasonable.

WANTED
Girl to live in for baby sitting, and light household chores in exchange for private room, bath and meals. North Toronto, near bus. HU. 5-9167.

BASEMENT APARTMENT
Large bed sitting room, built-in buffet, radio, hi-fi, refrigerator, stove. Private bath, own entrance. T.V. outlet. Near TTC. $55.00 monthly. RU. 3-0769.

Hart House

TODAY

1.30 p.m.—Sing Song — East Common Room
5.00 p.m.—Glee Club Full Rehearsal — Music Room
7.00 p.m.—Amateur Radio Club Tour — Radio Valve Co.
For information call WA. 3-9504

7.15 p.m.—Revolver Club — Rifle Range

8.00 p.m.—OPEN MEETING EXPLORATION SOC'Y
—Music Room. Speaker: R. A. J. Phillips
"The Changing Arctic"—Ladies invited

TUESDAY

8.00 a.m.—Holy Communion — Chapel
5.10 p.m.—Amateur Radio Club CODE & THEORY CLASS — Debates Loft
7.00 p.m.—Glee Club Full Rehearsal—DEBATES RM.
7.15 p.m.—BRIDGE CLUB — East Common Room
7.30 p.m.—Art Class — Art Gallery
8.00 p.m.—Archery — Rifle Range

MEMBERS' ART SHOW

All University men are invited to exhibit drawings, paintings and sculpture
Closing entry date DECEMBER 4th
For information call WA. 3-9504
NOVEMBER 28th — TRI-UNIVERSITY CONCERT —
Tickets at Hall Porter's Desk

Free Alterations

On all short and long gowns in stock.

Drop in anytime between lectures

HELMAR

46 ST. GEORGE ST.
WA. 1-5978

The Edward Kylie Trust Award

Applications may be made to the Secretary of the Edward Kylie Trust on or before December 31st, 1959, by candidates for the Edward Kylie Trust Award for the year 1960-61. These applications should be made in writing and should give particulars of the qualifications and record of the applicant with a view to the following requirements. The Award will be made to a male student who is a British subject, either a graduate or an under-graduate of Arts, preferably in the course of Modern History at the University of Toronto, to enable him to pursue his studies in Great Britain. The Trustees shall make their award to that candidate who appears from his record at the University to be most likely to occupy a position of leadership and influence in the Community.

The sum available is Eight Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($850.00) for the year 1960-61 and the Trustees may renew the award for a second year if they are satisfied with the first year's record.

The Trustees, upon receiving applications, will arrange for the examination of the candidates and if the Trustees are not satisfied as to the suitability of any of the candidates they will have the right to withhold the award.

Dated this 15th day of November, A.D. 1959.

THE HONOURABLE DANA PORTER,
Osgoode Hall,
Toronto, Ontario.
Secretary, Edward Kylie Trust.

Hart House Theatres Fifty-Second All-University Production

George Bernard Shaw's

THE SIMPLETON OF THE UNEXPECTED ISLES

Directed by Robert Gill

Same Special Student Rate — $1.00

Two Tickets Only On Each A.T.L. Card

SAT., NOV. 28th, to SAT., DEC. 5th, at 8.30
BOX OFFICE OPEN 10.00 A.M. TO 6 P.M. WA. 3-5244

comment

vindication

We are glad that the federal government and that of Quebec have resolved their dispute over the thorny question of federal grants to that province's universities.

But we are also glad that the government of Quebec held out for the kind of deal it is now getting.

And we hope that the Ontario legislature goes ahead with the idea of putting grants to its universities on a similarly province-centred basis — an idea in which Premier Frost has already expressed some interest.

Quebec, a province consisting mainly of French-speaking Catholic stock, a minority group in Canada but a minority group which must be guarded if a recognizable Canada is to be maintained, has, of course, a special mission to preserve her autonomy jealously.

But it holds true in almost any corner of the world these days that the individual, the family and many sorts of cultural and religious groups are in grave danger of being ignored in the symmetrical sweeping plans of the Big State — and we refer to the more or less democratic and capitalistic states as well as others.

In fact, we feel that the Big Corporation and the Big Union have their share in furthering this trend.

We doubt if it is exactly what they had in mind, but the authors of the British North America Act gave us an excellent bulwark against this overwhelming bigness in the dominion-provincial-municipal governmental set-up which we have inherited.

Especially in a field which has much to do with moulding individual lives and minds as education, we feel that this bulwark is too valuable to throw away — even in the interests of finding a quick, easy way to give our universities the extra money which they undoubtedly need.

When the late Prime Minister Duplessis of Quebec complained that through the grants the federal government was tending to infringe on the rights of his province, he was, we think, right.

And when he said that the very fact that Ottawa had money to give to the universities showed that Ottawa was stealing money from his province, we still think he was right.

When we were in high school, we used to laugh at the obvious near illiteracy of some of the members of our local school-board. But we still believe that the municipally-centred school board system we enjoy is necessary if only to preserve control by fathers and mothers of what is being beaten into the heads of their offspring.

And we believe that to maintain the cultural integrity of the Canadian educated man, to lessen the influence over our education of those who are not immediately concerned and to preserve our separate cultures which must to some extent remain separate if we are not to lose whatever it is that makes being Canadian valuable, the province should remain the largest unit exercising anything that smells like control over universities as much as the municipality must remain the bulwark of democracy in the primary and secondary schools.

his

two letters to AM&amp;D

Dear Sir,

I object most strongly to the tone which Miss Mikos developed in her review of last Sunday's concert in the Great Hall. Mr. Goodman did not perhaps exhibit what might be termed a superb performance, but it was at times thrilling and throughout delightful. Some of the music was a little disappointing, but most of it was entertaining. I was not left with the impression that the evening was a failure, and neither were the enthusiastic listeners (some great violinists among them) who applauded at length for two encores and numerous bows.

Mr. Goodman displayed not only technical proficiency but achieved a remarkable delicacy, a refined taste, and a keen sense of proportion. To suggest that Mr. Goodman achieved less than he actually did is to falsify the facts.

I knew beforehand that Mr. Goodman is not, and does not pretend to be, a professional soloist. I went only to enjoy some music with him. I would attend a concert of Mr. Barkin's in much the same spirit as I attended Mr. Goodman's. And this is the point which I wish to emphasize most strongly: Mr. Goodman came at the particular request of the students. The implication that a guest of our university has come only to make a fool of himself and is undeserving of a fee, is both impudence and gross discourtesy.

David P. Silcox, S.G.S.

Dear Sir,

We the undersigned students wish to take exception to the remarks directed at the Trinity College Dramatic Society in Friday's issue of The Varsity. At the outset may we make it clear that none of the undersigned have any active part in the affairs of that body. The T.C.D.S. this year has undertaken to produce two plays of which Murder In The Cathedral is not the principal feature. In producing a play of this calibre, we feel that the society has undertaken a bold and initiative step not only in the world of theatre on campus but also in that of Toronto in general. As those who are acquainted with the theatre world on campus will realize, amateur groups frequently have trouble in making their productions of controversial or unusual plays successful. The T.C.D.S. in this connection has undertaken the production of such a play not only for the students patrons and friends of the college, but also for the undergraduates of this university. Friday's articles in The Varsity are typical of the attitude prevalent on this campus toward the majority of activities. Students ignore these activities until one becomes a success. At this point, it is discovered that it is a university activity and students should have a special privilege of participating. In this case, those students who have stood back while the T.C.D.S. in former years lost money are shocked when they discover that other subscribers have tickets to a popular production to the exclusion of themselves. The Varsity is probably one of the most offenders in encouraging the 'pamperism' of University students and Friday's article was just one more example of this. In the case of Eliot's play, students have discovered that competition within the ivory tower has always taken away a coveted prize. Too bad!

J. M. Hill, III Trin.
W. C. Graham, III Trin.
Winsor Pepall, S.G.S.
A. C. Baille, II Trin.

Happy HHOA

In spite of a few moments of discomfort, we left Sunday evening's concert by the Hart House Orchestra with a most happy feeling.

Mr. Pratz, the concert-master, may sound now and then as though he is playing on a length of iron piping instead of an E-string, but perhaps we can set the effect down to contrast of tone.

Mr. Orval Ries, the oboist, had a bit of difficulty with his reed in the slow movement of Marcello's Concerto in C minor, but he still produced as balanced a performance as one can under such circumstances.

Dr. Boyd Neel, conductor, may have glossed over some of the slow cadences in the gentler parts of the Geminiani Concerto Grosso Op. 2 No. 2 in C minor and achieved thereby a hesitant result, but in an instant such flaws were gone forever.

Of the rest of the evening we have nothing to report but success and satisfaction. Mr. Ries, a startling young artist, has a fine sense of the so-called musical phrase. Ignoring the reed difficulty, we find it hard to decide which we liked better: the Marcello concerto, or Albinoni's Concerto Op. 9 No. 2 (so designated on the program, but we understand it is another number in that opus).

Ariosti's overture to "Vespasiano" was a good beginning, highly spirited and energetically played. But for sheer beauty Pergolesi's Concertino No. 4 in F minor seemed to captivate everyone in the audience. It may not be fair to give the credit only to the muted violins, for the whole orchestra felt this music together. Seldom has such enchanting delicacy caressed the rafters of the old Great Hall.

By this time one would have felt that all possible surprises had been revealed. Someone has said that Bach was always right; we should like to hazard the opinion that Vivaldi was always right too. His highly charged D minor Concerto Grosso, Op. 3 No. 11, sent us all home in top spirits.

This performance was an arrangement of the original, and the contrasts between the ripieno and concertino were somewhat magnified. The result was quite electric. Congratulations certainly go out to the cellos and bass, Reynold Siemens, Ronald Laurie, and Cameron MacKay; their exposed and difficult acrobatic passages were thrilling. As a matter of fact everyone sawed away in grand style, and still the performance was controlled and grandly artistic. Such, then, with our few reservations, was the quality of the whole evening's program.

Ted Barnes.

Joe And

Last Thursday evening, the Hungarian violinist Joseph Szigeti was featured in an all-Bach program at the Royal Conservatory of Music. Mr. Szigeti played two Partitas, the D Minor and the E Major, and the Sonata in A Minor, all of which are written for unaccompanied violin.

